Samuel J. D. Thorne, the fifth son of S. H. Thorne and wife, Francis, was born April the 6d, 1861, and departed this life September the 30th, 1893, making his stay on earth 32 years and 6 months, lacking 4 days. Jeffy was a good boy from infancy, of a quiet disposition and a good and dutiful son, industrious, truthful and honest in his dealing; never was heard to use any profane language or known to take a drink of spirituous liquors, only as a medicine; never used tobacco in any form; a lover of peace he carried a smile on his face. His health commenced failing about the first of June but he continued to work until September. He was taken down the 20th of September and passed away on the 30th. The doctor pronounced his disease bowel consumption. He never made any profession of religion but believed in the Baptist Church. He was confined to his bed only ten days and if humane effort could have saved his life he would be with us now. He was the Lord's, he took him out of this sinful world to a home of rest. He talked but very little that could be understood, but was rational to the last. A short time before he breathed his last he tried to take off his clothing and then tried to take off his brother's. His sister asked him why he wanted to take off his brother's clothes and if he had any to give him. He said no. She asked him who would give him any, he said our Father, and in a short time after he laughed out, and laid his arms down by his side and went off as one going to sleep. He passed away without a struggle, with a smile on his face.

S. H. THORN.

ELDER A. J. GILBERT.

By request of the bereaved widow Gilbert I take pleasure in penning a few lines in remembrance of her husband A. J. Gilbert, who was born April the 3rd, 1810 and died April 15th, 1893, making his stay on earth 83 years and 12 days. Too much cannot be said of him as a humble man while he lived in this world and as a faithful soldier of the cross. The writer does not know the date of his delivery, but it has been a long time. He remained with the Missionaries awhile after the split took place in Chatham county, at a place called Bear Creek, and while struggling there with his enemies and contending with them for the truth which the Lord had led him to do until the Lord led him to his friends, the Primitive Baptist church where he remained many years. Soon after he joined the church he was set apart to the work of the Ministry, which office he filled faithfully to the end. I have known him about twenty years. After he left the Missionary and joined the Primitive Church I never saw any fault in his talk or in his walk. When he left the Missionary church he formed a church with the help of other brethren and they were organized according to Primitive Baptist discipline. It was the second Primitive Baptist church that has ever been in Chatham county and is yet, and he was the pastor of that church as long as he lived, also the pastor at Big Meadows for many years. Before he died he was afflicted for eighteen months or more so that he could not tend his meeting, yet he remained strong in the faith to the last. He traveled and preached a great deal until he was unable, and when he got down so that he was not able to travel his mind did not cease to have good spiritual light of the works of our blessed and merciful Saviour in whom he trusted till he was summoned from time into eternity, and we believe without the successful fear of contradiction that he is gone home to rest with God forever blessed. And now we will give a few lines of his last days on earth: About eighteen months before he died he was afflicted so that he had to lie on his bed the most of the time. For six weeks or more after he was taken sick he was not aware of where his body was, and about the first the family or his companions discovered of him not knowing where his body had been for six weeks or more

He told his wife that he had got back home. She told him he had been at home all the time. He says Betsy, I have not. Where have you been she asked. He answered "I have been in the mountains preaching and had mighty good meetings and large congregations and saw a great many good people and friends. One of them told me that he saw this body die and go to the grave and the soul to God, and there stood till the morning of the resurrection and the soul and body reunited in glory." Some believe that his last days were his best days. While he was afflicted in his last days he prayed for the prosperity of the church and prayed for sinners that they might be convicted and converted by the Lord and go home to glory, where all is peace, all is love and rest forever. May the God of peace be with his dear companion together with all who may mourn his loss. Brother Gilbert is now at rest with God in glory. I can only say rest on my Dear Brother, I hope to meet you there. W. C. JONES.

NANCY CATHARINE PHILLIPS.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Please publish in the LANDMARK the death of my little half sister Nancy Catharine Phillips, the daughter of W. D. Phillips my father, and Penina F., his wife my step mother. She was born the 24th day of April 1893 and died in a few days, and her funeral was preached by Elders Stephenson and Peeden. She was the only child they had. My father has 2 children by his first wife and they have both married and left him. We all weep for her and miss her, and when I go I can't hear her sweet, prattling tongue; but the Lord saw proper to take her, and he will do better by her than we all could do for her, for we read in the Bible that "Christ took little children and blessed them," and again he said, "of such is the kingdom of heaven." Father and mother have hope of meeting her beyond the grave. They both belong to the Primitive Baptist church. Weep not father and mother, your darling babe has gone to sing redeeming Grace. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord.

The little Babe has gone to rest,
To reign with God forever blest.
Its little tongue will always praise,
A Saviour's love, redeeming grace.

ZILPHA I. SELLERS.

Princeton, N. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

ISAAC JONES.

Durham.....	Sat. and 1th Sunday in Nov.
Mt Lebanon.....	Monday
Blalock's School House.....	Tuesday
Flat River.....	Wednesday
Boxboro.....	Thursday
Shiloh.....	Friday
Stories Creek.....	Sat. and 1st Sunday in Dec.
Elmazer.....	Monday
Strator's Tuesday (funeral of his wife) together with Elder A. Blalock.....	Monday
Country Line.....	Wednesday
Arbor.....	Thursday
Gilliams.....	Friday
McCrays.....	Saturday
Lynch's Creek.....	2d Sunday
Prospect Hill.....	Monday
Whealers.....	Tuesday
Surles.....	Wednesday
Tar River.....	Thursday
Five Forks.....	Friday
Camp Creek.....	Saturday
Shoo Fly.....	3rd Sunday
Harris School House.....	Monday
Sult's School House.....	Tuesday
Dutchville.....	Wednesday
Brother G. C. Farthing will arrange for Thursday and Friday.

I. P. BEAN.

Big Creek.....	1st Sunday and Sat. in December
Riley's School House.....	Night
Old Union.....	Monday
Toms' Creek.....	Tuesday
Flat Creek.....	Wednesday
Mountain Creek.....	Thursday
Bear Creek.....	Friday
Meadow Creek.....	Saturday
Crooked Creek.....	Sunday
Watsons'.....	Monday
High Hill.....	Tuesday
Liberty.....	Wednesday
High Ridge.....	Thursday
Lawyers' Spring.....	Friday
Bethany.....	Saturday and 3rd Sunday
Tyson's School House.....	Monday
Jerusalem.....	Tuesday
Jones' Hill.....	Wednesday
Liberty Hill.....	Thursday
Freedom.....	Friday
Howard's Chapel.....	Saturday
Brother Reuben Deaton's.....	4th Sunday
School House near Wm. Carter's.....	Monday
Elder R. W. Snider expects to be with him part of the time.

W. M. CRAFT & A. J. TAYLOR.

Crooked Creek.....	Nov 23
Zion Hill.....	" 24
Flowers Cap.....	" 25
Stewart Creek.....	" 26
Tom's Creek.....	" 27
Aaron's Fork.....	" 28
Snow Creek.....	" 29

Russel's Creek.....	Dec. 1
Pleasant Grove.....	" 2
Buffalo.....	" 3
Sardis.....	" 4
Wolf Island.....	" 5
Matrimony.....	" 7
Ridgeway.....	" 8

Will Elder A. L. Moore or some other brother arrange 4 or 5 appointments for them commencing December 10th and leading towards Floyd Court House, Va.

RECEIPTS.

ALA.—Mrs S A Lawler 1 50.
GA.—Ann Logan 1 50 J F Lord 1.
IND.—J R Swift 2 00.
S. C.—By John Brown 1 50 E B Brown 2 B B Brown 1 D A Watson 1 50 E B Brown 1 50 H H Brown 1 50 W M Brown 2 00.
TENN.—By Mrs N J Mayberry 3 00.
Mo.—S F Stone 2 00.
NEW YORK.—Mrs E Hicks 1 50
N. C.—Mrs L Bardin 1 50 Mrs R E Hall 1 50 I W Bass 1 50 Mrs L Taylor 50 Mrs A Lowry 1 00 M Vincent 1 50 Mrs Laurinda Smith 1 50 Isaac Smith 50 Charlie Hatcher 1 50 J E Ballance 1 50 B Brown 1 50 Mas A A Ballance 1 50 B W Taylor 3 00 H F Pate 1 50 Wm Pate 3 00 J R Thompson 1 50 By W R Hooks 1 50 Mrs. M A Croom 1 50 Elder H B Williams 9 00 Mrs H Hatcher 1 50 J C Yelverton 3 00 J C Luper 1 50 Mrs Tabitha Pitt 1 50 B J Barnes 1 28 Elizabeth Game 1 50 H D Barnes 1 50 Mrs C S Braswell 1 50 Josiah Barnes 1 50 H D Barnes 1 50 Mrs M A Roberson 1 50 M Weatherly 3 00 M W Edmondson 1 50 Mrs S B Bradley 1 50 C H King 1 50 Jesse Fly 1 00 Elder A Wootan 1 50 Elder R W Wootan 1 00 Eld Felton 50c A R Davis 3 00 Elder G D Robins 1 50 J A Duval 1 00 Mrs M J Ricks 1 50 T J White 1 50 Mrs M A Ricks 1 50 L I Harris 3 00 Mrs Huldah Dickson 1 50 J W Dawson 1 50 M J Allsbrook 1 50 Harry Battle 2 00 Mrs T P Braswell 1 50 J G Bennett 1 50 Mrs M Bozeman 50c Seth Woodall 1 45 Elder L H Hardy 5 25 E J Littleton 6 H Hatcher 1 50 B Hooks 4 50 S P Fulgum 1 50 G C Farthing 3 00 Elder I W Gardner 1 50 Elder J M Harris 1 50 Elder W A Ross 2 00 B Bullock 1 50 Mrs P E Times 1 50 Mrs L Bardin 1 30 A Harrill 1 50 J S Norris 4 50 Elder J S Woodard 1 50 J S Shearin 1 50 Elder Y J Chandler 3 00 J A Roberson 3 00 Elder P W Willard 1 50 J L Brake 1 50 Elder J D Armstrong 1 50 Miss A E Green 5 00.
VA.—Isaac Busick 3 B A Belcher 1 C P Williams 1 50 A F Ferguson 1 50 Miss Laura Hunton 1 50 Mr T H Howard 3 Mrs S B Biddle 1 J W Fullen 2 Mrs J S Holland 2 Elder J T Turner 1. By Elder Hall 2 Wm H Hodges 7 50 Elder P G Lester 4 50.

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

Mrs M H Williams 1 G C Farthing 1 Miss Bessie Durand 1 Mrs M C Ridgely 1.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED Oct. 1st 1893.	No. 35 Daily.	No. 35 Daily.	No. 41. Daily.	No. 55. Daily Ex Sunday
	P. M.	P. M.	A. M.
Lv. Weldon	12 35	9 51	6 30
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 42	10 45	7 40
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv. Tarboro	12 54
				P. M.
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 42	10 45	7 40
Lv. Weldon	2 30
Lv. Selma	1 30
Lv. Fayetteville	1 15	5 45
Ar Florence...	10 40	3 27	8 30
			A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Wilson	2 30	9 27
Lv. Goldsboro	3 25	9 21
Lv. Magnolia	4 15	10 21
Ar Wilmington	5 15	11 50
	P. M.			A. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Oct. 1st 1893.	No. 36 Daily.	No. 40 Daily.	No. 46 Daily.	No. 56 Daily Ex Sunday.
	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.
Lv. Florence	5 10	7 30	6 30
Lv. Fayetteville	9 33	9 50
Lv. Selma	11 40
Ar. Wilson	11 45	12 0
	A. M.		P. M.	P. M.
Lv. Wilmington	9 30	5 45
Lv. Magnolia	11 40	7 45
Lv. Goldsboro	12 20	8 34
Ar. Wilson	1 20	9 15
		No. 44 Daily
Lv. Wilson	1 10	11 30	9 15
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 00	12 05	10 00
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv. Tarboro	12 54
Lv. Rocky Mt.	3 00	12 05	10 03
Ar Weldon	3 05	1 00	11 15
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 30 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 30 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leaves Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 30; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele 6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via A. M. Harris & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday 5 00 p. m., Sunday 1 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m.

5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth 1 daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m. Sunday 10 00 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 12 20 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 50 a. m.; arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 20 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 00 a. m., Nashville 5 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 7 15 p. m., arrive Dunbar 8 45 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 5 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 7 30 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 7 45 p. m. Returning leaves Clinton at 10 00 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Sup't.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.

T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Microcco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,

Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Print.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED

At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is now living for you. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

1 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cubell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Fall term begins Monday, Sept. 4, 1893.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Oct. 8, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		Miles
No. 1	MAIN LINE.	No. 2
11 00 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	5 07 a m
7 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	5 00 a m
7 25 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	5 25 a m
6 05 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	9 14 a m
4 12 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	11 47 a m
3 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Lv	12 20 p m
3 40 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	12 35 p m
2 54 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	1 22 p m
2 45 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pt. - W. Cove, Ar	1 55 p m
1 40 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pt. - W. Cove, Lv	3 27 p m
12 50 p m	Lv.....Furial Hall.....Lv	5 53 p m
10 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	4 40 p m
No. 3		No. 4
11 05 p m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv	4 35 a m
9 50 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	5 40 a m
9 10 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	6 25 a m
5 15 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	7 22 a m
7 54 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	7 45 a m
No. 15		No. 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
6 00 p m	At.....RAMMERS.....Lv	6 50 a m
4 20 p m	Lv.....GILLESPIE.....Lv	5 40 a m
3 10 p m	Lv.....GREENSBORO.....Ar	9 15 a m
No. 15		No. 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
2 52 p m	Ar.....GREENSBORO.....Lv	9 45 a m
1 40 p m	Lv.....STOKESDALE.....Lv	11 05 a m
12 45 p m	Lv.....MADISON.....Ar	11 55 a m

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air-Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points South and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air-Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is so recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

DECEMBER 1, 1893.

NO. 2.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getting up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for the club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him state what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up, if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

BANK.

Sometimes I feel to exclaim with the poet and say :

I have a never failing bank,
A more than golden store,
The earthly bank is half so rich.
How can I then be poor.

It is when my stock is spent and gone,
And I without a groat,
I'm glad to hasten to my bank
And beg a little note.

Sometimes my banker smiling says
Why don't you oftener come,
And when you draw a little note,
Why not a larger sum.

Why live so niggardly and poor.
Your bank contains plenty ;
Why come and take a one pound note,
When you might have twenty.

Yes, twenty thousand ten times told,
Is but a trifling sum.
So what your Father has laid up
Secure in God his son.

Since then my banker is so rich
I have no cause to borrow,
I'll live upon my cash to-day
And draw again to-morrow.

I've been a thousand times before
And never was rejected ;
Sometimes my banker gives me more
Than asked for or expected.

Sometimes I've felt a little proud,
I've managed things so clever ;
But, ah ! Before the day was gone,
I've felt as poor as ever.

Sometimes with blushes on my face,
Just at the door I stand,
I know if Moses keeps me back
I surely must be damn'd.

I know my bank can never break,
No, it can never fail,
The firm, three persons in one God,
Jehovah, Lord of all.

Should all the banks in Britain break,
The Bank of England smash,
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank,
You'll surely have your cash.

And if you have but one small note,
Fear not to bring it in,
Come boldly to the bank of grace,
The banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused,
Man merits are rejected,
There's not a single note will pass,
That God has not accepted.

'Tis only these beloved by God,
Redeemed by precious blood,
That ever had a note to bring
These are the gifts of God.

Tho' thousand ransomed souls may say
They have no notes at all,
Because they feel the plague of sin,
So ruined by the fall.

This bank is full of precious notes,
All signed and sealed and free,
Tho' many doubting souls may say,
There is not one for me.

Base unbelief will lead the child
To say what is not true,
I tell the soul who feels self lost,
These notes belong to you.

The leper had a little note,
Lord, if you will you can,
The banker cashed his little note,
And healed the sickly man.

We read of one young man indeed
Whose riches did abound,
But in the banker's book of grace
This man was never found.

But see the wretched dying thief
Hung by the banker's side,
He cried dear Lord, remember me,
He got his cash and died "

—RICHARD YEATTS.

Fullens, Pittsylvania Co. Va., Sept. 1, '93.

Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. You do not think of worrying one you love. You do not think he intends any evil by what he does. You are not easily provoked by anything he does. You will endure much from the one you love. What he does or says seems good to you.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C., {
June 14th, 1893. }

MY DEAR SISTER: It is raining and I feel a desire to write you a few lines; and, if it is our dear Father's will, say a few words of comfort to you if it so be that he guides my thoughts, for I do believe the goodness, holiness, righteousness and abundant mercies of our dear Saviour are the topmost and foremost theme of my poor, but I hope hungering soul. And, if indeed it is, how wonderfully blessed I am, for he said "blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." Dear Maggie, can you take comfort from such precious words from our dear Savior's own lips. The lips of Him who spoke as never man spake. I know you can, for I feel assured that it is addressed to you, for I am sure that you are one of His little ones. And again He says, Fear not little flock, for if He gave you Christ why will he not give you all things. So He has given us the King in His good pleasure, and if the King is ours so is the Kingdom, and what is there for us to fear man, for says He, That principalities, nor powers, things present, nor things to come, nor life, nor death, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from his love. With these many and abundant precious promises can't you, dear sister, cry out with the poet and say from your heart "Let rocks and hills their lasting silence break.

And all harmonious tongues their Saviour's praises speak."

And feel almost sure that the time will come when sorrow and sighing will flee away, and He will wipe the tears from our eyes, never to sorrow, nor sigh again, and never have our troubled eyes wet with tears of sorrow again; but be blessed as was Lazarus in our Father Abraham's (Christ) bosom, where the unmerciful (rich man) and tormenter (Satan) can never molest us nor mar our peace and happiness again.

How glad I would be to be with you this evening. My heart feels drawn out to you in love and also to all the dear children of our Father, and I do feel and believe the time soon will come when we will meet in Heaven, our home, where parting will be no more. Happy, happy, happy theme. For I feel that I can almost see far away beyond the shoals of this troublesome shore of time the poor wayworn pilgrim entering that happy and peaceful haven of rest to be ever with the Lord and receiving the blessed welcome, "Well done thou good and faithful servant," and seated by our dear Saviour in the place prepared for us when he said, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am you may be also." Dear Maggie, while I write my eyes are filled with tears to think of the great love wherewith He loved us when we were dead in trespasses and sins, and an alien from God, and as it were strayed off in a distant land trudging along the downward road to destruction; and can't we exclaim with child-like love, "Blessed be God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has redeemed us from so great a death, a death that would have forever separated us from God; from his dear children; from our dear Saviour and all the blood-washed throng, and left us perishing forever in the never-ending torment of destruction, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched. Oh, what a redemption. So now let us try to lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience ever looking to Him who is the author and finisher of our faith.

Dear Niece:—I don't know whether my letter will interest you much or not. I have written my feelings as I have gone along, and could not have written otherwise without inconvenience to myself. I hope you will excuse all mistakes, &c. Your affectionate and unworthy brother,

M. B. WILLIFORD.

HOBGOOD, N. C. }
April 17, 1893. }

DEAR BROTHER GOLD: My mind leads me, if not deceived to write a few lines for the LANDMARK, but I've nothing to write about but trials and the glory of them. Dear brother Gold, I was called upon in the infinite wisdom and mercy of our covenant-keeping God on the morning of the twentieth of August, to give back to God my first born, a son, Johnnie O. Whitley. He lacked two months and a few days being 17 years of age. I am happy to tell you I feel perfectly reconciled to the wise dispensation of Providence. But dear Brother Gold, don't you and all the dear readers of the LANDMARK know, at least I'm sure that some of you do, that nothing but the mighty power of Him who doeth all things well can reconcile us to His will. I can say I know it is the truth.

MRS. P. E. MCGOWAN, MY DEAR MA:—I will say a few words to you. Will you bear up with me in this sore hour of trial? I know you loved our dear boy, such a candid truthful, honest, helpful son, but dear Ma, he was only lent to us, and how he loved Grandmother too. But Ma, when I tell you how bravely, manfully, beautifully he talked while perfectly rational, will you not cease to grieve? And help me to say "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh, blessed be the name of the Lord." When he knew he had the terrible disease hemorrhagic fever, or black jaundice, which in our family seems to mean death, (He was told by his father and other faithful ones, I was not there) he was reconciled. He thanked his father for training him in the proper manner and said "Papa I would be glad to live to help you and Mama raise the other children to help you in your old age, but if it is God's will, I am willing to die." Ma, rejoice with me. You and I too, will soon go, and we have a hope of meeting our dear one in the happy beyond. I would be so glad of your presence dear Ma, come when you can.

A few words to brother and sister Outterbridge: When I was with you at our last Union, which was only a short while ago, I talked with you of sending my precious boy, to be under your kind, fatherly and motherly care for a natural education, I told you how we had trained him; that we had loved him so well we had allowed him to mingle with the world but scarcely any, and he knew nothing of himself of the teaching of mankind, of their evil practices, bad habits &c. He was a good boy morally; he loved the Primitive Baptists, and never seemed any better satisfied than when in their company, and I have seen him go up after preaching and tell the minister how he enjoyed the sermon. Oh, it did fill my heart to overflowing to think and believe he loved the truth, but dear brethren and sisters, "he is not dead," the child of our affection, but gone unto that school where he no longer needs our poor protection, and Christ himself doth rule.

Pray for me and mine if you can find it in your heart do so, and come to see us, if ever you can.

Your sister in hope of a better world. BETTIE Z. WHITLEY.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I feel that I must write and tell the feelings of my heart to the dear people of God. I feel weighted down from some cause and when it came to me to write I felt it must be of the Lord and if so I trust the great depression of spirit will leave me, and as some, or many of the family of God, have felt the same and we may mutually be comforted. I hear grumbling, on almost every side, and Oh! how it does trouble me. The cry of the poor and needy. I have no meat and bread at home for my children. I am sick, and weak, but I must work yet I am denied by those who have a plenty around them, Oh! Lord what is the matter Oh! dear brethren, I have been so forcibly reminded of thanksgiving, I feel like I must say a word in regard to it: Yesterday and today, have been fearful, windy, rainy days, and while I went backward and forth through it and heard the grumbling around me, I was made to feel so thankful it was no worse: we had something to eat, something to wear and a good fire to warm by, and a good bed to sleep on, and cover to keep me warm and what more did I need? I felt like I loved everybody, even those who I felt had persecuted me, for I felt like everything worked together for my good. I also at the same time have a sick child, and only two months ago lost one, but feel thankful to God it is no worse and Oh! Lord thy will is a holy, righteous, and just will "Thy will be done." Brethren we used to have thanksgiving day fasting and prayer &c. Have we departed from the good old way? When the church of God was going in the discharge of her duties, did the nation suffer? Oh! look at the distressed condition of the nation, and let us return to our duties, and I do feel from my soul there will be a great change. Prayer in our families, Thanksgiving days, Fast and prayer days, meeting together more often than we do. For getting not to communicate, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased. Brother Gold, I have written hurriedly, as it came to me and I feel unburdened. Do with it as you see fit. Your sister in Christ I trust, BETTIE Z. WHITLEY.

ELDER P. D. GOLD; DEAR BROTHER:—By your permission I desire to say a few words to sister S. E. Broyles, through the columns of your valuable paper. Dear strange sister, your letter in LANDMARK, of July 1st, has certainly struck a sympathetic chord in my breast, and I believe you obeyed the command of the Saviour, bear ye one another's burdens, when you wrote it, for it lightened my burden to know that some of the dear ones had the same trials and experience as myself, which increases my faith, and renews my hope that I have heard the voice of Jesus speaking peace to my soul. Though I sometimes sink so low down, and seem so vile that I almost lose all hope, and almost conclude, surely I am deceived. It seems that surely a child of grace never could grow so cold and wander so far away as I seem to do: for as you say, when I attempt to seek the Lord in prayer I find myself beset with sin, and my mind wandering through vain and wordly things, and Paul says, when I would do good evil is present. So that the things I would do I do not and the things I would not that I do. So in me that is in the flesh, dwells no good things. I sometimes have an humble hope that the Spirit of Christ does dwell in me, sinful as I am, and if so I have only to fight on and wait his appointed time. When this mortal shall have put on immortality, and this corruptible body be changed into an incorruptible spiritual body, then sin and sorrow will be done away. But if I am deceived, oh how sad will be my condition in the end, for I am trusting alone in God for salvation, for He says, there is salvation in none other, and vain is the help of man; for his imaginations are continually evil, and his heart desperately wicked above all things. Then without the restraining influence, and chastening of the Lord, man would be a very bad servant of the Lord, much less a helper to save himself and others. Then surely we should deny ourselves and rely alone on Him for protection; for surely we have no claim to urge upon Him, for if He saves us it is his mercy, and if He damns us it is just, for we have violated His holy law and brought ourselves under its condemning sentence, and are left only to beg for mercy. Then if it be His holy will to speak peace to our soul and shine in our hearts by the candle of his grace, Oh, how we are made to rejoice; but when he withdraws His presence from us, and hides His smiling face, then we are made to cry out with the poet and say "It is a point I long to know,

Oh! it causes anxious thought,
Do I love the Lord or no,
Am I His, or am I not?"

But when he sends forth His smiles on us again, then are we content to dwell in hope. I have digressed so far from what I intended to write that I fear I shall not reach it. Dear Sister, you say you cannot show forth the life of Christ in your walk, as you desire, and often wonder if anybody would find out from your walk and conversation that you are a professor of godliness, and sometimes almost wish for your change to come, and just long to find out who can witness with you. In reply to these questions I think I can truthfully say that every child of Grace can witness with you in them, and that every one who has read your letters has found out you are a possessor of it. But dear sister, we should not look for perfection while in the flesh, for then we should not be fit inhabitants of this world; for these things are given us to show us our dependence and keep us humble and teach us obedience. Paul had these things to contend with, and prayed the Lord to remove them, but he said to Him my grace is sufficient for thee, so his grace is sufficient for us, and may He lead and guide us and protect us from the evils of this present world, and may these few scattering, feeble thoughts be of some comfort to you and all the household of faith who may chance to read them, is the prayer of your unworthy brother, if one at all. J. R. OBELL.

Radford Furnace, Va.

Dear Brother Gold, I cannot close this scribble without saying that your valuable paper still comes to me laden with good news from a far country, and oh, how I enjoy it, especially the editorials, and the experiences of the dear saints. May more of them be constrained to write in its columns to the exclusion of controversies about points of doctrine which serve rather to confuse than to feed the lambs. I am sorry and ashamed to confess that I am yet behind with you, but circumstances have combined to make it so, though I hope to be able to pay up soon and renew. May the Lord grant you a long life to prosecute the good work of defending his noble cause with mouth and pen.

Your Unworthy Brother,

J. R. OBELL.

The slothful man boasteth not that which he took in hunting; but the substance of a diligent man is precious.—Prov. 13: 27 ver.

ELDER P. D. GOLD AND BRETHREN—I feel like I want to try to attempt to tell something about my feelings as I hope to be the Lord's dealings with me. I hope to try to tell something about how I came to join the Baptist church. I first joined the Methodist church in 1886, and remained a member until about 3 months ago when I became dissatisfied, and asked them to take my name off. About Nov. 1891 I went to the first Baptist church I ever visited and that church was Healthy Plains, and I have been attending nearly all the meetings ever since at that church and the more I went the more I wanted to go. About three months ago I felt like I wanted to be one with the Brothers and Sisters at that church, and I am sure I was better satisfied with them than any people in the world, but feel like I was worse than every one in that church, but I could not do anything that would satisfy my mind only to join the church at Healthy Plains and I was relieved in the church and Baptized by Brother Wm Woodard. And I have felt and feel now that the Lord has done something for my poor Soul. Oh I wish I could feel all the time as I have and do sometimes, when I am called to leave this world. I am satisfied I would go praising the God of heaven and earth who created all things by Jesus Christ, the only begotten of the Father, who is full of Grace and truth. I thank God that I was permitted to go to the Healthy Plains church, the first Primitive Baptist church I ever visited in my life. I have enjoyed going there and hearing the word of God preached more in two years than in all of my life before, and I do love the Brothers and Sisters of that church more and more every day. But oh brother, I shall not be near by these good people and this good old church but a short time, and I know I shall never, no never meet any like these good people around Healthy Plains church. I trust that God may always be with them through this life, and at last take them home to Heaven where praises shall never end; and hope I may be thought of sometimes in the prayers of all the Brothers and Sisters, and especially the good old Brother that preached for us. I never expect to see any man I love better than I do Brother Woodard. I shall try the rest of my life to trust in God. Yours in hope.

E. V. RIGGS.

Taylor, N. C.

CONSTITUTION.

The New River Association, complying with a request from the church at Laurel Fork for a presbytery to meet at Maple Shade, Carroll County, Va., on Saturday before the second Sunday in October, 1893, to consider the propriety of recognizing a certain band of brethren and sisters (whose names are given below) as a regular independent church of Jesus Christ: Three of the Elders appointed attended, to-wit: Elders Isaac Webb, A. Thomas and F. P. Branscome. F. P. Branscome desiring to be in the constitution did not go into the Presbytery. Elders I. Webb and A. Thomas invited Eld. J. M. Wyatt, and deacons N. J. Combs, J. Boyd, R. P. Terry, A. Webb, J. Helms S. B. Bowman, E. McGrady, and N. L. Semones to act with them in presbytery.

The presbytery was organized by choosing Eld. Isaac Webb, Mod., and Eld. Allen Thomas, Clerk. The following members, wishing to be organized, handed in their letters of dismission, to-wit: Mary J. Bolt, Lucy A. Bolt, Mary J. Webb, Susan M. Webb, Susannah Brim and Gilly C. Stanley from Laurel Fork, Eld. F. P. Branscome and Orlena E. Branscome from Panther Creek, A. Pendleton and Mahala J. Pendleton from Concord, Eld. Joel E. Marshall, J. H. Brim and Adline F. Brim from Bell Spur.

Then, on motion Eld. F. P. Branscome was made spokesman for the body. They then presented and adopted the articles of faith as held by the churches of the New River Association. They also adopted rules of decorum as found on page 696 of Hassell's Church History. After examination upon the articles of faith and rules of decorum, they were declared to be a regular independent Church of Jesus Christ. The work of the presbytery was concluded by prayer by the Mod. and right hand of fellowship by the presbytery. The church then chose, by a unanimous vote, Eld. F. P. Branscome to serve them as pastor, and Eld. Joel E. Marshall to serve them as Church Clerk. The brethren and sisters at Maple Shade will meet in conference on Saturday before the 2d Sunday in each month.

P. P. BRANSCOME, Rec'd'g C'k.

ISAAC WERR, Moderator.

ALLEN THOMAS, Clerk.

EXPERIENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:— I have been thinking for sometime of trying to write my little experience of grace, if I have any. My prayer is to the God of Heaven that he may guide my pen and enable me to rightly divide the word of truth that each one may receive meat in due season. I was born into this troublesome world Sept. 28, '57 My father and mother whom I humbly trust are now enjoying that rest that remains to the people of God, left me in this world at the age of 9 months. I was cared for and raised to manhood by my mother's sister who is now old and feeble, resting upon the staff of time as did Jacob of old, when he blessed the sons of Joseph. I have not a kinsman upon the earth that believes the doctrine that I love, within my knowledge. My good old aunt who seems like a mother to me to-day always gave me good advice, be sober, tell the truth,

"Shun evil companions,
Bad language disdain,
God's name hold in reverence,
Nor take it in vain

Be thoughtful and earnest.
Kind hearted and true,
Look well to Jesus,
He will carry you through."

It seemed I could not get ready until I was 23 years of age, when I hope it pleased God to show me what a great sinner I was by nature, and what I must be before seeing his face in peace. Regardless of my aunt's advice, from the time of my childhood to the age of 23, I was a wild, reckless boy that participated in all manner of wickedness, though always obeying my aunt in all her commandments as near as possible, except to do good. My choice out of her sight was to do evil, but a poor, ignorant fool had no better sense. I was allowed the privilege of going to hear all different denominations. I thought all were right except the Old Hard Shell so-called. It seemed they were the biggest fools on earth, consequently I did despise them. My father and mother left no worldly goods. In that respect my aunt and they were equal. I went to school about five months during 15 years. I learned to spell and read a little. What little I can write I learned on sticks and in the sand. I was also allowed to go to Sunday Schools which I took a great delight in at that day. I learned to memorize several chapters in the testament which I have not yet forgotten, but this does not make me any better.

About the year 1880 or '81 I went, just to pass off the time, or to be with other young people, to hear brother W. S. McDowell preach, a man I did despise then, but I hope I love him now. I never shall forget his text while memory lasts. His text was, "ask and ye shall receive." He preached for about 10 minutes what I called sound doctrine at that day and time. He handed it out to everybody broadcast, giving the children's bread to dogs, but finally he turned his eyes and said brethren and sisters, don't get scared, the scale will turn presently. He then told them this scripture belonged to the believer in Christ. He admonished them when they felt discouraged, felt to be far from God, to ask and they would receive for God himself had promised it. Dear reader, whoever you be, that sermon got hold of me in some way; wish I could tell you all about it but can not; but such as I have I give unto thee. Right there and then I saw that the language that Christ used to Nicodemus was correct when he said "except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." So my dear brethren, I could not see how this could be. I could see a way that somebody could be saved, but could not see any way for me. I was such a bad boy God would not save a wretch like me. I traveled this road for six years, the most miserable being that has ever been on this continent surely, trying everything imaginable to get rid of this bad feeling. Sometimes I would conclude to commit some great sin, and sometimes would conclude not to sin at all. At times I would go off to some secret place where I thought no eye could see and no ear could hear, and there I would try to beg God to relieve me of that bad feeling, and go away from there worse than when I went, and concluded to get married, then perhaps I would feel better. So in November '82 I married Mollie M. Dakes. She treated me with all the kindness that heart could wish; but still that bad, sinful feeling I could not get rid of. That brethren is the conviction, if so I have been convicted, but the great question is, have I been convicted? If so why am I thus, why can't I live like the brethren? If my memory serves me right, the third Sunday in July '86 I wanted to hear preaching worse than ever before. There was a Methodist Sunday School not far from there and I concluded to go to it and see if I could not find some one that looked like I felt. I did find one man apparently that way. He remarked to me, Dick the world is having a gay time. It did appear to me that everybody was enjoying themselves as well as heart could wish, while poor, unworthy me felt cast-down, did not know where to go, nor what to do. So in a short while their glorious work, as they call it, commenced. I went in the house, took a seat, and the first thing I knew this burden of sin and condemnation left me, and I was up on my feet singing praises to Him who created me, and felt as clear of sin and condemnation for a few minutes as if I had never committed a sin in my life. I loved my wife and little children then better than I did before, but those happy moments and good feelings soon passed by and I doubted the reality of a change, though I have never felt since as I did before. There is a change some way, for things I once loved I now hate. My desire is to do right on all occasions, but cannot. Going on this way for about 6 years, not knowing whether to claim it for a hope or not, not knowing yet whether that is worth claiming, but it is all I have. Sometimes my hope is so small I think I will lay it by, but then again I think it is sufficient if called to die. This is the way I have been hobbling along for some time, not knowing what I am. Last fall I thought that a hope that was not worth telling to the church was not worth claiming, so I went before the church at Union on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in October '92, told part of what I have written, and to my surprise was received and was baptized the fifth Sunday of same month, myself and five others, by brother W. S. McDowell. I have never been sorry I joined the church, but am sorry that I cannot live like a Christian. I ask the prayers of God's people everywhere. RICHARD YEATTS. Pullens, Pittsylvania Co. Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—It is by and through the love, and mercy of a just and all-wise Redeemer that I am the spared monument of another day, and I do hope I feel thankful to the Lord of Heaven for all his blessings which he has bestowed upon me, an unworthy receiver. You will learn from this that we are all up, but not well. My mother's health is very feeble at this time but better than it has been for sometime past. She is often having bad spells, and did not look like she could live. But the blessed Lord is able to raise her up and to spare her to us longer, for which I do hope that I am thankful to the giver of every good and perfect gift, for they all came from the Lord of glory. My dear brother, I do hope that these few lines will reach you in due time and find you well and doing well, is the incessant wish of your unworthy little sister, if a sister at all. My dear brother, it has been a long time since I have seen or even heard from you. I have kept thinking that perhaps you would write to me but you have not written to me, if you have I have not received it. I often feel dear brother that I am almost forgotten by all of my kindred in Christ, and get low down in the valley and can't see my way out, save by the help of the Lord, for our strength is in him and not in us. O how glad I do feel when thinking of what a Saviour I have. "Then I can tell to sinners round, What a dear Saviour I have found." My dear brother, is he not a dear Saviour to his people, when he has saved them with everlasting salvation world without end. I was studying not long since about a friend of mine, when this Scripture came to my mind with force; it is in second Thessalonians, first chapter and seventh verse, and reads as follows. "And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels." I think when the Lord of glory reveals himself to a person and then they will go calmly on with their duty, then they will find rest and peace to their troubled soul, all will be peace and happiness instead of sorrow and mourning. It will be joy and gladness to the once broken hearted mourner; or that was my case, for I surely felt to be a mourner and felt the need of a Saviour, and when the Lord said, "come and rest with us," I was made willing to take up my cross and to follow my blessed Jesus down into the watery grave, and then and there I lost that heavy burden that I had carried in my breast for six years and eleven months, and my dear brother, I have not felt it since I was buried in the watery grave; and I would say to all who have been regenerated and born of the Spirit of God, come rest with us, and you will find a peace of mind, and an answer of a good conscience toward God. Oh that word, "come and rest with us," sounds deep in my ear, for what is sweeter than rest to the poor tempest-tossed child of God. And is not rest good to any of us naturally when we are tired from labor. I say it is. But my dear brother, is not rest to the poor child of God sweeter than any other rest we can think of. I know that is my opinion about it. I am often meditating over the goodness and mercy of God. How unsearchable are his ways and his thoughts past finding out. This is the God whom we love and serve, the one that rules in the armies of Heaven above and among the inhabitants of earth, for he speaks and it is done, he commands, and it stands fast. This is the God that rules the times and seasons and doubtless for the best of reasons. I am glad to know that there is one who rules and super-rules all things according to his own purpose and for his own glory, and I am glad that it is so and rejoice in it with all my heart. I will soon have to close this imperfect letter, for I fear that I have already wearied your patience. Hoping to hear from you soon, and with love and kindest regards to you and yours, and as Joseph says, "When it goes well with you remember me at a throne of grace, and may the blessings of God rest upon you. I remain your little sister in the bonds of peace."

MARY C. STEWART.

Troyville, N. C.

Now as I beheld, the living creatures, behold one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, with his four faces.—Ezekiel 1:5.

When they went they went upon their four sides: and they turned not when they went.—Ezekiel 1:17.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—I feel disposed to take my pen to drop you a few lines. I hope you will not feel I am beside myself. I feel troubled in mind and thought somewhat. I believe you are a true servant of Christ, having been called of Him to serve in the gospel. I believe you have on the armor and are girt about with truth, having the sword of the Spirit which is the word of God. May you be enabled by the power of divine grace, when you see the waters troubled, to pour oil thereon. Ever seek the peace of Jerusalem, as it is declared, "they shall prosper that love thee." The kingdom of Christ is a kingdom of peace and love. And when the Spirit of Christ dwells supreme in the hearts of his dear people, love and peace will abound, and that true charity will be found that suffereth long and is kind. And that love will be seen that is without dissimulation, each one esteeming another better than himself. When one has been brought to see the awful depravity of his heart he will not so easily be puffed up, but he will be meek and lowly, and he will not feel exalted surely when he sends his petition in Jesus, and is exalted in Him. Then the poor sinner can glory and feel exalted in his perfect Saviour and praise him for all the gifts and blessings he has given him. The enemy is busy to divide and scatter the flock of God, but Jesus reigns in her behalf. He came to destroy the works of the devil and it will surely be done. God's dear people need strong faith to enable them to endure the fiery trials that often assail them. True godliness brings humility and love.

O my dear brother, I so often feel that I do not know any thing truly about these glorious eternal and heavenly realities. But I long to know the love of Christ which passeth the knowledge of men. I am troubled when love and peace do not seem to fully abound among the Saints. Why should I thus feel if I did not have an interest in these things? I delight to see harmony and love in families, in neighborhoods and communities, but especially in the church of God. I hope and trust your labors will be abundantly blest both in writing and preaching. May you be enabled to administer to the weak and faint as well as to the strong and vigorous. Your position is responsible but the grace of your divine master is sufficient for you. I read the LANDMARK with much interest; in reading your editorial in the last number I could but think of an expression Sylvester Hassell made a few days ago in speaking of you and your writings, he said that "Brother Gold had too much sense and too much grace to enter into speculative views." May God's grace abound to you. God has wonderfully blest you, and he will still bless you.

I am feeling better than when I last wrote you. I was confined to the house three weeks. I am not well now and feel that I am nearing the shore. Will it not be blessed and glorious if we are so unspeakably happy as to reach that pure land of rest, peace and love, no jarring notes will there be heard. Dear Brother Gold, I have just penned these few thoughts as I felt that I wanted to speak to you, and I could not speak to you face to face.

My love to dear sister Gold and all of your family. We are all up now. I would be so glad to hear you preach and see you. I am sure you have all you can well do. Pray for me for I am poor and needy. Pardon me for troubling you to read this scroll.

Your humble sister in hope for perfection in Christ,

M. M. HASSELL.

Williamston N. C.

TO THOSE WHO HAVE OBTAINED LIKE PRECIOUS FAITH. DEARLY BELOVED:—We hear Jesus coming out and saying to the above characters, "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me." Then Jesus says on the opposite side, "He that abideth in me the same bringeth forth much fruit." The inspired Apostle of the Gentiles gives us in Rom. 1: 20, to understand that "The invisible things of God from the creation of them are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and god-head." Then Jesus uses these things as illustrations, but he always addresses them to the character. Then how do we become branches of the living vine? We are not considered as living in a spiritual sense while in Adam, for John says, "he that hath the Son of God hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." Then to be a living branch we must have the Son as the quickening Spirit. Then man in Adam is classed with the organic earth and mineral kingdom which is inorganic, having no life. We are taught by those things that are made that there are a mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms. We are also taught that the mineral is organic, (or has no life.) The vegetable is organic and is second, the animal kingdom is still above the vegetable, but Christ and his kingdom is above all. By a careful observance of those things that are made we discover one kingdom is shut off from the one just above it in nature by nature's inexorable laws. The mineral cau-not go up and possess the vegetable, the vegetable cannot ascend to the animal; but according to God's laws in nature that above can cross the lines from above and bring the one below up, and then the organizing power of life assimilates the lower into organism, and it is to a certain extent made a participant with the organic, so the mineral is conveyed by a power from above to the vegetable and both conveyed to the animal, and there is where man is in nature, but that which is natural is not spiritual: so we see that we are spiritually organic. Then these branches of Christ, the living vine were once inorganic or dead in trespasses and sins. Reason dictates they could no more ascend into the vegetable, or the vegetable introduce itself into the animal: so we are taught by these things that are made that for any of Adam's fallen sons or daughters to become branches they must be conveyed across the inorganic kingdom of satan into the spiritually organic kingdom of Christ, the living vine. Then they are under the laws of the kingdom and in case they bear fruit they must abide in Christ, for without him they can do nothing. Now there are those who abide, and it is evident that there are those who do not abide, and the consequences are they have no fruit; and what follows? They as the unfaithful Israelites did of old miss the blessings of the spiritual Canaan, but this does not take the life out of Christ the everliving vine.

But we would here state the divine Father holds a rod in his hand called a rod of chastisement, and Paul tells us he uses it on all of his sons, and why? Because all of them get in an unfruitful condition more or less. We fail to judge our selves and are judged of the Lord, and chastened, and thereby reclaimed, brought back to the vine, and saved from being condemned in the world. Not that the branches here under consideration are ever eternally lost, for that would throw a reflection on Christ the living vine; for he said, because I live you shall live also, showing an identity of cause and effect between his eternal life and theirs.

Yours to serve in the gospel of God's dear son,

R. A. WISEMAN,

Nichols, Mo.

REVELATION OF THE TEN VIRGINS.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—My mind has been greatly exercised on the Ten Virgins, of late; so much so I can not be satisfied unless I write to you; and tell you what I think the true meaning of the parable is: but it is with much fear and trembling that I do it, hoping if I say anything amiss that it will be imputed to my ignorance, and hope my pen may be guided by the great judge of this earth. I saw Elder Chick's writings on the parable; and yours also, but neither one exactly expressed my view on it. Though I could agree with Elder Chick when he said the foolish virgins were disobedient christians. But these virgins did not have the true light or these virgins did not have a true preacher, and the five wise were the true church with a true preacher, and the lamps going out represents the split in the true church and the God-called preachers dying out, and the christians coming to the true church for full fellowship, while they are in disobedience and the lamps being trimmed, and oil in the vessels means the true church shining in all its beauty. Elder Joshua Lawrence in his writings holds that at the Lord's coming half the church would be in darkness.

Farewell dear brother, I hope God's blessings will rest and remain with you, and all God's people is the sincere desire of one that I hope loves all God's people, and has longed to know what was right,

NANNIE E. DODD.

Meadsville, Va

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I have just read Brother Bartley's piece in the LANDMARK, requesting the brotherhood to contribute to sister Ruth Taylor in order that she might have the benefits of a hospital. I enclose one dollar. I trust the Lord will put it in the hearts of the brethren and sisters to send enough money for her treatment. I was moved to contribute as soon as I saw the piece. I don't know sister Taylor only by character. But I know brother Bartley would not have called on the brethren for help if she had not been a worthy subject. I will close by asking you to pray for me and mine. Your sister (if one) in hope,

M. H. WILLIAMS.

Oak Ridge, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Enclosed is one dollar for the benefit of our dear afflicted sister Ruth Taylor.

I do hope she may receive enough to defray her expenses at a hospital and if it be the Lord's will entirely restored to health.

With love to sister Gold, and kind remembrance to your family I remain your unworthy sister, BESSIE DURAND.

Southampton, Pa.

The slothful man roasteth not that which he took in hunting; but the substance of a diligent man is precious.—Prov. 13: 27 ver.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII,.....No. 2.

WILSON, N. C., DEC. 1, 1893.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

FAITH.

Elder F. P. Branscome requests me to give my understanding of faith as spoken of in the Scriptures.

As the parlance of the people in different nations and ages of the world is continually undergoing changes by reason of use, some words becoming obsolete and others assuming more specific or varied definitions, as the case may be, it is very necessary, in discussing subjects of Scripture, to use Scriptural language, if not, to use such as means what is meant by words used in the Scriptures.

The word "faith" is used now to convey ideas which we may find it does not convey as used in the Scriptures—Unless we can find the word so used in them we have no right to use it in considering Scripture subjects as meaning so and so as used in common or natural sense now.

Scripture words mean the same in Scripture as when it was written, notwithstanding some words are now used to mean exactly different from what they do in Scripture. A true revision of the Scriptures in the proper translation of such words to conform with our expressions now might be beneficial to a proper understanding of many passages of Scripture.

The word faith is frequently used now interchangeably with that of "belief." While the word "belief" partakes in some connections very much of the idea of faith, yet it seems to me that by a careful examination of the subject of faith we will find it to be something that does not only precede belief, but may exist and its power be manifested independent of belief either expressed or implied, though belief generally follows either expressed or implied.

The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews, supposed to be Paul—in giving some of the works of faith says: "Through faith we understand the worlds were framed by the word of God." And, in Heb. 1: 2 he says this word is the Son of God by whom he made the worlds. How would it sound to say: through belief we understand, we have knowledge of, we know so and so? Through faith we know that "things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." We know that which carnal reason cannot define and does not admit.

By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain. We have no account of Abel having been instructed in this matter as to what to bring as an offering or whether to bring anything, but it came to pass one way with him and another way with Cain. And so it is to day, some worship God by faith and others do not, and are not respected of him. In the absence of evidence what right have we to claim that Abel believed at all in this matter? We are not told that the Lord had or ever did speak to him, or had in any way given active tuition, therefore there are no grounds for belief. This action on the part of Abel must have been the effect of divine intuition, itself an effect of divine nature, itself the gift of God by grace.

This service was not by command of the Lord and yet must be rendered. It was not of duty, and yet was right and acceptable. There was no condition attached to it, but a blessing followed. There seems to have been no question as to what, when, or to whom the offering should be made. It came to pass, and was done in the simplicity and by the virtue and power of faith. And so do the children of God come to and worship him to day, and the Lord has respect unto them, and to their offering, and by it they obtain witness that they are righteous, the Lord testifying of their gifts.

Not only do the people of God work by faith, but God himself also works by it. By faith Enoch was translated and was not found, because God had translated him that he should not see death. Only by faith, I conclude, could such a thing be done. We knowing the things of God by faith it must be that they are shown or revealed unto us by the same power and in the same manner. So by faith the Lord works in us, and by faith we work out even that which he has wrought within us.

"By faith the walls of Jericho fell down after they were compassed about seven days." This to my mind is a most wonderful demonstration of the hidden and invincible power of faith. While Israel compassed the city, bore the Ark, blew the rams horns and shouted, yet we are not to understand the falling of the walls was conditioned upon or consequent to these things, for the city was given to Joshua before, however they were commanded to do what they did. It is necessary and right to do what we are commanded to do, but we have no account, in matters of faith, that rewards are promised for what is to be done. I do not understand that any command having a reward as a consideration for obedience is kept by faith, hence there is no such thing as a duty faith.

There is no power in the blowing of a ram's horn, nor could one by believing give it power. The power was not in the horns, nor the men who blew them, nor in Joshua, nor in Israel, but in the faith by which the walls fell, and this faith was in him who is the author and finisher of it.

When a man does this or that which is right and in perfect accord with the Scriptures, as for instance when one is brought to a saving knowledge of God, it is not necessary that one thus brought should know that he is coming to God in order to render his coming effectual or certain. One does not believe first that Jesus is able to save sinners before he can have faith in Him, as the Saviour, but he must have faith to be assured that He is the Saviour in order to believe that He is able to save. While I must have faith to believe that Jesus is the Saviour of sinners—of any and all that are saved—yet I may not necessarily therefore believe that he is my Saviour. Or in other words believing is not essential to the possession and effectual work of faith. Faith looks forward and comprehends the revelation to be made, while belief grows out of and rests upon the revelation fully developed. Faith proceeds forth from God to the creature revealing in him the promise, then belief being developed in the creature reverts to God in a full assurance of the possession of the blessing revealed. To more properly express the thought, the Spirit of the Son of God is sent into the heart, of which Spirit faith is a fruit, and to this faith the promise which is in Christ is revealed and belief is a result of this revelation by faith.

This is the faith which was once delivered unto the Saints, and for which Jude exhorts us to earnestly contend.

This faith was to the saints as referred to in Heb. 11, like the captain of the host of the Lord was to Joshua, it fought their battles and was their victory.

Paul says these Saints received these triumphs and victories, and wrought these wonderful things, and obtained a good report through faith and yet received not the promise, God having provided some better things for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. They through faith beheld the promise afar off, while to us it is brought nigh by the blood of Christ, even as we who were some time far off are thus brought nigh. So that both we and they are now made to sit together in faith in heavenlies in Christ Jesus, even in the kingdom of God with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, having come to Mount Zion, the heavenly Jerusalem, to the general assembly and church of the first born and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. We will now notice something of faith in the gospel day.

Faith is defined in Heb. 11: 1, to be the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. As to what it is the substance of we have but to ascertain what those things are for which we hope. Christ Jesus the Lord is in a word the hope of his people, and that for which they hope. They hope for ultimate and eternal salvation, "He is my rock and my salvation." They hope to finally be infinitely wise, righteous, free from sin and obtain eternal deliverance from all that is contrary to that which is good. Jesus is our wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

Paul being determined to know nothing among the brethren save Christ and him crucified is evidence of the fact that by whatever name a thing may be called the substance of it must be Christ, otherwise it is worthless to the child of God. That wherein Christ is reflected in anything pertaining to salvation and its consolations, eternal life and its light and power, godliness and its precious graces, heaven and its infinite felicity is faith as a substance. Being partakers of divine nature we also partake of divine substance. The Spirit of the Son of God is the Spirit of him who took not upon himself the nature of angels but the seed or nature of Abraham. If angels have nature how much more wonderfully so has the son of God who also partook of ours in connection with his own. His Spirit is in nature like unto himself, and as faith is the fruit or production of this Spirit it has also its relative nature from the Spirit of which it is produced, hence it is a nature—a substance—and being of Christ it is the substance of Christ. The fruit of a tree must necessarily and does partake of the nature or substance of the tree producing it.

Faith as an evidence must be understood in the same connection though in a different light. When we think of it as an evidence it is no less a substance than when we consider it under the appellation of substance. As Christ is spoken of under many appellations and is yet the same, so faith is the same whether it is treated as a substance or an evidence. Everything of which we can think is an evidence of the existence of God and that Jesus Christ is his only begotten Son. Jesus is the embodiment of all intelligence or evidence of the existence of God, who is the center and circumference of all invisible things—things not seen. And as faith is the evidence of things not seen, and is a substance, it is therefore the substance of things not seen, which is the substance of Christ, who is the substance of God, who is the beginning, the embodiment and end of all things.

The significance of the word, as used in the Scripture, is not so direct and forcible in some connections as in others, yet its relation may be traced to the divine root of the subject matter under consideration. As the leaf, flower and fruit of a tree differ as to their manner of evidence and amount of substance, and yet either being amply sufficient to identify the kind of tree, so faith whether little or great, direct or indirect is in every instance sufficient, whether as evidence or substance to prove its divine authorship.

Men have classified faith into historical, temporary, the faith of miracles and justifying faith.

The first is that by which devils believe and which James says is dead without works, being alone. This is also called speculative faith. These definitions are in harmony with speculative or false religion, and therefore should be termed false faith. In the divine order of religion there could not be a true, pure religion without there being also a true faith. So there could not be a false religion without there being a corresponding false faith, and as the faith is dead, so also is the religion.

As false religion is really no religion, so false faith is not faith, therefore there is no such thing really and truly as a speculative or historical faith in the sense of vital faith. Temporary faith is deduced from the first three accounts of the parable of the sower. It seems to me that the very condition of the ground is conclusive evidence that there was not a mixture of faith in those characters, besides the Master himself says the one in the second count had not root in himself. As the word did not profit certain ones who heard, because it was not mixed with faith in them, there must have been no root in them—that is no faith—therefore this stony ground hearer had no faith—root in him. The faith of miracles is subdivided into active and passive faith. Active faith is such if one should have it, he could remove mountains and sycamore trees and cast out a certain kind of devils.

The Apostles could not cast this kind out, neither do we have any account that they, or any other ever removed mountains. This faith I conclude was only in Jesus and only by him exhibited. But in the second instance it is given to his people whereby they are so fully persuaded and firmly assured of the thing for which they ask in prayer they do go believing, being fully persuaded of the thing and its possession, Matt. 21 : 22, being confident that, if they ask anything according to his will, he heareth them 1st John 5 : 14. Justifying faith is simply faith as connected with the revelation of our justification. I do not understand that we are justified by faith as by power, virtue or merit in us or independent of us, but as, "now by faith are we the children of God." so by faith justified, washed, cleansed, purified, sanctified, holy, yet being still sinners, unclean, unholy, imperfect in ourselves, but perfect, wanting nothing, as we are, by faith in Christ. Our actual justification is in faith, by faith, revealed to our faith. The revelation of justification to us, and our knowledge of it are matters of faith, whereas the act of justification is an act of God by virtue of the obedience and blood of Jesus Christ. Faith brings us into such a blessed assurance of the reality of Christ and the eternal fullness of the great and incomprehensible power and God-head of the holy Trinity, and of the unalterable certainty of everlasting salvation—even our salvation, as it is in Christ, that our knowledge of it thereby, and our worship of and devotion to God are as complete to us and as acceptable to God, through Jesus Christ, now as they will be when we shall see him and be like him.

This faith is the gift of God. It is that through which we are saved, by grace. It is not a condition, but a vital, invincible power by which we are assured of our salvation by and through Jesus Christ our Lord.

It is not an agency or means which we exercise and use to bring ourselves into a salvable state or condition and hence into favor with God, but it is that by which we see Jesus and his work, and are made to realize the efficacy of his blood, and to believe on him for salvation, and in him for sufficiency of grace to stand before God, and through him to approach unto the Father and worship him in the holy hill of Zion.

Faith is not belief, but it produces belief and lends it virtue and power whereby we are fully established in the truth of salvation by grace, and are confirmed in the doctrine, ordinances, order, discipline and practice of the house of God.

P. G. L.

Matthew 26 : 26 Jesus took bread and blessed it and gave it the disciples: the word "it" is a supplied word: 27 And he took the cup and gave thanks and gave it to them &c: 29 "But I say unto you, I will not drink &c until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom. Mark gives nearly the same words 14 : 22 &c.

Now does the words, "the disciples" "to them" and "you" imply, include or embrace the same people every time: if so, does it include every one of the twelve disciples and if the whole twelve are included what kingdom is spoken of when he says my Father's Kingdom? And if my Father's Kingdom spoken of is heaven or where God's throne is will he drink it with Judas there? These questions may seem simple or foolish to you and other brethren, but my mind through weakness and ignorance is tangled, and I cannot get it straight, and I hope I desire to understand the scripture correctly what little I do understand.

L. J. H. MEWBORN.

Remarks.

In the reference brother Mewborn makes the words "the disciples, "to them" and "you" refer to and include the same persons because no others are named in this connection. These words "to them" and "you" are words called pronouns, that is "them" and "you" are pronouns, or words that stand for nouns, and the noun they here stand for or refer to is disciples. The twelve were present, Judas being in that number, and it refers to that time when they were observing the Lord's supper.

The antecedent or subject represented by pronouns must always be considered.

Now what is the ANTECEDENT OR SUBJECT of "you" in the 29th verse, when Jesus says he will not drink henceforth, or hereafter, of the fruit of the vine until he drinks it new with them in his Father's Kingdom? It is the people who follow him in the regeneration wherein he makes all things new, or those that are true disciples or followers of Jesus in the resurrection. We understand this leaves Judas out, and all that are not the true and faithful followers of Jesus. To drink it new with them in his Father's Kingdom is his revelation of himself to his people as they commune with him in the feast of fat things, of wine on the less well-refined, in the kingdom of heaven. To eat and drink with him in his Kingdom is to dwell in his courts where the banner is love, and where he says to them, Eat and drink abundantly O beloved.

In the regeneration or resurrection of Jesus, and his coming with power and great glory, as he did in his mediatorial Kingdom on the day of Pentecost, the old covenant of types is passed, and the new covenant is come wherein all things are made new, and to them that receive Jesus he comes in, supps with them, and they with him, and they sit down with him in his kingdom, even as he sits down in his Father's Kingdom and they eat together and eat it new: See Luke 22; 29, 30. He receives the glory of their salvation, or he eats the blessed fruit of his doing-sees of the travail of his soul and is satisfied, and they eat and drink of this joy of Christ and drink it new.

But every principle that offends that betrayed Jesus is slain. Nothing unclean can enter here. There is no Judas there.

P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Although my unworthiness, weakness and inability to address one of God's elect rises before me, yet I hope it is my love for them, together with the hope of relieving my mind that constrains me to write. I have often desired to write to you, but your paper is always filled with communications so far superior to the few thoughts I could offer, that I tho't I would only be intruding; and my mind is so dark, and my heart so hard and unthankful. What could such a vile, sinful creature as I am write or say that would in the least encourage any of the true children of God? I feel so destitute, and it is so seldom that I can feel that God in his divine wisdom knows my needs and will supply, knows my weakness and will give me strength I have many doubts and fears that I have never been translated from the kingdom of Nature's darkness into the marvelous light of the kingdom of liberty. My mind is so gloomy, my way so dark and stormy, my understanding so little, and I am so easily carried away by the vain and empty trifles of the world. My mind is often led to the church, and sometimes it seems as if that is the only way of getting out of this trouble; the way to work out my salvation; but I fear I would be deceiving the people of God. Sometimes I am made willing to go. Sometimes I am made to say with the poet, "I can but perish if I go. I am resolved to try." Oh that God by his divine Spirit would keep my foolish, ungrateful heart far from the vain pride of this corruptible flesh, and make me resigned to his will, and keep me ever in the dust of humility. If not asking too much, please give your views through the LANDMARK on Isaiah 25: 2. "Thou hast made of a city an heap, and of a defended city a ruin." Yours in tribulation,

LUCY L. MARSH.

Bertha, Ala.,

Remarks.

The reading of the above letter of our friend impresses me with the feeling that she has seen and felt the fulfillment of Isaiah 25: 2. The primary, historical, literal reference is to the destruction of the city of Babylon that was the pride and glory of nations, and the palace of the proud strangers to grace and haters of Israel. Such was its destruction that it became a heap, a complete confusion of disorder and broken rubbish out of which not a beam of timber, not a piece of sound material could be found to rebuild. It was utterly wasted, and should never be rebuilt. As a matter of fact and history it has never been rebuilt, nor have men ever lived there since. So true is the word of God.

Now in the experience of our friend, as well as in that of God's people everywhere, she sees the utmost confusion in her own nature, that which she once gloried in as a good dwelling place, a palace, her own pride and vanity, in which all the elect vessels of mercy dwell which is Babylon, has been so broken to pieces that it is become a heap or ruins. There is nothing she can pick or gather out of it that would do for the poorest piece of timber or stone to rebuild with. It is all rubbish. You cannot have a good thought, or word, a good motive or deed to bring from Babylon to Jerusalem. Nor can you dwell in Babylon. It is a heap. The city once defended is now a ruin. You cannot dwell there. You cannot go back and dwell where you once did, nor live as you once did. The things you once loved you cannot now love. The former things are done away: Owls and satyrs, wild beasts and dragons now dwell there. Alas what a deceitful heart you see you have.

It is the Lord's people only that see this and lament their wretchedness, and have escape from Babylon. Will you ever come to Jerusalem? Only by the help of the Lord. He sent his people out of Babylon. They come with weeping and with rejoicing.

Your home is in Jerusalem where there is order, peace, beauty and glory, where the people love and dwell in love. Beautiful for situation the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem. Our feet shall stand within thy gates oh Jerusalem. How different the two cities. We desire that our friend may be blessed with faith and hope, joy and peace, gladness and love, and be led to put on the beautiful garments of praise by walking blameless in the order of God's house—in the ordinances of Christ. We work out our own salvation by following Jesus who is the way, the truth and the life. In keeping of his commandments there is great reward.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

MARRY F. DENNY.

It has pleased the Lord to take from our midst another of the dear ones that was highly esteemed by both church and world, which is another witness of the solemn truth in the midst of life we are the subjects of death. Sister Mary F. Denny was the daughter of Wesley and Mary A. Stone. Her parents were highly respected. Both have fallen asleep in death and died in the faith of the Primitive Baptists. Her mother for years was a bright and true member and died the same. Mary F. Denny was born in Surry county, N. C., July 6th, 1856, and was married to A. Z. M. Denny on the 12th day of December 1872, by whom she had four children, two sons and two daughters, all of which survive her. Her oldest daughter is a member of the church. Sister Denny professed a hope in Christ in 1887 and on Saturday before the 3rd Sun—in April 1888 she joined the arm of Hogans Creek at Union of the Primitive Baptist order and was baptised by the writer of this note on the day following, and on the constitution of the church soon after was included in the number and filled her place in the church with faithfulness, both as a Deaconess and at the regular meetings. Although she lived about 12 miles from the church seldom anything except extreme wet, col! or high water prevented her attendance. She was wonderfully beloved by the church and manifested much zeal for the cause and love to the brethren, enjoyed preaching and the company of God's people often visiting other churches and Associations. She was an affectionate kind and faithful wife and mother, kind to the poor and needy. I will here give one instance of her kindness. In April 1893 I lost my wife and in the following summer was confined to my bed by severe sickness for 10 weeks, and at her request and by the consent of her husband, she came and stayed with me two weeks and waited on me with as much kindness as if I had been her father. This added to other acts of charity of a most endearing kind made her a bright ornament in the church and at home as well as in the neighborhood. My pen will fail to do justice to her memory. But alas her usefulness is over, her sun has set. For several years she was troubled with consumption, and attended the church meeting at Union September meeting 1892 for the last time. Soon after she was confined to her bed and under the treatment of the most experienced doctors and the kind attention of her husband and children and numerous friends her disease baffled all their efforts, and on the 13th of August, 1893, she calmly passed away leaving her husband and children, the church and a great many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Death has claimed its own, God has taken her from her sufferings. Her confinement to bed was about eleven months. She bore her confinement and suffering with much patience to the last, manifesting great patience in her Lord to save her, and while I deeply deplore her loss yet most especially do I sympathize with her bereaved husband and children for their irreparable loss in the bloom of life at the age of 31 years 1 month and seven days. She was taken from the arms of a kind husband and bosom companion and affectionate children and from the busy scenes of life to a brighter world than this where her happy Spirit is crowned with the joys of eternal felicity, walks in the golden streets of a celestial home on high, has joined the happy throng of redeemed Spirits, forever to praise God in a world that shall never end.

Therefore we should not weep for her as those who have no hope, but say well to brother Denny that the time is not long when I hope we will meet in an ecstatic meeting with the friends we have loved and lost.

God bless you and sustain you under your heavy afflictions.

M. G. HARBOUR.

JOHNNIE E. WHITLEY.

In loving memory of Johnny E. Whitley, oldest child of W. B. and Bettie Z. Whitley, born in Edgewood Co. N. C., Nov. 24 h, 1876, and died in Beaufort Co. N. C. Aug. 29th, 1893, making his stay on earth 16 years, 9 months, and 5 days. He was taken in the morning of 24th with that most fearful of diseases, Hemorrhagic fever, of which both his little sisters died, and only lived 'till next morning. He was patient through all his illness, never murmuring or complaining, willing to leave all in the hands of him to whom he gave all the honor and glory. He told his father while on his death bed that if it was the Lord's will, he would be glad to live, that he might help him work for his mother and children, but if not, he was willing to die and was not afraid to die.

He had no dread of death.

A Saviour's hand was near,
To guide him across the river
And drive away all fear.

He was an affectionate child, kind and gentle in his manners, a noble, dutiful son and a brother who knew him loved him—a bright helpful boy, just budding into manhood when the Reaper came with his sickle, and took from us this breathing rose that filled our hearts and home with so much pleasure. Alas! we are stricken with sore anguish, to find its stem broken and the blossom gone.

Leaves have their times to fall.

And flowers to wither at the North wind's breath.

And stars to set—but all,

Thou hast all seasons for thine own oh Death!

So with bowed heads and saddened hearts, we will ask of Him who never sleepeth, strength to bear, grace sufficient for the day and trials and faith to look unto Him, who uses the rod in love, for He says He afflicts not willingly, and we feel that the Divine hand has gathered this jewel from the earthly fields to be kept in a crystal vase in that deathless mansion above, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Another of our darlings.

Has been taken from earth away—
To join his angel sisters
For an everlasting stay.

Those precious, willing hands,
Have been laid away to rest;
Peacefully they are folded,
Across that manly breast.

The voice we loved to hear so well,
Is here for all time, stilled;
The vase is broken and shattered,
But it is as the master willed.

We stood and looked upon him,
And scarcely knew our loss;
But to-day we feel it dear Lord,
Almost crushed beneath the cross.

But thou canst heal the stricken heart,
And wipe the tears from the eyes;
Oh! strengthen the chain which thou hast broken,
And fasten it firm in the skies.

Safely placed in a crown of love,
This jewel will sparkle on,
Where neither moth nor rust can corrupt,
Bright for the Resurrection Morn.

F. L. T.

BETTIE Z. WHITLEY.

NANCY W. DODD.

Died at her residence, in Pittsylvania county Va., Sister Nancy W. Dodd, our mother, whom we loved all the days of her life. Her children shall rise up, and call her blessed. She was a mother indeed to all her children, and children's companions. No cross they had to endure was too hard for her to share with them. She was a neighbor in deed to her neighbors. No word she had was too good to cheer their drooping spirits, no worldly substance she had in hands, was too good to supply their wants when they needed it. No days of display were too choice to withhold her attending her church meeting. No worldly substance she had was too good for her pastor, and bid him God's speed. No word she had was too good to cheer the sick, no worldly substance she had in hand was too good to supply their needs, no word she had in power was too strong to hurl at the proud in defence of the church, and take them in their own craftiness. It was her desire for her children to do right in the sight of their Maker and then they would please her. So children, as I write this, I think of her last request to me, and that was to speak some words of comfort to her children after she was gone. So I advise you to do as she bade you, follow the foot-steps of your Saviour, suffer loss, shame and reproach for the truth's sake. The Lord will bring you out conqueror over all, and blot out your iniquities and remember them no more, and make you to walk in newness of life. Remember the Lord has promised to visit our iniquities unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate him. Showing mercy unto them that love him. So remember the happy dying bed of your mother, and pray that your last end may be like hers, and pray that all her grandchildren whom she loved so dear, may be trained up in the way they should go, in the prayer of one that wishes you all well.

NANNIE E. DODD.

Mealsville, Halifax Co., Va.

GREEN DEE SATTERFIELD.

This man, a member of a large and influential family, was born in N. C., April 24th, 1832, and died Feb. 24 1893 in Person Co. N. C.

He was a man of excellent morals, but never joined the church. He was in sentiment a Primitive Baptist. Before his death he professed a hope in Christ, and enjoyed Elder A. Blalock's preaching much.

He was stricken with paralysis, and said he was going to die, and desired Elder A. N. Hall to preach his funeral, which he and Elder Blalock did.

He said he desired the Lord's will to be done and said to his sister Royster, "Rebecca, do not grieve, I will see you in a better world." Among his last words he praised the Lord for keeping him alive so long and said, "Bless the Lord O my soul." He arranged his matters of business with satisfaction and fell asleep in peace.

P. D. GOLD.

NATHAN P. DANIEL AND MARGARET MAY DANIEL.

Brother Nathan P. Daniel, son of Stephen and Huldah Daniel, was born Jan. 14, 1806, and died May 23d, 1861, at Everettsville, N. C.

Margaret May Bynum was born Jan. 18th, 1818. They were married April 9th, 1846, and she died at Wilson, N. C., July 23d, 1892. Sister Margaret Daniel united with the Primitive Baptist church at Meadow, N. C., on Saturday before 4th Sunday in June 1855, and was baptised by Elder J. H. Daniel.

I was never acquainted with brother Daniel, her husband, but from information have no doubt he was an excellent man, and a useful Baptist, and that their lives were spent happily together as a man and wife should live.

I have known sister Daniel for many years. She was a wise, motherly, useful, faithful, kind, economical, prosperous Baptist. Her company was very pleasant and profitable. As mother, neighbor and church member she appeared to me to be as faithful as one could well be. At a ripe old age she was gathered to her people and rests in peace embalmed in the hearts of her people, and better, we hope, enthroned in Jesus.

P. D. GOLD.

MRS. HENDERSON BENNETT.

Sister Bennett, the wife of our dearly beloved brother, Henderson Bennett, of Pierson, Fla., died of heart failure Nov. 7th, 1893. She had been feeble a great while. Her death was peaceful and tranquil. She had been a Primitive Baptist many years. Many were her trials and privations while her husband was away serving churches. No one but the wife of a preacher that travels much feels the burden that such a woman bears. But it is a great thing to be faithful and patiently endure.

Elder Bennett writes me that his grief is great. Other members of his family are afflicted. We have many troubles and trials by the way. But we hope the Lord will deliver us out of them all. P. D. G. Gospel Messenger please copy.

LIZZIE ROBERTSON.

Sister Lizzie Robertson died at her home in Zellwood, Fla. The funeral services of this deceased sister were attended by Elder Hundley who is her highly esteemed pastor at Whitethorn church, Va. He spoke much to the comfort and consolation of the children and friends, who deeply mourned her loss, but not as those who have no hope of meeting her in a better world than this. Of this sister I can say I believe she sought a home with her mother at White Thorn church in tears. She did all a loving daughter could do. She joined the church at White Thorn and was baptized in her afflictions, and bade her dear friends farewell, and afterwards wrote the following words: "I feel glad now that I followed my Saviour in a watery grave, for I have felt so much better satisfied in my affliction than I think I would, if I had not obeyed, and she said, Sister Nannie, I thank you for your words in advising me to join the church, and I hope God will bless you and my dear brother Robert, is the prayer of your sincere sister, with an aching heart." She said after she received the news her mother was dead, in answer to my letter with flowing tears and a sad heart, I read your letter stating the sweet words my mother used, and said, "O, if I could have been there and heard her sweet voice gain, but I can only think, we will all have to try and meet her at rest, for we too will soon have to follow; but I think sometimes if I could only be as willing to go as my mother was, I would not mind dying." So I will say to her much loved children she has left behind, remember the last sad words your mother gave you when you stood around her bedside in tears, and that was not to grieve for her, that she was going home to her Saviour, bade them farewell, telling them to be good children and try to meet her in heaven, and then prayed to the Lord to take her home. I hope the memory of these scenes will be engraved on the heart of her bereft husband, who of hope will be cheered and comforted in this life. NANNIE E. DODD, Meadsville, Halifax Co., Va.

JOSEPH HARRIS.

Joseph Harris was born in the county of Martin, N. C., and was raised up, as well as all others, an alien from God and a stranger to grace, tho he was raised in a Methodist family, but that did not teach him to know God. He grew up to manhood, and was married to Susan Twiddy, and raised up a family of three, two daughters and one son, all of whom are now married and have families. About the date of ———— 1876, it pleased the Lord, as we believe, to call him by His grace and show him that he was a sinner. He as the others applied to the law by which he was condemned, but that only made the case to his view grow worse, for he could not be justified by that which condemned him. He tried all of his might, but no better all he learned by experience was that vain is the help of man, and nothing that he could do would satisfy his case, but the same that called him by His Grace healed the complaint by revealing to him Jesus, the Savior of sinners, and he, as Paul, was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. After which his mind directed him to his Father's house, and to his kindred; and he was received at Jamesville, Saturday before the 1st Sunday in March 1878, and was baptised in full fellowship by Elder Clayton Moore, and lived a quiet member of said church up to his death, which took place November 5th, 1891. Much more might be said in truth of brother Harris's faithfulness, but this may suffice on the present occasion. He took the LANDMARK and delighted in it, but now he is gone to his long home never to read any more. Yours in hope of Eternal life. SUSAN HARRIS.

RECEIPTS.

ARK.—J P Chapman 1
 FLA.—Mrs Nancy Lewis 1 50
 N. Y.—Mrs C A Spencer 2
 N. C.—Mrs Sarah A Speight 1 50 E G Hales 1 50 Elder B C Pitt 1 50 R Anna Maness 1 50 W S Crisp 1 50 Mrs S Mangum 1 50 C M Herndon 2 G W Florence 1 Z Anna 1 50 W T Taylor 1 50 John Carter 1 50 J W Farmer 1 50 S Craft 1 50 V A M Button 1 50 S T Chandler 1 50 J M Clayton 1 50 G W Burch 1 50 J S Clayton 1 50 Mrs O May 1 50 Mrs Lucy A Gray 1 50 J K Lawrence 4 R M Cox 1 50 By Mrs Lavinia Biggers 4 50 Elder J F Farmer 1 50 Wm Hilliard 7 50 Miss Louisa Jones 4 50 Elder J A Ashburn 1 50 G C Farthing 7 50 Elder Wm Woodard 6 R V Waters 3 Seth Woodall 1 50 Elder Wm Woodard 1 50 G W Johnston 1 50.
 TEXAS.—N A Jones 5
 VA.—By Elder W A Via 4 50 J M Beck 2 50

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

W J Bramlett 70 J K Lawrence 1 Sarah Bartly 1 Mrs Lavinia Biggers 1.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad

COND. SCHEDULE

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.
DATED Oct. 1st 1893.	No. 34 Daily.	No. 35 Daily.	No. 41. Daily.	No. 55. Daily Ex Sunday
Lv Weldon	P. M. 12 35	P. M. 9 51	A. M. 6 30
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 44	10 45	7 40
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 54
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 44	10 45	7 40	P. M.
Lv. Wilson	2 30	11 30	8 21	2 4
Lv. Selma	3 30
Lv Fayetteville	4 16
Ar. Florence	10 40	3 47	5 30
Lv. Wilson	2 30	A. M. 8 21	P. M.
Lv Goldsboro	2 45	9 07
Lv Magnolia	4 33	10 41
Ar Wilmington	6 15	11 59
	P. M.	A. M.	A. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Oct. 1st 1893.	No. 36 Daily.	No. 40 Daily.	No. 42. Daily.	No. 56. Daily Ex Sunday.
Lv Florence	A. M. 3 10	P. M. 7 30	A. M. 6 30
Lv Fayetteville	9 31	9 50
Lv Selma
Ar. Wilson	11 45
Lv Wilmington	A. M. 9 30	P. M. 5 45	P. M.
Lv Mt. Airy	11 30	7 25
Lv Goldsboro	12 30	8 34
Ar Wilson	1 10	9 15
Lv Wilson	P. M. 1 10	No. 14 Daily P. M. 11 30	P. M. 12 00	P. M. 9 15	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 00	12 02
Ar Weldon	3 08	1 00
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	P. M.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 30 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington Branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrive Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 10 p. m. returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele 6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday 5 00 p. m., Sunday 1 00 p. m.; arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 10 00 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 24 a. m. and 12 20 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 00 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 20 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch, Florence R. R. leave Latta 7 35 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 8 45 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 5 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 7 00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 7 45 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 9 00 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Ray Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. H. F. DIVINE.

GILBERT, N. C.

I. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.

Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Microcco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Microcco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25.

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00.

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. H. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. H. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. Ridd, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Danlei Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Russellville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oilphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Fall term begins Monday, Sept. 4, 1893.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No. 1					No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv				7 08 a m
1 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar				9 10 a m
4 29 p m	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv				10 25 a m
3 14 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Ar				11 45 a m
1 47 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv				1 43 p m
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar				4 18 p m
12 54 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv				4 55 p m
11 56 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv				5 48 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove.....Ar				4 30 p m
11 38 p m	At.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove.....Lv				4 23 p m
11 29 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv				5 01 p m
9 45 p m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar				5 25 p m
No. 3					No. 4
5 50 p m	At.....Beulah.....Lv				6 24 a m
9 47 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Ar				7 57 a m
6 16 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv				5 17 a m
5 43 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv				6 33 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar				9 55 a m
No. 15					No. 16
MIXED					MIXED
Daily Ex					Daily Ex
Sunday					Sunday
5 35 p m	At.....Rural Hall.....Lv				6 25 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv				5 40 a m
3 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar				6 24 a m
No. 15					No. 16
MIXED					MIXED
Daily Ex					Daily Ex
Sunday					Sunday
4 35 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv				6 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv				11 00 a m
12 37 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar				11 50 a m

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given to passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mgr'r. Gen'l Pass Ag't.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent in any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C. Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is as recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

DECEMBER 15, 1893.

NO. 3.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

1100 Angleton
1893

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been received please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

EXPERIENCE.

Alas, this vile and sinful heart!
Yet I have named the Lord,
And oft' rejoicing claimed a part
In his redeeming blood.

Alas, this soiled and selfish soul!
Yet I have dared believe,
The Holy Ghost did there enroll
The Spirit's pure reprieve.

Alas, this mind, yet I proclaim
God's covenant of grace
Is written there, with loving aim,
And power, that sins efface.

But I discern a dual mind:
Each sways a master's rod;
One doth serve sin, and one—refined,
Doth serve the law of God.

Antagonistic elements,
Creating constant strife:
Thus, good I would, the ill prevents,
Or lames for active life.

Repentance scarce for sins overt,
Restrains his godly tears;
Or conscience, though quick to assert,
Abates accusing fears.

But what are these to those indoor
That never see the light?
A picket line to sheltered corps,
Insidiate in its blight.

These foes, as one black bounding cloud,
Faith overcomes alone:
But evil's bold, and sin is loud,
Faith but an undertone.

Oh for this shield more broad, more long,
To meet mine enemies!
With, without, strategic strong
Of subtle energies.

Not flesh and blood, but mighty host
Of spirits vile, yet high
As reason's throne, and that can boast
Its help, or yet defy.

Aye, principalities that's veiled
With power of the air,
Whose fatal venom is inhaled
As poison unaware.

Then grant me God the faith I prize,
To meet this subtle band:
And godly works shall vitalize
The godly shield in hand.

But comes a friend, or is it foe?
Disturbing and disguised;
Doubt says, my work, lest faith I lose
Of God, is compromised.

That I'm too low, too weak, to claim
Such favor all divine
I answer him, "This is God's name
To honor, and not mine."

"The body's dead because of sin
The holy Scripture saith;
The Spirit sanctified must win,
By God's good gift of faith."

"And that we walk by faith, not sight;
Lest seeing, we be blind,
Nor come with God by human might,
Lest coming, left behind."

"That weaker ones the more are blest:
Proportionate on them,
The strength of Christ as glory rest,
A crowning diadem."

Then let me use infirmities
That weak, may rest on me
The power divine—faith's energies
To reap faith's victory.

Yea, let me glory that I'm weak,
Save trusting in my Lord;
And never by complaint bespeak,
Distrust in his sure word.

Still, war incessant often wrings
Cries for a swift discharge,
When Hope no pleasing prospect springs,
Nor border doth enlarge.

Nor Achor's vale a door defines,
Nor refuge doth supply;
'Tis then I fear the Philistines,
And hear their mocking cry,—

"Where is thy God?—thy heirship? trust?
Where is thy hope's fond page?"
Then, faint, I search, from lowly dust,
Birthright and heritage.

'Till agony makes prayer fit nicet
To reach the throne in quest;
A small, still voice, a "perchar ce" sweet,
Runs to assurance blest.

Thus in this warfare, suffering,
In fellowship with Christ
And doth to his dear image bring,
And recompense unpriced

Perchance, and this the staff and rod,
 And spirit's wounding balm;
 And that it's by the grace of God,
 I am thus what I am.

My heart loves Jacob.—Esau hates:
 Is this not in accord?
 And proves my soul participates
 The Spirit of the Lord?

Have I not tasted joys divine,
 And that the Lord is good?
 These conflicts then, prove and define
 My spirit's fatherhood.

And to win Christ, I'd count as loss
 All good things of this life;
 Smile on my woe, cling to the cross,
 And glorify the strife.

Aye, count it gain—blissful the pain
 Of covering here in shame.
 And tears and blame, if but to gain
 Clothing of Jesus' name.

Lord help to heart thy law to bind,
 Nor testimonies fail;
 Nor leave the Ark of God behind,
 When foes, as thine, assail.

Help me no work, or trial shun,
 Though oft by fire I'm tried;
 Till I may take—but thou hast won—
 Thy likeness, satisfied.

Oh help me fight the goodly fight,
 And keep the faith as given;
 And take the crown of life and light,
 Eternal in the heaven.

R. ANNA PHILLIPS.

Batler, Ga.

[For the Landmark.]

“THE LEAVEN IN THE THREE MEASURES OF MEAL.”

Matthew 13: 33 and Luke 13: 20 and 21.

In Matthew we read, “Another parable spake he unto them: The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in the three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.” The language in the record made by Luke is slightly diverse, but the substance is the same. This parable is on my mind to write something about for the LANDMARK.

It occurs in both Matthew and Luke in the midst of the record of a succession of parables spoken by our Lord in which he set forth the glories of the Kingdom of God in various ways. Jesus said in many of his parables “the Kingdom of God is like such and such things.” In the old testament the prophets and David and Moses were inspired to set forth spiritual things by the use of natural things. And so in the new testament, inspired apostles also write of spiritual things by using natural suggestions and illustrations. But Jesus pre-eminently used the things below to set forth the things above. He could speak with authority, saying, “the Kingdom of Heaven is like ‘the mustard seed,’” the “leaven” &c. This has always seemed to me to open up a wide field for our consideration. It has for a long time seemed to me that all things in this natural world have been made to set forth the patterns of Heavenly things. We may not be able to read or translate the meaning of the pages of nature, but the same is true of the pages of inspiration. But whether we understand aright or not still God speaks both in nature and in the bible. And both are a revelation of his word and will.

There is one consideration beside, to which I wish to refer. I have always understood that in each of the parables there is one chief consideration. They were each one meant to set forth one thing, to present one chief truth, and when we have apprehended that one truth we have the mind of Christ; and must not seek to find a dozen other meanings in them which were never intended by the Saviour. Those other meanings may be truth in themselves, but were not the truth meant to be set forth in the parable. So in this parable, the one design is to set forth the leavening power of the Kingdom of God under the figure of the work wrought by the leaven in the meal. It has never seemed to me, for instance, that the number three had any special significance, nor the word "woman." If any brother feels as though he sees a design in these things, I certainly shall not dispute with him about it, but it seems to me that these THREE MEASURES was the amount COMMONLY used for such purposes and WOMEN GENERALLY attend to such work as is described in the parable.

Now it seems to me that the one thing to be sought after in this parable is "how does the leaven work in leavening the meal?" And in answer to this question, four things suggest themselves to me, viz: secretly, silently, effectually, and completely. There may be other words expressive of the manner of the working of leaven in meal, but these four words seem to me to express the substance of the truth presented by the leaven.

1st. It works in the meal "secretly." And so "THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN" like the leaven works secretly. Bear in mind the comparison is not between the meal and the Kingdom, but between the "leaven" and the Kingdom of Heaven. The leaven is placed in the meal in which was no leaven before and which was therefore inetr and dead, and it works in and through and upon the meal and enrichens it 'till it is permeated by the power of the leaven. So the Kingdom of Heaven is said to be put somewhere and to work in that in which it is placed 'till all is made heavenly. Now where is the Kingdom of Heaven placed, if not in men in whom it WAS not before? And where does it work if not in men, until they are conformed to the image of the Heavenly Kingdom? I understand therefore, the parable to set forth the work of God in men, by which they are made partakers of the nature and brought at last to be conformed to the image of Christ. And so as the leaven works secretly in the meal, so does this transforming work of the Holy Ghost go on secretly in men; and can be known as to its presence and manner of working only by its results. A stranger looking upon the meal after the leaven had been placed there would not be able to see the leaven itself, and if unacquainted with its effects, would not know that leaven had been placed there even after he saw the effects. So the indwelling of the Kingdom of God is secret and its workings secret, and its presence in a man can only be known by its effects. And strangers to the power of divine grace cannot even read these fruits of the Spirit aright so as to know that the Kingdom of God is there. The power and glory of the Kingdom of Heaven take hold upon the inner man and work in the heart and mind, and renew the Spirit in the secret recesses of the man's being. The work of God is always hidden from the world. His people "are in the clefts of the rock, in the secret places of the stairs." "They dwell in the secret place of the Most High." And as respects each individual, the work of God in him is secret and hidden from every other person. God works in a mysterious way always. Who sees His spirit moving over the face of what we call nature? The presence is secret but the work is plain on every hand. When God has upheaved nations, his hand has not often appeared, but the result has shown that the Lord was surely working; only the reason of men could not behold it. The work of our God is secret, because he also is secret, and dwells in the secret place. And Jesus expressed the secret nature of his work when he said: "what I tell you in the ear, that proclaim ye from the housetop." "What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light." He speaks in the ear and in darkness and in the closet.

In the second place the leaven works silently. This it would seem is a necessary result of the secrecy of this working. God's great and beneficent works in nature, such as the revolution of the earth which brings day and night and that around the sun which brings the seasons in their order, such as the upspringing of all green things which make glad the earth in the springtime, such as the ripening of fruit and grain for the harvests, these all go on silently and in silence they are completed. So in the providence of God, underneath all the hurry and rage and confusion of men, our God carries on His work and brings to pass His will in silence. Of our Lord it was said "He shall not strive nor cry, neither shall his voice be heard in the street." And when Elijah heard the speech of the Almighty it was not in the fire or wind of earthquake, but in the still, small voice. No ear can hear any sound of the leaven as it works in the meal, and so also the work of Almighty Grace goes on in the heart and no ear though listening in the pause of breath and hearthrobs can hear the movement of this work of God in the soul. The work is silent, but by-and-by it shall be known by its fruit. How utterly contrary to the teachings of this parable is all the modern efforts to regenerate or convert men, from the pandemonium of a modern anxious bench to the ornate forms and showy ceremonies of the most ultra fashionable religion. Surely the silent, secret work of the Kingdom of God can have no place here.

In the third place the Kingdom of God, like the leaven, works effectually. Besides the fact that this truth is necessarily involved in the parable itself which is under consideration, it is also sustained by other plain statements of the scriptures. The apostle Paul was fully persuaded that he which had begun a good work in his brethren would perform it until the day of Jesus Christ. And again it is said of them that they were kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. When the leaven has once been placed in the meal, none can ever remove it and none can hinder its work; and so also the Kingdom of heaven once dwelling in us, it can never be removed nor can its work be stayed. The fact that for a time the work of the Spirit of God can not be seen is no proof that it does not continue its working, for so it is also at times with the leaven.

In the fourth place in the parable the lesson is said to complete its work. It says "until the whole is leavened." As quoted before, the work is performed until the day of Jesus Christ. The people are kept unto salvation. All through the time when the process of leavening is going on the meal is saved by it, the salvation is not yet completed, but ere long it will be so, for as the Kingdom of Christ reigns within us we experience a foretaste of salvation, but the perfectness of it is not yet attained to, but shall be when satisfied we awake in his likeness. Then shall we indeed see as we are seen, and know as we are known. As at the end the meal is all leavened, so at the end all that has borne the image of the earthly shall bear the image of the heavenly; all that was mortal shall put on immortality, and all that was natural shall be spiritual.

Again nothing in this work of leavening is subtracted from the meal that properly belongs to it, and so nothing in all this work of conforming us to the image of Christ is removed from us but sin. The leaven is something added to the meal, and likewise the Kingdom of God is added to us. Without the leaven the meal was dead and so are we dead until the Kingdom of God has come. The leaven on the other hand cannot show its power except as it dwells in the meal, and so the Kingdom of God cannot show its power on earth except through men. The leaven works upon the meal and not the meal upon the leaven, so also is the Kingdom of God in men. The leaven is active the meal passive in this leavening, and so also is it with the Kingdom of God in men. And lastly if we apply what is said here to the birth, the leaven is not born again, but the meal is. The Spirit of God is not born again, but the man is born again of the Spirit which dwells within him. The regeneration of the meal is the putting the leaven in it, and the new birth of the man is the coming into him of the Kingdom of God. If it be asked what part of the man is born again, the answer is, as the whole meal was leavened so the whole man is born again. The leaven is not said to have been put in any particular part of the three measures of meal, but in it all, and it leavened all, so the Kingdom of God is not the possession of either the soul, spirit or body of men considered each by itself alone, but of the whole man. It affects him body and soul and spirit. It makes him act differently, think differently. No part of the meal escapes the action of the leaven, so no part of the man escapes the work of the Spirit of God, or the power of his Kingdom and dominion. In harmony with all this Jesus did not say the soul must be born again, or the body must be born again, but a man must be born again. And man is not man without a body, a soul and a spirit. There is no place in the bible where the soul or the spirit separate from the body is to be born again. It is true according to the terms of the parable that the whole man is the subject of the new and heavenly birth.

And now a few closing reflections. It has been said that the leaven was generally used to signify things that were evil, and therefore that it could not mean anything good in this parable. To this I reply that the parable expressly says "THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN is like leaven," and this is sufficient to settle the matter as regards its use here. And besides I would just refer to the fact that many figures are used in the bible to present good things and in other places to present evil things, as for instance, the eagle, the lion, the sun, &c., &c. So also good may act like leaven as well as evil.

But after all one may ask how may I know that this heavenly leaven is working within me? This, says some poor soul, is the important thing to me. What are the results or evidences of this working within? I will say first that it causes a state of unrest. The meal cannot rest where the leaven is. So also the soul can be no longer at ease where the Kingdom of God is. Carnal security is gone. Shame and sorrow for sin begin to be felt. A fear of condemnation springs up. The justice of condemnation is confessed. As the work goes on, delight in worldly pleasures ceases, and there begins to dawn within the soul a desire for Christian company and Christian privileges. Bye and-bye the gospel begins to seem glorious and a hope in the name of Jesus begins to be felt. The meal as the leaven acts upon it is separated from all other meal, and so also by indwelling grace, the man or woman who possesses it is separated in heart, feeling, life, hopes, fears, expectations and desires from all other men, and from his own former life as well. Such an one is not perfected yet, but he desire to be and hopes to the end even against hope for this glorious consummation. These are some of the evidences of this leavening work as it has seemed to me.

I will leave the theme. May God add his blessing. I remain your Bro. in the precious hope of the gospel. F. A. CHURK.
Reisterstown, Balto. Co. Md.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—The LAND-MARK has been a constant visitor at our home since its first number and I do not think that we have ever lost more than two or three copies. I have seen some things in it that I could not edorse because it was not according to my understanding of the scriptures nor according to my experience. I have written a few communications am satisfied that I have written things with which many brethren did not agree, but they have borne with my weakness and none of them so far as I know have cast me off. Indeed they have borne with much more than I have. I feel more and more endeared to my brethren and I would not be separated from them for all this world.

When I feel in the spirit preaching is the sweetest thing that I ever did. I feel then that I would like that to be the last thing that I do in this world and I so love the doctrine of unlimited predestination and unconditional election that I would be glad to die preaching on that point. It seems to me that nothing can be more glorifying to God than these things, neither can any thing so completely abase man and leave him so entirely without excuse, and this is a part of my understanding of the gospel. I have never felt any desire to preach myself but always Christ Jesus the Lord and myself a servant of the church for Jesus sake. Once when in a great abundance of trouble the question was ask in my mind, "Whose servant are you?" After some deliberation I answered, "The Lord's." I was there made to see that the minister was the servant of the Lord and the servant of the church as the servant of the Lord. If I were servant of the church first, if the church were my chief master then I must look to the church for matter to preach and must preach according to her wishes. But not so. The Lord is my master and I must look to Him for everything and serve the church in His service. I am not independant of the church in a sense of discipline. I am but a member of the body and am subject to her reproofs and rebukes, but doctrinally I must look to the Lord, yet the church is to judge of the doctrine I preach whether it be pure. I sometimes hear that we must not judge, but I read in my book that the church is to judge angels and if I am not one of those angels then I am no gospel preacher. So the preacher is not independant of the church.

I know that he is spoken of as an overseer having been made so by the Holy Ghost, but is an overseer entirely independent of the hands over whom he is placed? Have they not all the same master and is he not really one of the hands? If an overseer understands his place it will humble him for he is a servant to all the rest and must serve them according to the commands of the Master. Our Lord was not an overseer but Lord of all, but in order to serve His brethren He humbled Himself even unto death. Then to make one an overseer or Pastor of a church does not exalt him above the brethren, and if he looks at it thus he shows himself unworthy the place and will soon want to lord it over God's heritage. We are not monarchs. We have but one King, that is Jesus. He is our head and to Him we must look. Paul told the church to follow him as he followed Christ. To have gone any further would have been worshipping Paul and that he could not accept for he was the chief of sinners. It appears to me that our ministerial service in the church might well be represented by the service of the hand as a servant of the other members of the body. The head being the centre of the mind dictates the whole, whatever member may need its service the hand goes to it and administers to it, but it by no means controls any member of the body. The power of the mind that is in the head controls the whole body and each member separately so that each member must fill its proper place in the body. By this there are no schisms in the body neither does one member do the work of the other.

Now if a minister try to dictate to the church he assumes the office of Christ as much so as the Pope of Rome does. This is what I understand to be one point of Roman Catholicism, and the church has always stood aloof from that. The body can live without a hand, so can a church live without a preacher: yet in both cases there is great inconvenience. Take the head away and even the hand will die, so will the preacher die if Jesus be removed. The hand as often does wrong as any other member of the body, and really it inflicts more injuries than any other member, and so it is with us, we are as subject to wrong as any others and the most of church troubles that amount to much grow out of the ministry.

How careful we ought to be in the churches of the saints. The churches need preachers or the Lord would not have so appointed, but it does not need any masters for we have one master even Christ. My greatest desire is to know the mind of Christ and that the Lord will enable me to do His will.

As unworthy as I am yet I love to serve my brethren for it is the service of Christ, and to follow Him is more than all the world to me. Sometimes He blesses me with such a good conscience that I am satisfied, then again all is darkness to me. Sometimes I lose sight of everything but the gospel that I am preaching, and then again it seems that I am only beating the air and cannot come to any point nor get to a place to stop.

I hope you and all who read this may be enabled by divine grace to throw a mantle of charity over my weakness and remember that all flesh is grass and the glory thereof as the flower of the field.

Yours in hope and love

L. H. HARDY.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Having to write to you on business, I thought I would with your permission devote a little time in talking through the LANDMARK to your readers. First, I will say what a privilege it is to hold social converse with the pen and through the press with those we love for the truth's sake. Second, the subject I will write a little about is the words "Let all things be done unto edifying."

I have been much interested in reading the LANDMARK of Oct 1st. just at hand from first to last including your editorials. I will try to write from experience things I know and the most important of them is, I know I am a sinner, and as such hope I am saved by the grace of God. Not a kind of grace or favor that opened a way for me to please God by my willingness to accept offers of mercy and obey him, and do good, and be good, and go to heaven at last. But to humbly hope that now am I a son of God, though it doth not appear what I shall be, but this (I hope) I know that when he (Jesus) appears I shall be like him, for I shall see him as he is. And this because of the great manner of love bestowed upon me to make manifest the everlasting love wherewith God loved me. And it is according as I was chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, that I should be holy and without blame before him in love. Having predestinated me unto the adoption of a child by Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made me accepted in the beloved; in whom I have redemption in his blood, the forgiveness of sins according to the riches of his grace; wherein he hath abounded toward me in all wisdom and prudence. Having made known to me, I trust, the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself. And Paul to the Galatians says, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." That is, it is manifest to them by faith instead of the law, the result of regeneration and birth, "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, that liveth and abideth forever." "So now abideth faith, hope and charity," and charity is the greatest, and the reasonable cause for all things among the brotherhood being done to teach or comfort, even though it be for reproof or correction, warning or rebuke; it is to be with bowels of mercies and long-suffering, gentleness and patience; yet it is to be the word and testimony of the Lord who himself is love, and who has said, "if ye love me, keep my commandments." Now I have lived a professor of the Old School Baptists over thirty five years, and have known something of division, but have seen no occasion to take part in strife further than to strive for the things that tend to peace and to the edification of my brethren. Divisions will come sometimes, and are to profit. But anger we are told rests in the bosom of fools. It is one of the things to be put away. The church of Christ when in order has no Lord over it but Jesus, and no hypocrisy or partiality is carried on there. No one of any number of the faithful brethren, North, South, East, or West, when loving one another with pure hearts fervently, will be finding fault with any, but each will have all he can attend to with himself. But when trouble does come, as more or less is to be expected, then what is done should be to comfort and teach, not to confuse and tear down. How sad to hear of it from a distance and worse to see and hear in a church especially when confusion predominates, and exclusions by wholesale are indulged in under the plea of weeding out the unsound ones, for the fear of heretics has caused great alarm sometime to those who thought they were sound in the faith, so sound even that the life of a poor brother was of no account. What are the Scriptures for? Who shall dwell with everlasting burnings? Who does the Lord delight to dwell with? Where is his abode in the time of discord among his people? Brethren, have we not trouble enough always with ourselves as sinners of the deepest dye, to enable us to flee every appearance of evil, and let brotherly love continue and each abound in the work of the Lord, knowing that our labors of love are not in vain in the Lord! The Lord has remembered our little church of second Roxbury by bringing a brother and sister to it by baptism, whom it was my privilege to baptize the second Sunday in last month, and the first in this month brother Keene baptizing a dear young sister in the Middletown church of the Roxbury Association. Your brother in hope,

J. D. HUBBELL.

Kelly's Corners, Delaware Co., N. Y.

DEAR BRO. GOLD.—After so long a time I will write you and remit a part of what I am due you on my subscription to ZION'S LANDMARK. The slip on wrapper shows that I am due subscription since May 15, '91, and I will send you by Post-Office Order $3, for which you can give me credit and I will send balance as soon as I can. Please pardon me for being so slow in this matter. If all your subscribers were to treat you as I have you would have to suspend the publication of ZION'S LANDMARK, but I do hope you may be able, by God's mercy and providence, to continue its publication and that the readers of the same may be edified and comforted in the future as they have in the past. But Dear Bro., I have been low down in the valley and overshadowed by dark clouds. The brilliant and very beautiful sky that I so much admire is now seemingly obscure and I have to grope about in the dark. I am lame in both legs and when our King spreads His beautiful table I can't get to it. Who is to blame for this? I confess with shame that I am to blame, I am the sinner that has transgressed and must suffer the penalty. I have followed the promptings and impulses of the fleshy mind, grappling after the sordid and transitory things of earth. But bless and adore the name of Jesus. He has not suffered me to lose the consciousness that He is my only Savior. He is able to save to the uttermost; though I may be in a dungeon fettered with brass or iron He can bring me out; though I may be upon the turbid waters sinking I can but cry out as did Peter "Lord save, I perish."

May the Lord bless you in your labor of love. May He sustain and preserve you unto His second coming is my prayer.

P. H. JAMES.

Arcadia, Hempstead Co. Ark.

EDITORS GOLD AND LESTER,
DEAR BRETHREN IN THE LORD:
From some unknown cause and power irresistible to myself, I will, with much fear and weakness, attempt to pen a few thoughts for publication. As I have said before I have ever since I have been a member of the church been impressed to write for public observation. Why this is, I can't tell. There is one thing I do know, that is I'm a poor, vile, lost sinner, but for the love and power of a dear, good Saviour whom I at times have faith and hope to believe has loved me with an everlasting love, yes, blessed thought, who has died that I might live. There are four things that I wish to speak on before I conclude: 1st. Some of my exercises of mind on writing. I have battled with this impression for quite a while, sometimes following it and at others pressed it down. Sometimes I was persuaded by (some spirit) that it was of me, that I wanted to be of notice. Then I would have thoughts to dispute that, for I am young, and must confess very worldly at times, and while in this frame of mind I love and enjoy the society of my young worldly friends. Now, to be of notice in that way would court their favors, which in my weakness

I shrink from. Then this thought would arise, if you were a Christian you would not care for that. This being the case your writing will be of no value. So in this two conflicts meet that I can't harmonize. I know too, that is not because I have so much light on spiritual things. I feel to be very blind and unlearned in that respect. And blind as I am I haven't the ability to express one-half what I see and feel. So there is one thing to allure on here. I have tried, oh, so hard to drown the impression and really thought I had succeeded to a great extent, for it has not bothered me for several months 'till the last few days. Now it has returned with more force than ever. This morning my mind is so engrossed in spiritual things that I can't no more center it on natural things and the business, that it looks like I ought, than I can stop the wind that blows. Something keeps saying write and tell your feelings to others. If I try to subdue this, there comes over me a cold, numb feeling and I fear to resist. So God being my strength I will do the best I can. Now to my 2nd part. I wish to speak a few words to Bro. Lester concerning his first Editorial in the LANDMARK, November 15, 1893. It was while reading that, that my mind was again exercised in the way I have but feebly expressed in this letter. It seemed that every sentence met with a welcome reception as a refreshing shower does in a hot, scorching sun. It was indeed the very balm that my poor heart needed. I had finished reading, was pondering over its contents, and my love was so drawn out that I felt I must write and tell you how I had enjoyed it. If I could know that there was one in this loved land that would receive one-half the comfort from this scribble that I did from yours, I would willingly, yes gladly send it out that God might be praised and one of His Little Ones comforted.

3rd. I wish to address a few remarks to Sister R. Anna Phillips. I have for a long time, dear Sister, wanted to write you and tell you how much I love you; how much I have enjoyed you many bright and strengthening letters published in the LANDMARK, but my own inability and weakness has made me long refrain. I have always, since I had the natural ability to read, sought out and enjoyed your writings. Yes, strange to say, before it pleased our dear God to give me light or enjoyment in anything else of the kind. Since it has pleased God, as I hope, to open my blinded eyes, and have viewed you in your true light I have loved you more and more. Last Spring I had a dream of you (which I shall relate before I conclude) that has made you doubly dear to me. I felt at the time I must write and tell it to you, perhaps would had I known your address, but in a little while the desire to write you somewhat left me, and I drifted in a condition that I can't well express. Most all the time there was within me a strong love for God and his people, but I had no inclination for writing; did not care to read the bible much, could not enjoy preaching much of my time. I have been in this condition most of the past Summer. But through the Autumn it has been my blessed privilege to attend three Associations and it pleased the dear, good Lord to grant me a hearing ear, so that I have heard and enjoyed much good preaching; have met many that are near and dear to me in the name of Christ. So I have indeed had a revival in my feelings, still I have not felt much desire to write 'till I read Elder Lester's letter in the last LANDMARK.

His ideas on the general duties of christians were so pointed and told us so plainly why it was that we did those things that my desire to write came upon me with more force than I have ever yet felt. I don't think I have ever felt more dependent on the Lord in any thing than I have in trying to write this letter. Now I will relate my dream. I dreamed that you were here at my father's house, but were going off to an Association, and when I looked for you to tell you good-by, you were standing in the door talking and your theme was the power, love and mercy of God. You were standing there, the tears of joy streaming down your face, the words as they came from your mouth ascended upward, making a small white circle, the best I can express it, as smoke does from a chimney on a very calm day. Also your words were sounding the sweetest music I ever heard. I walked up to you and you put your arm around me and kissed me, as you did so Pa who was standing near by took up the sweet strain, the joy of the moment was so great that I awoke, and I was shedding tears of real pleasure. Now to my 4th and conclusive part. I was this A. M. meditating on what the Christian has to endure while here on earth. Then what our Saviour had to passthrough before us and how patient and meekly he bore it all. What his sufferings had accomplished. How much he has done for poor fallen man. Then my mind was carried back to see how unthankful we are, how ready we are to give way to temptations, how quick we are to despair when persecutions assail us, how weak our faith is and so ready to shrink from each duty because we dread the cross. When I came to this I was made willing to write this scribble as the Spirit of resignation passed over me. I did not with my natural eyes see it of course, but with an eye of faith (I hope) I saw as it seemed the doors of Heaven open; there God and those of his people that have gone before us in one happy band, still more, I could see His protecting power and love descending in streams to all his people who are here on earth. While this was passing it seemed that my very breath was going out in praise to God. Now dear christian friends, if just one view of that Heavenly home be so great and sweet, what, oh what will the realization of it be!

Your humble sister in hope of a better life beyond the grave.

ELIZA C. SIMTH.

Walter, N. C.

WHAT MANNER OF MAN IS THIS.

More than eighteen hundred years ago in the little place called Bethlehem a child was born. Men looking at it naturally at that time saw only a little child wrapt in swaddling clothes.

Looking at it spiritually they could say with wonder, what manner of man is this, before whom every knee must bow.

When those wonderful words—"unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given"—(Isa 9-6) were spoken, by the Spirit, to those who could hear, they could but sing praises unto Him saying—"thanks to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

The natural life of Christ is wonderful to natural men and they are made to bow the knee to Him, even without knowing. He is the King of peace. It is hard to say how much the Lord revealed to the natural rulers of Israel when we read the words that made them to speak. Pilate spoke as if he understood who Christ is and why he ought to die. Christ spoke to him and it seems we can see the power of Him in the words that Pilate spoke, Truly "the preparation in the heart of man and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord."

How strange and wonderful it must have seemed to the doctors in the temple, to hear the boy of twelve years speak (Luke 11-42) of the mysteries of God. Then when He said to the dead arise, to the blind receive thy sight, and commanded the lame to walk; no wonder they stood in awe of him and cried "What manner of man is this?"

The power went with his words and who can say what guilty thoughts tortured the money changers and those he drove forth, when He said unto them, "It is written my house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves (Mat. 21-13). No wonder they felt guilty and fled like cowards from His sight. Did not we also?"

With what majesty he turned from the throne of Natural Israel and said "My kingdom is not of this world."

It seems so strange naturally that they could so easily forget his power that was shown in so many wonderful ways, and yet Spiritually it does not. It is another proof of the fact that "no man can come to me except the Father which has sent me draw him" (John 6-44). Yet when men read in the book of the many that saw and followed him in the flesh and of his wonderful works and the few that believed, men of sound natural minds will teach that He needs the puny arm of man to help him save souls.

If they could not believe when they saw him in his works on earth it is reasonable to think they will believe when a man says at this late day "this is Christ."

No. It takes nothing more nor less than the words spoken by God the Father, "This is my beloved son, hear ye him"—to make one believe. He alone can feed a great multitude with the five loaves and two fishes, and it seems to me that only His disciples can take up of the remnants twelve baskets full.

Now what manner of man is this that comes walking on the sea, that we hear saying to the waves "Peace be still, that we find in the garden sweating as it were great drops of blood, that we hear saying to Pilate, "thou couldst have no power at all except it were given thee," and at last hear him on the cross saying "It is finished." "Oh! Man who art thou that repliest against God." What an awful thing to say in the face of all this—"it is not finished." He needs my help and unless I put my hands to the work His people may be lost. But that is what you hear men say.

Wonderful indeed is the natural life of Christ on earth even to natural men, but my brother, you that are taught of the Spirit can alone say how much more wonderful it is to those who see in every word He spake, every cure he wrought, every look he gave, the plan of love that God had made for His people before time began.

What manner of man is this, that even down to the present time, reveals His mighty power, his never failing love to his little ones, causing them, one moment to cry out "I am a worm and no man" and the next to melt in tears at his feet, and then to sing praise and thanksgiving to him who saves us by his grace alone.

When we look back over the many blessings of the past, the kind friends, the loving words, "the feast of fat things," and last, but not least, the sweet thoughts that are given us in the quiet times when the passing shadow of a cloud, the falling of a sparrow, the sighing of the wind,—speaks to us of that God who is a God of providence and love.

What manner of man is this who by His power, standing in our midst causes our hearts to burn within us, as He fills the mouth of man with words of peace and comfort for the weary and heavy laden, and enables a poor trembling little one to go forward and tell the church of his love, and hope, and peace, that God alone can give, that can keep a man, upon whom has been heaped all the honors that men can give, all the praise that loving brethren can pour forth, all the blessings that God gives—down in the dust at his feet clothed in humility.

What manner of man is this? It is the Son of God, that he has given, that whosoever believeth might have everlasting life.

The same one that said unto you, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."

They of the world say "don't preach that, it will license men to sin, and give comfort to criminals." Are we not all criminals in God's sight? And who needs comfort worse than a poor wretch condemned under the law to die. See with what a pitying eye the Savior looked up poor sinners. For the poor sinful woman he had comfort. For the pharisees it seems he had nothing but words of condemnation, but for the poor sinful woman—"neither do I condemn you; go and sin no more." No doubt she thought, as some of us did, that she would sin no more and in one sense she did not sin. But like us; while we at times see our sins "forever put away"; at other times they seem too great to bear and in agony we cry unto God for mercy forgetting that it was His mercy that kept us from being destroyed by sin. But if we can read His life by the light of the Spirit we will find only loving words of pity and sure promises for the one who cries "Lord have mercy upon me a sinner."

If you have been taught of Him you have thought as I did—"What manner of man is this"; and in times of deepest need, when the waves of trouble and sin seemed to roll over you, you have heard those welcome words, "Peace be still." They may have been spoken in thunder tones, or in the falling of a leaf, or in a quiet thought, yet you felt the calm and wondered days after, how strange and truly wonderful is this peace.

Before Christ spoke to the waves of Galilee that were troubling His Disciples, they were angry billows, threatening to engulf them. At His word they were laid away and though they were still on that same sea and the same water all around, they did not fear, they knew His power to save, even if they did cry "What manner of man is this."

So when you are tossed about on your troublous sea, and fear that you are lost, when He speaks peace you know his power, and though you still see sin all around you and mixed with all you do, you know that you are in the good old ship of Zion that can not be lost.

May these words—"Fear not Little Flock, for it is your father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom" be applied with sweetness to your soul.

DUDLEY G. JOHNSON,
Remark.

Our dear young brother Johnson is the son of the renowned Elder J. F. Johnson of Ken. We hope he will write again for the LANDMARK.

P. D. G.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXXI.....No. 3.

WILSON, N. C., DEC. 15, 1893.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

HOW IS THAT?

"And it repented the Lord that he had made man on earth, and it grieved him at his heart."

A large number of people ask the question, why did God make man like he did, if he knew beforehand what man would do, and they conclude that the Lord did not know beforehand what man would do, and therefore after he saw how the matter turned out, and learned the consequences of what he had done, he was sorry that he had made man—that is he saw the mistake and blunder he had made, and wished he had not committed such a blunder, or done so wrong in making man; and therefore he repented that he had made him, and, in order to get rid of all the evil consequences of what he had done, he determined to destroy man from the earth. For that is the legitimate and logical consequence of such a position as this. If God did not know beforehand what he was doing, and must wait, like we blind mortals do, to see how what we do turns out, and judge of the wisdom or policy, the right or wrong of our works by the consequences, and cannot know what will be the result of our work until it is developed, then he is altogether such an one as we are. He either knows before he does a thing what he is going to do, or he does not know, and what will be the consequences, or he does not know. If he does not know beforehand then what does he know more than we know. He either did know or he did not know beforehand what man would do. If he did not know then Arminianism is right, and chance is right, and nothing can be known beforehand. For it cannot be known how anything is going to be until it comes to pass. If that be so how is it that ever anything was foretold? How could there be any prophecy, or foreknowledge, or foretelling? Besides this, how could it be known beforehand what is right, since we must await developments to see what is right.

Now to dodge around predestination you are forced into this miserable hole of a dilemma where there is no standing at all. You see there is no foundation whatever if you deny the foreknowledge and righteous will or purpose of God.

To accept the Bible teaching that God is a God of purpose and foreknowledge, declaring the end from the beginning, or from ancient time, and declaring that his counsel shall stand, and he will do all his pleasure, and that, although there be many devices in man's heart, the counsel of the Lord that shall stand, is the only way to dispose of the knotty, perplexing labyrinth of questions that thrust themselves as mountains in our pathway.

But then is not man free? Has he not power to transgress God's law, and will do so too? and has not God changed his administration over man? Did it not repent the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and was he not grieved at heart? Yes. It repented him that he had made man and he determined to destroy man and beast. In what sense did it repent him? It was not in the sense that we repent. The expression, IT REPENTED MAN, is not used in the bible. Man repents when wrought upon, or the power comes from above him, if it is genuine or productive of good. Godly sorrow works a repentance not to be repented of. Judas repented himself, but his sorrow worked death. For he went and killed himself. When we see we have done wrong and are sorry of our wicked conduct in truth we have repentance towards God, for it is of God and the turning is to God. The goodness of God leads us to repentance. Now the Lord is not a man to repent in that sense: Num. 23: 19; 1st Sam. 15: 29. To repent thus is to change as a result of wrong done before, or the discovery of something before unknown which is considered more desirable and to which the one repenting turns.

The expression IT REPENTED THE LORD that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart, sets forth the body of flesh in a type in which the Lord Jesus was to appear, and in which relationship to sinners he bears their griefs and carries their sorrows, because his soul should be put to grief for their sins. The word God appears in the first chapter of creation. In the second chapter the term Lord God appears. In the third chapter at promise of a child the word Lord first appears. As man is developed more and more in transgression the Lord is brought more and more clearly to view in his grief and humiliation. Satan does not own the word Lord, or use it. His bitterest enmity is against Christ. Never until Jesus appears in flesh does Satan confess Christ to be the Holy one of Israel, and then he is rebuked.

From the foundation of the world Jesus stood as a Lamb slain, (Rev. 13: 8,) and verily was fore-ordained before the foundation of the world, (1st Pet. 1: 20,) and the elect were chosen in Christ Jesus before the world began, (Eph. 1: 4,) and grace was given them in Christ Jesus before the world began, (2nd Tim. 1: 9,) and this is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost. Then it is true that Jesus was afflicted in all the affliction of his people: Isai. 63: 9. It pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief, Isai. 53: 10. Here are enough scriptures quoted to prove the unity of Christ and his people and that he must shoulder and bear all their griefs on his heart because of this relationship. Hence the grief of heart the Lord must feel for sinful man. It was not revengeful anger merely. There was heart-grief; sin is the cause of it. The continued transgression of man calls for his destruction, but there is grief and pity in the Lord. Is it appointed unto man once to die? So Christ died once. Is man a sinner? Christ who knew no sin is made sin for us. Is man become one of us, said the Lord God, to know good and evil? Then Jesus must be as man to know grief and shame. Is every imagination of the thoughts of man's heart only evil continually? Jesus must be tempted in all points as we without sin, and bear our sin in his own body.

The Lord does not willingly afflict the sons of men. Christ is the forerunner in suffering in order to bring many sons unto glory. It is God's strange work to punish transgressions. He is slow to anger and full of compassion. How wonderfully justice is tempered with mercy, power with grace in Jesus—a just God and a Saviour. How deeply the Lord took to heart this work of destroying man whom he had made.

Because it repented the Lord that he had made man, therefore the fountain of repentance flows from Jesus, who is exalted a prince and a saviour to grant repentance unto Israel. Grace is treasured up in Christ Jesus which we see granted unto Noah at the time of the destruction of the old world.

God means one thing and man another. God sent Joseph beforehand to save much people alive, yet Joseph's brethren sold him of envy. God meant it for good, they meant it for evil. God made man upright, yet man sought out many inventions. God made man good; but all flesh corrupted his way. Man is as corrupt in his wicked works as if there were no God purposing, God is as holy in his operations as if there were no man sinning. God's ways are as high above man's as the heavens are above the earth. Men have their choice, but they if left to themselves choose evil, because that is what they love. Man has a choice about almost anything that comes before him. If two dogs fight he is inclined, if neither dog is his and he knows nothing of either, to have a preference as to which whips, especially if, as most men, he has any fondness for dogs. His mind approves or condemns in some sense what passes before it. He approves or condemns the conduct of others. He likes this, and dislikes that. He judges. He charges God foolishly often.

Mankind are inclined to be extremists. One extreme begets another. For instance—cold brings on fever or heat. Fever follows a chill. A false position taken by one man will throw another in a false position on the other side. Take for instance the case of Job—a free agent defender will say the Lord had nothing to do with Job's afflictions, and he would see only the hand of the devil in that matter. A predestinarian might say the devil had nothing to do with it. But in truth both God and the devil had something to do in this matter, but not at all conjointly, or in furtherance of the same purpose. Satan meant for evil all he did unjustly accusing Job, and then smiting him with sore boils. Through hatred to God and to Job Satan did this. For he smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot unto his crown. Job 2: 7. The malice of the devil and the pity and tender mercy of the Lord are both shown in Job's case: James 5: 11. One is set over against the other. The conduct of the devil remains his conduct, and the Lord's works praise him, nor can the two ever blend; nor is God responsible for the conduct of the wicked, nor does the conduct of the wicked, whether of men or devils, tarnish God's glory, although he makes the wrath of man to praise him and restrains the remainder of wrath. The rebellious, fretting spirit of man will charge God foolishly with the works of wicked men, but the chastened spirit of the humble will see the righteous hand of God above man's wickedness, and bear the rebuke saying, the Lord hath bidden him curse David, "Behold, my son, which came forth out of my bowels seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite do it? let him alone, and let him curse for the Lord hath bidden him curse." How deeply was David's own sin in the case of Uriah burdening him? He was humbled and saw the correcting hand of God. If we are not humbled we will charge the iron hand of wicked man, although its grasp be covered with the velvet touch of flattery, as the cause of our distress: but if we be humbled and our eyes open, we will see beyond the clenched fist of the iron hand of malicious man or devil meaning this for evil, the soft and merciful healing hand of God meaning this for good. Wicked men are God's sword, and when they punish they mean it for evil. Hence when one is wise he desires to fall into the merciful hand of God and not into the hand of man. In the different administrations and dispensations of the Lord God over mankind he shows his perfections and man's imperfections and he rules in infinite wisdom and goodness, bringing his people from a lower to a higher, better estate and finally will exalt the beggar to inherit the throne of glory with princes. He goes down beneath the lowest and vilest of his people, even down into the horrible pit and miry clay, to raise the fallen and make the poor to be heirs of God and joint heirs with our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and the ark of his strength bearing his chosen lifts them above the flood and carries them to the mountain of his holiness to be ever with the Lord. For he shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied. P. D. G

THEIR POLICY.

A denomination that loves to estrange the children of Primitive Baptists from them and get them to join their own order and thus to enlist actively against their parents often resorts to the following plan. They will plant a Sunday School in some School House, or other place in the neighborhood, and have singing, and get children of the Old Baptists to join in the singing, or go to their Sunday School. Children are fond of their songs—much fonder of them than they are of the songs of Zion. There is an air of lightness and frivolity in their singing that makes people feel like dancing or playing, and children like this. Soon they learn to sing and this pleases their parents. For parents are often so fond of their children that the easiest and quickest way to steal into the hearts of the old folks is to flatter and praise the children. I have often noticed the craft of these fellows in noticing and flattering children. It is all right to properly notice children, but to use arts to beguile them, and flatter them of their goodness to allure them to join some denomination, or to thus please the parents by flattering their children, is deceit and wickedness. The devil reached Adam through his wife. Now his ministers have two strings to their bow. They lead captive silly women, and often also flatter the parents and beguile them through their children.

Some Primitive Baptist parents allow their children to go to Sunday Schools to be taught the opposite of what they themselves profess to believe, and when these children join such denominations the parents quaff down this opiate, "Well, the Lord will bring them out in his own good time." But what have such parents done? They have not brought their children up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. The Scripture always means at least as much as it says. It teaches that parents have a duty concerning their children. It is a sin for false teachers to decoy children away from their parents. The Pharisees did this and claimed that such children were devoted to the Lord, and their parents had no further claim on them. But Jesus condemns them, and when he healed a man's child he delivered him back to his father. True religion will make a child more obedient to its own parents.

But the parents who suffer, or allow their children to attend, sanction or engage in that which they think is wrong, sin too and are guilty. What deceivers these Pharisees are. They pretend to love the Old Baptists—will say they are the best people in the world—yet try to teach their children the opposite of what their parents believe. If they really thought these Old Baptists are the best people in the world and truly loved them as such they would want their children to believe as their fathers do. Let these Pharisees measure a little by the rule Jesus gives. As ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them. Suppose a Primitive Baptist preacher should go and decoy some of their children, and turn them against their parents so that there would be no pleasure to their parents in their company, and they would be of no more service to their parents, how would they like that ?

We Primitive Baptists should teach and preach what we believe, as much as possible, to every creature, and give no countenance to any other faith, belief or creed. Let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay.

P. D. G.

HARD TIMES.

Yes, these are what we call hard times. How many of us are repenting of our sins? Would there be hard times without cause for it? Is there not a cause? Yes, there is a cause for everything that comes to pass. We are apt to blame some one else for our troubles. Often many are involved in sin that causes the distress. No doubt it is so now, and often innocent people have to suffer for the wrongs of others.

The financial distress on the country at large now is the fruit of bad seed that has been sown for years, and it will take years to reap all the crop.

A system of extravagance in the expenditure of public money, a tariff for protection of some parties to the damage of many others, making the protected rich and impoverishing the consumers or buyers of the goods thus protected—neglect of farmers to produce their food forcing them to buy too much of what they eat and wear—the general extravagance of the people, and the low price of products grown for the market have all helped to aggravate the trouble. For instance, cotton and tobacco, our southern crops for market are very low. But meat or pork which we buy largely of is very high. The farmer that has pork to sell would not object to its high price. The trouble is so few have it to sell.

The introduction of railroads encouraging much travel and hence loss of time from business and expense also, and by these railroads bringing the products of many distant sections to our doors encouraging us to buy rather than to produce them, induces people to slack up their labor, and depend more on trading. This opens the way to speculation and over-trading. But there has to be a time of settlement of debts, and then most people find themselves in trouble. For unconsciously our out-goes exceed our incomes. We spend more than we make. The art of saving is pretty much a lost art in our country. Besides all this, when the war ended the United States government owed a vast debt of more than a thousand million dollars, which debt has to be paid. They have paid part of it. But the people have paid that in taxes. The system of government seems not to be understood by many people. We should remember that the people make the government and they have to support it. The government owns nothing only what comes from the people. Many have a notion that the government is a great corporation that can create wealth at its will. There is not a word of truth in that. The government is the agent of the people or nation that supports it, and the wealth that they have comes from the people in the way of taxes and tribute. If they issue paper money the people must make it good, for there must be a basis or foundation on which that money rests.

The people are often deceived by politicians, especially in such a hard time as this. These politicians blame the party in power for all the evils, and offer to relieve the people if they had the power. Like Absalom who flattered the people and made them think he would be a better king than his father. Give them the power and things would be none the better. There is no party that can relieve us at once of this trouble. We will get well slowly even if all do right. We have all sinned and the God of heaven is chastening us. We should repent of the wrongs and amend our course.

Is there any good in this distress? Yes. What but necessity will cause a man to turn from evil? Nothing. The school of suffering will bring God's people to consider and repent.

These times show men's characters. Who is trying to do better? Who is heeding the warning? Who are paying their debts as far as they can? How many are sheltering under the plea of hard times to keep from paying a debt? If I owe a man five dollars and have only that amount and go and pay my debt, that five dollars will help another man to pay a debt and so on. But if I lay it away that much money is lying idle that ought to be at work paying debts. That is one of the troubles now. We are selfish. I owe a man some money. If he comes and seizes on my property and sells for almost nothing that is depriving me of all power to pay the debt, and he fails to get his money. But I ought to do all I can to pay the debt.

Baptists should show an honest disposition now. They should love one another and therefore bear with each other, and help one another. Who is showing mercy to the needy? Who is humbled and repenting of the evil, and condemning oppression? The rich should pity the poor and remember them to do them good. We should let our light shine in hard times. It is at least as important to do right then as it is at any other time. No doubt but good will come of these distresses to them that love God, and are the called according to his purpose; and all that fear God and hate evil, and love the good and right, are of that favored number. P. D. G.

REMEMBER US.

The year is closing and a good many subscribers to the LANDMARK are behind. Remember us in settling your accounts for we are needing money, and if you can't pay all you are due now, send what you can. We have sent statements to many and trust those who receive them will exert themselves to pay, remember that our expenses are heavy, and to publish the paper at $1.50 a year, it is necessary we collect what is due.

CRAZED BY A BLOW AND SHOT AS A BURGLAR.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Dec. 7.—The man who was killed by Roger Seffens, Jr., as a burglar, while forcing his way into Seffens' house, was identified to-day as Wm. A. Jones, a clerk on the steamer Harry D. Knox. Jones was a quiet, gentle young man, who was subject to periodical spells of dementia, caused by a blow received in California seven years ago.

Remarks.

Mr. Jones was a native of this section, and was a peaceable, well-behaved man. While conductor of a R. R. train in California he put an Irishman off of his train for cause. This Irishman filling a bag with sand, struck him secretly on the back of his head causing spells of dementia at times. While in one of these spells he wandered into this house and was killed.

P. D. G.

END OF THE YEAR.

This year just closing has its remarkable events as well as past years. It has been a year notable for much suffering among the people. Severe sickness in many sections, drought in others, excessive rains in still others, storms of uncommon force, financial distress in general, much bitterness of feeling among the people all indicate the absence of holiness—no prospect of the long promised universal conversion of the world that many preachers and teachers have been predicting so long. That wickedness is rife in the land, calling for these judgments, cannot be questioned, Mankind are not getting better. They never have been good and they are not improving.

What the end of these troublous times will be no man can tell. Certain it is that God does his pleasure, and these things are the fulfillment of Scripture. The righteous are safe. All that fear and serve the Lord shall be delivered, even all that are found written in the book. It behooves us to watch as well as pray.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

HATTIE A. ARMSTRONG.

On Aug. 22 1893, at the home of her Brother-in-law A. L. Parish, Whitaker's, Edgecombe county N.C Miss Hattie A. Armstrong passed from mortal into immortal life. She was born Feb. 12 1871, making her stay on earth 22 years 6 months and 10 days. Hattie was by nature a gentle, loving self-sacrificing girl, and truly to know her was to love her. At school she was kind and obedient to her teachers and gentle and loving to schoolmates, consequently was a general favorite. Sometime ago she was made to mourn because of her sins, and when Jesus saw fit to deliver her He granted her many bright promises. On one occasion she was so troubled that no words of kind friends could cheer, when a beautiful vision seemed to say, "Fear not, you are one of God's little ones." Immediately all sorrow was banished and she was made to rejoice. While under this load of trouble, one night she had a beautiful vision—She saw herself standing in the yard praying for mercy when Christ came to her in His shining robe and with a beautiful crown on His head. She at once fell at His feet and suffered all the agony it seemed possible for human to endure, all the time crying and begging for mercy. While thus imploring mercy, Jesus raised her up, and after having stripped her of her earthly raiment, clothed her in a white robe of righteousness and said "Go and be baptized, your sins are forgiven." Accordingly on the next meeting of the church at Hopeland she told what she hoped the Lord had done for her, was received and baptized by Elder A. J. Moore on the first Sunday in May 1893, where she remained a faithful member till her death. She loved her church very much, but felt too unworthy to be among Christians, although she loved them more than any other people. She was ever found in her seat at meeting, her bright face beaming with an almost unearthly light as she heard Jesus proclaimed as the Saviour of sinners. She was strong in the faith and talked beautifully of the loving kindness and tender mercy of her Heavenly Father. After she was baptized she had many sweet promises. One evening she was lying down resting, she soon got up and told us she was aroused by a voice saying,

Come dear child, go sin no more ;
I have thy pardon bought,
Come dwell with me forevermore,
For I condemn you not.

She was taken with typhoid fever and lived only twelve days. I had been very sick of the same disease for several weeks and during that time sister had been a faithful and untiring nurse. When she found she had to give up and go to bed herself, it was quite touching to hear her talk to me. Her last words to me when she left the room were "God will take care of you my dear sister." I was too sick to remember anything that passed and only know as others tell me. Just prior to her illness while sitting by my bedside reading the Bible, she turned down a leaf remarking what comfort and consolation she has found which is in Revelation 11 to 17 verses inclusive. What her exemplary life has written in the hearts of those who knew her best is better written and far more indelibly impressed than any thing I may spread upon paper. All during her illness she prayed that the Lord's will be done. Spoke several times of bright Angels hovering round her bed, and told her mother repeatedly that a beautiful pearl was by her side. She had many bright evidences that her pardon was sealed and when the grim monster Death claimed her, she passed away as peacefully as a child being lulled to sleep on its Mother's bosom. I trust all the brethren will pray the Lord to be with dear mother and I and give us a sufficiency of grace to bear this deep sorrow. Her Christian life, and we may truly say triumphant death, assure us that she is now at rest in that world of bliss where sickness, sorrow, pain, death are known and feared no more. May we all meet in glory.

"Hattie rest, thy warfare over,
Asleep upon thy Master's breast
Dis-ease and sorrow come no more,
In Heaven Hattie now at rest,

Yes, will miss thy gentle way,
See no more thy dear, dear form,
In Heaven Hattie forever to stay,
Safe at last from every harm.

On that trying sad, sad day,
When dearest Hattie was taken away,
Hard it was with her to part,
It almost broke my aching heart.

Her sweet dear face we'll see no more,
Till we reach that shining shore.
She has gone to that peaceful rest
On the Savior's loving breast.

Oh! that the Lord will give me grace,
So in the future I'll see her face,
And that we on Caanan's Shore
Shall meet where parting is no more.
MAGGIE PARISH.

JOHN B. HARRISS.

In the Autumn of Life when, after the sun had reached its zenith and was calmly approaching the horizon, John H. Harriss fell asleep in Jesus at his home in Nash County near Rocky Mount, on March 6th, 1892. He was born December 16th 1816 and was a member of the Primitive Baptist Church at the Falls of Tar River, and in his 75th year.

After a long busy and useful life he now rests from his labors. He commenced as a poor bound boy, but by diligence, industry and perseverance he accumulated during his life of probation here sufficient for his own needs and for those whom he loved and cherished. He was a good neighbor, a kind friend, an affectionate father and a pious and honest man. Generous and kind to all, he was loved most by those who knew him best. He left a wife, many grandchildren and a host of friends to look forward to a happy meeting beyond this vale of tears.

Jno. W. B. Bass, a grand-son of the above, was born April 22nd 1868, and died at his home in Edgecombe county, N. C., on July 12th 1892.

Just attained to manhood the voyage of life lay before him, and hope pictured in glowing colors a happy and prosperous future. He chose for his mate one who was in every way worthy of his love and around and over his path-way hung the beautiful festoons of confidence and love. A little girl had come to knit more firmly these sacred bonds of love. And the roseate hues of a long and useful life seemed to bless and hallow the home of our eldest son, but already the shadows had begun to lengthen and the wings of the Angel of Death hung over the happy home. Man only proposes, God disposes. In His Infinite wisdom he saw fit to call our beloved child home. Only He can feel our loss. Only he can speak the word "Peace, be still," and the storm of sorrow ceases and the clouds turn their silver light to view.

Jessie Thomas Bass, Grand Daughter of J. H. Harriss, was born in Nash County on March 15th 1870, and died of Typhoid fever in E. Gecombe county near Whitaker's at the home of her father on August 17th 1893 in the 24th year of her age.

The bud which had lain so near our heart, and whose caressing tendrils were ever present in our sorrow and joy to soothe the one and share and rejoice in the other, had scarce opened its petals to enjoy the full bloom of womanhood when the sickle of death came and cut-down our precious flower.

Her mother was paralyzed when she was only 14 and for 2 years 7 months and 13 days never could walk or talk. During this time the care of the household fell upon Jessie at this tender age, beside this sick mother and the household cares, she had the care of five children under 12 years of age and nobly did she do her duty. She was ever at her father's side conquering her own deep sorrow, and soothing and helping to sustain his, managing his house affairs and lightening the burdens upon him. She was truthful, obedient and a good child. At the time she was taken sick she was nursing her brother Fatima, a few days afterwards her youngest sister was taken down, and during the next week her brother Harris was also taken which made four of my oldest children down with the fever, when her brother Harris was taken her mind at times seemed to give way, she seemed to have the care of them all on her mind. Her last words were; "I wish I could go to 'Dol'" (her pet name for Harriss) and kiss him and give him a capsule." On December 26th 1893 she went to see her grandpa (John H. Harriss) and finding him sick she remained with him until he died which was on the 6th day of March, doing all she could for her aged parent who was in the 75th year of his age. On July 1st 1892 she was called to the bedside of her eldest brother J. W. B. Bass who was sick with Typhoid Fever. He only lived until the 12th of the month.

The good Lord has seen fit to take her away where she will come no more to me in trouble and sickness and say "Go to sleep Pa, I am here." Often I feel that I cannot bear it but the Saviour speaks: "Peace be still," and I look forward by faith to that meeting where there will be no more parting or sickness or death. Brothers, as one by one my loved ones fall to sleep by the wayside and are gathered home, the ties that bind me to earth are severed and new ties bind me to that home on high where I have reasons to believe that we all through God's eternal love will meet to part no more forever. Brothers, pray for me that I may not only meet my loved ones gone before but bes: of all my Saviour, My best friend, my elder brother. Pray that I may be resigned to His Holy Will as far as it can accord with his Holy aim and purpose. Yours loved by Grace through Faith, if saved at all.

I. W. B.

MARGARET WALKER.

Mrs. Margaret Walker died at her home Caswell, N. C. March 22 1893, aged forty-nine years, one month, twenty three days. She was the wife of G. L. Walker. She had been in feeble health for more than a year with Lagrippe, which finally turned into something like Consumption. All of her children reached the bedside before she died. Could the skill of her physician or hearts overflowing with grief have saved her she would not have died, and we would not have to weep for a loving mother who always sought our comforts and pleasures regardless of her own.

Oh! it is so hard to give up my dear sweet mother. It almost breaks my heart to think I must live here without her comforting tender words, and dear sweet smiles. She was always so willing, ready to comfort me in any little trouble that might come upon me, but now she is gone; yea, she has been taken from my heart. I go in her room and it seems I ought to see and hear her sweet voice as she always did speak, and I could ask and get her advice. But I can ask nothing now. There stands her chair in her choice part of the room vacant, never can be filled. Then I go to the table, a seat is vacant there by my side. Sometimes I feel like it is more than I can bear.

What is home without a mother,
Though many friends around me be?
Loving father, sisters and brothers,
But none like mother to me.

Though she is gone, can ever be called back again, I hope she is better off. She leaves a good and kind husband, ten children, six daughters and four sons, a kind mother, father and one brother, and a number of kindred and friends to mourn their loss. May we all be prepared by the grace of God to meet her in the kingdom of God.

Dearest mother, thou hast left us,
Here thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God that bereft us,
He will all our sorrows heal.

Written by her daughter,

Anderson, N. C.

MRS. MARY H. WALKER

On Saturday Nov. 18th 1893, my dear mother fell asleep in Jesus after a brief but painful illness. She was the youngest daughter of the late Elder S. I. Chandler. She was born Aug. 2nd 1843. In the year 1866 she was united in marriage to Maj. D. Walker. Sometime in July 1881 she obtained a hope in Christ the time of which I have often heard her tell when her sick soul was made happy and to rejoice in a Saviour's love. She staid away from the church till she was afraid not to go. Saturday before the 2nd Sunday in September 1883 she went before the church at Wheeler's and related a part of her experience, was received and baptized by Elder D. R. Moore. It was her sole delight to meet with the saints of God and hear them talk and hear the glad tidings of the Gospel preached. She was strong in the faith, and one of your strict old-fashioned sort of Baptists. Ma had been in a bad state of health for several years but the last three weeks of her pilgrimage here her sufferings were almost beyond endurance. At first she appeared to be somewhat impatient and unreconciled. She said she wanted patience and reconciliation. And that it was easy to say "Lord, thy will be done" but it was hard to feel it. She requested the church at Wheeler's to pray for her. At one time when there was something said about the doctor coming she said she had rather see some preacher come, and wished she could see Elder A. N. Hall. Toward the last she became calm and bore her sufferings with much patience and resignation. When death came she smiled but could not speak so as to be understood. There was a smile on her face after death. I thought she was the prettiest corpse I ever saw.

She was the mother of seven children, three of whom died in infancy. She raised four to be grown; three daughters and one son, who together with her husband still survive her. She was a kind and indulgent mother and spared no pains in endeavoring to raise her children up in the way they should go. Many and great were her afflictions, troubles and trials here in this life. She suffered many things and passed through deep waters, but I have every reason to believe that her sufferings are over and she is now sweetly resting in the bosom of a Saviour's love. What a happy exchange. Why should I grieve after her, but I can't help it, I miss her so much. It is so hard to give her up. I know my best friend on earth is gone but I hope to meet her some day where parting will be no more.

HER DAUGHTER.

MARRIED.

December 7th 1893, at the bride's father's residence, in Wilson county N. C., brother W. R. Ballance, and Miss Sallie Dew, by P. D. Gold.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Dear friend please publish this inquiry. Can any one who reads this please inform me as to whereabouts Mr. John W. Cameron formerly of Rockingham N. C., Any one knowing anything of him will please address.

JAMES W. BRAZELL.

Columbia, S. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

ISAAC JONES.

Smithfield Tues. night after the 4th Sun. Dec.	Clement.....	Wednesday
Hannaks Creek.....	Thursday
Rehoboth.....	Friday
Union meeting at Little Creek Saturday and 5th Sunday.	Sunday night
Smithfield.....	Monday
Old Union Dec. 1st 1894.....	Tuesday
Bethany.....	Wednesday
Chapel.....	Wednesday night
Goldboro.....	Wednesday night

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

	No. 25 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 78 Daily
			A. M.	P. M.
Ar. Wilson	4 05	7 35	11 00
Lv. Goldsboro	3 00	5 35	9 05
Lv. Magnolia	4 15	7 45	11 15
Ar. Wilmington	5 05	8 37
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Dec. 4, 1893.	No. 25 Daily		No. 41 Daily		No. 78 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Florence	2 30	7 05
Lv. Fayetteville	16 32	9 00
Lv. Selma	11 00	11 15
Ar. Wilson	1 05
	No. 25 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 25 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 78 Daily	No. 78 Daily
Lv. Wilmington	9 00	7 00
Lv. Magnolia	10 40	8 40
Lv. Goldsboro	12 00	10 45
Ar. Weldon	12 00	10 15
	No. 25 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 25 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 78 Daily	No. 78 Daily
Lv. Wilson	1 15	11 25	10 40
Ar. Rocky Mt.	2 17	12 05	11 25
Ar. Tarboro	2 35
Lv. Tarboro	12 55
Lv. Rocky Mt.	3 17	12 05
Ar. Weldon	3 15	12 05
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 40 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 15 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinross, 7 20 p. m. Returning leaves Kinross, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 30 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele 6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Allenton & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday 5 00 p. m., Sunday 5 00 p. m., arrives Piedmont 9 30 p. m., 12 00 p. m. Returning leaves Piedmont, daily except Sunday 1 30 a. m. Sunday 10 00 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 12 20 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 45 a. m., arrives Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrives Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 5 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 55 p. m., Spring Hope 5 50 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrives at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Lotts Branch Florence R. R. leave Lotts 6 30 a. m.; arrive Danbar 7 47 a. m. Returning leave Danbar 6 35 a. m.; arrive Lotts 5 20 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 9 00 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 78 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. N. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.

P. M. KEEFER, Supt. Manager.
P. M. KEEFER, Supt. Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Microcco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Microcco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,

Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clanton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Full term begins Monday, Sept. 4, 1893.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 2, 1893.

All trains daily except Sundays

N. Bound		thought
MAIN LINE OF S.W.
No 1
7 55 p.m.	At.....Wilmington
8 45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville
9 30 p.m.	At.....Macon
10 15 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs
11 00 p.m.	At.....Hope Mills
11 45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville
12 30 p.m.	At.....
1 15 p.m.	At.....
2 00 p.m.	At.....
2 45 p.m.	At.....
3 30 p.m.	At.....
4 15 p.m.	At.....
5 00 p.m.	At.....
No 3
5 00 p.m.	At.....Bennettsville
5 45 p.m.	At.....Macon
6 30 p.m.	At.....Red Springs
7 15 p.m.	At.....Hope Mills
8 00 p.m.	At.....Fayetteville
No 15
MIXED
Daily Ex Sunday
5 35 p.m.	At.....Rainsville
6 20 p.m.	At.....Chimney
7 05 p.m.	At.....Greensboro
No 17
MIXED
Daily Ex Sunday
7 35 p.m.	At.....Greensboro
8 20 p.m.	At.....Stokesdale
9 05 p.m.	At.....Madison

Train No. 3 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Macon, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1888. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it. Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is so recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

JANUARY 1, 1894.

NO. 4.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

KaderJalley

1893

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been received please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

WHERE IS REST ?

2 THESS. 1:7.

[Inscribed to my friend J. W. E. M.]

Vainly on earth the spirit seeks for rest ;
Life's fading toys no comfort can supply ;
The joys of time are vanity, at best—
Rest for the soul is only found on high.

In youth, wealth, leisure the mind with promise bright,
But with sharp sorrows pierces those who gain ;
Fame cheats the hope of such as win her height,
And earth's best glories are but splendid pain.

How sad the state of man whose only hope
Is bounded by the narrow range of time,
How wretched saints, if doomed to ever grope
Darkly on earth in search of joys sublime.

Is then this longing after rest in vain ?
Must wounded hearts in hopeless anguish grieve ?

Do all our aspirations end in pain,
And hopes of peace forever more deceive ?

No, there is rest above for those who grieve,
And Gilead yields a balm for wounded hearts ;

Its "heap of witness" will all doubts relieve,
While faith's broad shields shall quench temptation's darts.

There's rest in every promise God hath given,
Rest in the oath immutable he swore,
Rest in the presence of the Lamb in Heaven,
Joys pure and changeless—rest forevermore.
—Composed by your little friend 13, 3, 19.

ADDRESS.

Address of Martha Counts to her husband
Joshua Counts sometime in August 1839

I dreamed and behold your right arm was taken off, and an iron arm put on in its stead, and the arm that was of iron was contrary and of bad form. I awoke and was troubled, and fell asleep again and dreamed, and behold it was not your arm, but that I am to die shortly. On the fifth day Oct. following she was taken sick, which she bore with the greatest christian patience, and on the night of the 9th day of the month she had another dream which she told to her husband in the following manner. I dreamed that I was traveling and had all my children with me, in a strait narrow way, and the devil came and would tempt and vex us on every side, but could not get in the way before us. He appeared in the form of a feathered monster, and at last so far prevailed as to get a rope around one of the children's neck, and we were much troubled, but suddenly it dropped off like flax before the flame, and then we laughed at him, and he sneaked off as if he were ashamed, and afterwards we came to a place where I had to bow and he fluttered upon me, and I smelled the dust that fell off of him, but it did not hurt me, and I smote him with my heel in the forehead, and I looked at him and saw him tumble to pieces out of my sight, and then we were all safe. Next I came to a beautiful water about as deep as to my head, and I saw a man there that had a vessel in his hand, and I told him that all the filth was now out of me, and that I would open my mouth, and I desired him to fill me with the water, and I would lay down and rest; and he did so, and I laid me down to rest. On the day following as she lay upon her bed apparently in a sleep, she had a beautiful smile upon her countenance, and after some time she opened her eyes and addressed her husband in the following manner. My Dear husband, I am going to die, but Jesus will be with you, and bring you and all the children to glory; for I see heaven's door opened, and in it my sweet babe, and my old father, and your mother, and my grand-mother, and a number of my friends that have gone before, and a number that will follow after, they are all with Jesus. May the Lord Jesus bless you and my sweet babes, and bring you to glory, for it is the Lord's will, and the Lord's will be done. Do not let the devil persuade you to any thing else. Now call all my children. Her children came to her and she laid her hands on their heads, one by one, and said, may the Lord Jesus bless you, and keep you from evil is my prayer for Jesus sake. She then told them to seek the Lord while they are young with all their hearts, and keep no bad company, and to mind what their father told them, and go not with boys and girls that will swear, be kind to one another and mind what good people tell them, and then they would come to their little sister in glory where they never would part again. Then turning to her husband she said, My Dear, you have been a good husband to me, and the Lord knows it, live near the Lord, and be often seeking him for my little children, for the Lord will bring you and all to heaven. I see so plain where we will meet and part, for the troubles we meet with here on earth are trifling, and not to be compared and then she closed her eyes and said, "Jesus can make a dying bed seem soft as downy pillows are."

Oh how sweet, oh how sweet, the name of Jesus. Oh how sweet, oh how sweet. He carries me along, the heavenly song is begun. Don't you hear it. Did I even think a dying bed would feel like mine. She then opened her eyes, and looking earnestly at her husband said, did I ever think I could look at you with my carnal eyes and see Jesus at the same time. She then said, get something to wrap me in, and lay me in my mother dust in that sweet bed. It is sweeter than can be expressed. Now give some of God's water for every thing on earth is God's. He put it here for our benefit, and taking it she said, as the earthly water is cooling to my parched tongue, so is Spiritual water to a thirsty soul. It is a blessed thing to be a christian, all is well, there is not one pain about me, it is this hull around me that hurts. Then looking at her husband she said, I know you are desiring some person to be present to take notice of my words, for the Lord has shown it to me, and he will show me more, and I will tell it to you. Tell my Brother Noah that I want him to press on and do his duty, tell uncle Wilson and aunt Sarah, and their children to repent and turn to the Lord with all their hearts and seek the Lord while he may be found and call on him while he is near, for the Lord is full of mercy, and he will forgive their sins.

The general conversation of Martha Counts during her sickness was that the Lord had revealed it to her that she was about to die. She earnestly craved to depart and leave the troubles of this world. She would request her friends if they could have faith to pray the Lord to take her quickly out of her afflictions, so that she might lay down in her grave and be at rest. So the Lord laid her down to rest on the 18th day of October 1839.

TO THE HOUSEHOLD OF FAITH:—
 Dear brethren and sisters everywhere, I want to call your attention to Elder Burch's letter in the LANDMARK of November 15th. It is such a lovely, good letter, it causes so much thanksgiving in my heart that I cannot express it. I had been listening and looking for just such a piece a long time. Now is it possible that I have heard the glad tidings at last that gives so much joy of heart. Come we that love the Lord, and let our joys be known, join in a song of sweet accord, and thus surround the Throne. Who of us could not wash brother Burch's dear feet? Now I feel even beneath his precious feet. How beautiful are the feet of those who bring glad tidings of great joy, manifestly so that but the mind of Christ could have led him to write in such a lovely, glorious way. It does my heart so much good to read it. I thank and praise the Lord in behalf of the church, and while I read the consoling thought comes into mind, why not practice in this way in all things in the church? Why have any iron-bound rules in the church to say who or how we shall, and who shall not where we have no scriptural authority? Did Christ teach in this way? Nay verily. He says, come unto me all ye weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, and I will give you rest: for I am meek and lowly in heart; and again, look unto me all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved. Suppose my husband went to the convention he could not get to the baby for he had no Sunday Schools there. This man told me not to tell it until I saw the baby again. So on the 7th I saw him again in that same pretty place resting happy with his sweet smiles on its face. Mr. Gold, this does not seem like a dream, it is so natural and fresh to my mind that I hope the Lord was in it; and as the Lord would have it my husband did not go to the convention, and after I told him my dream he could then mourn with me, and bless the Lord. Oh, my soul and all that is within me bless His holy name, that He shows mercy unto the children of men. Mr. Gold, can you give me any words of comfort to ease my mind through the LANDMARK and oblige a lone wanderer: so farewell.

HESTER ANN HINES.

Remarks.

The great love that the world, including all denominations except the Primitive or Old School Baptists, has for Sunday Schools makes us very unpopular when we oppose them. Perhaps there is nothing the denominations rely more on to convert people than this measure. They reach little children and soon convert or proselyte them to their views. They induce the greater part of these children to join them, and they receive most of their accessions in this way. They claim that to take the child in infancy, when his mind and heart are tender and his conscience not much defiled, his nature not much warped, but comparatively innocent, before he has committed many sins, and put him under the influence of Sunday Schools, is the best way and surest method to bring him up in the way they desire him to go, and to enroll him in their denominations and thus to fasten their sentiments on him. We fully agree with them that this is the most successful plan to make Methodists out of the children of Methodist parents and teachers, or of making Missionary Baptists out of their children, or of making Catholics out of the children of Catholic parents or Catholic teachers.

These denominations thus glory so much in Sunday schools. But we have two difficulties in our way that forbid our patronizing them. One is, that the bible never once teaches them, nor refers to them. A matter so important as they claim Sunday Schools to be would, if this is true, have some support in the new Testament.

The other reason is that we do not understand from Scripture that there is any warrant for so many different denominations. These different denominations are fed and strengthened more by Sunday School (as each teaches little children before they are large enough to think for themselves) which teach the children to imbibe the notions of their parents, whatever they may be, than by any other system. Besides, we do not understand that little children are so innocent and pure as they are held to be. But we believe it requires the same power and teaching to save little children that it does adults. We prefer to follow the teachings and patterns given in the new Testament, believing that to be the only perfect rule. Jesus receives and saves little children. The fact that the Lord has shown you what he has should comfort you and encourage you that he loves you.—Ed.

ELD. P. D. GOLD, VERY DEAR FRIEND IN CHRIST:—I have had a desire for some time to write to you for some cause, and hope the cause is of the Lord. I have a little hope that He has pardoned my sins, knowing at the same time that I have trampled his mercies under my feet, but I believe he has sent judgments on me for not doing his will. I feel willing to confess my faults, and trust in the Lord for all things, so about the first of May the Lord sent His judgment on me by afflicting my dear little babe, and it died and I said I believed it was a judgment sent on me for going to Sunday School, which was something I had no faith in. But will the Lord pardon me for what I have done, is my prayer for Christ's sake. So on the 5th of August the people had a Sunday School convention. The 4th I dreamed I went almost to the convention. There was a woman who tried to get me to go to the convention. I told her I had more respect for the baby than to go there, and there was a man talking to me and said I think so, and I saw our dear babe in a pretty place resting happy with smiles on its face, and that man told me if he commands one to come into the church, and be baptised, or any other duty he commands, and we forbid them, only at certain times and places. Let us not be found to fight against God. Let us have all things common, let us do all things decently and in order as becometh saints, without disputing in the midst of a gain saying world. Let us ever esteem others better than ourselves, by doing unto them as we would have them do unto us. And let us lay down our lives for our brethren, remembering our blessed Lord who thought it not robbery to be equal with God, took not upon himself the nature of angels, but came in fashion as a man that he might be the first born among many brethren. Let us lay aside the weight of that sin that so easily besets us, and run with patience the race set before us, ever looking unto Jesus the author and the finisher of our faith. There is no contending, lording over each other in this way. Let us come in the unity of the Spirit, and the bond of peace, that we may live a quiet and peaceable life in all Godliness and honesty. Dear Brother Gold, I hope you will excuse my bad spelling and writting. It is the very best I can do, and when I am writing to the Primitive Baptists I feel I am writing to my own people who will forgive and bear with my weakness. Not more than two weeks ago I thought I would not write any more. I had nothing to write, saw no use of writing, but when I read this peice of Elder Burch's, I saw such a glorious beauty in this way of worshipping I wanted others to see it too, but I cannot show it to them. It is lovely beyond comparison. It will take the same power to manifest it to them that it did me, as I trust, but I feel constrained to tell them of the same faith about it, hoping they are blessed with the same faith, and we can all sup together, though it is done in an awkward, bungling manner. There is more real love, joy and peace in the presence of Jesus than there is in this solid big earth out side of him. This you know is why I love to tell you of him, because I know you love to hear of him, and not only you, but all the true Israel of God. Save me Jesus and I ask no more. I had been mourning the sad and desolated condition of Zion for a long time, but now hope has sprung up that we shall yet again sit together in heavenly places not some one way, and some another, but all together in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh. If Christ Jesus makes us free we shall be free indeed. I do not feel worthy of a name in your valuable paper, so farewell.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I never hear any preaching that does me any good around here. They talk too much of what they are doing for God. If I had to do something to merit salvation I fear I would never be saved, for we are weak and sinful; but God is good and merciful to us, and never leaves nor forsakes us, although we come far short of our duties as christians. I know I do, and I am sorry that I am so sinful. I would not give up my little hope for everything in this world, for the things of this world pass away, but God's mercy endureth forever. I have five small children and my husband's health is very bad, consequently we are in poor circumstances financially, but I feel that I have been greatly blessed to have a hope of a better life when I leave this. I do like to read the LANDMARK. It contains so much good, sound doctrine. Oh, that I could praise God more, from whom all blessings flow. Brother Gold, will you please write to me and tell me what you think of a Primitive Baptist who wears earrings and bangs and follows the fashions, and knows the Master's will and does not do it. The Bible says he shall be beaten with many stripes, and I believe it. We will be punished either in mind or bodily afflictions I think; but I believe we will have all our troubles here, if we do wrong, (don't you?) and be saved and forever happy in our home above. To-day the weather is very bad and my little children are playing and making a good deal of noise in the house, so if I have written badly and scattering please excuse me. Pray for me as I feel to be one of the least of God's children. Your unworthy sister, JULIA J. MARTIN.

Remarks :

This question of fashions is a vexing one to the world. Many labor and toil and spend much money to be in the fashion, and think if they are not it is a great shame ; but that it is all right if it is the fashion. One objection against the Old Baptists is that they are so odd and old-fashioned—out of the fashion, behind the times.

We know everybody has a fashion of some sort. Some have this year's fashions, some last, some the year before that, and some the year before that, and so on. So that if you will hold on to your same fashion perhaps after awhile you will fall into the new fashion without any effort, for the same fashions return.

It was fashionable to have finger rings and earrings, wisping pins, nose jewels &c. See Isa. 3: 18—24. But they are not commended. Wear something decent and suitable—not to display pride, but to hide nakedness and for comfort. Before people sinned they needed no clothing.

I do not feel like declaring non-fellowship for a lady that has bangs and jewels if she has adorning of a meek and quiet spirit, nor condemning men that wear rings and gold watch chains they have paid for, if I do not feel that they want to make a display of these things. My feeling is, let people dress as they feel disposed, provided their conduct is neat and clean. Of course all the chastening and affliction, sorrow and trouble a child of God has is in this present evil world. It seems to me I receive the due reward of my deeds and deserve what I receive and much more, and that the Lord is both just and merciful in chastening me.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER LESTER.—In your last No. I find an editorial reply to Eld. Mabry, at the close of which you say "If I am not correct in my views I would like to hear from some one else."

And why not if you are correct? I feel like endorsing and confirming everything you have said and perhaps adding some more to it. It will be recollected that the inquiry was in reference to an apparent discrepancy between two accounts of the voice that came to Saul on his mission to Damascus. It will not do to harbor the idea that there is contradiction between inspired writers or that they make mistakes. The voice must have been audible so that they heard the noise or sound, but it did not speak to them as it did to Saul, and as it was in the Hebrew tongue the probability is that not one of them understood Hebrew. It seems to me likely that it was spoken in Hebrew on purpose that none of them should know the voice that spake to him. I have doubted whether in several cases where the Lord is said to have spoken to persons, as Moses, Samuel, Elijah, Job and others; whether any one heard, or could have heard, the voice that spake to them. The Lord speaks to the understanding and to the conscience of men, but always to be heard and obeyed. It is all the more interesting to find people faithfully obeying a voice through all their after life, that no one heard but themselves. The Lord still speaks to men in the same way, and others may see the effects thereof; but it is A STILL SMALL VOICE that no outward ear hears. There are some other discrepancies in the records that have come down to us, and perhaps not quite as readily accounted for. It is recorded at the crucifixion, "they that were crucified with him cast the same in his teeth." It may have been that the penitent thief was not penitent at first; and if he did really revile his Lord at first, his conviction and conversion was all the more remarkable. None of the evangelists, except Luke, gives an account of the penitence of one of the thieves; while Matthew and Mark speak of both of them reviling him. It may have been that Luke was present while Matthew and Mark were not. But John certainly was present, yet he says nothing either way. John seems to confine himself mostly to important things that had been omitted by the others. In giving a general account of the jeering and mocking that came upon him from every quarter the writing seems to come to a culmination in a record of fiendish cruelty, when those crucified with him joined with the rabble in their railing. I do not mean to give it as my opinion that the penitent thief had at first railed. As one of them had been heard to join in with the rabble crowd in railing the fact that the others did not perhaps escaped the notice of those who reported the events, which oversight Luke takes care to correct.

The light that shines above the brightness of the sun illuminating the understanding of Saul had no effect in illuminating any one else of the company. They were undoubtedly all in sympathy with Saul in his cruel mission, and probably continued to breathe out threatening and slaughter afterward as much as Saul had done and as they had done before. People may fall to the earth through fear and terror and get up again as bitter enemies of the truth as they were before.

E. RITTENHOUSE.

State Road, Del.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I enclose an obituary of brother Ladd which I hope you will suffer to appear as soon as convenient. This leaves us all well, with a snow about six or eight inches deep, and still snowing, but I am glad to say we have a good supply of coal and wood, food and raiment, and at peace one with another, and if I could truthfully say we were living a Godly life, it would be great gain. But I can truly say that I have had more peace of mind, in the last three months, with the Lord, family, and all mankind, than I have had since I came out of the war; from the same cause I reckon, for I felt to rejoice every morning while in the war, that I was yet alive. I have long since learned that the deeper the waters we have to pass through the gladder we are they are no deeper. I enjoyed my trip down the country more than any tour I have ever taken. I was treated exceedingly kind every where I went, and none more appreciated than that which I received while in your care. I intended, and was requested by several, to give a short sketch of it to your readers, but after reading brother Burch's article and his saying so near what I would have said, I thought it useless to repeat it. I found the Baptists at every place I went at peace, and I thought were learning obedience, by the things they had suffered. I found some of the associations trying to turn the "Dog" loose: nearly all of the troubles we have had for the last ten years, have been brought about by some would be leaders, or busy-bodies in other men's matters trying to discipline church or individuals, where they have no jurisdiction. Solomon says he that passeth by and meddleth with strife belonging not to him is like one that taketh the dog by the ears, he is not only sure to be bitten but will have to have help to turn him loose. The government of the churches or individuals don't rest upon the associations; nor any preacher of the association. And whenever an associational preacher assumes this prerogative he is assuming what the prophet says belongs to Christ. There were twelve apostles appointed judges and we have no account of any others, therefore let their judgment be final. May the Lord bless Zion and all lovers of the truth, is my prayer for Christ sake.

J. M. HARRIS.

ELD. L. H. HARDY, DEAR BROTHER:—I want to write a vision I had the night that you left here :

In my dream I was at Toisnot and preached, but something had been keeping me back. I felt then that I had been waiting to get in better circumstances and the Lord Jesus came to me and took me in His arms and embraced me to His bosom and kissed me and hugged me and wept over me, and I wept with Him. The words spoke when He came to the grave of Lazarus came to my mind, "Jesus wept." He told me that I must preach. By this time I was at his dwelling place and it was a stone mansion. His wife was in the mansion with Him, or He with her. He told me to go and preach, there should be nothing lacking for He was worth fifty hundred thousand dollars. I thought at that time that He was the richest man or Jesus I had ever heard of. Then He told me to hold my hands. I did so. He filled them with silver and gold, and His wife gave me silver. I then departed from Him and the mansion and went on my way rejoicing.

How can these things be ?

Yours, etc.

E. C. SMITH.

neaufort, N. C

DEAR BROTHER SMITH:—I am, as you are, a poor, weak mortal, full of sin. You have often asked me what ought I to do? "What shall I do?" etc. I could not answer you only to do as you felt the Lord directed you. Your answer has come at last, it came from the right source. If I had given you ever so many answers I could not have relieved your mind. You have to go a little by the watchmen to find Him whom your soul loveth. When you get there you are moved by the impelling power of necessity to look to Him and to cry unto Him from the depths. He always hears the cry of such needy ones and answers them speedily. We often feel that we have no confidence in the flesh, are cut off from every earthly source and yet the Lord does not come to our relief, but not so. He knows our hearts and will bring us down low at His feet that we should worship Him only, and when we are completely killed to every earthly source He is there for we have then come to Him and bow at His feet. We bow down in holy reverence and submit all to His care and are made willing to serve Him in whatever capacity He sees fit to work us in.

Such humble submission is not of the flesh, but is so humiliating to the carnality of man that the flesh will kick against it, however sharp the pricks may be. But the kicking of the flesh is only for its destruction. I have seen^d this in you, my brother, for a long while. Now, my dear brother, I am not afraid of puffing you up to thus write, for if I puff you the Lord will humble you by His grace. Human puffing is nothing, but the humility of God's grace is everything and this I need, you need, and every servant of His needs, and he will give it in His own way and time, even if it takes away all that we have and leaves us ever so poor, even penniless here.

May He strengthen you for the work unto which you are called.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

MRS. SUE A. EDWARDS—DEAR SISTER IN CHRIST: I dreamed of you last night, and this morning I feel that my mind bade me to write you; but I am nothing but a poor helpless worm, and I know that unless the Lord gives me something to tell you this will be a dead note. But there must be something for me to say, as there is a sweet feeling within me that I cannot describe. You feel dear to me this morning, more so than usual. I feel that you can tell me things that I think I know a little about, but you have been long in the battle-field, a good old soldier, and can give an experience that is real, that you know something about, in deed and in truth; but when you are telling it you know at the same time none can understand till their ears are unstopped, their eyes open, and they wake up from sleep. Is this not so? My mind became exercised yesterday about the all important subject, "The covenant of Salvation" and my heart leaped for joy, when it was made so plain to me again. Jesus died for sinners, Oh! thank the Lord, and all that is within me praise and adore his great and exalted name, for the unspeakable gift of his dear son, who came into this world of sin and sorrow, and bled, died, for sinners such as I am. Oh! Sister Edwards, there is none other way and if I am not embraced in that covenant I am lost to all eternity; but blessed hope, I trust I have a precious hope, that I would not give for worlds like this. I know there is nothing good in my flesh. I've seen the end of all perfection. The pleasures of earth soon fade away. There is nothing of an earthly nature that will last. "Then what a friend we have in Jesus." One that sticketh closer than a brother; Hell may rage and vent her spite, but Christ will save his heart's delight. Dear Sister, these are a few thoughts that are precious to me. I have penned them down as they came along, and may you feel when you read them as I believe I now do. May God bless you evermore. Pray for me and mine.

BETTIE WHITLEY.

BROTHER GOLD:—I have been silent for awhile before you, and had thought I would not appear before you any more, but time and changes have prompted me to write again before I am called away. My cup has been filled with sorrow and has been emptied and filled with joy. My daughter, Laura, is sick with typhoid fever, and has been for the last eight weeks. At this writing she is free from fever, but not able to sit up only for a few minutes at a time. My prayer was for the Lord to restore her, if it was His will, and if it was His will to remove her from her aged parents that he would manifest himself to her in the hope of pardoning her sins and acceptance with Jesus. After about four weeks sickness she told her mother for her and her father not to grieve for her, that she believed she would get well ; it looked to her that her Saviour was in her room, and that his everlasting arm was underneath her, and that he would never leave her, nor forsake her ; said everything looked so beautiful. My pen cannot express my joy. The doctor forbid us to talk to her, and she is not allowed to see company at this time. When the doctor came in she asked him to sit down, she wanted to talk a little to him, she said to him, "you have been very kind and attentive to me, but my trust is in the great physician." Said she, "I wish I could talk." She could only speak a few words at a time. The doctor still comes to see her twice a day. Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

A. REED.

Winston, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD :—We are commanded to let our light so shine, and how are we to do this ? It is by the meakness and lowliness of the Spirit. I understand to let our light shine is to bear each others burdens, to aid and assist each other in church duties, so that our children may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven. Then to let our light shine is to pay our debts, and to do unto others as we would that they should unto us, to let our light shine is to be sure to cast the beam out of our own eye that we may see clearly to pluck the mote out of our brother's eye ; for it is said, judge not, for you will be judged by the same judgment. Then how can we judge each other, for the ax is laid at the root of every tree that brings not forth good fruit, which shall be hewn down and cast in the fire. Then we should be very careful not to judge wrong. If we can not speak well of each other let us not speak at all. Pray for me.

YOUR UNWORTHY WRITER.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD : Brethren and sisters are often asking me about Brother Herbert Thorne. As I have just heard of his death I have decided to have his first letter published. Here is a copy.

Saulston, N. C.

ELDER JNO. W. GARDNER, Goldsboro, N. C.—BELOVED STRANGER: My father, S. H. Thorne, is an Old Baptist, and there are other Baptists in the vicinity. As for me, I am less than nothing. I ask you to come to me. Pardon my presumption in loving you and sending you money, asking you to come. I, that have never seen you three minutes in my life, nevertheless I love you with a love passing the love of woman. As Jonathan never loved David, I believe I love you. Let nothing prevent you from coming that is not providential. May God set aside every obstacle, and abundantly bless and send you to me. I have no hope of heaven, but still all is well if hell is my portion ; it is no more than I deserve. I have bowed to Dagon, followed Baal, and Ashtoreth is in my heart.

Oh, stranger, come to me. I love you so, come that I may talk with you, clasp your hand, and then, if it is God's will, die. I am so frail I cannot resist the devil, though I try.

My thoughts are so wild I cannot write them. I am thought to be handy with the pen, but in writing to you, for whom my soul yearneth, my powers utterly, fail me. Write me when you can come. It will be one of the happiest days of my life when I see your face and you are my guest. Come to stay several days. We will try to make your stay pleasant. Do not let my audacity anger you. If I have erred it is of the head, not the heart. Come to me, for my soul is in stormy weather, my heart is frozen, my soul asleep, and my brain is chaos. May God watch between you and me until we meet. Believe me, I am sincerely yours to love.

HERBERT THORNE.

Dear brethren and sisters, when I received the above I could but say, O that men would praise the Lord everywhere, for I thought His Spirit was teaching this poor man right then, and until I met this young man at Rocky Mount my soul went out in prayer to God in his behalf. My prayer was that when I met him he might be relieved of his great distress, and even so when I met him he was so overcome in his feeling that he gathered me in his arms and wept for joy. We walked several steps before he could speak. He then told me he had received a hope a few days before. He was baptized the next day at Old Town Creek, and went on his way rejoicing. Brother Thorne was one of the most lovable men I ever met. His death will cause, no doubt, many a sad heart, but I feel assured that he is better off. I could say a great deal more concerning our brother, but will close. May God bless his dear old father in his old age. May he remember that "All things work together for good to them that love God."

A few words to the brethren of the Contentnea Union. Dear brethren, As I did not have the pleasure of meeting but very few of you, I will write you to let you hear how we got along. While there were but few of God's dear children met, the promise of God was fulfilled; where two or three are gathered He is in their midst. Surely he was with and in his little ones at Old Nahunta. While the weather was very cold, yet our icy hearts were broken and many of our cups ran over. Indeed, we had a good meeting; three additions to the church, two right young girls, 17 and 19 years old. While the ice had to be broken, they did not seem to dread it at all. Brethren, remember we are not to forget the assembling of ourselves together. He further says: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead." Dear brothers and sisters, I fear many of us are asleep, yes even dead, to our duty. Remember, if we live after the flesh we shall die. This you know by experience. Every time we neglect duty we live after the flesh, and we die. I read a few days ago of a Missionary speaking of the Old Baptists, who said he had known them to walk forty miles to their meetings. Now they cannot ride that far if they have anything to do. Some of our brethren have gone into merchandising and other things, and they cannot leave that. Brothers, this is not right. Christ says, let your light shine. Do you think your light is shining when your seat is vacant at the house of worship? I don't, if you do. Christ says, Follow me. Let the dead bury their dead. Now brethren, let every church be represented at our union meeting, and let us all forget the things of the world as much as possible, and show to the world that we have been killed to its works. Your brother, in the hope of a better world,

JOHN W. GARDNER.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Dear Elder; I write to ask your views on certain scripture verbiage, mainly on the word Baptized. It is used in so many different connections and meaning so many different things, how are we to know what it does mean? For instance, what is it to be baptized unto repentance? What is it to be baptized into Christ?—into his death? What is it to be baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire? What is it to be baptized "in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost?" Now the puzzle is not in these questions, but in the use made of the term elsewhere as compared with this. On the day of Pentecost at the preaching of Peter they were pricked in the heart, and asked, men and brethren, what shall we do? Peter answered, repent and be baptized for the remission of sins etc. Did Peter mean a water baptism, such as Jesus commanded in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost? Why then did Peter advise baptism only in the name of Jesus Christ? Again, Did Peter intend to teach that repentance prepared the people for baptism, and that baptism was for (or unto) remission of sins, and that the Holy Ghost comes after? At the house of Cornelius Peter plainly taught that the Holy Ghost was a prerequisite to baptism, instead of following after. See the same trouble again at Ephesus where the "twelve" were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, and before receiving the Holy Ghost. Why did they again neglect the name of both the Father and the Holy Ghost? These things are entitled to our serious consideration. Every denomination, so far as I know, believes that Peter advised a water baptism at Jerusalem, and that the "certain disciples" received a water baptism at Ephesus, but such is quite different from the practice of the church now. I do not expect you to answer these things in detail, but please write an article on these things, I confess I cannot see my way through according to the common acceptance of these things. Under the varied use of the word baptize, when it is used I consider what use of the word will harmonize with the circumstances and conclude it means that.

May the good Lord bless you and yours. In hope, M. SIKES.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVI.....No. 4.

WILSON, N. C., JAN. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

ANSWER TO BROTHER SIKES.

The general meaning of the Greek word Baptistes (Baptist) is one who dips, dyes. John the Baptist for instance dipped or baptized the people. A dyer covers up in some liquid whatever he dyes. If one dyes cloth he dips it under water. The Greek verb Baptizo is to dip repeatedly as of ships to sink them. If one sinks a ship it goes under the water. To bathe. If one bathes he is covered with water. Soaked. One baptized with debt meaning that he is overwhelmed with debt, drowned, which means that he is overwhelmed or covered with water. Paul uses the same Greek word baptizo in Rom: 6; 4, buried with him by baptism into death; and in Col. 2; 12, buried with him in baptism; also in Gal. 3; 27, "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

If we put on any thing it covers us, and we are under it. If we are buried we are covered up. If we are planted we are covered up. Now this leaves no room for questioning what is the meaning of the word baptism.

The baptism of John whence was it? Matt: 21; 25. The expression the Baptism of John means the baptism John preached and observed. "The baptism of repentance:" Luke 3: 3; Acts 13: 24. What does that mean? Does it mean the baptism that goes before or precedes and produces repentance? If this expression were used, the repentance of baptism, what would that mean? Answer it would mean the repentance that is produced by baptism. When we say the water of the clouds we mean the water that comes or drips from the clouds. When we say the heat of the fire we mean the heat that the fire causes. When we say the love of God we mean the love that comes from God. So when the scriptures use the language John did preach the baptism of repentance (Mark 1, 4 and Luke 3; 3) it means that it is the baptism that follows or results from repentance. Hence that there must be repentance before baptism. On what other ground can you understand John in Luke 3: 7-8, where he said to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, "O generation of vipers who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come. Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance." If baptizing one would cause him to bring forth such fruits why did he so preach to them? It is on record that those that were baptized of him did confess their sins. (Mark 1; 4) because they had already repented. Peter's language also confirms this for he says repent and be baptized every one of you; Acts 2; 38. He did not say be baptized and then repent. He said this too to people already distressed or cut in their heart for their sins, and to people who in their distress had cried out men and brethren what shall we do?

But what is meant by the further expression. "For the remission of sins:" (Mark 1; 4,) as preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins, (Luke 3; 3.) Liddell and Scott, the highest authority on the meaning of Greek, say eis the Greek preposition here used in the expression eis aphesin amartion, meaning for the remission of sins, is also used in the New Testament to express the point arrived at, the consequence of any thing. (See page 405 in Greek Lexicon.) Hence this language means preaching the baptism of repentance because their sins are pardoned, or in consequence of the remission of their sins. So it is that we preach that a man must first be a believer before he is prepared to be baptized, and if he is a believer we know that he has already repented. For the Apostles testified, witnessed, or preached repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ, showing that repentance goes before faith, Acts 20; 21. The general examples of scripture show and prove that the Apostles did not baptize any until after they believed in the Lord Jesus. See day of Pentecost. Look at case of Peter and Cornelius, Ananias and

Paul, Philip and the Eunuch, Paul, the jailor, and the command of Jesus, Go teach all nations baptizing them. Matt; 28; 19; Mark 16; 15; 16, showing that belief in Jesus must precede baptism. So that it is clear that if one is prepared to be baptized he is manifested as a subject of grace, or his sins are forgiven him, or he is dead to the law by the body of Christ, and now should be buried by baptism into likeness of the death of Jesus as scriptural proof or confession of Jesus that he solemnly makes. Hence Peter says, Acts 2; 38, repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for (in consequence of or because of) the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, or the answer of a good conscience toward God, as the Eunuch felt when he was baptized, as those baptized on the day of Pentecost felt when they were baptized, as Cornelius and his household felt and the jailor felt, when they were baptized. It was this witness of the washing away of sins and of cleanness that Paul felt as he was baptized, and to which he refers when he quoted (Acts 22;) what Ananias said to him, "And now why tarriest thou, arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord," or having your body washed with pure water. In this sense baptism is very important and we should give it far more weight than we do as it comes from heaven. It is clear it is not the putting away of the filth of the flesh. It does not quicken dead sinners, nor is it what the world calls a means of grace (an expression no where in the Bible,) but when one is dead to the law he should be baptized (buried) at once and receive the answer of a good conscience by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, for he in a most solemn manner, and according to the pattern and command of Jesus, shows forth the doctrine of God our Saviour in his baptism.

Christ came by water. He was manifested to John in his baptism in the river Jordan. So the church is manifested in following him. Christ had the Holy Ghost before he was baptized, was as much Christ before he was baptized as he was after. So God's people have the Holy Ghost before they are prepared to be baptized, and when they are baptized then they receive the witness or gift of the Holy Ghost in the answer of a good conscience by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

Jesus commanded his disciples to baptize in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, Matt. 28:19: Why did Paul and others baptize in the name of the Lord Jesus only? Because if one fully understands or knows the name of the Lord Jesus he also knows the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, for they are all in him and to have him is to have all. Therefore his name is above every name, or embraces all in the covenant, for these three are one.

To be Baptized into Christ, or into his death, sets forth the being hid in him, complete in him,—one with him therefore. It is a most solemn, blessed and wonderful putting on of Christ.

Jesus baptizes with the Holy Ghost and with fire. No man can do this, no Apostle can do this. Christ never himself baptized any with water, nor did any of his Apostles ever baptize any with the Holy Ghost and with fire.

On the day of Pentecost the whole house where the disciples were sitting suddenly was filled with the Holy Ghost, and of course they were baptized with the Holy Ghost, because if all the house they were sitting in was filled they were covered with it, or were in it: and cloven tongues like as of fire sat upon each of them. Here is the baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire, and it burns up their former carnal notions of Christ and his Kingdom, and empowers them to speak with new tongues concerning the wonderful works of God. The chaff is now burned up with unquenchable fire, for we never gain hear any more of their chaffy notions of Jesus. They speak hereafter as the Spirit gives them utterance. P. D. G.

CLEAN FOOD FOR ISRAEL.

“Ye shall not eat of any thing that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is within thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: for thou art a holy people unto the Lord thy God. Thou shalt not see the a kid in his mother's milk: Deut. 14:21.

Brother J. S. Sims, of Ga. requests

my view of the above Scripture.

The taste and hence the sentiment and true estate or condition of a people is indicated by the quality of the food they eat or are fond of. For instance we brand that race of men cannibals that eat human flesh. We term those animals most voracious and rapacious that rifle graves of men of their victims. We term those fowls very unclean that eat carrion. Between sheep that eat only clean grass, and swine that root in the earth we put much difference on the score of cleanliness.

So between men whose mental tastes and desires feed on and delight in lewd thoughts and filthy conversation, and such as loathe these things, but crave the pure and chaste thoughts and production of the refined we fix a vast gulf of separation.

It is equally as true that men who love works of men or men's deeds in their religious services, and that feed on their own doings are polluted and defiled in their false faith, while all that desire the sincere milk of the word that they grow thereby give unmistakable proof of their heavenly origin and holy character.

God's people are holy, and they shall manifest this in their lives. In order to make this more prominent the Lord separated his ancient people from all other nations, and directed their conduct even apparel of the priests and the kinds of food all of them should eat, and what they should not eat. Of beasts they should eat no creeping thing—they should not be a people that cleave to the earth or dust. Nor should they eat any animal that parts or divides not the hoof. Besides the animals that part the hoof must likewise chew the cud. An animal that divides the hoof typifies a separation from the world, and if it also chews the cud it sets forth a relish in the soul for good things of heaven. As an animal that chews the cud gives proof of the sweet and lasting nature of the food it eats, tasting the food that abides in the evening long after it is swallowed, so the child of God even down to old age relishes the sweet bread of heaven which endures, and therefore he perishes not.

God's people are holy and are therefore to be holy in all manner of conversation. They are to meditate on things above, their conversation is to be in heaven. Christ is the bread of heaven on which they feed.

Of course as natural persons they eat such food as other people, and avoid eating flesh or food that is damaged. But every kind of food naturally is clean that is generally eaten, only it should be sound and not rotten. But the lesson is to teach us that spiritually we are not to eat or live on any thing the word of God does not authorize. Every word of God is good and is to be eaten, or we are to live by it. We cannot eat that that dies of itself. It is only Jesus who was put to death or sacrificed that we can feed on. The stranger to Israel and to grace might eat of that which dies of itself and is therefore sinful (for that which sins must die,) but Israel cannot eat that. An alien or foreigner may buy and pay for false doctrine, or that which dieth of itself, because it is corrupt; but an Israelite cannot do this.

Nor can a kid or offering be seethed or cooked and be prepared in its own mother's milk. That is no offering that an Israelite makes, or food that he eats can be prepared and fitted for the King's table by any merit of nature.

What feeds you? What does your soul hunger for? The flock of God feeds on Jesus Christ and him crucified or given by his Father, and put to death according to the will of God, giving his life a ransom for many. He that eats his flesh and drinks his blood shall never die. P. D. G.

AMAZING FRUITFULNESS.

Friend R. C. Hill, of N. C., requests my view of Psalm 72:16: "There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon, and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth."

There is a seemingly strange expression in the last verse of this Psalm, "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse are ended." What does that mean? It means that when all recorded in this chapter is accomplished then there will be no further need of prayer by any of the Lord's people; for then all their desire shall have been fulfilled, hence there will be no further need of prayer.

Then what is this chapter devoted to? Take a view of its contents and see if any where you can find a clearer description of the glory of Christ's kingdom which is all the desire of David or any other true child of God. David had a view of Christ's kingdom, and declared that it was all his desire.

The verse preceding the one under consideration (namely, the 15th verse, last clause) says, "prayer also shall be made for him continually, and daily shall he be praised." Everywhere and continually his people shall pray for him—that is for his help, and that God, for his sake, would have mercy on them. We need his help. He does not need ours. Those that pray are the ones in need. Daily shall he be praised. Everywhere shall he be praised and glorified, because God has given Jesus, the King's son, his righteousness and his judgments. Hence Jesus is prepared to execute judgment and righteousness in the earth.

1st. A seed shall serve him. "There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains." Seed corn shall be reserved in the earth in a safe place, upon the top of the mountains. There is always a seed or remnant according to the election of grace. If the Lord had not left us a seed we had been as Sodom and like unto Gomorrah. It is placed on the top of the mountains, or above the earth, for the Lord's house is on the top of the mountains, and mountains are rich and healthy and delightful.

A HANDFUL of corn. This is a small quantity, but it is safe, for it is in the hand of the Lord. The hand represents design, and is noted for its power of service, being one of the most useful members of the body. The hand of the Lord operates, controls and shapes all these things. How safe and sure the handling of this corn by that hand, and in the hand of God this small quantity shall greatly multiply and the little one become a thousand.

Jesus represents that corn that goes down into the earth (crucifixion and burial) that it may not abide alone, but bring forth much fruit. For except a grain of corn die it abideth alone, but if it die it brings forth much fruit.

2nd. "The fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon." Lebanon represents a white forest of mountains. A forest has many trees. On a mountain it would make a noise from shaking, as the more elevated it is the more the wind stirs it. It is white as a harvest, ready for the sickle or ripe or white unto the harvest. These things set forth the nature and character of the church of Christ, or the fruit of his labor. The Spirit blowing on them causes a sound as that of life, or the growing of the mulberry tress. Corn when growing rapidly makes a sound, and grows mostly in the dark. The wind shaking settles, strengthen it. It is as a forest denoting its abundance or fruitfulness. It is white as Lebanon showing that it is ripe also and fit for use. One peculiarity of the Lord's people is they are made ready or white when the time of harvest is. The church has the Holy Spirit typified by the wind. Hence it, the fruit of this corn, shall shake as Lebanon, 3rd. "And they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth." Grass does not naturally grow in cities, but it grows in fields or cultivated lands. Grass grows very rapidly where the cultivated soil is fertile. This shadows forth the flourishing character of the fruits of this corn here represented as the people of God in a city. With all the protection and wealth, social advantages and comforts of a city, the church shall flourish as the grass of the earth. All this represents the church of God under the dominion and reign of Jesus as most fruitful and prosperous, protected and defended, triumphant and abounding in the blessed fruits of love and joy, peace and prosperity, in the mountain of God's holiness.

P. D. G.

VERY IMPORTANT.

Brother M. Sikes request my view of 1st Tim. 5; 10; "Well reported of for good work; if she have brought up children, if she have lodged strangers, if she have washed the saints' feet, if she have relieved the afflicted, if she have diligently followed every good work."

I have heard intimations that one could not be a church member that has not complied with all these requirements. If that be the meaning then a woman could not be a church member unless she is three score or sixty years old. This shows that is not the meaning at all of this scripture.

The subject of the Apostle here is the condition of admission of widows into certain favors of the church which is declared in verse 16 of this chapter. The favor or benefit is pecuniary help, or temporal support that the church is to bestow as relief on certain widows indeed. That is the church is to relieve or help widows of a certain class, not young widows. They are able to work or labor themselves, and they wax wanton and marry too—not widows that have kindred that should help them, such as nephews and neices. These are not to be helped by the church, for their kindred should relieve them, and let the church help such widows as old as sixty years or older, that have no kindred to help them, and that are themselves unable to labor for their own support. Nor shall the church relieve widows three score or sixty years old unless they have been diligent in every good work, and the Apostle enumerates these good works. Let us dwell briefly on each of these good works in the order he names them, emphasizing the fact that she must be well reported of for good works. She must have so diligently performed these good works that she is well known by the church as such a doer of these good works, Observe the conditional form to the verb have "if she have," etc. "If she have brought up children," not let them run wild paying no regard to their conduct, allowing them to do as they please, and rule their parents, and have their own way; but she must rule or govern them well and wisely, having obedient children. "If she have lodged strangers." It is not every one that is careful to entertain strangers. Some are careful not to entertain them, and tell you we do not take in strangers. Some will take them in reluctantly with no good will seeking pay for the same. But this widow is careful to lodge strangers. "If she have washed the saints' feet"—not if she has been baptized or communed, but if she have washed the saints' feet. The matter of washing the saints' feet is neglected, while Baptists do not neglect communion or the Lord's supper. When Jesus says, ye ought to wash one anothers feet, he means at least as much as, and what he says. By way of personal confession let me say that I have several times washed the saints' feet, and always found much peace of mind and heart in this expression of humility and love. Always when an opportunity offers I gladly avail myself of it to join with the brethren in this lowly act, and would be glad that our brethren everywhere engaged in it.

"If she have relieved the afflicted." She must have been one not only to pity the afflicted, but to relieve them, help them, minister to them in their distress. It is not enough merely to pray for them, or speak kindly to them, but to relieve here means to help them by giving them such things as they need in their distress or affliction.

"If she have diligently followed every good work. Not until one does all these things, follows diligently, or performs every good work is she entitled to this favor of being taken into the number of those the church is to relieve in their poverty and need. What a great thing to carefully perform or observe all these good works. What a favor is bestowed on those that do these things. How few of our number do all these things. What one can say I have done all these thing.

P. D. G.

WHO SHALL PRAISE?

It is not becoming in those that walk in transgression to extol the name of God. It is not in keeping with the character of devils and unclean spirits to be acknowledging Jesus. Christ forbids that. Those that walk in the lusts of uncleanness illy show forth the honor of God by taking his name in their lips. It ill becomes drunkards to praise sober men, or prostitutes to commend chastity. People are expected to speak according to their conduct. While apples of gold are fitly set in pictures of silver, a jewel should not be found in a swine's snout. For one guilty of vile deeds to be prating about the predestination of all things gives as much sanction to wicked conduct as to good deeds. God does not receive the witness of those whose life is vile and foul. Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings the Lord ordains praise to his holy name. The upright praise the Lord both in word and deed, by both conduct and life. "Praise is comely for the upright:" Psalm 33: 1. It is good to give thanks unto the Lord and to praise His name. Praise waiteth for him in Zion. He inhabits the praises of Israel. They belong to God and are the fruit of His good and saving work in His people, the echo of the soul in which God dwells, the chorus of praise rising from hearts and lips where God has gone up with a shout.

P. D. G.

THE PREACHER. WHAT IS HE?

My observation of mankind is that some people think too much of preachers, and some too little. The denominations and the individuals whose faith stands in the wisdom of men, and not in the power of God, ascribe to the preacher a power God has not given him. They seem to think there is a power belonging to the office or rank of preacher that puts him as God's viceroy on earth, and that in him there is a sacredness that possesses virtue. Hence they ascribe to him the power of quickening or saving the lost, and therefore if one will give the preacher his hand he will be saved. Give your heart to God say they, and it means give the preacher your hand, and this is the beginning of it.

On the other hand, there is not enough regard paid to the preacher by those that do not glorify God in the preaching of the gospel.

The excellency of the preaching gift is all of God. We have this treasure in earthen vessels that the excellency of the power might be of God and not of us. The vessel should be highly esteemed in love for the work's sake. A priest was a Jew just as any other Jew. He was to be remembered by his brethren who were to minister unto him in the offerings and he was to live of the offerings. Even the mouth of the ox that trod out the corn was not to be muzzled. He was to eat. We should remember those that preach the gospel unto us with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. I doubt if one who never feels to give to a gospel preacher has ever been fed by a gospel preacher. For such is the glory of the gospel that all those whose eyes are open to behold the feet of him that publishes peace, and whose ears are opened to hear the joyful sound also have their hearts open to attend to the things spoken.

A true hearer feels unworthy to receive so wonderful a message, and would after he is saved sometimes ascribe too much to the preacher—not in order to save him, but after he has felt the glory of the mercy of God; but true preachers always disclaim that. When Cornelius would fall down before Peter, the apostle disallowed this, saying stand up, I myself am but a man. When they would have worshipped Paul, ascribing to him divine honor, he disclaimed all such homage for both himself and Barnabas his companion saying, "we also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that you should turn from these vanities unto the living God which made heaven and earth and the sea, and all things that are therein.

John fell down to worship one who told him wonderful things, saying, "And I fell at His feet to worship Him. And He said unto me, see thou do it not, I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus ; worship God : for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." The nearer man is right himself the more positively he disclaims any power or worthiness, and urges all worship to be given to the Lord God. Angels are prompt to decline any worship from men and directing that it should be given alone to God. It is sinful in proud man or devil that desires worship to be given to him. All the world and its glory would Satan have given if the Son of God had worshipped him. Vain man loves admiration and desires to be worshipped. The devil approached man in the garden of Eden to fill him with pride and to become as gods. This spirit is in man. Hence you see preachers claiming power to quicken and save sinners, and proclaiming that they are instruments in the hand of God to save souls. This comes of the devil, and is not of God. All true prophets and apostles disclaim all such power and refuse to receive it.

What they preach is the power of God and the wisdom of God, and that is Christ, but not a whit of it belongs to man. Would you say that if you drink milk out of a cup that the cup which held the milk is any part of that milk? Man is the earthen vessel in which this treasure is contained, for we have this treasure in earthen vessels, but no part of it is of the man. The excellency of the power is of God, and not in any sense of man.

If you take coin out of a pocket-book, or gold out of the earth, you do not hold the pocket-book or earth to be any part of the money.

The greater the gift God bestows upon man the more ready that man is to renounce all claim of partnership or power in the gift. Paul declares he is nothing, and that he preaches of the ability that God gives.

If man could qualify himself to preach, or if other men could qualify one to preach, then the faith of those hearing him would stand in the wisdom of men, and not in the power of God. But if all the preparation and qualification of the preacher is exclusively of God then the faith of those hearing stands in the power of God.

What a wonderful thing is gospel preaching. Who can ever describe it? John the Baptist said he was the voice of one crying in the wilderness. How weak — the voice of one crying in the wilderness. Yet he was a preacher of the gospel—a most wonderful man, but nothing of himself, not worthy to stoop down and unloose the shoes of Jesus. Did you ever feel unworthy to stoop down and unloose the shoes of one about to baptize somebody, or about to be baptized, or did you ever feel unworthy to wash the feet of a saint? To preach Jesus is the greatest, yet the humblest service one ever does. At the same time the weakest in himself, yet preaching him who is the strongest, himself but dust and ashes, yet proclaiming that name that is above every name.

When you are feeding on gospel preaching you cannot see the preacher except in Jesus, nor can you help but love him for the truth's sake: but while one is preaching Jesus he sees not himself, but sees Jesus and the church in glory. If one hears the gospel he is already a quickened sinner, and cannot but love the gospel and him that preaches it. P. D. G.

SEND BY EXPRESS ORDER.

As cheap and a safer way than any other to send money is by express order. Go to an express office, if it is convenient to you, buy an express money order from the express agent, and send me the order by mail to Wilson N. C. for LAND-MARK. This is as cheap as money orders and is safer.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

N. M. SMITH.

BRO. GOLD: Please publish the death of my grand daughter, Mrs. N. M. Blalock (nee Pattie McKinnie Smith) who died in Wake county, near Middle Creek Church, September 11, 1893. The deceased was the daughter of the late Dr. A. E. and Addie Smith and wife of Dr. N. M. Blalock. In childhood she was not robust and grew up into womanhood in rather feeble health, but was generally able to attend school (when a girl) and able to do whatever she undertook in domestic affairs, until February last her health-giving way she lost her voice, and was not able to speak above a whisper during her long protracted illness; her health getting worse she became despondent, often repeating these sad and depressing lines:-

"Sunny Summers are yet to come,
That I shall never see;
And many roses yet to bloom,
Of dust that I shall be."

Her favorite hymn was:

"Why lament the Christian dying?
Why indulge in tears or gloom?
Calmy on the Lord relying,
He can greet the opening tomb."

Often saying that she would not get well and dreaded so much to die so young, and her children without a mother's tender love and care. Saturday night previous to her death on Monday, she asked Dr. Blalock to tell her when she was dying, to which she reluctantly agreed. Monday about 9 a. m. he told her her pulse was weakening, which she knew meant death. She, in her perfect mind, motioned for him, her two children and two sisters to bid them the long farewell. They all took her feeble hand, kissed her and said good-bye, and soon breathed her last. She leaves a sadly bereaved husband, two small children, two sisters and many relatives and friends to mourn our irreparable loss.

But we mourn not as those without hope: though not a member of the church militant here on earth, we feel to hope she has joined the church triumphant above. I was with her often during her last sickness. She told me for some years past she had a hope in Christ and joined the Christian denomination, but before baptism, became dissatisfied and withdrew, holding to the doctrine (her mother so dearly loved) salvation by grace and manifested during her long protracted illness much patience and christian fortitude. May the Lord in mercy strengthen and guide us the afflicted ones; give us grace to bear all our troubles, in hope of an eternal, blissful immortality, and to say feelingly with one of old: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away:

Blessed be the name of the Lord."

Yours In Christian Love,
S. M. WILLIAMS.

JAMES TURNER HARDY.

Infant son of George M. and Agnes Hardy, was born Aug. 11th, 1892 and died Aug. 16th, 1893.

Jimmie was the only child of his mother and was indeed a lovely child. He was very bright for a little child and he and his little half brother were very fond of play and were company for their mother while the rest of the family were at work or at school, and thus you see they were left very lonely. Jimmie seemed to think more of me than any one else and it has been the case that my children who have loved me best when young have been taken from me, but the Lord knoweth best and doeth all things well, and we desire to feel resigned to his will, however rightly we may be bound by the ties of nature, and however much it grieves us to part. I have never seen a more patient sufferer. He was sick a long while and suffered a great deal, but did not cry. It was a wonder to all who saw him that he did not cry when suffering so much. He was supposed to die with some form of blood poison. We do not know, but we do know that he is taken from us by our Heavenly Father and we believe that while we are yet in a land of sorrow and mourning, he is with his blessed Saviour never to know the troubles of this life.

May the Lord grant that we be submissive to His will, and so care for us and watch over us that we may yet meet him with all the redeemed hosts of heaven in my prayer.

HIS FATHER.

ELIZABETH DAY.

Was born December 12th, 1853, of poor parentage. She was left an orphan when quite young, consequently she was dependent on her relatives for support, until she was nearly grown, when she was found to be of an industrious disposition, and was well provided for. She could spin and weave and do other housework.

She was married to Mr. Geo. W. Day in December 1853, by whom she had several children, five of whom survive her. Her husband fell dead on a boat several years ago on his way to Washington, N. C., of heart trouble (it was supposed). Sister Day came before the church at Cedar Island Feb. 1887, and related what she hoped the Lord had done for her immortal soul, and was cordially received, and was baptized by Elder J. R. Rowe, the pastor of said church.

Sister Day lived a consistent member up to the time of her death, always filling her seat in the meeting house, if not providentially prevented.

Sister Day suffered the last few years of her life with consumption, but she was faithful to the last, always glad to have the brethren visit her. On August 1st, 1893 she passed from this world of sin and sorrow to a world of perfect bliss, where sin and sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more.

J. L. GOODWIN.

Roe, Currier County, N. C.

TOBE GODWIN.

This young man died December, 27th 1891, at the home of parents in Johnson County at the age of 25 years and four months. I do not know what his disease was, except he had some chills. He had been sick about two months, but was only confined to his bed a few days. We thought the time was drawing nigh when he had to depart from this world, and the things there of. He said he wanted to live to join some church and be baptized; but, did not. He was the first to break the number of the family. But since then another has been taken, the father Iredell Godwin, of said county. He died with bladder trouble. He was near 70 at the time of his death. He was a member of the Methodist church. His sufferings were great. But, I hope he suffered all here. But they are sleeping side by side, waiting the coming of another, thought we don't know what one will be called next. But we all must go sooner or later. May God bless the mother and the remainder of the family, and help us to so live in this world, that we may be as an unbroken family in the Kingdom of heaven is my prayer.

M. L. P.

APPOINTMENTS.

J. M. WYATT.

Snow Creek	Wed. after 2d Sun. in Jan. 1894
Buffalo	Thursday
Matrimony	Friday
Pleasantville	Saturday
Wolf Island	3d Sunday
Pleasant Grove	Monday
Arbot	Tuesday
Lynch's Creek	Wednesday
Wheeler's	Thursday
Mt Lebanon	Friday
Durham	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Oak Grove	Monday
Willow Spring	Tuesday
Sandy Grove	Wednesday
Good Hope	Thursday
Black River	Friday
Hannah's Creek	Sat. and 1st Sun. in Feb.

Hickory Grove.....	Monday
Reedy Prong.....	Tuesday
Seven Mile.....	Wednesday
Thursday travel to Clinton—thence by train to Wallas where he will be met by Brother Cavenaugh.
At Elder Cavanagh's.....	Friday
Cypress Creek.....	Sat. and 2d Sun.
Maple Hill.....	Tuesday
Noles Run.....	Wednesday
Bay.....	Thursday
Stump Sound.....	Friday
Yops.....	Sat. and 3rd Sunday
Ward's Will.....	Monday
North East.....	Tuesday
South West.....	Wednesday
Belhel.....	Thursday
Sand Hill.....	Friday
Muddy Creek.....	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Goldsboro.....	Monday
Chapel.....	Tuesday
Cross Roads.....	Wednesday
Pine Level.....	Thursday
Old Union.....	Friday
Smithfield.....	Sat and 1st Sun. in March
Little Creek.....	Monday
Clement.....	Tuesday
Rehoboth.....	Wednesday
Fellowship.....	Thursday
Middle Creek.....	Sat. and 2d Sunday
Raleigh.....	Sunday night
Neuse.....	Monday
Cedar Grove.....	Tuesday
Dutchville.....	Wednesday
Camp Creek.....	Thursday
Tar River.....	Friday
Surl.....	Saturday
Flat River.....	3rd Sunday
Boxboro.....	Sunday night
Shiloh.....	Monday
Storie's Creek.....	Tuesday
Ebenezer.....	Wednesday
Country Line.....	Thursday
Lick Fork.....	Friday
Dan River.....	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Goad Will.....	Monday
Stoneville.....	Monday night

He will need conveyance. Arranged by
Elder Isaac Jones

W. W. BARNES.

Sandy Grove, Beaufort Co. N. C.....	Jan. 15,
Goose Creek, Island.....	" 17
Jones Bay.....	afternoon " 17
Cedar Island.....	" 19
Hunting Quarters.....	" 20
Straits.....	" 21
North River.....	" 22
Morehead City.....	" 23
Newport.....	" 24
Hadnots Creek.....	" 25
White Oak.....	" 26
North East.....	" 27
Ward's Will.....	" 28
Yops.....	" 29
Stump Sound.....	" 30
Bay.....	" 31
South West.....	Feb. 1
Maple Hill.....	" 2
Cypress Creek.....	" 3

New M. H. near H. Fountain's.....	" 4
Muddy Creek.....	" 5
Sand Hill.....	" 6
Haskin's Chapel.....	" 7
Beaver Dam.....	" 8
Sandy Bottom.....	" 9
La Grange.....	" 10

Arranged by Elder L. H. Hardy.

Elder James Wilson's postoffice is Stephenson Johnston Co. N. C.

RECEIPTS.

ARK.—J. C. Harris 1 50 J. C. Huff 1 50 By
GA.—C. E. Bennett 2 00 D. G. McCowan 1 50
Elder A. Johnson 3 00 Elder D. L. Hitchcock 3
IND. TEN.—A. M. McKissick 1 50.
KEN.—B. Barnett 2 50 T. B. Payne 7 00.
LA.—E. A. Meeks 1 50.
MISS.—W. F. Berryhill 1 50 A. J. Brantly 1 50.
N. C.—Elder N. H. Harrison 2 25 A. R. Sutton
1 50 Mrs. E. Quinly 1 50 Rede Faithful 75 Mrs.
C. D. Coker 1 50 Mrs. J. J. Martin 1 Mrs. Geo.
Drake 1 50 M. C. Nelson 1 50 R. R. Radford 1 50
S. H. Denmark 5 Orphe Barnes 4 50 J. F. Abrams
2 85 Miss S. L. Miles 2 John Pender 2 John
Dew 1 50 Mrs. W. M. Green 1 50 Isaac Womble
1 50 G. N. Melton 3 J. D. Robbins 1 50 W. H.
Fly 1 50 J. R. Walker 1 50 A. L. Parrish 1 R. L.
Taylor 1 50 By A. F. Neal 4 50 S. C. Jones 11 25
A. J. Powell 1 50 Elder J. S. Dameron 3 G. W.
Johnson 3 50 Elder J. S. Corbett 3 W. M. Daughtridge 3 M. W. Ballard 3 Elder M. T. Lawrence 2
Elder Isaac Jones 3 Elder J. S. Woodard 1 50
Elder S. H. Brady 7 50 Solomon Snider 5 00
N. C. DeLuzo 4 00 W. H. Bass 5 00 J. W. Hay-thorn 3 00 Joseph S. Daniel 1 00 Dr. N. Anderson
2 00 A. Reid 1 50 Mrs. M. C. Paschall 1 50
Esther Barbee 1 50 R. D. Hales 2 50 H. T. Wells
1 50 Mrs. Lucy D. Cobb 2 00 C. S. Winstead
1 50 C. Oberlin 1 50 W. H. Surles 1 50 J. W.
Morefield 1 00 C. C. Aydelette 1 50 S. H. Pittman 5 00 S. W. Stone 3 00 S. M. Hyman 1 50 W.
S. Stanley 1 50 N. C. Hawks 2 50 J. A. Carver
1 50 W. H. Hill 1 50 Jesse Hays 1 50 W. H.
Smith 2 00 W. W. Holland 1 00 Mrs. M. C. Nelson 1 00 By Elder J. A. Burch 3 00 Elder L. H.
Hardy 1 50 W. V. Mason 1 50 J. H. Creech 1 70
Elder J. A. Williams 3 00 Elder I. S. Ross 1 50
B. Bullock 1 50 G. C. Farthing 1 50 G. C. Farthing 12 00 L. O. Hays 9 00 W. R. Whicheard 3 00
S. H. Brantly 1 50 Elder I. W. Gardner 1 50 Elder S. W. Outerbridge 1 50.
S. C.—R. Cannon 1 00 N. B. Allbrook 4 00
Mrs. Henrietta Sausberry 4 50.
TEXN.—Miss Sallie F. Price 1 50 H. J. Pearson
3 Mrs. M. R. Trounch 1 50 L. N. Dodson 1 H.
P. Woodall 1 50. By A. McMillan 5 00.
VA.—By Elder J. E. Hillsman 5 J. L. Williams
1 50 W. H. Edwards 1 50 W. W. Sowder 1 50
Miss Annie Robertson 1 50 H. Burgess 2 00
Mrs. S. V. Pace 3 00 C. A. Cannon 5 00 Elder
John L. Boyd 5 00 By G. D. Weeks 2 25 Elder
P. G. Lester 1 50 Elder Wm. Hawkins 2 50.

SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

J. B. Neal 50 Miss Sallie F. Price 50 John
Pender 1 J. H. Jollie 1 T. J. Wood 1 I. N. Dodson
Wm. Shade 1 S. C. F. 2 Mrs. H. F. Halsey 1 00 B.
F. Barard 1 00 C. C. Aydelette 1 00.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED Dec. 24, 1904.	No. 35 Daily		No. 36 Daily		No. 41 Daily		No. 42 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 47	9 51
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 02
Lv Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45	5 00	P. M.
Lv Wilson	1 55	11 45	6 35
Lv Selma	4 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 45
Ar Florence	7 05	3 47
Lv Wilson	2 05	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 00	6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 13	7 45
Ar Wilmington	5 50	8 20
	P. M.	10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Dec. 24, 1904.	No. 37 Daily		No. 38 Daily		No. 40 Daily		No. 43 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05	A. M.
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 30
Lv Selma	11 10
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 15
Lv Wilmington	9 00	P. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	10 40
Lv Goldsboro	12 00
Ar Weldon	12 50
Lv Wilson	1 15
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 47	11 21	10 40
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 55
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 37	12 55

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 20 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 5 17 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 21 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m. Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington Branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Farme 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 20 p. m., Farme 6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 5 30 p. m., arrives Plymouth 6 20 p. m., 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 6 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m., and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Milliam's, C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 45 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 5 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 20 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 00 a. m., Nashville 5 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 40 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5 20 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. N. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.

J. S. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Microc binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Microc binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25.
Per dozen, by mail, $12.00.

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable. The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is never living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hoss, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Fall term begins Monday, Sept. 4, 1893.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sundays.

No. 1	MAIN LINE.	No. 2
7:55 p.m.	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7:00 a.m.
4:45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....At	10:10 a.m.
4:30 p.m.	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10:27 a.m.
3:12 p.m.	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11:45 a.m.
1:27 p.m.	Lv.....China.....Lv	1:43 p.m.
12:29 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....At	2:15 p.m.
12:54 p.m.	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	2:55 p.m.
12:05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3:25 p.m.
11:42 p.m.	Lv.....N. & W. Pico - W. Cove, Ar	4:40 p.m.
11:25 p.m.	At.....N. & W. Pico - W. Cove, Ar	4:33 p.m.
11:05 p.m.	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5:00 p.m.
9:45 p.m.	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....At	5:35 p.m.
<hr/>
No. 3		No. 4
5:00 p.m.	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6:25 a.m.
6:47 p.m.	Lv.....Maston.....Lv	7:27 a.m.
6:05 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8:17 a.m.
5:13 p.m.	Lv.....Horse Mills.....Lv	9:12 a.m.
4:40 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9:35 a.m.
<hr/>
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday.		No. 16 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday
5:35 p.m.	At.....Rammont.....Lv	6:50 a.m.
3:55 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Lv	5:40 a.m.
3:00 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	6:25 a.m.
<hr/>
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday		No. 16 MIXED Daily ex Sunday
2:35 p.m.	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	6:40 a.m.
1:05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11:00 a.m.
12:30 p.m.	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11:30 a.m.

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1, connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maston, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

A ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRAY, W. E. KYLE,

Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is as recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

JANUARY 15, 1894.

NO. 5

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

A SHORT SKETCH OF THE EXPERIENCE OF T. W. WELLS.

[Who was born in Edgecombe county, N. C., Oct. 2d, 1825.]

The power of grace! "For by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, least any man should boast."

Grace is the way and grace the plan,
Ordained to save polluted man.
This wondrous grace that made me fear,
Has kept me here for sixty years.
I lived in sin and all its fun
From twenty-five to fifty-one.
About that time this grace alone
Made me to think I was undone,
And showed me that without this grace
I could not see God's smiling face.
I went to work, and praying, too,
And thought to work my passage through.
But grace declared my work in vain,
That I should never pardon gain.
At length I saw my case the worst,
If I was lost, 'twas only just.
But when in deep and dark despair,
Mercy appeared, and grace was near.
It led me to the bloody Cross,
Where Jesus died for all the lost.
That blood alone, by grace applied,
Can save me with the sanctified.
I joined the church in youthful days,
And loved this grace, in all its ways,
But soon I heard the awful sound:
"Go, spread the gospel news around."
This grace sustained me all the way,
And gave me strength from day to day.
To-day I'm sixty years of age,
And feel I soon shall quit the stage.
In all, my Saviour's grace is near,
And bids me still to persevere.
All my time is wants and woes,
But grace upholds me from my foes.
In lone affliction, wants and cares,
Grace banished all my slavish fears.
This grace can tame the wildest man,
And make him thus to understand,
That 'tis this grace that saves the soul,
And not of works, as some uphold.
This removes the foulest sin,
And makes one feel he's all unclean.
It saves the aged and the youth,
And makes the liar tell the truth,
It turns him from the love of sin,

And makes a perfect calm will in.
It calls him from his evil ways,
And like St. Paul, behold! he prays.
This grace can all the work perform,
And never does the slightest harm.
It leads the lion to the lamb,
And makes the drunkard quit his dram.
No age can change this glorious grace,
It shines in the believer's face,
The Pharisee denies this grace,
And puts corruption in it's place.
This grace appeared to Abraham,
And led him to Padan Aram.
This grace sustained him all the way,
And gave him strength to watch and pray.
And when he reached the promised land,
This grace was all the wondrous plan.
But to Machpelah he must go,
With Sarah and Rebecca too.

[Presented to Mrs. Maggie Britt by the author]

THE YEAR 1893.

The year 1893 is gone. It has left many things with us by which to remember it. Many deserts have been passed through, with here and there an oasis, where we found a little rest, a little shade, a crumb of bread, a spring of water. Many times have we been out on the seas, with the billows rolling high and threatening destruction, and we, rowing hard to come to the shore, have almost despaired as we saw our little boat drifting farther away when, to our great delight, Jesus has appeared, rebuked the sea, stilled the tempest, and landed us safe on the shore, whither we went. What joys to meditate on these things and witness the mercies of our heavenly Father.

Brethren, were it not for the darkness we would know nothing of the glories of the day; were it not for the rolling billows we should know nothing of the smooth sailing in the arms of faith; were it not for the snare we should know nothing of the freedom of deliverance; had we never been captives we never could have been delivered, nor could we have praised our Jesus for leading captivity captive and giving gifts unto men. How glorious, how true that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. We enjoy light and say it is of the Lord; we shun (or try to) darkness, and say it will bring me sorrow and trouble, but can we tell which of these are the greatest blessing? Could the earth bring forth if it had all sunshine? And are the clouds and rain of no service? In the hot summer when the earth is parched and dry, and the little plants all wilting away, how we crave to see the gentle showers and the clouds that bring them from the gracious hand of God who sends them; when the rain has fallen and the clouds begin to disperse, the pleasant rays of the sun shoot forth, how everything does rejoice and boom up as if singing praise for the blessing just received. Had the cloud nothing to do with this? And was it not God's blessing as well as the sun's heat? So our days of sorrow and turmoil in the troubled deep are his blessings, without which we would never bring forth fruit nor praise the Lord. The Lord shows us our weakness and total dependence on him before he enables us to sing the perfect praises of Israel's God.

When assembled at the Red sea Israel was oppressed and could see nothing but destruction. Behind, before and on either side they were completely hedged in, but in all their distress they had to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord. "Be still and know that I am God," is the imperative command, and Israel always obeys when they are brought down to that point, from which they cannot escape, then God reveals his salvation and they see their enemies as dead men.

Jacob saw all his troubles as against him until the time of God had come to make his purpose known, then, "It is enough" he cries, and thus in a word reveals that he had seen the hand of God in it all. "Ye meant it for evil, but God meant it for good," said Joseph to his brethren when they were bowing before him in fulfillment of his dreams for which they had hated him the more. God was in it all, and Joseph had to go before Israel into Egypt to preserve life.

Many are the events through which we are called to pass, which we think at the time are surely the works of satan which, when revealed to us in their true character, prove to be God's blessings in disguise.

He, behind the clouds, the Sun conceals,
And hides His smiling face;
'Till in His mercies He reveals
The purpose of His grace.

We doubt not many of the children of God have witnessed more or less of these conflicts and deliverances during the past year. Now let us look back and see. There is strength in looking back, but weakness in looking forward. When the spies went over to see the goodly land of Canaan they looked forward at the strength of the enemy and became discouraged, and when they returned to the camp they made a good report of the country, but discouraged all Israel by telling of the strength of the inhabitants. But we cannot find a place where they looked back but that they were strengthened to press forward. When David came out to fight Goliath he looked back and saw that God had delivered him out of the paw of the lion and bear. This encouraged him that God would deliver him out of the hand of the uncircumcised Philistine, and with that faith he went forward to the battle and was conqueror. He said in one place, "Come, hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what the Lord hath done for my soul." What he had done was enough to declare, and this gave strength to trust for what he would do.

Then is it not better to look back over the past than to try to pry into the future? Have you had any conflicts in the past from which God has failed to deliver you? Has he not been a present help to you in every trouble? When your friends forsook you and spoke evil of you was not the Lord nigh unto you? When evil surmising came up against you, and jealousies spoke out in angry tones of false accusations, was not the Lord present to succor and deliver you? Is there a single promise that you can think of which God has made that he has not fulfilled in the very spirit of it? If he has delivered you in the past from every trial, from every wave of the sea, and brought you safe to the shore of peace, will he not do so again? Or are you like David was at one time when he was looking forward? God had delivered him many times from the envious hands of Saul, but at that time he became discouraged and said, "Surely I shall some day fall by the hand of Saul." He had lost sight of the fact that God's promise was in him, and that he had built for him a sure house.

So it is with you Christians when you begin to look forward; you forget that you belong to this sure house of David, and that the sure mercies of God are yours, and that for one of them to fail would forever dethrone the God of heaven. Thus the whole house of God would be turned over to satan and he would be the mighty conqueror. But let us look at it from this standpoint. The Lord said to Pilate, "Thou couldst have no power over me except it were given thee from above." Now is not this true of every enemy of the Lord? They cannot overcome even the least saint, for such was Paul, and what a great apostle was he? Can you not trust for all future your salvation in the hands of such a God as this that gives to the wicked even such power as they shall exercise? Will he give them power to overcome his children so as to destroy their salvation? Nay, verily.

Kindred in Christ, let us not muse over what will be during the year 1894, but let us look at the past blessings and rejoice in the Lord who will come and save us in every time of need.

This is what I truly believe with my whole heart. It is the doctrine that I love. In it I want to live and to die. The gainsayer cannot injure it nor those who believe it. May our God strengthen us all in the truth and guide us in the goings which he has established.

Your brother in hope of the better resurrection,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

MR. P. D. GOLD:—I have been thinking of writing to you for some time, but owing to my weakness I have never made the attempt until now, and it seems like I cannot get rid of it. God being my helper, I will try to give you a few lines on my troubles and afflictions. I was about 18 years old when I became concerned about religion. I would read the Bible. Sometimes I would get a little consolation from reading it, and then again it seemed like I did not see any sense in it. My father was a Primitive Baptist. He took ZION'S LANDMARK. I would read it and think to myself, if I could feel like I thought some of them did that wrote their experience in the papers. I would go off to some lonely place to ask God to have mercy on me, and when I would get to the spot that feeling would be all gone. Right there I would feel condemned. I thought that it was nothing but wickedness in me to be doing that way. I went on in that condition for about five years. Sometimes I would feel a little comforted, and then I would feel worse than ever. About that time my oldest brother got killed at a steam saw-mill. Then it seemed like that trouble would kill me. Sometimes I would be in so much trouble I would take the Testament and go off to myself where I thought no one could see me. I would read, and get down on my knees and ask the Lord to have mercy on me, but it seemed that there was no mercy for me. My husband was a missionary Baptist. He would talk to me about religion sometimes, and it was all that I could do to keep him from finding out what was the matter with me, and the Missionary Baptists commenced their protracted meeting at Republican Grove. I made up my mind to attend the meeting and see if I could get any comfort; so I went every day, and it seemed like that I felt worse at night after getting back from meeting than I did before I went. I tried to pray, and would ask the preacher to pray for me; but it seemed like there was no chance for me to be saved, for I had done everything that I could do, and I felt that I was a lost sinner. I felt just like that everybody knew my condition, and it appeared to me that I did not have a friend in the world. Oh, Mr. Gold, right there my burden was lifted off me. I can never express the happy feelings I had. I loved all of God's children, and I wanted to get with some of them and tell them my feelings. Then I felt it was my duty to join the church and be baptized: so there was no Primitive Baptist nearer than thirty miles, and I concluded to join the Missionaries, and did so, though I did not believe in them; but it seemed like that I could not stay out of the church. Because there was no Primitive Baptist close by I thought I could join the Missionaries and I would enjoy religion better than to stay out of the church. I am yet in the church, but I must say that I do not enjoy religion where I am, and it is my heart's desire to be with the Primitive Baptists, and I feel just like sometimes that affliction has been sent upon me for joining those that I did not believe in. My husband is willing for me to join the Primitive Baptists, but don't want me to be baptized again. I don't feel that I ever shall be satisfied where I am, for I do believe that the Primitive Baptists are nearer right than any other denomination. It seems like they have a greater love for one another than any of the others, which the Scriptures speak of as brotherly love, and I don't believe that any one has that love for his brethren unless he has had the love of Christ shed abroad in his heart. Mr. Gold, we are taking THE LANDMARK. I often wish that I could see you. I will ask you to give me your views on being baptized again. I will close by asking you to remember me in your prayers. A friend,

N. C. BEAL.

Republican Grove, Hall's Co., Va.

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

"And seeing the multitudes he went up into a mountain, and when he was set his disciples came unto him. And he opened his mouth and taught them, saying 'Blest are the poor in spirit for their's is the kingdom of heaven.'" Matthew 5:1-3.

Brother Gold, as I opened my Bible this morning and began to read (for I felt lonely) my mind was caught upon the above Scripture, and I thought I would try to communicate unto the readers of your noble paper some of my thoughts, and feelings in regard to these words, "poor in spirit." There is more scripture in the same chapter that tells us what the poor in spirit and they that mourn shall inherit for the kingdom of heaven is their's; and they shall inherit the earth, and they shall be comforted.

Jesus had entered into his ministry; he had been in the wilderness, and had fasted forty days and forty nights. He had been healing those who were possessed of divers diseases, and great multitudes followed him.

What a physician Jesus is! Why he is the great physician, and he made it manifest by healing those naturally diseased that he is the great healing physician of sin-sick souls, and that he had the power to give them the kingdom of heaven. Now, in regard to the poor in spirit. We cannot tell the experience of the people of God plainer than to preach the experience of Jesus. Now let me speak a little after humanity. Suppose one of us were in a far country, where we had no connexion nor friends earthly, neither had we any earthly possessions, would we not feel poor and lonely? Yes, we would do like Jesus. We would go to the mountains to mourn and pray.

Jesus said, "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has not where to lay his head." What a poor man Jesus was! He was without property or money, yet he possessed all things, for the world was made by him. I believe that he was the poorest man I ever read after earthly, and he was a mourner and acquainted with grief all the days of his life. So he is a high priest that can be touched with the feelings of our infirmities.

While he was in the wilderness, in that lonely place, the devil came unto him and tempted him, making light of his power, seemingly so, saying: "If thou be the Son of God command that these stones be made bread," while he was in that lonely place.

But after he had been making so many manifestations of his power that he was the savior of sinners, he was made light of and persecuted by the world, and evil spoken of. So I believe that Jesus felt to be poor in spirit, and felt to be in a world of sin and sorrow, so much so that it caused him to go up into a mountain, apart from the people; but multitudes followed him because he had been healing so many diseased people. But I do not know whether those multitudes felt to be poor in spirit or not. They saw something about Jesus that was above earthly physicians that caused them to follow him in order to get the sick healed.

But his disciples came unto him. I believe his spirit was what gave rise to the words used, saying, "Blest are the poor in spirit, for their's is the kingdom of heaven; blest are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." The disciples wanted to be where Jesus was, and hear words of comfort from him.

And Jesus, before he leaves the world, prays for them, saying unto his Father: "They were thine; thou gavest them to me, and I have kept them. I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

Jesus accomplished eternal salvation for his people, and he set up a kingdom for them, and it belongs to the poor in spirit. The kingdom of God does not belong to the world any more than Noah's ark did to the world. God did not say to the world, come into the ark, but said unto Noah, "Thou and all thy house come into the ark, for thee I have seen righteous before me in this generation." What a beautiful type is the ark of the kingdom of God. The ark did not save Noah and his family eternally, but saved them from the flood.

God's people are a saved people before they are called. Paul, speaking of eternal salvation, says to Timothy, "Be thou not ashamed of the testimony of the Lord; nor of me, his prisoner; but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God, who has saved us and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." This grace then was made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. So when the gospel is preached it is the voice of Jesus calling to his sheep, and they follow him in his commandments into the kingdom of heaven, which he gives to the poor in spirit. Now in conclusion of what I have written, I feel to be a poor sinner in this world, but not without hope. If I am saved at all it will be a sinner saved by grace. I must stop.

F. C. REYNOLDS.

Vaughan, Floyd Co., Va.

DEAR BROTHER:—I send you a letter from Brother Morrow to the Missionary Baptist sometime ago. They had a fifth Sunday meeting and discussed the validity of our Baptism. And I think denounced it. The County paper published it. But when our preacher (Brother Morrow) wrote his letter they would not publish it, till he paid $2.50, and then they did not print it as Brother Morrow wrote it. But left out words. Brother Morrow corrected this one for me, and I send it to you; if you think it will be of benefit and wish to you can publish it. The Missionaries have not answered Brother Morrow yet. Yours in hope.

H. L. HOLMES.

Anson, Holmes Co., Texas

IN DEFENSE OF PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

The inclemency of the weather forbidding me to fill my appointment, and answering the arguments against the validity of "Primitive Baptist" Baptism, and also ever having scruples as to whether such ought to be done on Sunday, I have concluded to answer the same through your valuable paper. The great liberty to write and speak is invaluable to me, and I feel thankful both to God and man for such a privilege, at the same time being responsible for what I say. And I feel proud now that providence hindered the assemblage, as many who heard the arguments against, could not be there to hear my defense, in behalf of my brethren, friends and self. Being present, I noted after the speakers on all subjects discussed by them, and that which I think tends to invalidate our baptism, both publicly and privately is as follows: "They are Hardshells who are only home missionaries. "Go, disciple all nations. There is authority for baptising as well as anything else. Jesus' church had a treasurer, Judas. Money is the foundation of our success. We are engaged as a church in human redemption." No man can show the origin of the modern Missionary Baptist church this side of the Apostles. It required three things to constitute legal baptism, a proper subject, a proper mode and a lawful administrator. On these things the Hardshells and we are agreed, and on the proper subject they are a little more particular than we are. But in the division of 1835 they lost their authority. The first trouble grew out of election, and second was on missions. It was doctrine that split us. The Methodists are a little over 100 years old and they not quite 100. Can they baptize? If they can we can't. We can't both baptize. We are two distinct bodies. The doctrine of election destroys their authority. They have not a missionary in the field. They have not got the ordinances. They are not carrying out the commission. In the days of these kings the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom, etc. Also read Matt. 16, 17, 18, 19. And then (like the rest) affirmed that they were set up on the same principles of the Apostles."

I asked one privately what had got the matter with our baptism? "Oh nothing," said he, "but they will not take ours, and we have been taking theirs all the time."

The above is all the evidence I heard against the validity of our baptism, which now forcibly reminds me of Balak trying to have Israel cursed, Num. 24: 3-10, since there was not a witness introduced outside of them and their affirmations. That is if I noted correctly (and if not correct I will stand corrected). Of course these gentlemen are men of veracity and all that. But it does appear that if Primitive or Hardshell baptism was invalid, one witness at least cou'd and would have been introduced to prove it. I am sure, however, that if our future prosperity or downfall rested on one to testify, then many could readily be found. But we, like the Apostles and Prophets, are very dependent on the Spirit of God for our success, instead of "money."

All people of course must admit with us that we are home missionary. One admitted that when he said, "They are Hardshells who were only home missionary." This and his assertion that "there was authority for baptizing" together with the others' assertions in regard to their origin, etc. As they agree that there is but one pure stream, church or kingdom, having the same doctrine, ordinances and practice. In other words, they think they are on the same principles that Jesus and his disciples were. That the Savior and the Apostles were foreign missionaries or as all "who are only home missionaries are hardshells" — Now, (kind reader and especially Missionary reader), turn with me to the "proceedings of the Baptist General Convention of Texas" held at Belton, Texas, last Oct., page 18, your secretary and general superintendent of state and foreign missions, J. M. Carroll, says (after correcting his over-estimate for last year): "Thus you will see that 1, 495 churches, representing a membership of over 75,000, failed to contribute anything to foreign missions." Quite a number among you indeed "who are only home missionaries" or "hardshells," over 75,000 in Texas. Now turn back to pages 16 and 17, and you will find three whole associations hardshell — or did not contribute one cent, therefore are "hardshells" according to your own arguments, for you said: "They are not carrying out the commission. They have not a missionary in the field." How about these having the right to baptize? They are not carrying out the commission. They have no missionary in the field. Elder Carroll or his publisher one is mistaken. There were 1595 out of 2395 that did not contribute, and therefore are hardshell—"have no missionaries in the field;" "not carrying out the comm." Brethren, you ought to have those churches to quit baptizing—or whip them in line—you can't fellowship their baptism. I see four more whole associations which failed to contribute anything as churches, but individuals of same did contribute. One out of Anderson county association gave $1 which kept it from being hardshell. Does this not look like the tail was wagging the dog? Well you may say we can't help it—we have as much as we can do at home. Well, it does appear so, since I see only two churches out of sixteen in this Stonewall association contributed anything, and are therefore hardshell, not carrying out the commission, not "engaged in human redemption," and therefore have no right or authority to baptize. How could you afford to represent this association in that convention and at the same time non-fellowship 14—16th of them according to your own evidence at that 5th-Sunday meeting? Represent a Hardshell Association "not carrying out the commission!" unbaptized believers!

Now brethren, please put a stop to all this mischief around home before you publicly assail us again, especially on the mission question which you claimed to help invalidate our baptism, since all see clearly that the tail is wagging the whole of you on the foreign mission subject.

I will now resume my arguments on the subject of mission—its origin, effects and author. If foreign mission had its origin with the Savior or the Apostles, all men ought to believe and practice it or teach it, but if of human origin and human principles, all men are not required to believe and practice it any more than they are any other human invention or institution, and therefore should not be discountenanced or non-fellowshipped for not doing so. As we have already seen that 1 of the Missionaries themselves are not foreign missionaries, and are not non-fellowshipped therefore, or their baptism rejected.

I will now refer the reader to "Proceedings of the Baptist General Convention," page 37, "Report on Centennial Work:" "We are profoundly thankful to God for his goodness in permitting us to live and enjoy the one hundredth anniversary of modern missions." Does "modern" mean ancient? Truly, brethren, you would not dispute your own works or authors. But let us quote further: "We are thankful for the privilege of celebrating an event which has done so much in elevating and saving humanity." What "event" is that you are celebrating? The event of the origin of foreign missions of course, which has been "elevating and saving humanity;" "engaged in human redemption." This is what we deny. "The saving of humanity," "human redemption." This is the "doctrine that split us," we very readily admit. Substituting the work and money of men for the work and blood of Christ, is what split us. I am frank to admit that this anti-Christ Spirit "of mission" is 100 years old, that it was born in Kittering, Eng., in 1792, in Mr. Bebe Wallis' back parlor (which I shall show further on by good Missionary authors), but the mystery to me is this: How can Christian people say a thing originated with the Savior and his Apos-ties and then publish its age 1792 years younger? Call it a modern thing. Celebrate its centennial birth day, rejoice over its growth, the great good it has done, and then face an intelligent audience and assert that "no man can show the origin of the Missionary Baptist church this side of the Apostles," is to develop a little of that which I like none of, or the spirit of one in the "garden." Doubtless the intelligent public of all people have long since seen the inconsistency of such vain jangling. "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!"

I wish now to notice Mr. Richard B. Cook, D. D., a good Missionary author, who wrote the book entitled "Story of the Baptists in all Ages and Countries." Truly he is a good witness. Reader, please begin on page 301 and read several for your own information and satisfaction, as I shall only make a few quotations from him, which are as follows: "Let us now glance at the history of modern missions. This great movement had its origin among the Baptists of England, and was the means of awakening the missionary spirit among other denominations, so that what was at first a little stream, has gathered to itself other streams, until it has become a great river which flows out to all nations, offering the Water of Life to the perishing everywhere. The first step was taken in the year 1779 by Rev. Robert Hall, father of the celebrated preacher of that name." Notice "the first step." Of course there was none before this, if this was the first one. And also the date, 1779. But let us hear him again: "To William Cary, however, more than any one is due the origin of modern missions. He was the first to catch the inspiration, and his zeal and enthusiasm surpassed all others. In 1791 a friend who knew of his interest in missions placed $50 in his hands, saying "write about it." This enabled him to publish his Inquiry into the Obligations of Christians to use Means for the Conversion of the heathen: a treatise which had great influence." And after further explanations our historian says: "On the 12th day of the following October this committee consisting of twelve ministers met at Kittering, in the back parlor of Mr. Bebe Wallis. This was the birth place of one of the greatest enterprises of this or any other age, the first Modern Protest and Missionary Society." Now in the fear of God who will say it is older? But let us hear him further: "The society was very weak and had few friends and little sympathy, while there was a great deal of opposition to the movement." Don't you all now see how we opposed you then and do yet? But once more and I will dismiss the witness for the present: "In order to raise money to pay the passage of these first missionaries, Mr. Fuller went from door to door, begging the more wealthy Baptists of London to contribute to the cause. From most of them he met with such cold reception and was so often refused, that he was compelled to turn into the lanes and valleys, that no one might see him weeping over his failure and disappointment. There were many (not a few) who refused money even for this noble enterprise. But he persevered until enough money was secured to send these two devoted men to India; and they set sail for their chosen fields of labor on the 13th of June, 1793."

The above is a little of the evidence of our great Missionary witness. And what does he say? The origin is due to William Cary. If it is due to Cary, why ascribe it to the Savior or the Apostles? I ask why? When was it born? 1792. Where is its birth place? In the land of Palestine? No, it was in England. In the town of Jerusalem? No, it was in Kittering. In a stable? No, it was "in a parlor," where there were 12 doctors. Who was the father of it? "It is due to William Cary." Of human origin, then? Yes. When do you say it was born? 1792. Was it very strong, have many friends and sympathizers among the Baptists then? Oh no! "The society was very weak and had few friends and little sympathy while there was a great deal of opposition to the movement." I suppose it was not Baptists who opposed this little child was it? Oh yes it was! Do you not remember I said, "there were many who refused money even for this noble enterprise." And that "from most of the more wealthy Baptists of London he met with such cold reception and was so often refused," etc. Oh yes, we understand you now, that the most of the wealthy opposed it, and that it was very weak, had few friends, little sympathy. Of course Mr. Fuller did not beg the poor brethren that we can hear from them, but the poor hear from Mr. Fuller's children; and we have just heard 75,000 of them in Texas all in one lump of churches, to say nothing of the poor in those churches and associations that did contribute, of the Missionary order, so the little fellow is not so large yet in the Missionary order as a man who is not posted would think. But the thing has got strong enough now to carry double and kick up.

Listen: "Resolved, third, that every pastor in Texas be requested to secure the appointment of a committee of three consecrated, active members whose duty it shall be to approach every member rich and poor and solicit a contribution as a thank offering to God." Proceedings of the Baptist Convention, page 49. So if this is executed, the poor will get a chance to put in their mites this year. And I see your representatives have drawn very liberally on you with "pledges" for nine different institutions, which are separate from the great Baptist church of Texas, yet I think they have all married her—or the convention at least.

But I want to ask our witness one or two more questions, not that I do not understand them, but that all the kind readers may; for I accept the logical principles those brethren laid down and consented to. That is if they can administer legal baptism, we can't. One or the other has departed from the faith, the doctrine and practice of the Savior and his Apostles. Two different, distinct churches or kingdoms could not be the church of Christ, and therefore could not both baptize into His kingdom. For instance our kind editors could administer an oath to a witness, go through all the legal forms and words of a marriage ceremony, or even baptize a person in any of the forms or modes practiced by any order, and yet the laws of God, church or country would not recognize their works and ceremonies as legal in either case of oath, marriage or baptism. So it is my intention to show those brethren (if possible) that they have never been baptized at all, never submitted themselves to the righteousness of God, but are going about trying to establish their own righteousness, since they made the attack on me and my brethren, that we had never been baptized, which I certainly will admit if they have been. Our witness, Eld. Cook, says that the "first step" towards missionism was in 1779; the first society formed in 1792; the first missionaries started June 13th, 1793, with few friends, very weak and greatly opposed. Now the very important question is where was the church and who carried out the commission with authority to baptize prior to this time? Answer, I pray, who? If not "having a missionary in the field" invalidates our baptism now, did it not invalidate it for the first 1792 years? Who had the ordinances then? Was it the Methodists, or Catholics, or Presbyterians? You admit they are older than this.

Now we just want you to tell us who kept this sacred authority to baptize the first 1792 years, if Hardshells are not now "carrying out the commission;" and who turned it over to you at this date, 1792, this little weak, parlor-born thing of which you boast? That you denounce our baptism for not marrying. I admit she is worldly wise, very witty, very beautiful, "but everything that glitters is not gold," and we do not oppose such things in the world; but think we are not under obligations to marry every beautiful woman that comes along. And in fact it is contrary to nature (as well as grace) for a woman to marry a woman, any how. They love each other but not well enough to marry to each other (and I believe all institutions as well as denominations are denominated in the feminine gender). Therefore we have ever stood aloof from such things, except the time we have had to do or bear with them, which have been introduced among us. However, I suspect Phinehas' plan would have been the best, which was to kill them as soon they entered. Numbers 25:7. A little leaven will leaven a whole lump if it remain long enough. The question I think fair, and if those brethren will do the public this favor, it will be quite a kindness, besides if you are teachers in Israel it is certainly your duty to do so. I for one would like to be baptized if I have not been. And if those only who are engaged in foreign mission "carrying out the commission," have missionaries in the field," have authority to baptize, you must prove it. And to do this you must tell us who had such authority to give you prior to 1792; who "carried out the commission" prior to this time? It is not only important to us and the public, but to you also, since you claim apostolic succession and church succession.

I did wish to quote from Benedict on the subject of missions with other good authorities, as to its origin etc., but think it not necessary at present. However, seeing the great importance of an answer to the above questions, it might be prudent to quote a few words from Mr. Benedict, which will be found on page 102, book entitled "Fifty Years Among the Baptists," which was written in 1860, and whom Missionaries dare not dispute (a great missionary Baptist historian). He says, "about forty years ago (which would be 1820) the dormant energies of our denomination in this country began to be aroused in favor of some systematic efforts in favor of sending the Gospel to the heathen. The cause of this movement may be traced to the conversion of Adoniram Judson and Luther Rice to the sentiments of the Baptists, while on their way to India as missionaries under the patronage of the Pedobaptists." The cause of the movement may be traced from what? From the conversion of those gentlemen from the Pedobaptists to the Baptists. He does not say from what class of Pedobaptists, whether from Methodists, Presbyterians or Catholics. And as they are all Pedobaptists, we do not know which one of those denominations held the "authority" to baptize till 1792 in England and till 1820 in this country, according to their own argument. But it is no difference to me and I presume none to the public, who held such authority all that short space of 1835 years, just so you tell us who it was, that we may know to a certainty of your Apostolic connection and church succession. If the Catholics held said authority till Mr. Wesley's day and then from some fundamental principle or other cause lost it, and it was turned over to the Methodists, who held it till 1835 and turned it over to you by their neglect or disobedience to high Heaven why tell it? Who was it that held it, and from what cause or causes they lost it, which now shine so conspicuously among you? I feel certain that such evidence will add more members to you, than all those nine young ladies pledged for in the convention will in ten years to come. And as Sam Jones said, "in the name of the stars" make the matter plain. And for Jesus' sake and his people's sake introduce one witness at least outside of the Missionary Baptist church. Tell us his name, what book he wrote or paper he edited, and at what time or date he said so; and I for one will do my very best to believe, though there are people who can beat me believing. That is if I understand them correctly.

I will now examine the doctrine which was said to split us, to-wit, the doctrine of election, which one of the witness said "split us." And I have agreed that it was doctrine that divided us, though it is generally believed that the mission society did it; but truly it was doctrine which is general atonement—which is to the reverse of election. The only way to settle the matter that I know of is to simply state the doctrine Baptists believed prior to the division, or to the trouble that brought about the division (as principles never change) and compare the same with the doctrine believed and taught by each distinct body now. Some claim this very difficult, but I think such only want it to be so. "None are so blind as those who won't see," have no will to see. Like the unborn sinners who have the natural, mental and physical ability to "hear" and see, etc., but have no will, "ye will not." I was glad that the doctrine of election was acknowledged to be what divided us, since nothing is more true. Bad doctrine always breeds bad practice, hence the doctrine of universal atonement and the duty of the church to execute it, or save the world of mankind was the sole author or father of "some systematic efforts in favor of sending the Gospel to the heathen," so if the doctrine of universal atonement and conditional election, to be performed first by the church, sending the missionary, and second by the people in accepting it be true the same can be traced through the whole to the Apostles, then Missionary Baptists have an abundant proof of their origin, since they very strongly contend for such doctrine now. But on the other hand, if the doctrine of special atonement and unconditional election be true and the order whom they protest against, grew out of, "went out from," believed and taught it, and still believe and teach it, the case is a plainly made out one to me, who holds the authority to baptize, so far as Hardshells and Missionaries are concerned.

In 1680 (over 200 years ago) the ministers and messengers of over 100 Baptist churches met in London and readopted a confession of faith now commonly know as the "London Confession of Faith," with which all modern divines are familiar. Section 3, article 6, reads hus: "As God hath appointed the elect unto glory, so he hath by eternal and most free purpose of His will fore-ordained (I Peter 1:2, II Thess. 2:13) all the means thereunto; wherefore they who are elected, being fallen in Adam (I Thess. 5:9, 10) are redeemed by Christ effectually (Rom. 8:30, II Thess 2:13) called unto faith in Christ, by his spirit working in due season, are justified, adopted, sanctified, and kept by His power through faith (II Peter 1:3) unto salvation; neither are any others redeemed by Christ, or effectually called, justified, adopted, sanctified and saved but the elect (John 10:26, 17:9 6:44) only." We find taught in the above the doctrine of eternal election, out of which grew special redemption (or atonement), effectual calling (by His Spirit) justification, adoption, sanctification and salvation, for the elect only, which ascribes all the honor, power and glory to God for eternal salvation, justification, adoption and sanctification. Missionaries love general atonement, universal calling. But eternal election, special redemption and effectual calling they love to hate, and substitute therefore universal atonement, universal calling, and the creature is elected when he believes.

Now I wish to quote a few articles of faith unanimously adopted in 1777, by what is known now as "The Kehukee Association," on which they stand to this good day 1893. Article 3. "We believe that God, before the foundation of the world, for a purpose of his own glory, did elect a certain number of men and angels to eternal life; and that this election is particular, eternal and unconditional on the creature's part." Article 9. "We believe, in like manner, that God's elect shall not only be called and justified, but that they shall be converted, born again, and changed by the effectual working of God's Holy Spirit." From Hassell's History, page 699. Now I will quote from the minutes of the Bethel Association, organized in 1837 in Ky. Article 4. We believe that the elect were chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world and predestined to be conformed to the image of Christ, who in the fullness of time came into this world and suffered the moral requisition of the law for them; suffered penal suffering on the tree of the cross, and made special atonement for the sins of all his people." And the church at Neinda has the same in substance, if not exactly the same words. So special atonement, eternal election, is the doctrine that divided the Baptists in 1835.

Now if this doctrine was true up till Mr. Fuller's day, is it not yet true? What authority had he to change it? I claim that he had no more authority to change a fundamental doctrine or principle than the Catholics had to change the manner or mode of an ordinance. In fact the former is the most sacred to me; while I do not approve of either. To change a doctrine which reflects on the work of Jesus and fault another for changing the mode of a command is to "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel," Mr. Fuller said he saw the baneful effect of this doctrine, how it paralyzed the efforts of the ministry, and therefore set himself with all his might to refute it. Drs. Judson and Rice did the same; and in my short observation I have heard men try to refute it, but it don't refute. Fullerites have been preaching the death of the Gillites for a number of years, but since such get very good pay for it in this world, they are excusable, so far as I am concerned.

Now I will drop the doctrinal part of the subject, not for the want of matter but the want of time to write, and give the ordinances only a passing notice. It will be remembered that one assertion made to invalidate our baptism was this: "They have not the ordinances." On examining Mr. Webster on the meaning of the word, who says it is rule, law, rite, the latter meaning ceremony; religious usage, I wish to ask one question, what law, rule rite that is commanded us as a church that we reject? The man who will point out the ordinance we have not, or reject, is our best friend. Let us hear Eld. R. C. Burleson of Waco, Texas, on the subject. He is a good witness I guess. It must be remembered that Dr. Burleson is arguing that Hardshell baptism is valid. He says: "My third reason is that our Primitive or Hardshell brethren have never rejected any doctrine or ordinance of the Baptist church as founded by Christ and the holy Apostles 1892 years ago on the banks of the Jordan." Texas Baptist and Herald Vol. 41, No. 29. Now if we have never rejected any ordinance or doctrine for 1892 years, what can be wrong with our baptism now? I have shown we taught and believed the doctrine of special atonement and eternal election in 1689, reaffirmed in 1777, and organized upon by the Bethel Association in 1837, believed and taught by us now. So it is clear to all unprejudiced minds that our baptism should not be denounced as invalid seeing we have not departed from the doctrine or principles. Principles never change. If our baptism was good prior to 1835 (when the division took place) it logically follows it is yet good, seeing we have not departed from the faith, but "continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine," which no man has a right to take from or add to.

(To be Continued.)

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

F. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVI.....No. 5.

WILSON, N. C., JAN. 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE CAUSES OF OUR PRESENT FINANCIAL DISTRESS.

While our physical or material comforts are sub-ordinate to spiritual matters, yet they should claim some of our attention. True eternal interests rise above all that is temporal, still it is proper in its place to observe the laws of God concerning our earthly matters. Indeed the truth of Jesus gives us the life that now is as well as that which is to come. The bible gives directions concerning the management of our secular affairs, such as laboring for our daily needs and paying our debts. If we are led by the right spirit concerning the future world that same spirit will guide us properly in the affairs of this present world. He that is just in much is also just in little. He that acts wisely in the most important matters will also conduct the smaller matters with discretion. In little things, as well as great ones, the prudent man displays his talents.

It is in my mind to write somewhat on the subject of debts. When a lad my father would often caution his sons against contracting debts, and emphasized the importance of the prompt paying of obligations we come under. Then it did not occur to me that the matter was of such great importance as it has since been presented. My experience has not been pleasant in the debt business. It is a much more difficult matter to pay debts than to make them. Credit is a nice thing to have if it is not abused. Debts are obligations wherein the debtor becomes subject to the creditor, because of some favor the creditor has bestowed on him. An inequality exists between them causing thus the debtor to be under service to the creditor. The borrower is subject to the lender. The creditor has a claim on the debtor. In this relationship a duty rests upon each one. The debtor if honest feels that he should pay his debt. The creditor if right at heart does not wish to wrong the debtor. Each is under a temptation unless they are both right minded. It is not wrong in itself to make debts where a proper intention to pay exists. Often it is a matter of convenience all around. One man has property to sell or money to lend. Another needs the property or the money. Each contracts with good intentions: there is nothing wrong in this. It is when the creditor attempts to oppress the debtor, or the debtor designs to defraud the creditor, that the temptation and opportunity to work wrong enter.

The condition of the country at large at this time deserves our serious thought, because there has been an alarming increase of indebtedness, and indebtedness beyond the ability of debtors to pay, and a corresponding aggregation of wealth in the hands of the few, for the debtors are many compared with the creditors. The many are poor and very poor, while the few are rich and very rich. This unequal distribution of property works an injury to each class. Because the very poor that are much in debt, and that cannot pay, lose their manhood and self-respect, become desperate, and are soured against the rich. It is much better for the country, as well as for each individual man, that every man should be possessed of a feeling of good-will toward others, and be free of oppression, and have an interest in the country, desiring to see it prosper, and be blessed with a respect for his obligations and a desire to discharge them and the ability to do so. Feed me with food convenient, or such as is good and wholesome. "Give me neither riches nor poverty." Lest being enslaved in poverty I should steal or rob others; or being rich I should forget my Maker and oppress the poor. For it is a great snare to be rich and fraught with much danger because the rich become haughty and oppressive to the poor, and deny the Lord God. Yet most people would like to be rich. It is such a temptation.

We have shown that it is better for the country, and for everybody, that we should not have either the exceedingly rich or the very poor classes of people. But both are in the United States. What has bro't this about, for there is a cause for it? Fifty years ago there were no men possessing millions, nor the half of it in our land, and there were but few too poor to make a successful living by their efforts.

Then the wealthy gave employment to the poor with a remuneration sufficient for a support. Now there are in the United States some very rich men, and many very poor ones—beggars have increased rapidly—the debtor class is immense—debts are increasing—discontent is growing rapidly—desperation is seizing many—immense labor strikes often occur—the poor are fighting the rich, and the rich disregarding the poor. Why is this state of things?

Laziness, pride and extravagance are some of the factors. God commands men to labor six days. Of course tools, implements to aid a man in labor are needful. But not machinery to relieve man of the duty of laboring. Labor-saving machinery has been rapidly multiplied within fifty years. Take for instance the methods of transportation introduced within that period. Fifty years ago there were no railroads in my native country. People did then but seldom travel far. It was too laborious and consumed too much time. Hence they as a rule remained at home and labored and saved money. Now railroads are common—people can travel great distances in a short time, and much of it is done. Now a man spends ten dollars if he travels a day by railroad. In this one item of traveling a thousand dollars perhaps in the aggregate is spent where one dollar was spent then in traveling. Railroads are a great convenience. I am not condemning them, but attempting to account for our present indebtedness.

Take other kinds of labor-saving machinery—such as cotton or woolen factories—buggy factories—shoe factories—sewing machines, &c. They produce a thousand times as many goods in a day and do not use a thousandth part of men and women. Now this greatly cheapens manufactured products, you say. But it also tempts people to buy more. For the cheaper an article is the more of it people purchase. And as soon as men think they can buy an article cheaper than they can make it they are inclined to cease producing it and buy the same. These goods too are of a poor quality often and therefore still more are purchased. But how will they pay for it? They cannot pay for it because this labor-saving machinery takes away their occupations, and they have nothing to do, or cease to become producers, but they remain consumers, and as great and, often greater consumers, than if they were laboring. For idle men consume more than laboring ones do. It is to the interest of any state or community that all its citizens have some useful occupation. Idle men are worse citizens than laboring ones, not to consider the bad, drunken, gambling habits they resort to, for such become discontented, foment troubles in a country, corrupt others, etc. The law of the Bible is that every man should labor. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work. All the six days are to be employed in labor.

Men become extravagant as they become idle, and this opens the way for indebtedness. They consume more than they produce or earn when they do not labor, and this increases indebtedness. They want to dress fine and live high which increases debts.

This multiplication of machinery opens the road to general commerce or traffic, and men endeavor by trading to make a living. They become exporters and importers of goods and wares. This increases the number of merchantmen or traders in the country, and they study the art of trading, and farmers and mechanics cannot compete with them, and become imitators of the trading classes, and then they suffer loss. Hence debts are contracted. For while a people remain agricultural and produce their supplies at home and buy but little they prosper, or at least are free from debt. A farmer may be too anxious to make money. For instance he may plant too much cotton or tobacco, buying fertilizers freely, at heavy cost, yet selling these products at a price below cost, and having to buy provisions. Whereas a farmer that produces his own supplies at home will in the end save more money, and his land will not be so impoverished. The love of money works evil in many ways. The farmers that tarry at home in every sense, and are not too eager for traffic are the most successful. But as they come into contact with manufacturers, traders and speculators they, not being familiar with their arts of traffic, become the sufferers. As factories multiply the quantity of fabrics is greatly increased and this furnishes opportunities for speculators to make profits out of these products by putting the money in the hands of the manufacturers, all of which militates against the consumer. For the laws of protection to manufactured goods favor speculation and trusts, or combinations of men of capital, by giving them a bonus on their goods at the expense of the consumer, inasmuch as the man who buys and uses the goods pays that tariff or tax. Men wonder why they cannot keep out of debt. The coils of this system have enfolded them, and while the kiss of flattery is sounded in their ears, the hiss of the serpent is sounding in their empty pockets. But does not labor-saving machinery do good? Does it not lighten men's burdens by relieving them of labor? It appears to benefit them in one way, but it increases their distress in another. Suppose that machinery could perform all our labor, and we all had no labor to perform at all, what would be our condition? It would evidently be far worse for us all. To keep men out of mischief they must be kept busy at something needful. God who is good and wise imposes labor on man in mercy, for he knows what is for our good. Idleness and gluttonous living are great curses to man's morals and to his health.

If we had to produce our own meat and bread by our labor that meat and bread would be sweet to our taste, and sweet would be our sleep. But many will not produce these things at home because railroads transport them from distant countries.

The matter of extravagance sweeps through every fissure and crevice of our governmental fabric. The pride of our rulers impels them to appropriate vast sums of money to public enterprises. Immense debts are therefore to be paid out of the people's money. For all this money is raised by taxes out of the people in some form. Likewise our government is very deeply in debt, and is paying that debt out of the revenues and taxes paid by the people. The rich shape the laws, for the love of money which is the root of all evil rules and controls the affairs of state. The laws are enacted and operated in favor of the rich, so that it is almost impossible for a poor man who is much in debt to pay his debts. For what can a poor man do to bring him in much money, or enable him to pay debts? It is as much, if he is out of debt, as he can do to furnish necessaries for his family, educate his children, furnish a few books and a little good reading matter for his family. His strength is so to live as not to buy much.

What a burden is a debt to an honest man? How it weighs on his mind and feeling day and night. A man should be out of debt and free to labor—free in body and mind—not enslaved in his feelings—not oppressed. For it oppresses an honest man to feel that he cannot pay a debt. The best mark of an honest man is that he does not defraud any one, that he pays his debts, that he attempts not to wrong another. The matter of debt, and of living so as to be out of debt, is a momentous question in this country now.

Economy, in public and private men, is indispensable—retrenchment in the government outlays—retrenchment in the individual or private expenditures, more labor, and more wisdom in the manner of labor, patience in enduring troubles, good will toward others, less love of money and more love of right—love to God and man, and obedience to God's laws would, in a few years, relieve the country much.

A few thoughts on financial panics. They are the product of selfishness in man—a disease resulting from feverish speculation. The people get too anxious for money and overtrade. Money becomes plentiful—property is high. Then is the time of danger—the time of overtrading or making too many debts. For a day of settlement must come. At that day money seems to take wings and fly away. Those that have it hoard it. This brings a demand for money above the supply. When I owe one hundred dollars and have only fifty dollars of property or money, that would not pay the debt. I may get along until money becomes scarce, when I owe more than I can pay, if I am not required to pay it.

Suppose the people of a community owe one hundred thousand dollars, but they own fifty thousand dollars, that community will be scarce of money every time it is called on to pay its debts. At such times men that have money hoard it. In proportion as there is more demand for money it is harder to obtain. If corn is scarce it is higher in price and harder to buy, so is money. If money is scarce it takes much property to obtain a small amount of it. Men who have the money during panics use it to make more money. They take advantage of the necessities of others. It is said that money or capital is timid, but it is the owners of it that are timid. They are easily frightened because they love it so, and are afraid of losing it.

When there is a panic men say it is because there is a lack of confidence in each other. But the root of the trouble runs deeper than that. Men never have much confidence in each other. Of course there is less at the times they refuse to pay debts or are unable. While business is brisk and money is made by investing then men lay out money because they think they can get it back with a profit. It is the prospect or hope of gain that puts money to work. While their business is flourishing men put their money to usury, but as soon as they cannot increase it by investing they hoard it.

As soon as money-hunters and money-lovers scent the signs of a panic, namely the inability of men to pay debts, the withdrawal of money from circulation begins, and of course this increases the distress.

Much blame is often attached to the government for panics by those that do not understand the matter. They think the government can manufacture money, or print, or mint it as they please. If a government buys gold or silver bullion they can coin it into money, or they can coin the bullion of others, under proper authority from Congress. They can also issue or print paper or notes and bills of credit, but these are always redeemable. That is the government is bound to pay out good money—gold or silver—to the holders of these upon demand, or these notes would become worthless.

Panics occur every few years. I have seen several of them myself. Their history is strange. So there are many queer things in man whose character is indicated by his conduct in money matters, for that is one of his idols. Panics are like the foxes that Samson turned loose with fire-brands between their tails to scourge the Philistines. They are a punishment on us for violating the laws of God, and acting wickedly. When we become humbled and repent of our sins, and do that which is right as individuals and as a nation we may hope for better times.

P. D. G.

[To be continued.]

I will praise thee, O LORD, with my whole heart; I will shew forth all thy marvelous works.—1 Ps 123: 4

JOHN GADSBY.

This famous Englishman died in October. He was 84 years old, the son of the renowned Elder William Gadsby—a decided particular or Primitive Baptist—editor and founder of the Gospel Standard—the most influential paper of that order in England. He was an author of much merit, a great traveller, a liberal donor, a builder, and a very noted man. A prince in Israel has fallen.

P. D. G.

John had a work to do, and when it it was finished that was the end of his labor. When one's work is finished it is complete. John baptized unto repentance. Those that baptize truly since John's day baptize in the NAME of the Lord Jesus. As the name of Jesus is greater than John's, so the baptism performed truly by those that follow Jesus is above all others, even to John's.

P. D. G.

1894.

WHAT DIFFERENCE?

Brother Wade desires to know the difference, if any, between John's baptism and that of the apostles. John's baptism was complete in its place. None ever found any fault of it then except Pharisees, who rejected it against themselves. There could have been nothing better then, nor at all as good, as John's baptism. God the Father approved it, yea sent John for that purpose. There was a man sent from God whose name was John, the same came baptizing. Jesus approved it. So did the Holy Ghost. These three in heaven approved it. The common or humble people that God is with approved it. Those who were prepared for the Lord were baptized by John. Who ever had higher endorsement? No prophet was as great as John, nor honored as much.

When John's work was done he was taken away, and his work ended for it was finished, and Jesus increases, and of the increase of his government there is no end. So

A new year, as we date events, has been called into existence by the wheels of time. It begins with clanking sound ominous of distress to many. But what the issue is none of us know. It may end well. We cannot foretell. All the experience men can attain to fails to lift the veil of the future so that we may read its undeveloped events. We must await their unfolding.

Is it not better that we should not know? We are naturally inclined to hope for more than we get, if in nature's deceptive realm; but to receive more than we hope for if we are in grace's domain. Because we flatter ourselves if we are looking at ourselves in the glass of nature, and therefore promise ourselves more than we realize. But by grace we are taught our vileness, and cannot see how we can receive anything but evil, except as we have a good hope through grace of favor. Hence Esau was so strong with his archery, and Jacob so weak when trouble appeared.

We may rest assured that however evil may be the times men deserve this, and God is holy. His holy will will be done. Our hope is that we may find mercy of the Lord and be guided in truth. Al ways there is deliverance for hi people. Whether I am one or not is the question with me. My fear is not whether the Lord will do right or not, but am I right.

May we all find grace in the eyes of the Lord and be led forth by the right way that we may go to a city of habitation, and that while we live it may be our delight to serve the Lord.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM J. LADD.

William J. Ladd was born January 6 1849, in Halifax, County Va. moved to Person County, N. C. in 1868, and married Miss R. F. Seat, December 24, 1868. To them were born nine children; his widow and eight children survive him. I know of no family who seem to be more bereaved or distressed. But we who were with him in his sufferings and death, have full assurance that their loss is his eternal gain. For that which it takes to make a christian in every particular was as visible in this brother, as in any, that it has ever been my lot to be with. He was received in the Primitive Baptist church at Shiloh in Person County, in 1888. He was devoted to his church, and brethren, and they to him. Many of them visited him during his sickness, although they had to go eighty miles, through the country, and over a very rough road. His dear pastor brother A. N. Hall went several times, which he appreciated very much. But few have ever suffered more than he did for fifteen months before his death, caused by sucking the fragment of a chicken bone down his wind pipe at the Country Line Association, August 1892. And although it was not larger than a flat grain of corn it produced inflammation of the lungs, and the doctors thought his left lung was entirely destroyed by it. He consulted several eminent physicians, but none of them could give, or promise, any relief. He coughed the bone up about a month before he died. He was confined to his bed several months before his death. I was with him several times during his confinement, and he seemed to be completely weaned from this world. When he was not coughing, he spent nearly all of his times searching the scriptures. And they seemed to be not only his medicine, but meat and drink. He didn't have any hope or desire to get well. And all of his talk was of the glories of the Kingdom of God. He realized in its full sense, that the Kingdom of God was not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. May God grant that those of us who mourn his loss, may take courage, and have grace to follow his foot-steps, as he tried to follow the blessed Saviour. His dear old mother who was at his bedside to soothe, as none but a mother can do, as well as wife and children, have my earnest prayers, that they may be as well prepared as he was when called to the judgment seat of Christ. He died at his residence in Rockingham Co. N. C., Nov. 27th, 1893.

J. M. HARRIS.

C. H. BARKER.

I was requested by the members and pastor of Malmaison Church, at our November meeting 1893, to write a short notice of the life and death of Brother C. H. Barker. He was born August, 1837, died October 1st, 1893. I have known Brother Barker for forty years or more. About the time he grew to manhood the war broke out between the States. He volunteered and entered the army in defense of his country. He was a true and faithful soldier. At the close of the war he returned home without any money. He told me that he hired to one of his neighbors until he became able to commence farming on his own hook. By industry and honest dealing with his fellowman he accumulated a good living for himself and family. He left his wife and eight children with a good home and plenty of everything around them. He was a kind neighbor, highly respected by all who knew him. He was a kind and loving husband and a devoted father. He was as much devoted to his family as any man I ever saw. This is not all we can say of our dear brother. He possessed a hope in Christ many years ago, came before the church at Malmaison and related the dealings of the Lord with him, was received and was baptized with his dear wife and mother-in-law by Elder J. M. Harris, who was, and is yet, pastor at Malmaison. Shortly after Brother Barker joined our church he was chosen clerk, which office he filled with honor to himself and church; also always present at his church meetings

if not providentially prevented, always ready and willing to bear his part of the burdens of the church. In conclusion I would say to the church and his bereaved family that we all would do better to follow the good example our dear brother set. I would say to the church and his family, grieve not for our dear brother, we feel that our loss is his eternal gain; that he is now enjoying the smiles of his dear Saviour in whom he trusted. Written by one who feels to be less than the least of the Father's children, if one at all.

WILSON H. GILES.

MRS. NANCY I. IRELAND.

The subject of this obituary was born on Cedar Island in Carteret County N. C., April 12th, 1839. She was the daughter of Capt. James Simmons and Lucretia his wife. She was married to Capt. John E. Ireland of Portsmouth N. C., on October, 23rd, 1857. The fruits of this marriage were six children, four boys and two girls. All the boys and one daughter were living at the time of her death which occurred on the——of November 1893 at her residence in Beaufort, N. C. Just when she received a hope in the Lord Jesus I do not know but being a frequent visitor at her house I soon found that she loved the Primitive Baptists and several years ago at one of our meetings at North River she offered to the church where she was gladly received and baptized by myself. After a few years she took a letter from that church to the church at Newport where she remained a consistent member until her death. She knew something of afflictions and of the troubles of this life. Her oldest daughter was down sometime with consumption and sister Ireland was a constant watcher by her bedside, often refusing to eat or sleep lest something might not be done that a kind motherly hand could do. Sometime after the death of her daughter her nerves began to fail and cataracts came on her eyes and she became totally blind. With this affliction she suffered very much, and her chief desire was to have her eyesight restored so that she might read. She rejoiced much in hearing the Bible read and in conversation on spiritual things and in prayer. After she got so that she could not attend our meetings I used to have monthly appointments at her house for her special benefit and she seemed to enjoy those meetings very much.

On the 11th of June last her husband Capt. J. E. Ireland left home on board of his vessel with a cargo bound to Philadelphia, but before he reached that or any other port of safety he met a violent storm, and neither he nor any of his crew have been heard from since.

This stroke proved to be too much for our sister in her weak state and she gradually gave way under it until she had a stroke of paralysis and in a short time she died on the above named day.

She leaves behind her a record for kindness and hospitality of which I was a liberal sharer, and bear witness that she led a christian life at home and abroad. Her religion was every day and good at all times, and we live in the full belief that she is now among the glorified saints praising Jesus for her redemption from sin.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport N. C.

IDA MAYO.

In memory of my dear sister Ida Mayo, the second daughter of R. M. and T. W. Mayo, who died at her home near Mildred on the 30th of November 1895.

She was born August 2nd, 1871, her stay on earth was 22 years, 3 months, and 28 days. Dr. L. L. Staton pronounced her illness the Typhoid fever. Her death was caused by an ulcerated blood vessel. She leaves a father, mother, five sisters, one brother and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn her loss. While young she was quite sick with the measles, for which Papa had the Doctor to see her, since then she has never been sick enough as we know of, to have one attend her, until Thursday before she died: her stay on earth was a week later. If she was ever in possession of any thing her sisters or little brother wanted, she would always freely give it up in a loving manner. She made a visit to Bethel, about 5 weeks before she died to help her cousin attend to the sick, who were in so much trouble, after losing her dear brother about 3 weeks before and at that time her dear mother and elder brother were quite sick. My dear sister seemed to do everything in her power to comfort the sick. We all weep for her, and miss her, and when we go in her room we can't hear her sweet voice, but the Lord I hope saw proper to take her, for he will do better by her than we could do for her. She was not a member of any church, but was partial to the Primitive Baptists, as her mother was a consistent member, and her father a believer in them. She always took a delight in the LANDMARK, and all other religious papers, reading to Papa who could not read. She endured her suffering with the greatest patience and was in her right mind to the very last. I believe from this heavenly appearance that Jesus was with her. About a half an hour before she died she was getting blind, and asked mother if she could not do something for her; real often she would say "Lord have mercy upon me;" mo her remarked if he did not no one else could; she said I know they can't. "The Lord giveth and he taketh away," blessed be the name of the Lord.

Sleep peacefully, sleep dear Sister.
On earth we'll meet no more.
I hope we'll meet in Heaven,
On that calm and blissful shore.

I hope to see thy lovely face
Among the ransomed found,
And hear thee sing redeeming grace,
On King Emmanuel's ground

Sweetly sleeping, silent keeping,
In her little flowery bed,
And hearts are full of weeping,
For our loved one only dead.

MATTIE MARY.

LOVEY ROBERSON.

Sister Lovey Roberson was born in Carteret county, May 26th, 1825. She was the daughter of George and Mary Styron. She was married to James Robinson in September 1845. She was the mother of four children. Her husband died several years before the war, leaving her with a house and lot at Port-mouth N. C. otherwise in destitute circumstances. But she kept her children together and raised them all to be grown in good society. The oldest one died soon after she was grown. The other three are married, and two of them are members of the Primitive Baptist church at Cedar Island. Sister Roberson obtained a hope in Christ, and on making it manifest was received into the church at Cedar Island, and was baptized by Elder J. R. Rowe. Sister Roberson was afflicted for years before her death, but always filled her seat in the meeting house when not providentially prevented. After being confined to her bed eight weeks and two days, this dear sister was called home to unit with the Saints in the climes of perfect bliss, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest. Which sad event occurred May 1st 1893. She said she desired to be with the Brethren at Cedar Island, and to commune with them, but she never should. She often said she did not want to get well, as she seemed to want to leave this world of sin and sorrow, and go to meet her Saviour. Sister Robinson was a good nurse, and was kind to the sick and afflicted, always keeping herself unspotted from the world.

The following lines are often remembered by her daughters.

God bless my dear old mother.

What'er my fortune be:

I never shall find another,

Who'll be so true to me.

Oh how my life would falter

If mother were not near:

Oh, how my heart would alter, without her word of cheer.

J. L. GOODWIN.

Roe, N. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

J. M. WYATT.

Hannah's Creek	... Sat. and 1st Sun. in Feb.
Hickory GroveMonday
Reedy ProngTuesday
Seven MileWednesday
Thursday travel to Clinton—thence by train to Wallas where he will be met by brother Cavanaugh.
At Elder Cavanaugh'sFriday
Cypress CreekSat. and 2d Sun.
Maple HillTuesday
Noles RunWednesday
BayThursday
Stump SoundFriday
YopsSat. and 3rd Sunday
Ward's WillMonday
North EastTuesday
South WestWednesday
BethelThursday
Sand HillFriday
Muddy Creek Sat. and 4th Sunday
GoldsboroMonday
ChapelTuesday
Cross RoadsWednesday
Pine LevelThursday
Old UnionFriday
SmithfieldSat and 1st Sun. in March
Little CreekMonday
ClementTuesday
RehobothWednesday
FellowshipThursday
Middle Creek Sat. and 2d Sunday
RaleighSunday night
NeuseMonday
Cedar GroveTuesday
DutchvilleWednesday
Camp CreekThursday
Tar RiverFriday
SurlSaturday

Flat River.....3rd Sunday
 Roxboro.....Sunday night
 Shiloh.....Monday
 Storie's Creek.....Tuesday
 Ebenezer.....Wednesday
 Country Line.....Thursday
 Lick Fork.....Friday
 Dan River.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Good Will.....Monday
 Stoneville.....Monday night
 He will need conveyance. Arranged by
 Elder Isaac Jones.

J. E. ADAMS.

Elder J. E. Adams will accompany Elder
 Wyatt from Hannah's Creek to Stump Sound, thence
 Wilmington.....Sat. and 3rd Sunday in Feb.
 Mill Branch.....Tuesday after.
 Pireway.....Wednesday
 Bethel.....Thursday
 Pleasant Hill.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Pee Dee.....Tuesday
 Conway.....Tuesday night
 Simpson's Creek.....Wednesday
 Soudford.....Wednesday night
 Mt Pleasant.....Sat. and 1st Sunday in March.
 Conveyance needed.

W. W. BARNES.

South West.....Feb. 1
 Maple Hill....." 2
 Cypress Creek....." 3
 New M. H. near H. Fountain's....." 4
 Muddy Creek....." 5
 Sand Hill....." 6
 Beaver Dam....." 7
 Haslin's Chapel....." 8
 Sandy Bottom....." 9
 La Grange....." 10
 Mewborns....." 11
 Nahunta....." 12
 Memorial....." 13
 Aycock's....." 14
 Upper Black Creek....." 15
 Lower Black Creek....." 16
 Wilson....." 17
 White Oak....." 21
 Meadow....." 22
 Antry's Creek....." 23
 Sparta....." 24
 Little Creek....." 25
 Washington....." 25
 He will need conveyance.

W. B. STRICKLAND.

Tarboro.....Sat and 1st Sunday in Feb.
 Sparta.....Monday
 Antry's Creek.....Tuesday
 White Oak.....Wednesday
 Meadow.....Thursday
 Newborns.....Friday
 LaGrange.....Saturday
 Sandy Bottom.....2d Sunday
 Beaver Dam.....Monday
 Sandy Hill.....Tuesday
 Muddy Creek.....Wednesday
 Maple Hill.....Thursday
 South West.....Friday
 Bay.....Saturday and 3d Sunday
 Yopps.....Monday

Ward's Will.....Tuesday
 North East.....Wednesday
 White Oak.....Thursday
 Hzdnots Creek.....Friday
 Newport.....Saturday
 Morehead City.....4th Sunday
 North River.....Monday
 Straits.....Tuesday
 Hunting Quarters.....Wednesday
 Cedar Island.....Thursday
 Goose Creek Island.....Saturday
 Sandy Grove.....1st Sunday in March
 Blount's Creek.....Monday
 Singleton.....Tuesday
 Smithwick's Creek.....Wednesday
 Bear Grass.....Thursday
 Spring Green.....Friday
 Conoho.....Saturday
 He will need conveyance

E. C. SMITH and T. C. HART.

LaGrange.....Sat. and 1st Sunday in Feb.
 Goldsboro.....Monday
 Wilmington.....Monday night
 Whiteville.....Tuesday night
 Mill Branch.....Wednesday
 Pireway.....Friday
 Bethel.....Sat. and 2d Sunday
 Pleasant Hill.....Tuesday
 Pee Dee.....Thursday
 Conway.....Friday
 Simpson's Creek.....Sat. and 3rd Sunday
 Mt. Pleasant.....Wednesday and Thursday
 Columbia.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Mill Creek.....Tuesday and Wednesday
 Cool Spring.....Sat. and 1st Sun. in March.
 Conveyance needed.

RECEIPTS.

ARK.—A. A. Jones 2 25 Elder H. Ellison
 1 25 E. der P. H. James 3.
 GA.—Charles Ivey 1 50 T. E. Sikes 4 75 By
 B. C. Hendrick 3 John Pye 4 50
 D. C.—J. T. Walker 3.
 IND.—W. J. Tyner 3 25.
 KEN.—J. I. Clayton 2 50.
 MISS.—L. F. Brantly 1 50 By Elder R. F.
 Wilkerson 3.
 N. Y.—A. Weld 1 50
 N. C.—Marinda Jenkins 1 By Elder F. L.
 Oakly 1 50 Elder Wm. Woodard 1 J. L. Baily 2
 Elder L. H. Hardy 2 50 Mrs. C. A.
 Cobb 1 50 Mrs. Win. Warren 1 50 Ralph Mayo
 1 50 Susan Edwards 1 50 Mrs. Margaret Cromwell 1 50 W. H. Brady 1 50 James Thigpen 1 50
 J. C. Hill 1 50 Eld. M. Laurence 1 G. W. Johnson
 1 50 J. B. McMillan 2 50 J. Herring 1 50 J. H.
 Combs 2 Sol. Gorton 2 Mrs. E. R. Jones 1 50
 Stephen Hurst 1 50 J. E. Simpson 5 M. B.
 Taylor 1 50 B. Boswell 1 Mrs. M. E. Sutton 2
 J. A. Moore 1 50 E. J. Hines 2 Mrs. E. B.
 Mizelle 7 W. A. Myatt jr. 1 50 Mrs. M. E.
 Vaughn 2 Henry Allsbrook 1 50 J. T. Lewis
 1 50 J. W. Paul 4 R. W. Simpson 3 Mrs. Arretta
 Draughn 1 50 Jno. A. Davis 1 50 S. D. Boykin
 4 50 Jacob Aycock 4 J. F. Terrell 1 50 W. L.
 Perry 1 L. R. Whitley 1 50 C. Battle 4 50 Mrs.
 I. E. Ashcraft 5 W. A. Gidney 1 L. J. H. Mewborn 4 50 T. L. House 4 50 V. L. Stephens 3.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED	No. 31 Daily	No. 35 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 50 N.Y. and Fla. Spec
Jan. 11, 1894.
Lv Weldon	A. M. 11 47	P. M. 9 51		A. M. 12 02
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Tarboro	12 07
Lv Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 55	11 25		4 00
Lv Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville		1 15		4 00
Ar Florence	7 05	3 27		6 15
	No. 47 Daily
Lv Wilson	3 05		A. M. 6 35
Lv Goldsboro	3 00		7 27
Lv Magnolia	4 13		8 29
Ar Wilmington	5 50 P. M.		10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED	No. 38 Daily	No. 34 Daily	No. 40 Daily	No. 50 N.Y. and Fla. Spec
Jan. 11, 1894.
Lv Florence	A. M. 7 30	P. M. 7 05		P. M. 11 50
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 50		3 21
Lv Selma	12 10
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 15		4 30
	No. 47 Daily
Lv Wilmington	A. M. 9 00		P. M. 7 00
Lv Magnolia	10 40		7 32
Lv Goldsboro	12 00		9 45
Ar Wilson	12 45		10 35
	No. 38 Daily	No. 34 Daily
Lv Wilson	P. M. 1 15	P. M. 11 31	P. M. 10 40
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 27	12 05	11 25
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Tarboro	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 47	12 05		6 05
	P. M. A. M.	P. M. A. M.	P. M. A. M.

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 27 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 7 20 a. m., Greenville 8 20 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrives Pamlico 8 40 a. m., Tarboro 9 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Pamlico

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 55 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrives Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m., Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 a. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 27 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 20 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 20 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. N. F. DIVINE.

General Sup't.

J. Q. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.

T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.

Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Microcco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Microcco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent, WILSON, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad grates, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED

At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connerville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connerville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexion, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

It is an agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Fall term begins Monday, Sept. 4, 1893. A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges. Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.
Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No 1				No 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv			7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			10 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv			10 27 a m
3 14 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv			11 45 a m
3 02 p m	Lv.....Clayton.....Lv			1 45 p m
12 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			3 15 p m
12 52 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			3 55 p m
12 06 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			3 45 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. W. Jct. - W. Cove.....Ar			4 20 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. W. Jct. - W. Cove.....Lv			4 33 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv			4 50 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar			6 05 p m
No 3		No 4.
8 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv			6 25 a m
6 47 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv			7 37 a m
6 08 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv			8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv			9 14 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			9 35 a m
No. 14		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
5 35 p m	Ar.....Renoist.....Lv			6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Claxton.....Lv			8 40 a m
3 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			9 25 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily ex.
Sunday		Sunday
2 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar			11 50 a m

Train No 4 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mgrs., Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' BCG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1883. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent by any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.
Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is as recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

FEBRUARY 1, 1894.

NO. 6.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. C. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD.

This is a saying of faith. The natural man does not know or care anything about such a subject. He does not want a shepherd, and does not know the Lord; and yet he may, and often does, make a great show of using this beautiful declaration of the psalmist as his own.

This saying implies a felt need of a shepherd. One who truly says it must have felt helpless and dependant, as a sheep is in the midst of wolves. This helpless condition cannot be learned by studying. Nor can it be taught us by another. It is only known by experience. We cannot know that we are helpless, lost, until we are made to feel that we are sinners justly condemned by the righteous law of God. When that condemnation is fully felt then we know that we can do nothing to clear ourselves from it, any more than a man of murder can do anything to remove that crime, or redeem himself from the condemnation of the law.

To say the 'Lord is my Shepherd' implies that we have experienced a shepherd's care for him. This is the only way a sheep comes to know its shepherd. No one can teach a sheep that a certain man is its shepherd but the shepherd himself. After one has attended to one or more sheep, has had the care of them from the time they were little lambs, has carried them when too weak to walk, and fed and protected them, the sheep will say as plainly as sheep can talk, "that man is my shepherd," whenever he appears. Let a hundred men appear and call them from different directions, they will know that man's voice and follow him. And this is the way the Lord's people know him as their Shepherd, and this is the way they say it, by following him. One may say with the lips the Lord is my Shepherd a thousand times, but if he does not follow him the words are vain; they are not true.

This truth may have been declared by one in the true gospel way, and yet he does not know that it is his right to say that the Lord is his shepherd. His heart has followed the Lord, he loves the sound of his voice, he longs for what is in the heavenly Shepherd's hand, he loves the truth and the order and ordinances of his house; and yet he does not know that he is a christian. Like the blind man whose eyes Jesus had opened, he does not know that what he has experienced is a sure evidence that he knows the Son of God, but when asked, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" answers, Who is he Lord, that I might believe on him? John 9. In his own time and way the dear Saviour will show him what these experiences mean, will say, "Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee;" will show him that only the presence and power of the Son of God can cause any one to even desire to know him.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Looking over my papers I find this little scrap, written sometime within the past year. I think when I wrote it I had you and your readers in my mind, so I will send it to you. At first I thought, "It is unfinished. You must not send it until you have finished it." But how can such a subject ever be finished? There is no end to it, and no beginning, so far as the poor sinner who has been given a precious hope can see. When I was writing this, which I think was last winter in Florida, I had a certain train of thought in my mind, and some feeling sense of the care and love of God in my heart. It would be impossible for me to place myself there again, to bring back that train of thought where it was broken off, and reproduce that feeling. What I would write now must be as I feel now.

Did you ever wish when the Lord had given you liberty in preaching so that the subject was fresh and sweet to your heart, that you could remember what was then offered up to your soul, and carry it along with you to preach just that way in another place? Perhaps not. I think few of the Lord's servants can be so foolish as that; but that has been the case with me, whether I am a servant or not. Yet I have had many occasions to thank the Lord that my memory is too poor for that. I am so glad my memory cannot hold spiritual things. If it could I would have no need that the Spirit should bring to my remembrance whatever is necessary of the dear Saviour's teaching at any time.

Many a time when all that I had ever known seemed to be shut away from me, and my mind a perfect blank, as I stood before the people abased, humbled, the Lord has opened up to my view through my very distress and helplessness, some perfectly new and glorious field of rich gospel truth, which has filled my soul with praise and thankfulness as he thus enabled me to bring out of his treasure house things both new and old for the comfort of his dear people. What a blessing it is that this work of dividing out to his people of his good things is in his hands, not ours.

Enjoy the sunshine and the rain which the heavens of his truth give you this day. But don't try to hoard it up to carry it along. You couldn't use it even if you could carry it into tomorrow. Each day has enough of its own, both of evil and of good. The daily bread must come down each day.

I have been thinking for sometime of writing to you. But I have with one little exception, written only private letters within the past six weeks. About the first of December I sent my wife and children off to Florida, where her health was so much benefited last winter, intending to go myself afterwards. I acknowledge I had to exercise my authority to accomplish this, and it was an authority not very easy for either of us to bow to. Then I took the grippe, which is certainly a very peculiar disease, and is apt to increase very greatly any feeling of loneliness which one may have. I have not been prevented from meeting with the church on Sunday mornings, though hardly able to be up; and have been able to visit the sick a little. I think I feel thankful for the health and strength I feel returning.

There are many sick among us. On New Year's day I attended and spoke briefly at the funeral of Miss Lydia Miles, who was in the 99th year of her age. Her brother, an unmarried man, with whom she has always lived, is in his 94th year.

Sisters Eliza and Mary Miles, whom you know, have been very sick, but are now better. The first is in her 93d year, and her sister Mary is 80. Until very recently they have both been able to be at meeting every Sunday; and they are of that class whom no ordinary difficulty will keep away from the assembly of the saints, while some seem to go fully half way to meet and welcome an excuse to stay at home. That which would form an excuse for them must come every step of the way. And, Brother Gold, you know we have a few more of that kind in this church, as you will find in all the churches of the saints, and what a help and encouragement such dear faithful saints are to the poor, tried and easily discouraged pastor. Good-bye; my love to your dear family. Your affectionate brother,

SILAS H. DURAND.

Southampton, Bucks county, Pa.

IN DEFENSE OF PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

(Continued from last issue.)

I cannot see how honorably informed men can claim superiority for their baptism in the face of these historical facts and confessions of their own most learned people, such as Cook, Benedict, Burleson, etc. But of course the "legs of the lame are not equal," so if our baptism is invalid the Missionaries' is too, unless they obtained said authority and doctrine through Mr. Judson and Rice (who were Pedobaptists), or some other source than the Hardshells. But it is no difference where they got said authority to me, if they will only tell me and the people where they did get it. If one has a thing in his possession, he ought to be able to tell where he got it. Like the red-headed boy born in the black-headed family,

"least said about it the best." The Hardshells baptized Glover, who baptized Cook and Cook Johnson. Who says Glover was not baptized by the Missionaries; and if Glover had the authority to baptize, where did he get it? Was he commissioned like John the Baptist from Heaven? If so, say so. Don't have us in despair over a thing you regard so important—the mode and authority of baptism. I am not informed who ordained Glover, whether Hardshells or Missionaries, or wether he was like the great Spurgeon of London, who was never ordained by a presbytery of any order of people. There is one thing that is certain, and that is if Hardshells had no authority to baptize on account of election, missionism or anything else, Glover was never baptized. If he was not baptized, how about those who have followed all his work? Do you not see that you of yourselves authorize me to say your baptism is not good, to say nothing of Eld. Glover's being an excluded member and therefore lost what authority he might have had? In other words if you denounce our baptism you denounce Eld. Glover's, and authorize me and the public to say that this nor his followers' work in baptismal authority is valid, as we have certainly done, why do you not believe it? "Repent ye, for the kingdom of Heaven is hand." "Seek ye first the kingdom," etc. Seeing you have proven yourselves out of it, dissolve and go back to the Pedobaptists. I see your largest church in the world called a Presbyterian minister to its care, after the great Spurgeon's death. You have lost your authority by denouncing ours, and to dissolve and go to the properly authorized people is the only way out that I can see. True, some would grin at you a few years, but it is better to be right than popular, better obey God than man. Truly the sacrifice would be great, since you've said so many hard things about those Pedoes; but I am sure they will lovingly receive you all and forgive you too. Dr. Burleson says there are scores of you who are only immersed Methodists (Baptist and Herald, Vol. 41, No. 20) any how. So there would be but little sacrifice to them. And if you should happen to strike a Hardshell (in the great effort to be right) just leave him bleating. He will be apt to find us if we don't him. In all candor I say it is better to do right than wrong in everything, let people say what they may. The Campbellites, Free-Wills, Quakers, General Baptists, Hardshells and others might laugh at you, but the joy it it would produce in your own hearts and the hearts of the Pedoes would overbalance all the sorrow in the matter, to say nothing of the great heavenly blessings which always follow righteousness.

I now wish to pay some respects to the evidence I had on that occasion privately, when I asked one what had got the matter with our baptism? "Oh nothing; but they will not take ours." What's that? Isn't that retaliation? Is retaliation the fruit of a Christian spirit? Oh nothing wrong with the baptism, but they will not take ours. Is not that a beautiful excuse? Disobey God by rebaptizing, for we are now here commanded to baptize) in order to retaliate on some other professed Christian order of people. Had I not been familiar with the superabundance of prejudice and hostilities among professed Christian people, I would almost have doubted my ears giving me the right sound. And if I was the only one now familiar with such envy, strife and prejudice, I certainly would not pen the objection "They will not take ours." But I suppose

(there will be as many believe that I heard it as will believe the argument I have set forth on the other evidence; or thank me for saying so. Sometimes we gain enemies for telling the truth; and yet all agree that it only will do to buy, and none can afford to sell it. Paul asks the question. "Have I become your enemy for telling you the truth?" And yet I think I know some who would tell a falsehood on a long credit, when they might get cash justice down for telling the truth.

To develop the absurdity of this last objection to our baptism, you will permit me to state a case. Twenty years ago I married a young lady who had professed a hope in Christ, related the same to a Hardshell church and was baptized, who takes a letter in a few years, which sets forth her good moral character and fidelity to her Lord, etc, and we move to Jones county, Texas, where there is no church of her faith; and for the love she has for the Lord for doing so much for her soul, and to set an example for me and our children, desiring the prosperity of religion, wanting to commemorate the death of her Lord in the sacrament, wash the saints' feet, have good people to watch over her for good, to the glory of God and the good of all concerned, she will offer her letter to some church as a poor hungry soul, weary and heavy laden, with no house or church to dwell in, and said church or some of its members (I don't think a whole church was ever guilty) will say I knew some of them old Hardshells in Mo. and they would not take our baptism and I learn it is a general rule among them to refuse our baptism, therefore we can't accept her unless she will be rebaptized. We will keep this sister from serving God the best she can, in order to spite or retaliate on the order she first ained. If that isn't letting a light shine to the honor and glory of satan, I am a stranger to grace. What is the matter with the bapt^zism? Oh nothing; it is all right, but they won't take ours. Just here I must say I am sorry for and ashamed of any professed Christian who is gulled or governed by such a spirit. If the Hardshells had no better excuse for not receiving the work of other orders than that, I would be dismissed by my own request at the first sitting of conference. Why, retaliation reminds me of warfare—Indian like punish one to spite another. Truly, if any such are born of God, they need teaching whatsoever the Lord has commanded as well as baptizing. Truly, Christianity has more enemies than any one known thing to the earth. Very truly did the Apostle say: "I am crucified unto the world and the world to me," but the great majority do so ignorantly, blind leading the blind, and therefore can consistently be prayed for as Stephen did.

I will now prove that Hardshell baptism is valid, by good living witnesses, and drop the subject for the present, without introducing a single witness of the hardshell order. I will introduce Eld. R. C. Burlison of Waco, Texas, in his reply to Eld. A. P. Collins of Ft. Worth, Texas.

"DEAR BROTHER:—You ask me if I regard baptism administered by Primitive or Hardshell Baptists valid? This is a question of great and growing importance: for years I have given it earnest and prayerful study, weighing carefully everything on both sides; and my deliberate conclusion is that baptism administered by Primitive or Hardshell Baptist preachers in good standing, to a converted believer, is as valid as if administered by John the Baptist, the Apostle Paul, John A. Broadus or James H. Stribbling." Texas Baptist and Herald Vol. 41. No. 29. And I am told that his whole association has decided it is good. Dr. A. H. Johnson says it is good. Old Bro. Barkley says it is valid, said "he never heard the validity of it questioned by any church or order of people before." So every order of people who has received it, has by so doing said it was good. The Presbyterian church at Abilene, not long since, received it as good. And I am told that the Missionary Baptist church at Anson has been guilty, and if so, they also are my good witnesses, since every one who receives it, says by his act that it is good. And if I was to ask all the Primitive or Hardshells if it was good, they could not afford to say no, but probably would cry out like Moses did, "For their rock is not as our rock, even our enemies themselves being judges." Deut. 32. 31.

Hoping some good and no evil may follow, I am yours to serve.

JOHN M. MORROW.

EXPERIENCE.

When I became in trouble I was about eight years old, and saw three large gray horses running in the air above the tops of the trees coming from the east and going to the west. That dream I never could get clear of and it went on so until I was about 20th years old and my troubles grew so heavy that I could see no rest night nor day. What could be the power that showed me that dream? I was plowing along one day and my troubles became so heavy I felt like I could not live any longer. I stopt my plow and went about two hundred yards over the fence in the fork of the branch. I dropt down behind a pine to try to pray to my heavenly Father, and while I was trying my troubles was moved, and I was mad able to praise the name of the Lord in heart for the mercy I found. It seemed to me that I wanted to tell some body about what the Lord had done for me, but it was more than I could do; and then it came on my mind however to be baptized, and I could not get clear of it. In the mean time two of my sisters were received by the Methodists. I was thinking that one church was as good as another. There was appointment for preaching at a school house, and I thought I would join, and went with that intention, thinking that I would do the duty which the Lord had commanded me to do. While they were preaching I had a strange feeling, and it seemed to me that something spoke within me and told me to go to the Log-Chapel and be baptized by them that believe in baptism, and the devil told me that it was no use in going, for they would not receive me; and I became troubled again. I would not think of going to the church. But the church was impressed on my mind so heavy that I would see no rest night nor day. I thought I would get married, and get clear of it and it only made it worse. My wife believed in the Methodists, and I in the Baptists. I felt that there was a cross between me and my wife, she of one belief and I of another. I felt like if I joined the Baptists that there would be no more enjoyment for me to see. I feel like the Lord gave me up into the hands of the devil to buffet me for not doing my duty. For the next fifteen years if a person ever saw trouble I did. I could not go in any company where there was drinking but what I would get drunk, and when I would get over that I would try to beg the Lord. The devil would tell me that there was no use in trying to pray, if I had died before that I might have gone to heaven. I would think that grace, grace was past. One night I was on one bed and my wife was on another. When I awoke my wife was calling me and asked me what was the matter. I told her I could not tell her more than I was at work. I was not made able to see what I was doing, more than sawing, and when I finished my work it was showed to me what I had to do it for. There was a walling run North and South 10 feet high, and 10 feet thick, and through that wall I had to saw a door for my wife to pass, and it was told to me that she had to come in on the east side and see the true and living church. I got up and made up a light thinking I would tell my wife what that division was shown to me for, and tried to do so, but it seemed that my heart would burst: but I told her that I believed she would become to believe in the Baptists, and she took it to laugh at and it went on so until Monday after the third Sunday in April 1870; and when I went to dinner I saw that there was something the matter with her, and asked her to tell me what it was, and all she would tell was she wanted to go to preaching more than she had been going, and that was a great trouble to me to see her cast down so, and would not tell what about: and it went on so until Friday before the third Sunday in May she told me that she wanted to go to Conoho on Saturday to preaching. After dinner I went on to my work, something told me that she was going to offer to the church the next day; but I could not believe it because she had never told me anything about it. The next day she went, and I stayed home, and she came back and told me that she had offered to the church. I told her that I knew it, and she asked me what did I have against it. I told her that she had done the very thing that I wanted her to do, and then she asked me if I would go with her the next morning. I told her I would not. It all seemed right to me; and when she was raised out of the water it seemed to me that she and I were parted. If she had been dead it would not have seemed any more so. I had more love for her than I ever had before. I felt like for the next two weeks if the devil ever did work on a poor man he did me. I had no rest day nor night. He tried to make me destroy myself in every way that he could. I tried to pray both night and day. As I was plowing along one day I made a cry out to the Lord, how such a thing should be! And the word was spoken to me, you never saw enough of your evil ways to have faith, and when that word came to me I felt like the devil left me, and I felt like that was put on me for not doing my duty when I first received a hope. This is my experience from 1833 until 1869, when Saturday before the third Sunday in June I offered to the church at Conoho, and was received and was baptized by William Bell on Sunday. I then thought my trouble was gone, but soon it came back again. In 1887 Saturday before the third Sunday in March the church at Conoho chose me for a deacon and I was ordained the third Sunday in April by elders M. T. Lawrence and G. D. Roberson.

JOHN HARRELL.

Conaho, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER IN THE LORD:—I wish to call your attention to two items in your editorial on page 18 present volume second column, you say "it is not Restoration, according to his view, if I understand him."

If you understood me to say restoration you misunderstood me. I do not believe that, to do that the sinner would have to be placed back in the garden, with the privilege of eating of the fruit of the tree of life; that we know he did not do. The other item is on page 19 same volume you say, "Adam was the creature of God, not his Son." I call your attention to Luke 3rd chapter 38 verse, which says, Which was the Son of Enos, which was the Son of Seth, which was the Son Adam, which was the Son of God. That is why I said Adam was the child of God.

B. C. HEADRICK.

Remarks :

Adam was the creature of God. The reference brother Headrick makes to Luke 3. chapter does not say he was the son of God—any more than that Jesus was the son of Joseph. The italic words are supplied—He was of God as his creature. God made man of the dust of the ground. He was not begotten of God. Jesus is the begotten of the Father full of grace and truth. One to be the son of God must be born of God, not created.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Your letter received only two days before I left Baltimore, was much appreciated, as a thousand other remembrances. Oh! Brother Gold, I feel that I am indebted to my blessed God for my very breathing to day more than I ever did before, for He has been almost present with me during my few months of suffering, which I now feel and hope is for my good. I am indebted to my town and almost country for so much sympathy, so many sweet, kind, and such affectionate remembrances that I do not deserve. I can only say I am melted to tears with gratitude. I know I can never express to you, or any one, how I've been in deep, deep waters, but they never did overflow. It was so plain to me, Thy will be done, not mine; and all the way through I felt and said, "Bless the Lord O my soul." Brother Gold, please excuse me for trying to write to you, for I have so often felt inclined to do so, but never did before. I am happy to say the excruciating pain you have seen me under has ceased, the trouble has been entirely relieved. I am once more well, and I do hope a better woman. I was from home only twenty-five days, left very much against my wish, and feelings; but my cure was, it seems to me as well as to others, almost a miracle. Brother Gold, if you ever prayed for me please continue to do so. Please come to see me when you can, for it seems to me I want to see you more than ever before, and hear you preach Jesus and his goodness.

Yours in love.

M. E. GRIFFIN.

Rocky Mount, N. C.

Remarks:

Our dear sister Griffin has been most painfully suffering for months with an internal cancer. Her pain was exceedingly severe. She has been relieved of this by a very difficult surgical operation performed in the John Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore, Md. She has many friends who rejoice with her. She has herself been noted for years for her kindness to the suffering. Her letter to me expresses such praise to God and gratitude to friends that I hope to be excused for publishing it.

P. D. G.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER.—Dear brethren, if the Lord will direct my mind I will try and write you a few lines. Our Association was the first time I ever met you, and did enjoy the sound of your preaching. How glad I was I went when I heard the first sermon that was preached. Oh how I enjoyed meeting with the dear brethren. I tell you Brother Gold, I was overjoyed. It was a great feast to my soul. As the poet says, How sweet the name of Jesus sounds in a believer's ear. So many faces I met I never saw before. May the dear Lord be with every true minister of the gospel. I reached home and found all well only my father was sick, but as I hope and trust is better. How good it is to be with the dear brethren and hear them talk and preach the gospel. Some times I feel like if I am a Christian I am the least of all. But we know we have to become as this child before we can ever see God's kingdom. I hope I will meet the dear ministers of the gospel again. I can truly say I have been made to feel as a little child, and as helpless as a little infant. May the dear Lord be with you and your dear family. I am as ever your little sister, if one at all,

BETTIE HYMAN.

Omaha, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—In your last issue you had some editorial remarks on the subject of what is some times called "Hard Times." Your remarks are good and sound, and worthy of attention. Since reading them I have felt an inclination to add some reflections of my own. I have been accustomed since my childhood to hear complaints of the times, and mainly from a class of people who always make the times hard by living beyond their means. It does not seem to matter with that class of people what their income or what their resources, they will spend more than they earn, and the times never come good enough for them. I will suggest whether it is not wrong to be grumbling and murmuring against Providence and against our government for what we ourselves are alone responsible. If there is really any cause for complaint of the times through which we are passing, I have been unable to see it. In this section of the country we have had abundant harvests. The earth has bountifully rewarded the husbandman, and his barns and cribs are filled with plenty of all kinds of produce. Fruits and vegetables of all kinds have been abundant, and the markets overflowing. The richest and most luscious of fruits. Peaches, pears grapes etc were never better, and never more abundant. No luxury of this kind but is within the reach of the many poor of our large cities. Breadstuffs lower than any previous time in our history. Coal for fuel and oil for light; both to be had at the lowest figures. What then is the matter with the times? Well, the farmers complain of the price of their wheat. There is an over production. Is that a calamity? The average product in this section is perhaps twenty-five bushels to the acre. A few years ago the same seed and the same labor did not yield more than fifteen. The price then was more per bushel, but per acre it was less. A blessing has been poured out upon the producers of this country that the markets of the world for the time being have not room enough to receive. While provisions or the essentials of life are thus low in price, wages have steadily advanced to double the price of half a century ago. New openings are continually developing giving employment to hundreds and thousands of our people at these advanced wages. The currency of the country is good and sound, and money is abundant. Then instead of indulging in murmurings and repinings, would it not better become us to be humble and grateful, and acknowledge our obligations. No people have ever been more highly favored since man has been upon earth than the people of this country. It would better become us to recount the favors we receive and cultivate sentiments of devout gratitude than to be harboring and encouraging complaints against providence. It is said that just now a number of factories and shops have shut up temporarily. Well, there has been an over-production. The measure of supply must always be regulated by the demands. As soon as surplus production is out of the way business must revive again and be as lively as ever. The most of the people who are employed in factories and shops save nothing but spend all their wages as fast as they get it. Who will save them from seeing hard times? If when they are getting from two to six dollars a day if they would lay up one half of it, no hard times would be likely ever to come to them. But if some people still believe that there is cause for grumbling let them go to a railroad station like Jersey City or Broad street, Phil. and see the crowds and throngs of people that are constantly going to and fro on the trains. Can it be supposed that one half or even one fourth of these people are doing a paying business. The time and the money are gone and there is no return. The Columbian exhibition has been this past year. The published report of receipts were over twenty millions of dollars. The entrance fee of fifty cents, was a trilling pittance as compared with the expenses. Counting R. R. fare, Hotel fare, Hack fare, etc., the admittance fee was not probably any more than one tenth. We have then two hundred millions spent in money, besides, loss of time, wear of clothing, and other incidental expenses. If the times are hard is it any wonder? Why should not hard times follow so much waste of time and money. The time is gone and the money is gone and nothing to show for it. As a nation we are acting the part of a spendthrift who has acquired a vast estate but did not work for it, and does not know its value. There is a ruling in extravagance the end of which cannot be foreseen. I suppose the world will go on in its downward career heeding no warning, but the children of wisdom do well to be admonished. Habits of honesty, industry and economy must win in the end. I don't think there could have been near so much at the command of Satan when he tempted Christ as is now: and he is evidently using all his resources to tempt the children of wisdom to fall down and worship him. When we shall obey the words that wisdom teacheth we shall find continual cause of devout gratitude for the past and hope for the time to come.

Yours in the Gospel.

E. RITTENHOUSE.

State Road, Del.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, - BELOVED BROTHER IN THE LORD:—I feel it my duty to write you a short letter. You have been so good and kind to me in sending me the LANDMARK that I feel I owe you a great debt, one of true appreciation and one of brotherly love. I trust that our heavenly Father will graciously bless you temporally and spiritually for your kindness to me a poor sinner. I have been a constant reader of your paper for about twenty years, and can truthfully say that I have been at times much edified in the editorials and communications published in it. I believe it to be as sound in its teachings as any old Baptist periodical published. I am not able to see how such religious papers as the LANDMARK and Gospel Messenger can ever do any harm to the cause of Christ while managed as they have been in the past.

While to my mind there is a vast difference in preaching the gospel and writing gospel truths, preaching the gospel of the blessed Son of God is a divine call of heaven and is done alone by the Spirit of the living God—The gift is in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of man, while writing religious communications may be classed as a good work, and if written in meekness and love will prove very edifying to the saints, and if done in the right spirit will be honoring to the name of Jesus. I hope you may be richly sustained by the grace of God and that you and your readers may be abundantly blessed this year religiously. You have been so kind to me in the past that I feel it is too taxing on your liberality to send me the paper any longer without some remuneration, and at this time I am not able, but soon I hope to reward you for your kindness to me. Last year was one of great loss to me financially. On the 25th of May we sustained great loss by fire, besides I had other losses that hurt me very much financially, but I feel assured that the Lord gives, and the Lord takes away, and blessed be the Lord.

Brother Gold, please state that my Post Office is now Greenville, Meriwether Co., Ga., instead of Hogsansville. Affectionately your brother.

A. B. WHATLEY.

BROTHER GOLD:—As there is so much preaching among us called religious, it makes me feel sad to see so many heathen among us, yet I know it must be so. I am so glad we don't worship a god who tries to save his people. The God we trust in shall feed his flock like a shepherd; he shall gather the lambs with his arm and carry them in his bosom. He needs no help. All flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof as the flower of the field, "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." I pen those words of our God hoping that I belong to the old-fashioned people, to the little band of God's dear saints. I want to praise the God who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand. He hath given us precious promises, "Fear thou not for I am with thee, be not dismayed for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee, yea I will help thee; yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. He giveth power to the faint, and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint being weary, and the young men shall utterly fall. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary and walk and not faint. For I, the Lord thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee." I know he is the way, the truth and the life. All nations before Him are as nothing, and they are counted to him less than nothing and vanity. It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers. What would vain man say if a grasshopper were to offer to cut down the trees of the forest and prepare the ground to receive seed that we may live in nature, he would walk on him, crush the life out of him, but he is as able to help man as man is to help God. Man has no saving power in him, he is a worm of the dust, and when he is brought to see and know he is helpless, entirely dependant on the Lord, then he can claim these sweet promises, for he said, "When the poor and needy seek water and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them." Is he not a glorious God, declaring the end from the beginning and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, "My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure." I am not uneasy about the plan of salvation, But did he die for me? Sometimes I am afraid I am yet in the gall of bitterness. I have such sinful thoughts, say and do such things as a christian should not, and the thought of foolishness is sin. I cannot control my thoughts, but the God of Israel has said, I will remember my covenant, and the bow shall be in the cloud and I will look upon it.

I have some sweet meditations that are comforting to me. Not long ago I went to preaching on Saturday, there were only eight people present; did that make any difference? No. God has said where there are two or three gathered together in my name I will be one in their midst. I think he was with us. My mind went back to the Ark, there were only a few in it. We had the same number that day. Seven of us had been buried in the liquid grave, the eighth one was a dear little child. That was a happy time with me, my mind dwells often on that day and child. This scripture comes in my mind, The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion, and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. I hope the Lord has lately taught me to forgive and forget. He said, "thy sins and thine iniquities will I remember against thee no more." May he teach all of his children to do likewise. Since I wrote the above my mother died.

DIPPIE LANG.

Farmville, Pitt Co N C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I wish to say through the LANDMARK to the brethren of the White Oak Association, that if they will furnish me with a Minute of each session of said Association from its organization up to the session of 1881 I will furnish a book and all the important parts of said minutes free of charge. We have a record from 1881 to the present.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.
Clerk.

NOTICE.

TO THE BROTHERS AND SISTERS COMPOSING THE BEAR CREEK PRIMITIVE BAPTIST ASSOCIATION GREETING:—At the spring session of our Association of 1893 it was resolved to withdraw the 27th item of the proceedings of the fall session of 1892, but myself or type setter made the 1893 minute say the 4th instead of the 27th. Please take your 1892 minute, turn to the 27th item of the fall proceedings and you will see what it was that was withdrawn. It was an item in the proceedings and not an art, of our faith, that was withdrawn. I take this method of informing you for the benefit of the sister associations with which we correspond.

J. W. JONES,
Clerk.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV(I).....No. 6.

WILSON, N. C., FEB. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE CAUSES OF OUR PRESENT FINANCIAL DISTRESS.

In the preceding issue of the LANDMARK it was shown that immense outlays of money in purchases had been made of recent years—and it was accounted for partly by the increase of labor-saving machinery making articles so much cheaper, and that while the cheapening of prices of commodities appeared to be a benefit, yet that this encourages people to buy beyond their paying capacity, as they say we can buy cheaper than we can produce, hence they cease to be producers, or do not have regular remunerative employment. Whether the increase of labor-saving machinery has anything to do with this increase of indebtedness many may question. But the fact is many more people are out of remunerative employment than were fifty years ago—that while fifty years ago a laborer receiving $100. a year would perhaps save $75 of this amount, now a laborer receiving twice that sum will not save one cent.

Machinery is to help or aid man to perform his labor, but it is not to release him from toil, or to put him in a condition of idleness. In the sweat of his face he is to eat bread. HE IS TO EARN HIS BREAD.

But one will say, is there not much more wealth in the country than when there was but little machinery? Yes. But there is far less ability in purchasers to pay their purchases now than there was fifty years ago. We measure man's actual wealth by his ability to pay for what he needs, or thinks he needs. The late war in the United States caused an immense slaughter of values both of life and property, as well as a fearful debauching of morals. Besides, it entailed an enormous debt upon the nation.

The laws in our country since have tended to cheapen credit, encouraging buying without paying, by exempting homesteads etc. So that it is not much of a shame for a man not to pay a debt. The degradation of silver in our country is a rejection of the Bible doctrine of the equality of silver with gold. They both are equally recognized in the Bible as money of similar value.

In Europe the nations are oppressed with standing armies of non-producers. All these things increase the trouble.

One says, you are opposed to progress. I reply no. I am favorable to Railroads, Telegraphic lines—machinery, Education, etc. But every earthly good apparently has its evils. I am attempting to account for this anomalous condition of financial trouble pervading almost every civilized nation of earth. Sometimes we call certain specious appearances of prosperity progress that really are no progress at all. If one cannot sustain a position he takes that appears to be an advanced one, but must relinquish it, he may lose all that a modest position, such as he could hold, would have secured him. What we need is that healthy condition wherein man finds his labor useful and sufficiently profitable to support him, and that he may be content with its returns, and be afraid to involve himself in debts he cannot pay.

Think now of the vast sums of money paid for medicine, services of physicians, diversions of various sorts, to agents of different kinds? Have you ever thought how much is paid out under the modern religious professions for costly meeting houses they call churches? How many young men must be educated to make preachers—and they must all be supported? Do you ever think how many ways we have of spending money, and how few of making or saving anything?

Do you ever think anything of the corruption of party politics? Instead of praying for rulers and those in authority for the general peace and prosperity of the country, each political party is so opposed to every other party except its own that it has abuse rather than prayers or entreaties for those of another party in power. We should not speak evil of the rulers of the people, but should obey the powers that be. The modern idea of education is to despise ordinary labor. There is too little profit in ordinary labor say they, we are not content to engage in this, but wish to be educated to find a soft, easy place and to make money more rapidly.

Then too our people are not content with small gains—moderate profits. This age of extravagant outlays does not suit small profits and slow gains. Hence often speculators will engage in gambling such as buying cotton or grain—futures.

Have you ever noticed that in town often, and sometimes in the country, one could not determine the financial ability by the dress—that often those deeply in debt are the finest dressed people? This shows that we are living in an age of pride, and extravagance, and disregard of obligations etc. While the world is professing great improvement and much religious progress, where is the proof of it? Where is respect for rulers and law, love of mankind, an honest, sincere desire to pay debts, provide things honest in sight of all men, hatred of gifts, worship towards God, and contentment with our lot, and a true aim to keep God's commandments?

The love of money is the root of all evil, or selfishness has permeated and pierced every root and branch of our once flourishing tree of liberty. It has corrupted the fountains of government. Wealth controls legislation—shapes laws, affects their operations, oppresses the poor, makes the rich richer. This has bred so much discontent that it is arraying the poor against the rich, is hatching vipers to slay mankind. Awful will be the day when this war sets in. May wiser counsel prevail.

We all have sinned in many ways. We have departed from the plain precepts of the Bible, and worshipped mammon or money. We have sinned against God. He has delivered us into the power of these false gods we have served, and the times are evil. Sins rebound on their perpetrators. We have sown to the wind and reaped the whirlwind.

This is written in the desire that we may reflect and repent—endeavor to stand in the old ways, and enquire for the old paths wherein is peace—and walk therein and find rest.

When we appreciate liberty, not only for ourselves but for others, when we feel that truth, honesty and righteous dealing are far above money, when we fear God and have good-will toward man, when we do that which is right between man and man, when we esteem our nation as one brotherhood, and enact laws that operate for the general good, when we seek to protect the innocent and punish the guilty, then may we hope for better times. We cannot lay this blame to any door but our own. God sends fruitful seasons—crops are abundant—the earth yields her increase—the health of our people is good. Instead of murmuring we should bless God. Instead of being arrayed against each other, the rich and poor should dwell together in obedience to God's law and each do his duty.

P. D. G.

DANCING.

To dance in a general sense is to indicate outwardly by various gestures and motions of the body the inward emotions of the soul. These emotions emanate from the impulses of whatever nature has been affected, and are in harmony with that nature, and the motions are designed to indicate truly the character of the affection, and whether designed or not prove conclusively the kind of nature affected.

When the ark of the Lord was brought unto the city of David, it was brought with shouting and with the sound of the trumpet. And David, being full of emotions of thanksgiving and praise unto God, danced before the Lord with all his might. And when his wife, the daughter of Saul, saw him leaping and dancing before the Lord she despised him in her heart. This kind of dancing is unpopular with the world to-day, and those who thus dance—giving God all the praise are equally despised in their hearts. No doubt David's actions clearly indicated the impulses of his better nature, which was so wonderfully incited by an overwhelming sense of the goodness and mercy of God.

When David returned from the slaughter of the Philistines the women of Israel came out to meet King Saul with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of music, singing and dancing. But they ascribed the greater praise to David who is here a type of Christ—and Saul was wroth, and displeased at their saying, "Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands." Again we see one of the peculiar distinguishing features of this kind of dancing.

Among other things the return of the Prodigal Son was celebrated with music and dancing. And when the elder brother heard this merry making he was angry. But the father said: "It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad for this thy brother was dead and is alive again, and was lost and is found." These angry characters would seem to represent the flesh which must be denied and kept in subjection upon occasions of such dancing.

Because the Lord hath redeemed Jacob (the people of God) and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he, therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the goodness of the Lord, for wheat, and for wine and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden: and they shall not sorrow any more at all. Then shall the Virgin (the child of God) rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together: for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow. Jer. 31:11-13. Do people engage in the worldly dance of to day because the Lord has turned their mourning into joy, and is making them thus rejoice from their sorrow? Are their thoughts dwelling upon the Lord and his goodness and mercy? Are their hearts filled with his praise, and the joys of his salvation? Do they think of him at all while engaged in this character of festivity? Surely not, except it be some poor convicted soul who might thus vainly strive to drown his or her sorrow in consequence of a consciousness of an impending banishment from God and his peaceful presence forever.

The Virgin who shall rejoice in the dance is the child of God which has been redeemed from death and ransomed from the grave, and has been brought into the enjoyment of the blessed peace and consolation of a good hope through the rich and reigning grace of God, and is rejoicing with joy unspeakable and full of glory. Moved by such precious impulses let the dear children of God, the Virgin throng of the Lord of hosts, ever thus rejoice in the dance of praise to his name. Thou hast turned for me my mourning into dancing, thou hast put off my sack cloth, and girded me with gladness; to the end that my tongue may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. Ps. ; 30:11-12. This dancing is indicated of divine impulses resulting from a manifestation of the mercy of God. The Lord had given David beauty for ashes, the oil joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. He had been filled with mourning and was bowed down and inactive. Now he is filled with praise and lifted up and is active in an outward manifestation of the inward emotions of the soul. The scriptures undoubtedly sanction the above character of dancing. Therefore to have this divine sanction for our dancing we must be actuated from the same source, by the same power, and with the same design, and to the same end.

David, in the 149th and 150th Ps. says: Let them praise him in the dance, or in the Margin "with pipe" which was a kind of musical instrument used in connection with the harp, organ and cymbal.

There are some other characters of dancing spoken of in the scriptures which I desire to notice together with some of their surroundings which are of like character, and which are materially different from those above instanced.

The dancing of the daughter of Herodias pleased Herod, and brought from him the rash promise the compliance with which, coupled with the previous instructions of a wicked woman, resulted in the execution of John the Baptist, who had righteously rebuked Herod for his evil deed in taking his brother Phillip's wife. The result of this dancing was the wilful murder of a great and good man.

Because Moses tarried long in the mount, the people gathered unto Aaron and said unto him, "Up, make us gods to go before us." And Aaron made a golden calf, and they said, "These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt." And they offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before this calf, and sat down to eat and drink and rose up and played and danced before it. This dance was from the impulses of unbelief and idolatry. They rejoiced in the works of man and sang praise to his handiwork and ascribed their salvation unto it. The worship of thousands to-day, who credit their own good works with their salvation, is of this character of dancing. Whenever our devotional emotions emanate from other than divine nature they are of the flesh and our praise is to the flesh and we are dancing to the flesh to the gratification of our carnal desires, all of which is simply witch-craft and idolatry.

The result of this dancing was the threatened vengeance of him who said, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, nor bow down to it, nor serve it. My glory will I not give to another, nor my praise to graven images." Any worship which is not indited by the Spirit of God is image worship. This worship is not necessarily devoted to something tangible, but may, and does in this day, largely consist in an ideal imagery. All doctrines, theories, opinions, forms and ceremonies not in harmony with the spirit and letter of scripture is imaginary, and the motions descriptive of the emotions produced by such imagery, constitute that kind of dancing which is rendered before, and unto graven images.

While our Lord delays his coming without sin unto salvation, many denominations, like the children of Israel, wot not what is become of him, and in their lack of patience wherein to possess their souls, have gone to work, and through the acuteness of their imaginary powers, emanating from a morbid intellect, have invented many devices to which they attribute very much of the power which brought them up out of the land of Egypt, or sin and death. And these new devices produce much dancing at times.

Job saw these things in his day, and in the 21st chapter and 11th and 12th verses, he says: "They send forth their little ones like a flock, and their children dance. They take the timbrel and harp, and rejoice at the sound of the organ." And thus do they dance. As all manner of religionists, in order to be included in the general term "Christianity," must be somewhat, in some sense, sustained by the scriptures, so it is with those who profess the religion of Jesus Christ and yet want to dance. They want to think it is not wrong to dance, and to sustain this desire they must find dancing spoken of and sustained in the scriptures. But like a great many religionists they do not stop to think as to whether the cause, source, manner and design of their dancing are the same as those attending the dancing authorized by the Scriptures.

The question is not whether this or that, which has been inaugurated to aid in the advancement of the kingdom of Christ, is wrong, but are they right? Do they really advance the real kingdom of Christ? So also is the question of dancing.

The children of God should not ask themselves the question, "Is it wrong to dance," but "is it right for one who has professed the name of Christ to indulge his or her natural passions by joining with the world in their festivities. "Let him that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity." In what sense have we departed from iniquity, when we are found still going hand in hand with the world? Wherein have we repented?

"How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?" Wherein are we dead to sin if we go on without compunction just as we did before we made a profession of having been converted? From what have we been converted, if we still want to dance, and love to dance? In what did our conviction of sin consist if we were not among other things convicted of dancing?

I once loved to dance, and if I was ever convicted I was of dancing.

If the Lord has ever spoken to me at any time, and I believe he has, one of those times was when I was on the dancing floor. No doubt my young comrades thought it strange that I should refuse to join them in the dance, and while they were gathered around me urging me to join them, the Lord spake in my heart, I believe, saying: "My son, when sinners entice thee, consent thou not." I left the room immediately, realizing myself to be a miserable sinner, without God and without hope in the world.

With the kindest feelings toward professors of religion who love to participate in the worldly dance,

I must say, judging from my own experience in the matter, I fear they have not been really converted.

I would not say that one who has been truly converted may not be at times tempted to dance, nor that such have not, through over persuasion, been induced to dance, but I must insist that such as have thus yielded to temptation have also felt the chastening hand of God in the conviction of the fact that they had done that which was not right. Un-easiness of mind, disquietude of soul and an acheing heart have no doubt invariably followed such a course.

We as a body of believers in Jesus do not abstain from dancing and other kindred ways of the world, because we feel to be better than other people, or too good in our carnal natures to indulge in such things, but it is because we feel the workings of sin in our mortal members and feel that we are unprofitable, vile and sinful do the very best we can, and the time past of our lives sufficeth us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles. We mourn often because we cannot cease from sin, and live more to the praise of him who we trust has called us unto glory and virtue. We would live better, but when we would do good we find evil is present.

We have no written rule against dancing, and it is a very rare case when one of our members commits such an offence.

Our members are governed more by what they are taught in their experiences, which constitute their reasons for a hope, than from any other manner of discipline. They do not refrain from this or that because it is contrary to the rules of the church, but because it is contrary to the rule of life in their hearts. They try to live according to living principles in their hearts, and not by dead letter rules of written discipline.

I trust I have said enough on the subject of dancing to answer for that which was designed. May the Lord keep his people in perfect peace.

P. G. L.

Brother W. T. Summers desires to know in what sense can any one know the way of righteousness and is yet not saved. He refers to 2d Peter, 2: 20—21.

I do not understand that one can truly know the way of righteousness and be eternally lost. For Christ is the way, and it is eternal life to know him and the Father which hath sent him: for if we know Jesus we know the Father also.

Peter says it had been better for them (such as turn aside to this, or to wallowing as hogs in the mire, or dogs to their own vomit,) not to have known the way of righteousness, than to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. Well, would it not have been better for Korah and his company never to have left Egypt, than to perish in their gain-saying against Moses in the wilderness? We understand that the knowledge a child of God has of the way of righteousness is not the cause, ground or reason of his salvation, but the fruit or evidence thereof. After one is brought to know the truth if he walks after the flesh and not after the Spirit he is in a worse state than when dead in sins, in the sense that then he was not such a disgrace to the cause of truth. After one espouses, or is married to Jesus, he is under obligations and a trust to serve the Lord that he was a stranger to while in unbelief. One receives according to his deeds here. If a child of God walks in the flesh, or sows to the flesh, he shall of the flesh reap corruption. If one knows what good and evil are, what it is to serve the Lord, or knows his Master's will and does it not, he shall be beaten with many stripes. The man with one talent who hid his Lord's money is cast into outer darkness where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth.

After one has known the way of truth great shame rests on him if he departs therefrom. How much sorer punishment suppose you he shall be thought worthy of who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant wherewith he was sanctified an unholy thing, and hath done despite to the Spirit of grace: Heb. 10: 29. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hand of the living God. It is a great thing to know the Lord and serve him truly. But God is a jealous God, and will not give his glory to graven images.

This matter has no reference to eternal salvation beyond the grave, but relates to the great importance of a christian being holy in all manner of conversation. What manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation? This shows that a man called of God should be faithful to his profession.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—If one as unworthy as I am should address you in such a relationship. I am ashamed to write to you now, after postponing it so long, but the reason I have is that I have been hoping to be able, when I wrote, to send you some money; but the prospect is more gloomy now, if possible, than it has been. I am living here in the mountains of Colorado, in a small valley, where any one that is able to work can raise everything he wishes to perfection, but we have to depend on our mining towns for a market, because we cannot ship anything out, the freights are so high, and in the last nine months nearly all our silver mines have been compelled to shut down, and it leaves us without a market, and besides I am not, nor haven't been able to work to amount to anything for almost thirty years, and have to take medicine all the time, so as to keep up; and what work I do I do it in great pain; but I have always been hoping I would get better so I could make enough to pay up my subscription; for I do love the LANDMARK. From it we get all the preaching we ever get at all that does us any good. But I well know that you can't edit it and send it to me for nothing, and I will just say that you had better stop it for the present, until I can pay up what I am in arrears, though I cannot see how we can do without it, but we had better make the sacrifice than for you to send the LANDMARK to us for nothing.

When it goes well with you remember us as two poor old afflicted

Baptists, that are isolated from all the people that they love and long to be with; and now may God Almighty bless us all, and finally save us, is my prayer.

Yours truly,
R. HUMPHREY.

Remark:

This is published to show the destitute condition of some of the Lord's humble poor. It may be that some brother, sister or friend is willing to help me send the LANDMARK to such people. If any are, and will send the money to me, it shall be applied in that way the best I know.

P. D. G.

WHAT DO WE BELIEVE.

Sister D. L. Altizer, of Va. requests me to set forth in the LANDMARK the doctrine that the Primitive Baptists believe.

This is rather difficult to do, however we should be willing to do this the best we can: but I have never been able to do this, or declare fully the Lord's work. We prophesy or teach in part, yet we are commanded to declare the whole counsel of God.

We believe—that in six days God created the heaven and the earth, and all things therein; and saw that all his work was good; and that he rested the seventh day. —That man transgressed God's law and sinned and by man therefore death came and passed upon all men, for all were made sinners or sinned in the disobedience of Adam; and that mankind are therefore in a state of death in trespasses and sins. That Adam is the figure of him (Jesus) who was then to come, or who is the eternal Son of God; and that the election of grace were all chosen in Christ Jesus before the world began, and grace and truth were given them in him ; so that as by the disobedience of one many, or all that are of Adam, were made sinners, even so by the obedience of Jesus shall many, or all that are in and of him, shall be made righteous. Therefore it behooved Christ to obey the law, suffer and die for his people as their surety ; and all these shall be saved through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus ; for this is the atonement.

Hence Jesus is the prince and Saviour exalted of God, and is the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth, and is the appointed heir of all things, the Lord of lords, and King of kings, having all dominion.

All gifts of prophesy and apostleship, and teaching, and helps, are of Christ in whom are hid all the treasures of God. All our righteousness is of him ; for of his fullness have all we received and grace for grace.

The Holy Ghost, the Comforter, is sent in the name of Jesus to reveal the things of Jesus unto his redeemed people. These are born again, not of corruptible seed, or of the flesh, but born of God ; an understanding or anointing of spiritual things is given them. The gospel is preached in the power of God to them. For the Lord sends his servants to gather in his elect from the four quarters of the earth, and these are brought and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God.

For God's glory and the comfort of his people, or as a witness, a testimony unto them, the gospel is preached to them, for the poor have the gospel preached to them. It is preached in all the world, for God has a people in every nation. It is preached to every creature under heaven so it is a faithful witness. God's people are an afflicted and a poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the Lord. They are taught that they are sinners and trust alone in the Lord God. His ministers preach Jesus and none other name. His people love and fear God and serve him, and keep his commandments which they find contained in the scriptures of truth, and also in substance are written by the Spirit of God in their hearts. The scriptures thoroughly furnish us unto all good works.

While all denominations profess to adhere to and keep the scriptures we desire to know what construction one puts upon the scriptures. How does he understand them ? What does he consider that they teach ? Understandest thou what thou readest ? All the people of God shall be taught of God, and therefore great is their peace or agreement, one Lord, one faith and one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through you all, and in you all, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling.

The door of church fellowship is opened unto one as he comes telling what the Lord has done for him, and has had mercy on him ; and good conduct confirms and bears out or proves his words to be true. Then he is buried by baptism in the likeness of the death and resurrection of Jesus. Those baptized dwell together in love abiding steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine, fellowship, and in breaking bread

(communion of the Lord's supper,) and in prayers. Thus they walk in love, or love one another, and dwell in peace. They have no confidence in the flesh—for all flesh is grass. They have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them by shunning them. They are careful to maintain—or continue in good works, such as the Scriptures set forth, believing and feeling that God's people are a peculiar people, zealous of good works. They know they are sinners, and if saved it is by grace, not for anything they do, yet they are most careful about what they do. For God's people are saved by grace through faith, and that not of themselves. It is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. They are created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God has fore-ordained that they should walk in them. Then they are created in Christ Jesus—a new creation—unto good works. The creation precedes the works. Hence they manifest their spiritual works in the good life they maintain. If we walk after the flesh we die. If we through the Spirit mortify the deeds of the body we shall live. For a child of God to walk in the flesh is as one out of joint—out of his element. We have no right to conclude that one is a child of God that does not walk in good works. God has fore-ordained that his people shall thus walk. God's predestination causes, provides for the salvation of his people, and causes their good works. Whom he did foreknow he did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, and predestinated his people to the adoption of sons, that they should be holy and without blame before him in love. Then the children of God love his fore-ordination, and have their life, motion and being in him. In all the walk of life they desire to be obedient to the faith and heavenly vision, even in all the relations in life, such as the widow that has brought up children well, entertained strangers, washed the saints' feet, and been careful to maintain every good work, or the giving of worldly goods to him that is in need, and ministering of our carnal substance to him that preaches the gospel to us.

When we have respect to all God's commandments then we are not ashamed. We are to do nothing for strife, or by strife, and vain-glory, but to do all for edifying.

We hold that all that hate sin, and truly seek the Lord, shall find him and be saved. We believe that God will bring every thing into judgment, whether it be good or evil.

We believe that there shall be a resurrection both of the just and the unjust, and that the righteous shall go into life eternal, and the wicked into everlasting punishment.

I have briefly tried to set forth the leading things in our faith and practice.

P. D. G.

AFTER THIS.

Because so many subscribers do not understand how their accounts stand with the LANDMARK, hereafter we will send receipts to all subscribers, or agents who send us money, stating the amount received and also the time it pays to. If any one sending us money does not in four weeks after the money is sent receive a receipt therefor, he will please inform us, and look out for the money, and so will we, and see if it can be found. Do not send any money in ordinary letter, but send by express, or money order, postal note, check, or registered letter.

The receipt we send you will inform you the time your paper is paid for. Also the date after your name on LANDMARK will give you the same information.

We will publish no more receipts through the LANDMARK, but save all that space for other matter.

P. D. G.

ELDER J. H. PURIFOY.

A card was recently sent me by Elder Purifoy's wife that he is at home in Selma, Ala., very sick, and without speedy relief he cannot live.

He passed through our state last summer and preached with great acceptance to many of our people. We should feel his death a great loss to many

P. D. G.

Prof. S. E. Warren's school in Wilson for young ladies and girls is standing the hard times. Such a school will be appreciated by lovers of faithful teaching wherever known, for it is well disciplined and the scholarship is accurate.

P. D. G.

SISTER HALL.

The wife of Elder A. N. Hall, a devoted wife, mother, church member, modest, faithful and interesting was a few weeks ago called away from earth.

P. D. G.

ELDER DAVID HOUSE.

This most exemplary brother, very aged and ripe for the harvest, has been favored to depart and be with Christ. The reaper thrust in his sickle and he was gathered home a short time since.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

MRS. NANCY B. BAKER.

Please publish the death of my darling mother. Can I write the obituary of one I love so much? Her death was unexpected to me, I thought she would live to be very old. But God in his wisdom took her at his own appointed time. She was born in Martin Co., N. C. Her name was Nancy Horton, and at twenty was married to my father, John Y. Baker of Pitt Co. He died twenty one years ago last June. They lived together nearly twenty one years. She was with her youngest daughter when she died. She had a chill Monday night, then another Tuesday night. Wednesday they sent for a physician: he went to see her every day, but she grew worse. Thursday morning they sent for me. Oh the anguish of my poor heart when I saw her. After hearing her talk I had no hope of her living. She said she knew she was going to die and that she was not distressed, the Lord had provided for her. She sang some of two hymns and her voice sounded so beautifully sweet and far away. I remained with her til she died which was the next Monday night, Nov. 27th, 1893. She was very weak and helpless yet so strong in the faith, had no confidence in self-works. She talked nearly all the time, said soft doctrine would not do, give her sound, hard truth. She told her children to search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life. I could not talk with her as I wished to, and could not bear it, it seemed that it would break my heart to see her die. It is so lonely without her, everything reminds me of her, she was of such a cheerful disposition and the best mother I ever saw. I miss her more every day than I did at first if possible. She had Typhoid fever. On Sunday they said she was better, I did not think so. She talked all day 'til nearly eleven o'clock at night. She then called her only boy, Johnnie come here and turn me over, and I will go to sleep. She had him to turn her back to us all, she never noticed anything any more but seemed to be sleeping. Just before eleven o'clock the next night her peaceful Spirit took its flight an angel for its guide. Ah, how can I forget that night, the night my mother died. She made a profession of faith in Christ and attached herself to the Primitive Baptist church at Tyson's, Pitt county, about 16 years ago. Her after life showed forth the fruits of her faith. Thus we hope she entered an ocean of Love that no line can fathom, and is bounded by no shore, eternally in the presence of her Lord. "O death where is thy sting, O grave where is thy victory?" Jesus has triumphed over all and paid our debt. Mother was an affectionate wife, kind neighbor, and loving mother to her children, whom we will greatly miss. She leaves one brother, one sister, and four children to mourn, but we hope our loss is her eternal gain.

DIPPIE E. LANG.

APPOINTMENTS.

J. M. WYATT.

Smithfield.....Sat. and 1st Sun. in March
 Little Creek.....Monday
 Clement.....Tuesday
 Rehoboth.....Wednesday
 Fellowship.....Thursday
 Middle Creek.....Sat. and 2d Sunday
 Raleigh.....Sunday night
 Neuse.....Monday
 Cedar Grove.....Tuesday
 Dutchville.....Wednesday
 Camp Creek.....Thursday
 Tar River.....Friday
 Surf.....Saturday
 Flat River.....3d Sunday
 Roxboro.....Sunday night
 Shiloh.....Monday
 Storie's Creek.....Tuesday
 Ebenezer.....Wednesday
 Country Line.....Thursday
 Lick Fork.....Friday
 Dan River.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Good Will.....Monday
 Stoneville.....Monday night
 He will need conveyance. Arranged by
 Elder Isaac Jones

W. W. BARNES.

La Grange.....	Feb. 10
Mewbourn.....	" 11
Nahunta.....	" 12
Memorial.....	" 13
Aycock's.....	" 14
Upper Black Creek.....	" 15
Lower Black Creek.....	" 16
Wilson.....	" 17
White Oak.....	" 21
Meadow.....	" 22
Autry's Creek.....	" 23
Sparta.....	" 24
Little Creek.....	" 25
Washington.....	" 26

He will need conveyance.

W. B. STRICKLAND.

Ward's Will.....Feb. 19 Monday
 North East.....Tuesday
 White Oak.....Thursday

Hudnots Creek.....Friday
 Newport.....Saturday
 Morehead City.....4th Sunday
 North River.....Monday
 Straits.....Tuesday
 Hunting Quarters.....Wednesday
 Cedar Island.....Thursday
 Goose Creek Island.....Saturday
 Sandy Grove.....1st Sunday in March
 Blount's Creek.....Monday
 Singleton.....Tuesday
 Smithwick's Creek.....Wednesday
 Bear Grass.....Thursday
 Spring Green.....Friday
 Conoho.....Saturday
 He will need conveyance

J. E. ADAMS.

Wilmington.....Sat. and 3rd Sunday in Feb.
 Mill Branch.....Tuesday after
 Pireway.....Wednesday
 Bethel.....Thursday
 Pleasant Hill.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Pedee.....Tuesday
 Conway.....Tuesday night
 Simpson's Creek.....Wednesday
 Sandford.....Wednesday night
 Mt Pleasant.....Sat. and 1st Sunday in March.
 Conveyance needed.

I. J. TAYLOR.

Bethel.....3d Sunday in Feb.
 Sandy Grove.....Monday
 Blounts Creek.....Tuesday
 Galloway's.....Wednesday
 Red Banks.....Thursday
 Hancock's.....Friday
 Cross Roads.....Sat. and 4th Sunday.
 He will need conveyance.

JAMES S. DAMERON.

Dutchville.....Thursday before 3d Sun. in Feb.
 Cedar Grove.....Friday
 Neuse.....Sat. and 3d Sunday.
 Salem.....Monday
 Beulah.....Tuesday
 Upper Black Creek.....Wednesday
 Scotts.....Thursday
 Contentnea.....Friday
 Wilson.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 He will need conveyance.

RECEIPTS.

W M Boykin 1 50 Elder W H Atkinson 1 H
 Hatcher 1 50 R D Brooks 2 50 J A Roberson 4
 Elder J A Burch 1 50 Seth Woodall 1 50
 Elder Y I Chandler 4 A Wiggs 9 Elder R C
 Pitt 1 50 L O Hays 1 50.
 S. C.—T A Brown 1.
 TEXAS—E R Abel 2 M S Hughs 1 50.
 VA.—By P G Lester 4 50 Elder J C Hall 4 50
 E E Lunday 5 J C Shelhorse 1 50 Mrs. Jno.
 Cheshire 1 50 Mrs Eliza Trent 2 S L Connor
 5.

W VA.—J Ellison 7

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

M S Hughs 2 A A Curtis 2
 B Weathersbee 1 Mrs Caroline Hall 50c Elder
 A. N. Hall 50c Miss S E Broyles 1

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DAT ^d , ED Jan. 1, 1894.	No. 42 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 40 N.Y. and Fla. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	A. M.
Lv Weldon.....	11 47	9 51	12 02
Ar Rocky Mt.....	12 15	10 45
Ar Tarboro.....	9 25
Lv Tarboro.....	12 07
Lv. Rocky Mt.	12 15	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson.....	1 45	11 45	1 57
Lv Selma.....	8 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 25	1 15	4 00
Ar Florence...	7 05	3 27	6 15
	No. 47 Daily.
Lv. Wilson.....	3 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro...	3 05	6 35
Lv Magnolia...	4 12	7 39
Ar Wilmington	5 52	8 39
	P. M.		10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 43 Daily.		No. 44 Daily.		No. 40 N.Y. and Fla. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence.....	7 30	7 05	P. M.
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 10	11 59
Lv Selma.....	12 10	2 21
Ar Wilson.....	1 05	11 15	4 30
	No. 45 Daily.
Lv Wilmington	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia...	9 00	7 00
Lv Goldsboro...	10 45	8 27
Ar Wilson.....	12 00	9 45
	No. 35 Daily.		No. 34 Daily.
Lv Wilson.....	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.....	1 15	11 25	11 40
Lv Tarboro.....	3 17	12 05	11 35
Ar Tarboro.....	2 35
Lv Tarboro.....	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.....	2 07	12 05
Ar Weldon.....	3 17	12 50	6 04
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
 *These trains carry only first-class passengers
 looking Pullman accommodations.
 Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves
 Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4.20 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4.55 p. m., Greenville 6.47 p. m., Kinston, 7.35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 7.10 a.
 m., Greenville 5.32 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11.00
 a. m., Weldon 11.20 a. m., daily except Sunday.
 Trains on Washington branch leave Washington
 7.00 a. m., Arrives Parmele 8.40 a. m.; Tarboro
 9.50; returning leaves Tarboro 4.40 p. m., Parmele

6.10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7.35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland
 Neck Branch.
 Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle &
 Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5.50 p. m.,
 Sunday 1.00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9.40 p. m., 5.40 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5.30 a. m., Sunday 9.30 a. m., arrives
 Tarboro 12.25 a. m. and 11.45 p. m.
 Train on Midland, C. Branch leaves Goldsboro,
 N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6.05 a. m., arriving
 Smithfield, N. C., 7.30 a. m. Returning, leaves
 Smithfield, N. C., 5.00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N.
 C., 9.30 a. m.
 Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount
 at 4.30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5.05 p. m., Spring
 Hope 5.30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope
 5.50 a. m., Nashville 8.35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9.15 a. m., daily except Sunday.
 Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave
 Latta 6.30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7.45 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6.30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5.00 a.
 m. Daily except Sunday.
 Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4.10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7.30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.
 Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon
 for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and
 Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk &
 Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points
 North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JHO. F. DIVINE.
 General Super.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
 Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
 Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
 Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
 Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
 Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover,
 single copy, by mail, $1.25
 Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
 No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.
 Books sent to any part of the United States or
 Territories, postage prepaid.
 In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.
 Send money in Registered Letter, or Money
 Orders, or by Express. Address
 J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
 Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY, FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th,
 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.
 The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
 Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville
 Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes
 me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
 At this office. Send for samples, &c.

AN EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Claxton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

* I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

By, Bound	MAIN LINE.	S. Bound
	No 1	No. 2
7:55 p.m.	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	7:05 a.m.
4:45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9:10 a.m.
4:30 p.m.	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10:42 a.m.
3:14 p.m.	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11:45 a.m.
1:42 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1:43 a.m.
12:59 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	3:45 p.m.
12:54 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	4:15 p.m.
12:00 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3:45 p.m.
11:47 p.m.	Lv.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Ar	4:30 p.m.
11:35 p.m.	Ar.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Lv	4:33 p.m.
11:50 p.m.	Lv.....Bural Hill.....Lv	5:01 p.m.
9:54 a.m.	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6:26 p.m.
	No 3	No 4
5:00 p.m.	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6:25 a.m.
6:47 p.m.	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	7:37 a.m.
6:05 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8:17 a.m.
5:13 p.m.	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9:14 a.m.
4:50 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9:35 a.m.
No. 15		No. 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
5:35 p.m.	Ar.....Ramusden.....Lv	6:50 a.m.
3:55 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8:40 a.m.
3:00 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9:24 a.m.
No. 15		No. 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily ex
Sunday		Sunday
7:35 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9:40 a.m.
1:05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11:00 a.m.
11:39 p.m.	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11:50 a.m.

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Adams, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mang'r.

W. E. KYLE,

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1855. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is as recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

FEBRUARY 15, 1894.

NO. 7.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."
By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

CHURCH ORDER.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Some reflections are upon my mind with reference to the above named subject, which I would like to present for the readers of the LANDMARK. Much has been said and written by many upon this theme, but it still remains an important one, and we are so constituted that we have need to be continually reminded of these things. Perhaps it would be presumption upon my part to think of saying anything that will be new to the minds of the brethren, yet some things are in my mind that are not often written about, at least so far as my knowledge goes.

The order of the church visible has not been left to the wisdom of members or ministers to establish. The great Head of the church has ordained that all belongs to her outward obedience. He has given commandments concerning all that shall be for our good and for his glory. The order which he has established is not a mere legal form, born of suspicion and nourished by fear of each other. It is possible to adhere with stern strictness to the minutest letter of this form, and yet break the law of Zion in the very act of so doing. Hatred of our brother may cause us to be especially careful to observe every outward form, that we may the more surely destroy him. This is just what other Pharisees before us did.

Forms were much to them, while judgment and mercy were not thought of. The fulfilling of the gospel rule of order in the church is precisely the same thing as the fulfilling of any commandment of God, viz: love. If love be absent, gospel order is already violated, and continues to be violated just as long as the absence of love continues. Referring, for illustration, to the eighteenth chapter of Matthew, which has been called the Baptist book of discipline, I will, by it, illustrate my meaning in what I have said. This chapter contains the law as to how we should deal with personal trespassers. Now it is possible to go exactly according to this rule outwardly, and yet violate the very spirit and meaning of it. We may profess great love and zeal for this rule, and yet smite it to death in its real meaning and spirit. I may go to my brother who has done me wrong, alone, and yet not alone, for the spirit of anger and hate may be with me. I may then take one or two, not to help make peace, but to get witnesses against him, that I may the more surely destroy him. I may then tell it to the church, but my motive is that they may justify me and condemn him and humble him and perhaps exclude him. I may point triumphantly to my course and say I have followed the gospel rule; when He who sees the very intent of the heart knows what perhaps I have not known myself, that all the time I have been breaking the law of love, and am, therefore, equally as great a sinner as is my brother.

I think that when following a certain course has enlarged the trouble, and has added bitterness to strife already begun; when the course already pursued has alienated more brethren than were involved at the first, it is time for us to begin to seriously question whether, after all, our course was not a mistaken one. At least if the form of procedure was right, might not the spirit of love be altogether lacking? It is not right to kill living men by binding them with a dead form. The whole meaning of Matthew eighteenth chapter is to save a brother. To save is the chief thing. But hatred can weave a rope out of what Jesus meant to be the chords of love, to strangle and kill the very brother whom it was meant to save. If we find that our course is killing or wounding rather than healing and saving, is it not time to pause lest we wound or kill still more? It is sure that there is nothing wrong with the rule, but may we not be altogether mistaken or wrong in our understanding of it, or in our application of it? It is sure we are all wrong, if the first commandment of the law be not fulfilled in us, viz: love. To adhere to the letter, when love is wanting, is to kill, not to heal or bind up. Let us then, if the trouble be increasing either by involving others or by those already involved becoming more bitter or more harsh toward each other, pause and ask, are we doing what is right or wise? The question for us to be most concerned about is not whether the other man or party is right but are we right ourselves. Something is wrong, if an adherence to the form of the rule in Matthew 18th and elsewhere does not heal the trouble. The thing wrong is that love has flown out at the door, and her gentle reign is not felt in the heart.

Personally it has been my favored lot not to become involved in troubles of any kind in the church to any extent. I have always been afraid to meddle with trouble, lest my unskillful hands should rend the wound instead of binding it up. I have often felt that I could think of no reason why I should have so mercifully been kept out of such troubles, except that the dear Lord has had compassion upon me, knowing that I should not know what to do in such circumstances. To hear brethren say hard things of each other always stabs me like a knife, and all I know to do at such times is to beseech them to love each other. But while I have been kept from such troubles and strife and alienations, yet as an onlooker, I have known of many among those whom I loved and who should have loved each other. And my observation, as one outside looking on, has, in nearly all cases, been that the separation was needless, and that both sides meant to do right, and both sides had made mistakes, and had no good reason to condemn the other. They had been brethren; they had walked in full fellowship with each other; they had not doubted each other's christianity; they had loved each other, and why should they not continue to do so?

It is one of the exceeding great evils that I have seen that we may love a brother to-day and give him our hand and take sweet counsel together, but to-morrow we are saying: "He is not a child of God; he is not our brother; we have no confidence in his profession." And why? "Oh, just because he does not see some things just as we do or because we think he has not treated us right. Self, our great big selfish self, is in the whole matter. And the proof is that he may wrong some one else more than he has us, and we still call him brother; but now he has come in conflict with ourselves and straightway he has become our enemy, and is no longer our brother. Brethren, we have seen many such cases. Is it not all wrong? If a man is a child of God once and our brother he is still the same. He may be an erring brother, but still he is our own dear brother, and if we don't love him we are the sinners rather than he. If the Lord loves him still, in spite of his departures, what good excuse have we if we do not also love him? If ever I have found my love growing cold toward an erring brother I have at once had to bow my own head in shame before God, and to confess "what is his fault, his sin against God to mine." Oh, if we had love reigning always in our hearts, how easy it would be to unite the severed ties, and how the faults, now so much magnified, would diminish and disappear!

Another thing has come under my observation at different times. When my brother or brethren have been especially engaged in the endeavor to inflict the full measure of what they have been pleased to call church discipline upon others who have offended them, in most cases the end of such ones has been to cut themselves off from the love and fellowship of their brethren. This may not be the result until after some time shall have passed away, but this has generally been the final result. And this result might have been expected, for the spirit to be harsh with, and cut off a brother who has offended, is itself an offence against the very spirit of the gospel, and of the blessed Jesus. And those who are led by such a spirit are already walking another road, instead of the narrow way. And if this spirit still possesses them unrebuked and unrepented of, it will assuredly lead to such departures, as will in the end separate that one from the fellowship of the church.

The spirit which we are of is everything in this matter. One who was once of us, but is not now, said, "The spirit of the act does not concern us; we have only to do what is enjoined upon us." But in spite of this it remains true that the spirit or motive of an act is the chief thing. God looks at the motive. And a good act is not a good act if the motive be wrong. It is better to do wrong by mistake meaning to do right, than to do right meaning wrong by it. I have long ago become convinced that my brethren want to be and do right just as much as I do. I may think them mistaken, but I cannot condemn them for that, because I am often mistaken myself also.

Another thing I have become convinced of, of late years. It is of little use, but generally results in spreading the gangrene abroad, for churches or brethren in trouble and dissension, to send abroad to other churches to help them out of their trouble. If the motive were really to get together and forgive each other, then good might result, but instead, as a rule, each side desires that the council thus met, shall approve itself and condemn the others and so no good can result except to involve brethren from a distance in the trouble, which is evil and not good. If the brethren are full of the spirit of love and forgiveness they need no help to get together. But if they do not love each other, no amount of help will put them together.

If I were then asked in what does church order consist, I should say "love." If I were asked what is the wisest discipline in the church I should reply "love." Greater than all gifts, first of all graces, is love. In heaven and in earth love is the greatest thing. All the law is fulfilled when we love God and our neighbor. I leave these scattered reflections. May God bless them to some one.

I remain your Brother in the precious hope of Christ.

F. A. CHICK.

Reisterstown, Md.

CHARITY.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—To-day is Christmas day and my birth-day, and I am fifty-one. I have been feeling for some little time to have a desire to write something for the LANDMARK, and will do so now, and present this article as a Christmas and birth-day greeting to you, Elder Lester, and your readers.

I feel impressed to write some concerning Charity, which is set forth as the greatest fruit of the Spirit of God in us, being the first mentioned in the catalogue, and being set forth throughout the scriptures as the most important. I trust that I am prompted by it in writing concerning it.

Charity is love; and what can excel love? Time and space would fail me to produce all the scriptures bearing on the subject, and without attempting such a thing, I will present a few thoughts concerning it as they seem to be in my mind, confining myself, however, to the truth as set forth in the Scriptures.

Without charity our service in a religious way amounts to nothing. How important it is for us to have love in our hearts when we preach, pray, sing, exhort, reprove, rebuke, or admonish! Though we might be very eloquent and learned and attractive in our preaching, and receive the praise of men, yet if love is not in it, it is empty and worthless. In our controversies we should not forget that above all things we ought to put on charity which is the bond of perfectness. A spirit of love is a spirit of the gospel. It matters not how smart we may be, and I reckon I might say correct, too, as to the letter, yet, if our writing or preaching is not savored with the spirit of love, it is useless, if not hurtful. How searching is this truth! Alas! how often do we question our motives! Who is sufficient for these things? How often does each of us have to pray with David: "Create with us, oh Lord, a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within us!" Surely this brings us to the point to realize the truthfulness of the words of the Savior when he says, "Without me ye can do nothing;" and the words of Solomon when he says, "The preparation of the heart and the answer of the tongue in man is of the Lord." I know that if I have ever preached one gospel sermon acceptable to God and profitable to God's people, it has been when God by his holy spirit has taken possession of my heart, and raised me above myself and all wordly considerations. If all the writing and preaching that is not seasoned with love or prompted by charity, were dispensed with, how much would be left? I know we are imperfect, and all we do is like ourselves, but it is very important that the desire of our hearts be right before the Lord. God looks upon the heart. And though our service be very humble and weak, if it be prompted by charity it is acceptable and not in vain. It is charity that gives character to the service. The Christian, and he alone, can say:

"Forgive the song that falls so low
Beneath the gratitude I owe;
It means thy praise, however low;
An angel's song can do no more."

The feeble song of praise sung with the spirit by the humble and weak child of God is a sweet odor rising up to the very throne of God, and is as acceptable and well-pleasing to God as the song of an angel in heaven, for the latter cannot be any sweeter. Surely our God is all and in all to us. He is indeed our Alpha and Omega. He begins the work of salvation for us and in us, and carries it on to perfection. God is love. And he that loveth is born of God.

"Love is the golden chain that binds
The happy souls above;
And he's an heir of heaven that finds
His bosom glow with love."

How melting and sweet are the tones of love as they flow from the lips of the humble saint! How effective is reproof when given in love!

Brother Gold, I want to say before I close that the brethren in discussing predestination, feet-washing, and other things on which they differ, should, above all other considerations, put on charity, and not hurt one another. If any fail to do so, they are wrong and very wrong, however correct they may be in the letter. Generally when brethren differ it is on points not fully understood, or on something that is not made as plain in the Scriptures as something else. Our knowledge at best is limited. We know only in part, and that part is what the Lord has revealed to us in his word. What he has not revealed to us we cannot know by searching, nor is it necessary for us to know it in this present state or the Lord would have revealed it. When we are dealing in speculation it matters not which side of the question we espouse we are in the dark. How unwise and hurtful it is for brethren to strive about such things! If we clearly understand a matter, we should in meekness instruct those who oppose themselves. We cannot teach them by striving with them. Satan is pleased when he gets God's people to striving about words to no profit. Who can understand how it is wrong for men to do certain things, and yet for God to have a purpose in those things being done? Christ came into the world to die for his people, and there was no uncertainty about it, and yet it was by wicked hands that he was slain. Such matters are too wonderful for us, and we had better let them rest where God has left them in his word, and as little children leave all such things with our Heavenly Father, to whom they belong. Here is quietness of mind in such matters.

As to feet-washing, I will call attention to one fact, and that is, as a general thing, brethren believe in and wash feet, or they do not, according to the custom where they join the church and live. This fact itself ought to be a plea for forbearance among the brethren in the discussion of the subject. When I was young, as a Baptist, I used to be excited on this subject, and I now believe that, whether I was right in my position or not, my zeal was more the result of tradition than it was of a knowledge of the subject. Brethren who advocate feet-washing in a church capacity generally manifest but little patience or forbearance toward those who differ from them, especially if they live in the same section of the country. Now when we consider that there are just as able, honest and good brethren on one side of the question and practice as there are on the other, it does seem plain that as far as we, as a people, are concerned, there is some doubt on the subject, sufficient at least to give grounds for forbearance on one side for the other, reciprocally. Now it is true that we ought to wash feet or we ought not, in a church capacity; but as a people, one people in faith and love, scattered in the different countries over the whole world, we have not yet come to the unity of the faith on this point. While the blessed Savior washed his disciples' feet, and told them that they ought to wash one another's feet, he did not tell them that they ought to do so in a church capacity; and it is a remarkable fact that in all the New Testament we have no account of the saints washing one another's feet in a church capacity, or when assembled together as a church. There is but one mention of feet-washing in the New Testament besides where an account is given of the Savior's washing his disciples' feet, and then the act is classed with such duties as lodging strangers, relieving the afflicted, etc. Now it seems to me that if it was the custom of the church in the days of the Apostles to wash feet in church capacity, and it was understood as a church practice when collected together as a church, that the widows who were to be received in the number supported by the church, would have engaged in the practice with the church, and it would not have been necessary to have asked whether or not they had washed the saints' feet. This looks like it was an act of hospitality or household serving towards the saints. I drop these thoughts for the consideration, the charitable and honest consideration of my dearly beloved brethren and sisters everywhere, who may read these imperfect lines. My dear brethren, I never expect to be contentious on this subject. If I live, I expect to continue to engage in feet washing with my brethren when present with them at the time they engage in it. If I am right in my views, God will in due time, if it be his will, enable my brethren to see with me. If I am wrong I hope he will enable me to see my error. And if I am wrong in my views herein expressed I feel assured in my heart that I will not strive about the matter, nor cause any confusion on my part. Surely I have as much right to entertain my honest views on the subject, and to express them in a loving manner, when I give good reasons for them, as any one who may differ from me. I do not know that any have any pre-eminence in this particular.

Brother Gold, I have referred to predestination and feet-washing in this article, the principle theme of which is charity, because I have noticed a disposition among some of the brethren to strive about these things, and even to set up their views as a standard of truth, and to declare non-fellowship for all who differ from them. Such a course is not only uncharitable, and consequently unscriptural in the spirit of it, but it is presumptive. It is very unfortunate for any one to be so hampered by reason of prejudice that they cannot discuss a matter calmly and brotherly with brethren, dear and humble brethren, with whom they differ. Such betray a lack of the spirit of Christ, as well as a lack of faith in God. "He that believeth shall not make haste." Excitability, impatience and restlessness betray a fleshly spirit. We are not to lord it over any one's faith. If we succeed in teaching others we get them to see, understand and sentimentally to adopt and receive that which we teach them. We are not to force any one, or in any way intimidate him, in order to get him to go with us. God must give understanding to every man, and sanctify our teaching, for it to be profitable to the hearers or readers. In this way God is glorified in both him that teacheth and him that is taught.

Brother Gold, your writings are specially interesting, comforting, and I hope beneficial to me. Affectionately, your brother in tribulation,
T. J. BAZEMORE.
ChIPLEY, Ga.

CIRCULAR LETTER OF THE NEW RIVER ASSOCIATION
FALL SESSION 1893.

DEAR BRETHREN:—

As it has fallen to my lot to write a Circular letter to be annexed to the Minutes of our Association, I will call your attention to Rom. 10: 1, 2 3. "Brethren my hearts desire and prayer to God for Israel is that they might be saved. For I hear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge." The apostle assigns the reason why this was the case, because they were ignorant of God's righteousness and were going about to establish their own righteousness, and would not submit themselves unto the righteousness of God.

Wherefore, because they sought it not by faith but as it were by the works of the law which was not intended to give life, but is only to govern us while we are under the law. I may differ with some of my good brethren in regard to whom the Apostle had reference when he addressed himself to his brethren in the beginning of the subject under consideration. I think he was speaking of the children of God, though they had not been enlightened to a proper understanding of their duty. It appears that they had a zeal of God, though they were void of understanding, which I think is very frequently the case with good brethren at the present day. How common it is when one becomes concerned about his souls salvation, for him to begin to move, and always in the wrong direction. He will first flee to the law for justification, but he finds nothing there but condemnation. Why? Because the law is holy just and good, but he finds that he is carnal sold under sin. He reads that the law was given by Moses but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ; yet he is void of understanding and is still trusting in his own arm for salvation, and when he is made to see that he is a total failure himself, then he is willing to submit himself to the righteousness of God, and be saved God's way. The man that doeth these things shall live by them, that is the man that keeps the law shall live by the law. But sin is the transgression of the law. When sin is finished it brings forth death. The law knows no mercy, and Mount Sinai cries out against the sinner and is no more his hiding place. Then the Apostle affirms that the commandment which was ordained unto life he found to be unto death, and when the law came, sin revived and he died, which is a manifestation of the penalty of all unrighteousness. The law being spiritual, the Apostle says I am carnal sold under sin. Then he says the carnal mind is enmity against God, not subject to his law, neither indeed can be. And he also says to be carnally minded is death, but to be Spiritually minded is life and peace. Now brethren the Apostle tells us how he was delivered from the law of sin and death. He says that the law of the spirit of life in Christ hath made me free from the law of sin and death. And as God hath commanded the light to shine out of darkness, he also shined in our hearts to give (us) the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the face of Jesus Christ. And this is life eternal that they might know God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent. Then we are no more under the law but under grace, for grace reigns to eternal life through Jesus Christ to every one that believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. Then brethren we are dead unto sin, and alive unto God, for our lives are hid with Christ in God, and when Christ who is our life, shall appear then shall we appear with him in glory. Then dear brethren let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering: for he is faithful that promised. And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is but exhorting one another and so much the more as ye see the day approaching. We are troubled on every side yet not distressed; we are perplexed but not in despair; persecuted but not forsaken; cast down but not destroyed. And at last may we meet around the throne of King Jesus, where we will know as we are known, and in one immortal song, chant forth the high praises of our God.

ISAAC WEBB Mod.

J. C. HALL Clerk.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN,—I have decided in my mind to write you my experience which you can publish if you see cause. I was born June 10th, 1857 in Wilkes Co., N. C. There was a rent in the Roaring River Association about the date 1867, and the rent off party established a demomination calling themselves Union or Primitive Baptists, of which my parents and the greater part of my people were members. At the age of about 12 years, my mother was bad off with nervous chills. I was impressed to leave the house and conceal myself and pray for her recovery. While in the attempt I saw my own lost and ruined condition by reason of sin. Some days after I saw a star over the kitchen door which relieved me in the case of mother, but added to my sorrows and guilt more and more. Four long years were past in this way pleading with the Lord for mercy. I cannot tell all along here, but on Tuesday after the 4th Sunday in August, 1873, while at Roaring River, M. H., it seemed to me that everything under me was giving way, and I was sinking down in torment. The next thing I knew my troubles were gone, I knew not where, and I was on my feet shouting praising God for deliverance. On Saturday afterward I joined that society called Baptists. I was married to J. M. Royal August 26th, 1877. He was a member of the Old School Baptists church at Woodruff, Allighany County, N. C. Some five or six years after I was married I called for a letter, not being fully satisfied in relation to the true church of Christ. I thought that I would stay at home and not bother myself with going to meeting, which I did for eight or nine years. About the expiration of this time I became dissatisfied, believing it to be my duty to identify myself with the church of Christ. I believed he had a people here on earth, and my desire was to live with them. But who they were was the the question with me. Sometimes I thought of joining the Methodists. At other times I would think of returning my letter, and staying where I was. So on the 12th, night of July 1892 I went to bed with this decision on my mind, that I would go back to the Union Baptists. When I went to sleep and dreamed that some one offered me three pieces of money, as I thought the first piece was paper, and when it was offered to me I would not take it: for I saw it was counter-feit. The second shone bright like silver, and I was anxious to get hold of it, and I took it in my hands, and turned it over, and it was a thin cupping shell all cankered inside, and I handed it back and said, this will not do. Then there was another piece handed me. This piece did not shine so bright to me as the other did, but when I examined it found it was pure gold. When I awoke next morning the dream was the first thing in my mind, and the interpretation to me was the first piece of paper was the Methodists, the second piece, which was cupping and cankered, was the Union Baptists, and I called the 3rd. piece the old Primitive Baptists, the people that I had hated the worst of all people on earth, for I had been told they preached a very dangerous doctrine, and it would not do to believe what they preached. I had lived in a mile and a half of brother Wyatt for about four years, and I thought so little of him as a preacher I never had gone to hear him preach, though I liked him as a neighbor. Now he is one of my favorite preachers, and I do not think I would ever have been satisfied if he had not baptized me. Then I was revived to go to the church, and I went out to the creek that morning, and when I saw the water it seemed to me as if some one said, see here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized? I was made to exclaim, hinder me not. So the second Sunday in August, I went to the church at State Road, and was baptized on the 4th Sunday in Sept. by Eld J. M. Wyatt. So I have been enabled to see the church, the Lord's body, the city whose builder and maker is God, and I never have had a doubt in regard to the true church since, though I oftentimes doubt myself whether I could be one of that blessed number or not; though I want to live where they live, and die where they die, and be buried where they are buried, and rise when they rise, and enjoy the blessing of an endless life around the throne of God forever and ever.

Yours in Hope,

MARY JANE ROYAL.

Searing Gap, N. C.

GOSPEL AUTHORITY.

BELOVED BROTHERN:—The brotherhood would do well to seek to correctly understand where and to whom the exalted Head of the Church has committed or given the authority or administrative power of the gospel. Therefore permit me to submit to the scriptural consideration of all your readers some thoughts upon this important practical subject; for it involves correct discipline in the gospel, and the peace and welfare of the churches of the saints.

It is understood by all our people that the authority given in the gospel of Christ is not legislative, but administrative only.

It is likewise conceded by us all, that the church itself is the highest ecclesiastical or gospel authority under Christ on earth. Let me add that there is no other authority; for He gave this authority to the church above. The church, then, is his kingdom militant and administrative, in which he alone is the king and law giver. This will not be denied.

Should it be claimed, however, that the Lord Jesus gave authority to the twelve Apostles, as his princes and judges in his gospel kingdom, which is true, still they are in the kingdom and of the church, and are its servants for his sake. Therefore their judgment and decisions stand approved by the church. See Acts 15.

It is a gospel axiom, then, that there are no masters in spiritual Israel; or none to enact decisions and make decrees for the church, and then bind them upon the churches of the saints; for the Apostles themselves were not masters nor lords, much less may any other men be. "For one is your master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren," said the holy Son of God.

Of God and Christ and the church Paul says, "And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all."—Eph. 1. This establishes the fact that the church is Christ's official body; therefore no other organized body can be; neither can any other body of men scripturally claim or exercise any religious or ecclesiastical authority whatever, nor make any decision which can be binding upon the church. And this statement applies with equal truth to all other religious organizations and assemblies, whether they be associations, conventions or councils, all of which are unofficial, and have no authority or jurisdiction over the official body of Christ, the church: "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," spoke the Son of God. The Church stands alone, as a city set on a hill, and has no rival. No man shall take her crown, nor wrest from her the keys of her Lord's kingdom; she is the bride, the Lamb's wife, and the queen of heaven. God in Christ has given to the church alone this dignity and honor.

Let us see and understand this clearly and fully, dear brethren, because it will make for peace and harmony among us, and thereby honor Zion's King.

Now, then, as to religious associations and councils, or any other religious organization or body; they have no jurisdiction or authority at all over the church, against it, nor the least right to intermeddle in the affairs of the church. But the church herself may invite or request brethren who are in her fellowship to come and sit with her, if in her judgment it seems good to do so, and give her their counsel in any cause; but when this is done, then the church herself must sanction such counsel, in order to make it official, or give it the authority of the gospel. But, if the church should judge that any counsel is not according to the Scriptures and not good, and therefore refuse to give it her official authority as the church of Christ, such counsel has no gospel authority at all; for every gospel act must have the sanction and authority of the church of Christ, because his authority is in the church. For he has never authorized any man or men to sit in judgment over the church, or above it and against it, to over-ride and trample down its authority. No one will presume to say he has, because the Scriptures so fully show that he has given his divine and sacred authority in the gospel to the gospel church, but not to any other body on earth.

Therefore, whoever presumes to over-ride and destroy the authority of the church of Christ, is doing this against him; for he is one with the church. From time immemorial our people have sacredly held this principle as scriptural and divine, and have thus honored Christ in the church.

Now, when a faction arises in a gospel church, and results in a division and exclusion, who shall then judge and decide with which party the church remains?

According to the above sacred principles—that Christ has invested the gospel church with the authority of the gospel—there can be but one answer, and that is, the sister gospel churches, who are near and know the facts, have the gospel authority to decide in this case; but no others have this power or right. For the mind of Christ is with the church, and the right of judgment is with the sound sister churches. Therefore their official judgment has the authority of Christ, and it is entitled to the respect and acceptance of the whole brotherhood. To deny or ignore this would subvert the harmony and peace of the churches, and result in general confusion and widespread division. "God is not the author of confusion but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints," says Paul. The Prince of Peace says, "Blessed are the peace-makers; for they shall be called the children of God." "Let us follow after the things which make for peace." "Let all things be done decently and in order." Shall we thus observe and do, my brethren; or will we refuse and be self-willed? "The fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace."

Wishing grace, mercy and peace to the household of God, I am yours to serve in the bond of love and peace for Jesus' sake,

D. BARTLEY.

Crawfordsville, Ind.,

[Will our Baptist papers please copy, that the brethren may consider these things?]

TESTIMONY TO TESTIMONY.

Testimony to testimony can do no harm if it does not conflict and all be true.

I have thought some of writing on the baptism and work of John Baptist and the baptism and work of those who followed after him. I see your editorial in answer to Mr. Wade and I endorse what you have said but still I wish to say a word on the same subject. John was the forerunner of Christ, therefore all his work was the work of a forerunner. I go in a thick wood to survey land, I send one ahead of me to clear the way, he is my forerunner, he cannot go to the right nor to the left for I have the compass set behind him and by this he is kept straight in line and is governed by it as much as if it were ahead of him. He is going the way I am to go and that I point out to him; he finishes his work and I do mine in the same way that he has gone.

John went before our Lord to prepare the way, his work was not to bring people to the knowledge of salvation but to point them to him who should give salvation and to preach repentance. His preaching should reach the hearts of those whose hearts were prepared to receive it. He was to make ready a people prepared for the Lord. Therefore by preaching repentance he was to prepare a people for the reception of Christ, whom God had prepared for the reception of the doctrine of repentances which he was sent to preach. In this way the rubbish was to be gotten out of the way and the path made straight for the kingdom of heaven was at hand. The transgressions of the children of Israel in following traditions of the fathers instead of the commandments of God had tangled things and virtually there were none following the Lord but every one had turned to his own way. There were some among them who had honest hearts whom the Lord loved and in whose hearts his spirit was doing a perfect work preparing them for that great day of the setting His militant Kingdom on the earth. These were meandering among the traditionist finding no dwelling place. While they were thus famishing for want of water and starving for want of bread, neither of which they could find in the traditions of the Elders, John came pointing to the well-spring of life and to the bread from heaven. They with eager hearts grasp his testimony and there went out to him all Judea and round about Jerusalem and were baptized of him in Jordan. At such times they confessed their sins and brought forth fruits meet for repentance. These were then prerequisite to Baptism otherwise it could not have been called the baptism of repentance. The Pharisees who still cling to their old traditions, where they came to be baptized, were called a generation of vipers. None could be admitted to that way but in the way that John pointed out. Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Jesus was in John and with him and he must go straight forward if he died therefor. There was no varying in that way for it was the way of the Lord. Both the preaching, baptism and all that he did was the work of the Forerunner, he did not mark the line but cut away the rubbish. Thus the hearts of all whom the Lord had prepared were turned or repented from their evil ways and turned to the way of the Lord.

Our Lord was the beginning, he sent John out, he continued until he came up to Christ and baptized Him, he was the end; John's work was finished. His preaching and work was done but it was the same in order of that which should be continued. Prior to this time the name of Jesus was not known in baptism, after this all must be done in His name. He is the Messiah; the other was only pointing to Him a pre-figure of that which should shortly be and should be forever. The first decreases when his work ends, the second increases for His work never ends.

Father, Son and Spirit are all embodied in Him, therefore there is no difference in the "name of Jesus" and, "In the name of the Father Son and Holy Ghost." Though the power of the Spirit is not yet fully manifested to the Apostles yet all they do is done in His name and by His power. On the day of Pentecost He is manifested in the power of His glory to the Disciples and they are made to understand His work. Their work does not change but expands, the field is much larger than they supposed and they go out at His command, not in the name of John, no, he did not go out in his own name neither sent he any one else out, he had not the power, was not thus commissioned, but they went out in the name of Jesus preaching and baptizing in form the same as John, but in the name of Jesus or the Father, Son and Holy, Ghost for it is one God whether he be called Father, Son or Holy Ghost he is all one and not three separate personages as the Catholics falsely teach and as many Protestants (so-called) believe. This work of preaching and baptizing in the name of Jesus will continue as long as there is a little child of the Lord's on the earth. He must increase.

The above thoughts are submitted to you and if published to the readers of the LANDMARK.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

"The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened."

Beloved, I have never before tried to write a piece to go abroad, but trust the Lord will direct my thoughts on this subject. I am impressed to pen a few thoughts as they have been presented to me. I understand the kingdom of heaven as it is revealed to us to be the hope of glory set up in the hearts of men. The woman here set forth seems to represent Jesus, the meek and lowly Savior. The three measures of meal seem to represent the three divisions of our natural lives, infancy, youth or childhood, and manhood. Jesus the blessed Master hides the electing knowledge of God our heavenly father in these three measures of our natural lives, and at God's own appointed time the burning flames of his precious love shine forth in our cold benighted hearts. And bless his holy name, we begin to be warm, and this precious leaven begins to raise us from our dead lethargy, and thus by the power of the fire and love of God, our heavenly Father, we are leavened, not partially but wholly leavened, and made alive in Christ, where as we were spiritually dead to the knowledge of the true leaven, as it is in Jesus our Lord.

Brethren, these views were presented to my mind some six years ago while alone. I had no recollection of having ever read the passage above quoted, but it came on me with such a force I searched till I found it. Surely I felt as I never had before. I felt that my soul had communion with the Lord. The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed which a man took and sowed in his field. Brethren, this seems to typify the direct work of Jesus our great head.

Very much like the seed sower when he goes out to sow seeds, while the ground is yet cold. But he sows here and there, and the goodness of God our Father shines forth upon the ground, and springs forth life. The seed comes out beautifully, and grows prosperously and often brings forth abundant fruit. The same with God's children. After the good seed has been sown the glorious light of the power of God shines upon us, and the good seed which the Master has sown in the field springs forth, and brings forth fruit to the honor and glory of God, from whom all blessings flow. Praise him all creatures here below. I could say more just here, but for fear I may not be led by the right spirit I will leave the subject. I have been impressed to write for your views on this subject for five years. Brother Gold, my name is written on the church book at Simpsons Creek, S. C. I have often felt to enjoy religion there and elsewhere, but for four years I have been very near dead all the while spiritually, have no reason for the cause except the sins I have committed.

J. S. SIMMS.

Higgeston, Ga.

Remarks:

Brother Simms gives what he understands is intended to be taught by the parable of the leaven, but does not give the scripture by which he would sustain his views. I am unable to see in what sense the three measures of meal could represent the infancy, youth and manhood of man.

Our brethren differ as to what is meant by this and other parables, some of whom are evidently wrong, and all might be wrong.

Our knowledge of a certain principle of truth may be in itself correct, but by applying it to a text setting forth some other principle, it becomes erroneous.

Brother Simms, after a thorough investigation of this parable, may be able to see that he is not fully sustained by the scriptures. His thoughts might admit of some other application, and give place for a true understanding of the text.

Elder Gold is absent, but will likely give his views in the future.

P. G. L.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV: I.....No. 7.

WILSON, N. C., FEB. 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

WHERE IS HE.

We are sometimes asked by some of our brethren where D. N. Gore (that was with us in name a few years) is now. Recently I read an obituary he wrote for one of their preachers that was published in the Recorder. Here it is.

"Rev. John W. Gore died at his home in Columbus Co., N. C. on Wednesday morning December 6th, 1893, aged 81 years 8 months and 19 days. He became a member of the Baptist church in the year 1834 was ordained a deacon in Iron Hill Baptist church in the year 1846 and was ordained to the work of the gospel ministry in the year 1866. He was a steadfast Missionary Baptist, a strong lover of the Biblical Recorder, and a bold and zealous defender of the faith once delivered to the saints. He died in peace with God and man, and has gone to reap the reward of his arduous toils."

D. N. GORE.

Some Baptists remember how he talked and preached among us. The proverb, "The dog has returned to his vomit," seems to me to be illustrated in his case. He appeared to be very sick of the mess which he threw up before he came to us, but he seems now to eat it with good relish.

How many lies are told in obituaries. The idea that a man could buy heaven with his odious toils and great meritorious labors on earth.

This is the Arminian notion though. It leaks out continually in their preachings and writings. There is much trash in obituaries and funerals. The imagination of man paints a heaven where friends know each other as they did here, and those that have done the most for the Lord here have the greatest honor there, and occupy the highest seats.

P. D. G.

FRICTION.

The Missionary Baptists and Methodists wish to destroy the State University by influencing the Legislature to make no more appropriations to it for higher education. This is that they may get the control of the education of the young men. We do not want boys educated to be Methodists or Missionary Baptists; but educated in the text books of our literary course. They claim there is friction, They have made all that there is themselves, and they want to so increase it as to clog the wheels of the University so effectually that it cannot turn a wheel. Then there will be no more friction. Watch out for them in the next campaign. They will enter into politics, and memorialize the Legislature, and get entire control of all legislation, if they can.

P. D. G.

WHY IS IT?

Why do so many who have a hope stay out of the church so long, and some never do come? They seem to be interested in the ministration of the word of truth, and to believe the fundamental principles of the doctrine, and claim to have a desire to do their duty, but for some cause they do not do it.

I desire to investigate some of their difficulties in order to ascertain whether they are real or imaginary, removable or permanent, evasable or surmountable. One says, "I am such a sinner." The visible church is made up of sinners. Not because they are sinners, but as Christ came to save his people from their sins, they must have been sinners, and as salvation is from sin, one who is saved must be a sinner saved. And as one who is saved has the knowledge of his salvation he must necessarily have the knowledge of that from which he is saved. "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."—1st Tim. 1: 15. He does not say "I was chief." We were the servants of sin, were lost, but now found; were blind, but now see; were sometime darkness, but now light in the Lord; but we do not read that we were once sinners, whereas now we are not. We were once sinners "dead in trespasses and sins." Now we are sinners "dead to sin" and cannot live any longer therein. Our praise to God for salvation is as much from the knowledge of our being sinners saved as it is that Jesus is our Saviour, or that we are saved.

You believe the doctrine in other particulars, why not believe it in this? You are slow of heart to believe this, and yet you do believe it, but you are not ready to allow the truth of it to apply in your case. You believe the preaching when it represents you to be a sinner, and when it presents your hope to view, but when it further presents your privileges and duties as a sinner hoping in God, you are slow to believe. You readily believe what Jesus has done, and sometimes seem to rejoice in what he has done for you, as you hope in his mercy, but when it comes to doing something yourself, you become slothful and sleepy, and begin to make excuses saying: "There is a lion in the way."—Prov. 26: 13. Paul says, "Be not slothful in business, serving the Lord. Be not slothful, but followers of them who, through faith and patience, inherit the promises."

You talk well, but you do not prove your faith by your works. The kingdom of God is not in word, but in power. Paul would know not the word of any, but the power. There is more proof of an inward work of grace by outward work than by empty profession. The conversation of God's people does not consist in talking, but living—citizenship, manner of life.

"I fear I am not a child of God." Who said you were not a child of God? "Whence these tares?" An enemy hath done this." This persuasion is of the flesh, and cometh not of Him that calleth you. We should give attention to the teachings of the spirit rather than to the flesh, to our evidences of sonship in Christ, rather than to those of that in Adam; to those of our being children of God rather than those of our being children of the flesh. That we have carnal nature about us is evident, and that it is sinful and evil is equally evident, but whether we have divine nature which constitutes our heirship is not so evident, and yet is sufficiently so to establish us in the belief of the truth when we have the reasons of our hope in our mind. These reasons are what we should consider.

"We know we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." Do you love those whom you believe to be and esteem as the brethren—the people of God? "Yes, I love them, but I fear I do not love them right." How do you know you love them? Could you love them and not love them right? Did you ever fear that you did not love them at all? Suppose you did love them right, by what rule would you determine the fact? How do you distinguish between the love you have for them and that which you do not have for them? Why do you think the love you have not and know nothing about, is better than that which you have and feel and know? This fear must be more imaginative than real.

An investigation of the cause of the love you have would, no doubt, throw some light on the subject, as to its kind or manner. You have not always been possessed of this love. You may well remember the time it began to flow forth from your heart unto them. You once felt yourself to be a sinner in the world without God and without hope, and again you were made to hope in the mercy of God and was not ashamed, because the love of God was shed abroad in your heart by the Holy Ghost, which he had given unto you. At that time you felt to love God and those in whom you saw his image in the person of his Son.

Had you ever loved the people of God before this time? Most assuredly not. Very likely you thought you loved everybody, but since then you have found that such was not the case. You doubtless held no ill feeling against any one, but you only loved the brethren.

One of the fruits of the spirit is love. "Love is of God. He that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God, for God is love. He that loveth God loveth him that is begotten of him." "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God."—John. You could not thus call one a son of God unless you have this manner of love in your heart resting upon him. We love the Lord because he first loved us, and we love his people because he loves them.

Having ascertained the cause of this love, we will next examine some of its effects.

"There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment." This fear is of a slavish character, one of torment, punishment—condemnation. Did you ever witness a time when the fear of the devil and future punishment were utterly taken from you, and you felt to be free indeed? Do you fear the devil now? When you feel to know anything of the goodness and mercy of God, do you not feel assured that nothing shall be able to separate you from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus the Lord?

"Charity, or love shall cover the multitude of sins." Do you see multitudes of sin in the brethren? Do you not feel that they are better than you are? Would you not be satisfied if you could be assured that you are as good as they are?

If your love for them is such as to so cover their sins, that you do not see them, and you would gladly be as good as they are, what manner of creatures do you suppose they would appear to you to be if you could just love them with the kind of love you desire?

The brethren do not claim to be better than you are, and will not believe you when you say they are. But when you tell them you are not as good as they are they will believe it. That is they will believe you honestly think so, because they know that feeling to be one of the best evidences that one has passed from death unto life, it being the evidence of that love which is the fulfilling of the law—Rom. 13: 10—wherein those who have it are kindly affectioned one to another, in honour preferring one another:—Rom. 12: 10—and in which one could only be reasonably moved to bear others burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ—Gal. 6: 2—by which all shall know that we are His disciples, if we have it one to another. Jno. 13: 35.

This love moves one to desire the love and fellowship of the brethren, and incites him to such deportment as shall be commended of them."

"I am afraid they do not love me."

That does not enter into the question from your standpoint. Besides they may have no cause nor occasion for loving you. The only way you can reasonably expect to obtain their love and fellowship is by going to them and relating to them your feelings and desires.

"I am afraid I might deceive them."

There is but little danger of your doing so much as that. They are not as easily deceived as you might through your fear, suppose. They will be as careful to reject you should they think you not experienced as they would to receive you should you give them satisfaction. The church would no doubt act with candor and in faithfulness desiring that neither you nor it should be deceived. Would it not be well to submit your case to the church and thus avail yourself of the benefit of its judgment?

"I am afraid I am a hypocrite."

You need have no fear about that. If you are one you know it, therefore why should you fear. A hypocrite is one who pretends to be what he is not, he is insincere, and has not felt what he pretends to have realized. His object is to deceive and gain some end or advantage by it.

"I fear I am not fit to belong to the church."

There is no sort of doubt about that being true. That is in your own estimation, if you are really fit or qualified to enter into the fellowship of the children of God. If you really felt to be worthy of such companionship, and should so declare unto them, they would no doubt regard that of itself sufficient proof of your unfitness and upon it refuse you admission. One is only received really and truly into the church upon the consideration of fellowship, and that does not emanate from the fact of what one thinks of himself, but upon his reason of a hope reflecting therein what Christ is to him, or more properly what He is to the church. While those who apply for membership are in form required to relate what is termed their experience they are really required to relate the experience of the church. Therefore if you have in your experience that of the church as is reflected in the preaching of the gospel by her servants, you have that which would be acceptable to the church and you would be accepted with it. This may seem strange to you, but it is no more strange than true, and yet you may not believe it, and may struggle on a while longer trying to get something the church will accept.

A deep sense of unworthiness often rests heavily upon the children of God and seems much in the way, and is often assigned as a reason for their failure to do what is in their hearts to do. In themselves they have no worthiness as of themselves, but in Christ who is their hope they are worthy of all favorable consideration. Their standing is in Christ and not in themselves. "By the grace of God I am what I am," says Paul. In order to have fellowship with him we must have the same for our righteousness he had for his, which was Christ. With Christ in us the hope of glory, we certainly are worthy of the association of the saints. That is all the worthiness any one can possibly have or could possibly need.

What we need is to be content with such things as we have, rather than seeking after those things which we have not, and which the Lord has not promised to give us.

There is one very important sense in which those of the people of God who do not keep his commandments are unworthy. "He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me," is not worthy of me. Math 10:38.

How could one, for whom the Lord has done such great and wonderful things, claim any worthiness in himself when he has not, and more than that refuses to do the first thing which he is prompted in his heart and commanded in the word of God to do? If one who follows not the Lord, and does not keep his sayings be blessed equally with the one who does, what advantage is there in doing them? Obedience does not bring to us things which we have not, but it affords us the pleasure and comfort there are in doing that which is right. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart: and you shall find rest unto your souls, for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. Mat. 11:29:30. If you feel meek and lowly in heart you are like Jesus. But you are not satisfied to be like him, and have him for your law-giver and King. Like Israel, you want to be like other people and have a king of your own kind. You profess a willingness to obey and hearken, and yet you spare Agag alive, keep the best of the sheep and oxen for a sacrifice, and covef the fat of rams and fatlings. You prefer your own yoke which is hard and your own burden which is heavy to those of Jesus which he says are easy and light. You want rest, but you are not willing to find it as the Master has commanded. You want to eat bread, but not by the sweat of your own face. You want the answer of a good conscience, and yet you are not willing to humble yourself to obtain it.

You believe the Primitive Baptists to be the true church, and at heart you love them, and often desire to be with them, but you are afraid if you should join them you would lose some of your wordly prestige.

If to follow Jesus were something that the world would applaud and brought one into wordly renown the world would no doubt readily attempt to follow him, but as it tends to lowliness of heart and an humble condition generally, even the children of God seem not to follow him as they should.

Your condition is really just as you see it to be but your understanding of it, as to what you should or should not do, is largely imaginary and erroneous. You want to see, and think you must see, that which the Lord has not intended should be seen. "We are saved by hope, but hope that is seen is not hope." You want to see your hope, and think you would be satisfied if you could see it, whereas if you could see it you would not have it. That is it would not be a hope. If you are patiently waiting and expecting that you will have a hope some day, you have the hope you need and all you will ever have in this pilgimage. Rom. 8:24:25.

These seeming obstacles cannot be evaded, because there is a cross in following Jesus, and he who would come to him must come with his cross, and with the cross through faith he surmounts all apparent obstructions and stands perfect in Christ Jesus wanting nothing.

When you contrast yourself with those whom you esteem as being worthy of all confidence you are ready to persuade yourself that they could not have confidence in you. That position is well taken so long as your conversation or citizenship is in manifestation so unlike theirs. They let their light so shine before you, that you see their good works, and in esteeming them you glorify your Father and their Father who is in heaven, but you keep your light under a bushel and do not let it so shine before them and others, that they may on your behalf glorify their Father.

If you would have their confidence you must, by your works, prove to them that your faith like theirs is of God.

Apart from the fact that we have gifts differing yet all of the same Spirit, I can see no reason for any other difference except we are not equally careful to maintain good works.

"A good tree can not bring forth corrupt fruit, neither can an evil tree bring forth good fruit. "By their fruits ye shall know them." The quality of the fruit is here spoken of rather than the quantity. The question therefore is not as to what kind of fruit a good tree brings forth, but does a good tree always produce even good fruit? May not a good tree be barren? For if these things be in you, and abound, they make neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Read first chapter second Peter.

"Consider what I say, and the Lord give thee understanding in all things."

P. G. L.

Elder Tommie Daniel, son of the late Elder John Daniel has been called from his labors to enter, we trust, into everlasting rest. May the Lord remember those bereaved, and reconcile them to his will.

P. G. L.

ELDER DAVID HOUSE.

Among the most correct men I have been blessed to know was brother House. If you consider him as a farmer, or a neighbor—a husband, or a father—a church member, or a preacher, you may find a model worthy of admiration. He attended to his own business and did it well. God Almighty blessed him in many ways.

REQUEST.

Brother John Young, Burlington N. C. desires that the brethren in passing should remember him and other brethren and friends there, and stop and preach for them. Our traveling brethren would do well to note such requests and give more destitute brethren their special attention.

UNION MEETINGS.

The next session of the Eastern Primitive Baptist Union is appointed to be held with the church at Concord, Washington Co. Friday before the fifth Sunday in April.

W. R. BRINN
Clerk.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

Elder A. B. Whatley's P. O. is now Greenville, Meriwether Co., Ga, instead of Hogansville, Ga.,

Brother Dudley G. Johnson's P. O. is Lawrenceburg, Ken.

OBITUARIES.

WM. R. BECK.

Thinking that many of my brethren and friends would mourn with me in the loss of my father, and especially some of the soldiers of the late war, I will write an obituary notice of his death, which occurred the tenth day of October 1893. He was born in Henry County Va., the 19th of June 1820, making his stay on earth seventy three years. He married Matilda E. Jones when he was about thirty two years old, with whom he lived in peace and happiness until it pleased the Lord, for a purpose best known to himself, to separate them by her death which event took place the 20th of Nov. 1885. I cannot pass without telling you something of my dear mother, she was so good and kind, nobody knew her but to love her. She never made a public profession of religion, on account of a feeling of unworthiness, but she was strong in the faith, a lover of the truth, and her orderly walk and godly conversation proved that she was a child of God. She always had a keen desire to go to preaching, and the subject of religion and reading the Bible were the principal parts of her conversation. When her eye-sight became dim she would often call me as I passed by going to and from my work to read a chapter in the bible to her, which was a pleasure to me and a comfort to her. But alas! I had to give up my good mother, and I miss her as much now as I did at first. I often think what is home without a mother. After a long protracted illness she called us, her seven sons and her devoted husband to her bedside and told us farewell, that she was going home to her father above, and I believe while we mope and mourn our sad loss, that she is basking in seas of heavenly rest and singing praises to the God of her salvation, in whom she trusted.

My father was widely known, and was a noted man for his hospitality to strangers, his honesty and integrity as a citizen, and his daring deeds as a soldier in the war, and best of all his kind hearted and devotedness to his family.

It seems that he had a hard time in this world, he suffered many losses and a great deal of sickness in his family but was never known to shrink from his duty nor give up in despair. He was a hard working man all of his life and if he lost anything by misfortune he would never grumble nor complain at it but would say we must work the harder for it was not in our power to control these things, and we should not bother about it, for it was the work of the Lord.

He was always willing, and took an interest in helping those that were in need, and to attend to the sick, he did not merely go see the sick when it was convenient as the fashion is with many now-a-days; but would attend to their needs. He never found any excuse for not waiting on the sick and dying, and was never too busy to help his neighbor do any work he could not do by himself. Right here volumes might be written about this man. Some of the old soldiers of the war will remember some of the daring deeds done by him, (especially with Major Taylor and the wood.) He had always been a stout, healthy man till the year 1887 when he was afflicted with acute rheumatism from which he never recovered. And I have never seen, heard, nor read of but one man that ever bore the afflictions that he did, and that was Job. He was helpless for about four years so that he could neither stand up or lay down, but had to sit on a chair all the time, night and day, and was never without pain. He reminded me of Job, in that, he never murmured nor complained at his lot, and said that it was right and he was willing to bear all the punishment the Lord put upon him, and was always cheerful except in time of greatest suffering, would talk to us, as if he thought he would get well. He was a free talker on any subject and was capable of giving good advice to those who asked him. He was immovable, and steadfast in his convictions both politically and religiously. He never attached himself to any church but believed in salvation by grace, and would contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, and he gave us good evidence that he is now sleeping in the arms of that blessed Jesus whom he so often called on. So then we say sleep on dear Papa, sleep on; take your rest; your sorrow and your trouble is now turned into joy and peace. Now dear brothers remember the counsel of Papa and Mama, we too will soon receive the summons, and let us ask the Lord to prepare us for heaven. Brethren pray for poor me.

J. J. BECK.

ELDER DAVID HOUSE.

The sad duty devolves upon me to chronicle the death of my father-in-law, Elder David House, which occurred at his home near Greenville, Pitt Co., N. C., on the 11th day of January 1894. He was born in Pitt county N. C. on the 14th day of August 1816 and was therefore 77 years, 4 months and 27 days old. He was the son of John and Nicey House, and was united in marriage first to Felicia Flemming by whom he had twelve children, all of which survive him except one a boy who died at the age of twelve years. After the death of his first wife he was united in marriage to Miss Caroline Jones of Edgecombe County who survives him. He grew up a very quiet and moral boy and I have heard him say, suffered much under conviction for sin and was delivered from his burden of sin and condemnation at his plow while at work in the field. His deliverance was very bright, and his faith in his God was strong and of an unflinching nature, all the days of his life afterwards. I have often wished for and desired such a degree of faith as he enjoyed. He was received to baptism in 1847 in the church at Great Swamp and was licensed during the same year to the exercise of his gift, and in November 1853 was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry by a presbytery, consisting of Elders John H. Daniel and Lanier Griffin. He was a zealous and faithful minister of the gospel, and during his life traveled as many miles, and preached as much for the churches in his own country about home as any that can be found, as well as serving his own church in a faithful and acceptable manner. The churches that he served although not blessed with as great ingatherings as some, were blessed with sweet seasons of peace and harmony under his service, no doubt due in a great degree to his sound and able ministry and wise counsel and exhortation which he gave them, coupled with the bright example which he set before them, for he was a living epistle of Christ known and read of all men and even those who did not believe the doctrine he preached were constrained to say he lived out his religion. He was remarkably industrious, and the Lord blessed his labors in a great degree naturally. We wish to say no more of any man dead or living than what is strictly true and we can truly say of him "a great man in Israel is fallen, and one who will be sadly missed by family, neighbors and church, and whose sound and able counsel we will hear no more from his own lips. The world has never known its greatest men. He much deplored and talked of the sad condition of the church and nation and said he looked for no better times politically. He was afflicted with bronchitis, from which he suffered much, and had several attacks: the last one occurring on Saturday morning before his death, and he gradually grew worse until he died. He was conscious all the while and towards the last of his sickness talked almost all the time. Only a small part of what he said could be understood as he was so weak, but those around him could understand enough to know that he was talking of heaven and divine things and as he neared his end and the outer man perished the inner man was renewed and he calmly and peacefully fell asleep in the arms of his Saviour; and after finishing his course and the ministry which he received has gone to receive that crown which is promised to those that are tried and endure, and that love the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ.

While we miss him and our hearts are sad to think we shall see him no more on earth, yet while passing under the rod we can kiss it and believe that our loss is his everlasting gain. May all the children who loved him so fondly and his dear aged companion upon whom the blow falls so heavily have the supporting and strengthening grace of God to bear them up and his blessed spirit to lead them and enable them to finish their course with joy and at last to be gathered together with the church and general assembly of the first-born which is written in heaven. Affectionately yours,

M. T. LAWRENCE.

Hamilton, N. C.

WILLIS THOMAS ROYSER.

This brother was born July 3d, 1825—united with the church at Ebenezer, N. C., Nov. 1889, and killed Jan. 21st 1894 at Roxboro, N. C.

Brother Royster was highly esteemed generally as a man of peace and integrity of character. As a husband he was very kind, as a citizen useful, and orderly as a church member. His companion, sister Royster, has been a Baptist for nearly forty years, and none excel her in kindness and pleasantness of manner.

In their old age they had settled in Roxboro, N. C., and brother Royster was made jailor. As such he was noted for his kindness to the prisoners in his charge. There were two desperate white men in jail at this time. On Sunday morning, he with a little colored boy went to carry their breakfast. They had plotted to escape and chose that morning. Taking advantage of his kindness, they got hold of him and choked the innocent old man to death while he was at his post of duty, and carrying them a nice breakfast on Sunday morning. The lamentations of sister Royster were sad and touching in the extreme. They had many friends that gathered to help in what way they could. On Monday Elder A. N. Hall and myself spoke at the funeral. Such a crowd as gathered there is seldom seen in Roxboro.

Thus quickly he was called away by a violent death. How many great men have been thrust into death by violent hands, such as John the Baptist, Paul, James, and many others? We hope sister Royster will be comforted by the Lord who sustains his people. P. D. GOLD.

MATTHEW G. WARD.

Matthew G. Ward, son of brother Matthew J. and sister Adaline Ward was born in Columbus county, N. C., the 9th day of Oct. 1866, and departed this life Dec. the 8th 1893, making his stay on earth 27 years one month and eleven days. Mr. Gaston, as he was commonly called, never made an open profession of religion but the writer has ofttimes heard him contending for the faith that was once delivered to the saints. He was a dear lover of the Pimitive Baptists. He suffered with typhoid fever for twelve days, when the good Lord saw cause to relieve him from his suffering on earth. Everything was done for him that two doctors could do, together with parents, relatives and friends. In his death Columbus county has lost one of her bright and honored sons and the family a devoted and worthy member. He was somewhat engaged in farming and a mercantile business at Pireway, N. C. He leaves a father and mother, three sisters and five brothers, and many friends to mourn his loss. Oh may the Lord fill the vacancy in their hearts that even in sorrow they may rejoice in the Lord, and be resigned to his will.

B. BENTON.

WILLIAM ENOS GREEN.

This brother was the son of Thomas and Nancy Green, and was not far from 60 years of age when he died Oct. 30th 1893, in Rocky Mount N. C. At the March meeting 1871 he was baptized at the Falls of Tar River. He soon began to manifest activity in the church—was gifted in singing—good in exhortation—and showing such a spirit and gift that he was chosen deacon of said church which he filled with satisfaction to the brethren. He was also liberated to exercise in his gift of exhortation which he frequently did.

While his health was very poor yet he was a man of great energy, and of much force as a manager of business. He also took much interest in the affairs of the church, and greatly enjoyed the company of the brethren. While he lingered in pain for years his final attack which was severe carried him off rapidly. This brother was made willing to die, and rejoiced in praising God on his death-bed, from which he was released in triumph we feel.

His departure leaves a widow, sister Green, with several children to feel his loss. We hope he has gone where the praise of God is sung in perfection forever. P. D. GOLD.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

Elder W. W. Barnes requests us to say that he was confined at Goose Creek Island with LaGrippe for thirteen days, and regrets very much being thus prevented from filling his appointments.

Brethren will notice change in Elder Wyatt's appointments.

J. M. WYATT.

Smithfield	Sat. and 1st Sun. in March
Little Creek	Monday
Clement	Tuesday
Rehoboth	Wednesday
Fellowship	Thursday
Middle Creek	Sat. and 2d Sunday
Raleigh	Sunday night
Neuse	Monday
Cedar Grove	Tuesday
Dutchville	Wednesday
Camp Creek	Thursday
Tar River	Friday
Sari	Saturday
Flat River	3rd Sunday
Roxboro	Sunday night
Shiloh	Monday
Stories' Creek	Tuesday
Ebenezer	Wednesday
Country Line	Thursday

Lick Fork.....Friday
 Dan River.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Pleasantville.....Monday
 Sardis.....Tuesday
 Piney Grove.....Wednesday
 Rock House.....Thursday
 Toms Creek.....Friday
 Brother Parker's near Mt. Airy at night.
 Flower Gap.....Sat. and Sun.
 Some one will meet him at Walnut Grove
 Tuesday evening.

W. B. STRICKLAND.

Ward's Will.....Feb. 19 Monday
 North East.....Tuesday
 White Oak.....Thursday
 Hadnots Creek.....Friday
 Newport.....Saturday
 Morehead City.....4th Sunday
 North River.....Monday
 Straits.....Tuesday
 Hunting Quarters.....Wednesday
 Cedar Island.....Thursday
 Goose Creek Island.....Saturday
 Sandy Grove.....1st Sunday in March
 Blount's Creek.....Monday
 Singleton.....Tuesday
 Smithwick's Creek.....Wednesday
 Bear Grass.....Thursday
 Spring Green.....Friday
 Conoho.....Saturday
 He will need conveyance

J. E. ADAMS.

Wilmington.....Sat. and 3rd Sunday in Feb.
 Mill Branch.....Tuesday after
 Pireway.....Wednesday
 Bethel.....Thursday
 Pleasant Hill.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Peele.....Tuesday
 Conway.....Tuesday night
 Simpson's Creek.....Wednesday
 Sandford.....Wednesday night
 Mt Pleasant.....Sat. and 1st Sunday in March.
 Be hany Anson Co., N. C.....Wednesday
 Tysons School House.....Friday
 Lawyers Springs.....2d Sat. and Sun
 High Bridge.....Monday
 Brethren Appoint for.....Tuesday
 Lebery.....Wednesday
 High Hill.....Thursday
 Watson.....Friday
 Jerusalem.....Sat and 3d Sunday
 Jones Hill.....Monday
 Lebery Hill.....Tuesday
 Meadow Creek.....Wednesday
 Bear Creek.....Thursday
 Freedom.....Friday
 Mountain Creek.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Big Creek.....Monday
 Snug's Creek.....Tuesday
 White Oak Springs.....Wednesday
 Pleasant Hill.....Thursday
 Mt. Tabor.....Friday
 Maple Springs.....Saturday
 Bear Creek.....1st Sun. in April
 Broadway (More Co.).....Wednesday
 Someone please meet him at Jonesboro
 Tuesday.

Niel's Creek.....2d Sat. and Sun.
 Some brother please meet me at Morvin
 Anson Co. on Tuesday after 1st Sunday in March.
 Conveyance needed.

I. J. TAYLOR.

Bethel.....3d Sunday in Feb.
 Sandy Grove.....Monday
 Blounts Creek.....Tuesday
 Galloway's.....Wednesday
 Red Banks.....Thursday
 Hancock's.....Friday
 Cross Roads.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
 He will need conveyance.

A. N. HALL

Wilson Tuesday after 3rd Sunday in March.
 White Oak.....Wednesday
 Meadow.....Sat. and 4th Sun
 Autrys Creek.....Monday
 Old Sparta.....Wednesday
 Tom Creek.....Thursday
 Union.....Saturday
 Mill Branch.....1st Sun in April
 Falls.....Monday
 Tarboro.....Tuesday
 Little Creek.....Wednesday
 Cross Roads.....Sat & 2d Sun
 Lawrence.....Wednesday
 Kehukee.....Friday
 Conoho.....Sat. & 3d Sunday
 Hamilton.....Wednesday
 Spring Green.....Thursday
 Flat Swamp.....Saturday
 Bear Grass.....4th Sunday
 Briery Swamp.....Tuesday
 Thence to Union Meeting at Great Swamp.
 He will need conveyance.

JAMES S. DAMERON.

Dutchville.....Thursday before 3d Sun. in Feb.
 Cedar Grove.....Friday
 Neuse.....Sat. and 3d Sunday.
 Salem.....Monday
 Beulah.....Tuesday
 Upper Black Creek.....Wednesday
 Scotts.....Thursday
 Contentnea.....Friday
 Wilson.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Falls.....Monday
 Tarboro.....Tuesday
 Lawrence.....Wednesday
 Conoho.....Thursday
 Hamilton.....Friday
 Spring Green.....Saturday
 Skewarkey.....1st Sun. in Mar.
 Flat Swamp.....Monday
 Great Swamp.....Tuesday
 Conoeta.....Wednesday
 Sparta.....Thursday
 Meadow.....Friday
 Mewborn's.....Sat. & 2d Sun.
 LaGrange.....Monday
 Nahunta.....Tuesday
 Friendship.....Wednesday
 He will need conveyance.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATE	No. 25 Daily		No. 35 Daily		No. 45 Daily	No. 500 N. Y. and P. M. Spec
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Jan. 1, 1894
Lv Weldon	11 47	9 51
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 07
Lv Rocky Mt.	12 45	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 45	11 45
Lv Selma	4 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 45
Ar Florence	7 05	3 47
	No. 47 Daily
Lv Wilson	3 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 06	6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 13	7 20
Ar Wilmington	5 05	8 20
	No. 51 Daily
Lv Wilson	5 05	10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED	No. 26 Daily		No. 36 Daily		No. 46 Daily	No. 500 N. Y. and P. M. Spec
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Jan. 1, 1894
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 20
Lv Selma	12 10
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 15
	No. 48 Daily
Lv Wilmington	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	9 00	7 00
Lv Goldsboro	10 40	8 20
Ar Wilson	12 45	9 45
	No. 38 Daily
Lv Wilson	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 15	11 25	10 40
	No. 34 Daily
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Tarboro	12 58
	No. 36 Daily
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 37	12 00	6 01

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 5 17 p. m., Kinston, 7 25 p. m., returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 30 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrive Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m., returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 9 20 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 45 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m., returning leaves Smithfield, N. C., 3 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m., returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 25 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 p. m., arrive Dunbar 7 45 p. m., returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 00 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m., returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m., Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.
General Supt.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.

Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Marocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Marocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

AN EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

J. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

J. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or J. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. Reed, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold J. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oilphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No. 1			No. 2
7:55 p.m.	At.....Wilmington.....Lv		7:00 a.m.
4:45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9:10 a.m.
4:30 p.m.	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv		9:37 a.m.
3:17 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11:45 a.m.
1:27 p.m.	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv		4:43 a.m.
11:59 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		2:15 p.m.
11:54 p.m.	At.....Greensboro.....Lv		4:55 p.m.
12:05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		1:25 p.m.
11:47 p.m.	Lv.....N. & W. Pk. - W. Cove. Ar		4:40 p.m.
11:35 p.m.	At.....Rural Hall.....Lv		4:33 p.m.
11:05 p.m.	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		5:01 p.m.
9:45 a.m.			6:25 p.m.
<hr/>
No. 3			No. 4
5:00 p.m.	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv		6:15 a.m.
6:47 p.m.	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv		7:37 a.m.
6:08 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv		8:17 a.m.
5:13 p.m.	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv		9:12 a.m.
4:50 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9:35 a.m.
<hr/>
No. 15			No. 16
Mixed			Mixed
Daily Ex			Daily Ex
Sunday			Sunday
5:35 p.m.	At.....Ramsour.....Lv		6:50 a.m.
3:55 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		4:40 a.m.
3:00 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		6:45 a.m.
<hr/>
No. 15			No. 16
Mixed			Mixed
Daily Ex			Daily ex.
Sunday			Sunday
2:35 p.m.	At.....Greensboro.....Lv		9:40 a.m.
1:05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11:00 a.m.
12:30 p.m.	Lv.....Madison.....Ar		11:50 a.m.

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mang'r.

W. E. KYLE,

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1888. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

Remarks.

It is not my custom to advertise any medicine unless I have evidence it is as recommended.

Elder W. B. Williams is a truthful man. The medicine he advertises will do what he says it will I am satisfied.

P. D. GOLD.

VOL. 27.

MARCH 1, 1894.

NO. 8.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

JR
Congleton
Inc.
No. 2

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

LOOKING UPWARD.

"Jesus lifted up his eyes to heaven and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy son that thy Son may glorify thee."

Heaven therefore is the infinite home of the holy Father, the realm of perfect love, beauty and bliss. The Father is a Spirit, and hence all that heavenly country is the celestial abode of pure spiritual beings, who are as holy and lovely as the spotless and beautiful city itself. Not any sinful, corruptible, mortal creature can enter there. As the place itself is most glorious, so all glorified beings shall be gathered into that beautiful home.

Jesus was a pilgrim and a stranger in this sin-blighted world. This was not his home or native place. Though he was born of woman on earth, yet his Father was in heaven, God blessed for evermore. So to heaven this Man of Sorrows lifted his eyes, to his infinite Father, and spoke to him in intimate, fervent entreaty, as only a filial, faithful, well beloved Son could. His Father heard him in holy heaven; yea, saw him in his overwhelming sorrow and desolation, and called to him to come home. The time of his sojourn was ended, the cup of his suffering was full, his Father's work was finished, the world had hated and persecuted him, and was not worthy of him, and he now yearned to leave the world and go up to his Father in heaven. There he would meet with all his soul desired. His Father, well pleased for his righteousness' sake, would seat him at his right hand, and all in heaven would joyfully shout him welcome. He knew the infinite loveliness and glory of his Father's eternal home. Here he was poor and afflicted, even from his humble birth. And from the time he left the carpenter's shop and his mother's lowly roof, he had not where to lay his head. He had a little band of loving friends, it is true, who kindly ministered to him, and also suffered with him, yet they very imperfectly understood him, while many hated him without a cause. Therefore he was largely as one alone and desolate in all his life on earth. For though he was in the world, yet he was not of the world, "and the world knew him not." He had therefore often sought the solitude of night and lonely mountains to pour out his soul in the bosom of his Father in heaven, who always heard him, and sent his angels in times of sorest need to solace him.

Long and weary foot journeys had this toiling and obedient Son of Man made in preaching the kingdom of heaven, and speaking of a better world to come. But now his work was done, his life of sorrow was filled up, his weary earth-pilgrimage was at an end, and he lifted up his eyes to heaven in holy communion with his Father.

Yet the loving Son of God remembered, even then, his dear brethren who were still in the world of trial, and prayed the Father for them. So forgetful was he of himself, in his loving care for them, although he was so soon to meet the powers of darkness and suffer the cruel death of the cross. Oh, how endearingly he spoke to his righteous Father on the behalf of his poor and afflicted disciples, whom he left behind in the world! "I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father keep, through thy name, those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are." Then, near the close, he asks, "Father I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me."

Thus the holy Son of God clearly shows that his brethren, the children whom God hath given him, shall leave this world and be raised up with him, to dwell forever in the world to come, the spiritual, holy, heavenly country, where they shall be with him and the Father and all holy, happy beings. Jesus therefore said to his Father and their Father, "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world; sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth."

Here then is a relationship to two worlds, with a corresponding experience and knowledge of each—the first a world of sin, suffering and death; the other a world of holiness, happiness and life for evermore. Into the first we enter by birth; into the last by resurrection. The first is earth, the last is heaven. On earth we sow in tears; in heaven we shall reap in joy. Here we are mortal and dying; there we shall be immortal and living. This is Time, with its shadows, crosses and losses; that is Eternity, with its brightness, crowns and riches. On earth we are the abased children of sinful man; in heaven we shall be the exalted children of the holy and blessed God.

In all this the meek and lowly Nazarene, who "lifted his eyes up to heaven," the humbled Son of Man and exalted Son of God, is our pattern, teacher and leader, whom we follow, walking in his steps. He is our brother and we are his brethren. On earth he was as we are; in heaven we shall be as he is. Our sin and suffering, poverty and death were his; his righteousness and glory, blessedness and life shall be ours. He was our brother in our mortal flesh; we shall be his brethren in his immortal spirit. He died in the flesh, but was quickened by the Spirit; so shall we die and our mortal bodies shall be quickened. With his eyes lifted up to heaven he said, "And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee." So, too, shall it be with each one of them. They shall be made like him. He is their Forerunner into heaven, and they shall follow him. To them it is given to suffer for his sake. Yea, it is appointed unto them to die. As he first suffered and died before he entered into his glory in heaven; so must they go after him, and be conformed to his image in death, as in resurrection and life.

Therefore in the sorrowful experience and earth-weary pilgrimage of each one, the hour comes when the poor child of God "lifts up his eyes to heaven," and says, "I come to thee." O how full of divine assurance and holy triumph is this yearning, endearing response of heaven's child, "I come to thee!" It was the pleading, plaintive voice of a desolate, homeless, sorrow-burdened footman that thus arose on the stillness of night. His exhausted form pressed the ground, out of which grew the cruel thorns which wounded his head, and the cold tomb was waiting to lock him up in the grim silence of unending death. The final trial and the peril had come. All friends should forsake, as powerless to help; but all the mighty foes should unite to make an end of him. All this he knew—the mob, the accusers, the soldiers, the wounds, the cross, the tomb—he knew it all; yet, with longing eyes looking away into sweet heaven, where the loving and living Father waited to receive him with rejoicing to the home of life and love and bliss, he serenely said, "And I come to thee." Yea, he arose! He came out of the sealed and guarded tomb! He left the earth. He went up into heaven. His joyful cry, "I come to thee," was true.

O, then, God and heaven, life and immortality are abiding, real and sure. To heaven, therefore, I lift up my longing eyes, and my way-worn and weary spirit prays, "Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come."

Father, I long, I faint to see
The place of thine abode;
I'd leave thy earthly courts and flee
Up to thy seat, my God.

Jesus teaches us, saying, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Surely, then our heart should be in heaven, and set on things above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. For the world and the fashion of it passeth away, and we also. Many, very many of those whom we have known and loved in the Lord have gone on before us, to be with him, and we sadly miss them. Countless thousands have left the world, believing in God and heaven, hoping for a better resurrection and a glorious immortality. Patriarchs, prophets, and holy men and women of old have thus believed and trusted in God and his promise. Jesus, the man of God's right hand, has actualized the resurrection unto life, and verified the world of glory, by his death resurrection and ascension as a man, to God and heaven. His holy apostles, and hundreds who saw him, both before and after he arose, were his believing and rejoicing witnesses, and sealed their testimony with their lives. All these have gone to be with him in heaven. The holy, happy angels, as blessed ministering spirits are there. The mighty God, the the everlasting Father, and the Prince of life and peace are there. Infinite perfection and love, rapturous beauties, sublimities and glories with all holy delights, are there. And all that world above is forever! Then, O child of heaven is not thy heart there also? Yes, sorrowing pilgrim to thy sweet home in heaven my heart answers for thee, that the dearest yearning of thy heart and the most sacred aspirations of thy spirit are heavenward, where thy soul's beloved is gone, and thy immortal treasures are, and where thou dost upward look, and shalt to the holy Father say, "And now I come to thee."

"To thee my spirits fly
With infinite desire;
And yet how far from thee I lie!
Dear Jesus, raise me higher."

D. BARTLEY.

Crawfordsville, Ind.

"I will praise thee, O LORD, with my whole heart: I will shew forth all thy marvellous works."

"I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, O thou Most High."

"When mine enemies are turned back, they shall fall and perish at thy presence."—Ps. 9: 1-2-3.

EXHORTATION.

DEAR BRETHREN :—I've thought I would never try to write any more for the public or brethren to read, but my mind is so discontented that I must seek for rest.

There are none that can say of a truth that they have been led right, but those that have seen themselves righteously judged, and justly condemned before God, giving the honor and glory to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It is by faith that we are saved, and that not of works, lest any man should boast of or claim any honor to himself, but it is alone through the power and mercy of God. We the Primitive Baptists are too ready to leave the Bible, which is all the law that the church of Christ has any need of, or to be guided by. When the church gets in such condition that she has to be guided by the laws of the land made by men she had better reform and practice what God has said do, and follow his instructions, instead of worshipping vain glory and esteem man higher than Jesus Christ. It is by faith that we are saved. The same faith that enabled Noah to build the Ark and prepare for the coming of the great flood, for he was moved by faith to build the Ark, and prepare for the coming of the flood, and take in it all that was put therein; none could hinder this wonderful Work and God's almighty power. When Noah was commanded to build the Ark he was given strength to go to work, and no man was able to make him believe that this work would not accomplish just what the Lord had said, and this was given to him by the power of God, and that is all the way that we know God and his true and everlasting plan of salvation. This same plan of God's holy strength holds out as good to day as it did in Noah's day. He was instructed by the same power then that we are to day. This gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ that is now preached is by the same power that led Noah to build the Ark and prepare for the coming of the flood. Noah was endowed with wisdom from on high, just as the gospel is now preached by faith, and that of God, not of works that any man should boast. This gospel of our Lord and Savior shall be preached for a witness against all nations, and then shall the end come. The doctrine of Jesus Christ has no respect of persons. This doctrine shall be preached in spite of all the power of men and devils without respect of persons. God is the same now that he was in Noah's day, and has not changed at all. This God that I am trying to talk about is a God of all power and does all things according to the council of his own will. This God is from everlasting to everlasting and has power to speak a world like this into existence, or out of existence in the twinkling of an eye. We the Primitive Baptists should look to such a God as this, and not be glorying in the perishing gods of this world which they worship in vain glory, and who fancy things of this life that are as grass that grows in the spring and withers and dies in the fall, and has no life in it at all. When Primitive Baptist preachers begin to want to be promoted to some high office for the sake of some honor, I think that they have then stepped down from the highest calling that man ever had, or ever will have in this life. This call is of God and not of poor sinful man that wants every thing but justice, and that would shun it were it possible for them to do it. I have been noticing that there is a great deal of murmuring over the hard times, and charging the law makers with the hard times; when hard times are partly chargeable to pride, style and dishonesty, and a great deal of laziness; all of this has a great deal to do with the hard times now. It is said that he that will not work shall not eat; this is a hard doctrine but never-the-less I believe that this very thing has caused so many people to go down and suffer by trying to keep up with the monied class of people in dressing and every thing else that they can. It is all such vain and ungodly things as these that have crept into the church now that causes so many groans in Israel today and bursted asunder churches and members go to law with one-another, and then try to make it appear that God has before ordained that man should do just what he has done, and bring God chargeable for all the sin that man has ever committed. This is self-justification. There is nothing impossible with God but to lie, and that is impossible with God. We learn that God is love and full of truth, honor and glory, and gave his only begotten son which is Jesus Christ, the redeemer and beloved of his own house-hold in righteousness to all the called according to his own righteousness in glory. This same God had power to give Job patience to bear all his afflictions; and this same God led the children of Israel across the Red Sea and showed them the promised land. This same God has done all things well for his people and made his gospel to have no respect to persons. Men may rage and lie, but this God shall never die; he is a God that sits on high and preaches through the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ the only way where-by man must be saved. This God is a God of all peace that has filled immensity with his holy love. Dear brother Gold, I can not explain the greatness of such a God as this is. Your unworthy feeling brother in hope.

ELI BRYAN.

Laniers, N. C.

THE NEW BIRTH

Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto thee, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." John 3:3. Also read to the thirteenth verse. In the twelfth verse Jesus says, "If I have told you earthly things and ye believe not, how shall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things." So he believed not, and telling him of heavenly things would not make him believe. Let us see then if we believe when told earthly things; for it seems to me, that if Nicodemus had believed or known the truth or had the light of the Spirit, I might say, at that time, he would not have asked the questions (natural) that follow. Had he had the light of the Spirit he would have seen the meaning and beauty of the words "ye must be born again." May Our Heavenly Father give us that light that we may write and speak comfortably unto Jerusalem.

Now it seems it is with this case as with all the teachings of Christ. He told the parables in a natural way and only those who had the light of the spirit could understand them. If we understand a natural birth, we can by light of the spirit, use the natural to explain the spiritual. But no matter how well we may understand natural life, without spiritual light it will not help us to understand spiritual things. And as we find a mystery in natural life and birth even so must we expect to find a mystery in spiritual life and birth. We can only see what God will reveal. Then let us carefully and prayerfully search the scriptures and not contend in an unchristian way for things all can not see clearly.

Then what is a natural birth? Is it not a bringing forth, from the womb of its mother, a child? And thus manifesting to those in the natural world that it is a natural child? Their knowing it does not cause it to be born, nor does the birth make it a child - but its father gave it life and because it is a child, and has life it must be born.

It was created in Adam, so by the laws of nature it must be born in the natural world.

We know it could not see the natural world or know its father without being born. Nor could it cause its own life or birth. Its birth was caused by the laws of nature and its life was created in Adam. It is manifested to us as a child of nature, and we know it and understand by the natural mind.

In course of time it cries, is thirsty and hungry. It goes from the cradle to youth, from youth to age, but it is still a child, has the same life and is only a further development of the man in the cradle.

Where did its life begin? In Adam. Where does it live? In the natural world. Where does its natural life end? In the natural world. What does he eat? Natural things. What does he love? Natural things in the natural world. He knows nothing of nor does he care for any other world, for he has seen no other that he remembers. You cannot teach him any thing about a spiritual world for his mind is natural. He cannot see the spiritual world for his eyes are natural. Hence Christ says "Ye must be born again."

Now what is it to born of the Spirit? The first thing is to have life. That is given us in Christ Jesus. Then we have it in him. Did we always have it? Yes IN HIM, long before we were born. If in him then in the Spirit or the spiritual world. Now then if we have spiritual life we must be born in or of the Spirit. We could not be born of the Spirit with out spiritual life. Having that, by the laws of the spiritual world we must be born. This GREAT TREASURE, life, was given us in Christ, then in these earthly vessels, and we are born of the Spirit.

So it is to be in a new world, a spiritual world. It is an eternal now with Him; but when the time comes to the child (spiritual) spiritual life is manifested to the spiritual children. There is a crying for milk of the word, for truth as it is in Christ, a desire for knowledge of spiritual things, a striving to do better. But at first we cannot see. All seems darkness and we do not comprehend it. "The light shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehended it not." Then our eyes are opened and we see Christ as the light of the world. Then to us truly is Christ the first born from the dead. We would then love to walk as He walked but we feel weak and helpless and the old nature is strong as ever.

It is the same but the light maketh manifest the wickedness of the child of nature or natural life; and he cannot do the things that he would. As we "grow in grace" we see with joy and gladness that we ARE SONS of the Father. The MAN is brought from darkness into light to be manifested to "the children" as a spiritual child. We know him only in the spiritual world or in the Spirit, no more after the flesh but after the Spirit. We do not know the spiritual child after the Spirit until spiritual life is in us and it. When we hear it crying for spiritual things we know it is a spiritual child. Also when we see it with spiritual eyes or in the spirit we see it trying to walk like spiritual children in the kingdom. Like the little child of nature it stumbles over many a rough road, gets many hard falls. But all the time it is showing the leadings and teachings of the Father. It is sustained by Him and is ever kept in those "everlasting arms." When it is tired and weary almost ready to give up, it is lifted in the arms of its Father and finds it is at home in its Father's house, seated at the table of the Lord in the "seat prepared" for it eternal in the heavens. It has been a wayward child and wandered far from its home and feels unworthy of the love of its brothers and sisters and its place in the kingdom. It has made many debts that it cannot pay; but with words of love and peace its Father tells it that the Elder brother who inherited all, has paid the debts and it is a joint heir with Him. Because ye are sons God hath sent forth his Spirit into your hearts crying Father.

The birth did not make him a child any more than the natural birth made him a natural child: but the Father gave him life and that life caused him to be born and manifested to those who have the same life and are of the same kingdom.

I see no need of contending about when this birth takes place, for there is only one who really knows, and He is God. We may see the evidence that it has taken place, but just when it occurs we cannot tell. When did the life begin? "Created in Christ Jesus before the world began." Where does he live? In the spiritual world. Where does his spiritual life end? In him is eternal life. He feasts on spiritual things, loves spiritual things; but the natural man loves natural things, so one must be subjugated. Which? The weaker of course for he is all powerful, and all power is given him in heaven and in earth. The old nature loves natural things, but it is under the sway of an almighty power that is able to save to the uttermost all them that believe.

Here is where the trouble comes: the spiritual nature would wish to make us better, but the natural is unclean and full of sin; so the battle between them goes on.

The natural birth takes place in the natural world or in nature, and manifests to natural men that there is another natural man: the spiritual takes place in the spiritual world or in the Spirit and manifests to the spiritual children that another is born of the spirit. We cannot say truly, believing that it is spiritual child except as we are in the Spirit. Nor are we able to judge these things except by the light of the Spirit.

Why argue so much about these things? Except we are taught of the Spirit can any man teach us; And except we have the light of the spirit we cannot see. If we are lead by the Spirit to talk of His love and speak of His power we will not be in a humor to pick at another because he cannot see just as we do. If we read a communication from a brother and we find fault with it, it is not best to say so in public, but go or write to him and there-by come to a better understanding. It may be he is not given to see as much as you. He that is on the house top sees more than he that is below, but one is as much blest with light and life as the other for Spirit is not imperfect. It is only because he is in a different place, or further along the road, and not because he has more life or light.

He that is in the lowest place sees some things that the highest does not. When trying to walk in darkness the foot may tell the head that the man is sinking in the mire, then wait for the direction of the head to get out.

The same life is in all the members and one is as dear as another and if we are wise we take as much care of one as another. If the foot had no natural life in it, it could not tell when it was in the mire, so if we had no spiritual life in us we could not know that we are unclean and full of sin. The mire covers the foot but does not hurt the life (natural) which renews the foot, day by day, and we wash the filth away.

We may see ourselves polluted with sin but the filth cannot affect the life dwelling in us, and as we wash our natural members so will Christ wash his spiritual and make them white in the blood of the Lamb.

May He bless truth and pardon error is my prayer for Jesus sake.

DUDLEY G. JOHNSON
Lawrenceburg, Ky.

DEAR BRETHREN GOLD AND LESTER, I seat myself to write to you to give you a few of my thoughts, and by your permission, to the readers of the LANDMARK on election and predestination. These subjects are on my mind to-day, though I will not promise to confine myself to these subjects, but will follow the lead of my mind hoping that God will control my mind and pen and confine me to the Scriptures. I am apprised of the fact that there is a class of people in the world who claim that the sinner or believer is not elected or chosen until they are born again, or in other words until they accept Christ and he pardons their sins. Now I will give some Scripture here to prove that they are elected, chosen and predestinated before Christ reveals himself to them see Eph. 1-4:5. According as he hath chosen us in him (Christ) before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love. Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will. I hear some say that the Apostles were all that were elected and were the persons above spoken of. In Eph. 1:1 says Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus. Does this sound like he was talking to the twelve Apostles? No, I say it does not, but has reference to all that are saved or ever will be saved. I believe that God chose his people in Christ before the foundation of the world, I also believe that all he made choice of will be saved and no more. There can be none added to that number, nor any taken away. See John 6:64. But (there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him. The world with all of its institutions and soul-saving machinery combined cannot add one to the elect. Neither can principalities and powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor the devil and all of his angels combined take one from the number of them that were elected. This may seem pretty hard, nevertheless it is true and it is not any too hard for me. In further proof of this I will quote from 1 Peter 1:2, 'Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ. Grace unto you and peace be multiplied.' Again 1 Peter 2:9. But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation a peculiar people that ye should send forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light." Who were this people that Peter was speaking to. I answer, they were the same people that Paul was speaking of, the same elect, God's chosen people. Next I will quote Paul in 2 Thes 2: 13, "But we are bound to give thanks always to God for you brethren beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth." Again Paul to second Tim. 1: 9, "Who hath saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his purpose and grace which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." Is this not proof enough that God chose his people in Christ before the world began. I think it is, for the scriptures plainly say so, but Paul says see Romans 8 & 28 and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. For whom he did foreknow he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren. Moreover whom he did predestinate them he also called; and whom he called them he also justified; and whom he justified, he also glorified. Again see Romans 9 & 11. For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or any evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works but of him that calleth. Now we see that we do not have to do a work before we are elected, for the writer here plainly sets forth the fact and shows that God made a choice of his people before they were born, or had done any good or evil. What then? Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid. I assert without fear of successful contradiction that Jesus Christ saved his people from their sins, and that he redeemed them by atoning for their sins and none others; and that he elected, foreordained and predestinated all that he redeemed and atoned for, and having loved them with an everlasting love, therefore with loving kindness he draws them. The plan of salvation of the people of God was formed and made in eternity in counsel with the Father, Son and Holy Ghost before the world was made, while darkness covered the great deep. And in all his work he did not arrange or make any plan whereby man could redeem or do anything to redeem himself from under the curse of the law. Man was now deprived of partaking of the tree of life lest he should take of it and live forever. Cherubim and a flaming sword which turned every way to keep the way of the tree of life, was placed at the east of the garden. So we find man in the earliest stage of his life, after the fall, was a helpless, deluded, depraved mortal on account of transgression and disobedience, dead in trespasses and sins. But in the plan of salvation Jesus Christ stood as a lamb slain from the foundation of the world to redeem and make an atonement for his people. So, according to his own time and purpose, he left the Father and descended to this low ground of sorrow and took a body of flesh and bore the sins of his people in his own body, suffered and died upon the cross, and in his agony and suffering he said, "It is finished." Mortal man could not do this. It took the darling Son of God, the purest jewel in heaven to reconcile God to his people. Through Christ he reconciles his people unto himself. Jesus purchased eternal redemption for all of his people by the sacrifice of himself; so he saved his people from their sins by shedding his own blood for them. He is a God of purpose and power, and I here assert that all the combined powers of Satan are not able to thwart or overthrow or defeat the purposes of God, or get one of his elect for which Christ died and made an atonement for. All for whom Christ died will be eternally saved, for Christ does not do anything in vain. Jesus said in 6th chapter of John, 37th verse, "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me, and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." And 44th verse same chapter says: "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him, and I will raise him up at the last day. Then from these expressions and declarations of Jesus I am satisfied that the eternal salvation of his people is not in any way an act of their own. For Paul says, see Eph. 2-8, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God. 9th verse: "Not of works, lest any man should boast."

When Jesus had done this work for his people, when pity had seized the love of the Son of God, and prevailed upon him to lay aside the glory that he had with the Father, when he consented to leave the company of angels who cluster around the throne of God, and voluntarily left the bosom of the Father that he might veil his divinity in a body of flesh and become the sufferer for his people for all their sins against an offended God to appease his wrath against his people in a wretched and sinful world of men, I say, well might angels descend through the skies at his birth and proclaim the joyful news to men that the Son of God was born in the city of David, in the town of Bethlehem.

Now, Brother Gold, I present this communication to you and, by your permission, to the readers of the LANDMARK, as a birthday present. I am 77 years old to-day, February 6th, 1894. Your brother in the Lord, I hope,

B. C. HEADRICK.

Varnell Station, Ga.

FATHER'S HOUSE.

"Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also."—John, 14 : 1-3

These are the words of that King to whom the wise man referred when he said, "Where the word of a king is there is power." The language of this text, as of every precious word of promise, teaching and command of his, is with the same power as when he commanded the light to shine out of darkness, and as surely accomplishes that which he pleases in the poor distressed soul to whom it is spoken by him, as did the command, "Let there be light" upon the darkness that covered the face of the deep when "the earth was without form and void."

Peter represents the condition of those to whom this sweet command and precious promise applies. Not Peter as he stood when these words were spoken, full of self-confidence and boasting of his fancied ability to remain firm even though all others should forsake the dear Saviour; but Peter as he stood a little while after, having done what the Saviour had just now told him he should do, ashamed, abased, astonished at the wickedness he now sees in his heart, terrified at the sight of the hidden depths of his depravity, and weeping bitterly alone, outside of the house. To such a condition of bitterness all of the Lord's people must come through an experience and understanding of their own total depravity, before this language will fully apply to them, "Ye believe in God." The Jews as a nation believed in God, but that was a natural belief, based upon evidences to the natural mind. The true and living God they did not know, for "no man knoweth the Father save the Son and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him." No one can believe in one whom he does not know. When the Father is known by any one it is always by a revelation of the Son. And the effect is always to make the one who sees him in his glorious holiness and power, abhor himself, because he is vile, a man of unclean lips, and all his comeliness has turned in him into corruption. One does not come to a knowledge of God by study, but those who behold his glory see it as in a glass. 2 Cor. 3: When they see his glory in the ministration of condemnation and death to the sinner they see only what they are experiencing within their own hearts. When Peter stood outside weeping bitterly could he see anything in himself but what he must regard as abhorrent to a holy God? We must remember that while Peter and the other disciples had been called to be followers of Jesus, and while the Father had revealed to them that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of the living God, they did not know the way of salvation. They did not know that Jesus was going away through death in order to deliver them from death: and although he had repeatedly told them that he must be crucified and rise from the dead, yet it was hid from them what he meant. They must learn it by experiencing the fellowship of his sufferings. They must follow him, not merely along roads through the fields and in the cities of the land of Canaan, but in the dark road of sorrow, suffering and death on account of sin. Peter was following him when he went out and wept bitterly on account of his awful sin, and the depravity it revealed, for that very sin and all that wickedness rested on the heart of his dear Saviour, and caused him to be a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and finally pressed him down to death. Here was made manifest the majesty of the righteous law of a holy God. When one feels the weight of his sins he truly believes in God, and he cannot believe in God truly without. Then the Saviour, who has revealed God to that one, in his own time reveals the way of salvation. The knowledge is given by a command, "Believe also in me," God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." The face of Jesus shines with that ineffable love which is the fulfilling of the law, when he says, "Believe also in me." In his face, as it turns the fullness of heavenly love upon the heart, all the perfections of God are seen. "The light of the knowledge of the glory of God" is there. We can see it no-where else. If we have ever had a view of Jesus as the Saviour of his people, have seen how he could save them, have felt drawn toward him in holy desires and heavenly longings and prayers, it is because God has shined in our hearts. We are then upon the Mountain of Zion where the blessing has been commanded, "even life forever more. For, "this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."

Just at the time when we can truly say we believe in God, feeling the justice of his condemnation and seeing that he is of purer eyes than to behold evil, and cannot look upon iniquity, then comes the timely command, "Believe also in me." And how wonderful it is that we find ourselves believing in Jesus as our own dear Saviour and as having put away all our sins.

And it is a wonder and a mystery to us how and why we came to so believe. But the word tells us. We are taught in his own time to understand the way of salvation which we have felt. It was his word of command in our hearts, saying, "Believe also in me."

"In my Father's house are many mansions." "How suitable this is to the one in the condition of Peter when he had thrice that very night denied Jesus, and now was being sifted as wheat by Satan, who tossed all the chaff of sin and wretchedness to the surface, so that poor Peter could see nothing else. Now if admission to the house of God, to the sweet shelter of his favor and love, to the house where the family of God dwell forever in his presence, if this depends upon our worthiness of that blessing then Peter can see no hope for himself; and he knows of no other way. Only the righteous among the children of Abraham have a right there. Peter had not yet understood what Jesus meant when he said, "But I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not." That righteousness which is by faith was not yet revealed to him, although the faith was in him as a single grain of wheat, now buried up in the chaff of his own vanity, which a little before he had mistaken for wheat, or righteousness. That could not fail. But Peter must know about the chaff before he could rejoice in the faith. The negative comes first, "Not by works of righteousness which we have done," "Not according to our works." This is the first lesson; "Not." O how bitter it is. And when it is fully learned how softly we walk before the Lord, as Hezekiah did, in the bitterness of our soul.

And although Peter had done so badly can we suppose that there was one of those disciples who was not taught to feel that he was worse than Peter? Was there one left to look down upon him? All are taught to know the depravity of their hearts, and to feel that no hope can remain to them of entrance in the house and family of God, where only the righteous can enter. But now comes the peculiar expansive power of the word many. In the legal house over which Moses as a servant was faithful, there was no dwelling place or mansion for a sinner. Only the children of Israel, and only the righteous among them, had promise of entering there. But now another way of salvation is revealed, not according to our works, but according to God's own purpose and grace which was given us in Christ before the world began. And this is for a company that no man can number, known only to God, who has chosen them in Christ before the world began, and has redeemed them out of every nation and kindred and tongue under the whole heavens. And they are all so poor that they could not pay for a crumb of bread, and they are so vile in their own sight that they come with weeping, are led with supplication. Every one would think, certainly there is no place for me. But the dear Saviour says, "In my Father's house there are many mansions." That word reaches out, like the arm of God, to the very ends of the earth, and gathers in every soul who says, "There is no place for one so vile as I." They are the very ones that would never be able to come if he did not gather them with his arm. If it were not so I would have told you. I would not have talked to you of these heavenly glories, and showed you such things as I have, and caused you to love those things and long for them, and desire to dwell in the house of God, if there had not been many mansions in that house; that is, a mansion for every one who ever has desired it, or ever will. "Many." It covers all the ground that can ever be needed. If it could ever be that one poor soul could wish to be in that glorious house not made with hands, and dwell as one of that holy people in one of the blessed mansions of that house, and yet be turned away with the word, There is no mansion, no dwelling place provided here for you, then the word "many," would not have its full meaning. If there are many mansions every one who looks upon that house to which the Saviour draws him must be able to say with surprise, "Yes, there are many: there is one for me," and yet others remain for more than can be numbered beside. But if one could be turned away there would not be enough. There is a mansion for all the elect of God. The Lord's people are sometimes called the house of God, in the sense of a family, as "The house of David," "Whose house are we," Heb. 3:6. Also as a church. 1 Tim. 3:15. They are also spoken of as a house built up of lively stones, they being the materials out of which the house is built. In each of these places the figure of a house is used to teach some special thing, so I regard it in this as used figuratively to show the contrast between the election of grace, who are chosen unto salvation and to dwell eternally in glory, whose numbers can never be estimated, and Israel according to the flesh. The contrast I have sufficiently intimated.

"I go to prepare a place for you." Sorrow filled their hearts because he said "I go away from you." That shows that they yet knew nothing of the way of salvation. His going away was necessary in order that they might have a place in the mansion. The law barred the entrance of any soul. But Jesus went into death in order to remove that hindrance by taking away their sins, when the law became the friend of those whose enemy it was before. As the waters of the Red Sea stood like walls of brass to defend those whose progress it had before barred, so the judgments of God, which prevent any sinner from coming into the favor of God, are at once declared to be in their favor as soon as they are made to understand that Jesus died for them. Those judgments now are their delight and their song. They prevent any charge from ever being brought against one of God's elect.

"And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am there ye may be also." This sweet promise is fulfilled in the gospel. Where Jesus is there his people are, and when they are not with him they are in a sad state of loneliness and sorrow. The world does not know anything about this precious experience of dwelling with Jesus in the mansions of the house of God, experiencing that we are rich in faith, and it is but for comparatively a little of this time here that many of the dear children of God inhabit those mansions experimentally. When one is so manifestly with Jesus that the heart glows with his love and the countenance shines with the heavenly graces, and he cannot keep back the "Hosannas in the highest," the world, and even the people of God, will often feel that such an one is rather too enthusiastic, and needs a little checking, as they reproved such of old.

But when the Savior makes himself sweetly manifest as having received a poor soul to himself and as dwelling with him in holy union, then the inhabitant of Zion will still "cry out and shout, for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of them." And "if these should hold their peace," when they see their King and Savior coming to them, and when they behold his mighty works, "the stones would immediately cry out."

SILAS H. DURAND.

Southampton, Pa.

P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER;—If you will allow a poor unworthy creature in a lonely country to address you as brother. I live in a destitute country as for gospel preaching, according to my understanding. You may know that I get very lonesome when I come to think that that there is not anybody around me that believes in the power of God as I hope I do. I hope that I was taught by the power of God to believe as I do. I hope I may be kept by the power of God and suffered not to be led astray by the so-called religious world. They have a heap of preaching in this country, but it is no enjoyment to me as the gospel. They preach the power of the creature and weakness of God. If I understand that the Scripture says the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes it. Well, brother Gold, I will tell you something of the denominations by which I am surrounded. The Campbellites are the most popular in this country. It's of no use for me to tell you their practice, for I reckon you are better acquainted with it than I am. We have a denomination known as the Dunkard. They have some of the Primitive Baptist faith and practice, but nevertheless they believe in the Arminian doctrine. I think there are some good people among them. But there are two things that I can't agree with them on and that is their baptism, and free-agency. They baptize three times face foremost. They observe the Lord's supper privately, and communed a few Saturday nights ago, but I did not go as they allowed none to enter except the members. If I understand it right they have regular supper there at the church, then wash their brethren's feet, and then minister their bread and wine. I can't disagree with them on their communion much, for I believe they observe it as near according to the Scripture as any denomination I have ever seen. I believe the Scripture set it forth as a private example.

I live six miles from the railroad leading from Durham to Keysville. If there are any that have the impression to come if they will write me word, I will gladly meet them at Powell's Station. I will make some arrangements for them to preach if they feel disposed to preach in the Campbellite church. They open their doors to all; if not they can preach at my house. Excuse all mistakes. I hope the Lord may bless you. Your brother in hope of eternal life.

J. M. BECK.

William's Mill, Va.

"Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledge; but he that hateth reproof is brutish."

"A good man obtaineth favour of the Lord; but a man of wicked devices will be condemned."

"A man shall not be established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous shall not be moved."

"The thoughts of the righteous are right; but the counsels of the wicked are deceit."—Proverbs 12:1-5.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 8.

WILSON, N. C., MAR. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

BLESSED LIKENESS.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—If it will not be asking too much, I would be pleased to have you write an editorial on the text in Romans 6th chapter, 5th verse. Dwell specially upon the latter clause of the text if you write. Hoping that you are well and all your loved ones, I am your humble brother, I hope,
J. C. HALL.
Gogginsville, Va.

"For if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection."

Remarks :

Our dear brother Hall, it seems to me, knows more of the meaning of this scripture than I do. However, we sometimes desire the views of others, especially on those scriptures that have been opened to our understanding with great delight; as we more enjoy a repast of such food as we have before tasted and found excellent, than of such as we have not before proven to be good.

Letter worshippers, or those whose faith stands only in the wisdom of men, and in a form of worship, see not much, if anything, beyond water baptism in this scripture. While as the outward setting forth and expression of death and resurrection by water baptism is here declared, the planting and crucifixion, or death, burial and resurrection of Jesus and his body or people with him, in the regeneration, is evidently the doctrine herein embraced. For as nothing short of the burial of the body of a believer by one sent of God for that purpose could set forth the doctrine of Christ crucified and risen, and therefore it requires this for a true baptism by water; it is also equally true that it requires such a water baptism as this to embody and set forth the doctrine of Christ crucified, buried and risen. There is therefore a wonderful unity and harmony in this perfect system of divine truth, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling, as there is one God and Father, who is above you all, and through you all, and in you all; thus are we planted together.

The doctrine herein set forth is the one doctrine of God our Savior. It sets forth the unity of Christ and his body, that as he is so are we in this world. As by the disobedience of one many (the many or all in him) are made sinners; so by the obedience of one the many (or all chosen in Jesus) are made righteous. For we thus judge, if one died for all (Jesus dying for his people) then were all dead in that one death. So that this baptism of Jesus unto death as the head of the church also carries the body, or is for the body, in the saving sense that his death completely satisfies, justifies and atones for their sins; since he was delivered for our offences. This secures in truth the salvation of all the flock or body, as the shepherd dies for the sheep and they go free. So also his resurrection as the first fruits assures their final resurrection, because we are risen with him by the faith which is of the operation or work of God, quickened together with Jesus, raised up with him, and this pledges the final resurrection of our bodies. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection. If this means only water baptism, and that by this we become members of the body of Jesus, then the fact would be that we are already, now, in the likeness of his resurrection, and not that we shall be, (in the future,) for shall be refers to future time. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. This shows that faith shall precede and qualify unto baptism by water.

There is much force in the word planted in this text. To plant of course means to cover up or bury, and it implies a death. For a seed planted must die to bring a crop. Planting is with expectation or hope of a crop of more than is planted, and yet of the same kind. A farmer planting corn hopes for a crop of that which dies, and he hopes for more than he planted. We are planted in the likeness of the death of Christ in order that we shall be found in his likeness in the resurrection. This follows more certainly than that a crop of corn should grow of the planting of corn, for that might fail, but this cannot fail. As surely as corn planted when it grows is corn, so surely shall those planted in Jesus be found in his likeness in the resurrection. Then they are good corn in Jesus in the planting; that is the planting makes them good, or Jesus makes them a good seed. This is the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, whose fulfillment nothing can frustrate. We grow in grace, and grace reigns through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord.

Now how shall people thus dead and buried with Jesus live in sin or to sin, the very thing they are dead to? Our crucifixion with Christ is to destroy the body of death, is that we are dead to sin, is that we are alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord, and shall live because he lives. Then how shall we that are dead to sin live any longer therein? This is impossible. It would render the death of Christ null. It would prove there is no power or merit in his death. It would frustrate the grace of God. It would prove that Christ died in vain. It would prove God's salvation to be a nullity.

Our experience is there is nothing but death in sin, and that if we walk after the flesh we shall die. Nothing but wretchedness and misery is to him that walks in the flesh—no life, no comfort, no peace. The very knowledge that in me, that is in my flesh, dwells no good thing, and that when I would do good evil is present, makes me wretched. Hence there is no living or joy in sin to a child of God; and by the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus he cannot live in sin. Hence if one delights in sin it is clear proof he is not planted with Christ in the likeness of his death.

It is then a great thing to be dead. He that is dead is freed from sin. Such are carried by Christ into immortality, and shall surely bear his likeness in the resurrection. Such are already blest. P. D. G.

SALVATION OF BAPTISM.

Elder John C. Hall requests us to write upon the salvation of baptism and the connections, as found in 1 Peter 3: 1—21.

It seems to me presumptuous for me to undertake that which he seems to think too much for him, however I will give him such as I have or may receive of the Lord.

The apostle gives in this chapter some wholesome exhortations to wives and husbands, and finally to all the household of faith, and follows this up with the example, pattern and doctrine as set forth in and by Christ. "Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren—be loving to the brethren—be pitiful, be courteous." The conclusion of the whole matter is summed up in these words—"be ye of one mind." When the people of God are thus, there can be nothing but that which is Christ-like. To be of one mind is to have the mind of Christ. "Be of the same mind one toward another."

When thus minded we are willing and anxious to do unto others as we would they should do unto us, and we readily and fully do as they would have us do unto them.

"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." That is we should not only look to our own interest but to the interest of our brethren; because in matters of faith we have all things in common, so that when we seek the good of our brethren we are seeking our own good. And in the same sense when we harm our brethren we harm ourselves.

"Let this mind be in you, that was also in Christ Jesus; who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God, but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant." When we have a mind to serve each other—rather than to be served—we may earnestly, and even sharply contend for the privilege, and no harm will come of it; but when we become to be exalted and desire to be served, we become to be exacting, oppressive and hurtful, and pierce ourselves with many sorrows.

"And was made in the likeness, (habit) of men." What an amazing humiliation upon the part of the Son of God to be made like unto us! But that we should be exalted in him and made like unto him is far more wonderful and amazing.

"Having compassion one of another." It is a blessed privilege to be possessed of the compassion of the meek and lowly Son of God so as that we may hold our brethren in compassionate esteem, but how sweetly humbling and peculiarly comforting is the thought when we can feel assured that we are the recipients of the gracious compassion of the brethren. When we are made to fully feel our need of the sufficiency of the grace of God, then we have compassion one of another.

"Love as brethren." The love wherewith we thus love is the love of our elder Brother, in whom, through whom and by whom we inherit all spiritual blessings. He loves us as he loves his own life, and with his love in our hearts, we love him and them who are loved by him. All men are made to know that we are his disciples when we thus love one another.

"Be pitiful." "The Lord pitieth them that fear him, for he knoweth their frame, and remembereth that they are dust." If we were not blessed with the gift to pity one another, such a thing as an organized body called the church could not be made and maintained. When we hear of brethren biting and devouring one another, making each an offender for a word, or because all cannot see every little detail just alike, making iron-clad demands of each other, we may rest assured that this blessed qualification is either lacking or the exhortation to "be pitiful" is sadly neglected. We should be careful lest we become as the unjust steward, and be thrust into prison, there to be held until we shall have paid the utmost farthing. It was in the pity of Jesus that we were redeemed. If we could keep in mind the pity of our gracious Redeemer surely we would always be pitiful toward each other.

"Be courteous." We are not to render evil for evil, or railing for railing, but should bless them that curse us and pray for them who despitefully use us and persecute us. I can not say how these things are to be done every time, but am satisfied they are fruits of divine nature, and when done must be done by the spirit through the revelation of the same, done by the heavenly Master. These things are to distinguish us from the world, and while we may not exhibit them at all times, we must and do have them in our hearts, if we are the children of God, whereas the world neither exhibits nor possesses them. The grace of God and the fruits of the Spirit are distinguishing in their character and manifestation, therefore it is by them that we are able to discern between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not. If we bless those who bless us, and curse those who curse us, wherein do we differ from the heathen, for they do even so! If we render courtesy for courtesy are we any better than if we rendered evil for evil? Our light should not be kept under a bushel and thus reserved for our own use exclusively, but should be upon a candlestick so as to give light to all who are in the house. Jesus died unto sin that his people might live, and that they should live unto him and not unto themselves. Those who have the greater light should let it so shine that those who seem to be somewhat in darkness may see the light and be induced by it to come more fully into it. In this respect like begets like. Courtesy in us arouses the principle in others, who have it, and puts it in action whereby they too become to be courteous. God's people are the best bred of all people, and their principles of civility are of the highest character, therefore their courtesy is of the best quality and should be unsurpassed and most ennobling when conferred upon those who can appreciate its graces.

The courtesy of Jesus, coupled with his pity, mercy and love, was such that the dead were raised up, the lame walked, the lepers were cleansed, the deaf heard, the blind received their sight and the poor had the gospel preached to them. I have always felt the better for having recognized and spoken a word to, and enquired after the welfare of the humble and the poor—in the things of this life—and those who feel to be poor in spirit, and whose sense of unworthiness seemed to keep them back and in reserve. As much as I have been blessed with precious assurance of the favor and esteem of my brethren—unworthy as I am of them—I have at times been so shut up as to be unable to see that any one cared for me, no one could fellowship me, no one could have occasion to think of me. But on meeting some dear child of God and being kindly and courteously recognized by him, and seeing the spirit of love and fellowship beaming forth from his bright and brightening countenance, my soul has leaped for joy within me, and my spirit has magnified and praised the Lord.

God's people are called unto the obtaining and exhibiting of all the blessed things which were created in and wrought out by the perfect life of Christ, and are equally blessed in their reception and exhibition. "I have blessed him, yea, and he shall be blessed." We should render blessing for all we receive of whatever character and from whatever source, knowing that we are thereunto called, that we should inherit a blessing. When Jesus was reviled he reviled not again, but prayed while on the cross for those who reviled, derided, persecuted and crucified him.

The best evidence that one is a child of God is a faithful adorning with the righteousness of Christ. "Put off, concerning the former conversation, the old man which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." "Let your conversation, (conduct, deportment), be as becometh holiness."

That which becometh holiness in the child of God is not what the world regards as the evidence of such a life, therefore instead of its bringing one into favor with the world it often brings him, like it did Jesus and the Apostles, to endure hardness, and to have his name cast out as evil, and his best motives attributed to the worst of sources. "But if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: for it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing.

The fact that all which Jesus endured and suffered was for well-doing is sufficient to assure us that we shall not escape however well we do, but the fact that they that will live Godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution does not prompt us to do evil that good may come, nor does the idea that we must suffer, do as we may, warrant us in living otherwise than as Jesus lived. No manner nor extent of obedience on the part Jesus could have saved him from suffering, from the fact he learned obedience by the things which he suffered, and yet it cannot be said of him that he was ever in the slightest degree disobedient in any respect. The obedience of Christ was a perfect obedience, and was therefore not of that character that has an opposite which we term disobedience. The doing of Christ could not be other than well-doing, therefore he did not suffer in order to learn to do well on his own account, but for us, that we in his well-doing might learn to do well. P. G. L.

[To be continued.]

ELDER W. B. STRICKLAND filled his appointments to Morehead City, N. C. Such was the fury of the storm he could not go further, as the route lay by water in part which he could not pass over.

INFINITE KNOWLEDGE.

Elder S. H. Braddy requests my view of Rev. 5:6; "And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth."

None perhaps have been more favored than the beloved John in beholding the glory of the Lamb of God, and the fulness of God revealed in him. In this vision he beholds a throne set in heaven, and one sat on the throne appearing as emblazoned in glorious brightness. Around about the throne sat four and twenty elders clothed in white with crowns of gold, and seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, also, a sea of glass like crystal, and in the midst of the throne and round about were four beasts with six wings saying, holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

In the right hand of him that sat on the throne was a book written within and on the back side, sealed with seven seals. A strong angel proclaims with a loud voice who is worthy to open the book, and to loose its seals? No man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth was able to open the book, or to look thereon. John weeps much on this account. And one of the elders said unto him, weep not, behold the lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, hath prevailed to open the book and to loose the seals thereof.

Then is revealed to John the blessed Jesus crucified, risen, exalted and glorified, having all power both in heaven and earth. The Lamb as it had been slain stood in the midst of the throne, and in the midst of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders. Jesus is in the Father, and in his kingly power, in the beasts, and in the elders, or in all his servants, and he is in them in all his fulness as Redeemer. He has seven horns denoting full and perfect power, and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth, denoting that he is everywhere present, having perfect knowledge and wisdom, from whom nothing can be hid, and therefore he has power to approach unto the eternal God, and take the book full of most weighty matter, sealed so completely or fully hid from all save God, and open the book or loose and declare the seals, and tell the entire contents thereof, and control their accomplishment.

The seals are hidden though their contents are vastly important. None can open them but Jesus who was slain, and has redeemed his people from all iniquity. To him therefore this honor and majesty, power and glory is given to reveal and declare, execute and fulfill all the mystery of the will of God hidden in the ages passed. For all power and authority is given unto him as the redeemer that was slain for us, and redeemed us unto God.

The seven eyes show forth the infinite wisdom and knowledge given unto him to know all things.

In our experience we know that these things are true, for the faithful witness hath shown them unto us. When we see that none is able to deliver us, or give a ransom for us, or redeem us from death and the power of sin, and we weep much because none is worthy to look on the hidden mystery of God sealed every where, the lion of the tribe of Judah is revealed unto us as the blessed one that has prevailed. When he is revealed as being in God, and in heaven, and in his people, and everywhere as he had been slain, having redeemed us from all iniquity, as having power to approach unto God for us, and dwells in us, our hearts are filled with his praise, and we exclaim, worthy is the lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory and blessing.

How safe is our case in such hands. How blest are they that know the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

This is but a brief and very imperfect expression of the meaning of this text. But a hint to the wise is sufficient. I trust that brother Braddy may enjoy the fulness of the text far beyond what I am able to express of its rich meaning, and to God and the Lamb be all the glory.

P. D. G.

NOTICE.

Please send on your remittances to the Landmark, if you are behind. If you cannot send all, please send part. I am much in need of money to pay expenses. Every little helps.

P. D. G.

Elder E. C. Smith's Post Office is Newport, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Please say to Elder Jas. A Burch through the Landmark that I shall not be able to accompany him on his southern trip this winter as I expected. I have already been confined for several days with a severe attack of the bilious fever, and can't tell how much longer I must remain here, although I am improving some at present. I remain your brother in much affection.

JOHN R. ROWE.

Aurora, N. C.

thing. He rapidly got worse and oh! how I tried to pray the Lord to restore him if it could be his Holy will, nevertheless not mine but thy will be done, and if not consistent with thy will to restore him to me, to take him to thy self in glory, and the words, "This day shall he be with me in Paradise, sounded in my mind and this was done twice, and my heart responded and said "Glory to God in the highest." Thus passed away my son who was much loved by us and much respected by a large circle of friends who attended his burial, for I never saw more people at a burying.

MAC BRANTLEY.

Spring Hope, N. C.

OBITUARIES.

MAC ADOLPHUS BRANTLEY.

I send you the Obituary of my son Mac Adolphus Brantley who died the 35th year of his age, professing a hope in Christ in the year 1887, and joined the church at Sandy Grove, Nash County the same year, and was baptized by Elder B. Greenwood the 4th Sunday in May, 1887. He took a letter to form a new church at Antioch on the Saturday before the 4th Sunday in Sept. 1888, and continued his membership there to the time of his death which occurred near Spring Hope, N. C. on the 1st day of July 1893. 11:47 a. m. He left home the previous day and went fishing with sein in a little creek some four miles away and was taken while in the water, complaining of losing the use of his limbs, and came out of the water and continued to get worse and was taken to a house and left alone, supposing he would soon recover, and his comrades extended their fishing and when they returned found him more dangerous. They failed to let us know it until about 10 o'clock p. m. and Dr. Hassell Brantley being at my house attending my companion who was very sick, we hurried to his relief and reached him about midnight and found him helpless and speechless. This was one of the most trying events of my life. I placed my face near his and called him by name and he opened his eyes and I asked him if he knew me, but he could not speak. I requested him if he knew me to give me some token, and he shut his eyes and never opened them any more. He was unable to swallow, so we could not give him any-

ANGELINE AND CATHOLINE HATCHER.

Angeline and Catholine Hatcher, daughters of Hardy and Mary J. Hatcher, of Johnston county, N. C., were born Feb. 4th, 1884, and were to the humble household a source of much comfort and pleasure. They were in many respects the special favorites of the household. They ever manifested a special fondness one for the other. They were afforded uniform opportunities for culture, pleasure and amusement. But alas! the source of joy they afforded this happy household was to be broken on earth. On the 29th of Oct. 1893, Angeline was called from the temptations, cares and snares of her terrestrial abode to her celestial home. She had been declining in health for more than a year, but no one anticipated her early dissolution. She died almost suddenly, having complained during the day of a pain, which the family supposed to be neuralgia. Late in the day she complained of a pain in her breast, and exclaimed, "I am almost gone, send for the doctor," which was promptly done, but she passed away in about thirty minutes. Her funeral was preached by Elders Isaac Jones and F. H. Peedin; Jones using as the basis of his sermon, Ruth 1:16-17; Peedin, as the basis of his, John 14:1, 2, 3. After the services were concluded her remains were followed to the family cemetery by the parents, brothers, sisters and a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives. Catholine, on the day following, was confined to her bed, and only lingered for a period of twelve days. She suffered from malarial fever, and despite the best medical skill and the most attentive care that could be rendered by parents, friends and loved ones, she passed away on the 11th of November. From her first sickness she was very decided in her conviction that she would never recover, and so expressed herself, and often in tears exclaimed, "Mother, medicine will do me no good." But it was hoped that she would recover. She appeared to improve up to the evening of the 10th, when she suddenly grew worse, expressed a desire to see her grandmother, and soon passed over the river to meet her darling sister, where both can be together in the presence of Jesus. Her funeral was preached by Elder F. H. Peedin, from 1st Cor. 15:21,22, after which her remains were deposited beside her sister's, who had only preceded her a few days, leaving behind a grief-stricken father and mother, five sisters and six brothers. The family chain has been broken; five links have been severed—three infant sisters in the same cemetery lie near those above named. Thus, one by one the ties which bind to earth are snapped asunder, thereby rendering the world less and less attractive as mortals journey toward the eternal shores. May those departed links but serve to remind us that it is "not all of life to live."

H. H.

HESTER A. PHELPS.

Please publish this obituary of my friend which I now make the feeble attempt to write. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Phelps and was born and reared in Pitt county, N. C. She was born Sept. 22, 1875, and died Oct. 26, 1893, making her age eighteen years, one month and four days. Her death was caused by one of those dreadful yellow chills. She had been having light chills for several days, but had not taken her bed, but was taken Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock and died Thursday morning at three. O it seemed so hard for me to give her up for we were very dear friends. I have known Puss, as she was always called in the neighborhood, for about eight years and always loved her almost as a sister and so she did me, or least I thought she did. Puss was raised by good kind Primitive Baptist parents, and they always taught her to tread the right road as far as they could, and surely she was a bright beautiful and promising young lady. She was always nice and pleasant as she could be, and always full of fun, and was loved and liked by all that knew her. Oh how sad it was for the dear mother and father to give her up; but alas the good Lord knew best, for surely he does all things for the best. So weep not father and mother, for she is gone, yes gone from the timeless shore, and we hope gone to dwell with Jesus ever more. No one knows how much I have missed her since the cold hand of death has claimed her for its own, for surely she was a dear sweet girl to me; she always seemed to love me so well. She often said to me Mamie I love you better than any other girl I ever saw, and sometimes she would say I know you don't love me half as well as I do you, tho' it seemed like to me I could not love her more than I did, and oh dear reader you must know it was very sad indeed for us to part for we have been together so much, and have spent so many happy moments together how can it be otherwise but sad. But I hope we will meet again, Ah meet in heaven where there is no more parting and pain. It is sad for me to part with her, but O not like it is with the dear mother and family for she was the sunshine of the home it seemed to me, as she was always so lively. She has gone and left a father, mother, two sisters and three brothers to grieve her absence, beside a host of friends and relatives, but surely we ought not to mourn, for the good Lord's will must be done in all things. May the Lord comfort and console the bereaved ones in their time of trouble and I hope he will prepare and enable us all to be resigned to his blessed will. This is written by request of the bereaved mother by a devoted friend of the departed. Sincerely,

A. FRIEND.

VIRGINIA H. HYLTON.

The subject of this notice was the daughter of brother Wm. A. and sister Adeline Taylor, of Patrick county, Va., and was born April the 22th, 1853, and died December 6th, 1893, making her stay on earth 38 years 7 months and 8 days. She was married to A. T. Hylton, of Floyd county, Va., December 14th, 1871, with whom she lived till her death. She had two daughters, who survive her, one married, the other single. She joined the Primitive Baptist Church at Little Flock on Saturday before the first Sunday in September, 1882 (if I am not mistaken), and was baptized by Elder Amos Dickerson. Sister Hylton was beloved by all who knew her. She lived an exemplary life, and their home was a home for Primitive Baptists. She was always kind and generous, and it always seemed to be a source of pleasure for her to wait on Primitive Baptists. She was attentive at church and enjoyed sound doctrine; but alas! we could not keep her. She took consumption, and all was done for her that medical skill could do, but all to no effect. She was well attended by the neighbors, and especially by the companion of the writer of this notice. She bore her sickness with great fortitude, and was never heard to moan or groan till death claimed its own. She seemed willing to die, and said the worst she minded was leaving her youngest daughter Louvenia. She leaves a husband, two daughters and many friends to mourn their loss, but while we greatly miss her on earth, we believe she is completely happy in the peaceful presence of God.

Yours in bonds,

R. M. MARRY.

APPOINTMENTS.

—Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

J. M. WYATT.

Flat River.....3rd Sunday in March
Roxboro.....Sunday night
Shiloh.....Monday
Stories' Creek.....Tuesday
Ebenezer.....Wednesday
Country Line.....Thursday
Lick Fork.....Friday
Dan River.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
Pleasantville.....Monday
Sardis.....Tuesday
Piney Grove.....Wednesday
Rock House.....Thursday
Toms Creek.....Friday
Brother Parker's near Mt. Airy at night.
Flower Gap.....Sat. and Sun.
Some one will meet him at Walnut Grove
Tuesday evening.

J. E. ADAMS.

Jerusalem.....Sat. and 3d Sun. in March.
Jones Hill.....Monday
Leberty Hill.....Tuesday
Meadow Creek.....Wednesday
Bear Creek.....Thursday
Freedom.....Friday
Mountain Creek.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
Big Creek.....Monday
Sugg's Creek.....Tuesday
White Oak Springs.....Wednesday
Pleasant Hill.....Thursday
St. Tabor.....Friday

Maple Springs.....Saturday
Bear Creek.....1st Sun. in April
Broadway (More Co.).....Wednesday
Someone please meet him at Jonesboro
Tuesday.

Niel's Creek.....2d Sat. and Sun.
Some brother please meet me at Morvin
Anson Co. on Tuesday after 1st Sunday in March.

Conveyance needed.

A. N. HALL

Wilson Tuesday after 3rd Sunday in March.
White Oak.....Wednesday
Meadow.....Sat. and 4th Sun
Autrys Creek.....Monday
Old Sparta.....Wednesday
Tom Creek.....Thursday
Union.....Saturday
Mill Branch.....1st Sun. in April
Falls.....Monday
Tarboro.....Tuesday
Little Creek.....Wednesday
Crocs Roads.....Sat & 2d Sun.
Lawrences.....Wednesday
Kehukee.....Friday
Conoho.....Sat. & 3d Sunday
Hamilton.....Wednesday
Spring Green.....Thursday
Flat Swamp.....Saturday
Bear Grass.....4th Sunday
Briery Swamp.....Tuesday
Thence to Union Meeting at Great Swamp.
He will need conveyance.

JAMES S. DAMERON.

Skewarkey.....1st Sun. in Mar.
Flat Swamp.....Monday
Great Swamp.....Tuesday
Conceta.....Wednesday
Sparta.....Thursday
Meadow.....Friday
Mewboro's.....Sat. & 2d Sun
LaGrange.....Monday
Nahunta.....Tuesday
Friendship.....Wednesday
Goldsboro.....Thursday
Chapel.....Friday
Cross Roads.....Saturday
Smithfield.....3d Sunday
Willow Spring.....Monday
Oak Grove.....Tuesday
Durham.....Wednesday
Mt. Lebanon.....Thursday
Harmony.....Friday
Arbor.....Saturday
Reidsville.....4th Sunday

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

J. F. Burtshaw, 50 cents; B. F. Brand, 50 cents; W. J. Bramlett, $1.00.

FOR ALL KINDS OF NICE
Book and Job Printing send your orders to this office. Our prices are reasonable, and we guarantee satisfaction.

MINUTES OF ASSOCIATIONS a specialty.
Address LANDMARK JOB OFFICE, Wilson, N. C.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad Cond. schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATE: ED Jan. 1, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 47 Daily.		No. 501 N.Y. and P.A. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon.....	11 47	9 57	12 02
Ar Rocky Mt.....	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro.....	2 35
Lv Tarboro.....	12 07
Lv Rocky Mt.....	12 55	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson.....	1 45	11 35	1 57
Lv Selma.....	2 45
Lv Fayetteville.....	4 35	4 00
Ar Florence.....	7 05	3 27	6 15
Lv Wilson.....	2 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro.....	4 00
Lv Magnolia.....	4 15
Ar Wilmington.....	5 10
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATE: ED Jan. 1, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 47 Daily.		No. 501 N.Y. and P.A. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Fayetteville.....	7 30	7 05
Lv Selma.....	12 10	9 50
Ar Wilson.....	1 05	11 35
Lv Wilmington.....	9 00	P. M.
Lv Magnolia.....	10 20
Lv Goldsboro.....	12 00
Ar Wilson.....	12 15
Lv Wilson.....	1 15	11 25	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.....	4 25	12 05
Ar Tarboro.....	2 35
Lv Tarboro.....	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.....	2 07	12 05
Ar Weldon.....	3 17	12 30
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3:40 p. m., Halifax 4:00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4:55 p. m., Greenville 5:17 p. m., Kinston, 7:35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 7:30 a. m., Greenville 8:22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11:00 a. m., Weldon 12:20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7:00 a. m., Arrives Parmele 8:40 a. m.; Tarboro 9:30; returning leaves Tarboro 4:30 p. m., Parmele

6:10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7:35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5:00 p. m., Sunday 3:00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9:20 p. m., 5:20 p. m., Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5:30 a. m., Sunday 9:30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10:25 a. m., and 11:45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6:02 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7:30 a. m., Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8:00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9:30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4:30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5:05 p. m., Spring Hope 5:30 p. m., Returning leaves Spring Hope 8:00 a. m., Nashville 8:35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9:15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6:30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7:40 p. m., Returning leave Dunbar 6:30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8:00 a. m., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4:30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7:20 a. m., Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All 7:00 p. m. - 9:00 p. m. daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.

J. R. KENLY, Genl. Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Microcco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Microcco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25.

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00.

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOE PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danyville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN
The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.
Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No. 1				No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv		7 05 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		6 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv		5 27 a m
4 15 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv		13 45 a m
1 42 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		1 43 a m
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		2 15 p m
12 53 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		2 55 p m
12 06 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		3 45 p m
11 46 p m	Lv.....N.W. Pct--W. Cove..Ar	Lv.....N.W. Pct--W. Cove..Ar		4 20 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N & W. Pct--W. Cove..Lv	Ar.....N & W. Pct--W. Cove..Lv		4 33 p m
11 00 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv		5 04 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		6 25 p m
No. 3		No. 4		No. 5
8 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv		7 25 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv		7 37 a m
6 08 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv		5 17 a m
5 13 p m	Ar.....Hope Mills.....Lv	Ar.....Hope Mills.....Lv		9 12 a m
4 29 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9 15 a m
No. 15		No. 16		No. 17
MIXED		MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday		Sunday
5 35 p m	Ar.....Ramsent.....Lv	Ar.....Ramsent.....Lv		6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Clintonsville.....Ar	Lv.....Clintonsville.....Ar		5 40 a m
3 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		9 25 a m
No. 18		No. 19		No. 20
MIXED		MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday		Sunday
2 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	Lv.....Madison.....Ar		11 50 a m

Train No. 3 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Albion, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1855. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

MARCH 15, 1894.

NO. 9.

Zion's Landmark.

ELIOT
1884
PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

the things with great how

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king—in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

MY DEAR SISTER IN CHRIST:--
Your good long spiritual letter written near two months ago has been by me, and unanswered much longer than I intended should be the case when it came; but to-day I will begin a reply. I always feel a desire in writing or speaking in the name of the Lord to speak of the things that are old and that at the same time are new. What a oneness and yet what an infinite variety there is in all the works of God? And the same is true in all the doctrine of God our Saviour. I want to write or speak the same things all the time, and yet not the same things. The mercies of God are fresh every morning and new every evening, and yet they are the same mercies. I believe that I never look out toward the east at sun rising without the glad bright morning coming upon me with a sense of newness, and yet the same sun has brought with it the same gladness and light for near six thousand years. And so the rising of righteousness upon us is ever new though he has dispersed our darkness by his rising many times before. I have to describe the sun's rising, morning by morning with very much the same words, because I cannot in words describe the shades of difference that each morning sun brings with it. And so we have to speak of the things which the Spirit shows with great sameness of language. How diversified are our experiences after all! I hesitate to write a letter to any of my regular correspondents at times because it seems to me that they will get tired of my writing the same things over and over, and it seems to me that I have nothing new to write. And yet why should I hesitate to tell over and over again, if need be, the little that I do know about Jesus and his salvation. John said that he wrote no new commandment to his brethren, and again he says "I write a new commandment unto you." It is just like the sunshine and shadow, like rain, heat and cold, like food and raiment, like the love and care of father and mother, like all good and common blessings, always new and fresh, and yet old as the foundations of the earth. We speak to our friend and acquaintance of the day, and its promise of fair or foul, heat or cold just as though we had never seen it all before. And yet how old it all is! No doubt Abraham, Isaac and Jacob talked of the weather and the signs and promises of the sky just as we all do. And so we speak of the common name that we all love and of the old common experience of the grace of God, just as did David and Isaiah and Paul and the Master. It is the old, old story, and yet how new it seems to each one. Just before beginning this letter I wrote one to a dear child, the daughter of one of our members at Black Rock, who is just beginning to travel this old way which saints in every age have trod, and I said among other things to her, the way in which you are being led no doubt seems strange and wonderful to you, but it is the way in which all the people of God have gone before you. And as the young pilgrim speaks of the way, he speaks of the same things which the aged pilgrim sees and feels. Is not this why you and I can correspond so long and speak so constantly the things which are common to both? When a child says I am hungry, thirsty, weary, hot or cold, he utters the same experiences that the aged mean to express when they utter the same words. The child in these things understands the aged, and the old understand the young. I understand you my sister and you say that you understand me. And all these things concerning Jesus and our need of him are things which none can tell his neighbor unless that neighbor already knows them. I cannot tell the Esquimaux what heat is, and I cannot tell a Hottentot what cold is. But the one knows what cold means and the other what heat means, far better than any language of mine could express. How true it is in all things that we cannot tell any man what he does not know already in some measure at least. So John said to his little children that they had an unction (or anointing) from the Holy One and needed not that any one should teach them, for the anointing itself taught them, and he says it truth and is no lie. This does not contradict the statement that "Aquila and Priscilla could teach Apollos the way of the Lord more perfectly." A Hottentot knows what torrid heat means far better than I do, but yet I could teach him many things about heat that he does not know. And so we may instruct each other in the doctrine of Christ, but the power of a present Saviour each must know for himself. The babe who knows nothing about oxygen or hydrogen, about the elements of milk, or the love of a mother, yet breathes the air and drinks at the breast, and is enfolded by the arms of mother, love just as certainly as after many years have added to his stature and knowledge. The dear child, to whom I have just written, breathes the air of heaven, and is sheltered at the cross of Jesus, and is washed in his blood, and has the love of God shed abroad in her heart, and loves the brethren, but she knows, and can know as yet, but little of the doctrine of Christ, and still less of the ups and downs of christian life. She has entered the gates of a rich and beautiful country, but of its hills and valleys, and plains and streams she knows but little. You, my dear aged sister have been exploring this land of Canaan, this land that flows with milk and honey for many years, yet when you entered it you belonged to it as much as you do now; but it did not belong to you as completely as it does now. Now are more at home in it than you were. Its goodness does not surprise you as it did at first. Living at home, the home feeling has grown with every passing year. God's mercies seem no less wonderful than at first. Every season has brought to you the harvest of the new corn, and the new wine, but yet it has always been the old and oft repeated mercy that you had in all the past harvest times. New and yet old! Old and yet new! Great as the love of brothers and sisters may be for each other, and great as may be their joy in a brother's joy (and this joy you have often known in many past years) yet now in time of age, I doubt not you look younger brothers and sisters, not only with love, but with a tender motherly love. In the joy of young converts you can rejoice, but it is with a joy under which lies a longing for their welfare in the future, and a pity for their ignorance which is often akin to tears. As I talked yesterday with the dear child of whom I was speaking, and witnessed the buddings of heavenly faith, hope and love in her, and heard her brief expressions of peace and trust, my gladness contained an element that was nearer akin to tears than to laughter. Just to think what a blessed assurance it is, when we know that a soul is redeemed and born of God. We meet a neighbor day by day, we eat, walk and talk with him, but so far as we know, he is lost; and now, one day we gain evidence from him that he is not lost, but saved, and is to live and rejoice at the right hand of God in heaven forever. Is it not enough to bring the quick tears of a joy, better than any joy of earth, to our eyes. I never can lightly speak to, or of any one who experiences this salvation. It produces in me a soft, solemn, tender feeling of gladness too deep for words. I feel when I meet such an one like putting off my shoes from off my feet for the place where I stand is holy ground. God is there and where he is, is holiness and life eternal.

And now in the time of old age, do you ever feel as I do, all unworthy the love and confidence and reverence of these young believers? I am humbled and filled with awe before God when any of his little ones come to me either in their joy or their sorrow. And all that can strengthen me to suffer it is this, "it is in Jesus' name and for his sake." I am not worthy, but I am a servant, and if I speak God's word to them, it is his word to them, even though I speak it. And how humbled and how glad I do feel sometimes, that our God has given me a little to do in his vineyard. I am glad if only it be mine to bind up some bruised and bleeding vine that has been trailing in the dust. What an honor to be counted worthy to labor in his garden at all! I can account for it only on the ground that he calls whom he will, and manifests his grace by calling those who are all unworthy. It is blessed to serve the least of his, because thus we serve him. The cup of cold water, the washing of soiled and chapped and weary feet, the feeding of hungry souls, all this is blessed work, because thus did the Master, and thus we do these things unto him. And who is sufficient for these things? None but by the Spirit and grace of God. Oh to ever be kept in a constant sense of dependence upon him! In such an abiding experience is the source of both humility and strength.

Now my sister, I have written all this long letter with hardly an allusion to your dear and precious letter. I don't like to sermonize in letter writing, but if I have drifted into it here, you must excuse me as I know you will. Your letter was a source of real comfort to me, both for what it said and also because of the assurance of fellowship which it contained. As I am now writing I feel a great desire to see you again and converse face to face, once more about the kingdom and patience of Jesus. I trust the privilege may be accorded me ere long, perhaps this coming fall.

Our Association has now ended. It was held with the church at Black Rock. This session was the one hundredth anniversary of its organization according to the record. At Black Rock more than sixty years ago the convention was held which determined upon separation from the New School Baptists. The course of New School Baptists since in faith and practice, has shown that they did right. Salvation by the choice of man and the work of man, rather than by the choice of God and the work of Jesus, is now the sum of their faith. I see no difference between New School Baptists and Methodists, except in Baptism and church order or government. Black Rock church was organized in 1828. There were twelve members in its organization. One was living yesterday, but apparently near the end of her pilgrimage. I refer to our aged sister Rachel Enzor, who was with me in N. C. the first time I visited there. Many there will remember her. The other day I called to see her. She said tell them all at the Association, that I send them love, and that Calvary is all my hope. There is no one else in all this country now who was a member when the division at Black Rock took place. And very few members in all the land were members at that time. She has been a member of the church for sixty-six years. For twenty-five years and more she has been my firm and steadfast friend. How I shall miss her. Tuesday I said to her that I had always greatly prized her confidence and fellowship though I had not said so very often. She said "I have not heard an Arminian sentiment from your lips." How I shall prize this testimony! Our Association was pleasant, and the preaching far above the average.

Now my dear sister, I desire to send love to Brother Sylvester and to brother and sister Slade and brother and sister Moore and all the dear ones in Williamston. I trust it may be in your heart and in the hearts of all to remember me in your prayers. If you think best write an answer to this, and send both to either the LANDMARK or Signs I remain your Brother in the hope of the Gospel.

F. A. CHICK.

ELDER F. A. CHICK, BELOVED BROTHER IN CHRIST:—If I may still be permitted thus to address you. We know that the union and fellowship of the saints centers in the love of God, who has given his dear Son to die for poor sinners. So by the powerful work of the Holy Spirit they are called from the death of sin and made alive to Christ, and experience the preciousness of his cleansing blood, and the perfection of his righteousness which covers all their deformity. So all of God's chosen people are called into the fellowship of the saints. What a blessed and holy union it is. A sacred union; one not to be trifled with. How precious is this fellowship and love when realized in these low grounds of sorrow! And I often think how blessed and glorious will be that union when all the dear children get home to dwell in their Father's home and be made like Christ and dwell with him forever. All swallowed up in the ocean of God's love, our feeble minds and thoughts cannot comprehend these wonderful truths. It is only by faith that the dear saints can behold the far off land of rest.

My dear brother, your good and instructive letter to me bearing date May 22d, has remained unanswered a long time, but it was none the less appreciated, and I know you are aware of my imperfection of sight, not only natural sight but spiritual light and knowledge. I feel very weak and helpless in myself. More and more sensibly do I feel my need of the strong arm of Jesus to hold me up. My prayer is daily that he will not take my Spirit from me. Grace every moment need in youth and old age. You speak, my dear brother, that you have to write about old things, that you have nothing new to write; this is what we desire to hear about, the old wine of the kingdom. In regard to the things of the kingdom of God, it is old and new; it is one golden chain, linked together by God's eternal predestinating love. It is fastened to his eternal throne, runs down to time and goes back to eternity, where the plan of redemption was fixed. Jesus was as a Lamb, slain before the foundation of the world; and the precious blood of Jesus is said to "speak better things than the blood of Abel." All the prophecies that foretell of Jesus, this new and living way are of old. All the types and shadows; how wonderfully they typify the blessed Lamb of God. These are old things yet wonderful and glorious to dwell upon. They bring us down to the gospel day which we are now realizing, and has been realized and manifested for nearly nineteen hundred years. We live in a day that holy men of old desired to see but died without the sight. The prophecies, types and shadows in regard to the blessed Son of God in his coming into the world as the weeping babe of Bethlehem, His life, his death on the cross, his breaking the bars of death and rising a glorious conqueror over death, hell, and the grave, and his ascension to glory, where he now pleads for the purchase of his blood, all this work is complete, and all that is prophesied yet to come in regard to the church will be fulfilled, and the destruction of Babylon and anti-christ. Great, wonderful and glorious are the things pertaining to the kingdom of Christ. He is to come in all the glory of his angels with ten thousand of his angels to make his ransomed people home. Blessed are those eyes that see and those ears that hear the glorious realities of the religion of Jesus. It cannot be taught by men, the Spirit alone can teach and reveal the things of God. He is a glorious Sovereign and all his work is perfect. How many millions of martyrs have sealed their blood in testimony of the truth and power of Jesus' love. We hardly know anything in these times only to have our names cast out as evil. If there were more godly living there might be more persecution. I hope, my dear brother, you will be enabled to continue to write and preach about the old things and the new treasures of knowledge that dwell in Christ Jesus, and seek to comfort the dear sheep of the fold. Eternity alone will unfold the wonders of redeeming love; it is an ocean without bottom or shore.

How high and holy is the calling of God's ministers. May they be more fully strengthened to go forth as the winged messengers of the cross, preaching the word in lowliness and meekness, yet bold and fearless, avoiding all vain philosophy and vain genealogies, glorying in the cross of Jesus; this is enough for them. In regard to the things of this life we call to mind old things, and in all the wonderful works of God in creation there is enough to fill and occupy the mind of man. I, in my own thought and experience, live much in the past, for which I have to give God thanks for all the way he has led me down to the present moment. Man is so fallen that he grovels in the earth, and does not rise to explore the wonderful works of God in creation and his exceeding great goodness to the children of men.

My dear brother, I cannot tell how I do feel in regard to the young pilgrims when I hear of their coming to Zion, my feelings at times are inexpressible. I feel to rejoice and give thanks, but when I meet them I feel that I am so far behind, and feel to draw back. It often seems that their experience is larger than mine. When I hear of young soldiers I feel that I want to speak to them, and feel my heart so drawn out to them: I know they have entered a rich field of gospel grace, where rich jewels and pearls are in abundance, broad rivers and streams abound, where goes no "Galley with oars, nor gallant ship passes thereby." All who enter this field have to walk in a narrow, strait way, and tribulation is in all this road and at the end the door enters into glory, where trees immortal bloom, and pleasures never die. Victory is sure, not one will fail entering into rest. Dark and cloudy deserts often appear which make them tremble as they go. The cloudy chariot often appears, but the King is always found sitting in his Chariot. So light will spring forth from all the clouds and darkness, and in the midst of the mighty foes with which the dear child of God has to contend, the world, the flesh and Satan, their great Captain is near. We know the Lord is good. He is faithful, and he will never forsake them although they forsake him and often worship idols, but he calls them with his loving voice and says, "Return, O backsliding daughter, I am married unto thee, saith the Lord." I think I have heard his sweet voice many times calling me in low whispers, which has melted my hard, wandering heart. I wish I could write and express the emotion of my soul. I hope I do love the Lord, his cause, and his dear people, but I feel that I am far behind my fellow-soldiers, although my journey is nearly ended. I feel all the while that the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. How enrapturing the thought that Jesus who thus spake in compassion to his disciples, is now a living Saviour, in behalf of all chosen ones, who now dwell below and are the subjects of trial, and who know and feel the sting of sin, and know what sore temptation means.

Dear sister Enzor has entered into rest. She was a faithful, loving soldier. I know you miss her, as well as her brethren, sisters and friends. Many of our kindred are falling, but I, a poor pilgrim, still remain. My dear brother, I do not feel that I have half responded to your letter. I am weak and feeble, cold and barren to what I desire, but the Lord is good and perfection alone dwells in him. May your mantle of charity cover all my imperfections, and if in the midst of your cares and labors you should feel to remember an old pilgrim, will gladly welcome your letter. I hope you will be able to attend our association, and others of our brethren in the ministry.

With christain love and fellowship, I remain your aged sister in Christ.

M. M. HASSELL.

Williamston, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Feeling low down this evening the thought came to write you, and I do not know of a better way to occupy my time than to commune with brethren and sisters in Christ. I feel almost every minute like the tears will start. Why am I thus? Do you ever feel so and can't tell why? I wish I could say something that would be of interest to you, but what am I except the Spirit of the holy one comes down? I feel my utter nothingness and unworthiness more and more every day and hour I live. I desire to live an upright, godly life, to honor the profession I have made, but Oh how full of mistrust I am at times.

impatient. Oh, I see my inability in every thing.

This world is truly a wilderness of woe, but the crown is the christian's at the journey's end; then if I am a child of God why am I so cast down, so troubled on every side? There has been a time in my life when I longed to die to leave this world of sin and sorrow, for I felt I never could quit sinning against His holy name 'till breath left this body. Now I have come to where I desire to run the race with patience and be ready when he calls for me to go. Oh! give me submission and strength as my days may demand, is the language of my soul,

"O long dearest Lord
In thy beauties to shine &c."

I feel that when the Lord withdraws himself from me, to believe it is all for my good, then the mystery is why should I repine? when I do look for this blessed presence again and can't help but feel it will be so if indeed I am not deceived, but among the children of men there were none grater than John the Baptist and he doubted. These are scattering thoughts brother Gold. I wish I could talk to you this evening instead of writing. Pray for me. Yours in christian love I trust.

BETTIE Z. WHITLEY.

Hobgood N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Enclosed find one dollar for our esteemed sister Ruth Taylor, I hope the brethren and sisters will contribute freely.

When I came home and read her letter to Brother Bartley, and his appeal to the readers of the Land Mark, I thought "Who has read her cheering letters and will not be willing to give her something."

I know there are those who read letters, that have a will to have nothing to spare from their own families. But there are others who can spare a mite, and to them the appeal is made. Whatever enters into our hearts to give, let us give. I believe I have been chastened for not giving when I felt I ought to give. The apostle John tells us, "Who-so hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" Let us not love in word but in deed.

I have often been comforted and encouraged when I read her precious letters, and have felt like telling her what a comfort they are to me but have not. It is not my habit to eulogise, and often it is harmful; but a word of approbation will never make those the Lord keeps humble become to be puffed up.

Brother Gold, I am alone this afternoon, and feel like I would like to write of the goodness and mercy of God to me, the least deserving of all, but time will forbid it.

Pray for me, that I may live in honor to God and his people.

Your little sister in hope,

S. E. BROYLES.

Wikel, West Virginia.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Please give notice in the LANDMARK of the ordination of brother Thomas C. Hart as follows.

At the request of the church at Sandy Bottom, the church at Mewborns assembled in a special meeting on the fourth Sunday in December 1893, for the purpose of setting apart brother Thomas C. Hart to the full functions of the gospel ministry. Elders Thomas B. Lancaster and John W. Gardner were chosen as the presbytery.

After a few timely and appropriate remarks by Elder Lancaster the candidate was presented before the presbytery by the brother deacons. In behalf of the church Elder Lancaster opened the ordination services with praise; then he and Elder Gardner offered prayer. Then they laid on hands, and Elder Gardner delivered the charge, declaring him a full ordained minister, and to exercise his gifts where-ever and whenever the good Lord sees fit to send him. We pray the Lord may bless him and that he may be a faithful servant in the Master's vineyard. Affectionately,

L. J. H. MEWBORN, C. C.

ELDERS GOLD, AND LESTER, MY DEAR BRETHREN IN CHRIST JESUS THE LORD,—For sometime I have been thinking of dropping you a few lines, and sending the money for my LANDMARK which comes to me regular: and since reading the first communication in Feb. the 1st, I find that my soul, or mind, is more inclined to speak to the followers of that great Shepherd, whose hands are ever full, ready to scatter around to as many as are found bleating around, after the bread that feeds the hungry soul, that none can hand down except it be through and by the Lord and Saviour who is the Great Shepherd, that is always looking over His flock, saying, this is the way walk ye in it. Brother Durand, (though a stranger to me) knows something of and about this way. He has heard the voice of the great leader and, I must say at the time of his writing the little scrap as he calls it, that he must have been feeding upon the green pastures, viewing the still waters, and drinking from the well of everlasting life. What a blessing! I say again, what a blessing, to feel and hope that the voice of the living God has been heard in the land of His people. For the hour is come and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live. None will hear the Shepherd's call but the redeemed, and these are they that have come through great tribulation, suffering losses and crosses, persecutions, afflictions and trials of every kind, which are for our good if we only could at the time bear it as such; and were it not for that great Shepherd, who has said, I will lead you in paths not known, and make darkness light, never leaving nor forsaking thee, what would become of us poor, condemned helpless beings who feel that we are nothing having no strength of our own. I say what are we to do? Only to wait and depend upon Him who has said, I'll strengthen thee, help thee, and cause thee to stand, upheld by my righteous, omnipotent hand. It matters not how e'er so hungry we get the Shepherd will come in due time bringing no stale bread. Only the food from the Master's table, will nourish and satisfy the sheep that are bleating around the fold, they know of no other voice only his by whom they are fed. His voice is like no other sound, and blest are they who know it, for they shall walk in the light of His countenance. Brother Gold, I am often made to doubt myself fearing that I never have been born again. But when I look over my past experience, and realize how I have been led along for the last twenty-seven years, having at times, joy and consolation as well as trials and temptations, I can but exclaim with brother Durand, that the Lord is my Shepherd, my shield and hiding place, no other do I know. Yea, no other do I want to know. Oh, for grace to love Him more and serve better who has been so good and merciful to poor, unmerciful me. Oh for a closer walk with Him who has done so much for me.

poor sinners. I hear some say they are doing thus and so, for the Lord, and I hear so much of this kind of stuff that I sometimes ask myself the question, what shall I do? and as yet, have found no where to begin, for "grace crowns all the work through everlasting days. It lays in heaven the topmost stone, and well deserves its praise." One thing I know, where I was blind I now see that all my works are as the chaff before the wind, and if my salvation depends upon my works I am lost and ruined forever. I know whereof I speak. For I have been taught "that all thy children shall be taught of the Lord, and great shall be their peace." David said, "the Lord hath done great things for us whereof we are glad." Jesus says, "I thank thee, Oh Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and revealed them unto babes" (that must be fed with the sincere milk of the word that they may grow thereby: and "except ye become as little children ye cannot enter the kingdom." For it is by grace ye are saved, through faith and that not of yourselves, for it is the gift of God: not of works lest any man should boast. "No man shall know the Lord except He be revealed. For the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live." Therefore He calls them as a shepherd doth his sheep saying, "follow me; he that believeth and is baptized (not sprinkled) shall be saved;" and I am led to feel, that I can almost see them coming up out of the Wilderness, while some are lame, and limping, blind and dumb, some one way, and some another. Just so, are our trials in this life, some are in one thing and some in another. When I think of what I heard Chick say once, that it took trials to bring us to our senses, and indeed it is so, for if no cross, no crown. Often, Oh how often, do I feel cast down and forsaken, and for the last few years, have spent many lonely moments, passing off the time in deep meditation, looking on the grand and noble handy work of God, with a feeling of leanness about my soul, and yet, with all my unworthiness, would have to cry out within my soul, that God is my refuge and strength. He will give grace and glory, and no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly. But oh, where is my upright walk? Can I see it? No. Can I feel it? No. Yet there is an inward sense of feeling, longing to know, and to be in that strait and narrow way that leads to the lamb of God, who has blotted out the sins of His people, and redeemed them with His blood, asking no salaries, demanding no money, only asking if it were possible the cup might pass. For He was in the flesh having no sin, but must die, to save the sheep and little lambs that the Father had given Him, and all that hear His voice know Him, and none is able to pluck them out of his hands. What a consolation to the believer in Christ. Brother Gold, just at this moment, rushes to my mind thoughts about people going to foreign countries to save the heathen, just as though God was not able to save his people, let them be where e'er they may. In a Spiritual sense, are we not all heathens? Until quickened by Him who has all power, both on earth and in heaven. I fear the blind are leading the blind. Time and again have I heard their lectures, and the heathen subject discussed, both in the pulpit and out; and the biggest thing that I could see, was money first and money last and so they go, (Some how I cannot believe in man-sent men,) never expressing a holy and heavenly calling, and if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. But let the wheat and tares grow together until harvest, then will come the separation when many shall say, Lord, Lord, and shall not be able to enter in, because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. Yes, only a few whose robes have been washed and brought through flaming trials, "only their dross to consume, an their gold to refine." So go on brother Gold, feeding the little Flock who inherit the kingdom before the world began, remembering the two milch kine, that were tied and pressed down, having left all that was near and dear to them lowing as they went, turning neither to the right nor to the left, bearing a burden of sorrow that the world knows nothing of. Yet they took the strait way and went along the highway (not ways) lowing, depending upon their leader to pilot them on their journey as all the children of God, when oppressed and distressed, when hungry and thirsty, persecuted and tried, in afflictions and sorrow, (which are oft' in mercy sent) that work out for our good, and to all who love the Lord. Whether I am an heir or not, I don't know, for it doth not appear yet what we shall be. But I can say of a truth that I have passed through some of these afflictions, when new scenes were unfolded, and strange to say that some of my happiest moments have been in the midst of the furnace. Oh, how good the Lord has been to poor unworthy me. Help me to praise his name. His presence is dear, and his works are mighty, and past finding out. Remember me to your family, and to sister Greenwood who has realized something of life's journey, and were it not for faith and hope, which have been given her, she would have fainted by the way long ago. May the Lord bless her in these days of affliction; and also my dear brother A. N. Hall who seems as a father to me, for it was under his voice (that I was made to believe that he was a chosen vessel of God bearing the toils of the day, blowing the gospel trumpet, declaring the power of God, saying ye must be born again. I hope never to forget that day, when the Lord showed me He is the way, and how I had ridiculed his name, and had lived all the days of my life in self-righteous work, thinking that death was a long way off, and at any time I could pick up the whole armor of faith, and go on my way rejoicing. But now, all to the reverse, I found I was helpless and poor, having no city to dwell in, but a wilderness of woe and sin and soon found I was ignorant of the way, (and was under the law which is only a school-master to bring us to Christ. Therefore I sought refuge enquiring the way, and soon found that I must have a leader to pilot me in the right way, for my way was so dark and rugged, and full of sin, that I was brought to a standstill completely hedged in, and gave up all for lost. Suddenly these words were echoed in my mind with great power, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." Just then, I felt that storm was over and my soul was embalmed in peace forever, realizing Jesus the way. I must close, for the more I write the more I want to write. I love to speak about these things, remembering they that feared the Lord speak often one to another. I hope you will excuse and pardon me for these lengthy and broken sentences; these may be the last, for people are passing away very very fast, and I am continually w

Yesterday was my fifty-first birthday, and through these lines of scribbling I spent a portion of the day in speaking to you, which has been a pleasure mingled with pain. I have been confined to my room for some time, but the Lord is able to deliver us all from our afflictions. Pray for me dear brethren and sisters. Your sister in a precious hope.

FANNIE V. FIELDS.

LaGrange, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR PRECIOUS BROTHER:--I am glad to be able to say that I have recovered from my illness, and feel as well as ever. The Lord in his mercy has raised me up again, and I desire to be thankful to him. I was sick "nigh unto death," and felt sure in my own mind that I would soon be in my grave. I was beyond the reach of medical aid: the doctors gave me up to die, and even told my wife to prepare herself for the worst. But I could not go beyond the reach of God's power and mercy. He rebuked the disease and has restored me to health again. Many brethren and sisters have written to me giving expression to their sympathy for me and that their prayers to God were that my life might be spared for the good and benefit of the Lord's people, which I greatly appreciate and devoutly trust that I have been spared for greater usefulness to the people of God. As it would be quite a task to write privately to all the brethren and friends who have so kindly manifested an interest in my welfare, will you please give this a place in the LANDMARK that they all may hear from me and know that I am well again and expect soon, the Lord willing, to start out on a tour of preaching.

Correspondents will please continue to write me at Selma Ala. (463 Nance St.) I still feel that the Lord has made it my duty to travel and preach as long as he enables me to do so, whenever the way is open to me, and in order to find out such a way I would like to hear from brethren in each direction. I will also take it as quite a favor to me to be furnished with the name and post office address of the moderator and clerk of all the Primitive or Old School Baptist Associations in all the States and Territories.

Truly and fraternally yours.

J. H. PURIFOY.

Selma, Ala.

BELOVED EDITORS:--I have thought for a number of years that I would write a sketch of my experience from nature to grace, if indeed I have one. In so doing I want, in the commencement, to write something concerning my dear father and mother that have been dead for a number of years. I believe that I had as good a father and mother as ever lived. My father and mother professed a hope in Christ, and joined the Baptist church many years before I was born, and were very strict in raising their children by giving us good advice in all things concerning our welfare while we live, pointing us to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. My father, Zaccheus Boroughs, filled the office of a deacon in the church before my recollection. When I was quite small I remember going with my father and mother to their communion meetings and seeing my father take the bread and wine, hand it around to the church, and after communion they would wash each others' feet, and the command that our blessed Saviour gave in washing the saints' feet was kept up until after the division among the Baptists. Then the Missionary Baptists denounced it, and said the practice of feet-washing sprang from the pope of Rome. My father in raising up his children held family worship in his family. He owned servants and he would call them in; then he would read a chapter in the scripture of divine truth, kneel down, and pray. My father would ask a blessing at the table, and I heard my dear mother, when father was not present, ask a blessing at the table when we would sit down to eat. I could write a great deal more concerning the good qualities of my father and mother. They lived and died in Chatham county, N. C. My mother's maiden name was Frances Farror and was of Orange county, N. C., near Hillsboro. I was reared by good christian parents who taught me to live morally and shun every appearance of evil; but notwithstanding I was brought up by such good parents, I loved sin and rolled it under my tongue as a sweet morsel, till I was in my sixteenth year. While I and two of my brothers and some of the servants were engaged in breaking and dressing flax, I believe that the good Lord shined in my heart by giving knowledge to me that I was a sinner and if I died in that condition hell would be my portion. The noise that seemed to speak to me cut me to my heart which brought tears from my eyes. I then left the flax-brake and retired to a secret place where I thought no mortal eye could see me. There I prostrated myself on the ground, and thought that I would weep away my tears, then I would return to the flax-brake to my work again, and not let my brothers nor servants know anything about my troubles; but I was so much alarmed that I arose from that place and went to the house where my father was sitting, and got down on my knees with my head on his lap and said, father pray for me, for I feel like I am a lost and ruined sinner. My sins that I had committed seemed to rise before me like mountains, as it were. Then I forsook all my former comrades, and would retire to some secret place to pour out my prayers to God to have mercy upon me a poor condemned sinner before God. I was brought to the judgment bar of God, and there condemned to die, which I thought was just. My beloved brethren and sisters, I could not see in this agony of soul how God could remain just and I escape from that punishment that was due to my crimes. I thought that I felt more guilty than one that was guilty of murder and condemned to be hung. I travelled on in this horrible condition for several months, and thought I was the most miserable creature that ever lived. I could not see anyone but what I thought there was a better chance for that one than for me, and thought many times, oh that I had died when I was an infant, or had no soul. I thought the brute creation were better off than I. It appeared to me that all creation was in a mourning condition, and I thought that the cause of all this was on my account, that I in a short time would land in an awful hell; and that on account of my sins; and at one time I felt the pains of hell get hold on me, and I cried, Lord save, I perish, and I believe that the good Lord in a short time after this prayer delivered me out of that horrible pit and miry clay, and established my goings and put a new song in my mouth even praises to God. The evening that I believe my sins were pardoned I was going to the field to gather corn, and was alone, and such a great change took place with me that it looked to me that the whole creation was changed from darkness to light. The sun that enlightens the day it seemed shined brighest that I had ever seen it. It appeared to me that the trees in the forest were praising God for the riches of his grace towards me; and I believe that my sins were separated from me as far as the east is from the west. This was the happiest evening with me that I have ever seen. There were several passages of scripture that poured comfort into my mind, such as these, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, nor whither it goeth. So is every one that is born of the Spirit."

JAMES H. BOROUGHS.
(To be Continued.)

RESOLUTIONS OF LOVE AND RESPECT.

We the church at Great Swamp, Pitt county, N. C., recognizing and feeling the loss we have sustained in the death of our dear brother and Elder, David House, feel it our bounden duty to manifest our love for him and appreciation of his services as a minister of the gospel of Christ. Therefore be it RESOLVED, 1st:—That we feel in his death we have lost an exemplary, humble and sincere member of our body, and a wise, safe and faithful counselor and under shepherd. And though taken from the evils of the world, we sorrow not for him as those who have no hope, but believe he has gone to receive his reward.

RESOLVED, 2nd:—That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our church book and one sent to his bereaved family, with whom we deeply sympathize, and also one to ZION'S LANDMARK for publication.

Done by order of conference Saturday before the fourth Sunday Feb. 1894.

WILLIAM A. ROSS, Mod.
S. FLEMING, Clerk.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—You will please publish in LANDMARK that the colored brethren composing the Piney Grove union have united in an Association. The name of the Association is the Landmark Primitive Baptist association, and its first Session is appointed to be held with the church at Landmark (Peter Swamp) to comence on Friday before the Second Sunday in October 1894, and will hold the 3 succeeding days. The decorum of this Association is found in Hassell's church history on pages 108 & 109 & 110, and they adopted the articles of faith found in the same history on page 882 & 883.

This is done by order of the conference on Saturday before the 5th Sunday in December 1893.

GEORGE ROBBINS, Moderator.
W. W. LANIER, Clerk.
W. A. HILLARD, Assistant Clerk.

Elder P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Please publish in the ZION'S LANDMARK that the next Spring session of the Bear Creek Primitive Baptist Association will be held with the Pleasant Hill church, Iredell county, N. C., six miles South-west of Statesville, and four miles North-west of Troutman's Depot, commencing on Saturday before the first Lord's day in May 1894, and continuing three days. Ministers, brethren, sisters, and all lovers of truth invited to attend. All coming by the way of Charlotte will stop at Troutman's Depot, and those by the Western North Carolina railroad, stop at Statesville. Also those by the way of Salisbury stop at Statesville. All those coming by rail please write a postal card to brother J. S. Norris, Rock Cut, N. C. Also state which way you will go, and he will have conveyance at either place for you.

J. W. JONES, Clerk.
White Store, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 9.

WILSON, N. C., MAR. 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

Friend M. A. Enoch requests my view of Rev. 12th, chapter.

If I were qualified to do so the limit of this paper is insufficient to express fully the depth of meaning contained in this chapter.

There are however three characters worthy of our consideration, a woman clothed with the Sun; 2nd a great Red Dragon; And 3rd a man child caught up to heaven.

1st. The woman. This is a great wonder in heaven. It is not said here to be a great wonder on earth, or among men, but in heaven. It is in the child of God the wonder is, and especially as he appears in heaven, or as the church appears in heaven that the wonder arises. Why should I a sinner find favor in thy sight? How wonderful is this? Those who feel that they can do works worthy of salvation could not wonder if they are saved. They would be astonished if they are not saved and say Lord, Lord, have we not done wonderful works in thy name.

The woman sets forth the church.

This is a common figure in Scripture to represent the church of God. The woman is of the man, and they were both made in the creation. Of the rib which the Lord God takes from the man he builds a woman that Adam loves, who is the glory of the man. This is a type of Jesus the second Adam, and the church or woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. Her clothing is glorious—the sun. For brightness, purity and vitality represented by the sun she has no equal on earth. The moon under her feet sets forth the comforting truth that Justice symbolized by the law supports and upholds her as she stands on their solid foundation, the everlasting arm being underneath. For it is God that justifies, as is shown in the death and resurrection of Jesus for his people.

The crown of twelve stars on her head sets forth the doctrine and order of the kingdom of heaven as declared by Christ through the twelve Apostles of the Lamb who sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. This doctrine is a crown of glory, a diadem of beauty on her head. Her glory is on her head or on Jesus as it shines in the twelve Apostles of the lamb.

How do you know the true church? By the doctrine, power, faith, order and walk of the church of God. She is exalted above the hills or high, noted places of earth. She is lifted up far above all principalities and power in her husband.

head. Her righteousness is of God. No works of men defile the beauty of her clothing, nor weaken the foundation on which as the bulwark of God she stands. No teachings of men darken the lustre of the light of God that shines upon her.

But who sees this wonder in heaven? None save those to whom it is revealed. This great wonder appeared unto John when he was in the Spirit, and the heaven was open unto him. Truly it doth not yet appear what we shall be.

John the apostle did not know how glorious the church is in Jesus until it was shown him by revelation.

Nor does this refer to her in her ultimate glory after the resurrection of the dead, but this woman was glorious even before the birth of Christ. Substance is in heaven hid from us by the swaddling bands of flesh and darkness of our souls. The shadows and types of the legal world did not exist in any sense before the substance. For the substance is older than the shadow. That which is first in manifestation does not thereby prove its priority of existence, or its greater importance.

2nd. Here let us notice the dragon. He is a great red dragon, a powerful beast and red or warlike, having seven heads denoting much heady work, and full of ambition and opposition—ten horns denoting great fighting power, and seven crowns upon his heads denoting that he is regarded and worshipped as having or has great authority.

He also appears in heaven opposing the woman, or as her enemy. Now that such a dreadful dragon or beast should be in heaven with such masterful power and standing up to oppose this woman, and that this noted woman should be with child, and pained to be delivered, and that this dragon should stand up to destroy the child this woman should bring forth, was a great wonder.

The heaven was the legal or first heaven, the Jewish heaven wherein God appeared to his people, and gave them rulers and prophets to do his will, and wherein there were promises of the coming of the just one Jesus; but there were false prophets, and sons of Belial in that dispensation, showing that the dragon or devil exercised his power and dwelt in that kingdom. The many corruptions and perversions of that worship—the many false prophets, and departures of Israel of old from the service of the true God, show that the devil, represented by the great dragon, exercised much power then. Satan seems to have suspected from the beginning the coming of a Redeemer and he sought therefore to slay him, and hence he beguiled Eve. Then God said the seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head, and declared he would put enmity between the serpent and the woman, and between his seed and her seed. This enmity displays itself in Satan all the time. Hence under the legal dispensation the old serpent often appears against God's people to entrap and delude them. In enticing Israel into fornication and idolatry, covetousness or any wicked work, he appears in that heaven or kingdom. He drew a third part of the stars of heaven with his tail or by false doctrines.

Jesus was in the church in the wilderness by promise—in type and figure—in offerings, and bore the sins of the people in the types. He was also there in the prophetic declarations of a coming Redeemer, and thus in all their afflictions he was afflicted, and carried their sorrows all the days of old. Thus in the figure the woman appears as pained to be delivered of a man-child who is to have all power and all authority, or is to rule all nations with a rod of iron.

When Jesus is born Herod seeks to slay the young child, or the dragon stands up ready to destroy him. For the enmity appears in Satan the dragon. This enmity continues in the Scribes and Pharisees who sit in Moses' seat, or in the seat of authority, and they oppose Jesus and plot his death. Finally it is accomplished, the church flees into the wilderness, or escapes to the place prepared for her of God where she is nourished. The dragon attempts to persecute her seed that worship God.

You see that there is more than the literal virgin Mary who brought forth a Son. There is the church answering to the Jerusalem above which is the mother of all God's people. There is more than what appeared as the man Christ Jesus the Son of Mary. Hence he can be fully only known by revelation. God gives to every man as it pleases him.

The man-child brought forth by the woman to rule all nations is caught up to the throne of God, and all power both in heaven and earth is given into his hand. Jesus is exalted at the right hand of God on high a Prince and Savior.

Then, follows war in heaven, Michael one of the chief princes and his angels fought, and the dragon and his angels fought. But he was cast out of heaven, and no place was found for him in heaven; see Daniel 10:13:10:21 & 12:1.

This shows that in the gospel Jesus our great Michael has cast satan out into the earth, and he hath no place in the gospel heaven; but in that blessed heaven salvation is come to the people of God, and they stand on Mount Zion or in the New Jerusalem on a sea of glass mingled with fire, having the harps of God in their hand, ascribing glory and power, dominion and might to Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God who was slain for us, and hath redeemed us from all iniquity and made us kings and priests unto God, and we shall reign with him.

The gospel is the kingdom of grace—not of works—wherein Jesus reigns, and Satan has no place in this gospel heaven.

He is cast into the earth where he has great rage and persecutes the children of the free woman—casting out a flood of water (wrath and lies,) against the church or people of God. But the exalted helps the woman. Even the swallows up the lies and falsehoods of Satan so that they cannot destroy the people of God. This is done in two ways. There are men of earth that are friends to the church, and defend her. The earth also swallows or believes false doctrines, and becomes busied with their support and defense so that they are satisfied to drink these lies and relish them, and their minds become occupied and their energies directed and employed therein, and the church being in the wilderness is preserved.

P. D. G.

SALVATION OF BAPTISM.

[Continued from last issue.]

Every imagination of the thought of the heart of man is only evil continually, even from his youth, so that there is no ground or foundation for obedience or well doing in him.

Was Adam able to stand? was he able either to do, or to refrain from doing? was he made able to stand, but liable to fall? The very fact that he did not stand is in itself sufficient evidence that he could not stand, besides we have no warrant from the Scriptures that he could have stood. It seems to me to be as reasonable to claim that Jesus could have refrained from bringing his people into the justification of life as Adam could to have brought his posterity into condemnation and death. The will of God must be, and was done in and by Christ, and shall we say it was done also in Adam? Would it be consistent to claim that Jesus was made able to save his people, but liable not to save them, as that Adam was made able to stand but liable to fall? If in the weakness of man the strength of God is made perfect, could the utter weakness of man be made manifest otherwise than in and by the strength and power of God? "By man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." While death and life came alike by man, the coming of man is different, in that the one is of God while the other is from God, but neither of them without God. Their name is the same, and in that indicated by it (Adam) they are the same, but in their manifestation they are wonderfully different. The first Adam is of the earth, earthly; the last Adam is the Lord from heaven, a quickening Spirit. As death came by Adam, so also must life come by Adam. As death came by the first, life must come by the last. As life must come by Christ, death must have come by Adam. As death could not come by the last Adam, so also life could not come by the first. As life was not in the first Adam, no amount of doing, or suffering by him could have brought those who fell in him into it. As life was in the last Adam, nothing can prevent those for whom he suffered and died being brought into it.

Matthew in giving the lineage or genealogy of Christ declares him to be the Son of David, and begins his genealogy with Abraham and traces it to Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, while Luke begins the genealogy at Jesus, the reputed son of Joseph, and through Joseph traces it back and declares Adam to be of God. Now as the life of Adam together with his transgression or disobedience and the consequences thereof run along with and in his descent, so also do the life of Christ, his sufferings, obedience and the effects thereof go with and in his ascent. Through the disobedience of the first Adam the people of God descended into death, but through the obedience of the last Adam they ascend into life eternal. Christ having first himself descended into the lowest parts of the earth, the first Adam has also ascended far above all heavens, and Jesus makes his people to ride upon the high places of the earth—and to suck honey from the rock, and oil from the flinty rock by his obedience and sufferings. The suffering which Christ endured for sin that he might bring his people to God was not essentially of aches and pains, trials and conflicts to which flesh is ordinarily heir, but as it was Christ that suffered rather than Jesus, and Christ meaning wisdom—it was in the knowledge of sin that he suffered essentially. "He who knew no sin, was made sin for us." His knowledge of sin was not as of sin in himself, as of himself, but as of his people, and as a consequence of this knowledge he was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and his soul became exceeding sorrowful even unto death. As his suffering was in soul, mind and Spirit, his obedience must have been a Spiritual rather than a physical one. As His suffering was in knowledge, the obedience which he learned thereby must have been one of knowledge rather than some outward, visible labor, or performance. The consequences of sin and its destruction being a matter of knowledge or wisdom, sin itself must therefore be or consist of wisdom or knowledge rather an overt act. For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then shall your eyes be opened, and ye shall be as gods knowing good and evil. Gen. 3:5. The result of the eating of this fruit was that the eyes of Adam and Eve were opened and they saw for the first time their real condition, and fear fell upon them as they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden. "Last when it hath conceived bringeth forth sin, and sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." The conception of sin instigated the transgression, and the finishing of sin is the penalty therefor. While Adam and Eve had the knowledge of good and evil, yet it was not of that character of wisdom which prompts one to choose the good and refuse the evil, but which inclines him altogether in the way of evil. Sin is not that kind of wisdom whereby its own character is known, but by the law is the knowledge of sin. "I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived and died." The wisdom of the first Adam—the Christ—was both in its character and its effects. While he was a man and had the wisdom of man in perfection, yet he was more than a man and had wisdom far exceeding that of man. While he suffered as a man there was more than man in him which suffered. Merely the suffering of a man could but have counteracted or atoned for sin in the simplest sense, and could only have been restorative in its effects, but the sufferings of Christ did not restore man to his primeval state, but brought him to God.

"Christ took not upon himself the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." This was the life, nature, flesh and body of the seed of David, the flesh in which he was put to death which he took upon himself. There is a difference between himself, and that which he took upon himself, the body which the Father prepared him, and yet he offered himself without spot to God as well as he was put to death. He laid down his life and took it again, and yet with wicked hands he was crucified and slain, and his Father brought him again from the dead.

The effect of his death was both prospective and retrospective. He died as much to bring Abel to God as the last one who shall be manifested as one for whom he died. While he was put to death in the flesh yet his death could not be said to be a fleshly death, because his work was a spiritual work, therefore he was quickened by the Spirit; by which Spirit also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison.

The work of salvation being a spiritual work, it has a spiritual application which must be made by the Spirit, or by Christ through the Spirit.

The efficacy of the suffering of Christ in passing through the operation of the Spirit, unto those who lived before Christ, and had died in the flesh is ministered as unto spirits rather than unto men, and in the sense that Christ had not actually died for them, but stood as it had been a lamb slain from the foundation of the world, so in the like figure they though saved, stood as held in prison until his death. Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive be delivered? The captivity of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered; for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children. Isa. 49: 24, 25. These captive ones are the children of God who because of sin became the prey of the mighty and terrible one, and were held lawfully and justly as captives until the ransom price should be paid by the living Redeemer. This captivity was in force upon the vessels of mercy before the coming of Christ as it has been since upon those yet unborn, even of the flesh. We have been saved and called with an holy calling, a calling in and by the Spirit, not according to our works, but according to the purpose of God and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began. Abel, Enoch, and Abraham were saved when and as we were. But this salvation was not made manifest unto us until in these last times, by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. 2nd. Tim 1:9,10. We notice this salvation is made manifest by the appearing of Christ. It is not said of him that he appeared to any one until after he had suffered and rose from the dead. It was in this manner that he went and preached unto the Spirits in prison. There was an appearing unto the Patriarchs and Prophets before the coming of Christ, but not in this manner. Life and immortality was brought to light, but not through the gospel. Then day unto day uttered speech, and night unto night shewed knowledge, but now we have neither day nor night, but light. This light shines unto the perfect day. This perfect day is not as of the evening and the morning, but is the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men, and the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not." This light has ever shined with eternal brightness in Christ, but because of the misty, cloudy darkness of the former days it was not comprehended, neither is it now except by faith. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the light shall not be clear nor dark; but it shall be one day which shall be known to the Lord, not day, nor night: but it shall come to pass, that at evening time it shall be light Zech 14:6, 7. At evening time light and immortality was brought to light. The people which sat in darkness saw great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up. "In thy light shall we see light." This light is the knowledge of God, which is life eternal.

Christ was not only full of life but also of living waters which should flow out and give life to every thing found in its way.

These waters went out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. Zech 14:8. These waters flowed back to the offering of Abel which was the first type of the suffering and death of Christ and gave efficacy to it; and flows forward unto the manifestation of the last vessel of mercy, and will shed forth in him the healing effects of His wonderful suffering. As Jesus is the judge of the quick and the dead, or the living and the dead—those who lived and died before he came being the dead, and those living then and afterwards the living—it was necessary that the gospel should be preached not only to the living, but also to the dead, that they—the dead—might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the Spirit. 1st. Peter 4:6.

The disobedience of these spirits, like the obedience of Christ is peculiar to them. Their disobedience was not in every respect like

Adam, neither was it like that of those to whom the law was given, nor is it like that of the people of God to-day. These spirits seem to me to embrace those who lived in that dispensation extending from Adam to Moses. "Death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression." They did not eat of the fruit, nor were they tempted so to do. The law was not given to them as given by Moses, nor were they as we are, the recipients of the blessings of the gospel under the law of Zion.

Their disobedience was during the time that the long-suffering of God waited while the Ark was being prepared. The Ark, prepared by Noah, stood to that dispensation as the Ark of the covenant did to the law dispensation, and Christ does to the gospel dispensation.

Noah and his house-hold were baptized in the flood, but saved in the Ark. The waters of the flood represent the elements of death, as water itself is such when swallowed up in it, while the Ark is a type of Christ, and the law in the cloud is the sign of the covenant of God to Noah.

Noah in a figure is brought forth from the dead in and by the Ark, and the bow is a sign that he shall not see such death again, and that he is saved of God, and is righteous in him, and it is an abiding sign to him of the ever faithfulness of Him who hath promised that seed time and harvest should not cease for-the long-suffering of God by the Ark is typical of the everlasting love, and loving kindness of God, and the suffering and resurrection of Christ by which all his people are saved in an everlasting sense.

I do not understand, as the Roman Catholics claim, that these spirits were in Purgatory, and that the spirits of all go there immediately after death and must be quieted, and redeemed therefrom through the intercession of the priest, but that it is in and by the Spirit, as a matter of faith, of which Jesus is author and finisher, that this work is done.

The election of grace is a spiritual work, and was done before the world was, but is manifested in time. It being a spiritual work it must have been done by the Spirit: and while the subjects of election are men, yet they must have a spiritual identity and standing in order to the conception of their election. And this divine substance in and by which they are identified as chosen in Christ, and manifested in the new birth, and in the ministration as to those who shall be heirs of salvation, is spoken of as spiritual, spirit and spirits. "But ye are not carnal but spiritual; that which is born of the Spirit is spirit; know ye not that they are ministering spirits sent to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation? From this last we learn that each heir of salvation has a ministering spirit.

P. G. L.

(To be continued.)

salvation of Noah through

UNION MEETINGS.

The Contentnea Union is appointed to be held with the church at Autrey's Creek, Saturday and 5th Sunday in April.

The Skewarkey Union is appointed to be held with the church at Great Swamp, Friday, Saturday and 5th Sunday in April.

The Toisnot Union is appointed to be held with the church at the Meadow, Saturday and 5th Sunday in April.

The Black Creek Union is appointed to be held with the church at Creech's Saturday and 5th Sunday in April.

OBITUARIES.

MISS MATTIE LONG.

Died at the residence of her brother, Dr. B. L. Long, in Hamilton, N. C., Nov. 15th, 1893, Miss Mattie Long of typhoid fever. The subject of this notice was born in Martin county, February 29th, 1856, and was the daughter of Samuel and Martha Long. She was from her childhood remarkable for her quiet, affectionate and winning disposition, and seemed to attract toward her all with whom she was associated, and was one of those persons with whom the more we were associated the more we love. I have known her for several years, and never knew nor heard of her speaking ill of any one. She was a sincere and devoted lover of the truth as it is in Jesus, and for several years had a precious hope in the blood and righteousness of our Lord Jesus Christ, though never did make an open profession of his name by following him in the liquid grave. She was one of those fearful and trembling ones who never seemed to have that strength of impression and faith to enable her to take up the cross, but manifested many indubitable evidences that she was a child of God. She was taken with typhoid fever, and had partially recovered, but had a relapse which ended in death. A few days before she died I was sent for as she wished to see me. When I went, I found her very weak, so much so that she was able to talk but little. She said she wished me to read and pray for her, which I tried to do, and afterwards talked awhile with her. She said she felt so vile she could not pray for herself, and felt that she did not have that assurance that she needed to die with. I told her I was sure the Lord would give it to her in His own good time, which he did. Just before she died the Lord manifested himself to her in a wonderful manner, and she passed from this world of sin and sorrow, we are sure, to a world of perfect rest and peace with the presence of her Savior to conquer her last enemy and give her a glorious and triumphant victory. She leaves five sisters and two brothers besides many other relatives and a host of friends who sadly miss her, especially her devoted brother, with whom she lived, and who so tenderly and anxiously did all that could be done in her sickness. But in the hearts of those that are made sad by her absence there rests the confidence of her better resurrection to comfort them. And may the hope that when the time of their dissolution from earth shall come that such a death as hers shall be theirs. Truly it is written "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." May the blessed Spirit of the reconciliation possess the hearts of all the bereaved ones and that grace that can save the vilest and support the weakest be their strength and support.

Yours Affectionately,

M. T. LAWRENCE.

Hamilton, N. C.

MRS. LEONA SHEPHERD.

Sister Shepherd was born the 9th day of August, 1823, and died of Consumption January 5th, 1894. She was married to brother Huel J. Shepherd, January 25d, 1845. They had 12 children, but six of them preceded their mother to the grave. She joined the Primitive Baptist church in November, 1837, and remained a faithful and devoted member 'til she was summoned to the bright courts of heaven. She lived in the church nearly fifty seven years during which time she looked through a glass darkly, but now, to her, "that which is perfect is come." A few days before her departure she said, "The Great Judge is near at hand and everything looks bright and pleasant." She expressed a willingness to depart, and said, "I cannot

I have been spared so long." A short time before her death by her request I, in company with Elder Joel E. Marshall, preached at her house, and she seemed to greatly rejoice, although she was suffering much. She glorified God in speaking of his goodness. She made choice of Elders Allen Thomas, Joel E. Marshall and the writer to preach her funeral which we did. May the Lord bless the bereaved ones with a spirit of reconciliation, and enable them, with one voice, to say, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

F. P. BRANSCOME.

JEREMIAH BASS.

Died at his home near Lucama, Wilson Co., N. C., Nov. 13th, 1893, brother Jeremiah Bass, in the 70th year of his age. He was born June 1, 1823, married in October 1843, and leaves the wife with whom he had lived over fifty years to mourn his loss, irreparable to her, also leaves two children who are settled in life. Like all men he was a stranger to the religion of Jesus Christ, until arrested by the Spirit of God and made to see the wickedness and rebellion of his heart against the High and Holy one, and to mourn and cry for mercy which God only could bestow, until Jesus was revealed, "the hope of glory." Hence he was made willing to be the servant of God, and follow him in his ordinances; so he went before the church at Lower Black Creek, and having told an experience of grace was received into the fellowship of the church and baptized on the 14th of September, 1875. His qualifications as a deacon appearing to all, he was ordained to that office in about one year after. As a member he was prompt in attendance at church meetings, and enjoyed and rejoiced in the preached word, and was always ready and willing to help bear the expenses of the church. As deacon, he filled his office well, and purchased to himself a good degree and great boldness in the faith. He visited the church but a few times in the last year or two of his life, as his afflictions were great, but a glad smile would ever play upon his countenance, indicating joy within when the brethren called in to see him and talked with him on the theme nearest his heart, and dearer to him than life itself. He loved the good ways and religion of our fathers and was glad to walk in the old paths, and not to be despised by those who lie in wait to deceive. The humble writer visited him in his last sad affliction and was glad to see his faith was strong and unmovable, and while he could see and know he was going from earth, it rejoiced him in soul to think on and speak of the precious Savior of sinners, of the good Physician, of the God of Jacob, a present help in every time of need. He would often say I know Jesus is all and in all, and can fashion this vile dust like unto his glorious body, &c. He was patient and resigned to his Master's will, and oh, what a sweet and happy release he must have had when God broke the fetters which imprisoned him here in sin, sickness and extreme pain and death, and took him into the rest, peace and glories of heaven. He has gone. We shall see his face no more; but let us pray that we may meet him in glory. He was a kind and tender husband, and shared in all the joys and sorrows, suffering and comforts of life with his companion, whom we feel has a good hope through grace though not openly confessed. We pray the Lord to sanctify this dispensation to her good and give her grace to bear with patience all earthly trials and to follow Jesus in the way. May their children be directed to Jesus and he made to know him in redeeming love.

A. J. M.

PENINA WEAVER.

In compliance with a request made by her children, I try to write an obituary of our aged mother in Israel, sister Penina Weaver, the wife of Hines Weaver, who died, I think, a year, or more before her death. I lived near her for a number of years and therefore know something about her as a natural, as well as a spiritual mother. She was born in Edgecombe Co., December, 19th 1819, and died October, 4th, 1893, aged 73 years, 9 months and 15 days. I was acquainted with her about 25 years, and my knowledge of her is that she was a kind and devoted wife, a loving and patient mother—a faithful friend and a very useful woman. Indeed, in her day and generation she was a devoted and loving christian, a faithful attendant to her church meetings and duties, and a great encourager and comforter to her brethren and sisters. While she has passed from our view her light is still shining, and though the sound of her voice is hushed, yet her words and actions picture in lively features a life worthy to be imitated by all of us who are trying to walk in that strait and narrow way which is Christ. Sister Weaver was the mother of 14 children, six of whom still live. Five of them now belong to the Primitive Baptist church. Sister Weaver joined the church at Union in 1838 and remained a peaceful, orderly, member all her life thereafter. My wife and myself will ever remember her as a good neighbor, a loving sister and great comforter. She often told me of her strong faith, and said she felt, that when the happy welcome should come to depart from this life she would be as a caged bird turned loose to soar away to the happy regions above. I can rejoice and feel that she is free from all trials and troubles and is with Jesus in heaven, our home, where I hope to meet her again. Your brother,

M. B. WILLIFORD.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

A. N. HALL.

Wilson Tuesday after 3rd Sunday in March.
White Oak.....Wednesday
Meadow.....Sat. and 4th Sun
Autrys Creek.....Monday
Old Sparta.....Wednesday
Tom Creek.....Thursday
Union.....Saturday
Mill Branch.....1st Sun. in April
Falls.....Monday
Tarboro.....Tuesday
Little Creek.....Wednesday
Cross Roads.....Sat. & 2d Sun.
Lawrence.....Wednesday
Kehukee.....Friday
Conoho.....Sat. & 3d Sunday
Hamilton.....Wednesday
Spring Green.....Thursday
Flat Swamp.....Saturday
Bear Grass.....4th Sunday
Briery Swamp.....Tuesday
Thence to Union Meeting at Great Swamp.
He will need conveyance.

E. C. Smith.

Cross Roads N. C.....4th Sun in March Handcocks.....Monday after
Red Banks.....Tuesday
Tysons.....Wednesday
Old Sparta.....Thursday
Tarboro.....Sat. and 1st Sun. in April Conetoe.....Monday after
Great Swamp.....Tuesday
Briery Swamp.....Wednesday
Flat Swamp.....Thursday
Bear Grass.....Friday
Smithwicks Creek.....Saturday

Singleton.....2nd. Sunday
White Plains.....Monday After
Moratack.....Tuesday
Jamesville.....Wednesday
Skewarky.....Thursday
Hamilton.....Friday
Spring Green.....Saturday
Conoho.....3rd Sunday
Lawrence.....Monday After
Kehukee.....Tuesday
Deep Creek.....Wednesday
Whitakers.....Thursday
Williams.....Friday
Falls Tar River.....Saturday
Mill Branch.....4th Sunday
Toisnot.....Monday
Union.....Tuesday
Old Town Creek.....Wednesday
Autrys Creek.....Thursday
Meadow.....Sat. and 5th Sun.
Wilson.....Wednesday night
Goldsboro.....Thursday night
LaGrange.....Sat. and 1st Sun. in May
Conveyance needed.

M. F. STUBBS OF GA.

Smithfield N. C. Tuesday after 3rd Sun April
Bethany.....Wednesday
Cross Roads.....Thursday
Memorial.....Friday
Wilson.....Sat. and 4th Sunday
Union.....Monday
Old Town Creek.....Tuesday
Sparta.....Wednesday
Conetoe.....Thursday
Great Swamp.....Friday Sat. 5th sun
Bear Grass.....Monday
Smithwick Creek.....Tuesday
Shewarky.....Wednesday
Spring Green.....Thursday
Hamilton.....at night
Cross Roads.....Friday
Tarboro.....Sat. and 1st Sunday in May
Lawrence.....Monday
Conoho.....Tuesday
Kehukee.....Wednesday
Deep Creek.....Thursday
Williams.....Friday
Falls.....Saturday
He will need conveyance.

J. A. BURCH

Surl (at section meeting) Friday Saturday and 1st Sunday in April.
Roxboro N. C.....Monday
Shiloh.....Tuesday
Stories Creek.....Wednesday
Flat River.....Thursday
O Briens School House.....Friday
Wheelers.....Sat. and 2nd Sunday
Prospect Hill.....Monday
Lynchs Creek.....Tuesday
Arbor.....Wednesday
Country Line.....Thursday
Pleasant Grove (section meeting) Friday
Saturday and 3rd Sunday.
Will need conveyance when not on railroad.

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYOR

J. H. Griffin 50 cents.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches & F. & N. Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH

DATE: ED Jan. 1, 1904.	No. 24 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 50 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 47	9 51	10 45	12 02
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Tarboro	12 07
Lv. Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 55	11 25	1 57
Lv Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 25	1 15	4 50
Ar Florence	5 5	3 27	6 15
Lv. Wilson	1 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 00	6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 13	7 40
Ar Wilmington	5 50	10 00
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH

DATED Jan. 11, 1904.	No. 24 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 50 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Pineaux	7 1	7 05	11 50
Lv. Fayetteville	10 47	9 30	9 23
Lv. Selma	11 10
Ar. Weldon	1 00	11 5	4 30
Lv. Wilmington	9 00	7 00
Lv. Magnolia	10 40	7 35
Lv. Goldsboro	12 00	8 45
Ar. Weldon	12 45	10 35
Lv. Weldon	1 11	11 25	10 40
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 27	12 05	11 25
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 17	12 05	0 01
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leave Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 30 a. m., Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 30 a. m., returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 55 a. m., arriving Goldsboro, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Goldsboro, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrives Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount 11 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hill 6 50 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 12 a. m., Nashville 8 25 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 6 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 40 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5 30 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 20 a. m., Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. N. F. DIVINE,
General Supt.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMBERTON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00. Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25. Per dozen, by mail, $12.00.
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.
In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.
Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Order, or by Express. Address
J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable. The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad grates, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment is a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sex-on, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges. Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CLAY, FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 8, 1893. All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	From Wilmington.....Lv	7 05 a m
1 45 p mFayetteville.....Ar	10 10 a m
4 35 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 42 a m
3 12 p mSanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
1 47 p mClintons.....Lv	1 43 p m
12 50 p mGreensboro.....Ar	3 15 p m
12 57 p m	From Greensboro.....Lv	4 55 p m
12 55 p mStokes Co.....Lv	3 15 p m
11 42 p mN & W Pct—A. Cove.....Ar	4 20 p m
11 35 p mN & W Pct—W. Cove.....Ar	4 33 p m
11 40 p mRural Hall.....Lv	5 05 p m
9 45 p mMt. Airy.....Ar	6 30 p m
	No 3	No 4
	From Beaufort.....Lv	6 45 a m
Maxton.....Lv	7 37 a m
Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m
Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m
Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No 16
Daily Ex		Mixed
Sunday.		Daily Ex
7 35 p m	Ar.....Rural Hall.....Lv	6 50 a m
3 55 p mClintons.....Ar	8 40 a m
3 50 p mGreensboro.....Ar	9 25 a m
No. 15		No 16
Mixed		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily ex
Sunday		Sunday
7 43 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 45 a m
7 55 p mStokes Co.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 50 p mMadison.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R.R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Beaufort and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at noon A. M. and leave 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mng'r.

W. EKYLE,

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1853. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at Elm City, Wilson Co, N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

Mrs. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist, Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

APRIL 1, 1894.

NO. 10.

Zion's Landmark.

APR 1 1894
Kendall Library

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilton, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."—Exodus 20: 8.

This subject has been lately upon my mind, and I feel like talking a little about it, for we hear so much said about the keeping of the Sabbath in this religious day in which we live, that the question arises, who are they that keep the Sabbath, and who are the Sabbath-breakers. To my mind if we, according to the strict letter of the law, examine the works of men, we will find that those that pretend to keep the Sabbath are Sabbath-breakers. For in this day men are trained up in schools to earn their bread by performing certain duties on Sunday, which is called the Sabbath; thus their own works testify against them, for the law expressly says: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." "Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work, but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord, thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates."—Exodus 20: 8, 9. Thus according to the laws all such are Sabbath-breakers, for the religious world doth not keep the law perfect, and if guilty in one point they are guilty of the whole. But in this article I wish to show who are the people that remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, for that command was given unto the children of Israel before the law was given from Sinai. It was given when the Lord gave unto the Israelites bread from heaven, and in the gathering of that bread this law was to be observed. They were to gather manna six days and to rest on the seventh, for that day was to be kept a Sabbath, holy unto the Lord. This commandment of the Lord is figurative of the experience of every subject of grace. The six days represent the travail of the soul under the conviction of sin and of death, and the seventh that peace of conscience received when you cease from your labors and rest in the Sabbath of the Lord, who hath delivered you from the presence of your enemies, and you acknowledge him as your deliverer, your Savior and your God. These characters remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. To them that day is a memorial that time cannot remove; it is the passover into the congregation of the saints, and the door of entrance into the church of the living God. Nothing in this world is so dear unto them as a memorial as the Sabbath day. When the Lord gives rest unto their souls it is truly a holy day unto all such to whom the Lord has given rest, and they remember it and keep it holy. But with worldly religionists the day is different, they have no rest, that is the day they have set apart for doing the most work, they move heaven and earth to convert the world on that day; all the powers of man, money and means are brought into requisition to save sinners on that day. Work, work, is their cry when they law says "Thou shalt not do any work." But some one will say we are working for the Lord. Then what does the Lord tell you to do, to break his Sabbath? Let us look at the figure. The bread the children of Israel gathered was bread that came down from heaven, not the production of man, and all God required of them was to gather this bread to sustain natural life, and satisfy their hunger. Yet it had to be gathered according to commandment: they could not lay it up in store only on the sixth day, and that extra allowance was for the Sabbath day. Thus we find in our own experience, God must give us day by day our daily bread, both natural and spiritual, no surplus stock over to feed worms upon. Only for the Sabbath day can we lay by in store to be used on that day, and to remember the goodness of the Lord, in saving us from our destroyers as we pass through our pilgrimage here on earth. The world have their Sabbaths in forms and ceremonies, and plenty of bread of their kind but Old Baptists have no relish for that kind of food. They have a remembrance of it, while living in Egypt, also the flesh pots, the melons, leeks and onions. But having tasted of the heavenly bread they know the difference between that which is heavenly, and that natural bread which suits the carnal appetite. But I did not design to go back to Egypt to find the Sabbath day. Though we are in nature all born in Egypt, and to be prepared to keep the Sabbath day have to be brought up out of Egypt by the mighty hand of the Lord, a little of our experience in our Exodus from Egypt, both literally and experimentally. You have read how the Lord sent Jacob down to Egypt to sojourn there many years, and of Joseph and his brethren, and after that time of Moses and Aaron, and how the Lord sent Moses and Aaron to bring Israel out of Egypt, and the plagues visited upon Pharaoh and the Egyptians, and the way the Lord led them out of Egypt, through the Red Sea, the wilderness of Sin, and of the destruction of the Egyptian host, and the great joy of the Israelites when they sang, "The Lord hath triumphed gloriously, the horse and the rider hath He thrown into the sea;" and the praises they sang unto the Lord, saying "Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the gods, who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders." Did you ever sing that song in your own heart. When he brought you up out of the land of Egypt and in your own experience when it appeared that mountains of sin were on each side of you, the Egyptian host in the rear, and the Red Sea in front; and it seemed to you in that condition you must perish and die: no way of escape. It was there the word came unto you to "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord." The same word that was spoken unto Israel by Moses the servant of the Lord. We all recollect that part of our experience, when we were without hope. Yet the Lord opened the way, and you passed through the waters on dry land, and the waters of that sea which seemed to be an impassible barrier were made a deliverance for you from your enemies, by swallowing them up. Just so in your experience, the mountains of sin surrounded you on either side, and a watery grave seemed ready to receive you in front and in the rear. Your old task-masters were pressing you forward to destruction, and you no doubt remembered your sins and gave up all for lost. Yet your God was between you and your enemies, and he commanded you to stand still and see his salvation. Did you not in your experience pass through the same doubts and fears that Israel did when they were called out of Egypt. I can well remember my own experience, when it seemed to me there was no hope of escape. I thought like the children of Israel did, when they cried unto the Lord, "And they said unto Moses, because there were no graves in Egypt hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness." In that condition we learn the lesson that salvation is of the Lord; there is no Sabbath day to the poor soul in the land of Pharaoh. He must cross the Red Sea; the mighty hand of God must deliver him out of the hand of his enemies. The waters of death must be rolled back as a testimony to remember the Lord that delivered him, and when he has passed through all the appointed ways the Lord leads him, then on the other side of the sea he looks back over the journey he has passed, takes up the song of Moses and the children of Israel saying, "I will sing unto the Lord for he hath triumphed gloriously, the horse and the rider hath he thrown into the sea. The Lord is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation, he is my God, and I will prepare him a habitation, my father's God and I will exalt him." Did you ever sing that song my dear brother and sister. Yes you sang it on the banks of deliverance, when the Lord called you up out of Egypt, and it is your favorite song of songs through the journey of life. It was then a Sabbath day of rest to your soul, and a beginning of days in your pilgrimage here upon earth. Brother Gold, I have rambled over this subject as my mind has run. There is a beauty in it to me. The christian Sabbath is precious to every believer in Jesus. He is their Sabbath day of rest, and when they shall see him as he is they will be satisfied, for all the types, shadows and figures used in the Scriptures of divine truth center in Jesus, the christian's rest, the Sabbath of the Lord. None that have eaten of the heavenly manna, and drunk the waters that flowed from the rock can forget the day that the Lord took them by the hand to lead them out of nature's darkness into his marvelous light. No, it is imprinted upon their minds and written in their hearts and they have this promise, "That he will be their God and they shall be his people." With love to yourself, brethren and family I remain, I hope, a poor sinner saved by grace.

Affectionately Yours,

JOSEPH BROTHERS.

Alexandria, Va.

EXPERIENCE.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I feel that I want to give you a few hints of what I think the Lord has done for my soul. In 1839 I become to feel myself to be a great sinner, and I tried to pray to the Lord for his mercies. I went on in that way until the next year when the Free Will Baptists were carrying on a protracted meeting near me and my husband belonged to them. I felt like I should die so I joined them thinking I would find relief. In about four months my troubles came back again worse than ever. I could only look to the Lord for his mercy, and felt like I wanted every body to pray for me. I found out I could do nothing myself. In 1890 the Lord came to me in my sleep. I thought he carried me to a beautiful place and placed me on his right and told me my sins were forgiven, and I felt better than I ever had before and loved everything on earth. In 1891, it seemed I was led to a place of water and I could see no land except the place I was standing on, and that was so small I had to place one foot on the other until I was taken off and put with the happiest people I ever saw, and I was happy too, and before day the two first verses of, awake and sing the song of Moses and the Lamb was sung to me, and when I awoke was singing and felt like I was lightened, and the same year I was carried to a place of the prettiest water, and there were six little children all dressed in white and I made the seventh one. I was in the midst of them and one of them was standing beside me and baptized me and I felt like I loved the Primitive Baptists better than any other people, but I did not feel worthy among them, but still I had a desire to be there. I went on that way until the next year and felt impressed to go to the Primitive Baptists and tell what the Lord had done for my soul. Before the meeting I became so troubled I could hardly do my work. The same year in May I felt like I wanted to go and that I was living out of my duty. On Friday before the meeting I was sick and tried to pray to the Lord to enable me to go to preaching one more time, and this hymn came to me, "A few more days on earth to spend, and all my toils and cares shall end," and I felt like I would be able and did go, but did not offer to the church. I still went on feeling I was out of my duty. My trouble seemed to be worse. On Saturday before the fourth Sunday in last April I offered and was received, and after I went home that evening I felt like

I wanted a brighter hope for myself and I prayed that the Lord might show me if I was deceived; and this was presented to me, the first and second verses of the 14th chapter of St John, and I felt like it was great satisfaction to me, and was baptized the next day by Elder G. D. Roberson.

Yours in hope

MARY. L. HADDOCK.

Hampton, N. C.

THE WORD.

Surely the word of the Lord is a treasure out of which (or in which) those who are instructed or taught of the Lord, bring forth things new and old. So I feel to-day, although it is a dark, rainy day such as usually depresses one. When we are given a glimpse of the Kingdom lighted by him, and are enabled to bring out things new and old, we are contented and nothing seems to go wrong. Then it is we can say and feel that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord. What a treasure we have and how little we grasp of its vastness and value. Every day we find something new and yet we can say that it is old as the eternal promise, and so pure and perfect, that it cannot change. We cannot grasp the immensity of the earth, and we stand and wonder at the beauty of the rose by the road-side. Then can we say much of the kingdom of God and the rose of Sharon? When some gifted Artist hands to a fellow-student a drawing of the human hand he feasts his eye and artistic feeling on the beauty translated before him, and by a quick sketch an artist will suggest, to others who have the same knowledge, much of the truth and beauty of nature. So those who are gifted spiritually can by a few words suggest to those who have the same knowledge much of the truth and beauty of that world that man in nature's blindness never is able to see, in the kingdom of God.

If these things in nature are beautiful and worth the time and trouble taken to learn to see them, how much more this world in which we see their Maker. While I enjoy nature in all her moods, yet when I can see Him I say the world of nature is lovelier than before, but how much more beautiful is His Kingdom.

Then if the rose in nature is beautiful and the human hand so fair, let us think of the Rose of Sharon and the hand of God. If we can see these it will enable us to find new beauties in nature, beauties that an artist cannot paint. Nature is indeed beautiful, God has made no mistake in her creation. Every step that man has taken, from sun to sun, from pole to pole, has revealed new beauties and mysteries. "This world's a wilderness woe" does not seem to apply to the landscape I see before me at sunset, for this is a picture by a Master workman that tells me that rest and sleep are near, and that joy cometh with the morning. The wilderness of woe is in me, my own wicked heart. The Lord in showing us our sinfulness hath blest us with a knowledge of our need of a Savior, a better world and a beautiful life. We have felt the bite of the serpent and the need of an almighty power. So we look upon Jesus and live. Not look and be made alive. This brings me to the text I wish to speak, God willing.

"And as Moses lifted up the serpent, &c., Jno. 3, 14. What was it lifted up for, and how? The people of Israel spake against God and against Moses: and the Lord sent fiery serpents and they bit the people so that many of them died.

"Therefore the people came to Moses (a type of Christ) and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the Lord and against thee, pray unto the Lord that he take away the fiery serpents. Moses prayed for the people, and the Lord said unto Moses, make thee a fiery serpent and set it upon a pole, and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live. And Moses made a serpent of brass and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass that if a serpent had bitten any man when he beheld the serpent of brass he lived."—Num. 21: 7, 8, 9. Please read it over as I have not tried to quote it all for brevity's sake.

Bear in mind that these are the Lord's chosen people. He had led them from the darkness and oppression of Egypt on towards the promised land. He saw their trials, temptations and sin. He heard their murmurings, but all this did not change him nor his purpose. For he is faithful that promised. They must be made to feel the need of help. So the fiery serpents were sent, and in the conviction of sin, and fear of death they came to Moses confessing their sin, and asking him to pray for them. Now, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness so must the Son of man be lifted up." The serpent of brass was not lifted up until the children of Israel had been bitten by the serpent and after they had felt the dire effect of that bite; their sin against God and their leader. Then when they saw the serpent of brass they lived and were healed. It did not make them alive, for they had natural life and were promised that whosoever looked upon the brazen serpent should live. They asked Moses to pray that the serpents be taken away, but just when they were taken, if at all we do not know. We do know though that when any man was bitten when he looked upon the serpent he lived. So the sting was healed and the effect of it. It seems to me that looking upon that brazen serpent was at once a confession and an appeal for help. In seeing it they remembered their sins with sorrow and the promise with joy. So do we at the present time hear one crying, "I am lost, a poor sinner, bitten by the serpent of sin and am nigh unto death; and a little later, "Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The fact of their feeling the sting, the bite of the serpent, was proof that they were alive naturally. So the fact of your sorrow for your sins is proof of spiritual life. This desire for strength to live a better life is a proof of a better life within. You would not cry out on your bed at night, "Lord have mercy upon me a sinner" if you did not know the Lord. If a child knows its father he goes to him for help, so do you. Why don't you cry to someone else? Because you know there is help no-where else. A dutiful child loves his home and family, that is why you are seen lingering among your Father's children. But are you dutiful enough to help them bear their burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ? Just as sure as you desire salvation, as sure as you feel the need of a Savior, as sure as you cry, "Lord, have mercy upon me a sinner," in bitterness of spirit feeling your burden: then just as sure as the Rock of Ages, just as certain as God is great; you will see, or have seen the Son of Man lifted, by our great Law-giver, and seated at his right hand. So with all his people when they see him they remember their sins, and in the love-watches of the night they cry out in anguish of soul, God help me a poor sinner. I am wicked and unclean! Then looking at the Son of man lifted up and pointed to by the law that he fulfilled in everything, they live and love their God and his people. At such times I think they can say, I thank thee Father that thou canst read my heart aright. No friend on earth can except by the Spirit. But thou canst, and I am comforted, for although he sees the sins and sinful thoughts, He reads also the earnest prayers for help and strength to walk worthy of the vocation," to lead a better life, and the desire to resist evil. Though he sees each sin committed, he also hears the cry of sorrow when you think the household is sleeping, when those who love you best are sleeping not knowing your trouble. They cannot comfort you, but God can speak peace and he will when your duty is done, and when you have obeyed his command manifestly as you have in Spirit. "Look unto me and be ye saved, all ye ends of the earth." His eye never sleeps and he is a Father of love who in his own time will give you praise. May you, my brother or sister in tribulation, as you read this be enabled to say, "His yoke is easy and his burden light," and may you find rest for your soul, is the prayer of an unworthy brother, if one at all.

DUDLEY G. JOHNSON.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.

MISS BETTIE F. HYMAN,—BELOVED SISTER IN THE LORD:—YOUR Epistle of love and sweet fellowship was received the other week, how glad I was to know I am remembered by such a dear sister. How wretched I feel to know that I have neglected you so long. You asked me in your letter Dec. 1st to write my experience for publication, but it is so much below your expectation was why I did not do so. I always feel a delicacy in telling my hope fearing that I am deceived and will deceive others. My reason for a hope is so small I scarcely can claim any, yet I would not take the world for it. I have been raised up by Primitive Baptist parents and I believe them to be Baptists in deed and in truth, though my father is not a member but is a strong believer of the Primitive Baptist doctrine. My mother has long ago tried the realities of another world. When I was very small I would try to do the best I could until I would tire, then I would do just as I pleased let come what would after I died, for I could not help sinning if I enjoyed myself any. As I grew older I would think there was no hope for me such a poor sinner as I was. I went on thinking I could get religion at my own will until '92 when it pleased the Lord in his infinite mercy to show me how far I was from the path way of righteousness. I had no power to come to him if I tried but all my efforts were in vain, all unholy, all unclean, nothing but sin. The more I tried to do good the more I felt my weakness and imperfection, forgetting it is written that Christ came to save sinners, of whom I felt one of the chief. I must confess that I never before saw any beauty in Primitive Baptists, but now I loved those Old Baptists and loved to get in their company and listen attentively to hear them tell their hopes and fears to see if theirs would accord with mine. Oh how sweet their conversation was. I thought I would live content where I was. I was so young, fearing I was deceived and would deceive others, bring reproach upon them and be a stumbling stone. In June '93 my impression to join the Baptist church became such a burden, I felt like I could not live where I was. I felt like David "I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. I had rather suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasure of sin. I prayed to the Lord if it was my duty to make it plain to me and remove my doubts and fears, and I believe my petition was answered. For the first time I was given strength. On July 21st I went to the church, was received and baptized by Eld. Joshua T. Rowe, he being with us at our union meeting: he is to me a dear Brother and Father in Israel. If the Lord's will may he live long and be given grace to comfort the weak and trembling ones. It was one the happiest days of my life. I sincerely believed that I would never doubt again, but oh how different, well might the great Apostle say oh wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death. If saved a sinner saved by grace. Dear sister, may you be given grace to sustain you in all your troubles, trials, and afflictions knowing these afflictions are but light to be compared with the Glory that shall be revealed in us and working out for the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Write soon, and come to see us when you can. Yours in hope of a better resurrection, NANNIE M. JAMES.

GAY AND COSTLY DRESSING.

Dear brethren, the above subject has been much discussed in some sections and perhaps entirely neglected in others, and in as much as the brethren are not agreed in regard to it, and it is the duty of gospel ministers through gospel teaching to endeavour to bring about a unity, I feel impressed to write an article on the subject. I am sure that we desire to know and do what our Master has required of us in regard this portion of the scriptures as we do in regard to other points. One of the worst evils now amongst us is paying all attention to some portion of God's word to the neglect of other scriptures. David said, Then shall I not be ashamed when I have respect unto all thy commandments. My attention was first called to this subject by Elders Isaac Jones and B. H. Wooten, this was about fifteen years ago: it was new to me. I had never heard of it before, and their arguments seemed strange and uncalled for, and I felt to condemn their preaching on that point just as most all Bptists do perhaps upon first hearing it. I condemned it from a human or fleshly standpoint, and not from scriptures, for I never once thought of referring to the scriptures as the perfect rule. Custom, habits have a strong hold upon us, hence what we are accustomed to wear seems right and that accounts for the ease of mind which some have who disregard the commandments of Christ on this point. Several years ago I wrote an article for the Gospel Messenger in disapproval of some. Elder J. H. Parifoy of Alabama on first reading it intended to reply to it, but when he reread it he said he found scarcely anything that he wished to say against it. I will now offer some reasons why we should not wear gay and costly dressing: 1st. The scriptures condemn it, and really it would seem that other reasons are unnecessary as a wise Judge once said to a gentleman who proposed to give twenty-seven reasons why a certain witness was not in court: the first he said he is sick and cannot attend. That is sufficient said the Judge. In like manner also that women adorn themselves in modest apparel with shame—facedness [modesty] and sobriety, not with braided hair or gold or pearls or costly array 1st Tim. 11.9. Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold or putting on of apparel, but let it be the hidden man of the heart in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet Spirit which is in the sight of God of great price, 1 Pet. 3: 3-4 By braided, and plaited hair is meant a certain gay or fancy way of dressing presenting a vain and showly appearance, hence the Master forbade such in sisters, and if it was forbidden to them it is to brethren too of course; see James 11:23. Now to refuse to heed those Scriptures manifests a stubborn and rebellious disposition which is as the sin of witch-craft and as iniquity and idolatry for which refusal to obey God's word Saul was rejected from being King. 1st Sam. 15: 23. And to refuse to heed those words of the Holy Ghost is to resist the Holy Ghost and God will as certainly reject us in our petitions to him and refuse us the rain and dew of his refreshing presence as he rejected Saul when Saul rejected God by rejecting his word. God would not answer him by Prophets, nor dreams, nor urim. What a solem warning to us: we ought to prize his word more than health, wealth, father, mother, or even life itself. The poet has said, it were better the prison, the iron, the sword, than to quench but one spark of the God-given word.

2nd. To heed the commandments of Christ is to serve him, and he hath said, whosoever serveth me him shall my Father honor, and it gives us a right to the tree of life, which the disobedient forfeit by disobedience, and he has promised to his obedient ones that they shall abide in his love, and that they may ask what they will and it shall be granted. John 15. "Then shall ye call and I will answer, ye shall cry and I will say, here I am. Thy light shall break forth as the morning," Isa. 58, and we read, "God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted of him." Acts, 10; which means that he will as certainly comply with his promises of blessings to the obedient of all nations, as he did to the Jews and that in the day that the righteous man turneth from his righteousness he shall even die thereby or fall short of the blessings. Abraham was justified by works when he offered Isaac upon the altar. He was justified as an obedient servant and would have been condemned had he disobeyed, but he was justified by grace as a son years before. To refuse to heed those Scriptures is to refuse to fast from pride; whereas to fast from pride and the many lusts of the flesh is far more acceptable to God than to fast from bread and meat.

3rd. Some brethren and sisters are too poor to wear gay clothing, gold watches, rings etc. Hence they feel cramped, and there is a want of equality among us, and no one knows how cramped some poor saints feel unless they have been in the same condition, and as the poor cannot keep pace with the rich it would look like the rich might afford to return or go to them in these things. I have heard of sisters of a country church refusing to visit some church in town because of these things, and so a coldness is gotten up between them.

4th. It is not economy to buy a gold watch when as good a silver one can be bought half as cheap, hence to buy the gold one is to refuse to set an example of economy, and to disregard the commandment of Christ to be the salt of the earth to some people from extravagance and pride, as well as to save them from other evils, for if the salt hath lost its savor it is thenceforth fit for nothing but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men. A refusal to practice those things because we are not willing to take up the cross, is to become like a dead fish which floats down stream. Besides the gold watch not being bought merely for service it is bought for vain show. Would it not be better to buy the silver one and take the balance of the money required to buy the gold one and give it to some poor sister in the poor house, or some one oppressed because of debt. Some one will say well I worked for my money and have a right to spend it as I please. Well you may have a civil right but you have not a Christian right. The Apostle says, "The lust of the mind, the lust of the eyes and the pride of life is not of the Father." Then I ask, of whom are these things? Answer, of the devil. The love of vain show has caused many a person to steal, rob, extort, murder. It hardens the heart, blinds the eyes, sears the conscience, perverts judgment, produces envy and jealousy, has broken many a heart, and produces untold and unnumbered evils. I am not certain that created angels have not fallen through being lifted up with pride. 1st Tim 3: 6 2nd. Peter 2: 4. Jude 6. We are all proud but we should mortify it. But jewelry and costly array says one does not make me proud. Therefore I may wear it, but notice my brethren, that the Scriptures don't say you may wear these things if they don't make you proud, but you are forbidden to wear them. Beside if we are to take the motives of brethren for service to God without the deeds in this thing, why not apply the same rule to every other duty and quit baptizing, communing &c. Oh my brother, this is one of Satan's snares to catch you. One may say, that my arguments look rather pharisaic. I answer, it is not to our praise to let Pharisees be more obedient to Moses than we are to Christ. I once asked a northern Elder what those Scriptures meant: he answered that the people in those days were poor, hence forbidden to wear costly array: but I remember that the proverb says that a drowning man will catch at a straw." Another Elder answered me "If a man's religion consisted in his dress his religion is vain." I might have retorted then, if one's religion consisted in obedience to any other command of Christ his religion is vain. I had not hinted that obedience to Christ in this thing would produce regeneration or hinder it. I have heard that when some brethren go to the Northern Associations they dress more finely than at home Associations. I wonder if they wouldn't feel a little ashamed of homefolks. I once prayed to the Lord to show me what was right on this subject. That night I dreamed that two Elders and myself were in a room, one of them dressed in costly clothes and very fine, with gold watch and chain. I asked if such was not condemned in God's word? The plainly dressed brother answered "it is." The other Elder immediately changed his costly clothing and gay ornaments, and dressed Scripturally. That dream satisfied me. Thus God who revealed things to prophets in dreams did the same to me. If the Scriptures condemn sisters for dressing their hair in a vain and showy way, does it not condemn them for vain and showy head-dressing, and other showy ornamentation. But says one, "Elder A and Sister B dressed that way and they were excellent and exemplary Christians." Well I don't deny but that they were far ahead of some who have not erred in dress, but were behind in that respect. If some brother is ahead of another in some practice it does not justify his other wrongs. We should never point to the practices of esteemed brethren to prove a point, the Scriptures are the only and sufficient rule of faith and practice. 5th, To refuse to heed the Scriptures on this or any other point tends to a refusal to heed other Scriptures. I am opposed to this system of spiritualizing away the literal meaning of the Scriptures. It is a snare of Satan and a mark of infidelity. Some refer to the gold of the Temple and Altar to justify themselves in wearing gold; thus trying to array one Scripture against another to justify their pride. The gold of the Temple and Altar were typical of the Spiritual ornaments of the church and the Gospel, &c. Brother Gold, I think I have written this through a good motive in honor to Christ, and for the good of his cause; but even if my motive is bad still what I have written is true. Of course it is like myself in its composition: it is imperfect, but in matter it is like Christ. I more and more see the need of showing God's people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins. Isa. 58. We spend too much time fighting Arminians.

I. J. TAYLOR.

La Grange, N. C.

ELDERS GOLD, AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN:—According to promise made to the brethren while South to write to them on my return home, and let them hear from me how I am when I returned, I will here state what I reached home on Saturday night after leaving them on Friday. I was almost senseless part of the time from high fever. I hardly remember taking the train at Wilmington, and changing cars at Newbern. I put myself in care - of the conductor, and told him where I wanted to get off, and they brought me safe through the line after Brother Hart left. I was very sick after changing the cars at Newbern. I scarcely remember getting off the train at Newport, but reached the store and put my valise in brother Hardy's care, and went home finding my family all well, and also brother Hardy's family. I continued very sick for three days. Since that time I have greatly improved, so I can go about the village as usual, and attend to my business as well as could be expected, for which I feel thankful to God. I also desire to return my heart-felt thanks to the brethren South for all this kindness to me, and trust that God, the giver of every good and perfect gift, may sustain them in all their trials and difficulties in this life, and finally bring us to our eternal home that remains to the people of God, when we may see him as he is and be satisfied, and not before. We shall be satisfied when we awake in his likeness. During my short time in the ministry of about four years I have met with many trials, conflicts, afflictions, disappointments, and have been made to wonder why it is this way with me, if I am a child of God, and often times I have thought that all these things are against me. My way is hedged in and my path obstructed and shrouded in darkness, without a ray of sunlight to illuminate the gloom of mortality. I feel left alone to grope my way through the dark, isolated world, having no friends, and no sure abiding place, my soul cast down, and my spirit disquieted within me. I try to seek him whom my soul loveth, but find him not; and oh that I knew where I might find him whom my soul loveth. I would go even to his sea'. Then again, the God of Israel appears' to me as my deliverer, as holding his hand on the throttle valve of the universe, as upholding all things by the word of his power: hence he delivers me out of my distress, the sunlight along my pathway, gives me beauty for ashes, the oil of gladness for mourning, leading me beside the still waters, making me to lie down in the green pastures, covers me with the shadow of his wing, as the shadow of a great rock in weary land, all of my troubles it seems are turned into joys, and I feel like the goodness and mercy of God are unspeakably great to me, and that I have Jesus to myself, a whole Jesus and more to thank him for than any one else. In my times of trouble I can realize the hand of the Lord more powerfully in my deliverance, his love and mercy seem plainer manifested to me at such time than when all things seem to be moving along smoothly with me. I did not feel able to take the trip when I left home, but felt that I could only try and leave the result with the Lord. My feeble health did not excuse me, no brethren, there is no excuse for that man that God has placed on the walls of Zion. They are not to hold their peace day nor night. Necessity is laid on them, and woe is unto them if they preach not the Gospel. It is a power that compels them to turn their back on house and land, wife, brother, mother and sister, to spend and be spent, live or die, trust their lives in the hands of God that giveth and taketh away, that he hath delivered and doth deliver, and in whom we trust he will yet deliver, and sustain us as the sparrows of the air, and lilies of the field which toil not, nor spin, neither have they store-house or barn, yet Solomon in all his Glory was not arrayed like one of those. I will close hoping that the Lord will strengthen me for the labors he has, or may require at my hands, far or near. With desire to be remembered by the people of God at a throne of Grace, I am your afflicted Brother in Christ with a precious hope through Grace. E. C. SMITH.

Newport, N. C.

BROTHER GOLD :—To-day I received the LANDMARK for the first time in seven months. I wrote you a letter from the Insane Asylum where the worldly and ungodly put me, to have me out of their way, to keep from hearing my objection to their worldly and ungodly practices. The truth stings and cuts, and is very unpleasant to the deceivers who say, "We know God, we love God, we have God in our hearts," when in reality they are unconverted sinners. What they say of God is only to deceive their fellow-creatures. A child of God, one who is born again of the Spirit, is born of, the Father, is loved by the Father, is loved by Jesus, the Christ : is filled with the Spirit, his or her talk, his or her rejoicing. Happiness has a good cause and reason, not a worldly pretension, not an object to deceive, not a way to mislead. Let thy light shine for the benefit of men. A child of God, one who has a spiritual experience, feels delighted to work in his Father's vineyard, regardless of worldly compensation, regardless of worldly praises, regardless of fine clothing worn; God's work, God's will, the love for God the Father, Jesus the Christ, and the love for the neighbor is and should be reward enough. As in the words of Solomon, where he asked for knowledge, wisdom, love and patience to rule Israel. The Father said, as you ask for this only, and not for wealth this shall be added." All that is on earth, all that is in the sea belongs to God, the Father, and it was plas-ced here for men to receive and to enjoy. Not for men to become lovers of the world, not to become idolators and lose sight of God, by and through earthly engagements. Gold and silver were placed in the earth to become a benefit, a convenience, in exchange for all merchandise. Our All-wise God knew what men needed before the world was created. The children of Israel became lovers of gold rings, &c. When Moses left them to go to the Mount and receive the commandments, the Father knew their hearts were on gold, their minds were worldly, and they demanded a calf. This calf did good because it did away with all the gold ornaments.

If ever a country needed a Redeemer, if ever a people needed a Reformer, if ever a nation was on the downward road it is the American people. The rich are dissatisfied, the poor are displeased, the House of God is corrupt, and the churches and synagogues. Why? Mammon rules. When the poor in heart are mocked, the God-fearing are persecuted, imprisoned. They are taken away from their houses and homes, regardless of what becomes of their families. Why? To satisfy Satan. How long Oh God can such continue? How long, oh Father will you permit Satan and his agents to rule? I pray Thee beloved Father, to make an end soon by setting up thy kingdom on earth as in Heaven. Your brother in Christ,
MOSES NYE.
Newark, Ohio.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER.—I notice an article in the LANDMARK of February 15th, from Brother T. J. Bazemore, Chipley, Ga., which makes me greatly fear. I trust that my poor heart thirsts for the truth. It is the truth that makes us free, and I wish to rejoice in the truth of our blessed Lord.

Brother Bazemore writes in the spirit of meekness which makes me feel that I love him, and what I shall ask for is information. As perhaps I have been rejoicing in something that is not the truth. As you are aware of the fact it is a custom for the Primitive Baptists of Georgia to commune; that is, to break the bread and eat, and to drink the wine. After which they wash the saints' feet. Brother Bazemore says, "While the blessed Saviour washed his disciples' feet and told them that they ought to wash one another's feet, He did not tell them that they ought to do so in a church capacity, and it is a remarkable fact that in all the New Testament we have no account of the saints' washing one another's feet in a church capacity." &c. Have we an account in all the New Testament where they eat the bread and drink the wine in a church capacity, or where Christ told them to observe this in a church capacity? Are we observing these things from tradition? If so would it not be best to leave them off? Whatsoever is not of faith is sin—and if it is from tradition it certainly is not of faith. If I was baptized from custom it was not of faith. I trust I was exercised by faith in our blessed Master who gave us all the ordinances, precepts and examples that we might follow him. I would not want to eat and drink with a brother who did not do it in faith. Neither would I want a brother to wash my feet who had no faith in it. I have greatly rejoiced in these things, and if I have rejoiced in tradition it is a sin to me, and if a sin I want to leave them off, that I sin no more, and I shall thank brother Bazemore if he will enlighten me upon the subject, or you my dear brother, if you have the mind to write. JOHN F. LORD, Tennile, Ga.,

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 10.

WILSON, N. C., APR. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

GREATER WORKS.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do: because I go unto my Father;" John 14:12.

Brother Cliett of Ga. requests my view of the above Scripture. He desires to know WHAT GREATER WORKS are meant. In this chapter equality of Jesus with the Father is taught. Ye believe in God, believe also in me. And again he said, he is the way, the truth and the life, and there is no way to go to the Father except by him. Further he said, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father;" and that the Father dwelt in him, and he in the Father, and that the Father does the works in him. Hence the divine nature and character of Jesus must be revealed and dwell in our faith, if it overcomes the world. It is the one in whom we believe does the work. If we have faith in God that means that God does the work. The power in which we believe and trust is the power that gives character to our professions good or bad. If we worship devils it shows that we are led of the devil, and our course is shaped by him, and we are partakers with devils. A man whose hope is in the Lord is influenced by the power of the Lord in what he does.

Jesus says, he that believeth on me the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto my Father. The exaltation of Jesus to his Father was to invest him with all power in heaven and in earth, and prove his divine character beyond doubt and this blessed power would operate and work in him that believed in Jesus the greater as Jesus is the more exalted. For the work of Jesus was not finished, nor the blessed fruits and effects of his glorious work fully manifested until he ascended to his Father. But when the work he came to do was accomplished, namely redemption for his people, or when he was delivered for their offences and raised again for their justification, then his glorious power in saving perfection would be displayed in the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven in his name, and manifested in those that believe in him. For it was expedient for the disciples that Jesus should go away, for if he did not the comforter would not come, but if he went to the Father he would send the comforter, who should take the things of Jesus and show them to his followers.

The greater works to be done by him that believed on Jesus, because he had gone to his Father, meant that the works would be a greater display of grace. This shows that it is the work of God to believe on Jesus, and that the Spirit quickens and does the work. For instance, on the day of Pentecost when Peter preached the resurrection of Jesus, or that he had gone to his Father, there were about three thousand souls added.

The miracles of Jesus while he was in the flesh were such usually as healing diseases, casting out devils, raising the dead to life, but here the more glorious order, or greater miracles wrought by the Holy Ghost, as the apostles preached the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from Heaven, were displayed and that Scripture fulfilled. Jesus straitened in the flesh did not do many mighty works because of their unbelief. But after he had sown the good seed by his death, in the resurrection is the harvest when the saving power of Jesus is most wondrously displayed in those that believe.

There is nothing impossible to him that believeth. Ask what ye will in the name of Jesus and it shall be done: "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask anything in my name I will do it."—John 14: 13-14. This proves that it is the Lord himself doing the works in the believer, or that Jesus does greater works through the Spirit in his people after his exaltation than were the works he did while humbled in the flesh, and that many more believed on him after his resurrection than before, and that the greatest fruit of his redemption is the eternal salvation of his people as brought to light or revealed in preaching the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. P. D. G.

SALVATION OF BAPTISM.

As they have their standing in the Spirit, as is the Spirit so are they, and upon the other hand as are they so is the Spirit. While those who lived and died before Christ died, were free from sin by faith in Christ, yet in the Spirit, by faith, were they held as prisoners, just as those yet unborn of the flesh, who shall be heirs of salvation, though perfect and free from sin in Christ are yet shut up under the law unto the faith which is yet to be revealed.

There is a sense in which the ancient saints could not be perfected or made perfect without those of modern times. "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise." "God having provided, or foreseen some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."—Heb. 11:39, 40. While I am unable to say in what respect they were in every particular not perfect, yet it is reasonable to conclude that the going and preaching of Christ by the Spirit unto them as unto spirits in prison liberated them wherein they were held, and perfected them wherein they were lacking or deficient.

Just as that which was written aforetime was written for our learning that we, through patience and comfort of the Scriptures, might have hope. So also that which came after, directly touching us, was for their perfection, that they together with us might be brought into the unity of the faith of which Jesus is author and finisher; which was once delivered unto the saints, and for which we are to earnestly contend. "Behold, how good, and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."—Psalm 133:1.

As faith is a fruit of the Spirit, and there is a unity of the faith, there must be a unity also of the Spirit. Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."—Eph. 4:1.

There being but two classes of men—the Jews and the Gentiles, the elect in either are reconciled unto God by the cross of Christ, and of the twain one new man is made in him, so making peace. Christ having slain the enmity—the law of commandments in ordinances—in himself—came and preached peace to them that were afar off, and to them that were nigh; those who sometimes were far off having been made nigh by the blood of Christ. Through the death of Christ all the elect of God from the first to the last are gathered up and brought into him in one living Spirit and faith. "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles—(Greeks)—whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit."—

1st Cor. 12 : 13.

This salvation in and by the ark as used here by Peter is that of the living rather than of the dead, and in that sense it is mainly considered in these thoughts.

Noah's life, character, sphere, state or condition were in no wise different after the flood than they were before, except he was free from the tauntings of his enemies, and had much ground for comfort in those things which he had learned in passing through the flood and the blessed assurances reflected from the law, one of which was that he had the answer of a good conscience toward God that he was righteous. This was a figure of better things, and Noah's benefit and comfort in it were equal to the degree of the assurance and the foretaste of that which was assured. The salvation of Noah was by water in that he was, in the ark, borne upon it above the tops of the highest mountains, and quietly lowered by it to rest upon the top of the mount, and passed thence into the possession and enjoyment of the earth which was his inheritance.

The children of Israel were baptized in the cloud and in the sea. The cloud kept them hid from their enemies, and reflected the preserving presence of God. It advanced them on their way and retarded the approach of their enemies. The water by which Noah was saved drowned the world. The waters of the sea which stood as walls upon either side of the Israelites and afforded them an easy passage, swallowed up the Egyptians. The waters of the Jordan separated at the approach of the priests with the ark of the covenant, and stood upon an heap, while Israel entered the land of Canaan. Twelve stones were set up by Joshua in the midst of Jordan where the feet of the priests stood, and twelve other stones were taken up from this place by twelve men, one from each of the twelve tribes, and were taken to where they lodged the first night after passing over, and were lain there for a sign and a memorial unto Israel forever. This was a kind of answer for them toward God of an abiding consciousness of the righteous judgment of God in their redemption and salvation, as is signified by the word "Jordan." This was such a constant reminder as it stood there, and as they were to rehearse to their children the wonderful deliverance which the Lord had wrought, that they could never forget it and regret having passed over this Jordan. Neither does one ever regret having been baptized to whom it is an answer of a good conscience toward God.

As Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep, was brought again from the dead by the blood of the everlasting covenant, and as it was his own precious blood that was shed, he must have been himself the very embodiment of that covenant, and his body the Ark thereof. And as it is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment, so Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many : submitting himself to him that judgeth righteously. This judgment upon the part of Him that judged, took place just prior to and in the operation of the resurrection, by which act the judgment of God is declared to be that, by the blood of Christ his people are freely justified from all things from which they could not be justified by the law of Moses.

"Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. Those who are justified by the blood of Christ stand unchargeable, unrebukable and without blame before God in love, and when through the revelation of the Spirit they are made conscious of their justification, by faith they have peace with God, through the Lord Jesus Christ.

They having been kept shut up under the law, unto the the faith which should afterwards be revealed, are, in the revelation of this faith, buried with Christ by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so they also should walk—by the glory of the Father—in newness of life. Having been in this vital sense baptized into Christ, and into his death, and quickened together with him, and been raised up together with him: and having, in the revelation of faith, been made partakers of his life, they are declared, by the Spirit of God to be the sons of God, by which Spirit they are sealed unto the day of redemption. By the righteousness of the righteous servant of God, who should justify many, are they now justified and become in faith identified with the general assembly and church of the first born, with the spirits of just men made perfect, and with Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. In this mystical assembly we find Noah, who was a living man and a preacher of righteousness. His salvation in the Ark was not to give him life or make him righteous, but he was thus saved because he was righteous, and this salvation was a figure of that by which he attained unto righteousness. The like figure whereunto baptism doth also now save us, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Baptism is a figure of the resurrection. Just as a figure stands in relation to the substance so the benefit of the figure stands to that of the substance. In the same sense that baptism is a figure of the resurrection, the salvation of baptism is a figure of that of the resurrection.

In what sense are we saved by the resurrection of Jesus Christ, or what is the salvation of the resurrection? What new thing was the result of the flood? The first thing was the establishing of a covenant by the Lord, which should be between him and the earth, and with Noah and his seed after him, and with every living thing: and the token of this covenant between Him and the earth was his bow which he set in the cloud, which was to be a perpetual one, which is even so unto this day, "And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth." When this bow appeared in the cloud, Noah looked upon it and had hope in God that he would never cut of all flesh again by the waters of a flood, and also remembered the salvation of God by the Ark. These clouds were a constant reminder of the wonderful exhibition of the wrath of God by the flood, and the bow as constantly reminded Noah of the covenanted promise of God, whereby he was saved from fear and utter despair. I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living. Ps. 27-13. This bow is an abiding assurance of the continued mercies of our covenant keeping God unto this day, and is a figure of the promise of God as made in that everlasting covenant ordered in all things and sure, and reflected in that blessed hope which abides, and which we have as an anchor of the soul both sure and steadfast, and by which we are saved. The bow stands to the covenant with Noah, and the salvation of the Ark, just like our hope stands to the everlasting covenant of God, in eternal salvation, and the death and resurrection of Christ, wherein and whereby we have the blessed assurance that as Christ died unto sin once, but now liveth unto God, so also we being dead with Christ shall live with him. When the dark clouds from Mount Sinai roll over the earth and we hear the thunderings of His awful voice, we should utterly faint but for the shining forth again of that blessed hope even in the receding face of those angry clouds, whereby we are saved, and moved again to trust in God. And I said, My strength and my hope is perished from the Lord: remembering mine affliction and my misery, the worm-wood and the gall. My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is humbled in me. This I call to my mind, therefore have I hope. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. Lam. 3:18-22. Just as we are saved by hope through the revelation of the efficacy of the blood of Christ by the resurrection, so are we saved by baptism through faith in the obedience of Christ. Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God. Who hath raised him from the dead. Col. 2:12.

When one is led by the Spirit to receive the ordinance of baptism the work to him is a matter of faith, and his baptism becomes to him a sign that he is purged of his sins by the blood of the Lamb, and by faith he receives a peculiar manifestation of his sonship which is the answer of a good conscience toward God. It is said of Jesus that he was made of the seed of David according to the flesh; and declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead. Rom. 1:3:4. He did not become to be the Christ by this operation, but by this was he declared to be even what he was. So also baptism does not make one a child of God, but being one, he is led by the spirit into it and is thereby declared so to be with power, according to the same spirit, and by the same operation. The sonship of Christ was declared when he was baptized, his Father testifying and saying: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." The Father thus recognized the answer of a good conscience in his Son, and doubtless does the same in the baptism of all his sons.

While Christ was engaged in a sense in his Father's business before, yet he did not engage in what might be termed his ministerial work until after he was baptized. He was then fully empowered to do the work which he came down from heaven to do, having received commandment of his Father whereby he could speak and act with authority as one having authority. By what authority can a child of God do anything or claim any right or privilege in a gospel or disciplinary sense until after he has been baptized, save the right of baptism?

Everything is to be done decently and in order. Baptism is the first in the order of the ordinances of the church, and admits one regularly to the others, and a full participation in all the privileges of the church. Being baptized and walking orderly in the House of God, he is saved from disobedience, disorder and confusion, and comes into the enjoyment of the answer of a good conscience toward God, the fellowship and communion of the saints, and the rest that is found under the yoke and burden of the master who has said, "My yoke is easy and my burden is light."

As I have intimated before, this salvation is the result of that obedience which is of faith. The obedience of Noah was the result of an implicit belief in God, and his belief was the result of faith in him, which was of God, it being the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an Ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith Heb. 11:7.

This saving of his house was not an eternal, but a temporal or time salvation, and so is the salvation of baptism. God's people are warned of him, and thus by faith are moved to the work of baptism, whereby they are saved from the wrath to come, whatever that may be. When the Pharisees and Sadducees came out to John's baptism, he said unto them: "O generation of Vipers, who hath warned you to flee the wrath to come?" This clearly shows that those who brought fruits meet for repentance, and were baptized of him, had been warned of God to thus flee, and enter the refuge afforded by and in baptism.

Peter on the day of Pentecost said unto those who cried out to know what they should do—"Save yourselves from this untoward generation." How were they to save themselves? By repenting and being baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, as he had told them before.

Baptism is prefigured as a cutting off or as separating from. It is a sign to others and a seal to us that we have put off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ, in whom we are circumcised with the circumcision not made with hands. Col. 2: 11. In this figurative sense it was said unto Saul; Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins calling on the name of the Lord, Acts 22: 16. The one thus baptized signifies thereby that there is a work done in him that is not done in the world, and by this act, in the obedience of Christ through faith, he condemns the world and becomes an heir of the righteousness which is by faith. He then enters into the enjoyment of this righteousness. This is not the righteousness which Christ is made of God unto us, but is righteousness which is of and by faith, and answers to the salvation of baptism. Just as that which is of God saves us from condemnation as a consequence of sin, so that which is by faith saves us from condemnation as a consequence of disobedience. The one is of God in a covenant sense, the other is of faith in a disciplinary sense.

Baptism is not the putting off or washing away of the filth of the flesh, but is the answer of a good conscience toward God. God makes the conscience good, purges it through the offering of Christ, to Himself—from dead works to the service of Himself, and the good conscience responds or answers to Him by the work or service of baptism, by which the good character and faith of the conscience is proven. A man's faith is only shown and proven by his works. "Shew me thy faith without thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works." What right have we to believe one has faith when he does not prove it by his works? What is the difference between our judgments respecting two, one of whom comes to the church and gives the reason of the hope that is within him, and asks for baptism at the hand of her servant, while the other, who talks equally as well, does not thus come and prove the sincerity of his profession? We are bound to confine our favorable judgment to him who proves his faith and the reality of salvation and righteousness by his work or right doing.

The first five verses of the first chapter of this epistle of Peter clearly prove that our eternal salvation is wholly and absolutely of God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Therefore the salvation of baptism must be somewhat in the sense as intimated in the thoughts herein submitted.

P. G. L.

REMARKS ON DRESSING.

In Elder Taylor's communication he has given us some of his views on dressing. We should not be afraid of letting our views be known, provided they are scriptural. One man has a disposition to magnify one thing, and another man exalts something else. The self-righteous or vain spirit often shows itself by its manner of dressing or objection to dressing, or by attaching undue importance to a matter of small moment compared with some other things of more importance.

The ancient Pharisees made broad their phylacteries (parts of dress) as as a religious matter—what we might call religious pride—like a preacher having a certain style of dress to show that he is a preacher, and thus saying, "I am a preacher." Now if an Old Baptist preacher in order to condemn that, by pride equally as great, should dress in a very droll manner on purpose to show his contempt of such dressing that would also show his hobby. Neither one of these is to be approved.

If one should tithe anise, mint or cummin to make a show of religion, yet neglect the weightier matters of law that would be hypocritical.

When Jesus referred to the father bringing forth the best robe and putting it on the returning son and a ring on his finger, he made no condemnation of a good robe or a ring. While this has a spiritual signification yet it is supposed to be a literal circumstance.

If you literally interpret Peter's language, 1st Peter 3:3, (or of putting on of apparel) you will deprive the sisters of any clothing at all. He is not condemning wearing clothes—but is condemning gay clothing—and instructing them to wear decent or suitable clothing. They should be chaste in conversation, or manners, and submit to their own husbands, not dressing in the gay attire of a harlot to attract others and get their admiration. For in the olden time harlots dressed in gay attire to charm men. This is condemned among believers. Our people are free from it. In the case referred to by James (See Jas. 2:3—5.) the man coming in with goodly apparel is not so much condemned as the brethren are condemned if they make a difference between one thus dressed in gay clothing and a poor member dressed in vile raiment, and thus are partial, or show partiality by paying more attention to the man in goodly apparel than they do to the poor man in vile raiment. The brethren should receive both alike and make no difference, or show no partiality. If they favor either one any it ought to be the poor one. But our carnal nature allures us toward the richly dressed one.

If a brother dresses so as to attract attention by his gay clothing or gold ring he should be condemned, or if he dresses so shabbily in vile raiment, going filthy, so as to attract attention, he should be condemned for that. Let each one be neat and cleanly. A brother, or sister is not condemned in Scripture for dressing in a neat and modest manner. Good clothes should not condemn one, and vile raiment should not recommend one. We should not prefer one above the other. It is cheaper to buy good clothing for it lasts longer.

In the matter of gold or silver watches, neither one is named in the Bible, nor is a clock named. If one says that Judges 7:19, means that they wound up a watch it would be about as sensible as some interpretations I have seen or heard of Scripture. It is not wrong to have a brass watch, or a silver watch, or a gold watch if one gets it honestly and it does not puff him up. But if a brother who has not got one thinks the one that has one is proud perhaps the one that thus judges is proud without one.

Baptists can do much by their whims to hurt the cause of truth. We should dress according to our circumstances, or business. When I go to plowing in the field or cutting briars I want an old, common suit on. When I go in the pulpit I do not want to go in rags. When I visit my brethren North, or South, East or West I like to put on a decent, nice suit of clothes, if I have one. If another does not want to wear a neck-tie or collar all right with me. Let him follow his feeling in that matter, and I should not think less of him if he would allow me to wear one if I desire to do so. I never have been able to see much common sense, not to say pure love, in objections to such parts of dress, provided a man does not wear these things to show his pride.

Clothes do not make a man, and going dressed shabbily gives no proof that one is not as proud and vain as one is who dresses decently so as not to attract attention. When I meet a person who is so dressed that I have not had my attention called to his dress on account of any uncommon feature about it, either because of its gaudiness or vileness, I should say he is well-dressed. A man who is always noticing how another is dressed shows a little, meddlesome mind.

One that spends much of his money in fine dressing, and does not help the poor is wrong. One that dresses with pride to make the poor members feel that he is above them is wrong. One that dresses so as to appear vile and filthy, or is so careless about his dress that decent people are ashamed of him, is wrong. If one is very poor and not able to buy fine clothing, he can wash his face, and keep the tobacco juice off of his shirt, and keep cleanly, provided he is not too slovenly to wash his face or clothes.

Let all things be done decently and in order. Dress so as to cover your nakedness, and not feed your vanity. If others are naked help to clothe them too. Far better it is to spend your surplus money to feed and clothe the naked than to display your pride by costly dressing. One that feels that he is vile would not desire to display fine clothing.

Baptists are often too slack and careless about many things. One is their places of meeting to worship. While I condemn the costly and stylish houses other denominations often use, yet it is a shame on Baptists to be as careless and indifferent as they often are in not providing comfortable places of meeting. We should build meeting houses for comfort. We believe the most precious doctrine ever delivered to saints. Why should we act as though we are ashamed of it, or of those that preach it? Be decent in your dress—in your meeting house—in your conduct. Do nothing for vain-glory, but all to edification.

P. D. G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Please publish in the LANDMARK that the Mayo Association will meet with the church at Goodwill, in Henry county, Va., on Friday before the hird Sunday in May next. Ministers and brethren coming from a distance will be met at Ridgeway, Va., Cascade, Va., and at Leaksville, N. C., on Thursday evening, and conveyed to or near the place. By order of the church in conference.

SAMUEL T. HOPPER, Clerk.
Hopper, Henry County, Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD :—Dear brother, will you please correct a mistake made in publishing our association Rules of Decorum. There was a mistake as to the pages of the Decorum in the LANDMARK. They are found in the history on pages 708, 709, 110. And oblige your poor unworthy servant.

GEORGE ROBBINS.
Dardens, N. C.

The next session of the Smithfield Union is appointed to be held at Smithfield on Saturday and 5th Sunday in April 1894. Brethren are invited to attend.

Brother John Stephenson's post-office is changed from Polenta N. C., to Atfa, Johnston county, N. C.

with paralysis and it gradually got into his head and throat, after it reached his throat it was impossible for him to swallow. He lived in that condition nine days and said he perished to death. He prayed to the Lord to allow him to swallow just one glass of water. He manifested a spirit of patience, resignation and gratitude to the Lord for his wonderful mercy to him, and prayed for his children : told his daughter to read the bible. He said many good things and told us all not to grieve for him, also what he wished done. He was a Mason, and said he wished to be buried according to their custom, and for brother A. N. Hall and A. Blalock to preach his funeral sermon. He desired to talk as long as he was able and was glad to see his friends come in. The day before he died he said Christ had come and had been there all day, then asked his friends to raise him up, clapped his hands and praised God for letting him live as long as he had. Oh, may the Lord be a father to his children and save us to meet him in heaven, if it be his will. May his kind friends receive a full reward for their many kind acts, in his time of need. He was rational to the last hour. Much more might be said, but the half has not been told. He leaves five children, all belonging to Primitive Baptist churches, one brother who does not belong to any church, with many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Hoping to meet him in heaven, may we all rest in hope of gaining the prize of the high calling of God world without end.

Written by his poor, unwo. thy sister.
REBECCA ROYSTER.

OBITUARIES.

GREEN DEE SATTERFIELD.

My dear brother was born April 24th, 1832, and died February 24, 1893, making his stay on earth sixty one years, ten months. He lived and died in Person Co., N. C., and married Mary V. Lea. He had four children, three living and one dead. He was a good farmer, a most obliging neighbor, and preferred to wrong himself than to wrong a fellow-man. He never made a public profession of religion, but told his family that he had a hope for sometime, and that he had no fear after death. He was stricken during the war

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

A. N. HALL.

Cross Roads..... Sat. & 2d Sunday in April
Lawrences..... Wednesday
Kehukee..... Friday
Conoho..... Sat. & 3d Sunday
Hamilton..... Wednesday
Spring Green..... Thursday
Flat swamp..... Saturday
Bear Grass..... 4th Sunday
Briery Swamp..... Tuesday
Thence to Union Meeting at Great Swamp.
He will need conveyance.

E. C. Smith.

Singleton	2nd. Sunday in April
White Plains	Monday After
Morattack	Tuesday
Jamessville	Wednesday
Skewarky	Thursday
Hamilton	Friday
Spring Green	Saturday
Conoho	3rd Sunday
Lawrence	Monday After
Kehulkee	Tuesday
Deep Creek	Wednesday
Whitakers	Thursday
Williams	Friday
Falls Tar River	Saturday
Mill Branch	4th Sunday
Toisnot	Monday
Union	Tuesday
Old Town Creek	Wednesday
Autrys Creek	Thursday
Meadow	Sat. and 5th Sun.
Wilson	Wednesday night
Goldsboro	Thursday night
LaGrange	Sat. and 1st Sun. in May
Conveyance needed.

M. F. STUBBS OF GA.

Smithfield N. C.	Tuesday after 3rd Sun April
Bethany	Wednesday
Cross Roads	Thursday
Memorial	Friday
Wilson	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Union	Monday
Old Town Creek	Tuesday
Sparta	Wednesday
Conoeta	Thursday
Great Swamp	Friday Sat. 5th Sun
Bear Grass	Monday
Smithwick Creek	Tuesday
Shewark	Wednesday
Spring Green	Thursday
Hamilton	at night
Cross Roads	Friday
Turboro	Sat. and 1st Sunday in May
Lawrence	Monday
Conoho	Tuesday
Kehulkee	Wednesday
Deep Creek	Thursday
Williams	Friday
Falls	Saturday

He will need conveyance.
I hope to accompany Elder Stubbs on some, if not all, of his appointments.

P. D. G.

JOHN TRENT.

Spoon Creek Va.	April 7 and 8
Oak Level	10
Camp Branch	11
Snow Creek	12
Leatherwood	13
Axton	14
Sugar Tree	15
Cascade	16
Goodwill	18
Ridgeway	19
Matrimony N C	20
Sardis	21
Buffalo	22
Pleasant Grove	23
Russels Creek	24
snow Creek	25

State Line	26
Tom's Creek	27
(Will brother Henderson Rain arrange for him 28th half way between Tom's Creek and Fishers River.)
Fishers River	29
Dobson	30
State Road	May 1
(Will brother Wyatt please arrange appointment from May 3 to May 7 in the section of brother Isaac Webb's in Carroll Co., Va.)

ISAAC JONES.

Cedar Hill Sarry county N C Thursday before the 4th Sunday in April.

Thence to Fish River Association. Elder J M Wyatt will arrange appointments from thence for six days to Lamsburg, Va.

Sister Hawks (unera)	5th Sunday in April
Crooked Creek	Monday
Mt. Zion	Tuesday
Harmony	Wednesday
Good Hope (near Eder Lundy's)	Thursday
Crooked Oak	Friday
Flour Gap	Sat and 1st Sun. in May
Stuarts Creek	Monday
Tom's Creek	Tuesday
State Line	Wednesday
Aarons Fork	Thursday
Friends arrange for Friday.
Snow Creek	Sat and 2nd Sun.
Russell Creek	Monday
Pleasant Grove	Tuesday
Spoon Creek	Wednesday
Buffalo	Thursday

Thence to Mayo Association.
Wolf Island Monday
Pleasant Grove Tuesday
Mr. Straders (near Yanceyville) Wednesday
Stories Creek Thursday
Roxboro Friday
Durham Sat and 4th Sun.

He will need conveyance.

GEG. D. ROBERTSON.

Morattock Monday after 1st Sunday in May.

Pungo River	Tuesday
Shallops Creek	Wednesday
Cypress Grove	Thursday
Beulah	Friday
Goose Creek Island	Saturday
Sandy Grove	2nd Sunday
Bethel	Monday
Bountys Creek	Tuesday
Galloways	Wednesday
Red Banks	Friday
Conoeta	Sat and 3rd Sun

J. D. DRAUGHN.

Stanville Wednesday night before 1st Sunday in April.

Shiloh	Thursday
Matrimony	Friday
Ridgeway Va.	Sat and 1st Sun.
Goodwill	Monday
Wolf Island	Tuesday
Reidsville	At night
Lick Fork	Wednesday
Rock Academy	Thursday
Arbor	Friday
Lynch's Creek	Sat and 2nd Sun.
He will need conveyance.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATE ED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 33 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 60 N.Y. and P.M. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Weldon	11 47	9 51	10 45	12 04
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 35	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 07
Lv. Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45	6 00
Lv. Wilson	11 35	3 57
Lv. Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 25	1 15	4 00
Ar Florence	5	3 27	6 15
Lv. Wilson	2 05	A. M.
Lv. Goldsboro	3 00	6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 13	7 45
Ar Wilmington	5 00	8 20
P. M.	10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 36 Daily.		No. 34 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.		No. 60 N.Y. and P.M. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05	11 50
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 20	3 25
Lv. Selma	12 10
Ar. Weldon	1 05	11 8	4 30
Lv. Wilmington	9 00
Lv Magnolia	10 40
Lv Goldsboro	12 00
Ar Wilson	12 45
Lv. Weldon
Ar Rocky Mt.
Ar Tarboro
Lv Rocky Mt.
Ar Weldon

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
 §These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 7:40 p. m., Halifax 4:00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4:55 p. m., Greenville 6:37 p. m., Kinston, 7:35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7:40 a. m., Greenville 8:20 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11:00 a. m., Weldon 11:30 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7:00 a. m. Arrives Farmale 8:40 a. m., Tarboro 9:30; returning leaves Tarboro 4:40 p. m., Farmale

6:10 p. m. arrives at Washington 7:35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Plymouth & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5:00 p. m., Sunday 3:00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9:30 p. m., 1:00 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5:30 a. m., Sunday 9:30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10:25 a. m. and 11:45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6:05 a. m., arriving Southfield, N. C., 7:30 a. m. Returning, leaves Southfield, N. C., 5:20 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9:30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4:30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5:00 p. m., Spring Hope 6:30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5:00 a. m., Nashville 8:35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9:15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6:30 p. m., arrive Dunbar 7:40 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6:30 a. m., arrive Latta 5:30 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4:20 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7:30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE,

General Agent.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMBERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

- Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
- Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
- Marocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
- Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
- Marocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25
- Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
- No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
 Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,
 Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
 At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College to the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges. Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		Bound
No 1				No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv			7 05 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			10 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv			10 27 a m
3 10 p m	Lv.....Sandford.....Lv			11 45 a m
2 20 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Ar			1 43 a m
12 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			3 15 p m
12 54 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			4 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			5 45 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pt. - W. Cove. Lv			4 40 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pt. - W. Cove. Lv			5 01 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv			6 01 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar			6 45 p m
No 3		MAIN LINE.		No 4.
5 00 p m	Ar.....Hornettsville.....Lv			6 25 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv			7 37 a m
6 05 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv			8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv			9 14 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			9 15 a m
No. 15		MAIN LINE.		No 16
MIXED				Mixed
Daily Ex				Daily Ex
Sunday.				Sunday
5 15 p m	Ar.....Rainsent.....Lv			6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv			8 40 a m
3 40 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			9 25 a m
No. 14		MAIN LINE.		No 16
MIXED				Mixed
Daily Ex				Daily Ex
Sunday				Sunday
2 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar			11 50 a m

Train No 4 connects at Sandford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1, connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sandford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sandford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, Gen'l Mng'r, W. E. KYLE, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent by any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist, Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

APRIL 15, 1894.

NO. 11.

Zion's Landmark.

Kinderfalleys
10494
PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been received please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

SONG OF THE SPECKLED BIRD.

"Mine heritage is unto me as a speckled bird, the birds round about are against her; come ye, assemble all the beasts of the field, come to devour."—Jer. 12 : 9.

TUNE, SOCIAL BAND L. M. S.

There're many birds of different wing,
The world delights to hear them sing;
But there is one that's seldom heard,
The poor, despised speckled bird.
This speckled bird is much abhorred,
By all who do not love the Lord;
And do you ask the reason why?
Her treasure is laid up on high.

She lives on food which others hate;
What she calls small the world calls great;
And food that o'hers love to eat,
Is to her taste like putrid meat.
This speckled bird has food from heaven,
Not bought by her but freely given;
It's food that Christians love to eat,
While hovering round the Savior's feet.

All others live on tainted meat,
Just such as vultures have to eat;
Because the speckled bird won't join,
They all affirm she is unkind.
Upon her head her specks appear;
Look on her breast, you'll find them there,
On every part where feathers grow;
Her specks do shine and brightly glow.

This speckled bird delights to sing,
The praises of her God and King;
She views her specks as marks of heaven,
And pledges which her Lord has given.
Thousands have tried to learn her song,
They do their best but still are wrong;
Their notes will do in every place,
Except 'mong those who're saved by grace.

The speckled bird will loud contend,
Her song too good for them to mend;
And when she brings them to the test,
They talk and do like all the rest.
All other birds unite and say,
Let us throw little things away;
The things that split us are but few,
For we are birds, and so are you.

The speckled bird now shows her robe,
The finest one that's on the globe;
And in this dress made clean and white,

She's satisfied that all is right.
This robe's complete without a seam;
In it a fault cannot be seen,
For it is all the gift of God,
And only found in Christ our Lord.

The others then their robes bring forth,
From east and west, from south and north,
But warp and woof and shape and size,
Are linsy-woolsey in her eyes.
She did behold, although combine,
They were not gold, although they shine;
For iron, brass, and steel are bright,
When polished well, and please the sight.

Then said one of the vulture crew,
"We know not what to do with you;
If you are right then we are lost,
And all our hopes of heaven are crossed.
Now we can pray and shout and sing,
And make our meeting houses ring.
But if you ask us for the cause,
We must admit we're at a loss.

"Come every bird, we'll all unite,
To put this speckled bird to flight,
Although we do not see alike,
We'll all agree at her to strike."
The battle now is in array,
And they are sure they'll win the day.
Before they know what they're about,
The speckled bird puts them to rout.

They stand amazed and wonder why,
The speckled bird doth them defy,
But if they knew who's at her head,
They'd wonder why they're not all dead.
While thus whipped why they cannot rest,
They promise each to do their best.
Each one pretends his heart is stirred,
And that he loves the speckled bird.

They are an undivided band,
They work things to each other's hand,
Their own disputes they lay aside,
Till they the speckled bird have tried.
Each one has his own work assigned,
One pitiful and another kind,
Each one of them is now at his post,
And each one tries to do the most.

One tries hard to arrange his dress,
And seems to be in deep distress;
They're willing now to be the fool,
If they the speckled bird can fool.
Their skill is tried but all in vain,

They have their labor for their pain.
The speckled bird is still secure,
Kept by God's almighty power.

(Soon on the wings of love she'll fly,
To join the saints beyond the sky,
And on the hill of sweet repose,
She'll bid adieu to all her woes.)
The speckled bird at last shall rest,
From all her woes among the best;
And heaven afford her sweet repose,
When ruin shall confound her foes.

EXPERIENCE.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN:—It is with much weakness that I now take my pen and try to write part of what I hope to be the Lord's dealings with me. I have had the impression ever since I joined the church, but knowing that I am unlearned and unable to express my feelings as I wish, I have abstained from doing so; but as the impression grows stronger I will try to relate my feelings in my own ignorant way the best I can. In 1888 I became in great trouble. I did not know the cause of my being in so much trouble, until the good Lord showed me what a sinner I was. My mind was running on things of God, and I would often ask the good Lord to pardon my sins, as they felt so great, felt like I was the greatest sinner on earth. Sometimes I would feel like I must choke to death, and would try to pray, but some of my prayers would not reach as high as my head. At other times I would feel like the good Lord was near. Oh how often I was made to cry for mercy, for I was soon made to see that I could not do anything to save my poor sinful heart and soul from hell. I saw that I must be saved by grace alone. So I went on in great trouble until one night in January, 1891, I hope the good Lord relieved me of my trouble and sorrow; for when I went to bed that night I thought it would be the last time, for it had got so with me that everybody looked good but me. I felt like I did not have a friend on earth nor in heaven. I saw everything that night that I ever did. My sins looked like they were hanging over me by a little thread. I felt like they were going to fall on me and kill me. I thought if I would turn myself over that they would miss me, but I could not turn for I felt myself to be as helpless as a little babe. I thought I would choke to death. I tried to cry aloud, but I could not speak above a whisper. I said, Lord what must I do to be saved, and it seemed like someone said to me, What can you do but beg for mercy. Oh, then I felt willing to beg the good Lord for mercy as long as I had breath to spare, for I thought I would be in torment in a few minutes; but I cannot say that I spoke one word, for the first thing I knew I was praising the Lord. I felt happy for the first time in a long while. Everything in the house looked new to me. I can't tell how the rest of that night was spent, for I have not been able to tell any one yet; and when the morning came I was in a great hurry to get in the yard to see how everything looked out of doors, and everything looked like it was rejoicing with me. The trees seemed to be praising God. Oh, I thought how happy I would be if I could but see his face and hear his voice. All of my choking was gone. Brother Dameron was the first one I thought of that morning. I felt like if I could see him and hear him pray that morning I never would see any more trouble. Oh, brethren and sisters, I lay in a vast, howling wilderness and in the miry clay, and no one could give me any aid until the good Lord saw fit to take my case in hand. Next morning the joy and love that filled my heart tongue cannot tell, and pen cannot describe. I praised God with my whole heart, and rejoiced in Him who had brought such a wretch out of trouble and sorrow, and placed a new song in my mouth. Then my mind was turned from the world. The sun shone brighter that morning when it rose than I ever saw it. I thought it was the loveliest morning I ever did see. I loved the Primitive Baptists that morning better than anybody else on earth, wanted to be with them, for my desire was to obey my blessed Savior, but could not feel myself worthy to go and be with as good people as I thought Primitive Baptists to be, and could not rest to stay away; but I stayed away for several months for fear I was deceived, and besought the Lord to undeceive me if I was. One night about four months after I was relieved of my burden I went to bed in my doubts and fears, and a man stepped up beside me, and I went to speak to him, and he spoke to me. He said This is Christ Will you follow me? and slept away. Oh how happy I was for a little while. Then I prayed to the good Lord to show me myself baptized in a dream if I was prepared to be, and I saw myself baptized in a dream. I felt the water running off my face as plainly as I did the day I was baptized. So I went to preaching at Lick Fork the first Saturday in November, 1891. After preaching brother Dameron came down out of the stand, and when he said, If there is any one that wishes to talk to the church come at once. I felt like I wanted to go. I tried to ask the Lord to give me a will to go, and commenced choking, and it seemed like some one said to me, if you will go and confess me before the church I will relieve you of that choking. Right then I was willing to go, so I went and was received into the church, and was baptized next morning by brother Dameron; and that was a happy day with me.

I thought I loved the Primitive Baptists before that day, but I did not know what love was until that day. It was shown to me that day I thought when brother Dameron raised me from under the water. I thought he was the loveliest human on earth. He did not look like he did when he went in with me. He was as white as snow. Oh I loved him with a kind of love that I never had before, for I thought he was an angel, I still keep that kind of love for him, for I believe the good Lord showed me that morning what he was. Oh that was a happy day with me, and one never to be forgotten. I could do nothing but give thanks to my Maker, and bow in praise to his holy name. I now thought mourning and sighing were gone never to return again, but oh how sadly mistaken I am. Instead of the battle being ended I found it had only begun. I soon began to mourn over my imperfections. My pathway soon began to be darkened with doubts and unbelief, and even now I sometimes nearly give up all hope of being ever saved, and then I will feel like I would not take this world for it, and what does me so much good. Brother Gold, I cannot see one thought that I ever had myself to cause me to have this little hope in Christ. Sometimes I get so low spirited that I feel like everybody and the good Lord has turned against me, for I went to hear brother Wyatt the fourth Saturday and Sunday in August last, and I did not enjoy preaching Saturday, but I went back Sunday, and I never heard an abler sermon preached or the power of God any stronger proclaimed from any pulpit. Every word he said seemed to have a place in my heart. Oh I was made to shed tears of joy, felt like the good Lord was with both of us that day. I was so full of love for brother Wyatt I could not talk to him after preaching, and I hope I will meet all the good preachers in heaven. Well I will come to a close for fear I will weary you. Pray for your little, unworthy sister, if one at all,

ELIZA F. BLACKWELL.
Rufus, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD AND READERS OF THE LANDMARK:—For the last several months my mind has been led to write to you, though a deep felt sense of my weakness and inability to write to the comfort of those I love has prevented me. But to-day I feel so lonely and sad while my heart yearns for the sweet communion and companionship of God's dear people, it refuses to be comforted without speaking to them through the medium of the pen, though it be in much weakness. O for words to tell them how much I appreciate their love and fellowship and a name among them who are so unworthy of such blessings, the least in my Father's house. Yet I feel that they are enabled by the spirit of the Lord which dwells within them to "save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins." By converting the sinner from the error of his way saves the soul from dying to the joys of salvation. And by casting the mantle of charity over his imperfections, hides a multitude of sins. Therefore I desire to live, die, and be buried with them, their people to be my people and their God my God. O where on earth is the people to whom I could tell my joys and sorrows or who could understand my speech or speak words of comfort and encouragement to my often almost overburdened heart, if driven from their fellowship. How good, how inexpressibly good and kind is our God, our own dear God who gave his only Son Jesus Christ our Saviour and redeemer to be a propitiation for our sins, and by the shedding of his blood cleanses us from all sin and purchases for us "An inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away reserved in heaven for you." Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time. And while this is in store for them, yet without a knowledge of this while in this unfriendly world, they would be miserable, poor and naked. But blessed be His holy name, He will not leave them comfortless, but manifests himself unto each of them as he does not unto the world by his Spirit which bears witness with their spirits that they are the children of God. Thereby raising the beggar from dust and ashes, making him a joyful inhabitant of Zion the perfection of beauty whose walls are salvation and gates praise. Well may we say with the poet, "Blest inhabitant of Zion." Washed in the Redeemer's blood, Jesus "whom our souls rely on makes us Kings and Priests to God." Beside these precious tokens of His undying love which the blessed comforter brings to their hearts enabling them to cast all their care upon him, He gives them companions in the spirit, kindered souls, who are made one by his unchangeable love. "He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for his judgments they have not known them. "Praise ye the Lord." True there are some of the Lord's dear poor and afflicted people, who seldom if ever hear the glad tidings of the glorious gospel of Jesus from the mouth of his servants, and seem to be almost banished from the fellowship and communion of His people, and in their deprivation are often made to weep and mourn, and as one of old declared, feel that they "are as the sparrow alone upon the house-top." Yet they have fellowship with Jesus their great high Priest and King, with prophets, Apostles, and all the ancient worthies. For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope. Then "seek ye out of the book of the Lord, and read: no one of these shall fail, none shall want her mate: for my mouth it hath commanded, and his spirit, it hath gathered them." Well may the Prophet "say to them that are of a fearful heart. Be strong, fear not: behold your God will come with vengeance. Even God with a recompense; he will come and save you." Yea dear trembling one, He will come ere long and give your burdened spirit ease, it matters not how hard and rugged the way seems at present. He is the same dear sympathizing friend which crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies. His thoughts concerning thee are of peace and not of evil. If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful: he cannot deny himself. His everlasting arm is ever underneath his sinking ones, his eyes are over them and ears open to hear their cry. O blessed hope, O rapturous thought that these vile bodies shall ere long be fashioned like unto His glorious body, and in this flesh see him as he is. This sin-sick soul be forever free from satan's poisonous darts, no more feel the piercing dagger which he so often now injects, but the weary spirit find undisturbed repose in that city which needs no light of the sun, neither of the moon, for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof, whose temple is the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb. Who is that child of God in the most remote dwelling place that does not have moments of sweet communion with Jesus, and a bright assurance of a home in heaven, when the fleeting things of time and sense are no more. The poorest, miserable place is made pleasant by His presence, none dare to molest or affright the soul when he speaks that sweet peace be still. Yet they who live in a gospel land and are enabled to sit under the dropping of His sanctuary and drink in the glad tidings of salvation as it falls from the lips of his servants, have much to be thankful for. And indeed they are thankful and their hearts made to overflow with gratitude while they sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving when gathered together with kindered spirits in heavenly places made (heavenly by his presence) realizing their relation to Him and to each other. And when thus circumstanced how our spirits sink within us at the thought of the approaching moment of separation, knowing that we must again return to our worldly serving and there be subject to the alluring vanities which daily come under our observation, and which so often steal from our hearts the sweet messenger of rest. O for more of this holy Principle to lead our roving feet "in the way everlasting" that we may be able to render acceptable service to God our heavenly Father and to his dear people. I feel that we should pay strict attention to the brother-hood at all times and every where that we have an opportunity to do so, but especially to our brethren and pastor at home. What an exceeding great and precious blessing is peace among ourselves. The Psalmist well said, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace and things where-with one may edify another," not seeking to please ourself alone, but ever having the good of the church at heart. Sometimes our natural sympathy goes beyond Scripture teaching and thereby brings us trouble when not thinking to do so. Perhaps we give our voice in excommunicating members, yet continue to fellowship and plead their innocence, forgetting that such a course may leave room for the offended one or the one who may bring the accusation to doubt our confidence in them or their testimony, and thereby ere we are aware sow the seed of discord among our brethren, which thing the Lord hates. We should be very careful not to join ourself to the world in any way, especially at the risk of destroying the peace of the church, not only to abstain from evil, but to "abstain from all appearance of evil." O may our hearts be filled with that love which will enable us to watch over one another for good, not only to teach the erring the way more perfectly, but to bear on our hearts the necessities of our poor who cannot help themselves, and especially our faithful pastors who by the command of our God leave those who are near and dear to them, to impart unto those whom he serves a spiritual gift, the fruit of whose laborious toil have so many times quenched the longing thirst of our famishing soul. And not only should we remember his carnal needs, but hold up his hands by showing our spiritual interest in him, and in the church and offer our feeble petitions to God in his behalf that we may be benefited and comforted by his coming. O it is so pleasant to go to a good Old Baptist meeting and find them all wide awake. I love to look at such brethren and sisters, but more especially do I love to be on that holy mount of transfiguration myself, but it is so seldom that I find myself there, and I know that it is not by my good deeds that I am taken there at any time, nor yet for my evil ones, but alone by the tender mercy of a loving Saviour. Brother Gold, sometime ago I saw a card from yourself to Brother T. F. Holidia from which I understood that you expected to visit our church sometime soon, since then I have anxiously listened for the news of your coming. May the Lord send you and others of his servants among us if his will. I have somewhat expected a visit from dear Brother and Elder J. E. A. this month as he most always visits us in March, hope that when he or other traveling ministers pass this way they will consider our humble home a place for them to rest. Such travelers have always been our welcome guests and to me their conversation sweet. To my private correspondents I wish to say that I hope each of you will accept this feeble effort as a token of my warmest christian love and remembrance. I desired to write to you all but knew that I could not at present do so separately, so I choose this way to let you hear from me. I know not how to thank you aright for your labours of love which have been such a comfort to my sorely tried heart. Hoping to hear from you soon and asking of all God's humble poor their prayers in my behalf, and with unfeigned love to all who love His appearing, I am I hope. Your little sister.

SADIE D. LIVERMAN.
Columbia, N. C.

JESUS WEPT.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—This is marked as the shortest verse in the Bible, but it is a long one to me. Here is an evidence of Christ's sympathy for those who mourn. Here the tears were streaming down the great Messiah's cheeks weeping with sinners. How wonderful to see the Son of God come down from the shining heaven above, to suffer and die for rebellious man, for breaking his Holy Law, and partaking of his poverty, and weeping with sinners in sympathy for their troubled hearts. Here he comes to these troubled ones, weeps with them, and turns their trouble into joy by raising their brother to life. His mission was not long with his people in the flesh, because he said, I go unto my Father, and if I go unto my Father I will send you another comforter, and he will testify of me. When we sink down in grief and almost in despair, and the heavy veil of darkness is spread over us, and we can see no light, then let us remember the evidence of Christ's sympathy for troubled hearts, and hope for the coming of his comforter. There is not anything so precious to the saints as Christ. How absurd it is for men to say that Christ lived such a life of misery for the sake of those whom he loves with an everlasting love, and died such a horrible death to save them from destruction without making their salvation perfectly secure. How absurd it is for men to say that Christ would suffer all these things and yet leave the earnings and the fruits of all his good works to stand upon as feeble a foundation as the will of man. I love to muse on the humiliation of Christ. As we travel through this veil of tears let us remember the tears Christ shed in sympathy with the weeping ones.

ISAAC S. WEEDON.

Richardsville, Va.

EXPERIENCE.

(Continued.)

BELoved EDITORS, BRETHREN AND SISTERS IN CHRIST:—In thinking over what I have written in my former letter, and seeing so much imperfection in it and myself, and that I have left off so much that I ought to have written I wish to mention it in this. Before I was delivered from the dominion of sin, I thought I was the worst sinner that ever lived, and that the brute creation were better off than me; and where the Scripture says, "the dog has turned to his own vomit, and the sow to her wallowing in the mire" was applicable to my condition. I would then read the Scriptures but could not get any comfort out of them, they all condemned me. I would then go off and try to pray, and my prayer was, "Lord save, I perish." I went on in this horrible condition for a considerable time, and was brought before a just tribunal, condemned and found guilty, and no one to plead my cause. Then it was that I felt the sentence of death in myself and the pangs of hell got hold on me, and I cried unto the Lord. This was in the fall when farmers gather their corn. Two of my brothers and I, with some of my father's servants were going to a field about a mile from home in the afternoon to pull corn. I did not go to the field with them because I wanted to be by myself, but I started and went by a lane that was grown thickly on either side with bushes. There I got down on my knees to pray. But about the time I got on my knees light sprung into my soul, and I looked all around and upward too. It was all brightness. The sun I thought shone the brightest that I ever saw. I went on to the fields and it appeared to me that the whole world was changed, and my soul was shouting and praising God for the riches of his grace in my deliverance from sin and death. That evening was the happiest time I ever experienced in my life. I felt as clear of sin as if I had never sinned, and thought that the balance of my days would be spent in praising God. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou canst not tell whence it cometh, or whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of the Spirit. I had a great love for the church of God, such a love I never experienced before. Scriptures would run through my mind, such as these. We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren. They gave me a great deal of comfort then. The church of Christ was presented to my mind in a very lovely manner. Up to this time I had never heard a Primitive Baptist preach, that I remembered. My father said, the Missionary Baptists did not preach the same doctrine they did before the division. The Missionary Baptists do not hold up Christ as a whole Saviour, but as a partial Saviour. They preach 'hat the Sinner has power to come to Christ and be saved if he will. The sinner has not got the will nor the power to come to Christ, and why, because the Saviour says, "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life." Therefore we have not the will nor the power to come to Christ, and if the sinner was left to himself without the grace of God, the last one of Adam's fallen race would go down to everlasting woe and misery. Men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil. The carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. We are represented to be dead in trespasses and sin, and we have no more power to raise ourselves out of that dead state than Lazarus had to raise himself from the grave who had been dead four days.

I know that what I have written is not connected as it should be, but I am following the impressions of my mind, and with the ability that God giveth will do the best I can. After I had met with this change I had a great desire to follow the blessed Saviour down into the liquid grave, as he did, therefore I went before the church at BearCreek, in Chatham Co., N. C., the next May. After I met with a change from nature to grace, and was received without being asked a question, and the next day was baptized by Elder Eli Phillips. It was not long after I joined the church that they appointed me church clerk, and I served them with the best of my ability about nine years without any charge being brought against me, though I did not fellowship the doctrine that most of their preachers preached, but there were two that belonged to that order that preached salvation by grace. The two I had reference to were Elder Artemus Spatock who had a wooden leg, and Elder Atlas Gilbert, but they were not popular with the Mission Baptists. Elders Gilbert and Spatock both left them and joined the Primitive Baptists. Both are now dead. I took great delight in hearing them preach and engaging with them in private conversation, by hearing them tell their christian experience, and joys and sorrows.

Some of the big Missionary preachers, as they called them, were Elders Noah Richardson, McDaniel, McNab and Wait. Richardson was pastor of the Bear Creek church, the most of the time while I was with them, and he nearly always, when he would get up to preach, had his thumb-paper with the heads of his sermon on it, and at one time when the church was not likely to make up money enough for him, he said it was common for people to take their produce to the best market, and he would do likewise. So you see he was after the fleece, and not the flock. All their big preachers, as they called them, preached Arminian doctrine. Now dear brethren, we cannot find one passage of Scripture where any man had power given him to quicken dead sinners, dead in trespasses and in sins, and rolling sin as a sweet morsel under their tongue. It is the power of God that visits the sinner dead in sin, and quickens him into divine life. There is a great difference in being dead in sin and dead to sin. The quickened sinner is dead to sin and hates sin in himself, or in any other person. It is sin that still remains in these mortal bodies of ours that causes us to see so much trouble, sorrow and sighing. Soon after I had been changed, I realized that I possessed the same devilish Esau spirit within this sinful body of mine, and I believe that I was in possession of Jacob also. Then it was that this warfare commenced between Esau and Jacob, and a horrible war it was, the flesh lusting against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh, so that I could not do the things that I would. I believe that Jacob and Esau represent the flesh and the Spirit. Jacob does not use carnal weapons of war to fight Esau with, but he fights with the sword of the Spirit which is the word of God, and when Jacob is enabled by the power of God to use it right Esau has to give back. Beloved brethren and sisters in Christ, since I was quickened into life, if indeed I have been, I have had a great many hard and trying battles with this old man often within the last 57 years of my life. I will have to leave off a part of my experience, as my communication is already too lengthy, and hasten to the time that I grew up to manhood. I lived with my father until I was twenty-one years old, and then he gave me a piece of land. I still lived with him the next year after I became twenty-one years old; and he gave me a part of the crop. The land that he gave to me was unimproved. I went to work and built me a dwelling house and other out-buildings. Then, the first day of April, 1845, I married Hannah Kivitt, daughter of Henry Kivitt. My father-in-law was carrying on a large tannery, and wanted me to sell my farm and move there and work in the tannery with him, and learn the tanner's trade, which I did in the fall after I and his daughter were married on the first of April, 1845. Then, on the 9th of April, 1846, my wife gave birth to a son. Then, in July I was taken down sick with chills and fever, and after awhile my dear wife and baby were taken with chills and fever. Neither of us was able to wait on the other. Then I bought the farm where I now live, but before we moved to it my dear companion was taken sick and died while I was gone to Fayetteville with a load of leather to sell, and no company with me but one of my wife's little brothers, and did not hear of the death of my dear companion till I got within about three miles of home. You that never had the trial of losing a good companion do not know how heart-rending it is to lose one, and a dear companion she was to me. Her mother was with her all the time during her sickness. Her mother told me that my wife said to her but a short time before she died that if she had as good a hope for herself as she had for me she could die satisfied, but just before she died she said she saw a bright light, and I believe her spirit has gone to that bright world above, where the wicked cease to trouble and the weary are at rest, there shouting and praising God for the riches of his grace, for redeeming grace and dying love; and it will not be long before I will leave this troublesome world, but I have a good hope through grace that when this vile body of mine will cease to live that my spirit will go to God who gave it, in that beautiful land where I hope to meet my loving companion and infant son, there to join with them in hymning praises to God and the Lamb forever and ever, in that bright world that my dear companion had a view of just before the breath left her body. My first wife and her parents all belonged to the Missionary Baptists. My first wife's father and mother joined the Baptist Church long before the division, but they went with the Missionaries. They are both dead and I believe they are at peace with God. The next fall after I moved to work in the tanyard with my father-in-law, John Stadler had an appointment to preach at a school house called Shady Grove, in three miles of where I was living, and I thought within myself that if I lived till then I would go and hear him preach. The day came when he was to preach, and I went. The Mission Baptists called him a Hard Shell or Iron Jacket preacher. When the hour arrived for him to preach he got up and made some very appropriate remarks, then gave out a hymn and sang, then prayed. After this he got up and read his text in the prophet Micah, the 5th chapter and 5th verse, which reads as follows: "And this man shall be the peace when the Assyrian shall come into our land; and when we shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds and eight principal men." Elder John Stadler was the first Primitive Baptist preacher that I had ever heard preach up to that time, and it was the ablest sermon that I had ever heard preached. Then it was that I had a clear view of the church of God. Then I was worse dissatisfied with the Mission Baptists than I had been before. Elder Stadler said the Assyrians represented the false churches that are so popular now with the religious world, and proved it by the word of God. Then he pointed out the true church of Christ and the inmates therein. Elder Stadler preached the doctrine of election and final perseverance of all saints by the grace of God. Then in the spring of 1848 I moved to the place where I now live. It was not long after I moved until I learned that there was a Primitive Baptist Church within six miles of me by the name of Mount Tabor. I and my present wife went to hear them preach very frequently on Saturday and Sunday. Elder Phillip Snider was pastor of the Mount Tabor church at that time, and I believe that he was a gifted preacher. I and my present dear wife continued to go to hear them preach, for I loved the doctrine that they preached, and wanted to be one amongst them, for I thought they were the loveliest people that I ever saw, and that they were the true church of God, though I did not feel worthy to be amongst them, but thought that I would go to their meetings and try to be satisfied. I and my wife and sister Sarah, who was staying with us at that time, went to Mt. Tabor Saturday before the second Sunday in July, it being the regular church meeting time. Elder P. Snider was still their pastor, and was there, and preached a very able experimental sermon, and it so affected me that when the door of the church was opened I and my beloved wife went before the church and were received and baptized the next day by Elder Phillip Snider. I then felt relieved of a great burden in believing that I had found the true church of God, and the longer I live with them the stronger I am in the faith that they are the true church of Christ. I will conclude, dear brother Gold, by saying that I have a great love toward you ever since I read your experience, and how you were delivered out of Babylon, for I have been there.

JAMES H. BOROUGHS.

Kemp's Mills, N. C.

THE EXPERIENCE.

When I was in my 18th year I was busy at work one day, and there gathered a cloud, and very unexpectedly a flash of lightning fell near-by me which frightened me, and as the fright passed off the feeling appeared to force on me that I had well nigh been sent to torment, and I was made to feel miserable, yes awful, about my condition which I was in, a poor, lost sinner, subject to drop in hell as quick as lightning. Well, I was raised by Baptist parents, though heard but little other preaching except Methodist, and they had made the impression on me that good works were really meritorious, or that we would be rewarded for them; so I set out at once supposing that if I could do as much good as I had evil the Lord would accept of it and forgive me of my sins, as I had not been a very great sinner. So I set out with a fixed purpose to make up my bill of good works, and being so uneasy about my lost condition I really hurried myself to do good, and was over much righteous about one month, when I began to try to bring up my bill of righteousness, and felt that I had gained nothing. So I grew worse instead of better. There was an Old Baptist preacher to preach at two old churches in my reach, but he and the two churches were cared but little for, though I was acquainted with the old preacher, and thought he was a good man. So I concluded to go and hear him preach, hoping he might say something that would help me. I went and listened attentively, and brother Blalock he ruined me. It appeared to me that he knew my condition. Had I ever told my feelings to any one I should have thought they had told on me. His subject was on good works and those that preached and trusted in good works. While he held that the true love of God in us would produce good works, yet the creature could do nothing, though he gave his body to be burned. Well, that sermon ruined me. I felt as if I had been insulting the Savior more than pleasing him. Oh I was miserable. My bill of righteous works was gone. I became so miserable I wept out bitterly, and what to do I did not know. The preacher seeing my distressed condition (I suppose) after preaching invited all who felt the need of a Savior to come forward and kneel, and he would pray for them. I went and knelt, and he prayed and sang another hymn, then the old preacher admonished us never to look back, but to escape for our lives, and dismissed us. Now I was worse than ever. My young friends had found out what it was that had checked my wild ways. I was seeking religion. I shunned company, and rode home, about eight miles, with a sad and condemned spirit. So I set out to attend preaching, and to shun wild company, and to better my condition before God, and the next chance I had to hear preaching was the same Old Baptist, and he ruined me again, and there was a camp-meeting published to be held at a Methodist meeting-house to commence early in October, 1832. I resolved to attend, for I had not quite given up all my faith in good works, and felt that the Methodists would give me some comfort on good works, for I had found out that the Methodists did place great importance on good works, or so I understood them to do. The time came to commence the camp-meeting, and I was there good and early, waiting for a chance to get into the altar and get the blessing, and felt in good hope. I was up as a mourner from the start, day and night studying and trying to pray and get religion, and I was talked to and exhorted over, and told to believe in the Lord Jesus and that was all we could do; just believe, said they. But that would not do for me, for I knew that I did believe in Jesus Christ as the Son of God, and I do not remember when I did not believe in him. My parents taught me that, I do not know how early. I felt to be a lost sinner, and I wanted evidence in my soul. I had learned that religion was something felt in the soul, and I felt that I was a sinner against the blessed Savior that I truly believed in with my understanding. But I was miserable on account of sin against the Lord. So I remained day and night trying all the means and works that I could to find relief. The fourth night it was threatening rain, and the preachers made arrangements to hold in the tents, and I went to one where but few attended. The preacher talked but a short while, then engaged in singing and praying over us mourners. There was no stir gotten up. Late in the night I felt sadly disheartened, and began to review my case, and about gave it up as a hopeless one. I can never tell how sad and miserable I felt. I concluded to go off by myself in a secret place alone, where no eye could see, nor ear hear, and offer one more prayer and if I failed I would give it all up as a lost case. I rose upon my feet so nervous that I could scarcely stand, and a voice said to me, You have done all that you can do. You need not go. I heard that voice in my feelings somehow certain. Well, now I was at the end of my row. I think I could not have stood on my feet but a few minutes I felt so miserable, but in another moment that gloom and miserable load that was sinking me down was cleared away, and love, joy and praise were in me, and all over me, and I felt that I could view my Savior in his pardoning love. I can never tell it as I wish to do, nor keep it as I would, but now whilst I write these lines my old soul is gently feasting on it, although it has been some sixty-two years ago, and I never knew anything about loving christians before. I thought they were the loveliest creatures on earth, and I loved everybody, and felt like I wanted to take them in my arms and carry them to Jesus. I started out to hunt my sister, who was at a certain tent, and it appeared to me the very trees looked up in praise to God. As I went I met an old friend that I had confidence in. He caught my hand, rejoicing with me, and he told me that I thought now my troubles were all gone, but said he, take care, the devil will be after you again, and give you trouble. I left him, thinking he knew but little about it, but I soon after began to think that he knew all about it, and I but little, for when I awoke next morning I could not find a spark of love in me; it was gone, and what to do I did not know. I an empty vessel and felt bad and ashamed that any one knew that I had professed religion. I kept up the best face I could until preaching hour, and I went and took a seat outside, did not want to go in among the christians that I loved so well last night. I was sad and thinking about what that old friend said to me last night about the devil being after me again, but the preacher struck a subject that caught my attention, and my soul was lighted up again, and I was full of joy, and went through that day very sweetly, but my warfare had commenced and is going on yet. Sometimes in joy and peace of soul, and sometimes in trouble and vexation, with moments to rejoice and hours to mourn; but I must know that my days are few at best, for my body and mind are giving away fast, and I am bound to pass away as our fathers and grandfathers have done, and be forgotten by the living.

E. WINSTON.

Wilton, N. C.

THE TEMPEST.

The mind is the forest-plow. March is the beginning of the Spring and is the preparatory month. It is generally very blustery and the winds are shifty blowing on every side. During the winter there is generally much rain and the water causes the soil to become compact so that the tender roots are pressed tightly to protect them from the chilling blast of the winter's cold. In order for the young roots to shoot forth and give new life to the trees, this compact surface must be broken so as to give loose earth for the young and tender roots. Had one no March winds there would be nothing to accomplish this purpose. Again, during the winter the inner bark of the trees clings very closely to the wood so that sap, which is the life of the tree, cannot rise. The March winds shake the trees in every direction and soften the earth and loosen the bark preparatory for the young growth and for the sap to penetrate to every part that new life may appear. Again, during winter many roots die as well as their corresponding branches and in shaking the trees the March winds serve as a pruning knife to cut off these dead roots and branches so that the living ones may grow more vigorously. Thus the Almighty Husbandman plows and prunes His great orchard of nature.

Always after these shifting winds comes the opening of Spring when every thing shows new life and one would judge that this mighty forest had never known sorrow for everything now praises its Almighty Cultivator.

In the sacred words of the wise Solomon we have the commandment, "Awake O North wind; and come, thou south, blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out, etc. Song 4: 16.

Here both the north and south winds are alike commanded of the Lord and both to blow upon the Lord's garden. During the summer in our souls (times of much rejoicing) many surplus roots (views) spring out and grow rapidly and from these roots grow much surplus conduct not taught in the Scripture. At these times there is nothing to try our stability, and indeed if all our times were thus times of joy and pleasure we would have no stability, but would soon grow rich and in need of nothing.

How a church does flourish when all is peace. But these times cannot remain with us always; there must be some winter. Now is the time of watchfulness and mourning when each one brings his complaints before the throne of mercy and his views are tried, and after we find much fungus growth, things which we have thought and adopted as right but now are made to fully try them by the divine standard to find to our surprise that they are not taught by the fathers and in contending, as we verily thought, for the ancient landmarks we have been removing them. Here these fungus roots die and our acts which have grown out of them likewise die. These are of no more use to the christian but are a hindrance to him. All this time that he is being thus tried the truth is being more deeply imbedded in his heart, and the love of our Lord is binding around him, and he is hungering for an outgrowth of that love that his hungry soul may feed.

So it was with the true in Israel at the time that John Baptist appeared in the wilderness preaching repentance. Much fungus growth had sprung up among them and John came as the March wind, the forerunner of spring and these corrupt principles, the traditions of the elders, were broken off and those who had been prepared were made ready for the coming of the Lord who was then among them.

So in the church to-day. When times of trial come it proves that which is good and breaks off that which is evil. It may be quite a storm in our souls but it is but to try us whether we be sound in the faith. Sometimes old dead limbs are quite hard to break off so it takes severer tempests to accomplish this. We have principles that are as dear to us as our life and yet they are wrong. According to the old maxim, "It is like pulling eye teeth" to give them up, but the tempest still blows and we are severely tossed and it seems that we shall be destroyed, but God will not allow that. He only purposes to purge us of all that is not glorifying to His name, and to better fit us for His true service. Because we are closely wedded to a thing is no argument that it is right. While thus wedded to it it may appear to us that it is fully sustained by the Scriptures when really there is nothing to sustain it but the beam that has so blinded us. The beam must be removed so that we can see clearly. We can not produce good fruit while thus blinded, even though all may seem to be peace. In all such cases there is a severe tempest appointed unto us and very unexpectedly it breaks forth on us and brings many heart-rending sighs and bitter tears, but the spring is not far away for this is only the forerunner of a true spiritual revival in the church.

After this north wind shall have accomplished its purpose then the gentle south wind will blow and the cold blast will gently recede and the spring-time will begin to dawn upon us, and we will look back and wonder at our ignorance in holding and contending for a thing nowhere taught by the Spirit of truth.

Thus we learn how false is man and everything in all this world and our affections are placed on things heavenly and our praises go out unto God who has been our support in all our trials.

Some will say, "Oh see how changable such a one is." This is a mistake. Why not say, "See how such a one has been changed?" Perhaps the change has come to such a one against his will and divorced him from something as dear to him as life, but change has come and he is not responsible for it.

Never in the life of my christian race have I felt more the force of the chilling winds than for the past few weeks. May I not hope that the hand of our good Lord is in it and that much may be broken off that is not to his praise, and that the soil may be plowed a-fresh, and all dead and fungus growth broken out so that which remains may produce much fruit to the praise of God.

Dear brethren and sisters, think on this, and may God give us an understanding in all things that we may be humbled to the praise of his glorious grace wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved, in my prayer in the name of Christ.

Affectionately,
L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor'

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 11.

WILSON, N. C., APR. 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

THE DAY FOR LABOR.

Brother R. Cannon of S. C. requests my view of John 9 : 4 :

"I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work."

A man is born blind, and the disciples ask Jesus who sinned, he or his parents, that he was thus born. Jesus answered, neither hath sinned, but this occurred that the works of God should be manifest in him. Those who deny the unlimited sovereignty of God over all events fail to reconcile such words of Jesus with their notions of God's goodness. That a man should be born blind—deprived of one of the most important sources of comfort and usefulness given to him—is not in harmony with man's notions of God's beneficence; or that a perfect man as Job should be delivered without guilt into the hand of Satan for the sorest buffeting is hardly consistent with their notions of God's benevolence: or that Jesus who knew no sin should be made sin for us, with some or much doubt

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Some time ago I received a letter from brother Elijah Winston and also his experience, and reason of his hope in the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Brother Winston is about 80 years old. I never had the pleasure of meeting him, but I feel like we are acquainted. I have so much enjoyed the letter that I received from him, and now comes his reason of a hope, which has been sixty-two years ago, as fresh and bright as if it had been only yesterday. Oh, dear brother, that is something we can never forget. I have so much enjoyed reading this experience, for I look upon brother Winston as a father in Israel, and perhaps some one else would like to read it, so I send it to you, brother Gold, by his permission, to be published in the LANDMARK. I desire an interest in your prayers. Your brother in hope,
W. R. BLALOCK.
Roseville, N. C.

[The experience is published in this issue, and commences on the 251st page.]

ASSOCIATIONAL.

BROTHER GOLD:—Please publish in the LANDMARK that the next session of the Pig River Primitive Baptist Association will be held with the Chestnut Church, Franklin county, Va., seven miles south of Rocky Mount, commencing on Friday before the first Sunday in May, 1894, and continuing three days. Ministers and brethren are invited to attend. All coming by rail will stop at Rocky Mount, Va. Any one wishing to come will please give me notice, and I will meet and convey to the church. Address Wm. H. Hodges, Sontag, Va.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

about the result—whether he should see the travail of his soul and be satisfied—could be reconciled with their ideas of the mercy of God.

However, if one is delivered to Satan to show the pity and mercy of the Lord this shall not fail. If God makes Jesus, who knew no sin, to be sin for his people, they shall as certainly be made the righteousness of God in him. And if this man was born blind—not because of his sin, nor that of his parents—but for the glory of God, that shall surely be manifested. It was for this purpose Jesus came to earth. He came to work the work of Him that sent him—that the blind might receive their sight, the lost be found, the dead be raised up, his people saved from their sins. Now this is the work Jesus was sent to do. How could God's power and glory be manifested if there are no lost to be found, no sinners to be saved, no dead to be raised up, no blind to receive their sight?

Jesus came not to do his own will, but the will of him that sent him. He was a servant, and worked. His life was one of toil and labor. He said, my Father worketh hitherto and I work. God's work is ceaseless and unerring. Labor is the law of providence and grace. The word of God commands labor. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work. Laziness is condemned in Scripture. Idleness and waste or extravagance are great sins now in this country.

Jesus said he must work while it was day. In the night (death) no man could work. He means that he must do what his Father sent him to do while he was yet alive—that he must finish that work before he was put to death. We say he did finish it, and fulfilled his Father's will.

He was the light of the world while he was in the world. While he is in men he is the light of men.

He spits on the ground and makes clay of the spittle, and anoints the eyes of the blind man with the clay and commands him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam. This he does and comes seeing.

How illustrative as well as real are the works of Jesus? He works on earth. He makes clay of his spittle and anoints the man's eyes. The man was made of clay or dust. Jesus is found in fashion as a man. That which no man would like from another (spittle) is used with clay to anoint the blind eyes. Jesus becomes as one of us and with us. The man is sent to a pool that is called Siloam (sent) to typify Jesus who is sent: he washes and he comes seeing.

How foolish to carnal reason the command of Jesus may appear, yet it is the power of God when uttered and sent by him, and that word never returns void. Jesus works the work of God, and that is that ye believe on him whom God hath sent. This blessed work he works in his people both to will and to do. This is the work of faith and labor of love of his people which he works in us. For thou wilt ordain peace for us, for thou hast wrought all our works in us. Hence we are created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

Are God's people lazy? No. They are, or should be, diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. But because they have ceased from their own work, and rest in the Lord's work, they are called a do nothing people. To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly his faith is counted for righteousness. But faith works by love, and purifies the heart. For God purifies the hearts of his people by faith. But faith without works is dead being alone. That is if faith hath no works it is not the true faith of God's elect, but a false one. For the people of God have the faith which is born of God and it therefore overcomes the world, and this faith working in them manifests that greater is he that is in them than he that is in the world, and that they must work the works of God while it is called day for they are of the day and not of the night, and therefore the works of God are manifested in them and they are to the praise of the glory of his grace.

P. D. G.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE FOR HER?

Brother J. D. Wade requests my view of Song 8: 8, 9:

"We have a little sister and she hath no breasts: what shall we do for our sister in the day when she shall be spoken for? If she be a wall we will build upon her a palace of silver, and if she be a door we will inclose her with boards of cedar."

This is love's song—the song of those that love the Lord, sung in them by him, and sung to him in response by them. We love him because he first loved us. We give to him of that which he first gave to us.

Song of Songs which is Solomon's is an inspiration set to music on all the stringed instruments by the chief singer between Christ and his spouse—the beloved and the loved. She is very full of praise as she sings to him, "O that thou wert as my brother." She desires him to draw near and that she may enjoy the freedom and familiarity that a sister would with her own brother that has sucked the breasts of her mother. Then she could not be reproached for the fullest freedom in his presence. But seeing her own vileness she feels unworthy to be found in his company or with his people. In this holy familiarity and freedom she longs for as she is sick of love, she desires to come to the chamber of her mother that bare her, and drink of that first experience of love where there was no sorrow nor sin.

In this love-frame of mind her anxiety is manifested for her unprovided little sister, the Gentile church, not hitherto fed. She hath no comforts of the breast—no consolations of the sincere milk of the word. There is as yet no appearance of refreshing from the Lord. What shall be done for her in the day of her espousals—in the day when she shall be spoken for. In the day of her nuptials what shall be done for her? She is without any token of love. Who shall make her ready for the marriage? Under the old legal dispensation there was no provision for the Gentiles. God had put no comeliness upon them. No Scriptures were given them—no breasts of consolation—no prophets were sent to them; yet it was evident that there was a little sister that should dwell in the tents of Shem, that should suck honey out of the rock, and drink of the same Spirit that the Jews drank of.

The spouse appearing as a Jew under the law, but now waxing warm under that love that many waters cannot quench, her bowels yearn for her poor little destitute sister, and she desires the accomplishment of the purpose of God in bringing in the Gentiles that they all, Jew and Gentile, may be one in the Lord, joined unto the Lord and be one spirit, and suck of the breasts.

It is the nature of a loving family to all give their time and labor, gifts and congratulations to a younger child that marries, especially if the marriage is agreeable. So all will be solicitous that nothing occur to mar the happiness of this younger one, and all will vie in giving gifts to exalt this one. Now what shall be done to our little sister in the day she is spoken for?

If she be a wall—a wall of salvation of which God is the glory and defence, if she be as a fruitful vine running over the wall, and the tender grapes appear, we will build upon her a palace of silver. A wall is solid and prominent, needful and useful as a shelter in which protection is given to all that dwell there. The safety of the Jew is in the prosperity of the Gentile church. It is a fruitful place also, and much to be sought as a place of comfort and safety. We would build a palace of silver. How high and deep this salvation is; and we walk round about Zion marking well her bulwarks, considering well her palaces or dwelling places; a palace of silver denoting brightness and purity, so that beautiful for situation is Mt. Zion the joy of the whole earth. If she be a door we will inclose her with boards of cedars. A door is an entrance into a building. If an effectual door is opened to the Gentiles, so that as doves they flock to the windows, it shows the Lord does what he pleases in saving them, and he will also save the remnant of the Jews. We will beautify her as a door inclosed with boards of cedar or embellished with all the beauty of lily work of the temple. Doors to buildings are made solid and secure, and at the same time carved with cunning work to show their beauty. She shall be shut in and be safe and be honored with great glory. Great honor has been put upon the Gentile church, and an open door of entrance and utterance is given in their behalf. The glory of the Lord is risen upon her, and they flock as doves to their windows, and are taken into the Ark as Noah reached out his hand and took in the dove. All the glory of the Jew is given to the Gentile, and they are made one in Christ Jesus, one new man so making peace, and this proves and assures the final salvation of the Jew—as one is not without the other. Blindness in part is happened unto Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved. For as in times past ye (Gentiles) have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through the unbelief of the Jew, even so have these (Jews) not believed, that through your mercy (Gentiles) they also (the Jews) may obtain mercy. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief that he might have mercy on all. Oh the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God. Rom. 11 : 30—33. In this charity that thinketh no evil (in which Judah never vexes Ephraim, nor does Ephraim ever envy Judah,) the spouse was loving her little sister as recorded in the love song.

P. D. G.

ORDINATION.

Brother J. B. Bass, a member of the church at Wilson, N. C., was ordained to the full work of the Gospel Ministry by Elders J. F. Farmer and P. D. Gold, on the 4th Sunday in March, 1894.

P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

RHODABELL HILL.

The sad duty devolves upon me to write an obituary notice of the death of my dear wife who departed this life February 6th, 1894. She was the daughter of Harvey D. and Nancy Simmons, of Floyd County, Va. and was married to the unworthy writer February 13th, 1879. She was born Jan. 17th 1855, making her stay on earth 39 years and 22 days. We have six children born to us, five of which are living, four boys and one dear little girl. My darling wife professed a hope in Jesus and five years ago this coming June she went before the church at White Oak Grove and told them what she hoped the Lord had done for her soul, and was received and baptized the third Sunday in September following by Elder Amos Dickerson, and remained a faithful member until death. Oh it is hard to give up this dear wife and mother, but I am satisfied our loss is her great gain.

She said I am bound to die. I replied I hope not, though if you do I trust you will be happy. She said, "I have that hope, don't grieve for me, the Lord's will must be done, Jesus will carry me home in his arms." So in 24 hours after Dr. Simmons her attending physician left, she calmly passed away. Oh, just to see how calm and patient a dying saint can be. I have no doubt but that her sweet spirit is singing the praise of God in glory to-night, but how can we live without her. A dear wife she was to me, and a loving mother to her dear children, a kind neighbor to all around her. She has always worked for peace in the neighborhood, and had always a kind word for me. It did not make any difference what might happen. Oh I feel she was so much too good for me. "But the Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord." I hope he will make me thankful for the time he has blessed me with such a darling christian wife. It's hard enough to part with one so kind anyway, and if I felt that I had mistreated her how could I breathe any longer. A thousand times multiplied I have wished that I was as good as she, and often I have tried to thank the Lord that he had blessed me with a christian wife. I well remember what a different love I had for her from the time she joined the church, though I felt to be a wretched sinner, without hope and without God in the world, still there was a love that I cannot express. I visit her grave often and am constrained to say, sleep on dear wife. Then I go home, and oh, the lonely home without a mother. I desire the prayers of all of God's people who may feel impressed to offer a petition to the Lord for me and my little ones.

Your unworthy friend in hope of eternal life.

ENOCH HILL.

DEACON JOHN O. POLLARD.

This beloved brother was born December 1827, and was raised up without a literary education, but being endowed by the good Lord with an acquiring and re-tentive mind, he accumulated a fund of useful information, and although he commenced in life a poor boy he accumulated quite a competency, and left his family well provided for financially. His property was gained by honest labor on his farm, which he always managed with great skill and wisdom. Naturally he was noted for his industry, perseverance, temperance and honesty. But while he was being blessed in the pursuit of the perishable things of time he was also made to hear the voice of Jesus, saying, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul! Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul!" Thus he was called to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and having by grace obtained peace and forgiveness through a crucified Redeemer, he went before the church at Tyson's on the third Sunday in June, 1874 and was received and baptized on the same day. He lived a consistent member and won the esteem and confidence of the church and of the brethren generally by uprightness and promptness in the discharge of such christian duties as he felt were incumbent upon him, and thus proved the truth of the Apostle's words, "For they that have used the office of a deacon well purchase to themselves a good degree and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus."

He died on the 13th day of December, 1893, at the residence of his daughter, as he had lived in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, leaving a widow and two children and a host of friends, but we do not mourn as those who have no hope, for we feel that our loss is his gain.

Brother Gold, having been requested to write the obituary of brother Pollard I send you the above believing that obituaries should be short so as not to take up too much room in our paper. Affectionately,
D. A. MEWBOREN.

JOSEPH ROBERTS.

He was born July 1st, 1814, and departed this life May 12th 1893, making his stay on earth 78 years, 10 months and 11 days. Brother Roberts was born at Hunting Quarter, Cartaret Co., N. C. His father died when he was a boy, leaving a widow and several children. Joseph being the son or the care of the family fell on him to a great extent. The family soon moved to Portsmouth, where brother Roberts commenced to lead a sea faring life.

I remember hearing him tell some of his experiences as a sailor, such as the following: He shipped on board a schooner, commanded by Captain Dixon of Washington, N. C., laden with oak staves for the West Indies. On going out at Ocracoke bar, the sea being very rough, the vessel struck several times, causing her to leak so much that the pump had to be kept going one-fourth of the time in good weather. After crossing the Gulf stream they encountered a severe storm, that lasted several days, which caused the leak to increase, so they had to keep the pump going day and night until they were worn out, and they saw nothing but death in a watery grave before their eyes. But the storm ceased and there was a great calm, so the vessel did not leak so bad, and they arrived in the West Indies all safe, and sold and landed the cargo, and after discharging the cargo they were enabled to stop the leak, so they had a safe passage home. Brother Roberts seemed not to have fancied going to sea after that, so he engaged in piloting, which was a successful business up to the war. Brother Roberts married Sister Elizabeth Roberts about 1846 or 1847, who died about the beginning of the war, leaving one son. In May 1866, brother Roberts married sister Rebecca A. Goodwin, who with one son survives him. He was received as a member of the Cedar Island church May 1883. He lived a consistent member up to the time of his death, always ready to attend his church meetings when not providently hindered, and always glad to have the brethren visit him. May the good Lord bless his widow and children; may they follow the good example of the dear brother. The church has lost a consistent member, and the community a good neighbor.

Why should we mourn departed friends,
Or shake at death's alarm?
'Tis but the voice Jesus sends
To call them to his arms.

J. I. GOODWIN.

ELIZA J. DAVIS.

Eliza J. Davis was born December 31, 1868, and died May 26, 1893, making her stay on earth 24 years, 4 months and 26 days. She was the daughter of brother Charles W. and sister S. E. Davis. She was a kind and dutiful child, and beloved by all who knew her. She was a cripple almost from infancy, and to the best of my knowledge about three years ago she took what is known as the hip-joint disease, and soon became greatly afflicted. Her kind father, who never wearied or held back any means or expense in doing for her, took her to Richmond to Dr. McGuire, but all of no avail. Death had to be met. She was a constant reader of the Bible, and on her birthday (31st day of December 1889), while reading the 25th Psalm, it made a great impression on her mind, so much so that she dated it as being her birthday, and called her mother's attention to it, and said it seemed to apply to her case. She never made any open profession of religion, but knowing her kind disposition to her parents, brothers and sisters, and school-mates, besides that she was a firm believer of the doctrine of Christ as preached by the Primitive Baptists, also because she was not like young people, but seemed to enjoy sitting and hearing old people talk on the subject of religion, we hope she is at rest. It had been my privilege to stay with this kind family more than any in the bounds of this country, as they make all pleasant by their generous hospitality. I was called to attend her funeral, which I did in the presence of many friends, and never have I witnessed a sadder time than that was. Three grown persons besides in less than a mile of each other, and only one week and one day between all their deaths. But man dieth and wasteth away, yea, he giveth up the ghost, and where is he? But I feel to say to the dear relatives, weep not for dear Jennie, for she is better off than we. She is gone from a world of sorrow and pains to a land of perfect bliss, where she needs not the care of dear mother to stand by her bed-side and see her suffer, for this has ceased with her, and she is now in the presence of our blessed God, there to reign with him during the countless ages of eternity, and sing the worthy praises of him who has called her out of darkness into his marvelous light.

A. R. PHILPOTT.

Alumina, Va.

WM. JENKINS.

Our much esteemed brother in the faith of the adorable redeemer, Wm. Jenkins, of Martin county, N. C., was born December 3, 1819, and departed this life February 18, 1894, making his earthly pilgrimage 74 years, 2 months and 14 days. He was married to Susan Robuck, who died March 18, 1862. On December 3, he married Minerva Cone. Friday before the first Sunday in September 1866, he offered to the church at Flat Swamp for membership and was received to fellowship, and baptized by Elder Wm. A. Ross. With this church he remained a faithful member until his death, a period of twenty-seven and a half years. He manifested his love for the precious cause of his Lord and master in his Godly walk and conversation and his faithful attendance of the church of his membership and sister churches, unions and associations. His walk was a living epistle of a joint heir of the Son of Righteousness. His life as a citizen was untarnished. By honest toil and care, with God's blessing, he prospered, and reared to honesty, industry and economy nine children. He was a good provider, kind husband and father, and beneficent neighbor. From La Grippe emanated a complication of diseases, which confined him to his bed some months before his departure. During his affliction he exhibited much patience, trusting in Jesus, the hope of glory. I was often struck with his meekness and patience, and the very tender care of his faithful companion and children, who so devotedly rendered every possible attention to his every want, day and night to the last. Doubtless his is a happy exchange of worlds; now free from all that is mortal, and clad in an immortal raiment, and with that "golden harp," strung and tuned with endless years.

"In heavenly strains, from every cord,
Shall flow the charming sound,
The praise of my redeeming Lord,
While angels wander round."

May the God of all grace be unto the bereaved a present help in time of need.

S. W. OUTERBRIDGE.

JULIUS R. HENSLEY.

Died at his home in Orange county N. C., July the 14th, 1893. He was the infant son of Joseph and Lula Hensley. He was born December 12th, 1891, making his stay on earth only nineteen months and two days. His disease was bilious dysentery, and was sick only three or four days as well as I remember. He was the only grand-child of aged grand-parents living in the house with them, and was the pet of them all. They could not with kind parents and physician relieve his sufferings, but the Lord saw fit and called, "child come home." While your home dear Ma and Grand-ma is so lonely, oh, do not weep, but think of your babe in heaven. None knew him but to love and admire him, he was so bright and affectionate.

A. FRIEND.

ELDER G. T. DANIEL.

Elder George Thomas Daniel, son of Elder John H. Daniel and his wife, Maniza Long, was born near Barboro, N. C., Sept. 5th, 1847, and died near Wilson, N. C., Feb. 6th, 1894. He married Mary E. daughter of Calvin and Winnifred Woodard, Feb. 10th, 1871, and the fruits of this union were two sons and five daughters, of whom one son and one daughter died in infancy, and one son, John V., and four daughters, Bettie, Fannie, Mary Long, and Winnie survive.

Experiencing a hope in Christ, and drawn by love to the people of God, brother Daniel was baptized, along with his wife, by my father, Elder C. B. Hassell, May, 1876; after the death of his father-in-law in 1887, he was the clerk of his church, White Oak, ten miles south east of Wilson; and in July 1877, he was licensed to exercise in public. Deeply feeling his inability and unworthiness, he put off for fourteen years his impressions to preach; but he was at last driven, by sore and manifold trials and afflictions, to take up this heavy cross in 1891; and he was in August 1893, ordained by Elder Wm. A. Ross and myself to the administration of gospel ordinances. His ministry, though brief, was exceedingly tender and touching. His chief desire was to speak to the comfort of the afflicted people of God; and that desire was wonderfully fulfilled. The Lord rained down showers of blessing under the gracious words of His servant, and it was seldom, when he preached, that tears of love and joy did not flow from many eyes. The only revenge that he wished from any one who had seemed to be his enemy was to be enabled to speak to his spiritual good and comfort. Such was the fitting spirit of one who was rapidly nearing "Heaven above, where all is love," where forever reigns the God whose name is love, and where forever dwell His holy angels and saints in His image of love.

About twenty years ago brother Daniel had a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia, which brought him to the verge of the grave; and his lungs were always weak afterwards. He was subject to catarrh and bronchitis, as well as sciatic rheumatism, and inflammation of the stomach. Caught in a heavy storm while going in his buggy to the Toisnot Association at Castalia, Nash Co., N. C., Oct. 13th, 1893, he took a deep cold, which settled on his lungs, and developed into quick consumption. He was confined almost entirely to his room twelve weeks, and attended by a good physician, and nursed day and night with unwearied assiduity by his devoted wife. He bore his great sufferings with christian patience and resignation. On Saturday, January 6th, 1894, a cold, rainy day, though scarcely able to sit up, he attended his church meeting for the last time, saying that the last place he went anywhere he wished to be his church. Sitting by the stove, in great feebleness, he read the 13th chapter of Hosea, and spoke of the rich comfort he had derived, during his sickness, from the 14th verse, wherein the Lord promises a sure redemption for all His people from death and the grave; and he declared the perfect reconciliation of his feelings in the matter of the church troubles of recent years. One month after the of this meeting with his church, our dear brother, at peace with God and all the world, consciously and willingly resigned his spirit into the hands of his Creator and Redeemer. And, as I write these words with flowing tears, I pray that my last end may be like his. Our wives were sisters, and few persons knew him better than I; and I rejoice to say that, not only was he a most industrious man, but he was also a truthful, honest, temperate, virtuous, kind, gentle, humble, self-denying, God fearing and God-loving man, who had living grace while he lived, and dying grace when he came to die, and whose body I believe sleeps in Jesus, while his ransomed spirit reigns with his Lord in glory.

SYLVESTER HASSELL.

MALINDA BLANCHE SIMPKINS.

Please publish the obituary notice of little Malinda Blanche Simpkins, daughter of brother J. Wade Simpkins and French C. Simpkins, of East Radford, Va. The subject of this notice was born January 7, 1889, and died February 4, 1894, making her stay on earth 5 years and 27 days. Little Blanche in her babyhood was very delicate, but for three or four years she has been the very picture of health, with that mild, loving disposition which naturally draws the affections of parents, making her the idol of the family circle. With that loving, gentle, self sacrificing principle, so much appreciated and observed, not only by parents and teachers, but by every one who knew her, even at this tender age she was capable of discerning wright from wrong, and was faithful to admonish those she saw in error. But one so good, so angel-like, was not permitted to remain here, to become so contaminated with sin, and be polluted by the corruption of this world, God having provided a better inheritance for her, through the redemption of his son Jesus, who hath said: suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. The cause of death was Membranous croup, and was not considered serious by the parents and friends until a physician was called in, and used his professional skill to relieve the little sufferer, but the pale horse and his rider would not yield its victim to medicine and science, and on the morning of the 4th of February, little Blanche fell asleep in Jesus. Cheer up parents, weep not, grieve not for your darling one. God in his mercy has taken her from the evils to come, and just across the dark river on the other shore, lie the sweet fields of Eden, where the tender flowers are transplanted, to bud and blossom eternally under the balmy wings of God's eternal love. Oh! with what anticipations should we look forward to the resurrection morn. May God comfort the hearts of the bereaved and guide them by His spirit in the path of duty, so when the dissolution comes they may be prepared to say: welcome death, I gladly go with thee, and in the Son's bright clime unite with loved ones gone before, where they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

G. A. REID.

JOSEPHINE OWEN.

A time to be born and a time to die.

Please publish the death of our beloved sister, Josephine Owen (formerly Josephine Adkins), who departed this life January 1, 1894, after an illness of about five months, aged 43 years. She related a touching experience to the church at Weatherford, and was baptized by the writer about seven years ago, and afterwards she married Mr. William Owen, and waited on him till he died with all tenderness of a good wife. She filled her post in the school-room when a child, and when she grew up she filled it wherever she lived. When on her death bed she suffered for nothing that willing hearts and hands could do. We hope our sister is realizing the joys that mortals are strangers to. May the Lord bless her surviving friends with a good hope through grace.

W. S. M.

Chatham, Va.

LILLIAN IRENE WHICHARD.

Little Lillian Whichard, youngest daughter of Ashley and Bettie Whichard, died August 28, age 1 year and 11 months, lacking three days. She was a sweet, loving child, who endeared herself not only to the home circle. To know her was to be at once attracted by her loveliness and gentleness, and to love her for her friendliness and her many kindly ministrations. God's ways are past finding out, and while we are assured that He doth all things well, poor mortals often wonder at his providences. How freely would I have taken her sufferings, and born them my self if I could, but beyond my power. Since she has been gone from us there seems to be no brightness about our deserted home. The blessed Lord has said, suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. We feel that our loss is her eternal gain. Jesus can make a dying bed soft as downy pillows are. I do believe that Jesus was there ready to receive my little babe, soon as the golden bowl was broken, and the silver thread let loose. So the dear little sufferer passed gently away without a murmur, and breathed her last without a sigh. So I must say

Sleep on in thy beauty,
My sweet angel child.
By sorrow unblighted,
By sin undefiled.

We should not weep, for our little one's earthly ministry was well done, for the rose does its work as grandly in blossom as the vine with its fruit. I often felt fearful she would be taken from me. So many times have I said to her, Lillian, you are so sweet, I am afraid you will never be raised. I thought she was too good a child for me in this world.

BETTIE WHICHARD.

NETTIE CLAYTON

Died at the home of her grandfather, C. C. Woody, in Person county, N. C. Little Nettie, the only child of Wm. and Fisher Clayton, born March 27, 1891, died June 30, 1893.

Mother on a visit to her parents went,
While there God, the death angel for little Nettie sent.
So after about three weeks of suffering and pain,
Fond parents' loss was dear little Nettie's gain.

"Weep not father and mother, but in humble submission bow
To him who hath said, what I do ye know not now:
But believe that his providential dealings are best,
Trust, believe and thou shalt be blest.
BY A COUSIN.

A little flower on my hearthstone grew,
Tender, sweet and fair;
Bright as the drops of morning dew,
It shone in beauty there.

I watched its growth with a jealous eye,
Guarding day and night;
Lest some rude hand should dare destroy,
Or bear it from my sight.

It held the rays of bright sunshine,
Prisoned in its bloom;
Round it were gathered charms divine,
Dispelling care and gloom.

A messenger to my humble door,
Came, knocked, and entered in,
And my food heart grew faint and sore,
Beneath his shadow grim.

I knew that beautiful fragrant flower,
My own, no more could be;
That it had bloomed its little hour,
And filled its destiny.

"My heart's one treasure, O, spare!" I cried,
"Stay thou thy hand! I pray!
Naught have I on this earth beside,
To cheer my lonely way."

But, quickly grasping my floweret sweet
From out my sight he sped;
And, alone, alone, I was left to weep,
O'er hopes forever fled.—M. WARNER."

APPOINTMENTS.

See change in Elder Smith's appointments.
Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

E. C. Smith.

Conoho..... 3rd Sunday in April
Lawrence..... Monday After
Kehukee..... Tuesday
Deep Creek..... Wednesday
Whitakers..... Thursday
Williams..... Friday
Falls Far River..... Saturday
Mill Branch..... 4th Sunday
Toisnot..... Monday
Union..... Tuesday
Old Town Creek..... Wednesday
Autrys Creek..... Sat. & 5th Sunday
Meadow..... Monday
White Oak..... Tuesday
Wilson..... Wednesday night
Goldsboro..... Thursday night
LaGrange..... Sat. and 1st Sun. in May
Conveyance needed.

M. F. STUBBS OF GA.

Tarboro..... Sat. and 1st Sunday in May Lawrences..... Monday
Conoho..... Tuesday
Kehukee..... Wednesday
Deep Creek..... Thursday
Williams..... Friday
Falls..... Saturday
He will need conveyance.
I hope to accompany Elder Stubbs on some,
if not all, of his appointments.

P. D. G.

ISAAC JONES.

Flour Gap..... Sat and 1st Sun. in May
Stuarts Creek..... Monday
Tom's Creek..... Tuesday

State Line..... Wednesday
Aarons Fork..... Thursday
Friends arrange for Friday.
Snow Creek..... Sat and 2nd Sun.
Russell Creek..... Monday
Pleasant Grove..... Tuesday
Spoon Creek..... Wednesday
Buffalo..... Thursday
Thence to Mayo Association.
Wolf Island..... Monday
Pleasant Grove..... Tuesday
Mr. Straders (near Yanceyville)..... Wednesday
Stories Creek..... Thursday
Roxboro..... Friday
Durham..... Sat and 4th Sun.
He will need conveyance.

W. W. BARNES.

Washington..... April 26
Briery Swamp..... 27
Great Swamp..... 28 and 29
Little Creek..... 30
Sparta..... May 1
Autry's Creek..... 2
Meadow..... 3
White Oak..... 5 and 6
Wilson..... 8
Lower Black Creek..... 9
Upper Black Creek..... 10
Memorial..... 11
Nahunta..... 12
Mewborn's..... 13
LaGrange..... 14
Sandy Bottom..... 15
He will need conveyance.

GEO. D. ROBERSON.

Morattock Monday after 1st Sunday in May.
Pungo River..... Tuesday
Shallops Creek..... Wednesday
Cypress Grove..... Thursday
Beaulah..... Friday
Goose Creek Island..... Saturday
Sandy Grove..... 2nd Sunday
Bethel..... Monday
Blounts Creek..... Tuesday
Galloways..... Wednesday
Red Banks..... Friday
Conoeta..... Sat and 3rd Sun

J. E. ADAMS.

Eethany..... Monday after 5th Sun. in Apr.
Cross Roads..... Tuesday
New Chapel..... Wednesday
Goldsboro..... at Night
Nahunta..... Thursday
LaGrange..... at Night and Friday
Newport..... Saturday and 1st Sunday in May Ruhama..... Monday
North River..... Wednesday
Straits..... Thursday
Davis Shore..... Friday
Hunting Quarter..... Saturday and 2nd Sunday
Cedar Island..... Saturday and 3rd Sunday

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

L. J. Dawson 1.00 By Mrs. S. R. Payne $.20.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATE ED Jan. 1, 1894.	No. 35 Daily.		No. 36 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 500 N. C. Branch P. M. S. P. M.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 47
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	10 27
Lv Rocky Mt.	10 55	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 55	9 45
Lv Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 35	1 15	4 00
Ar Florence	5 35	3 27	6 15
No. 47 Daily.
Lv Wilson	3 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 00	6 35
Lv Magnolia	11 13	7 29
Ar Wilmington	5 09	8 29
	P. M.	10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 35 Daily.		No. 36 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 500 N. C. Branch P. M. S. P. M.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05	11 59
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 20	2 23
Lv Selma	12 10
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 8	4 39
No. 46 Daily.
Lv Wilmington	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	9 00	7 00
Lv Goldsboro	10 40	8 37
Ar Wilson	12 00	9 45	10 35
No. 38 Daily.
Lv Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 15	11 23	10 20
Ar Tarboro	2 57	12 05
No. 14 Daily.
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 35
Ar Weldon	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 17	12 29
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	P. M.	A. M.

1Daily except Monday, 2Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 4 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 40 a. m., Greenville 8 20 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrive Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 6 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Trains leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Alhémairie & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 16 25 a. m., and 12 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 05 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 47 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 00 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 26 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE,
General Sup't.

J. B. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. N. EKERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

- Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
 - Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
 - Micro copy binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
 - Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
 - Micro copy binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25.
 - Per dozen, by mail, $12.00.
- No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

AN EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. RREN, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No 1				No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 56 a m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 56 a m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 10 a m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 10 a m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Lv
4 30 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	10 27 a m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 27 a m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Ar
3 12 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv
1 47 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 43 a m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 43 a m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar
12 53 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	2 55 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	2 55 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3 45 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3 45 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv
11 42 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Ar	4 30 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Ar	4 30 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Ar
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Lv	4 33 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Lv	4 33 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pct. - W. Cove. Lv
11 26 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5 01 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5 01 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	5 35 p m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	5 35 p m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar
No 3		No 4		No 5
5 00 p m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6 24 a m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6 24 a m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv
6 47 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	7 37 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	7 37 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv
6 05 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 38 a m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 38 a m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar
No. 15		No 16		No 16
MIXED		MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday		Sunday
4 35 p m	At.....Rainsesville.....Lv	6 50 a m	At.....Rainsesville.....Lv	6 50 a m	At.....Rainsesville.....Lv
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8 40 a m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8 40 a m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 35 a m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 35 a m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar
No. 15		No 16		No 16
MIXED		MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday		Sunday
2 35 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv
2 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11 00 a m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11 00 a m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Lv	11 50 a m	Lv.....Madison.....Lv	11 50 a m	Lv.....Madison.....Lv

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1888. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

MAY 1, 1894.

NO. 12.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

Number 111
1894

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

A SONG.

Sons of God in Christ united,
May we sing His perfect praise ;
And say when this life is ended,
Thou has blest us all our days.

By the streams of living water,
In the pastures of His love,
We are made to rest, and waiting,
Look to Him who rules above.

Far above all earthly glory,
By the power of grace alone,
We are lifted, and eternal
Rests the sure foundation stone.

In the love of God, our Savior,
On the Everlasting Arm
We can rest secure and blessed,
Safe from sin and every harm.

DUDLEY G. JOHNSON.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.

ELD. P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—I received a letter from our brother, I. J. Taylor yesterday, speaking of several things of interest, and of importance to be considered, and rightly understood. Among other things brother Taylor refers to the several places in the New Testament where brethren are exhorted to greet one another with a holy kiss, the kiss of charity, &c., and asks if I think this is binding upon the church, and the disciples of Jesus now. Some years ago my attention was called to this subject by circumstances not needful to be mentioned here. As I then formed conclusions which have abided with me ever since, and therefore have the merits at least, of standing the test of time and continued thought, and as others besides brother Taylor may have thought about the same things, I feel like answering this much of his letter through the LANDMARK, if the editors are willing.

I want to begin by saying that mere outward forms and customs are, in themselves, of very little account. The Scriptures everywhere dwell upon vital things, rather than forms ; upon life rather than the body that contains and reveals it, upon love, rather than any particular way by which love may be made manifest. Customs and forms may change, even as language changes, but the life of love, and religion cannot change even as the truth expressed by changeable language is eternal.

Therefore we should be more anxious about the love and life of religion, than about any forms whatever. If any form however has been selected by the Holy Ghost as being more fitted to preserve and reveal the body of truth, or the true life of religion than other forms, then we should hold fast those forms whatever they be. This is true of baptism, the Lord's supper, preaching, prayer, and singing.

Again, there are some things in the New Testament which are enjoined as ordinances upon the churches, as emblems of the truth, by the doing of which they set forth the truth and which are to continue until the Lord comes ; but there are other things enjoined, as customs among them, growing out of the customs and circumstances that then surrounded them, which were only for the time then being, and which could and should change as manners and customs changed among the nations where they dwelt and in the successive ages of their history. I regard this custom of greeting friends with a kiss as being embraced in this latter statement.

The scriptures of the Old Testament as well as of the new, often speak of kissing as a common form of greeting. Among the nations of the east the kiss is still a common form of greeting among those who profess to be friends. Among our ourselves it also is still a common form of salutation, of greeting when friends meet, and of farewell when they part. Among the less demonstrative western nations it has grown out of fashion for men to kiss each other, but among others it is still a social custom, a token of friendship and love.

I will also say right here that the fact that we have several instances recorded in the Scriptures of a kiss being given deceitfully, meaning by it to deceive and betray the one to whom it was given, is no argument against it as a custom, but only a picture of the hideousness of deceit, or of professions of friendship which are false.

There are a good many instances in the Scriptures recorded of a kiss being given and received. I cannot quote them of all, but will refer to the places where this mode of salutation is spoken of. I will then speak briefly of its meaning, and then try to show what answers to it now, and how what the Apostles meant to enjoin by it may be fulfilled now.

First. Kissing by way of affectionate salutation was customary amongst near relatives of both sexes both in patriarchal and later times. Gen. 29th. 11th. Cant. 8th and 1st. Between individuals of the same sex, and in a limited degree between those of different sexes. The kiss on the cheek as a mark of respect or an act of salutation, has at all times been customary in the east, and can hardly be said to be extinct even now in most countries. Mention is made of it, 1st, between parents and children: Gen. 27th. chapter 26th. and 27th. Gen. 31st. chapter 28th. 55th. Gen. 48th chap. 10th. Exodus 18th and 7th. Ruth 1 : 9-14. 2nd. Sam 14 : 33. 1st. Kings 19 : 20. Luke 15 : 20. Second, between brothers, or near male relatives, or intimate friends. Gen. 29:13, Gen. 33:4. Gen. 45:15. Exodus 4:27, 1st Samuel 20:41. Third. The same mode of salutation between persons not related, but of equal rank whether friendly or deceitful is mentioned in 2nd. Sam. 20:9, Psalm 75 : 10. Proverbs 27 : 6. Luke 7 : 45. Luke 22 : 48. Acts 20 : 37. Fourth, as a mark of real or pretended condescension, 2nd. Samuel 15 : 5 2nd Samuel 19 : 39. And fifth, of respect from an inferior, Luke 7 : 38, 45. From the places referred to by brother Taylor in the New Testament we may feel sure, I think, that in the churches then existing it was performed not only as an act of salutation, but as an act symbolical of love, and christian brotherhood. Some of these places are Rom. 16 : 16. 1st Cor. 16 : 20. 2nd Cor. 13 : 12. 1st Thess. 5 : 26. 1st Pet. 5 : 14. Now, it seems to me that from all these references, and others that need not be named, we may be sure that it was the ordinary mode of salutation in some form or other from the earliest ages in the countries of the east. It was still an ordinary mode of salutation in the days of our Lord's dwelling upon earth and afterwards. When the churches were established in Apostolic times and under Apostolic direction, this was still a common mode of salutation among all men. Now it was not the mission of the gospel, or of those who preached it, to change customs or forms of ordinary intercourse among men. They used ordinary every day language to set forth the truth, and they also continued to use the ordinary forms and customs of daily intercourse among men, in their intercourse with each other. But even as the ordinary language of men was ennobled and exalted by being made the vehicle of spiritual truth, so were the ordinary customs of social intercourse among men sanctified and made sacred as the expressions among believers of a deeper friendship, and a more perfect love than natural men could ever conceive of. The Apostles did not enjoin new forms of intercourse among the churches different from what they had been accustomed to in their daily life before, even as they did not invent a new set of words to express the truth which had been revealed to them. It is not by oddities of speech or manners that the people of God are to make themselves known as a peculiar people, but by love of righteousness, and by steadfast adherence to the faith and practice taught by our Saviour.

We have among our churches to-day a custom which will illustrate what I am trying to set forth. It is, in our land and day, a common mode of salutation when meeting and parting to grasp the hand, to shake hands. To give the hand and to take it is among us a token of respect, friendship, or love, as the case may be. We judge which is intended by the strength of the hand-clasp and the warmth of the pressure. This is a common custom. Now growing out of this we in our churches give the hand of fellowship in receiving members, and upon other occasions. As the common custom of salutation by kissing became the kiss of charity, or love, or the holy kiss among those who loved Jesus and each other for his own sake in early days, so the clasp of the hand becomes among us the emblem of the same holy love and fellowship that in Apostolic times was expressed by the kiss given and received. The kiss or the hand-clasp is but a custom which may pass away or change to some other custom, and no law of the Lord be broken, but the true love meant to be expressed in this way, or in the other, cannot be violated without breaking the second great commandment of the Lord. And it is possible for us poor, weak, fallible mortals to so get things transposed in our minds that we are willing to sacrifice the greater for the less, the love and fellowship for the form of its expression. Love and fellowship must not pass away, but kissing, or hand-shaking may pass away, and give room for other methods of salutation, and no harm is done to the cause of God, and no reproach falls upon the name of religion.

I see that I have already largely anticipated the second and third questions, viz: the meaning of the kiss of charity and what will fulfill the exhortation now, but still I will add a few more words. Its meaning was simply an expression of love for each other; and anything, by which this love may be properly manifested will do as well now. Its application or use among christians then was restricted to what would be judged seemly among men in general. That is, men kissed each other, as did also women kiss among themselves. This was true among all men. It was as customary a thing, and would attract no more attention than hand-shaking among ourselves to-day. In some parts of the world the kiss is still the common mode of salutation. Churches existing in such places would show their love and fellowship by using this mode of salutation. It would be a holy kiss, because expressive of holy things; it would be a kiss of christian love or charity. Among ourselves it would be out of place, simply because it is not the custom, and if practiced would cause scandal instead of being to the glory of God, just simply because among us, other customs have taken its place. Among us, to say to our brethren, "greet one another with the hand of fellowship" would convey the same truth that was meant by the Apostles when they said, "greet one another with a holy kiss."

But the chief thing is, have we in our hearts, and do we live out in our lives what was signified by the kiss then and what is signified by the hand-clasp now? As brethren then would greet one another with a kiss in token of the special love they bore each other, they would be reminded of the relation which they bore to each as brethren, and of the solemn obligations resting upon each to love and cherish each other. So to-day when brethren greet each other with the warm hand clasp-given in token of fellowship, they are reminded of the same things. If not stirred up to remember these solemn obligations and high privileges, then neither the kiss nor the hand-clasp are anything more than an unmeaning form, a hollow profession, an acted falsehood.

I remember that when as a mere boy of eighteen years, I offered myself to the church at North Berwick, Maine, and though so poor and unworthy, I was received. After the vote of the church had been taken Elder Gilbert Beebe, the founder of the "Signs of the Times," the first paper in this land that dared to lift its banner against the hosts of Arminian Baptists and their fleshly works, who was present, and whom I revered then as I never have revered any other man on earth, and whose memory I still revere, arose and came where I was seated and gave me his hand and called me "brother." What did not that hand-clasp and that word convey, of love, of fellowship, of fatherly tenderness to my heart? My heart went out to him, and he always had it afterwards. No kiss of charity could have ever said more to any man than did that hand-clasp, and that word brother to me.

Now in conclusion, let me say, Brethren, if any of you have grown cold to each other, if there be any alienation, any enmity, any hatred, any wrath, any emulation among you, remember the hand of fellowship which you have all given and received, and once more greet one another in that way. And as you hold each others hands, looking into each others faces, remember that even among natural men it means that there is no sword in the hand, but that it means that peace, love and good-will are in our hearts to each other. How much more then ought it to mean all this and more among you! I leave the theme. I should be glad to hear from Brother Taylor also upon this matter. May what has been said do good and not harm.

I remain your brother in hope of the gospel.

F. A. CHUCK,

Reistertown, Md.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—For some time past it has been on my mind to write for the ever welcome LAND-MARK, but knowing a great deal of my own weakness and ignorance and more still of my sinfulness, I have feared that, if what I might write was permitted to enter its columns, it would be in the way of and probably crowd out some one of the excellent communications designed for its columns. It seems to me that of late the LANDMARK has been unusually interesting. Every article published therein seems to have a binding influence to draw the reader more closely to the writerr and the good Lord who by his Holy Spirit has blessed them to write with such great ability and so much comfort.

However, the feeling continuing with me, and hoping to be guided by the same Holy Spirit, I make the attempt, feeling willing to leave the result with the Lord.

We have the command in our Saviour's own language in that notable "Sermon on the Mount," Matt. 5th chapter, 16th verse, "Let your light so shine that others may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven." This, like all of his commandments to obidience and promises of rest, is given directly to his children, those who have been blessed by the operation of his Spirit to become the sons of God.

Then the question, Have you, christian, been obeying this blessed commandment? Let each one examine and answer for himself.

Experience has taught us that when one is born of the Spirit, when his blind eyes have been opened, his deaf ears unstopped, and he has been given an understanding heart, he commences a search for kindred spirits, with whom he can dwell in harmony and to whom he can communicate his feelings, thereby relieving his mind of the burden to go and tell what great things the Lord has done for his poor soul. Is your manner of life such as to invite him to come. Are you obeying the commandment, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." "Little children love one another." And "Greet ye one another with a holy kiss." Are you letting your light so shine that others might see your good works? It is not only necessary that we make an open profession that others might know we claimed a good work, but to obey the command it must shine that it can be seen.

We may claim to have a light with us, but if it is shut up in some dark place where its rays cannot be seen, who can know that we have, it, or what good can it can it do us or others? When we meet together do we meet because it is customary duty, or is it the love of the Lord and his children that influences us? If it is love, do we manifest it by warm greetings when we meet, or do we show a cold heart and try to mingle with the brethren as little as convenient? Is our talk about our occupations or things that are transpiring in the world around us, or is it about heavenly and divine things? Would it not be best to leave worldly things alone for the time, and after making our love manifest by warm greetings, continue to show our love of one another and our blessed Redeemer by relating to each other His dealings with us since we met together before or at sometime past, and our reasons for future hopes? Or by reading the Bible or some of the experiences or articles written by our dear brethren and sisters for our comfort? Or by singing some of beautiful hymns of praise to God? Then when we come to part and sing a parting hymn and feel as if we would like to extend the parting hand to our brethren and sisters while singing the parting hymn, shall we refrain from doing so because it is sometimes done by Arminians, or shall we make manifest our love for each other as we hope we are led by spiritual desires induced by the love of God and the brethren? What have we to do with Arminians or their customs in a religious sense anyway? Do they never do right? If they do, should we refrain from doing right because they have done so? No brethren, it is not our business to consult what they do, but it is our duty to consult the impressions of the Holy Spirit, who is to take the things of the Father and show them to us, and if the love of our brethren and our Saviour as manifest in them leads us to desire to extend the parting hand or otherwise express our love and thus let our light shine it is our duty to do so.

But say some there is danger of getting up a fleshly excitement by being too free with the manifestations of our love and we had best be very careful how much we show of our love. Why brethren, the Bible teaches us that the carnal mind does not love the things of the Spirit. Then the more we show of operations of the Spirit in us the less of the love of the world may we expect to receive. As to this body of flesh of ours, it is but as a glass through which we may look at the works of the spirit within us. Were it not for this we could never see any of the spiritual operations, for we only look at the outward parts, or flesh to see if we can see the effects of the spirit within. And if we have been taught of the Spirit, we have also been taught of its operations and effects upon the flesh so that through the conduct of flesh which we can see, we might be able to see the effects of the spirit which we cannot see. Therefore a tree is to be judged by the fruit it bears. We should not suppress what we have reason to believe are spiritual desires for fear of exciting the flesh, but let our light shine that it can be seen and leave the result with the Lord.

Whatsoever we sow that shall we reap, and if we sow seeds of coldness and distance from our brethren we may expect a bountiful harvest, for it is the natural bent of the flesh and it will encourage it to its full strength. But if we enjoy light, love, and spiritual joy then let us sow the same and reap a golden harvest of rejoicing in the love of Jesus our Saviour, and the love, union, communion, and sweet fellowship with the church of God.

I have been made to feel very badly at the Associations a few times when some of our dear aged brethren in the ministry would, while seeming to be filled with the love of our blessed Jesus, extend the parting hand and younger brethren would receive it with indifference and even coldness that seemed to say, oh you are ignorant, old brother. This will not do. It will get up a fleshly excitement. And the dear old brother is left to feel that surely coldness is abounding.

For the first time in my life, I attended, in October last, the White Oak Association of which I am a member, and how I was built up and edified to see the brethren loved, to love one another and to make the same manifest that all who have been blessed with eyes to see the operations of the Spirit might see the light and glorify our Father in heaven.

While there I formed the acquaintance of many dear brethren, sisters, and friends, some of which gave evidence of having been spiritually born and of being seekers for the light which I hope they were enabled to see. Some of those acquaintances I shall never forget while memory lasts.

Brethren, do not be ashamed to let your light shine. Pray for me and mine, and may the God of grace be with you and bless you with His Holy Spirit to cheer you on your pilgrimage here and finally save you with an everlasting salvation is my prayer. Your brother in love, GEORGE M. HARDY.

 WIL. N. C.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER,
 DEAR SIRS AND FRIENDS:—I have been thinking for some time of writing to you and have started the second time, but my heart failed me for fear I was doing wrong; but it still keeps on my mind to do so, and I will make an effort. The object of my writing is to see if you can give advice as to what to do. I am in a terrible condition from some cause. I have been in bad health for several years, and my physicians say my troubles are caused from bad health, and I want to know if you think bad health will cause such troubles as I have passed through.

I will try to tell some of the troubles I have passed through for the last 18 or 20 months. I will go back and give a little sketch of my life. I was of Missionary parentage. I believed it was the true church of Christ. At the age of 17 I joined the church. I never had any experience of grace. The preachers asked me a few questions which I answered, and was received in the church. I went on about two years when I got married. My husband was of the Primitive Baptist belief, and his people were of that denomination, that belonged to any church. I thought they were the most self-ish people on earth. I would go to hear them preach sometimes just to please my husband, and I could scarcely stay in the house while the preacher was preaching.

I went on in that way until about 2 years ago when it began to appear to me that I was not a christian. I had some serious thought about the matter, but never said anything about it to any one. One day my father-in-law was at my house, and was talking about the wickedness that was going on, and remarked that some said at the end of this two thousand years the world would come to an end. It struck my mind with some force, but I never thought much about it until a few days after, and the thought appeared to me, are you prepared to meet the end of time. I never had felt to be such a sinner before, and I thought I was going to die (being in bad health,) and if I died the Lord would damn my soul. I did not see how he could save such a sinner as I saw and felt myself to be. I would try to pray, but all I could say was Lord, have mercy on me, a poor sinner. I went on this way getting worse for about three months, and the very breathing of my soul was Lord, have mercy on me a sinner. I thought I was going to lose my mind. But to go back a little; my mind was drawn to the Old Baptists. I wanted to hear Elder H. B. Jones preach whom I had despised before. I got my husband to write for him to come to preach for us, but would not leave him to tell who wanted him to come, for I felt I had committed such a sin in disliking his preaching I could not write myself. I wanted to read ZION'S LANDMARK etc.

At the end of about three months one day my husband was at work in the field, and my sins got so heavy on me I thought I would surely die, so I decided to go to the field where my husband was, and it appeared like there was something in my throat choking me to death. I remained there until my husband went to the house, and all at once every thing seemed easy. I had no trouble, but I was made to rejoice like others that I hear talk, and read about. I have never felt my sins like I did before, but I do feel to be such a sinner I am afraid I am not a christian.

It seemed like Satan and torment were all I could study about, and it does seem to me that if I was a christian I would not study about such things. But I have been convinced that the Primitive Baptists are the church. I love them and love to hear them preach, and to go to preaching every chance I have, but that is seldom, as it is about fifteen miles to the nearest church, and my health is bad.

I love to read ZION'S LANDMARK. I hardly stop when it comes until I read through. Now Mr. Gold, I wish you would tell me whether you think bad health would cause such troubles as I have tried to tell you about or not. If you ever did pray pray for me that I may be relieved of my troubles, and that my duty may be shown me, if this is a duty for me to perform. So I will close hoping to hear from you. A friend to the Old Baptists.

Remarks.

It does my soul good to read such as the above from our friend. I was much in her condition years ago, thinking the Primitive Baptists the most selfish people I ever saw. But I was brought into trouble and distress, and desired to hear them preach before I left the Missionaries. I loved the Primitive Baptists for years before I went to them. I felt unworthy to go. I had been deceived once, and feared I might be again. But when I did go rest was found in bearing the easy yoke of Christ,

I am still a sinner, and shall remain one as long as I am in the flesh. It does not seem to me that I shall ever be any thing but a sinner.

My advice to my friend is to go and live with the people you love. No, poor bodily health or sickness is not the cause of your trouble. It is heart sickness. Bad health of body will not of itself make one abhor himself, nor love the Primitive Baptists.

But when you confess the Lord Jesus, the answer of a good conscience that you will receive will be as health to your soul.

P. D. G.

DEAR BRETHREN:—I have been accustomed to hearing people say that we O. S. Baptists were opposed to Sunday schools. And as that is an institution that is idolized by most of the religious denominations, and believed to be an important auxiliary to the church and a means of saving any that would otherwise be lost, it seems to be utterly unaccountable to them that any body that was not a heathen or an infidel could object to them. I have not heretofore felt called upon to say anything about schools of any description either in writing for the press, or in public speaking. I have sometimes heard brethren allude to what is called Sabbath schools in a way that implies that they did not approve of them. I have wished when they had anything to say about them they would take time to explain themselves fully and state the grounds of their objections.

It seems to be regarded as opposition to any and all education, and as an indifference to the proper care and religious training of children. I am not writing for the purpose of disturbing the advocates and supporters of Sabbath schools, but simply to enlighten honest inquiry with regard to our faith and practice on this subject. As to that phrase "opposed to Sabbath Schools," we have no disposition and have never shown the least inclination to disturb any schools of any description that parents provide for their own children. It is their undoubted right to have their children taught in any and all branches of natural science that they believe to be for the benefit of their children, and to provide public and private schools and academies for the purpose. And if they believe they can teach them religion they should be allowed to try it without interference. I remember when the gathering up of poor, neglected children on the first day of the week in order to have them washed and dressed and furnished with books so as to be taught to spell, read write etc, and get some start in the primary elements was first introduced. There being no public provision for the support of schools, or for the purchase of books, and the education of children being very expensive many were allowed to grow up without ever learning even to read. There was then no objection and could be none to this charitable work of of kindly disposed people who would gather up neglected children and give them some elementary instruction without cost to either children or parents. It was a matter in the hands of citizens and not of denominations. And all charitably disposed citizens, whether church members or not, took hold to help along the good work. Sunday morning or afternoon was generally made use of because in villages the citizens were engaged in business during the week.

The reader need not to be told that the "Sabbath Schools" of the present day are entirely another and different institution; and are organized and maintained for another and different purpose. It is the rich and not the poor that are sought after. And each of the several denominations has its Sabbath School in which the children are taught religion as sciences are taught and carefully trained up in the faith and practice of that denomination.

This is all I suppose natural enough that denominations would see in the schools a chance to exercise an influence over the infant mind when away from the care and protection of parents, and so secure the plants as from a nursery to be in due time transplanted within their own pales. The several denominations have each their seminaries, academies and colleges for those farther advanced, but the earlier in life control can be obtained of children the more certain will be the ultimate success. The object being changed, the class and character of the children to be taught must also be changed. The object is no longer to benefit needy, neglected children: it is to benefit the denomination at the expense of the children. As a matter of course the wealthy and those whose parents are leading, influential citizens are sought after, and every possible effort resorted to to secure the attendance of children whose parents belong to some other denomination. The charity is all on the other side. As far as the teachers are concerned it is entirely selfish. I have before me the annual report of contributions from the Sunday schools in one Association of what is called Missionary Baptists. They foot up the enormous sum of $23,887, for a single year. It is probably generally known that the children are required to always carry some money with them to contribute.

Not only so, but there is a rivalry kept up between the different schools as to which shall excel in the size of the annual contribution. I suppose somebody must know who gets this money and what use is made of it. About all the satisfaction that the children ever get is that it is for the missionaries. I doubt whether there was ever a grosser imposition palmed off upon innocent, unsuspecting people than this missionary enterprise. Even if the millions of dollars that are collected ostensibly for that purpose was all honestly used in that way, what worth while to send men to China or Japan with a princely salary to convert those people. Don't we all know that they cannot convert their nearest neighbor. If they think they can, let them commence on those that we have here in our own country. We have Chinese and Italians and Hungarians and others of almost every nationality, and then we have heathen that are natives.

If people of mature years and with ample means of information see fit to contribute of their own funds to support and maintain this grasping, gigantic fraud, it is their right of citizens of a free country to do so. But to impose upon these innocent children persuading them that their contributions will save souls that would otherwise be lost, and that Heaven and happiness hereafter will be their reward, constitutes a degree in deception and crime that the heathen themselves would hardly be guilty of. We are not given to inter-meddling with the rights of others, and we do not as a people wish to deprive any other people of their rights to do what they will with their own. They can have as many different schools on any and all days from first to seventh, and send their children so as to keep them ever learning, if they think proper to do so, and we will not have a word to say. In this sense we are not opposed to Sabbath Schools, or to any other schools that parents see fit to provide for their own children.

I suppose everybody knows that most of the denominations have each their Sabbath School conducted under their own supervision. If we do not see fit to send our children to a Methodist or Presbyterian school why should we be complained of. Why should it be a matter of reproach that we see fit to care for our own children. We only claim the right that we concede to all others. But why so anxious about our children? If any of our people move into a town or village they are immediately set upon and teased about attending Sunday school, that is if there are children in the family. And the different denominations one after another will press their suit. They are called Hardshells and other hard names, but they are not quite hard enough to withstand the pressure that is brought to bear upon them. I heard a very candid, conscientious man who had a grandchild in his family once say that if he was not to let that child attend their Sunday schools that all patronage would be withdrawn from him so that he could not remain in that city. Is the object of this to press contributions from our children? Or is it to enlist them in the Methodist or Presbyterian faith? In either, or in any case, why should we not be opposed so far as our own children are concerned. We do not believe that religion can be taught in that way. But if we did, we would not be inclined to have our children learn it in those schools. I think it is a pet idol with many in our day, and that it is with them the one institution upon which the perpetuity and prosperity of their respective organizations depend; and that to object to supporting and encouraging it is in their view an incorrigible heresy. I don't know but they may be sincere in this, and that they honestly believe that there is no other hope for the rising generation.

I have only to say in addition to this a word to our brethren. Do you take thought what you are doing when you dress up your children on Sunday morning and furnish them with the required funds to attend a Missionary or Methodist Sunday school! Who will be responsible if in the end your worst religious foes are the men of your own house? Do you attend with them even sometimes to see and hear what is doing there? Suppose we all judge between you and your vineyards. What more could you have done that you have not done in it, to cause it to bring forth wild grapes.

E. RITTENHOUSE.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—This Sunday night, after spending the day as much as possible in reading the revealed will of God and a book that you have doubtless read, written by Elder John Rowe, "Sovereignty of God," I feel a desire to write to one of the household of faith, and as I have derived so much comfort, peace and pleasure from the LANDMARK, I will add my simple testimony to many others, and beg you to continue the good work, and let it comfort you to know a poor, weak worm of the dust many miles away looks with eager anxiety for the day when the LANDMARK is due, feeling assured some brother or sister has written a letter that will, in a measure, tell what I feel but cannot express, and when I turn to the editorials I am always repaid. When I tell you, my brother, that I am in this town of 15,000 inhabitants the only one that claims and loves the name of "Baptist," you will not wonder that I feel alone and love the truth contained in the LANDMARK and Primitive Baptist. Right here I will tell you of an objection I heard one of our ministers make to religious papers, and by the way I love him, a poor—off creature, that certainly has been called to feed the sheep with the "sincere milk of the Word," as he is totally blind. When I saw him get up to preach I thought he could say with Paul, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God," and certainly when he "opened his mouth God filled it," for I never heard the true gospel set forth with more power, more feeling despite his great bodily weakness. But I have left my subject. His objection was that we often read our papers with more interest than the Bible being content with the version or views brethren would give, rather than read for ourselves. I can speak for myself and say that I am often enlightened regarding some scripture that I cannot take in (so to speak) or rightly apply. As I have said, there is some of every society existing at this place except the little few that contend for the electing grace of God, and "trust that we have an inheritance undefiled that fadeth not away eternal in the heavens." But be assured my faith is strong, and if I could feel that I was one of the "palm trees" spoken of by the brother in the Primitive Baptist I would be happy; but alas, so prone to evil, so forgetful of the dear Savior's love, that I am made to fear my name is not written in the book of life, but of one thing I am assured, my brother, I love the brethren and sisters that worship an all-sufficient Saviour and feel that they have nothing but sin to give for all his blessings. But ought we not to rejoice that the purposes of God are unalterable, and when we turn to Isaiah 55: 10, 11, we ought to take comfort, and by our own weakness "to run with patience the race set before us looking to Jesus who is the author and finisher of our faith." I attended a Missionary Association in October. One preacher, in all of his sermons, set forth the doctrine of "salvation by grace," but in the wind-up of every discourse he addressed himself to the dead sinner. They claim Paul as their guide, and say they (the ministers) have the commission to go preach. I often told them if the ministers have any claim upon Paul it was when he (Paul) was going with letters of authority from Damascus to persecute the saints, but they could not tell that the Apostle was paid a stipulated salary set apart by the board to make sheep. I feel for the children that are in Babylon, misled by their teachers. Seventeen years I had eyes but could not see, ears but could not hear, until God in mercy opened my blind eyes to see the true gospel and made me willing, yea anxious, to go to my Father's children. Where I have been perfectly content, only fearing I may be as driftwood or a stumbling-block. Lord help me to be humble, and I pray thee to take the lead of my mind that my thoughts may be good, take charge of this sinful heart, purge out all that is contrary to thy service. Brother Gold, if it is not asking too much, please give your views on Ezekiel 33: 8, 9, 10, also Matthew 13. 15. I have studied who are the people spoken of but am not satisfied. I have been much afflicted for several years, and have been tried and tempted much, but thank God he has watched over me, and when troubles and temptations seem to crowd my way until I would almost feel forsaken, he has mercifully made a way for my escape, and revealed his smiling face until I would cry, My Father, My Deliverer! Only four times have I heard the doctrine I love preached, but I value those sermons. They were delivered in spirit and gave forth no uncertain sound. The Baptists I have found in Texas are firm, and if I was situated so I could go I would often be blessed in meeting with them. God bless the children everywhere; unite them in christian love, and help us to remember "we are of the same family and should dwell together in peace." Now Brother Gold, when about to conclude, after looking over this scattering letter, I feel like casting it aside, but it seems to relieve my mind, and I hope your good heart will cause you to sympathize with me and be patient while reading what I have written. I am not able to pay you now, but if I live I hope to be able to pay you before March 1st and to renew for another year, for I will not if I can possibly help it deprive myself of the sweet pleasure I receive while reading the LANDMARK. Now brother Gold, I beg that you will remember me when at the throne of mercy, for I feel the need of my brethren and sisters' prayers to bear me up that my faith fail not. Your sister in hope,

VIOLA HARLAN.

Warren, Texas.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—We all enjoy reading the LANDMARK so much, and as for myself I do not feel willing to give it up. The most of the writers are unknown to me in the flesh, and many miles separate us now, but if we are what we profess to be we will meet in that bright world to come. Happy thought. I sometimes feel that it is too much for me to ever hope for. I am so sinful, so unbelieving. How I wish my life might be what I would admire in another, but alas, it is not. I have such a feeling of unrest I can't describe. Such a gloom has settled over me that for the time being I wonder if I shall ever again be happy in hope. I have so many things to try me. Troubles come in so many forms.

If I could only trust the Lord at all times and feel that his grace is sufficient, but I so often mourn his absence and feel to adopt this language, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" I feel to be friendless and alone. But no chastening for the present seemeth joyous, but grievous, nevertheless afterward it yields the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby. This thorn in the flesh is necessary to keep us humble, and I love humble christians. The more humble they seem to be the more I love them.

If some of us had less pride and possessed an humble and forgiving spirit how much better it would be for us. I so much admire your mild, gentle way of speaking. Some of our preachers have a way of fighting other denominations which, I think, is unnecessary, as we cannot open the eyes of the blind, and besides we only gain their ill-will or dislike. That is not feeding the sheep; it is casting pearls before swine. Now I don't mean to criticize, but simply mention this. We should be patient with all men, and as much as within us live at peace with all men. I know there is a great desire manifested on the part of men now-a-days to be partners with God in the great work of saving sinners, and it seems the same men wish to share glory with him, but he will not give his glory to another nor his praise to graven images. The ministry is for the perfecting of the saints, for the edifying of the body of Christ. It is through the ministry that the saints are warned of evil and against false doctrine, and not as a means of quickening sinners as some say. That sinners are sometimes quickened during preaching we all admit, but it is by the Spirit of God, for it is the Spirit that quickens, the flesh profits nothing.

The Holy Spirit gives divine life and a foretaste of heaven; gives some assurance that heaven with all it is shall be ours in the near future.

Brother Gold, I am afraid I will worry you with my feeble scribbling, but if I cannot see any of my spiritual kindred to talk with, I can sometimes relieve my mind by writing, and I feel that your generous heart will forgive my intrusions.

The Lord bless you in all your labors and in heaven at last save us.

With unfeigned affection,

ANNIE ROBERTSON.

Mt. Cross, Va.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA.
A SUMMER SCHOOL FOR TEACHERS

A summer school for teachers and others who desire to study will be held from July 2 to July 28 in the University buildings at Chapel Hill, N. C. The tuition fee is $5 which admits to all the instruction. The Faculty includes 16 professors selected from the Faculties of the Universities of North Carolina, Texas and Louisiana, the State Normal and Industrial School for Women, and the Graded Schools of Charlotte, Wilmington, Raleigh and Goldboro. The following subjects will be taught: Latin, Greek, French, German, English Language and Literature, Anglo-Saxon, Civics, History, Pedagogics, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Land Surveying, Road Construction, Political Geography, Physical Geography, Botany and Political Economy.

Methods of teaching will be discussed theoretically and illustrated practically by means of model classes.

Board and furnished room may be had for the month at the hotels for $15, more cheaply at private houses.

Reduced rates will be granted by all the railroads. For circulars with full details, address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

'Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set.'

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV:I.....No. 12.

WILSON, N. C., MAY 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

Brother W. H. Broadway requests my view of Hab. 3:3, 4:

"God came from Teman, and the Holy One from mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of His praise."

"And his brightness was as the light; he had horns coming out of his hand; and there was the hiding of his power."

This language is used in the prayer of a prophet of God. What a wonderful setting forth of divine truth is expressed in such a prayer. In true prayer God is worshipped. There is no more solemn place to be, nor sublimer words ever uttered, than when man, poor and vile, comes before deity in solemn, blessed, God-given spirit of worship. Earth fades away, rottenness seizes the bones, a man's strength totters and falls to pieces. He abhors himself as vile. Trembling takes hold of him. The understanding of man is opened to consider and declare God's ways.

The declaration, "God came from Teman, and the Holy One from mount Paran," refers to his wonderful visitation of the Hebrews in bringing them out of Egypt, or the South country, and by Mount Sinai and the desert with all those awe-inspiring displays of his consuming power before which the earth trembles, and the tents of Cushan, or the heathen, were in affliction. "And he said, The Lord came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir; he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of his saints. From his right hand went a fiery law for them."—Deut. 33:2. *God is from everlasting. The beginning of his manifestation to deliver Israel is here referred to. He appears to Moses in the back side of Horeb. He finds Jacob in the wilderness.

In the experience of a quickened sinner, when suddenly God comes to the sinner in the desert of waste, howling wilderness, and his fiery law bursts forth as a tempest of wrath upon his naked soul, then rottenness seizes his bones, and all his comeliness fades away, and his strength is gone. The earth trembles, and affliction is in him. He then prays. He confesses his guilt. He worships the Lord.

God's glory covers the heavens. Then the heavens declare the glory of God, and the earth is full of his praise. Then the earth yields her increase. His brightness as a light shines and gives light. His fiery law proclaims his great power and majesty. From his hand goes forth this fiery law. The horn of his strength, in which his power is hid, is this hand. For Jesus is the blessed power and wisdom of God in a mystery. God is manifest in the flesh, and in Jesus the arm of the Lord is revealed and his law is fulfilled. Here justice is satisfied and judgment enthroned, and mercy and truth meet together. In Jesus is obedience to God's holy law unto death, and satisfaction is made, righteousness revealed, and help is laid on one who is mighty to save. The hiding of God's power is in this horn of strength. When Jesus appeared in the flesh or as a little cloud like a man's hand no eye but a prophet's could foretell how the little one would become a thousand, or what would be his multiplication, for of the increase of his government or kingdom there should be no end. Hence Moses sees him coming with ten thousand of his saints: They come with Jesus. He walks amid the candlesticks and holds the stars in his right hand. In Jesus crucified and risen and glorified is the revelation of this glorious power of God. The work of the Lord shall prosper in his hand. As a man uses his hand to accomplish his purpose, so Jesus is the one by whom God made all things. When he is revealed to the poor, trembling soul that is full of bitterness then the earth is full of God's praise. Thus God shines in the heart to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

The principles and power of God, as displayed in the deliverance of Israel from Egypt, and leading him to Mt. Sinai, and through the wilderness, are put in the heart and conscience of every redeemed soul in these days. Hence every one born of God worships the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sits down with them in the kingdom of God. The Old Testament is typical of the new. In the new the old is fulfilled, and all made new; so that as face answer to face in water, that which was in the old shadowy dispensation represented by the water-pots after the manner of purifying the Jews, which Jesus commanded to be filled with water, showing that he would himself fulfill the law giving good measure, and as the guests at the marriage as they drank enjoyed the best of wine, so Jesus the end of the law for righteousness is wells of salvation, and the best wine, so it is that every one brought to this marriage supper of lamb drinks this best wine of the pomegranate.

Thus a great cloud of witnesses, or tens of thousands of his saints appear, and now the soul that was full of rottenness and trembling is full of praise to God, for the earth is full of the Lord's glory.

How sweet the song of praise becomes as we sing how he hath thrown the horse and his rider into the sea, and dried the rivers, commanded the sun and moon to stand still, removed mountains, turned the flinty rock into a pool of water, made the desert to blossom, melted the heathen away, making my feet swift and nimble as hinds' feet to walk upon my high places and sing glory to God in the highest.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—This leaves me in some better spirits than I was a week ago, for I was very sad, felt very much discouraged, but this last week I have had some exercises I have not had before since I have been trying to preach. If I could always feel that way I might be of service to my brethren, which state of mind I hope the Lord will continue me in. I trust I felt the Spirit and power of the God of Daniel and Elijah, and I felt a rest in my journey and a willingness to spend and be spent in the glorious work whereunto I hope God has called me: but at times, when I think of my own deformities and weakness and short comings, I am made to shudder at the thought that I bear the name of a preacher. I have tried to reform and mend my ways, but find a weakness in that, and now I fall before him crying unclean, unclean. My only hope is in the abounding grace to the chief of sinners. Well, I would like to ask you in what sense did the Lord move Samson to marry a Philistine, and was Samson under the power of the divine Spirit when he slew the thousand Philistines with a jaw bone, and was Samson actuated by the Spirit and power of God when he pulled down the temple of the Philistines, and destroyed so many and himself also? Further, when David obtained his victory over Goliath of Gath, did he obtain his victory through God, and if so did God ordain that David should kill Goliath with a stone and sling? I have long desired to see you, and have hope yet that it may be my privilege. Pray for me, and may God abundantly bless you in all your labors for Jesus Sake. Yours in hope.

W. LIVELY.

Remarks.

"But his father and his mother knew not that it was of the Lord, that he sought an occasion against the Philistines: for at that time the Philistines had dominion over Israel."—Judges 14: 4.

It sounds strange to think that the Philistines had dominion over Israel. Yet this was true more than once. They were an old enemy of Israel—uncircumcised, wanderers, robbers, spoilers, haters of truth, loving to oppress poor Israel, mockers, making sport of the afflicted, defying the armies of the living God.

But why is Israel so foolish as to be involved in this oppression? Why did Israel so act as to be enslaved by this cruel foe, which they knew would neither spare nor pity? Why do we walk after the uncircumcised flesh of our lustful nature, when we know it will drag us down into miserable poverty and wretchedness?

Samson's father and mother loved him much. He was given to them in so gracious a manner why should they not love him? But little did they think of his marrying a Philistine woman. Was it not against all the precepts of the word—against the honor of Israel—a departure from the custom of the fathers such as Abraham, Isaac and Jacob? Is there, said they, never a woman among the daughters of thy brethren etc? His answer to this decides the matter, "Get her for me: for she pleaseth me well."

His father and mother knew not that it was of the Lord. Many esteem Samson a lustful, brutal man.

But I do not. His character is out of the usual line and uncommon, but it is peculiarly wonderful when viewed as typical of Jesus. He was blessed too with faith.

Remember he was raised up to begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines. His strength had no limit, yet it was in the seven locks of his head. It was secret—too. He should be a Nazarite unto God from the womb—no razor, or sharp tool of man, should come on his head.

He hated the Philistines, for the Spirit of the Lord began to move him. That Spirit always moved those blest with it to slay the uncircumcised Philistines that were ruling Israel. As he went to seek a wife among them the Spirit of God came mightily on him when a young lion roared on him, and he slew this lion as easily as slaying a kid one would eat.

Afterward turning aside to the carcass of this lion he finds a swarm of bees and honey therein. Of this he eats. Honey or sweetness is found in this enemy's carcass. Where it seemed was death there the sweetest comfort is yielded. We find tribulation works patience, so that the honey is eaten by us as we see the Lord's power in slaying our enemies. The lion of death, the King of terrors and terror of Kings is destroyed by Jesus, and he gives his people the sweetest food. A great danger appearing to the child of God affords in its carcass much sweet food for meditation afterwards to those who have been exercised thereby.

A feast is given to Samson on the occasion of his marriage. At this feast he propounds a riddle to thirty young men. If they can tell its meaning he shall give them presents: but if they cannot they must make them to him.

The riddle was, "Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness."

A riddle hides a deep truth under dark words. They could not answer him and were about to forfeit a penalty. Samson is stronger than they all are. They resort to a device to learn the riddle and avoid paying the penalty. They constrain his wife to entice him to interpret the riddle. She weeps before him and says thou lovest me not because thou hast not told me the riddle. Her weakness prevails and he tells her. She tells them. How much did she love him? By plunging with my heifer he says you have found out my riddle. You are robbers and meddlers. They seem to prevail: but no. The Spirit of the Lord comes upon him and he slays thirty of them, and takes spoils of them and pays the penalty. His anger is kindled. He leaves them and goes back to his father's house. His wife is given to his companion whom he had used as his friend. They take his wife from him. He then catches three hundred foxes and puts fire brands between their tails—one hundred and fifty fire brands—fastening each two, tail to tail, with fire brands, and turns them loose in their corn fields and orchards to destroy them. Could there be a fiercer method of destruction devised than this? How quickly these foxes scorched with fire in their tails would fire fields and orchards.

It should be remembered that he was seeking revenge of these uncircumcised Philistines, and that he was always stronger than they in that matter. He typifies Jesus to whom vengeance belongeth.

The fire of God's chastening furnace slays our fleshly natures, and consumes our works. As these cunning foxes with fire brands tied between their tails would hurl fire broadcast, so when our lusts reign in and over us the fires of chastening break forth to consume the enemies.

In revenge to him the Philistines burn his wife that had been given to another. For this he avenges them and slays them hip and thigh with a great slaughter. Then they come up to bind Samson, and the men of Judah tell Samson they are servants to the Philistines, and ask him why he has done so? He replies, "As they did unto me so have I done unto them."

This is the key of the matter. As the flesh of a child of God fights against truth, but is slain, so these Philistines fight against Samson and are slain. It is a war unto death.

The Israelites deliver Samson into the hand of the Philistines, but this is to their hurt. For as they take him bound and shout against him the Spirit of the Lord comes mightily on him, and he breaks the cords on his arm as burnt flax. Finding a new jaw-bone of an ass he slew a thousand Philistines with it. The dumb ass speaking with man's voice rebuked Balaam the sooth-sayer. With the jaw-bone of an ass Samson slays a thousand of his enemies. This shows how that all the strength of the jaw-bone was in Samson—as all the strength of a gospel preacher is in the Lord. The word of the preacher has no more strength of itself than this jaw-bone had, yet the jaw-bone is needful in the utterance of speech. It is the word or breath of the Lord that slays the wicked.

But Samson became weak, and was about to die of thirst. He cried unto God who clave a hollow place in the jaw-bone and forthwith came thereout water. Of this Samson drank and his Spirit revived. So after a gospel preacher has great liberty and his enemies fall he may almost perish of thirst, until God opens a fountain to him showing him how he was with him in the past, and he drinks and revives. Even Jesus after he was baptized, and the Holy Ghost abode on him, and the heavenly will pointed him out, hungered in the wilderness, and the devil roared upon him, but an angel appeared strengthening him.

After this Samson visited another Philistine woman, a harlot. An objection to Christ was that he received sinners and ate with them. While they watch to catch him he carries off all their strength, the gates of their city, Gaza. Even so Jesus destroys the gates of death and hell.

Again, Samson loves another Philistine woman called Delilah. Then the lords of the Philistines endeavor to reach him by hiring her to entice him. The devil sought to slay and destroy God's people by reaching Adam through Eve.

But why did Samson love such a woman! Why did Jesus love a people that did not love him? Why did he seek a bride of Gentile harlots and guilty of all filthiness? Did they not betray and crucify him?

The Philistines desire her to entice Samson that they may learn the secret wherein is his great strength, and wherein it lay that they might bind him to afflict him. Their great desire was to afflict him, and his great desire was to be avenged of them.

Delilah tries various devices, and so presses on and vexes him that finally he tells her that his strength is in the seven locks of his head, and that no razor has ever come on his head, and that if it is shaven or cut off he will be weak as another man. The strength of Jesus is the divine Spirit.

They take him when this is done and punch out his eyes, and put him to degrading labor, and gather in great multitudes to worship Dagon their god, and sacrifice to him for delivering Samson their enemy into their hand that had slain so many of them. They fetch him to make sport. For as fleshly lusts make sport of a poor afflicted child of God, so do these Philistines. But as Samson is brought up into their temple he prays to be avenged for the loss of his two eyes, and bowed himself and said, let me die with the Philistines. So he died with them, and slew more of the dead in his death than he had slain of them in all his life. Here we have a type of Jesus who was slaying our sins (Philistines) while he lived. When he is delivered over into the hands of his enemies the eye of justice no longer imputes our sins to us or sees them.

They betray Jesus, nail him to the cross, blindfold him, make sport of him. God withdraws from him. The divine attributes represented by the seven locks of Samson's head are withdrawn from him. He is weak and is crucified in weakness. He dies, and slays all our enemies in his death. He made his grave with the wicked and was numbered with transgressors. One dies for our sins, and no Israelite except Jesus dies.

Jesus dies—none of Israel but Jesus dies, but all the enemies of Israel are slain with him. Was it predestinated of God for David to kill Goliath? Yes David did the Lord's will in killing him and typified Christ himself in this matter. He could not even obey the King in choosing any other weapon, but must use and could use only the sling and stones of the brook. It was one man fighting for all Israel. They had no power to meet Goliath in this combat. David was sent to the camp at that very time to kill Goliath. Was there not a cause for his going. He was predestinated to kill him with that stone and sling.

So Samson was raised up by the Lord God for this very purpose, and the Lord was with him, and he was avenged of the Philistines. Every trap they set caught and entangled themselves. When they thought they had Samson he did them the more damage. His strength was always above theirs. Wherein they dealt proudly he was above them.

Brother Lively, I have written such as is given me, hoping it may be of the Lord and to your comfort, and that we may see each other at some time face to face.

P. D. G.

WHAT AM I.

ELDER P. G. LESTER, DEAR SIR: I will attempt to write you a few lines. Please pardon me for intruding on your time.

Mr. Lester, I have no hope of being better off after death. I fear death most of all things. I do greatly desire to receive a hope. I read the Bible sometimes, but cannot understand anything in it. I tremble because I cannot trouble about my sins. I do not know what to make of myself. I have been and am a great sinner; and cannot quit sinning. Do you think there has ever been any one else like me? Please answer through the LANDMARK.

A. FRIEND.

Remarks.

Men in nature's darkness are exhortd by men in like darkness to storm the battlements of heaven and take the Kingdom by force, to come boldly to the gates and demand an entrance, while the poor trembling sinner, who knows he is sinful and vile and feels his utter weakness does not feel to intrude upon the time of one who is but a worm and no man. While it seems natural for one who is in great distress to seek relief from many sources, and while I do not feel to refuse to comply the best I can to a reasonable request of me, yet I must say to my friend that the needed information and sufficiency are alone in Him who has said: "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else." Isa. 45: 22.

"If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." Jas. 1:5. No doubt my friend has tried to look unto God and to ask of him. There is however a certain state into which one is brought when he may cry out unto the servant of God to know what he shall do, and what he must do to be saved. But my friend has no hope, therefore I am unable to say what is to be done, more than that which has and is no doubt being done. If there is no hope what I may say can avail nothing now, but may hereafter. But is there not great reason of hope in this case? There is, but my friend is blind and therefore cannot see the reason thereof. The saying: "Where there is life there is hope" is not Scripture, but in itself is true and applies in this case. At present the hope for my friend is in me. Christ is the hope of his people, but only becomes individually so when thus revealed. We are kept shut up under the law, unto the faith which is revealed. My friend is now under the law, but the faith has not yet been revealed, so also is the hope yet unrevealed.

By the law is the knowledge of sin, the strength of the law is sin, and the sting of death is sin. You are now being taught this truth, and by sin are you being held under the law until sin is finished which is death. Death which is by sin, is now working in you. That consciousness of sin in you is a vital knowledge of sin which is effectively the sting of death, and is that which makes you sensible of the consequence of sin which is death, hence the fear of death. When the thunders and lightnings and thick clouds were about and upon Mount Sinai, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud, sounded forth, the whole mount quaked greatly, and the people trembled; the sight was so terrible, that Moses said "I exceeding fear and quake." If the giving of the law produced such wonderful effect, what may the poor sinner now expect but to fear and quake, when the commandment comes, sin revives, and he dies! I am persuaded that it is this death of which you are fearful. The fact that you have been brought to see your sins and the end of them which is death to them, will one day if not now stand forth as an abiding evidence of life in Christ, and a blessed hope in his resurrection. You already have one of the two component parts of a hope, which are desire and expectation. You desire a hope, you desire to be saved, but you do not or cannot expect such a blessing. One cannot desire to be saved who does not see himself or herself to be a sinner condemned by a righteous and holy law, and this knowledge cannot be where there is not first given life. You clearly indicate to me that God has given you life wherein you are brought from the dead. The giving of this life is of God, and is a good work, and the beginning of a good work in the one who has it. He that has begun a good work in you will perform it unto the day of Jesus Christ.

One does not obtain life, forgiveness of sins nor a hope by reading the Scriptures, nor is a knowledge of them thus obtained, but after they are revealed, then the Scriptures testify of them as revealed, hence the reason you cannot understand the Scriptures when you read them. You will not believe what I say unless the truth of it has been revealed unto you. The reason you cannot understand yourself and the things which so concern you is because you are blind. "I will bring the blind by a way they knew not; I will lead them in paths they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them and not forsake them."—Isa. 42:16. Are you not in a new way? Did you always feel as you do now? Perhaps your desire for more trouble or more pungent trouble grows out of an idea that if your trouble was greater, more continuous or more direct, you would sooner or more surely obtain a hope or deliverance from your sins and the fear of death. If your trouble is a Godly sorrow, you will eventually have enough, which will finally work a repentance unto salvation not to be repented of.

Do you really fear death most of all things, or do you fear God? "The fear of the Lord is to hate evil." Do you hate evil? Do you desire to be free from sin and from living after the flesh that you may have peace with God and live unto him? If you really and truly see yourself to be in the world without God and without hope, the work which has brought this condition about is of God, and he will surely bring to pass that which he purposed in himself before the foundation of the world concerning you, even life forever more. "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

I doubt if you will ever be able to understand what manner of creature you are, long at a time at least, even when you shall have been given a good hope which you perhaps now think would bring you into perpetual peace and satisfaction. To know what they are and what they ought to be are questions which rise up day by day in the minds of the people of God producing much anxiety and deep searching of heart :

" 'Tis a point I long to know,
 'O!' it causes anxious thought;
 Do I love the Lord or no,
 'Am I his or am I not."

It is more the continual working of sin bringing you, through the law, into death to sin that you realize than that you really sin. You are now seeing yourself as you are by reason of sin.

That which you regard as sin which you cannot quit is the revelation of the knowledge of the presence and working of sin in your members as against the law of your mind, bringing you into captivity to the law of sin that is in your members, so that it would be as easy for you to cease to be a sinner as it would to cease from sinning; either of which is impossible except in and by the grace of God.

You may have thought that your sins consist as much in what you find you cannot do as in what you cannot refrain from doing, which teaches you that your very being is vile, and that the real idea of sin consists in something deeper and more pungent than mere thoughts, words and actions. Our salvation is neither the result of our ceasing to do evil nor learning to do good, but it is of God through the obedience and by the blood of the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. When mortality shall have been swallowed up of life, then shall we cease from sin and enter into everlasting rest and peace in the Paradise of God.

I am glad you feel to be a great sinner, for Jesus is a great Saviour, which I hope you will be made to see in due time.

Your case is not a strange one to the people of God, they are brought along the way I trust you are being brought. When your heart shall have turned fully to Jesus, then the veil which is now upon it will be taken away, and you will see how God can be just and the justifier of such a sinner as you and I are.

The name of Jesus is the only name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.

May He ever work in you that which is meet, and bring you manifestly into his everlasting love, and into the fellowship of the saints and his name have the praise.

P. G. L.

Elder G. D. Roberson regrets that on account of sickness he will be unable to fill his appointments, as published.

OBITUARIES.

MRS. MARINA A. BENNETT.

Died, at her home near Columbus, in Colorado county, Texas, February 3d, 1894, Mrs. Marinda A. Bennett, wife of H. W. Bennett. She was a daughter of Lovic and Elizabeth Laper, and was born in Martin county, North Carolina, May 3d, 1820. When about eight years old she removed with her parents to Haywood county, Tennessee, where she was married to Mr. H. W. Bennett in 1840, and with him came to Texas some years later, locating near Columbus where she remained until her death. During her girlhood she united with the Methodist Church, but for the last twelve years she has been a constant reader of ZION'S LANDMARK and the Gospel Messenger, and I think her whole heart was with the Primitive Baptists. She never united with that church, however, because there was none in this portion of the State. She would often say that she wished she could attend some of their meetings and hear them preach again as she did in her childhood. Her life was that of a true Christian. She was ever ready to respond to the call of the sick and the needy—black as well as white—and to the widow and orphan she always extended a helping hand, with warm and loving words of kindly encouragement. Often has she opened her doors to the homeless, taking them in and ministering to their needs as if they were of her own household. It can indeed be truly said of her, "Freely she received, freely she gave." Hers was a life of usefulness. She never liked to be idle a moment, and to her duty seemed a pleasure. In the highest sense her life was a consecration, and through it all she seemed utterly unconscious of her own worth. She leaves a loving husband five, children, eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild, with a host of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. But though our hearts are filled with unutterable sorrow, and life seems almost too bitter to be borne without her dear presence, we feel a sweet assurance that for her all is light and life and joy. For we believe that she is now with the dear Saviour and her loved ones who have gone before. For her all sorrow and suffering are o'er and the last great victory won, and now she is sweetly resting in the presence of her Lord. We hope that the gracious Father will comfort us, and in his own good time permit us all to meet her again in that blessed home where partings are no more.

HER DAUGHTER.

EVA BELEMY.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—According to request you will please insert the obituary of little Eva, youngest daughter of C. N. and M. A. Belemy, that died with that dreadful disease pneumonia, April 18th. They said she was a precious one indeed. It seemed to be endowed with more wisdom than any child of its age, and bore its afflictions with more patience, and was always ready to take its medicine, and said, time and again, that God made her sick and God would make her die. Yes, the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. We have never heard of a child so young that used such language. And it must have been a revelation, as it proved to be true. Yes, the Lord is able to reveal himself to little children. For he said, "Suffer such to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." All that a good doctor and loving friends could do did not stop the monster death. It is no respecter of persons, old or young. The funeral was conducted by Elder M. T. Lawrence at our church, to a large and attentive congregation, after which it was interred in the cemetery by the side of its two little sisters who had gone before. May the Lord give the parents grace to comfort them in this time of trouble. It was born October 8th, 1890.

A precious one has gone to rest,

God took it because he loved it best,
Little children are bound to die,

To rest with God above the sky.

May this comfort every heart,

That has been called from such to part.

Your weak brother, as I hope, in Christ,
J. O. SALSBERY.

JOHN BATTLE, COL.

This aged brother, a faithful member at the Falls of Tar River, left bright testimony before his death, on February 23, 1894, aged about 70 years. He felt that he was going home to be with the Lord and the father, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and the sanctified host of God, redeemed by the blood of Jesus out of every nation under heaven.

HARRY BATTLE.

APPOINTMENTS.

See change in Elder Smith's appointments.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

ELDER W. C. CLEVELAND.

Statesboro, Ga... Tuesday after 2d Sun. in June
 Bethlehem..... Wednesday
 Lake..... Thursday
 Cedar Creek..... Friday
 Bay Branch..... Saturday
 Love's Chapel..... 3d Sunday
 Beard's Creek..... Monday
 Bethel..... Tuesday
 Belknap..... Wednesday
 New Detaches..... Thursday
 Upper Black Creek..... Friday
 Fellowship..... Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Lane's..... Monday
 Elder F. M. Stubbs will be with and convey him.

JESSE BROWN AND I. P. BEAN.

Rear Creek Association.
 Haulman... Tues. night after 1st Sun. in May Central Falls..... Wednesday night
 Pleasant Hill..... Thurs. evening at 4 o'clock
 They will be dependent for conveyance.

W. G. JONES.

Pleasant Grove..... Wednesday before 3d Sunday in May at 12 o'clock.
 Dan River..... Thursday
 Mayo Association.
 Wolf's Island..... Monday after
 Gilliam's..... Tuesday
 Burlington..... Tuesday night.

E. C. SMITH.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I will arrange appointments as requested by you for Elder E. C. Smith, as follows: For him to be met at Summerfield, on the C. F. & Y. V. R. R., on Friday evening before the 2d Sunday in May and preach at Hillsdale or X Roads..... Saturday
 Sardis..... 2d Sunday
 Pleasantville..... Monday
 Shioh..... Tuesday
 Matrimony..... Wednesday
 Ridgeway..... Thursday
 Mayo Association, Friday, Sat. & 3d Sunday
 Buffalo..... Monday
 Snow Creek..... Tuesday
 Rock House..... Wednesday
 Volunteer..... Thursday
 'edar Hill..... Friday
 Dover..... Sat. and 4th Sunday
 I will be with him at Stuart's Creek Monday
 Flower Gap..... Tuesday
 I will write Elder Webb to arrange from there to the New River Association the 1st Sunday in June and two weeks after.

Yours in gospel bonds,
 JAS. D. DRAUGH.

M. F. STUBBS OF GA.

Tarboro..... Sat. and 1st Sunday in May
 Lawrence..... Monday
 Conoho..... Tuesday
 Kehukee..... Wednesday
 Deep Creek..... Thursday
 Williams..... Friday
 Falls..... Saturday

He will need conveyance.

I hope to accompany Elder Stubbs on some, if not all, of his appointments.

P. D. G.

ISAAC JONES.

Flour Gap..... Sat and 1st Sun. in May
 Stuarts Creek..... Monday
 Tom's Creek..... Tuesday
 State Line..... Wednesday
 Aarons Fork..... Thursday
 Friends arrange for Friday.
 Snow Creek..... Sat and 2d Sun.
 Russell Creek..... Monday
 Pleasant Grove..... Tuesday
 Spoon Creek..... Wednesday
 Buffalo..... Thursday

Thence to Mayo Association.

Wolf Island..... Monday
 Pleasant Grove..... Tuesday
 Mr. Straders (near Yanceyville) Wednesday
 Stories Creek..... Thursday
 Roxboro..... Friday
 Durham..... Sat and 4th Sun.

He will need conveyance.

W. W. BARNES.

Sparta	May 1
Autry's Creek	2
Meadow	3
White Oak	5 and 6
Wilson	8
Lower Black Creek	9
Upper Black Creek	10
Memorial	11
Nahunta	12
Mewborn's	13
LaGrange	14
Sandy Bottom	15
Beaver Dam	16
Haskins	17
Sand Hill	18
Muddy Creek	19
New M. H. near H. Fountain	20
Cypress Creek	21
Maple Hill	22
South West	23
Bay	24
Stump Sound	25
Yopps	26
Ward's Mill	27
North East	28
White Oak	29
Hadnotts' Creek	30
Newport	31

He will need conveyance.

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

Miss S. L. Woolford, $1.00.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 35 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 401 N. Y. and P. A. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 47	9 51
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 02
Lv. Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 55	11 25	7 57
Lv Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 25	1 15
Ar Florence	7 59	3 47
	No. 47 Daily.
Lv. Wilson	4 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	1 00	6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 13	7 30
Ar Wilmington	5 50	10 00
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 26 Daily.		No. 14 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.		No. 500 N. Y. and P. A. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05	13 59
Lv Fayetteville	10 47	9 30	2 23
Lv Selma	12 10
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 8	4 30
	No. 28 Daily.
Lv Wilmington	9 00	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	10 40	8 37
Lv Goldsboro	12 00	9 45
Ar Wilson	12 45	10 35
	No. 28 Daily.		No. 14 Daily.
Lv Wilson	1 15	11 23	10 40
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 47	12 05	11 25
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 17	12 05	6 01
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3:40 p. m., Halifax 4:00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4:53 p. m., Greenville 6:17 p. m., Kinston, 7:35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7:30 a. m., Greenville 8:22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11:00 a. m. Weldon 11:20 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leaves Washington 7:00 a. m. Arrives Parmele 8:40 a. m.; Tarboro 9:50; returning leaves Tarboro 4:40 p. m., Parmele

6:10 p. m. arrives at Washington 7:35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5:00 p. m., Sunday 3:00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9:20 p. m., 5:30 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5:30 a. m., Sunday 9:30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10:25 a. m. and 11:45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 5:45 a. m., arriving Southfield, N. C., 7:30 a. m., returning, leaving Southfield, N. C., 5:00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9:30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4:30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5:05 p. m., Spring Hope 5:30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5:00 a. m., Nashville 5:35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 6:15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6:30 a. m.; arrive Dunbar 7:40 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6:30 a. m.; arrive Latta 3:20 a. m., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4:10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7:30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bare Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheet binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Marocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Marocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexion, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oilphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN
The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.
A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.
Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 10 a m
4 30 p m	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 07 a m
3 18 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
3 7 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 43 p m
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m
12 52 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	2 55 p m
11 06 p m	Lv.....Stokes-Br.....Lv	3 45 p m
11 42 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct.-A', Cove, Ar	4 20 p m
11 35 p m	At.....N. & W. Pct.-W. Cove, Lv	4 33 p m
11 09 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5 01 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6 24 p m
No 3		No 4
5 00 p m	At.....Berneville.....Lv	6 24 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Moxboro.....Lv	7 37 a m
6 08 p m	At.....Red Springs.....Lv	5 17 a m
5 43 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m
4 20 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 15 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
4 35 p m	At.....Kamsent.....Lv	6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8 40 a m
3 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 25 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily ex
Sunday		Sunday
4 35 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokes-Br.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No 4 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 15 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,
WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

MAY 15, 1894.

NO. 13.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

DID A DEVIL EVER EAT OF THE BODY OF CHRIST?

DEAR BRETHREN EDITORS:—My mind has been considerably stirred of late on the question at the head of this article and I wish now to present some thoughts in connection with it for your consideration, and also for the consideration of those who may read it.

The bread and wine in the Lord's supper represent the broken body and spilt blood of Christ, that is Christ in the New Testament or gospel dispensation.

Our Lord had twelve chosen men whom he called disciples that were with him continually as witnesses after his baptism by John. One of those men was a devil. Our Lord was not deceived in him for he knew that he was a devil. The work of betraying our Lord was a devil's work for a true disciple, while he could deny our Lord, yet he could not betray him. No christian can sell his hope however little it may appear and however much gold might be offered him for it. Christ to the disciples was an anchor of the soul both sure and steadfast. Their faith was shaken in him for a few days, just for a few days following his crucifixion, but only to be renewed with many times double its former strength when they saw his power over death that was manifested in the resurrection.

This faith Judas did not have and he never saw the crucifixion, death nor resurrection of Christ. He was a devil and could not live to see those things nor to know of their power, he never was a partaker with the Lord only as the Lord was as a natural man.

The broken bread and the wine represent his power in death, his power to save us by dying for us. This salvation Judas could not know for he was a devil. Now the question in my mind is: As Judas could not know the death and eternal life of Christ could he partake of that natural bread and wine that represented those spiritual things? Could he know or partake of spiritual things at all or those things which represented them?

By reference to Matthew 26 : 21, 22, 23, we have the following: "And as they did eat, he said, verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me. And they were exceeding sorrowful and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I? And he answered and said, he that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me." This told all that it was Judas, and "Judas then answered and said, Master, is it I? He said unto him thou has said."

Mark 14 : 18, 19, 20, 21 fully agree with the above. Here it is plainly taught that our Lord manifested to his disciples who the traitor was before the communion. This was done during the passover of which Judas did eat, for as a Jew he was entitled to eat the passover. (Among the Jews there were many sons of Belial but they were all of them entitled to eat the passover provided they were ceremonially clean.) But the communion was a new institution and did not belong to the literal Jew, was not of the ceremonial law but belonged strictly to the gospel church and though one were a Jew he had no right to partake of that unless he was born in the gospel kingdom. This in itself would exclude Judas for he was a stranger to such a birth. No doubt he had been baptized with water but he had not the revelation of Christ by our Father in heaven. If he had not been baptized the other disciples would have known the difference in him and themselves and when the Lord spake of his betrayal they would have known at once who it was of whom he spake. But they did not know, and nothing up to that time had been shown to let them know that there was any difference in him and themselves. This the Lord kept with himself until the time appointed, and then revealed it plainly so that there was no mistaking.

This was at the end of the Jewish dispensation, what follows. The setting up of the new or gospel dispensation. The passover belonged to the old but the communion to the new. The ceremonial sacrifices had to be offered all through the old dispensation, for that covenant was a covenant of works, but the sacrifice of the new covenant must be offered in the beginning of the new dispensation for it is a covenant of grace and herein the children of the covenant cease from their labors and enter into rest. Where was Judas at the setting up of the communion or feast of the new covenant? He had gone out. This is fully proven in John 13 : 26, 30. The receiving of the sop is the same as the eating or dipping with the Lord in the dish "And he went immediately out" etc, proves that after it was shown that he was the traitor he continued there no longer but went immediately out. Mathew and Mark both show that Judas' true character was made manifest before the institution of the ordinance of the communion and John shows that as soon as his true character was made known he left immediately. This is sufficient evidence for me to say that Judas did not eat of the emblems of the body of Christ in the new Testament.

This also is evidence that our Lord did not wash his disciples feet in connection with the communion supper for he washed them before the manifestation of the true character of Judas and washed his feet. No doubt that this will astonish you, knowing how firmly I have contended for feet-washing in connection with the communion, but my brethren I am open to conviction on all points and this conviction has come to me as gradually and as peaceably as the rising sun approaching our view on a clear morning. And views thus given are very pleasant to me and I am willing to submit them to the consideration of my brethren.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I desire to call you brother, but fear I am not worthy, but sometimes I have a faint hope that the Saviour bore my sins on the cross, and if I belong to that redeemed family I can claim the relationship, and have the greatest reason to praise and adore him, and say with the poet, "O for a thousand tongues to sing my great Redeemer's praise' for his loving kindness. O how great to a poor sinner like me. If he died for me I am safe, for he will accomplish what he has begun, and what he came to do, for he is of one mind and who can turn him, and what his soul desireth even that he doeth. But my faith is weak and I feel to say, Lord help my unbelief. O how much I desire and need his presence to cheer and comfort me when the way is dark and gloomy, to keep me from murmuring at the trials I am called to endure, and feel there is no one like myself, and not one ray of light can I see, and I begin to look for an evidence, and sometimes it is renewed, and I can say surely goodness and mercy have followed me all the days of my life, or I would long since have sunk in despair. We have read the Treatise on the Book of Joshua, and think the mistake was for good. We were interested and instructed in reading it. I sold one to Dr. Leonard, a Baptist. He said he was paid and took two more. My brother takes the LANDMARK, and I enjoy reading it. I believe you were raised up to comfort and instruct God's people. I wish you prosperity and much comfort, and should you have leisure please write a word to cheer one of the weakest and most disconsolate of all, if indeed one.

Since writing the above I have read Elder P. G. Lester's article in LANDMARK headed, "Why is it?" It brought so many of my thoughts and feelings home. I feel like telling you, but do not want to intrude too much on your time. It called to mind the trouble that weighed me down so that it was with the greatest effort I could keep my mind on the work I was obliged to do. When suddenly and unexpectedly relief came, and I joyfully exclaimed, I have a hope that I shall have a hope, and I felt that all the sorrows, affliction and sufferings of my life were nothing when compared with the joy of that moment. I wanted to be with God's people and hear them talk of this great salvation, and preferred to be alone rather than hear them talk on any other subject. Being in company where their conversation was trifling, I left the room, did not want to hear it. One of my neighbor's called. I asked her if I should read an experience, thinking it would prevent other conversation. She consented, said that is like my sister talked before she died. I replied, O tell me all about it. I want to hear about it. I said did you ever feel like that. She said no, but I wish I could. I think she was then a member of the Methodist church. I did not think it was love that gave me the desire to be with God's people. I was hoping for a better evidence that I had passed from death unto life, then I should surely know that I loved the brethren; but often when near the water it looked good and I desired to be worthy to follow the Saviour's example, but thought I would not take such a step until I had a better assurance, and that it was not binding on me, for my impressions were not powerful enough. I wanted to feel so distressed I could not help going to the church. In June, 1892, I had my wish. My impressions were so powerful that my trouble seemed to be more than I could endure. I thought all was against me. I prayed and wept but grew no better, but rather worse, and I felt compelled to go to the church with no better evidence, and tell them of my little hope. Then my trouble left me, and I was baptized the next day. (Aug 28th, '92.) On our way home the next day I thought I could see that it was the Lord that had led me to his people, and that was the very time. I had a great desire that the water would look clear, but I could not have my way, it was very high, and looked angry, but at two different times, although far away, the place where I was buried looked clear and beautiful, and it seemed the sun had left the heavens and was only in that place. You may think it imaginary, but to my view it was lovely, and I found a rest for a few weeks, but again I had to suffer. I attended a meeting, had a pleasant time. On returning home I thought I had done wrong in going to the church, that I was deceived and a deceiver and I felt that I might as well die for I should never take any more comfort, but I was relieved I trust by the still small voice, and again I had a rest. Please excuse me for writing so much. I have told you the cause. I know your discerning eye will see much imperfection in this, but I trust you will be charitable.

EMELINE HIX.

Jefferson N. Y.

ELDER P. G. LESTER DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—In reading your remarks on dancing and a little of your own experience in that way, I felt that I would like to tell you some of my troubles in that I could see a similarity to yours, that we were led by the same spirit. When I was about seventeen years old, there was a political meeting near our place. The band played as they passed by our house. There were some girls in our house at the time. When the band began to play the girls began dancing to the music. I could not keep from weeping. Mother said, "look here, Lib is crying and the rest are dancing." It appeared to me that I was on the downward road to destruction, they were marching near and rejoicing over me. The feeling soon vanished. Uncle H. Horton came and stopped for some of us to go to the meeting. I was afraid to go, but finally I was persuaded to go. When the band began to play it had no effect on me. That evening I went to a dance as carelessly and unconcerned as ever. Thus I passed and in the spring of 1857, the Warwick association was held, the two first days in the Walkkill meeting house. The last day on Friday they held it in Orchard St. Hall in Middletown. Elder E. A. Meaders, of Mississippi, was present. He preached election and called it pudding. Some were very much taken with it. I could not see any beauty in it. Elder St. John followed. I do not remember what he said. It was in his manner, he appeared so sober I felt if there were any of God's people on the face of the earth it was the Old Baptists, but they believed in waiting the Lord's time, but there is no such a time for me. I felt bad and brushed the tear away. My ear was not open to receive it. The company that was at our house was very much taken with the pudding. I spoke and said, I thought St. John was firm. Mother said, "what do you know about preaching, you better get tea ready." I do not wonder she was surprised. I went, but with a heavy heart. Mother had often said to me she believed I never had a serious thought. On Friday it was at Middletown, there was an affecting time, I felt bad, could hardly refrain from weeping, I felt it would be a reproach on the cause if I should give way to my feelings. The friend that was with me and I went out of meeting. As we were walking down the street I began to talk with her about the meeting. She being a member I saw she was not inclined to talk, so I stopped. She told me afterwards she did not know what to say. It took her by surprise. The man we came with was not ready to go, we went back to meeting and had to take a front seat. The feeling did not leave me. They began to sing, "Oh land of rest." When they got to the verse that said, "To Jesus Christ I sought for aid," I broke down; stood like one struck dumb. I had no feeling until grandmother Horton came and took hold of me. She moved me so I faced the congregation. Oh what feelings came upon me no tongue can tell but those that have passed through. My first thought was, Oh what a disgrace I have brought on the Old Baptists! I would have given worlds were they mine, if the floor would open and let me out of sight. Thus I stood a guilty and condemned sinner in the sight of a just and holy God. The Sunday following Elder Hill preached at the Wallkill meeting house. His text was in reference to the Hebrew children in the fiery furnace; followed by Elder D. L. Harding, who spoke about the pit of mire and clay. They told me where I stood. I thought some one had told them of me. In this I was mistaken. Elder Harding and wife went to our house to dinner. In his blessing he said, "If any member of this family is in heaviness wilt thou continue to pour down thy blessings upon them." I felt the power of those words. I began to feel it was the work of the Lord, and to lie submissive in his hand. Wednesday following, as I stood meditating, my mind was led to the window, when I had a view of the Saviour, and he smiled on me, when these words were addressed to me,

"Behind a frowning Providence,
He hides a smiling face."

My mind was led to the house of my Master's brethren. Tongue cannot express that sweet comfort and peace of a soul in its earliest love. I went to the church on the fourth of July, was received and baptized the fifth. I have not had a desire to go to a dance since, nor mingle in young company. My brethren and sisters in Christ are as good company as I desire. I do not believe that I am any better by nature, but I got my fill of sin, and long for the time to come when I shall be freed from it. Brother Gold, when you see sister Hassell kindly remember me to her. I saw her before she married Elder Hassell. Probably she will not remember me. She knew my mother, who was a sister of Deacon H. Horton. Her name was Thompson. I will close with kind regards to you and yours. Your unworthy sister in Christ, Mrs. E. Hix.

Remarks:

What an interesting experience this is to me! O that we would feel more the importance of that preaching that goes in power to the hearts of sinners quickened to feel the need of a Saviour, and that we could see more such characters.

Elder Meadows has been called home years ago—but he was a great preacher in his day, and is still remembered, and his memory cherished in Mississippi. P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS IN THE LORD:—I feel impressed for some cause to try to pen a few lines in remembrance of our dear beloved brother, A. J. Gilbert, one I feel has been a good old shepherd to me for the last twenty-nine years, if memory serves me. I believe, if not deceived, that he was one that set forth the gospel to a dying people. I was brought to believe twenty-eight or nine years ago under the sound of old brother Gilbert's voice at Bear Creek while among the Missionaries, that the gospel was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes. That night my natural eyes were closed when that joyful news was spoken, "Thy sins are forgiven; go spread the news to all around." I can say I looked up, and behold the old house seemed to me brighter than the sun, and I saw brother Gilbert coming down out of the stand, as it seemed to me, with the sun upon his head, as bright as bright could be, from the throne of grace, and it seemed I could not help from going and telling him the joyful news. But I did not. I remained upon my seat for awhile, and one of my schoolmates came to me and told me to go and tell brother Henry how I felt. I went to him, but could not speak to him, and I went on another year trying to find a resting place, and resolved to offer myself to the church by request of old brother Gilbert, to go forward and discharge our duties. I was received and baptized the next day by brother Gilbert, while he was pastor of the Missionary church, and could go to meeting and enjoy the preaching as long as old brother Gilbert remained there. But after they voted him out for another one I could no longer enjoy myself there. I finally quit going, and thought I would live alone out of the church, and go to hear brother Gilbert when I could, and did go, and it seemed to me that his preaching was better and better every time I heard him, and I was there one Saturday as unexpected as almost anything that ever appeared to me. I was present to offer myself to the church. To my surprise I was received and baptized by old brother Gilbert, among the people who I believe, if not deceived, are the people of Christ. Whether I am one or not, I feel so little, so unworthy I fear oft'times to claim a name among the good people of God, and wish myself accursed rather than to offend one of his little ones, and dear brethren and sisters in the Lord, when we count up all the cost and not one thing to pay, all is mixed with evil and vexation of the spirit, then to whom shall we go? To Christ who has paid the debt we could not pay. It seems to me sin is mixed with all I do. To grace how great a debtor. Where sin abounds grace abounds more; let us contend more earnestly for the truth. Bear with me in my weakness and pardon all mistakes. It seems that I have got away from what my mind led me in the beginning, and I will say I do believe, if not deceived, that the anointing of our Lord and Saviour is pure love, and if from a Saviour's throne of grace it will bear us to the end. The spirit was shown to me the day that brother Gilbert was buried. I told him I viewed brother Gilbert in the same light that I saw him the night I hope the Lord God of heaven looked down and showed his love and kindness towards poor, unworthy me. I tell you that good brother never said anything in my presence that ever hurt my feelings, unless it was the truth, and I felt guilty and condemned before God. It only brought me to love him better and better, and it seemed to me the longer he lived the better I loved him, and felt oft'times when I was present with him that if I could I would be willing to suffer his affliction to feel what I believed he was viewing in his future happiness. I hope the Lord will forgive all our mis-doings, and help us to follow the counsel of our dearly beloved brother Gilbert, one who went in and out before us so many times—one we loved so much for the Truth's sake—whom we miss so much at Bear Creek, but we sorrow not as those without hope: for we believe he is now at rest—enjoying that better and eternal life which Jesus gives, and is free from toils, pain and afflictions here in this poor sinful world. He departed this life April 15th, 1893—80 odd years old.

Love to all the household in a precious hope and faith in our Redeemer.

MARY TILMAN.

Goldston, N. C.

VERY DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I have been asked by several brethren why I did not give my experience through the LANDMARK. My feelings and answer was because I feared it would not be one of grace. But as I have a membership among the brethren at Simpson's Creek, S. C., feeling sure that my name is with a band of soldiers of Christ, who are arrayed in the robe of his righteousness, I am impressed to give as a reason of my hope the following: I was raised up under wicked influence in Horry county, S. C., and until the year 1885, was one of the wicked band who cared not for the setting up of Christ's kingdom in the hearts of men. About this time I decided to join a Sunday school, and did so, which I very much enjoyed for a while. I felt to love the cause of the popular so-called religion. I did contend for it, and would laugh the genuine religion of Christ to scorn. This was a sweet morsel to me till 1886, when I became in a low state of health and decided I must soon depart this life. I related my case to many and sought medical aid for relief, but could not find any relief. My case grew worse, till at last I talked with some of the good old soldiers of Christ, known as Primitive Baptists, concerning my case. They said they were glad to hear of my troubles, and that I would be relieved in God's appointed time. I tried to pray, but my prayers seemed to have no effect. At length one night as I retired, feeling that I could not longer live, and must die, I asked the Lord I believe with my whole heart if there was any rest for me after death to make it known to me in some way. The next morning about 3 o'clock I was awakened by a coughing attack, and glory to his dear name this is the message I received: There is an exceeding great reward for you. Dear people of the living God, my heart and soul seemed to be filled with praise to God for what he had done for my soul, whereof I was glad. Thus I rejoiced in my hope for a while, when I was told it was my duty to join the church. Then I did not know which was the true church. Then this was presented to my mind, go and hear all and see who has felt as you have, they are your people. This I did, feeling to be the vilest sinner on earth, and to my surprise found the dearest people on earth to be the Old Baptists, and the only people that seemed to have or require an experience of grace. Then I feared I was not led by the true Spirit till these words were sung to me in a slumber,

"Come ye sinners, poor and needy,
Weak and wounded, sick and sore,
Jesus ready stands to save you,
Full of pity, love and power."

At this moment I was made willing to join the church at Simpson's Creek, and did so in February, 1887, if I mistake not. I was received by the church and baptized by our very dear brother Thos. Bell, the joy of which I shall never forget, feeling that God for Christ's sake had pardoned my sins which were many. I still hope I thank the Lord for what my eyes have seen, my ears have heard, and my heart has felt. Thus I have given a few hints of what I hope the Lord has done for me, for this reason I ask an interest in the prayers of all God's children. Yours,

J. S. SIMS.

Higston, Ga.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, MY DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—I write you a few lines to let you hear from our little church. I am glad to say to you that we are all in peace, though we are but few. We feel to hope that if we be faithful we can claim that sweet promise, "For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Brother Thomas Davis holds a little prayer-meeting once a month, and we enjoy it very much, and feel to hope that God is with us. Dear Brother I am trying to get enough money to build us a house of worship, but the people here don't like to help me. Some will give me a little. I send you this notice to publish in the LANDMARK. Hope the brothers and sisters can feel to help me a little, for we are very needy, and not able of ourselves to build a house. There are but four members; one brother and three widowed sisters. At this season of the year we are put to a great deal of trouble, school being in session at the county school house, where we hold our services, and the parents of some of the children will not allow them to hear the Old Baptists preach, and has the teacher to take them off into the woods. The chairman of the school trustees told me to use the house, as we have always done, but we do not like to bother them, and don't you think dear brother we need a house of worship. The people here hate the Old Baptists. Pray for me, that I may be faithful. May the Lord be with you. Yours in hope of life eternal.

MARTHA M. BRAZELL.

Columbia, S. C.

BRETHREN GOLD AND LESTER:—I have been telling my views on Rev. 13th chapter to different brethren, and they have expressed a wish to see them in print, but be assured I feel my incompetency to write them out as they should be. My views are about as follows: The first beast to be a church organization sustained by civil authority as figured by the ten horns and the ten crowns; and that the church of Rome answers to that figure, but the second beast has two horns and no crown, hence I take it to be a church organization like the first, but not sustained by civil authority. I have thought long and much about this second beast, and have never been able to identify or locate it till lately. I find no organization that will answer to this figure but the vast Missionary organization of the present day. The two horns representing the Methodist and Missionary Baptist denominations, which are not now and never have been sustained by civil authority or law. It uses power so far as the churches extend and those under its influence, but no farther. Its influence, however, is vast, including as it does, their church, missionary and Sunday-school work. They exercise their authority in that they require "all, small and great, rich and poor, good and bad, free and bond, regenerate and unregenerate to receive a mark in their right hand or in their forehead."—10th verse. These marks I take to mean that in the hand giving money or means to help sustain; that in the forehead, exercising ability to teach or instruct. Those refusing to worship the beast or receive his mark are to be killed, that is they are counted as not having christian life, and their influence is to be destroyed. "He that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey or is counted mad.'—Isa. 59:15. On the other hand, so far as their influence goes, as in Sabbath schools, they teach children regenerate or unregenerate. So all are enjoined to give or do church work, and then taught to sing :

"We will work till Jesus comes,
And we'll be gathered home."

In Rev. 14:9, an angel is represented as saying with a loud voice, one that is intended to be heard, "If any man worship the beast and his image and receive his mark in his forehead or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation, and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb; and the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever; and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name."

I do not want to carry that mark whatever it may be. I do not believe that I do carry it.

J. HOLT.

Wilson's Mills, N. C.

"A CONSCIENCE VOID OF OFFENCE."

"And herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men."—Acts 24:16.

DEAR EDITORS:—We find that Paul while being accused as a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition, etc., and while Tertullus so bitterly, and we might say eloquently, informed the governor against him, Paul denied the charges and said, "Neither can they prove the things whereupon they now accuse me." But this he confessed unto the governor, "That after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets;" and further declaring that he always exercised himself, that is continually labored, "to have a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men;" and also so clearly reasoned of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come that Felix was made to tremble and bid him go his way for a time. Said he, "I will call for thee when I have a convenient season." But Felix, willing to show the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound; and when he was brought before Festus, with many accusations against him, and Festus having questioned him as to whether he would go up to Jerusalem to be judged of the things against him, Paul said, "I stand at Caesar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged;" and he made his appeal to Caesar. But in the meantime King Agrippa and Bernice came unto Caesarea to salute Festus. And in a few days after their arrival Festus having stated Paul's cause unto the king, he desired to hear this man himself. To-morrow, said the governor, thou shalt hear him; and on the morrow when he was brought forth and King Agrippa having informed him that he had permission to speak for himself, the apostle stretching forth his hand, declared he thought himself happy because of the privilege of answering before the king, touching all the things whereof he was accused, especially because he knew Agrippa to be expert in all customs and questions which were among the Jews. Now all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, etc., and there is nothing more clearly taught in my mind than the joy that will be realized, by every one that exercises themselves "to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men," when they come to stand before God, the King of Kings, to answer of the manner wherein they walked while numbering their days on earth. For we know that he that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, hath given permission for all to speak for themselves. O what rejoicing that our enemies will not be a witness against us in that day, and especially will we have cause to rejoice in knowing that he is both expert and an all-wise and most merciful King. Then let us exercise ourselves to always have that peaceful conscience that alone can truly satisfy the soul, and give surety against shipwreck; and how sweet to reflect upon is that conscience while journeying on earth, and when we've numbered the days of our vanity under the sun, who can tell the worth of the solace it brings while on our death-bed awaiting the pale horse to bear us hence. Paul found this to be comforting in all his persecutions, and we find that he charged Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on him, that he by them might war a good warfare, holding faith and a good conscience, and surely without that peaceful conscience Paul could never have been enabled to exclaim, "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course, etc." And when he was expounding and giving to King Agrippa a synopsis of his life, and as he so earnestly and clearly spoke to the king, his heart was moved and he exclaimed, "Paul almost thou persuadest me to be a christian," and so faithful had Paul exercised himself to possess a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men that he was enabled to answer in return, "I would to God that not only thou, but also all them that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am except these bonds." No, never, does the true christian desire even his enemies to suffer bonds or persecutions, but would rejoice to see them made partakers of the unsearchable riches of God, and henceforth labor for that peaceful conscience. Hoping that these few words may be comforting to some one, and that exercising ourselves "to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men;" let us press on toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

E. W. POWELL.

Buyek, Ala.

Remarks:

Every one accused of following Christ thinks it good to be permitted to speak in his own behalf. Agrippa said to Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian." Was Agrippa saved? I think so. My reasons for this will be given at some time; if the Lord wills.

P. D. G.

WHAT AM I?

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR FRIENDS:—I call you friend, at the same time I feel as if I did not have a friend on earth. I had a dream three years ago and one two years ago, and have often thought I would not tell any one of those dreams. But my mind seems to be oppressed to tell them. Before telling them I will give you a little of my past life. I was brought up by a good father and mother, who always taught me to be honest, to do right, and do good for evil, which I tried to do. My father and mother were not members of any church, though they were believers in salvation by grace. I have all of my life wanted to go to heaven when I died. I could not understand how it could be that any one had to be born again, and that God taught people as the Old Baptists said he did. They seemed to be a peculiar people. I could not understand them, and thought they were selfish. I was called by my neighbors a good boy, and thought I was about as good as any one, except J. W. Thorne. I thought he was much better than I was, and often wished I was as good. Elder B. P. Pitt often came to my father's. He would tell my father and mother it was their duty to join the church. I thought he was doing wrong to tell them such, for it would be a disgrace to their children. I went to a Methodist night meeting. As I went in the house they were singing,

"Turn sinner turn,
May the Lord help you turn."

I thought they meant drunkards, gamblers and liars. It bore on my mind several days, thinking that such people ought to turn and do better. One day while thinking such, it came to me with force, you are a sinner; why will you not turn? I asked how could I turn? I saw and felt that I was a sinner. I at once asked the Lord to have mercy on me. I went on this way, sometimes worse than at other times. Then my trouble got worse. I could not see any peace, and would often go to the thick and lonesome woods and fall on my knees and ask the Lord to have mercy on me, a poor, lost sinner. While I was in so much trouble, with all that my poor heart could bear, Satan would come to me and tell me that I was as good as any one. I knew better. I saw and felt that I was a poor, lost sinner, and without the grace of God I would be forever lost. I was in so much trouble I thought I could not live many more days. One day I was plowing, while I was in great trouble, this came to me,

"The time is swiftly rolling on,
When I must faint and die."

I stopped my horse and started to the house, and knew then (in my mind) that I would surely die soon, and wanted to tell my father and mother, brothers and sister what a great sinner I was before I died, and for them to try and do better than I had done, but concluded as as it was not long before night I would plow on. When night came I went to the house, and could not eat. Mother asked me what was the matter. I told her I only felt badly. At that time I thought I would never see day again. I could not stay in the house, nor out of doors. After all had gone to bed I went out and tried to pray, I thought for the last time. I went in and lay down. All in the house were asleep. I had not been in bed long when one of the brightest lights I ever saw shone around me, and in the light was an angel who looked upon me and smiled, raised his hand over me and said, "Now I will go home to my Father." He began to sing "I want to be an angel," and went up. I rose up in the bed and tried to go with or follow him, but could not. I was so happy I did not know how to behave myself, and got up and went to the door of the room in which my father and mother slept, and thought I would tell them what things had happened to me. They were sleeping so well I hated to disturb them, and thought morning would do, and went to bed. I was so happy I could not sleep. Morning came. I started to my father to tell him all. Before reaching him this came to me, who would believe such folly? I could not tell him anything. I dearly loved the people of God, and wanted to go and be with them, but doubted and feared so much, and felt so unfit, I could not. I never had seen any one join the church. My mind was so impressed to go to the church I prayed God to show me my baptism in a dream if it was my duty to join the church. Pray for me.

I wrote the above on Sunday, the tenth, and on Monday night, the 11th, I lost my house and two-thirds of its contents by fire. It places me in a bad condition. T.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I have finished reading the LANDMARK for March the 1st, and I think I can truly say that it has been a comfort to me. I thank God that he has put it into your heart and enabled you to send it to me so long without compensation. None but those who have been shut in by affliction or by Providence, have had their lot cast in destitute places, can realize how sweet and consoling it is to read of the experience, joys and sorrows even, of a people whom he loves, who have the same trials, preach and believe the same doctrine, worship the same God, and hope to reach the same heaven where the Saviour himself hath entered, and where all shall see him, and be like him. Oh, how good he is to send another Comforter! And though we are sinful, vile and weak, He is pure, holy and strong, and He has promised to be with us even until death! Then indeed, "if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likeness of his resurrection." Well may David have exclaimed, "Who is like unto the Lord our God, who dwelleth on high, who humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven and in the earth." "This is the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes. O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!"

My pension was increased to $12 per month last November; enclosed please find postal order for $2 to pay my subscription for this year, and I hope hereafter to remit regularly. Accept thanks for sending so long without pay. Let the paid subscription commence January 1894. Change the address to 1108 King street, Alexandria Va., instead of 127 South Royal street.

And now I must surprise you, as I have all my acquaintances by informing you that I have been married. The lady I married has been a teacher in the public schools of this city since 1871, and is now principal of the female department of same. We had been acquainted for a long time. Her brother served an apprenticeship under me previous to the war. When I was paralyzed in 1871 and my children were sent to Alexandria, she assumed the care of my daughter, and kept her until she (my daughter) was grown. We were conditionally engaged about 20 years. Owing to my afflicted condition, and the fact that she had three single sisters, younger than her and dependent upon her for support, our marriage was deferred. Last fall her last sister was married. She had then fulfilled all her promises made to her parents, (who have been dead many years,) to provide for her sisters if necessary, and now felt at liberty to fulfill our long engagement. My children had all married and gone and I too was alone. In my afflicted condition I desired a companion and helpmeet. I believe the Lord has given me one who is willing to assume the burden. Under these circumstances we thought proper to marry and spend the evening of our days together, so on the 26th of December last the ceremony was performed. With the blessing of God, I have no fear but that all my needs will be supplied, and I am even hoping that like Job "my last days may be my best days."

May the Lord bless you and yours. Come and see me when you pass this way. Love to all brethren and acquaintances. In hope,

C. S. McDANIEL.

Remarks.

I publish the foregoing because of its peculiar interest. Brother McDaniel lived in Wilson until 1871, and published the LANDMARK here. When he became paralyzed he was no longer able to attend to business and gave it up. Since then he has been helpless. It is indeed refreshing to know of a woman so true and willing to help him. May they both find mercy of the Lord and may their last days be their best days."

P. D. G.

DEAR BRETHREN GOLD AND LESTER:—I have been taking your paper for about fifteen years. I and my companion have found it to be of great comfort to us, being filled with so much food for my Father's children. I am made to rejoice when thinking over the fact that your God is our God, realizing the fact that brethren whom I never saw can tell the same rich theme. If ever saved it is by redeeming grace and grace alone, realizing the fact that we have all been taught in the same school of grace, and all taught by the same God. Speaking of the others, their rock is not as our rock, our enemies themselves being judges, for their rock is a rock of works, while ours is a rock of grace. There were no strange gods found with Israel, for the Lord found him in a desert land and waste howling wilderness, and led him about and instructed him, or taught him and kept him in the hollow of his hand, as the apple of his eye. This is a sure resting place for all his children. Your unworthy brother,

F. E. JOHNSON.

Dexter, Texas.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 13.

WILSON, N. C., MAY 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

FORE-KNOWLEDGE.

I am requested by a dear friend to treat upon the above subject, or rather upon the 21st verse of the 18th chapter of Genesis, which some are wont to use to discredit the foreknowledge of God ; which reads as follows: "I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me ; and if not, I will know."

If men were as anxious to know the truth of the Scriptures, and to accept their teachings, as they are to know the truth of natural writings, which in common sense they are bound to accept, they would—in matters of intelligence appear to much better advantage, even if they had to admit their utter inability to understand the meaning of the divine record. A certain man makes a will, and dies, and his will in writing is put to record and becomes of full force ; after which an heir is born unto him. Now what is that heir to do but to accept the will just as it reads? He might prove his father was of unsound mind. Which would be a sad reflection. He might show that he was influenced in some undue manner, which would prove him to have been a fool. He might prove that his father was generally incompetent to make a will, which would declare him to have been of an unsound mind. He might claim injustice had been done him, which would call in question the honor of his father. He might file the astonishing plea that his father had given him too much, and—no he would never do that, it is not natural for men to do such things. The thing is done, and he must accept it just as it is whether it suits him or not.

The last "Amen" of the Scriptures was written and sealed with the great and irrevocable seal of divine inspiration upward of eighteen hundred years ago, and the truth set forth therein is as eternal as is its Divine Author, and is therefore essentially and eternally true whether we admit it and believe it or not. Man in his corrupt and depraved nature is as much and as persistently opposed to God, his truth and his doings as is the devil to God, falsehood to truth and unrighteousness to righteousness.

When the natural man becomes fully impregnated with the zeal of false religion his opinion of the truth is about like that which the anarchist has of the spirit and character of the laws and institutions of the government of the United States. These anarchists are in spirit, aliens from our commonwealth and strangers to our institutions; so also are men in nature and spirit aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to the covenants of promise, being without God and without hope in the world.

Men who question the eternal perfection of God do not really believe in God, if they as much as believe there is a God. If our idea of a thing is not according to the nature and character of the thing itself can it be said that we understand the spirit of that thing? Man can only know the character of the spirit of a thing by the spirit of the thing itself. We can only know the things of the beast whether he thinks, and what he thinks by possessing his spirit. If the horse had the mind of man he would think and reason as man does, and if man had the spirit of the horse he would have as much sense as the horse has. "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib, but Israel doth not know; my people doth not consider."—Isa. 1:3. "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the spirit of God."—1st Cor. 2:11. In order for man to know as God knows he must first become to be equal with God in all his divine attributes. While the Lord knows what is in us, having made us, and knows what we think, yet he does not think as we think, nor know as we know. His thoughts are not our thoughts, neither are our ways his ways; "for as the heavens are higher than the earth so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts."—Isa. 55 : 8, 9.

The wicked and rebellious heart of man renders him incapable of being instructed of God, because it puffs him and exalts his imaginations, and in proportion debases in his mind the nature and character of God. "What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldst take my covenant in thy mouth?" Seeing thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee. Thou thoughtest that I was altogether such an one as thyself: but I will reprove thee, and set them in order before thine eyes." Ps. 50:16, 17, 21. "The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man that they are vanity." Ps. 94:11. "For I know their works, and their thoughts." Isa. 66:18.

God in his ubiquitous character is everywhere, and therefore does not have to go anywhere in order to obtain knowledge or to inform himself as to the doings of men in the sense of essential knowledge that he might afterwards know what he did not know or understand perfectly in himself before; nor does he have to go anywhere in order to be essentially where he was not in his infinite presence. "Whithershall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence. If I ascend into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me."—Psalm 139 : 7-10.

In whatever sense God is at any time in hell, surely he must have been, in that sense at least, in Sodom and Gomorrah, even at the time he said he would go down to that people. The very fact that the cry had come up unto him, which coming must have been of him, is sufficient evidence that he did not go down in order to obtain additional testimony to add to his understanding of the situation, besides we are told that he understands our thoughts even, as it were, before they reach him. "Thou understandest my thoughts afar off,"—Psalm 139 : 2. "But when Jesus perceived their thoughts,"—Luke 5 : 22. "But he knew their thoughts," 6 : 8.

"Thou compassed my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word in my tongue, but lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether. Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it."—Psalm 139 : 3-6. When the great and mighty God lays his hand upon one of his creatures the wisdom, knowledge and power of the Almighty and eternal "I Am" are revealed, and from thenceforth that creature dare not question the eternal and infinite perfections of his God, but is made to acknowledge the unsearchable depths of his judgments, and to exclaim: "Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of Saints." "There is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."—Job 32: 8. Without this inspiration it was in the days of old, as it is now, impossible for men to understand the character of God. God walked and talked with man in those days as though he were a man, somewhat like unto them, from the simple fact that man did not and could not understand or entertain a higher idea of God than he had of himself. And while God speaks unto man in a different manner in this day from what he did then, yet man knows no more about him now than he did then, except as he is revealed. "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds."—Heb. 1: 1, 2.

The Nodamites did not believe that God knew or could know anything about them and their doings without coming down and making an investigation; and man to-day with all of his boasted intelligence, enlightenment and religion—proves by believing the same thing, that he does not know anything more about God than did the Sodamites just four thousand years ago. Men to-day believe that the wickedness of man is in proportion to his ignorance of God, or that literal and moral intelligence leads to spiritual knowledge, hence their numerous and varied institutions, auxiliaries, helps, aids and endeavours to effect this indispensable preliminary preparation. Now if the ignorance of the Nodamites was so gross as to lead to such great wickedness, as to so provoke the Almighty God and evoke from him such a stupendous overthrow and utter destruction as was visited upon them, what may the great mass of the people of to-day suspect, whose intelligence, enlightenment and knowledge of God only lead them to believe the same of him as did the people of that great and wicked city? How can men consistently claim to be superior to a people who were justly condemned and utterly destroyed, because of their great wickedness, when they prove themselves to be equally ignorant of God, by believing and teaching the same things for which in part, those people were overthrown? They did not believe that God presently knew and foreknew all things, and had all power, and therefore they did not fear him nor regard his doings and sayings, but, like men to-day, attributed the affairs and events of the universe to natural laws and causes altogether, saying, "What is the Almighty, that we should serve him, and what profit should we have if we pray unto him? Job 21: 15. "If God is Almighty, and knows all things before they come to pass, and they must be just that way, what is the use of praying or doing anything? Such a doctrine is dangerous and such a God is unjust. Such things ought not to be taught." "Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways." Job. 21 : 14.

If man's opinion of God is no higher now than it was four thousand years ago, in what respect is he, in his natural estate, in point of spiritual knowledge or understanding, superior to those of that day? What spiritual thing has he that they did not possess? Wherein do they differ, seeing they believe the same? Is the fore-knowledge of God true as pertaining to each and every event which transpires in time? It is claimed by some that he did not fore-know all things, but only knows them as they come to pass, and only such then as he chooses to know. But this is like all belief which arises from that source, it is without even a rational reason, to say nothing of intelligence, or thus saith the Lord. As faith without works is really no faith at all so belief without a reason therefor, or proof thereof, is really no belief at all. It is a kind of aftermath, as it were, of vain philosophy. Has God fore-knowledge? "Him being delivered by the determinate counsel and fore-knowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain." Acts 2 : 23. "Elect according to the fore-knowledge of God the Father." 1st Peter 1 : 2. These two witnesses prove that God is a God of fore-knowledge, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, "My counsel shall stand and I will do all my pleasure." Isa. 46 : 10. It is said of Christ; "In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." Col

2 : 3. This being true, how is it possible that he should possess the knowledge of or whereby all things are and must be known, and yet himself not know all things? Can it be said of one that he has knowledge and yet does not know anything? Knowledge is understanding, therefore one cannot have understanding of a thing and at the same time know nothing of it or about it. Wisdom is one of the attributes of God. He is very wisdom itself, and wisdom is understanding and understanding is knowledge, therefore God is knowledge. "The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old. I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. Read the eighth chapter of Proverbs. God does not have to think or study to know anything. His knowledge is like himself, infinite, eternal. It is a part of him. It is himself. He is knowledge itself, and to the King eternal, immortal invisible, the only wise God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

In the great work of redemption it was necessary that Christ should take upon himself the nature of those he came to save and in that respect be made like unto them that, as a result of his work, they should be made like unto him. It is reasonable that God should communicate with man from the standpoint of man than from his own. Suppose a teacher of the Greek language should, in that tongue, say unto his class: "I can speak Greek,"

what would such a declaration amount to unless the class understood that tongue, and if the teacher and class alike used the language, what sense would there be in saying so? In order to an intelligent communication of thought the superior must adapt himself to the understanding of the inferior. God, being infinite in every sense and man being finite and only finite, He must appear in finite form and manner in order to be understood at all by finite minds. The finite does not nor cannot comprehend the infinite. Those Sodomites were not capable of understanding the infinite character of God, neither did they know nor could they conceive the difference between their knowledge and His, but to the contrary believed, as men do in this day, that he did not know of their doings and could not know without coming down and making a personal investigation. God knew their thoughts of him and therefore came down and proved them and brought forth the fact that their wickedness was altogether according to the cry of it. But he did not appear to them as God; but as men, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word should be established, by man, and from man's standpoint. The Lord appeared unto Abraham but Abraham saw Him not as the Lord but as three men, still he addressed them as, "My Lord," and understood them to be the Lord. Two men (angels) appeared in the streets of Sodom whom Lot took into his house. Now comes the test. When the men of Sodom heard that these men were in Lot's house they went and demanded of him that he bring them out unto them that they might know them. By this they proved in themselves the great wickedness of their hearts, which seemingly moved the angels to great haste in bringing Lot and his wife and two daughters from under the overhanging vengeance of God, which utterly overthrew and destroyed all those who had so fully proven themselves to be ripe for such destruction. God never leaves himself without a witness, making even the wicked to prove the justice of their overthrow. The judgments of God are so just and so justly executed that even his enemies will be without excuse upon their part, nor will they question the truth of Abraham's plea before the Lord for the righteous in Sodom: "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?"

In view of the ignorance, depravity and wickedness of men, and their assumed knowledge of God, there was no better, no more effectual manner of dealing with those Sodomites than that the Lord should come down unto them and give them opportunity to prove by their own work, in one of the most forcible manners possible, that their wickedness was according to the cry of it. Had the Lord not done this those depraved Sodomites would rise up in the judgment and claim that he did not give them a chance to do better and be saved—that he did not come to see them, and really did not know whether they were righteous or unrighteous.

It seems the Lord did not come down to see whether the sin was according to the cry so much as to see whether there was any good thing in those cities. He does not say, if the cry is true I will know, but, "if not I will know." If there had been ten righteous men there those cities would not have been overthrown, but that number was not there, therefore it was not only proven that there was much wickedness there, but that there were but few righteous, yea, but one just man among them.

The sense in which the Lord said "I will know," is that proof. "I will prove them and their doings," see Deut. 8 : 2.

Man in his vain attempt to prove that God does not know all things is often heard to make the unqualified and absurd declaration that "He only knows what he chooses to know." I admit that I do not know all things, therefore I do not know that God does not know all things, and only knows that which he does know because he chooses to know it, and the best reason I can give for my ignorance of the ignorance of God, is that he has not said in his word that he does not know only so much as he chooses to know. I am too dull of understanding to perceive how God could choose not to know anything that he does not know, and if he should choose to know something, of which he knows nothing, how he could possibly determine or know what he would choose to know, or how he could choose to know a thing without first having known that thing, and having first known it how he could choose to know it. If God only knows what he chooses to know, before he chose to know any thing he knew absolutely nothing. But such is not our God. "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world."—Acts 15:18. Declaring the end from the beginning and from ancient times the things that are not yet done. "This God is our God forever and ever. He will be our guide even unto death."—Ps. 48:14.

P. G. L.

PLEASE READ.

We earnestly request those of our subscribers who are in arrears for the LANDMARK to send in their remittances. Our expenses are very heavy, and we need the money. Watch your dates closely and when your time expires please renew as soon as possible. P. D. GOLD.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER :—
There was some mistake made by you and Elder Draughn in regard to appointments made for me in LANDMARK of May 1st. The appointments should have commenced June 1st instead of May 1st. According to the arrangements this will only give me two days to rest from a tour of six weeks, and my health being very feeble, I fear to undertake the tour. Will you please call them in through LANDMARK, and so state the mistake in them as to set me in order before the churches and public generally. I hope to go to visit them in the mountains about the 10th of June, and continue with the churches until the last of July. I would try to fill the appointments if I were not so much fatigued, and being very feeble in health, I have written to Elder J. D. Draughn to call them in through the deacons and clerks of said churches as best he can, hoping my explanation may be satisfactory with the brethren.
E. C. SMITH.
Newport, N. C.

OBITUARIES.

DELDIDA SHORT.

Died on the 20th day of August, 1893, at the residence of her father, in Wayne county, N. C., Deldida Short, wife of Rufus Short, and daughter of Leonard and Phoebe Dickinson, who was born December 7th, 1760, and reared under the tuition of her parents. She was truthful, kind, gentle, lively and affectionate; yet like all other girls of the Adamic class she was born in sin, and by nature a child of wrath. She was married to Rufus Short on Dec. 28th, 1881, to whom she bore four children, who now survive her. She obtained a hope in Christ and went before the church at Memorial on Saturday before the first Sunday in August, 1390, was received and baptized by the writer, and lived a consistent member, filling her seat at all times unless providentially hindered. She proved a helpmate to her husband, a mother to the children, a friend to all. To visit and care for the sick was a virtue, a jewel upon her cheeks. But, alas! how soon the joys of earth fade and pass away. Death stole softly but certainly upon her frame, laid its iron weight in the form of diabetes and other diseases, and crushed her hopes as to this life. She had the attention of several physicians, but none could stop the march of the tyrant disease. I saw her when she was on her way home from the doctor at Wilson her last time. She said the doctor gave her to understand her disease to be a hopeless one; yet her conversation seemed to be steadfast and unshaken. Though the clouds gathered around, and her path seemed to be strewn with disappointments, she remembered the good Lord had helped her by delivering her from her sins, and that he would again deliver. She believed that God had given her a bow of promise in all those clouds; and while they are passing God will make his goodness to pass. When those clouds shall be no more, then the bow of peace shall be revealed spanning the pathway of the retiring storm. To every cloud there is a sunshine, every night a day, every bitter a sweet, every cross a crown, with bitter herbs the roasted lamb. I was to see her several times while she was confined to her bed. I found her conversation christian like. Sometimes her mind would recoil and she would seem low down; but even then, by examination, one could see that deep down in this gorge, there was the trusting of a little child. She spoke of the future. The last time I was to see her I read a chapter in God's word and tried to pray with her, and while speaking of the pearly gates of the city, she commenced slapping her hands and said, It will not be long, will it? She bore her affliction with patience. She had been taught in God's Word by his spirit how to live and how to suffer for his sake, yea and how to die.

On the 20th day of August, 1893, she gently passed away from all the troubles of this life, falling asleep in the arms of Jesus; "blessed sleep, from which none ever wake to weep." She leaves a husband, four children, a father, brothers and sisters, friends and the church to mourn their loss; but give us the cave of Macpelah that we may bury the dead out of our sight. She shall rise again. In sorrow we love more tenderly, and the dead becomes more dear to us. We have seen those sorrows for others, but when we are called to bow, to endure the yoke, to stoop, to bow the head as a bulrush, to abide the fighting winds within, then, perhaps, none can sympathize with us; we have to go alone. We believe the Lord came into his garden and gathered one of his lovely roses for his own use. May the husband remember the steadfastness of his wife, and examine at least the proof-sheet of her stay on earth; may the children remember the tender care of their mother; may the father remember the golden words of his daughter; may they be as ear-rings in his ears, in constraining him to duty; may the brothers and sisters remember the upheaving of soul, the upward glance of the eye, the falling of a tear, when none but the Lord was near. May the Lord enable us all to remember well the night of death is near, and bless us all for good.

J. T. EDGERTON.

Pikeville, N. C.

WILLIAM DAVID STOKES.

William David Stokes, the son of Bryant and Elizabeth Stokes, was born in Edgecombe county August 5th, 1845; was married May the 31st, 1883 to Mrs. Fannie Hamilton, who died June 8th, 1882, and though in her death he sustained so great a loss, for I lived next door to them for several months before then, and I think she was as kind, sympathetic and amiable lady as I ever knew, he bore up under the great trial with such patience that I feel like he felt to be reconciled to God's holy will. She left three children of her first husband's, and an infant babe, for which he did all in his power and tried to be a faithful father. He died December 2d, 1893. He went to bed in perfect health apparently, but was found next morning paralyzed and never was rational any more. He was not a member of the church, but was kind to all, very cheerful and interesting in conversation and did all he could for the comfort of others. His many friends were always glad to meet him. He leaves an aged mother and five sisters, all of whom are members of the Primitive Baptist Church. May the Lord be unto them and all who are waiting for his appearing, a very present help in every time of trouble.

Your unworthy brother,

M. B. WILLIFORD.

P. S.—I write this by request of his sister.

MRS. EMMA EDWARDS.

Mrs. Emma Edwards died November 29, 1893, after an illness of 21 days, with brain fever. Her husband, Joseph Edwards, died January 4, 1894, with the same malady. Their family of seven small children are left without the kind and tender care of earthly parents. May they be led to know and realize the care and protection of the Lord of Hosts, the orphan's friend.

Friend after friend departs,
Who has not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end,

In tribulation,

Wm. F. SLOANE.

BETTIE SUE POTEAT.

By the request of her grand-parents I write you for publication the death of little Bettie Sue Poteat. She was the daughter of William and M. E. Poteat. Was born the 29th of August 1883, and died November the 19th 1888, making her stay on earth 5 years 2 months and 19 days. Her disease was diphtheria, and it went down her wind-pipe and she didn't live but a few days after she was taken. Her sufferings were very great, every breath was a very hard struggle, the day before she died at night her mother asked her if she was better, she said, "yes I'm better I'm going to meeting" and I turned over and smiled. The Doctor came that evening and told the family that he had done all he could do. And that she would die and nothing he could do would do her any good. So she continued to get worse until about midnight or a little after, she sprang right upon her feet in the bed and when we laid her back she went off as though she was going to sleep. Little Bettie Sue die'd at her grand-ma's, where she s-ayed the most of her time, she always thought a lot of grand ma. She was such a good child; everybody loved her that knew her. We would say to those left behind not to weep for she is happy. Her wants are all supplied. What parent would not childless be, to give a child to God? We all hope to meet little Bettie Sue above, where all will be happiness peace and love.

BETTIE WALKER.

Ashland, Caswell Co., N. C.

MAJ. VINCENT REDMOND RUST.

Died on the 31st of March, at his home near Poca, West Virginia, Maj. Vincent Redmond Rust, in the 77th year of his age. His father, James B. Rust, moved to Kanawha, from Warren co., Va., in the year 1816. The latter was for several years deputy sheriff under Henry Fry, and was high sheriff after Mr. Fry's term expired. Maj. Redmond Rust continued to live at the old homestead, a part of the original five thousand acres bought by his father and uncle on coming to West Virginia. He was one of the commissioners when Putnam was cut off from Kanawha co., and was one of the first grand jury that sat in the new county. He was often solicitor and several times nominated for county offices, but never would accept, preferring the life of a farmer as better suited to his taste and inclination. Maj. Rust was a consistent member of the Old Baptist church. He was twice married; his first was Miss Hicks of Warren Co. Va., by whom he had one daughter, now the wife of Dr. H. L. Walls, his last wife the widow of Dr. J. W. Walls of Stephen City Frederick Va. Her maiden name was Hawford, and is still living at the old homestead. In his own household an example of gentleness and kindness, a devoted husband, and father, an obliging neighbor and faithful friend, dispensing with old-fashion courtesy the hospitality of his pleasant home, he will long be remembered by a large circle of relatives and friends, as one of the most honorable and upright of men. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. W. A. Melton, a friend of his boyhood, and on Sunday afternoon April 1st he was laid to rest in the family cemetery, near his life-long home, to await the summons of his Master, and hear the well earned plaudit, "Well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

A FRIEND,

MAJOR L. FLETCHER.

Died at his home in Jackson county W. Va. on the 7th day of March, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M. He was born May 21, 1823 in Russell county, Va., was united in marriage to Miss Nancy A. Hunt in 1845 at Pikeville, Ky., and in 1846 he and his wife moved to Jackson county (now) West Virginia. He became a member of the Primitive Baptist Church about thirty-four years ago, and was a consistent and devoted member of that denomination; holding the position of church clerk for a number of years, and was church deacon at the time of his death.

Mr. Fletcher was a kind husband, a loving father, a good neighbor, a worthy citizen, a devout christian and was loved and esteemed by all who knew him.

He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters: John and Albert Fletcher and Mrs. G. E. Duff, of Jackson county, and Mrs. J. H. Hunt and Mrs. John W. Ball, of Elk City, W. Va., all of whom were standing by his bedside when he "fell asleep" in Jesus. Just before his death he called his children to his bedside, bade them all good-bye and requested them not to be troubled for he was going home.

The funeral services took place March 8th at 2 o'clock P. M., at his late residence, and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. His favorite hymn was sung:

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep;
From which none ever wake to weep!"

His remains were laid to rest in the family burial ground:

"Be strong to hope, O heart of mine,
Look not on life's dark side;
For just beyond these gloomy hours,
Pitch, radiant days abide;
Like hope, like summer's rainbows bright
Scatter thy falling tears,
And let God's precious promises
Dispel thy anxious fears.
For every grief a joy will come,
For every toil a rest;
So hope, so love, so patient bear,
God doeth all things best."

JOHN W. PINER.

I take the opportunity of writing the obituary notice of my dear husband, John W. Piner, who was born August 23d, 1825, and was raised up by good and religious parents, Amos and Teresa Piner.

At the age of 25 he was married to the writer, Clarea A. Howling, of which union there were 5 children born, but 2 died while quite young. One died at the age of 18; two lived to be grown, and married. John W. whose obituary appeared in the LANDMARK about 4 years ago, and David Shepherd who assisted his father. In 1872 the Lord visited him with his Holy Spirit, and called him from darkness into his marvelous light, and brought him to the church and centered his fellowship with the brethren at White Oak, Onslow Co., N. C., where he remained until 1892, when he removed his fellowship to Hadnotts Creek, where it remained until death released him. He was taken with La Grippe and suffered misery for nearly 2 years, off and on, and on the 20th of Nov. 1893, the Angel of God came to his assistance, and released him from the bonds of pain and suffering and led him gently into the place prepared for the people of God from the foundation of the world. Oh he is gone and left me for a few days, but I hope that I shall be called up higher to meet him in that bright abode. He died in the full triumph of faith.

CLAREA PINER.

Pelletier's Mills, N. C.

NANCY GRIZZEL.

Nancy Grizzel, wife of Jesse Grizzel was a daughter of James Franklin. Her parents emigrated from North Carolina in the year 1815. She was born in Russell county, Va., January the 12th 1816, and was married to Jesse Grizzel October the 1st, 1835. By that union there were 13 children, 3 of whom are dead, 10 living. There were 5 boys, and 8 girls, 4 of her sons are living and 6 daughters. She died March the 25th, 1891, aged 75 years 2 months and 13 days. She professed religion while young and joined the Primitive Baptist church at Castlewoods about the year 1833, and was baptized by Elder David Jesse and remained a Primitive Baptist the remainder of her days. She was a very plain kind of a woman and was always opposed to wrong doings and sinful practices. She was very industrious and was never satisfied unless she was doing something for the benefit of her family. Her home was always a welcome and quiet place for the preachers when they were visiting the churches near where she lived, and she very often had preaching at her house. She always tried to give her children good advice, and to teach them to shun bad company. We have great reason to be thankful. She has raised a very respectable family of children. Five of her children are members of the Primitive Baptist church and the others, I believe are professors, but have not joined the church. She leaves an aged husband, and her children and friends to mourn their loss. She was kind and affectionate to her children and a loving and faithful companion to her husband. While it is a great loss to us, we hope and believe it is her eternal gain, for we believe she is gone to that rest that is prepared for all the righteous. And we have a hope that when we are done with the trials and troubles of this life, that we will meet her in that place where is no more sickness, sorrow, pain or death.

O glorious hour, O blest abode,
I shall be near and like my God ;
And flesh and sin no more control,
The sacred pleasures of my soul.
My flesh shall slumber in the ground,
Till the last trumpet's joyful sound,
Then burst the chains with sweet surprise
And in my Saviour's image rise.

JESSE GRIZZEL.

J. L. CUMMINGS.

The subject of this notice, J. L. Cummings was born August 51st, 1859, and died September the 7th 1893, making his stay on earth 34 years and seven days ; was married to Miss Anna DeForest, March 20th 1888. Joined the Primitive Baptist church at Laurel Creek, Floyd Co., Va., in June 1889. He was sound in the faith and doctrine of Jesus. After taking a letter from Laurel Creek church he was received into the fellowship of Meadow Creek church, Montgomery Co., Va., the brethren and sisters of said church seeing his steadfastness in the faith and doctrine of Christ liberated him to speak in the name of Jesus, which he did, when opportunity was afforded. His speech was with power being as I believe by the influence and energy of the Spirit of God, and was edifying to the church. A more marvelous man I never saw, his theme was salvation by grace; by day and by night it was the one topic foremost in his mind. The way, the truth, the life, seemed so plain to his mind, that it appeared to actuate every motive, every action, and bring them in harmony to the wonderful truth that Jesus reigns supremely great in the heart of his children, but his labor in our Father's vineyard was of short duration. He was afflicted in the spring previous to his death, and his friends and relatives were very anxious about him, but he seemed to rally, and was able to go to church and visit his neighbors, but finally the outward man began to fail rapidly, while the inner man was renewed day by day, he talked of the world as being under his feet. He had no faith in the arm of flesh either to heal, or to deliver, gave all the power and glory to God. It was the privilege of the writer to be with him often. Especially in his last days he admonished his brethren and sisters to stick to the faith as believed, and taught by Primitive Baptists. Said it would do to live by, and also to die by. He hated false doctrine, and false theories. His choice poem was.

'Father I stretch my hand to thee, etc.'

And when the sands of life were fast ebbing away, he sang praise to God in the highest, asking his brethren to join him in singing. He said he had views of things he could not relate, and was altogether resigned to the will of God. Said he had lived as long as he wanted to live, and talked and sung and praised till his dying hour, and now he is gone. His place is vacant in the church, the family circle and social meetings, but to my mind he fills a nobler sphere. He has crossed the dark river; his spirit now gazes with rapturous glory and grandeur upon the scenes beyond the swelling flood, and to chant in praises of nobler songs the redeeming love of Jesus, will be his employ for ever and ever. Then parents, brothers and sisters, wife children and relatives grieve not for the departed one, but pray God for Grace to imitate his example. So when life's journey is ended, you, with the unworthy writer may lay down dull mortality, with as much assurance of a sweet beyond as he.

G. A. REID.

Broad Shoals Va.

SALLIE J. CLARK.

Sallie J. Clark, daughter of Asa Hardison, was born in Martin county N. C., in 1845, and departed this life April 16th, 1893. She was married to J. W. Clark Jan. 16th, 1874. She was the mother of but one child—a baby boy on whom she lavished the whole wealth of her affections. The little fellow was spared to her but a little less than one year, and was called from her embrace to show her, as she herself always said, "that it was wrong for her to idolize flesh and blood as she did her little babe."

Though she raised no children of her own, in marrying Mr. Clark she assumed a mother's place to four little children of his, who, now being all grown will say that she filled that place well.

When quite young she manifested great interest in her future state, and at all times was ready, and fully able to defend the doctrine that salvation is alone of the Lord. She did not unite with the church though, until she, with her husband, united with the Primitive Baptists, in 1884, at Mt. Moriah, and was baptised by Elder Bradden.

So strong was her love for the Baptists and so deeply grieved by their troubles and divisions over several mooted questions, such as the absolute predestination of all things, the means, or instrumentality question etc., and so much did she study, talk, and write on these things that she was repeatedly warned by her husband and family that if she did not divert her thoughts more from such things she would injure her mind. About this time our father, with many other of the Baptists, was excluded from the church.

This seemed to grieve her so deeply that she told the church that if such people as father was not fit to live with them that she knew that she was not. So she told them to erase her name from the church book. This they did not do, so she absented herself from the meetings until a charge for non-attendance was preferred against her and she too was excluded. She remained out of the church about three years, until the church rescinded the act by which father was excluded, and then she was restored to fellowship. But, during the time she remained out of the church, from causes before mentioned, as we believe, she was stricken down with an affection of the brain and lay unconscious for many weeks, and when she began to recover we found that her mind was not right. Her memory on everything except the Scriptures was entirely gone. She never recovered her proper exercise of mind any more until a few days before she died. She then looked as sane and talked as rational as ever in her life. During her last illness she talked a great deal on the Scriptures and about death. Father asked her, almost in her very last moments, if her prospects were bright. She answered, "Pa, I'm trusting in Jesus." A brother was bending over her, in her very last moments, even when we all thought her too far gone to notice anything more, and, while weeping he said to her that she had been a good, kind sister and he hoped that she would be rewarded for her kindness in the world to which she was going. On hearing his voice, for one moment the dull film left her eyes, she looked up at him with a sweet smile on her face, and said to him, "I have a hope that I shall be better off." The film returned, the breathing ceased, the soul had taken its flight, but the beautiful smile remained on her face. G. W. HARDISON.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the announcement continues in this paper until day of appointment or not.

ELDER W. C. CLEVELAND.

Statesboro, Ga.	Tuesday after 2d Sun. in June
Bethlehem	Wednesday
Lake	Thursday
Cedar Creek	Friday
Bay Branch	Saturday
Love's Chapel	3d Sunday
Beard's Creek	Monday
Bethel	Tuesday
Belknap	Wednesday
New Deloaches	Thursday
Upper Black Creek	Friday
Fellowship	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Lane's	Monday

Elder F. M. Stubbs will be with and convey him.

W. W. BARNES.

Beaver Dam	May 16
Haskins	17
Sand Hill	18
Muddy Creek	19
New M. H. near H. Fountain	20
Cypress Creek	21
Maple Hill	22
South West	23
Bay	24
Stump Sound	25
Yopps	26
Ward's Mill	27
North East	28
White Oak	29
Hadnotts' Creek	30
Newport	31

He will need conveyance

J. E. ADAMS.

ELDER GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I have just seen the LANDMARK for May 1st. Expected some appointments I sent you from Cedar Island on my return to appear, but don't see any, and the others which were published once in the 15th number, are also left off. I suppose it was an oversight. I send as follows:

Goose Creek Island	Tuesday after 3rd Sunday in May.
Bethel	Wednesday
Sandy Grove	Thursday
Blount's Creek	Friday
Singleton	Sat. and 4th Sunday
Galloway's	Monday
Red Banks	Tuesday
Hancock's	Wednesday
Cross Roads	Thursday
Mewborn	Saturday
LaGrange	1st Sunday in June

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 44 Daily.		No. 15 Daily.		No. 41 Daily.		No. 49 N. Y. and P. M. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	12 47	9 51	12 02
Ar Rocky Mt.	12 55	10 45
Ar Tarboro	2 35
Lv Tarboro	12 07
Lv. Rocky Mt.	12 05	10 45	6 00
Lv Wilson	1 45	11 45	1 57
Lv Seina	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 45	1 15	4 00
Ar Florence	7 05	3 27	0 15
	No. 47 Daily.
Lv Wilson	3 05	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 00
Lv Magnolia	4 13
Ar Wilmington	5 35
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED Jan. 11, 1894.	No. 78 Daily.		No. 14 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.		No. 50 N. Y. and P. M. Spec.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 05
Lv Fayetteville	10 27	9 40
Ar Wilson	1 05	11 8
	No. 48 Daily.
Lv Wilmington	9 00	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	10 40
Lv Goldsboro	12 05
Ar Wilson	12 45
	No. 78 Daily.
Lv Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 57	11 27	10 40
Ar Tarboro	3 35
Lv Tarboro	12 54
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 07	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 15	12 25
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
 *These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 17 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 52 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 9 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 3 30 p. m., Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m., Sunday 9 20 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 15 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 05 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m., Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m., Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 47 p. m., Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5 00 a. m., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 11 00 a. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 1 00 p. m., Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 78 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Sup't.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMBERTON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
 Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
 At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Flitty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Archie Wright, Sex-on, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oilphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges. Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No. 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
8 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	8 15 a m
9 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 00 a m
10 15 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
10 45 p m	Lv.....Chisox.....Lv	1 45 a m
11 55 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	3 15 p m
12 55 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	4 45 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokes, Jr.....Lv	5 25 p m
11 42 p m	Lv.....N. W. J. C. - W. Cove.....Ar	4 20 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. W. J. C. - W. Cove.....Lv	4 33 p m
11 25 p m	Lv.....Rural Hill.....Lv	5 05 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	9 25 p m
No. 3		No. 4
5 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6 45 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	7 37 a m
6 05 p m	Ar.....Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m
4 40 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No. 16
Daily Ex		Mixed
Sunday,		Daily Ex
5 35 p m	Ar.....Rainscut.....Lv	Sunday
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar
No. 15		No. 16
Mixed		Daily ex.
Daily Ex		Sunday
Sunday
2 25 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No. 4 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1, connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mang'r.

W. E. KYLE,

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent by any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

JUNE 1, 1894.

NO. 14.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER:—I beg liberty to enter the columns of ZION'S LANDMARK with a short biography of my life. In this narrative I wish to dwell especially on that period of time which began several months ago as a new era in my life, and exercised me to the present.

I was born in 1864 in Pulaski county, Va., and reared in a rural district on a farm. From my early boyhood until I was twenty-one years of age I attended school much, and was very studious. In 1885 I graduated in medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, Md. In the spring of 1885 I left college for the home of my boyhood, and began the practice of my profession, which has been my employment to the present day.

In the year 1889 I married into a rigid Methodist family, and located at my present home, and in a short time a Methodist church was erected within one hundred yards of my door. I attended church regularly, took a part in the Sabbath school, and felt good enough. My mind was engrossed in accumulating wealth, and when things pertaining to an after life presented themselves to me I had no trouble in ridding myself of them, for when I compared myself with them I felt I was their equal, if not better. I did not know the significance of Paul's language, "But they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves are not wise." I had nothing very momentous to regret, but few sins for which to repent, consequently was right well satisfied with my past, present and outlook of the future. My entire life was bright and pleasant, and I was satisfied with this world and lived happily in it.

This brings me to where I must leave these dry facts and enter that period of which I spoke in the beginning. From some cause or other my mind was taken from the things of this world and made to meditate on things to come in an after life. I was made to see the great contrast between time and eternity, and my life, even if I lived to extreme old age, was but a moment. Then by research and thought I began to try to locate my standing with God. I had a feeling within that I was not ready, that something was lacking, and if I died in this condition I would never see God. With much seriousness I commenced reading the Bible, a thing I rarely did, except as a text-book to prepare my Sunday School lesson. It proved fatal. I soon was taught who I was, and how I stood before God. Each passage struck condemnation to my heart, and painted my sins where I could see them. As it seems my eyes were turned to look within, and I not only saw I was a great practical sinner, but conceived a sin and brought forth in iniquity, and went astray as soon as I was born, speaking lies. I saw plainly that I was corrupt from my conception to my birth, and down through life, growing worse and worse, adding sin upon sin and doing no good thing. I labored hard to amend my life and obey the law of God, and to work myself into favor with him, but was told that which I felt, that every corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit, and no fountain could yield both salt water and fresh. Had not all the thoughts and deeds of my life been the fruits of the flesh? I had grown tired and weary of my labor, yet was laboring on. I continued in this condition trying to render service unto the Lord by works of righteousness, until I was made to see that salvation was of the Lord. It is not by works of righteousness which we have done, but by the washing of regeneration, and according to his mercy he saved us. What then? "Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for, but the election hath obtained it. Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ unto himself according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the council of his own will." These Scriptures, as well as the tenor of the whole Bible seemed to speak to something within, and were convincing that the salvation of man's soul depended not upon the works of man either seen or foreseen by the foreknowledge of God; but is by grace according to the doctrine of election and predestination. Under this I began to quake, for I could not think God in his infinite purpose predestinated me unto eternal life. I felt separated from God and from all whom I loved, and no promise of an after life could I claim as my own; my fate was eternal death. Lord, have mercy. I sought solitude, for it seemed to me that all with whom I met knew my sinfulness and pitied my sad condition. I lost all interest in this world, and felt so miserable I could not continue my practice, especially at night, for then I felt worse. Sometimes when pressed to go I would feel myself sinking down through the earth and think I could not live to return, and prayed continually. When interrogated by my wife and others as to the performance of my daily duties in business matters, I could only reply that I had no energy and could not work.

I often wished and tried to be my former self, and be satisfied as I once was, and as others seemed to be, but I could not. Several months passed by, and I went on from bad to worse, and in the meantime my only child, a lovely two-year-old daughter, took sick and died. I shortly began to fear my sins were visited upon her without forgiveness. "For I, the Lord, visit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me." I remember where I was when this thought first struck me, and I almost fell from my horse and cried as though I could not live. I tried to comfort myself with the thought that we would be together after death, but poor comfort it afforded. My troubles continued, and I refused to eat and could not sleep, to such an extent that I believed I was physically and mentally diseased; and if not, to such irregular habits I would soon succumb to some malady and die. And, Oh, my soul, how awful to come to death in my condition. In my most fervent prayers I felt condemned for trying to pray. It seemed I was asking God to defile heaven with the presence of a vile sinner, or to give up his immutability and elect a non-elect, contrary to his way and purpose. I saw the law of God was just, and its condemnation to me was the ministration of justice, but I could not find how to submit to such a destiny. I went from place to place trying to pray for mercy, but not expecting to receive any. I went to bed and tried to rest and sleep, but I turned from side to side and moved from place to place and could do neither. I then tried to read, but could not understand even the literal meaning of the slightest sentence. Before I could finish a sentence my mind would be dwelling on my condition. Every breath was latent with Oh, Lord! Lord, have mercy! Lord, Lord. My prayer was ungovernable. My wife would ask me occasionally what was the matter with me, and I could only tell her I did not know or could not sleep. About day I felt I could endure my trouble no longer, and wished I had never been born, or that I could accept annihilation and be no more. I tried physical pain by pressing my head between my clenched fists. All was futile. I arose to dress, and as I was donning my pants I felt a light enter my heart, and I stopped in amazement to consider. My troubles were gone, and in their stead came peace, joy and love unspeakable. My heart was tender and full, and at the thought or sound of the name of Jesus I would cry. For the first time it began to dawn upon me what was the matter. It had been hinted to me by godly men before, but such talk only made me doubt their religion and pity them for being subjects of such delusions. But now I sought their company, and in a short conversation I could have fellowship with them and loved them. It rapidly came to my knowledge that Jesus was the light, the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world or out of chaos or confusion into his kingdom; and that he was the light that entered my heart to give me my hope of glory. I loved him, and in my own way I tried to praise his holy name for coming to my rescue in time of need, when I was under the rigid law of God and knew him not. I read the Scriptures much, not from a cold sense of duty as formerly, but for love and the strength I received from the precious promises contained therein. Passages which I had often read before as a dry jingle of words now testified of a truth within, and promises which applied only to the elect of God I received in person. The Scriptures as well as the books containing the experiences of godly men, such as Elder Durand's, were precious and nutritious food to me, and I grew rapidly in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The fruits of the Spirit I possessed, the blessings were mine and the beatitudes were attributes of myself. I felt that a day had dawned, a day star had arisen in my heart. That day was a Sabbath day in which I did rest and have kept holy. That day star was Jesus, the light, my hope, and I look back to it and speak of it as a star, a day star. The world grew brighter, and I lived again. Often in riding along the road, for I had resumed my labors, I held sweet communion with the Lord, and would be partially absent from the flesh to meet him in the air. I had but few cares of the world upon me. It soon entered my feelings to join the church and be baptized. I had no trouble in selecting the church, for the sound of the gospel was unmistakable. I had told my wife and even their pastor, who seemed to be very solicitous about my welfare, that I intended to join the Methodist Church, but this I had to retract. When my wife joined them, some months before, I had feelings I cannot express. I do not know even whether they were painful or pleasant. I left church and went home, but could not stay. I came back to church and could not stay there. So I went home and returned the third time before they closed their meeting. I attended their meetings and their doctrine became more and more objectionable. I think I know the truth when I hear it, for there is something within that bears testimony of the truth.

On Saturday before the fourth Sunday in February I offered to the Primitive Baptist Church at Bethel and was received upon the relation of a very small portion of what I have here written; and the fourth Sunday in April I was baptized by Elder Isaac Webb, and felt a discharge of my conscience toward God. I now feel to be in "that path which no fowl knoweth, and which the vultures eye hath not seen; the lion's whelps have not trodden it, nor the fierce lion passed by it." Occasionally I doubt many of these things which I have written, and at times cannot say if I saw a light, but after all I know a change was manifested in me, and whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Sometimes I doubt one portion and sometimes another, but without doubts there could be no hope. These doubts are products of the carnal mind, carnal reasoning, God's enemy. But to lay aside all my doubts and hopes there are a few things I do know:

1. I know I love the brethren.
2. I know sin is exceedingly sinful.
3. I know I have a principle within opposed to evil which did not exist before.
4. I know I am purged from dead works.
5. I know I hunger and thirst after righteousness.

6. I know wherein I once was blind I now see.

7. I know I am meek and humble when compared with my former self.

8. I know the way which once seemed right unto me was the way unto death.

9. I know I have a hope in heaven.

Have we not all this testimony, and with such can we not find good grounds for our hope? I close, having imperfectly expressed myself as I wish to. Many things are left unsaid, and probably some have been written which should not have been. I submit it, however, to the judgment of our worthy editors, to do as they think best. Yours in hope of living forever with Jesus.

J. C. HURST.

Allisouia, Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—As I want to send you the money for the LANDMARK which I so highly prize, I thought I would write a few lines. I am not able to express how comforting your valuable paper is to me. They grow dearer and sweeter all the time. Its columns come filled with many rich clusters of delicious fruit, of which I hope I can at times partake with a heart overflowing with love to God and his people. Brother Gold I feel that the good Lord has wonderfully blessed you with wisdom from on high. I do admire your gentle way of speaking. Dear brother, I wish I could express the emotions of my soul when meditating upon the goodness of God. I do hope I love the Lord, his cause and his people. I often feel like one alone here, as I am the only member in this place; but this is a comforting thought, the Lord knoweth them that are his, and he promises never to leave nor forsake them. I hope I trust in a God who speaks and it is done, who commands and it stands fast. I hope he has enabled me to say, "Though he slay me yet will I trust him." Dear brother, if not deceived I have had many seasons of rejoicing since I joined the church that I knew nothing of before. But alas, what a disobedient child I have been, if one at all; I become so shrouded in darkness sometimes that I am made to say with the poet, "'Tis a point I long to know," &c., Then at other times I hope the true Comforter enables me to say, "'Tis religion that can give, sweetest pleasure while we live." Brother Gold I have felt so strongly impressed to write to you for several years, and I have made several attempts, but my short-comings stared me so forcibly I would lay it aside, and now I do not write feeling that I can say anything that will be edifying to you as I do believe you are one of God's bright jewels of mercy and so far my superior in all that is pertaining to godliness, but I feel that you will be willing to cover my many imperfections with the mantle of charity. I have thought of our last meeting with much pleasure. I don't think I ever enjoyed an Association as well in my life, and I have enjoyed many I hope. If not deceived the feast was complete with me. I don't think I ever saw more love and beauty in the people of God than at that meeting. I look back to those happy moments and hope to enjoy the like again if the Lord will. I feel that the good Lord has been inexpressibly kind to me for which I desire to be thankful, and may I adorn the profession which I have made with an orderly walk and a godly conversation. Dear brother, I desire to be an humble follower of Jesus, but I find that the thorn in the flesh is needful to keep me under subjection. When I would do good evil is present with me. I hope I have learned that without his help I can do nothing. I sometimes feel "I am so vile, so prone to sin, I fear I've never been born again;" and at other times these words come as a soothing balm to my drooping spirits, "By this we know we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren." I hope I do love them with the right love. I hope the Giver of all good gifts has given me the love I have for the Primitive Baptists, for I know they are not popular at all but greatly persecuted. I feel that my trials have been great on account of my religious views, but I feel that the sweetest moments of my life since I professed a hope have been spent in the furnace of affliction. I hope he who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb enables me to say, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Dear brother, I have written much more than I intended, and fear I have wearied you with my poor letter. May the blessed Lord spare you long to comfort his believing children, and bless you and yours as far as it is consistent with his will, and at last give you a home in Heaven is the desire of the unworthy writer. When the Lord gives you the spirit of prayer may he enable you to remember me at a throne of grace. Your little sister in hope of a better world,

EUGENIE HINTON.

P. S.—Brother Gold, I cannot read your valuable paper with an easy conscience without knowing it is paid for. I know your expenses must be heavy. E. G.

EDITOR ZION'S LANDMARK:—I read with pleasure every number of your paper and with a great longing for the same sweet assurance of a home beyond the skies that some of your writers have.

Near a year ago, I wished that I might die, not thinking what death meant. I went to bed but not to sleep, and saw myself hanging over a bottomless pit, and felt to be the vilest of sinners. It came to me with double force that I was deep-dyed in sin and could do nothing, simply nothing, to cleanse myself from this state. I prayed as I had never prayed before for mercy. I realized that salvation was indeed the "gift of God" and I, poor miserable sinner had no hope. I read the bible and prayed, but could find no relief. In a few days my only child, a little girl two years old, wassick and died. My husband being away from home a great deal, she was my only companion, and no one but a mother knows how I loved her. I felt that the Lord was cruel in taking my little one from me but I prayed continually to be more resigned to his holy will. A quiet peacefulness stole over me and I felt that if I could have my baby back by asking I could not ask it, and these words came to me, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord;" and I kept saying them to myself. It seemed that the burden of my past sins was removed, and that I would never sin again, that I never would be out of temper or utter a cross word, but as time goes on sin goes on also. If I am ever permitted to enter that heavenly home it will be by the Grace of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and not by any good works which I have done. At times I feel so low and sinful I hardly dare raise my eyes to Jesus and beg for mercy. Please pray for me that I may see my duty clearly for I feel that I am leaving something undone.

A SINNER.

Remarks:

Yes, one thing my friend you should attend to at once—that is be baptized. You have been blessed of the Lord I feel with a good hope through grace. So arise and be baptized, according to the pattern given, and follow Jesus.

You need not expect peace in this world of sin and death. For when Jesus was baptized the heavens were opened, and the Holy Ghost descended upon him, and the will of his Father from heaven proclaimed his Sonship. Then he was at once led of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. Then the tribulation began in him. So when we follow Jesus we have peace of conscience, but the warfare is sure to follow. The devil is sure to try God's work to see if he can destroy it. In the furnace we are proven and manifested to be the Lord's people. Hence it is necessary to have tribulation. If you have none you have no evidence that you are a child of God. As many as he loves he scourges and rebukes. We must fight the good fight of faith and overcome by the word of God, and endure hardness as good soldiers. You must not seek an easy time in this world. Put on the whole armor of God that you may be able to stand.

P. D. G.

HOPE.

I herewith give you a brief statement of my experience and troubles at the time stated here, that you may know what I have suffered and what it is to die the death unto sin. In the first place I was cast into prison, Nov. 19th 1888. After a short time my troubles began. Above all promises from my friends for pardon it gave me no relief. It just seemed that every person had forsaken me, and no company could I find. At length my past life began to present itself before me. The tears would stream down from my face upon my machine. Everything I had done in life would present itself before me like great mountains at times. I went from place to place to get comfort but no comfort could I find. I attended church on Sabbath, but this still added to my pain. I at first seated myself near the preacher, but I soon began to get further off, till I would be found on the back bench, not knowing what I was doing at times. So I was taken down with measles and confined in a hospital. Oh, as I went to take my bed I never shall forget the words I said, feeling condemned. I said, shall I ever arise again? These are about the last words I recollect saying for eight to twelve days, passing out of my mind into a painful agony of death. I thought I was compelled to die, and I could see myself struggling and dying in a vision. It seemed I was standing a distance from my body watching it flounce upon the ground. I was sensible of these sufferings. It was no mere dream. It seemed I was choking and struggling for breath. So at last it seemed that I died, then there was a calm for sometime, and at length I awoke and found myself in the hands of a band of wicked men. It seemed they had me confined in a large room where they could punish me by degrees, and I could see people lying on every side of me and hear them groaning and moaning in the last stage of death. At length it seemed I disappeared out of their hands and was revealing it to the company. It seemed no man was ever loosed that went therein but me. At once I raised from my bed at the dark hour of midnight searching for a loose lock or some opening to make my escape. I search'd the room diligently that I was in, and then made my way through into the dead room, and by this time the waiter had found that I was missing and had out search for me. He found me scrambling at an iron window trying to make my escape. The waiters seizing me undertook to carry me back to my bed, but I fought against them with all power, thinking I heard them say we have got him now, we will punish him and put him to death. So I was confined by two stout colored waiters and mashed down by force on a bed. Oh it just seemed like my heart would burst asunder.

So it seemed that I was silenced for a space of time, and when I awoke I found myself in a place where each and every man was having his heart tested whether it be pure or condemned. It seemed every man was judged according to his time and turn. At length my name was called. I went up the bank and came around to the place where I should be judged, and when I passed through I fell beneath the the stroke, my heart presented itself before my eyes being condemn- ed.

It seemed that every person's heart was pure and white but mine, and it seemed to have a dark and spotted color. I wanted to get rid of it, and tried to deny my name, so at length I concluded that I would go through judgment the second time, and perhaps my heart would get better; so I went through the second time and when I came out my heart stood before me darker and more spattered than ever, condemn- ed. It seemed that every other person's heart was right but mine. When I would look upon my heart, torment would appear before me. It seemed that I was stone blind wandering in the night and lost. So

I traveled on in darkness and at length I found myself in a most dangerous place. I thought I was in a place where there was great machinery of snares, and teeth placed in cylinders and set on either side of me running with great speed and power. It seemed there was a narrow way for me to get through between them, and they were reaching for me on either side, so that I barely made my escape through. I traveled on and the next place I found myself was lying near a river in a low-down, dark wilderness place, and I was lying upon the sand, and had no place to lay my head. It just seemed that water was my dependence for life, and my thirst was great. When I would arouse from my agony I would come panting for breath crying water, water, with great drops of sweat falling from my face. My eyes seemed to be turned to crisp and stone-blind, and my tongue parched with fever. I viewed myself as an out-cast prodigal, whose food was husks, and whose potion was bitterness. It seemed that every person was going to heaven but me, and I was bound for hell, and these words seemed to follow me and stand before my face.

"And if my soul were sent to hell,
Thy righteous law approves it well."

O my Lord I cannot express fully to any one these sufferings. It seemed that my heart was trying to get out of my body with a heavy load to carry and as hard as stone.

So I wandered on in the darkness, not a ray of light could I see, and the next place I found myself was lying upon a river bank, a place of death. It seemed there was only one man that carried out the executions, and that he had a great and heavy iron press with bolts and bars that you had to be confined in, and it was hanging over a river or a great depth of water. I thought every man had to be locked in the press, and let go down in the water, and stay till he was dead, then he must be raised up again, then he must be let down the second time, and those that went the second time would explode, and their flesh would be driven under the river or water-banks. So I thought I was hanging over them that went down the second time, feeling the heat of their flesh raise me up. At length I heard my name called for to be put to death. Oh how I did hate and despise the name Hurst; any other name but mine. I would raise up in bed and pant and struggle for breath. It seemed I was trying to get away, and shun death, but I found myself going down in the press of death to be killed, and when I returned I made my escape. I never was found going down to be destroyed in the second death.

My name was called many times to die, and every time it was called I could see the very smoke of torment ascending upward. I seemed to be stone blind, bewildered and lost, groping as it were in a dark room; so though if my eyes were opened I would yet see nothing. Darkness, shame and grief oppressed my gloomy mind. I looked around me for relief but no relief could I find. Oh what a horror hung around the second death. I will tell you again this is no mere dream, it was an agony of spirit and mind. No one has any idea of these sufferings except those that have passed through it, and can never, never forget it.

I will go farther and tell you more about these sufferings. Now while still making my bed of dead men's flesh on the bank of the river, it seemed I was trying to get away from that place, but with great weakness and could not succeed. I would raise up my head and then lay it down again. it seemed I had no place to lay my head only on dead men's flesh. The next place I found myself I was trying to make my escape across the river. It seemed I went down the bank to the edge of the water and returned many times before I entered in. At length I found myself in the midst of that great river, and the waves were ebbing and flowing, and they seemed to cover me as if they were flames of fire. Oh the pain and agony of spirit and mind this poor creature cannot express. It seemed that I was in hell calling for water to cool my tongue. A Scripture came to me viewing myself as the rich man who went to hell and saw Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom. Here a calm was made for a moment of time and when I awoke to my agony I found myself landed on the other side of the river in a low-down, cold, dark and shady place, surrounded on every side. I felt myself a solitary outcast from the regard of heaven and the sympathy of earth. It seemed I was hemmed by the river of death on my back and left hand, and on my right hand a steep and rocky mountain, in front of me a dark wilderness and desert place. A stillness came over me for a space of time, and when I awoke I found myself wandering up the mountain through the wilderness. It seemed like I was in a little drain of water that came down the mountain. I seemed to be following it as it were leading me. So I traveled on in the darkness and at length I came in company with my enemies. I thought I was pleading with them to forgive me, but not a word could I hear from them. At length they seemed to disappear as I came to the top of the mountain, and here I was looking for a wilderness to hide myself in to shun death. I had got as far as I could get as my weakness was great and had fallen down: So it seemed I went to studding my case over. I thought it would be best for me to die as I was stone-blind and I would be of no use to any one. There were great scales over my eyes, and I was wondering about in the dark, so I though my sentence was pronounced and the execution limited. I thought of my wife and I sent for her. My desire was to tell her I could be of no use to her stone blind.

So it seemed I gave up to die, sacrifice myself in deep humility, feeling that I deserved nothing, and could hope for nothing except I recieved it of the Lord's mercy.

It seemed my time of departure was near at hand, and my wife had not reached me, yet it seemed I had a great desire to speak one word to her. I thought I wanted to tell her that I had to die and go to hell this quick. At length I thought I heard her coming, but could not discover her as I was blind. So as the limited time to die was just at hand pressing towards her with the words in my mouth.

I must die, and go to hell,
Thy righteous law approves it well.

And just as I went to cry the above words aloud, my eyes came open, seeing a dazzling light flashing over me. I fastened my eyes upon it, and heard a voice speaking to me, This is God's great power. Then in a moment I heard some words repeated in my heart and revealed, and these are the words in lines of the grand old poet,

"Here Lord, I give myself away,
'Tis all that I can do."

Just as these words ended I came to myself, looking around me found that the great burden of my heart had rolled away. It just looked like every thing was praising God, and that I was in a new world. I said to the sick that I had been dead and it seemed that I had. The waiters then told me I had lain three days and nights without scarcely eating anything. Oh! how bright the morning seemed, brighter from so dark a night. Oh! yes, it seemed I wanted to suffer more as my blessed Saviour had suffered so much for me. So at length they brought me letters from my wife and friends. They seemed to be of no comfort as they were talking about worldly matters, and getting me out of prison. It seemed I did not want to get out of prison, that a prison life was good enough for me, so prisons do palaces prove if Jesus dwell with us there. So I laid the letters aside calling for the Bible. It just seemed like all the Bibles belong to me and my Saviour also.

"Amazing grace how sweet the sound
That saved a wretch like me;
I once was lost but now am found;
Was blind but now I see."

So this is the end of my experience, my dying declaration, a prisoner's hope awaiting this life to kindle up. Written this the 12th day of December, 1890.

JOHN R. HURST.

State Prison, Ken.

P. S.—Will some dear child of grace please write me in this dear paper whether the above experience felt by this poor sinner is according to the Bible and the Apostles' doctrine.

EXPERIENCE.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—The following is an experience of my wife, Caroline T. Hall, as found among her papers after death. You will please publish in the hope that it may be edifying to some of the saints.

A. N. HALL.

My first impressions and thoughts of childhood, as I now recollect them, were mingled at times with unhappy emotions and childish sorrows, which I then thought were incident to human life. I recall nothing of an unusual character in my young life until about the age of 14, when I was called upon to witness the death of my aunt, which caused me numberless hours of trouble. It indelibly fixed upon my mind impressions that I have never forgotten. I saw the frailty of human nature and the uncertainty of human life. I saw and felt that ere long I too must die. Then with a mighty power came the question, "Are you prepared to die?" For the first time I began to realize my condition, "without God and without hope in the world." I had looked upon religion as a good thing for the old and infirm, a desirable armor with which to meet and pass through death, but unsuited and especially undesirable for the young and healthy. But alas! how unsuited are all our theories and carnal imaginations to the will and workings of the Lord. I lived for three long years in this unhappy and unsettled condition. At the age of 17 I was united in marriage to a Primitive Baptist preacher, Elder A. N. Hall. I then thought that I had found an antidote for my troubles, that he would help me get religion, that by his aid I would soon be a Christian. But O what a sad mistake. I soon saw that neither my husband nor any other person could render me aid. That it was a personal affair, beyond his or any other creature's reach. Between me and my God I also felt condemned for such vain thoughts and hopes. In the language of Jeremiah, "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, or maketh flesh his arm." Then it was that I saw all earthly hopes were as naught, and that my efforts too, were fruitless and without reward. I still stood condemned under the law. Then my thoughts of death and judgment seemed to overawe me. I viewed with an unobstructed vision the shortness of time and the length of eternity, the dissatisfaction of the one, the possible horrors of the other. I realized the vanities of this world, and how soon I must leave them, and without a change what would be my portion in the next? I wished that I had never been born, or that I had died in infancy. There is no tongue that can utter, nor any pen that can write the feelings of a poor, wretched and condemned being, who is, as it were, left alone in this world, without an eye to pity or an arm to save. I would go to preaching, hoping to hear something that would convict and convert me. I could hear of others being convicted, and that would trouble me, not but what I wanted them saved, but that I felt there was a chance for others but none for poor me. I felt that I was willing to suffer anything the Lord might put upon me for religion's sake, if that would do any good. How miserable did I often grow when at evening I saw the sign of an approaching cloud, heard the sounds of distant thunder, and saw the lightning whose flashes I often playfully admired when a child, but now shrank from as I feared the Lord by some such means would destroy me, and send my soul to an everlasting torment. My every breathing was, God be merciful to me, a sinner. I have often times had to leave the house when the subject of religion was brought up to hide my feelings. I wanted to hear them talk, but did not want them to talk to me, nor think that I was in any way concerned. I felt friendless and forsaken by all. My sorest trial was that I felt unfit to be with Mr. Hall, for I believed he was a christian, and I was not; he being consecrated to His service and I a total stranger. I still thirsted after Christ, and thought that if I could be stricken down like Paul I would believe it was conviction. But not so. My case seemed to be an outside one, unprovided for. I oftentimes tried to pray, but without avail. My prayer seemed not to be an utterance from the fullness of the heart, but a mere pretense. I often thought that I had rather be a dumb brute, even of the lowest order that had no soul to save, than as I was; for I could see no way to escape the punishment justly due me for my sins. On one occasion I went with Mr. Hall to one of his appointments, his text was, "Beloved, it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he appears we shall be like him." I can never describe my feelings that day. I felt miserable, vile and wretched, and that there was no mercy for me. The members all looked so happy, good and peaceful I felt that I was not worthy to be in their midst. After preaching one of them came and asked me if I did not have a hope. I burst out in tears, for I could not hide my feelings any longer. My greatest desire was to be converted. I mourned because I could not mourn, I grieved because I could not grieve. When I would hear of any one's dying I felt that perhaps I would be the next summoned to meet the stern realities of that unknown eternity, from whence no traveller has e'er returned. One day while in this condition the darkness that had so long hovered around and shrouded me was dispelled, the black and threatening cloud that had continuously overshadowed me now faded away, and in its stead, quickly, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, was ushered that sweet hope that the Lord had not forsaken me, though I was cast down that in my sinfulness he had not passed me by. My troubles were all gone, but I didn't take it for religion. After awhile I began to be troubled again, though not in the same way. I wanted my burden back again, but I could not replace it. I began thinking my condition worse than before. If I could only get my burden back I would notice how it left. My greatest desire was for the Lord to show me what I was. I knew there had been a change, but it was not such as I expected. The people whose company I once avoided, I then sought; the things I once hated I then loved. I felt such a love for those I believed to be christians. I saw a beauty in baptism which I had never seen before. But still there was a kind of inexpressible trouble and distress for several weeks, when again I was carried back to the time that the burden of my heart rolled away, and for the first time I was made to believe it was religion, although it had been nearly two years. I had thought that I would keep my feelings to myself, but I then wanted to talk, and did talk. But in a short time doubts began to arise and I often grew very despondent, but the same little hope I that obtained years ago has sustained me thus far. I thought I would not offer myself to the church unless my hope increased. But later on I felt more like discharging my duty, and before I grew much in grace, or before I felt as worthy as the least of the members, I offered to the church and was received and baptized by husband. I then felt that I had done my duty, and had a clear conscience. If I am saved at all it will be by grace, grace from the first to the last. Nothing that I have done or ever expect to do. Now this is all the hope I have. Without Christ I am lost. I feel sometimes that I am not afraid to trust him. CAROLINE T. HALL.

Admonition to her children and grandchildren:—Many have been the lonely, troublesome hours I have spent when your pa was off preaching. I have always waited on him, and tried to help him on. I want you all to do the same. If I die first wait on him in his old age. Now, children, my race is nearly run. I feel like my time is short here. I want you all to do the best you can. I know you cannot do anything to save yourselves, but you can be smart, steady, honest and truthful. Love one another. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, and the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."

A CALL TO THE DESTITUTE.

How is a man to preach? By the Spirit of God? Do churches call him, or does God send him? I claim to be sent by the Lord to preach the gospel to the poor and destitute. I received special orders from the Lord to go to the destitute churches in South Carolina. I was in trouble some months before I could locate them, and brother Bell made out my appointments. When I got to Cool Springs there were three people that had seen me and knew me. Sister Johnson and brother Cox had a vision one night, and one was traveling a straight path, and came to a certain place and was commanded to call sheep, and some came out, and he went on to a river, and saw a shining host of people most glorious to behold, and desired to go to them. The Lord told him he could not go then, but he would come after him, and he might go. Before I was there he had the vision again, and got to the same place where he called sheep and saw me put in that path, and when he saw me he knew I was the man, and O, how he wept. There was a Missionary lady saw me come to that place in a vision and open a large book and preach from a certain chapter (Ephesians 4:4.) "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling, one Lord, one faith, one baptism." She knew I was the man. "Come over to Macedonia and help us." Revelation is always true. I had been called by a power that was irresistible, and had no rest in my spirit day nor night until I went to them, then I had great rest, and returned home quiet as a lamb basking in the love of God. Last May, on the 4th Sunday evening, I was called so forcibly and my trouble increased so my mind was, Lord what wilt thou have me to do? And it was made plain to me that I should go to old Ebenezer Church. I was confident that I felt the prayers of a people. When I got there I found them. I told my feelings in the stand. Brother Atkins came and told me that he was forcibly compelled to pray to the Lord to send them a preacher. I said I was the man; had no doubt of it. Then when the Lord impressed me to these destitute churches he impressed me that I would have to baptize some when I reached the hill country. My wife put clothes in for me, and when I got up there I baptized five, then I received the promise, "Well done thou good and faithful servant; thou has been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter into the joy of thy Lord." I felt like I never should doubt any more. But I soon became like I had to send my petitions back to the Lord. Saturday before the second Sunday in March, 1893, I received deep impressions to go back to the destitute. My mind leads me along the Blue Ridge Mountains. Brother Gold I feel, if not deceived, the prayers of some of the Lord's little ones from that country. I am trying to locate them so I can get to them this summer, if the Lord wills. I am required to go further than I have been, and do not know where there are any churches. The Lord has a people; they have to ask him to send a preacher, and he will send whom he will, and they will know him, and he will know them, and they will rejoice, and God will be glorified. To be profitable to churches the Holy Ghost must make you an overseer, and he will oversee in love because God is love. If we would try to rule in love, and not in the flesh, then God would be honored, and we would be blessed. Brother Gold, this is the first piece I ever wrote of my testimony of the Lord in me. Your unworthy brother in gospel bonds.

GARDNER BRYAN.

Lanier, N. C.

To the many dear, precious brethren and sisters and friends with whom I met on my late tour, and by the assistance of the Lord endeavored to preach Jesus crucified, the wisdom and power of God, and our peace with him and among ourselves. According to your many requests I now write a brief sketch. I feel thankful, I hope, to the Lord that he enabled me to meet and fill all the appointments, and to preach at many private houses by request of the afflicted, who were not able to attend at the churches. I left where I call my earthly home, my brother-in-law's brother, Matt W. Denning's, on Friday before the first Sunday in February; met dear Elder J. M. Wyatt at Hannah's Creek, with whom I traveled three weeks to Stump Sound, Onslow county, N. C. I feel that I was greatly blessed to be in the company of such a man of God, as I esteem Elder Wyatt to be, feeling unworthy as I do. I can say that I have seldom enjoyed a tour better than this one. I visited all the churches in the Mill Branch Association; found them generally in peace. I remember you all for the truth's sake—feel thankful to all for their love and kindness shown me. At Mt. Pleasant, S. C., I spent four days pleasantly among them. From here I went to Bethany Church, Anson county, N. C., thence to most of the churches in the Bear Creek Association. Had three additions; one at Lawyer Spring, one at Watson and one at Jerusalem. These were joyful seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. I have never seen more love, peace and fellowship, and I hope felt it so. Thanks to God for his unspeakable gifts. I visited several churches in the Abbott's Creek bounds; enjoyed them well, closing at Neil's Creek, in my own county, on second Sunday in April, there meeting with dear Elder J. T. Coats, being gone something over two months, and had some precious evidence that the Lord was in the arrangement and blessed me with his Spirit in speaking in his name. I hope to the comfort of many of the dear people of God. And now in conclusion dear brethren and friends, for I met with many outside the pales of the visible church, who manifest great love for the church, I wish to say that in obedience we are blessed here in time with the fruit of the Spirit. "If ye be willing and obedient ye shall eat the good of the land, but if ye refuse and rebel ye shall be devoured with the sword, for the mouth of the Lord has spoken it." Dear brethren, I do believe with all my heart that our time comforts and peace, spiritually and temporally, does depend upon our obedience to the law of Christ written in our hearts and minds, showing our faith and love to God and to each other by good works of faith and labors of love. There is no sweeter labor to the true servant of God than preaching peace by Jesus Christ. God is faithful, and never fails to reward his people with peace and rest to their souls in obedience. Dear brethren and sisters in the Lord, I remember you all in love. May the Lord's good hand be with you all, and may you be blessed to live in love and peace, endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace. Remember me at a throne of grace. Farewell. Yours to serve,

J. E. ADAMS.

Barclaysville, N. C.

Elder E. C. Smith is an authorized agent, as he travels considerably, to receive subscriptions to ZION'S LANDMARK, and give receipts for same. We request all that wish to renew or subscribe for it to hand over the money to him when you have opportunity to do so in seeing him.

All our brethren so disposed, whether preachers or not, and whether traveling or not, will confer a favor on us by obtaining new subscribers, or receiving dues from subscribers now in arrears, and forwarding same to us. We find it very difficult to get money enough to pay expenses these times.

P. D. G.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 14.

WILSON, N. C., JUNE 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

WHY IS IT SO?

Primitive Baptists are more interested in an experience of grace than any other class of people. I mean by an experience of grace the reason of the hope within them, a good hope through grace revealed in them in the gracious deliverance God has given them from sin and its curse, by transgressed law which is the strength of sin. When the fiery law is sent into the conscience sin rages with such terror that the convicted soul despairs of all hope such as he had before indulged of bettering his case by good works in some future time, and this false hope perishes. The command comes, sin revives, and works death in him by the law. Then all hope in nature or in man's work fails. Then it pleases God to reveal in this helpless, despairing one Christ Jesus who is the hope of glory, and a good hope through grace. Then Christ is our hope. The man who lives by the faith of Christ, who has Christ in him, who talks Christ, and loves him, gives the reason of his hope. This hope dates in manifestation to him from the time it pleased God to reveal Jesus in him—and this is his hope forever. This hope abides, and hence his experience continues as long as he lives. He learns by experience that God blesses him for Jesus' sake. Experience is wrought through and by patience that comes of tribulation, and hope springs out of this, and this hope does not confound us or leave and desert us in distress, but delivers from shame and confusion because the love of God flows throughout the soul thereby.

This experience continues therefore for life, and hence hope abides. We therefore have no fellowship for what is sometimes called an experience that one tells of something he had years ago, and it ceased then, or has not controlled his life since, nor brought any good work, nor wrought any hope since; but we feel and believe that where Christ is our hope it abides, and every one that hath this hope in him purifies himself even as he is pure in Christ and Christ him.

Then we preach Christ crucified and risen. This hope in us is the root and life of the matter. Primitive Baptists desire this proof from all that come to them. That is the reason why they love an experience of grace. It is dear to Primitive Baptists.

It is the Lord's witness to them through the Spirit of salvation, and its fruits of good conduct is proof to others that they have been with Jesus and have learned of him. It is fruits meet for repentance.

I have often noticed indifference on the part of some members to preaching. Some go to sleep—others if awake at times indicate by a listless expression that they do not understand or feed upon and enjoy the preaching; but I have yet to see a Baptist indifferent or sleepy while one is relating the reason of his hope or telling his experience to the church.

Now people of other denominations do not love this because they depend on what they are doing themselves. They go about to establish their own righteousness. They praise their own doings. They tell what wonderful things they are doing for the Lord, and how they are helping him, and deride us because we are not doing anything for the Lord.

We want to glory in the Lord—in what he has done for us, and is doing for us. Go home to thy friends and tell them what great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had mercy on thee.

What are the signs of the coming of Jesus. The blind receive their sight, the lepers are cleansed, the lame walk, the dead are raised up, the poor have the gospel preached to them, and blessed is he whosoever is not offended in Jesus. What has the creature done in all this? He is what is saved or healed. When and as we are blessed with faith in Jesus we see and know that salvation is of the Lord, and is already finished and complete, and that we are complete in him who is the head of all principality and power.

We are saved by hope. We groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption, that is for the redemption of our body from corruption and death. We are cast down and oppressed, but the Lord delivers us. This our hope is therefore that he will yet deliver us. For we do not hope for that which we see and know, but for that which we wait for and see not, and this is our salvation.

Those that have no good hope through grace have nothing more in future than what they have in the present. These have all now that they will ever have. But the salvation of our God is so great and wonderful that it doth not yet appear what we shall be. This good hope through grace, or through and in what the Lord has done, belongs to the kingdom of heaven, and is therefore known only by revelation. The brighter the revelation of this hope in us the greater the warfare in opposition from the world. Hence if in this life only we have hope we would be of all men the most miserable. Those that are satisfied with what they are and what they are doing have no apprehension of a good hope through grace, and can have no experience of deliverance from distress because they have no distress they desire deliverance from.

P. D. G.

WHAT SORT OF RECORD ?

The Biblical Recorder of January 3d, 1894, records that there are three ordinances in the Bible.

1st. The Preached Word.

2d. Baptism.

3d. The Lord's Supper.

His definition of an ordinance is, "A divine rule made effective by means of material objects through which God reveals and teaches most important spiritual truths." He adds:

"Now enter a church at the close of the apostolic era with a New Testament in your hand. What do you see and hear ?

1. There on the pulpit stands the minister "ordained" to "preach the gospel to every creature," and to "teach all nations." He is "ordained" to "preach the word," by the "foolishness" of which God has "ordained" to save the world. Now if that man and that book, in that church, doing the primary work of saving souls do not constitute an "ordinance,"—the "ordinance of the preached word,"—the first ordinance, too, it will be hard to find an ordinance in the New Testament Church.

2. Behind the pulpit on which the preacher is administering "the ordinance of the preached word," is a pool or grave of water, in which are "buried in the likeness of Christ's death" such as were saved by the "foolishness of preaching," and who had repented of their sins and confessed their Saviour. Such was the place and use of the "ordinance of baptism" in the primitive church.

3. Before the pulpit on which is administered the first "ordinance of the preached word," and behind which is administered "the second ordinance of Christian baptism," stands the table for observing the "ordinance of the Lord's Supper." Those, and those only, who had heard the word of the "first ordinance," and obeyed the commandment of the "second ordinance," participated in this "third ordinance of the Lord's Supper."

Such was the use and manner of "observing" the ordinances, and "all things whatsoever he had command" in the apostolic church, and in every regular Baptist church until this day."

Remarks:

The first time the word ordinance occurs in the Bible is in connection with the passover, Ex. 12 : 14. This is a feast, an act performed, observed by the Lord's people, and by no others, to commemorate a notable deliverance. It is not to save them, but to show that they are saved, not to make Hebrews, but to show who are Hebrews. This is the rule in all ordinances of God to be observed by his people. The Lord does a wonderful thing that saves his people, and they are to commemorate it by a deed or act of worship, or service, as a memorial or remembrance of this great deliverance. This is what we call an ordinance. Hence it could not be made effective by means of material objects. How these Missionaries love to exalt themselves as agents and means or instruments by which the Lord makes effectual his ordinances. What means of material or earthly objects of matter did the Lord use to slay all the first born of Egypt? None. What material objects as means did God use to save his people in the death of Jesus our passover who is slain for us? None. Yet the pet hobby of the Missionaries, the foundation of their operations, is that their preaching is the cause and means of quickening the dead, and saving the world. But the Bible does not so record it. Who are believers in Jesus? The world? No. "But it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."—1st. Cor. 1:21. Nor is it by preaching foolishness either. But it is preaching the wisdom of God in a mystery. This is foolishness to the world, but Christ, the wisdom of God, and the power of God, to them that are saved.

This is preaching foolishness and a fable, or an imaginary thing, to preach that Jesus died and rose again for you provided you will believe it—that he died for those in hell, or that will be there eternally, as much as he did for those that are saved. A man that preaches this preaches the greatest absurdity possible, and not worthy of receiving a decent consideration from those that believe that Jesus came from heaven to do the will of God and has done it.

Notice his analysis of his primal ordinance: "Now if that man and that book, in that church, doing the primary work of saving souls, do not constitute an ordinance, etc." The preacher, the book, and the church doing the primary work. The preacher, the Bible and the church do the primary work, the first work, the chief work of saving souls. Here is Missionism in a nutshell. Now give us plenty of money.

Here are the three ordinances, a pool of water behind the preacher under the pulpit, a preacher preaching, and the table in front. What is that better than Catholicism? Suppose you were at Jerusalem on the day of pentecost, and saw Peter preaching would you have seen a baptistry under or behind his pulpit, and a table in front with the bread and wine on it as the ordinances. They went to the river or some other place to baptize. It is a modern convenience to have pools behind and under the pulpit.

Jesus appointed two ordinances—baptism and the Lord's Supper. He was himself baptized, and commanded his people to be baptized. He ate the Lord's Supper after the passover, and said to his disciples, "This is my body, take, eat. This is my blood, drink ye all of it." Here are the two commands. Baptism represent burial and resurrection. The Lord's Supper represents his body sacrificed for his people of which they eat and drink. But those already saved are baptized and eat and drink his supper.

The following is the reason the Recorder gives why they will not commune with the Primitive Baptists:

"Why do the regular or Missionary Baptists refuse to participate with the Primitive Baptists in the Lord's Supper? For the reason that the Primitive Baptists pervert and make void by their deadly doctrine of fatalism the first clause of Christ's great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." When our kirg bids them go and administer the first ordinance of the "preached Word" in every land, they stand still and spend enough time, means and effort in preventing others from going, to carry the gospel themselves to "every creature" in "all the world.

How can we consistently observe the all things, including the Lord's Supper, commanded in the last clause of the commission with those who so persistently refuse to carry out the first clause of the same, "Go ye into all world and preach the gospel?"

We hold that the reason we do not commune with the Missionaries is that they do not preach the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, and that faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God, or the word of the Lord which endureth forever. They do not preach the Christ of God, but they have an image of Christ which they preach: See Rev. 17:8. Rev. 19:19-20. Here is an image made to a beast that was, and is not, and yet is. He was, and then was slain, and yet lives. Here is an imitation of Christ, the devil's counterfeit, and all whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world wonder after this beast or his image.

If any come bringing not the doctrine of Christ receive him not into your house, nor bid him God speed.

The Missionary system is a cunning device of the devil to get money. Give us money enough, say they, and we will convert the world. This is the whip in the hand of their preachers to collect enormous sums of money. That first ordinance therefore of the system is adroitly framed to gather in the money, and they get it. They have their reward. But their money will perish with them, because they suppose the gift of God can be bought with money. P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—By request of the church I send the following minute to publish. Staunton River Union met with the arm of Union at Galilee on April 20th 1894, at the request of the members of said arm. Elders Wm. S. McDowell T. N. Walton and J. M. Harris were appointed a Presbytery to organize a church at Galilee. Elder McDowell Moderator and A. C. Owen Clerk. At the request of the members of said arm brother J. C. Shelhorse acted as spokesman. After being interrogated by Elder Harris finding them orthodox and endorsing the constitution and articles of faith and by-laws of Union church, and prayer by Elder Walton they were recognized as an independent body. They proceeded to elect Elder Wm. S. McDowell pastor of said church. Their monthly meeting is third Saturday and Sunday. Brother J. C. Shelhorse was chosen Deacon to be ordained next day which was done by Elders McDowell and Harris, at the same time they ordained brother William McDowell Deacon for union church.

ELD. WM. S. McDOWELL, Mod.
A. C. OWEN, Clerk.

SUMMER EXCURSION RATES.

(John Gill, Receiver.)

The Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad Co., will sell "Summer Excursion Tickets" from June 1st to Sept. 30th, 1894, inclusive, to all Seashore and Mountain Resorts in North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. These tickets will be good for return trip until October 31st, 1894, with privilege of stop over in each direction at all resort points.

W. E. KYLE,
General Passenger Agent.

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM R. MATTHEWS.

It is with a heavy heart that I pick up my pen to chronicle the sad death of William R. Matthews, who died at Butte City, Montana, May the 12th 1892, from injuries received by being struck by an electric car in Chicago Ill. while en route to that place. He was born in Franklin Co. Va. January 1812, moved to Carroll Co. Va. when a youth where he was married to Miss Nancy Williams who preceded him to the grave. Unto them were born seven children, five Sons and two daughters, of whom four sons and two daughters remain to mourn the loss of a dear father. He was a well informed man and interesting in conversation especially on the subject of religion, which his mind was more absorbed in than anything else. He had a good hope through grace in Christ, and was a firm believer in the doctrine of Salvation by grace unconditional, and unmerited on the sinner's part, but owing to some trouble among the churches he had never become a member; but we feel that he is now where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest. To his dear children we would say, don't grieve for him, although his body is lying beneath the sod in the far west that God whom he loved and trusted will bring him forth on the resurrection morn, clothed with immortality to sing the praise of Jesus with the redeemed in all eternity.

Dearest father, thou has left us,
E're we breathed our last farewell;
Who can tell the grief and sorrow
That within our bosoms dwell.

Dearest father, now cold and silent,
Thou art resting in the grave.
While we weep thy happy spirit
Has flown away to God who gave.

It is hard to part so sudden,
With those we love so good and true,
But our heavenly Father calls him,
To his happy home above.

Where we hope again to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
Then in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed.

E. E. LUNDY

MRS. NANCY MATTHEWS.

The subject of this notice was born in Carroll Co. Va. Oct. 5th 1821, died Sept. 28th 1890. She like her husband had not united with the church, but had an humble hope in Christ as her Savior, and peacefully fell asleep in the full triumphs of a living faith, leaving her children and friends to mourn their loss, but not without hope; for we believe he who brought Christ from the dead will bring her forth on the resurrection morn, clothed with the righteousness of Jesus to join the blood-washed throng that has gone before. Then Dear Children, weep not for mother, but look forward to the time of that glorious reunion when God's dear children shall meet around his throne in heaven to part no more, there in that happy land will be no tear shed for the loss of dear ones, but we can see Jesus as he is and be like him. I will now close with the beautiful lines of the poet Mrs. Mac Kay,

"A sleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep,
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes.

Asleep in Jesus, O how sweet,
To be for such a slumber meet,
With holy confidence to sing,
That death has lost his cruel sting.

Asleep in Jesus, peaceful rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest.
No fear, no wail shall dim that hour,
That manifests the Savior's power.

Asleep in Jesus, O for me,
May such a blissful refuge be,
Securely shall my ashes lie,
Waiting the summons from on high.

Asleep in Jesus, far from thee,
Thy kindred and their graves may be;
But there is still a blessed sleep
From which none ever wakes to weep.

E. E. LUNDY.

JOHN D. SMITH.

The subject of this notice was the Son of Thomas and Elizabeth Smith, and was born May the 22nd 1854, and died Jan. 3rd 1893, making his stay on earth 38 yrs. 7 months and 11 days. He was married to Dillie F. Camel with whom he lived pleasantly till death. In the year 1873, he received a hope in Christ, and in 1879 joined the church at Arbor where he remained a consistent member to the last. He served the church as clerk for several years, but finally resigned on account of disability from disease, being troubled with bronchitis for about 40 years of his life. Brother Smith was a plain man both in conversation and life, a good neighbor and kind to the poor, and mindful of his duty towards his pastor. He believed in old fashioned Baptists, and adherence to the "Old Landmarks," being jealous of anything that looked like a departure from the good old "way." For the last two years of his life he was disabled to labor, and bore his afflictions with patience and submission, being very little trouble to his family. He passed away as in a peaceful slumber, and his body was laid to rest in the old burial ground at Arbor, to await the "voice of Jesus to rend his tomb with sweet salvation in the sound." He (like all others) had his faults, but his sincerity, honesty of purpose and kindness will cause him to be long remembered by those left behind. He left a kind wife and five children to mourn their loss, besides numerous relatives and friends. May God bless them with a preparation for his heavenly Kingdom is our desire for Christ's sake.

Y. I. CHANDLER.

LOUIZA BROOKS.

BROTHER GOLD:—Please publish the obituary of our much loved sister Louiza Brooks, wife of brother William F. Brooks, and daughter of James and Sallie Hilson. Her father was a consistent member of the Primitive Baptists for many years. Her mother never united with the church, but was a strong believer. This dear sister was born August 9th, 1829, and departed this life November 23d, 1893, making her pilgrimage on earth 64 years 3 months and fourteen days. She was taken sick in October last with what the doctor called congestion of the stomach. She suffered much, but bore it with christian fortitude, never murmured or complained, often called on the Lord for mercy, and expressed no desire to get well, but often told them she should never be well again, that her work on earth was finished. These were the words of truth. She lingered 3 or 4 weeks ere the final summons came. Peaceful as an infant falleth asleep on its mother's bosom, did this dear one fall asleep in Jesus, and truly it can be said of her a good woman has passed away from earth. She possessed a loving nature, an amiable disposition, was generous almost to a fault; hence the needy never went away empty-handed. How desolate home is now that was made so musical by her kind voice. I feel that I can sympathize with them all, especially the bereaved husband and son, who still reside at the old homestead all alone, for most keenly do they realize that a loved one from earth is gone, a voice they loved is still. She leaves a husband, 4 children, (two of which with their father are members at the Baptists, where her membership was) a large circle of friends, together with the church to mourn her loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope, for we believe she is now enjoying that rest that remains to the people of God. Doubtless from a feeling sense of unworthiness she remained out of the church several years after she obtained a hope in Christ. She had long desired to be with the Baptists, and on Saturday December meeting 1888 offered, was received and baptized the next day by my husband Elder John B. Hardee. She went into the water with many fears and doubts, but came out with much rejoicing which lasted for several weeks during which time she felt like going from house to house to speak of the goodness and mercy of God. She was much afflicted, and almost deaf, could not hear the gospel preached, nevertheless it was with great delight that she attended her church meetings, and her seat was never vacant unless providentially hindered. I have often thought she manifested as much love for the brethren and sisters, and delighted as much in meeting with them as any sister I ever saw. Brother Gold, I feel that I have not words to pen down the merits and virtues of this precious sister, so will desist believing that she has entered that happy land where there will be no separation, no more sorrow, sickness, nor death, for God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. It is by the request of the bereaved husband, brother William F. Brooks that I have tried to write this brief, but sad sketch. May our heavenly father reconcile us all to the good of his will, and prepare us to meet on that happy shore, where parting will be no more is my prayer for Christ's sake.

JANE E. HARDEE.

ASENATH AARON HUNT.

My little sister Aaron was born June the 8th 1891, died Oct. 4th 1893, making her stay on earth 2 years and 5 months. She was a sweet little girl. She died of Pneumonia. She suffered much but bore it with patience, and was the best sick child I ever saw. She said when first taken sick that she was going to die. We would often ask her if she did not want to take her medicine and get well to play with her little sister, but she said she did not want to get well. Oh I can't say I wish her back amid the cares and troubles of this unfriendly world. Oh it was so hard to see her go, but the good and appointed time had come, and none could stay the cold, cold, hand of death. Had there have been ten thousand loving friends yearning to clasp the tender hand on recovery they would have all wished in vain. Why do we mourn when we know He is God and doeth all things well! Oh I have wished many a time that she could have been spared a little while longer, but No! the time had come. How helps poor mortals are. We too must go, and no one can stay us here. May we all be ready when the appointed time comes. Oh Mr. Gold, I believe that little Aaron is to-day in Heaven singing praise to God. Oh that we all may be prepared to meet her in Heaven is the prayer of her sinful sister.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we love is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

LETCHER CUMMINGS.

As brother Reid has written the obituary of our dear brother Letcher Cummings, I cannot refrain from writing a few lines in remembrance of that sweet one that has crossed over the cold waves of Jordan, and who is to-day basking in the ocean of God's eternal love. Oh, dear reader, my pen fails to express our feelings at this sad bereavement. But while we grieve here in this lonely world, we feel assured that he is in the heavenly Jerusalem, the paradise of God, with Jesus and his angels and the spirits of just men made perfect. He put all his trust in his Saviour, and as long as he could say a word he would bless and praise his holy name. Even when his tongue was getting thick and his eyes growing dim in death, he tried to get his trembling hands together, and said, "This is the God I am trying to worship." He took our dear old father's hand and said, "Pap, you are strong in the faith. There are few stronger than you." He always loved mother so well, and wanted her to stay by him as long as he knew anything, and his little wife that he loved so well. It seemed that he was warned of his death for several weeks before he died. He would sometimes get up at midnight and go to mother's room and tell her he could not sleep, and to get up and sing and pray with him. A while before he died he says, "Mother do not grieve for me. The Lord is with us both, and there is no one that has any brighter hope than you and I." He loved all his people, and the only thing that beset him to bother about was leaving us, but said we would all meet him in heaven. Oh, it seemed that we all loved him too well. He was our oldest brother, and was always so good and kind to us. I told him while on his death bed that I loved him more than I could tell. He said, "Oh, yes, Danie, I know you love me." He called Wil'a to him and said, "Wilda you have always been a good girl. Can't you give your heart to Jesus this morning?" He told us all to be careful, and not let our minds run too much after this world and its goods, and to stick close to our faith—not to turn either to the right or to the left. He sang several songs while in the midst of his sufferings, and told me to get the book and sing "The worth of truth no tongue can tell." He also sang "Home of the Soul," and a part of several beautiful songs. A little while before he died brother Ezra went to him and said, "Letcher don't you know me?" But the poor fellow could not speak, but took Ezra's hand and rubbed it and looked at him so pitiful and tried to smile, the brotherly love shining in his face. He wanted Ezra to know that he still knew and loved him. Oh how sad it is to stand by the bedside of our loved ones and to see their beautiful eyes growing dim in death, and the cold sweat upon their brow, and we so powerless to help them. But thanks be to our blessed Jesus there is a mighty arm that is stronger than ours, and on Him only can we cast our burden and say, "Not my will, but thine, Oh Lord, be done." I have made a feeble attempt to write and tell the dear brethren and sisters about our dear brother, and will say that the half has never been told, and I sincerely hope that when we are called from this world that each and every one of us may have that dying grace, and be able to say to those left behind, "Meet me in heaven."

We miss thee from our home, dear,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face;
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er,
On the border land we left them,
Soon to meet and part no more,
Far beyond this world of changes,
Far beyond this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved one
In our Father's mansion fair.

One by one earth's ties are broken
 As we see our love decay,
 And the hopes so fondly cherished
 Brighten but to pass away.
 One by one our hopes grow brighter
 As we near the shining shore,
 For we know across the river,
 Wait the loved ones gone before.

Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding,
 O'er the spoils that death has won,
 We would at this solemn meeting
 Calmly say, "Thy will be done."
 Though cast down, we are not forsaken,
 Though afflicted, not alone,
 Thon didst give and thou hast taken,
 Blessed Lord thy will be done.

Your sister in hope,
 DANIE L. ALTIER.

SUSAN ALICE FRY.

With the reflection of sympathy mixed with sadness, and in memory of our Decease sister Susan Alice Fry, wife of brother Henry Fry, of Stokes County, North Carolina, we write the short notice of her life and death. She was born August the 22nd 1860, was married July 1878, died December the 16th 1893. She left her husband and four children to mourn her loss: she was a pious woman, a good mother and companion, well reported of by all who knew her and so wonderful was the manifestation of God's love and mercy to her that she was enabled to behold him through the revelation of the Holy Spirit in a pardon of her sins as she expressed in the declaration of her hope, her faith being established in him as one that was able to forgive sin. She joined the Primitive Baptist church at Snow Creek Saturday before the fourth Sunday in April, 1893, was baptized on Sunday by the unworthy writer of this notice. She lived a consistent member, in peace and love with the church. She filled her seat at every meeting when she was able, thus the church has lost a good member from the militant fold, but we hope she is gathered unto her people in that which is triumphant and eternal. Much more might be said of her virtues and the sacred endearment to her church and people. We say to her husband and children, live in love and peace and may the Lord enrich your faith and make you heirs of his Kingdom that when life is spent you may find the strong arm of salvation in triumphant victory over death through the Lord Jesus Christ.

E. M. BARNARD.

PRUDENCE HASKINS.

Please publish the death of our beloved sister Prudence Haskin's, the wife of brother Elijah Haskin's. She was born June 8th 1829, died March 12th 1894, which makes her stay on earth 65 years, 9 months and 4 days. She joined the Primitive Baptist church in 1874, and was baptized 4th Sunday in April, by brother John Brinson. She well deserved the name of Prudence, having been a meek, quiet and Prudent woman, not only in her domestic life, but in the church also.

She leaves a kind husband, several children, and many friends to mourn their loss; but we hope their loss is her eternal gain.
 T. C. HART.

APPOINTMENTS

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

ELDER W. C. CLEVELAND.

Statesboro, Ga... Tuesday after 2d Sun in June
 Bethlehem..... Wednesday
 Lake..... Thursday
 Cedar Creek..... Friday
 Bay Branch..... Saturday
 Love's Chapel..... 3d Sunday
 Beard's Creek..... Monday
 Bethel..... Tuesday
 Belknap..... Wednesday
 New Deloaches..... Thursday
 Upper Black Creek..... Friday
 Fellowship..... Sat. and 4th Sunday
 Lane's..... Monday

Elder F. M. Stubbs will be with and convey him.

W. W. BARNES.

Washington..... 3d Sunday in June.
 Smithwick's Creek..... Monday
 Bear Grass..... Tuesday
 Great Swamp..... Wednesday
 Spring Green..... Thursday
 Hamilton..... Friday
 Conoho..... Saturday
 Kehukee..... Sunday
 Deep Creek..... Monday
 Lawrence's..... Tuesday
 William's..... Wednesday
 Whitakers..... Thursday
 South Key..... 1st Sat. and Sun. in July

E. C. SMITH.

New Chapel, Wayne Co. N. C. Friday, June 8.
 Cross Roads..... Saturday
 Beulah..... Sunday
 Smithfield..... Monday
 Clement..... Tuesday
 Reholboth..... Wednesday

Fellowship Thursday
 Middle Creek Friday
 Willow Spring Sat. and 3d Sunday
 Oak Grove Monday
 Durham Wednesday
 Eno Thursday
 Mt. Lebanon Friday
 Harmony Saturday
 Deep Creek 4th Sunday
 Gilliam's Monday
 Pleasant Grove Tuesday
 Wolf Island Wednesday

J. E. ADAMS.

Neuse, N. C. Sat. and 3d Sun. in June
 Durham Monday night and Tuesday
 Burlington Tuesday night & Wednesday
 Pleasant Hill Sat. & 4th Sunday
 Brother J. S. Norris will meet him at Statesville on Thursday. Brother W. R. Coffey will arrange appointments for him on week after 4th Sunday in Silver Creek Association and please meet him at Lenoir on Monday evening.

Hollow Spring 1st Sunday in July
 Fair View Monday night & Tuesday
 Cross Roads Wednesday
 Harden Shumates Thursday
 State Road Sat. & 2d Sunday
 Rock Springs Monday
 Mulberry Tuesday
 Fish River Wednesday
 Flat Top Thursday
 Fisher's Gap Friday
 Round Peak Saturday
 Zion's Hill 3d Sunday
 Chestnut Grove Monday
 Flower Gap Tuesday
 Stewart's Creek Wednesday
 Union Thursday
 Hogan's Creek Friday
 Cedar Hill Saturday
 Volunteer 4th Sunday
 Rock House Monday
 Piney Grove Tuesday
 Snow Creek Wednesday

Elder F. J. Stone will please arrange appointments for him from thence to Country Line Association at McRay's, Alamance co., N. C. Conveyance needed.

J. N. ROGERSON and HENRY PEAL.

Flatty Creek Wednesday, June 20
 Elim Thursday
 Providence Friday, Sat. & 4th Sunday
 Lebanon Monday
 Bethlehem Wednesday
 Concord Thursday
 Moratock Friday

Jamesville Sat. & 1st Sun. in July
 They will need conveyance. Will some brother or friend please meet them at Elizabeth City on Tuesday, June 19th.

A. N. HALL.

Dutchville Tuesday after 3d Sun. in June
 School House, (near brother Isaac HARRISS') Wednesday
 Brother Sykes will please meet him at Louisburg on Thursday.
 Peach Tree Sat. & 4th Sunday
 Nashville Tuesday

Mill Branch Thursday
 Falls Friday
 William's Saturday
 Lawrence's 1st Sunday in July
 Kehukee Monday
 Mt. Zion Wednesday
 Cross Roads Thursday
 Conoho Friday
 Hamilton 2nd Sunday
 Spring Grove Tuesday
 Little Creeks Wednesday
 Tarboro Thursday
 He will need conveyance.

J. A. BURCH.

Piney, N. C. Sat & 2d Sun. in June
 Flat Creek Monday
 Mountain Creek Tuesday
 Bear Creek Wednesday
 Liberty Hill Thursday
 Meadow Creek Friday
 Crooked Creek Sat. and 3d Sunday
 Watson's Monday
 Jerusalem Tuesday
 Lawyer's Spring Wednesday
 High Hill Thursday
 Thence to Pleasant Hill, Iredeil co., N. C., Sat. and 4th Sunday.

Conveyance needed when not on railroad I expect to be with him part of the time.

J. C. WILLIAMS.

C. D. BRAY AND R. W. DIX.

Mountain M. H. Va. Friday before 1st Sun. in July
 Strawberry Saturday
 Fairfield 1st Sunday
 Galilee Monday
 Union Tuesday
 Ephesus Wednesday
 Fairview Thursday
 Quaker Friday
 Morgan's Saturday
 Diamond Hill 2d Sunday
 Lionville Monday
 Cross Roads Tuesday
 Bethel Wednesday
 Little Creek Thursday
 Chestnut Friday
 Canton Creek Saturday
 Town Creek 3d Sunday
 River View Monday
 Reed Creek Tuesday
 Leatherwood Wednesday
 North Fork Thursday
 Friday

Sister Greenwood still has copies of Elder B. Greenwood's book for sale. Price 25 cents per copy. Address Mrs. B. Greenwood, Wilson, N. C.

FOR INDIGENT SUBSCRIBERS TO LANDMARK.

Caroline House, 1.00; Kader Lilly, 1.00.

FOR SISTER RUTH TAYLOR.

Mrs. Arisa Bryan, 1.00; Miss Emma S. Halstead, 1.00; J. H. Gooch, 1.00.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED May 23, 1894.	No. 23, Daily.		No. 4, Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon.....	11 52	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.....	1 32	10 30
Ar Tarboro.....	3 45
Lv Tarboro.....	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 10
Lv Wilson.....	2 05	11 10
Lv Selma.....	2 55
Lv Fayetteville	4 35	12 51
Ar. Florence..	7 25	1 00
			No. 47, Daily.
Lv. Wilson.....	3 15	A. M.
Lv Goldsboro..	3 05	6 35
Lv Magnolia..	4 15	7 25
Ar Wilmington	5 12	8 20
	P. M.		10 30

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED May 13, 1894.	No. 22, Daily.		No. 16, Daily.		No. 10, Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence.....	7 10	7 25
Lv Fayetteville	8 45	9 15
Lv Selma.....	12 05
Ar. Wilson.....	1 00	11 27
			No. 11, Daily.
Lv Wilmington	9 00	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia..	10 40	7 00
Lv Goldsboro..	12 00	8 33
Ar Wilson.....	12 45	9 45
			10 27
			No. 7, Daily.		No. 13, Daily.
Lv Wilson.....	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt..	1 10	11 27	10 32
	2 13	12 05	11 15
Ar Tarboro.....	3 45
Lv Tarboro.....	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt..	3 13	12 05
Ar Weldon.....	3 10	12 05	6 01
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	A. M.

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1:40 p. m., Halifax 4:00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4:55 p. m., Greenville 6:37 p. m., Kinston, 7:35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7:30 a. m., Greenville 8:22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11:00 a. m., Weldon 11:30 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7:00 a. m. Arrives Parmele 8:40 a. m.; Tarboro 9:50; returning leaves Tarboro 4:40 p. m., Parmele

6:10 p. m. arrives at Washington 7:35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5:00 p. m., Sunday 3:00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9:20 p. m., 5:20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5:30 a. m., Sunday 9:30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 12:42 a. m. and 11:45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6:45 a. m., arriving Southfield, N. C., 7:30 a. m. Returning, leaves Southfield, N. C., 5:00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9:30 a. m.

Trains on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4:20 p. m., arrives Nashville 5:05 p. m., Spring Hope 5:30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5:00 a. m., Nashville 8:15 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9:15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6:30 a. m.; arrive Dunbar 7:45 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6:30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5:00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Trains on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 11:00 a. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 1:00 p. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE

Gen'l Mgr.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMBERTON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Marocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Marocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connerville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connerville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.
Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No 1			No 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv		7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		10 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv		10 27 a m
3 14 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv		11 45 a m
1 27 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		1 43 a m
12 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		2 15 p m
12 52 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		2 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		3 15 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Cov. & W. Cove.....Ar		4 30 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Cov. & W. Cove.....Lv		4 31 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv		5 04 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		6 24 p m
No 3			No 4
5 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv		6 25 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv		7 37 a m
6 08 p m	Ar.....Red Spring.....Lv		8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv		9 14 a m
4 40 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9 35 a m
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday.			No 16 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday.
5 35 p m	Ar.....Rainsent.....Lv		6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		8 40 a m
3 10 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		9 25 a m
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday.			No 16 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday.
2 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar		11 50 a m

Train No 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, Gen'l Mang'r.
W. E. KYLE, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1888. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,
WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

JUNE 15, 1894.

NO. 15.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

JRCongleton 1894

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

JUSTIFICATION.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I received a letter from Pine Level, N. C., without any signature signed by the party writing it, requesting my views upon 1st Cor. 3d chapter, 16th verse. The person writing the letter says he is not a member of the Baptists, but a believer in the doctrine held by them and contended for in the LANDMARK. I first thought I would not try to answer the request, but after thinking over the same I concluded to write such views as presented themselves to my mind on the subject contained in the text. I will say in the way of introduction to the party making the request, that he need not be ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. The text reads, "And without controversy great is the mystery of Godliness. God manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, believed on in the world, received up into glory." The text itself in the introduction precludes controversy, therefore the natural mind of man is excluded in the contemplation of the subject. As the subject is presented as a mystery which can only be known as revealed by the Spirit of God, no man can know Jesus except the Father which sent him reveal him unto them. Natural men only know him as they did in the days of his flesh, as one of the prophets, as Elias, or Jeremiah, or of like order. The Apostles themselves only knew him by revelation as the Son of God manifest in the flesh, for Jesus said unto them, "Blessed art thou Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father in heaven." Thus we see the mystery of God manifest in the flesh. It is also written, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things that God has prepared for them that love him." No wonder the world often wants to know why we do love our Jesus so. We cannot ourselves explain to them the reason so that they could understand it, no more than we could tell what natural love is composed of. We know it to be affection that controls us, and draws us to the object of that love, but to define it we cannot come any nearer than the poet has described in the following verse:

"Love is something so divine,
Description would but make it less,
'Tis what we know but can't define,
'Tis what we feel but can't express."

This also is a mystery undefinable, inexpressible. Thus in the same light spiritually is the mystery of Godliness, God manifest in the flesh. Only by revelation can we see, feel and enjoy the love of Jesus as it pleases God to reveal him to us, as the way of salvation through faith in him as our Savior and Redeemer. For without faith it is impossible to please God, and without faith justification is impossible, for you must believe that he is the Justifier of the ungodly. No man can stand before divine justice unless he stands there justified. The very presence of that judgment seat would consume him in the presence of God. He must stand there justified. The old servant of God, Job, asks the question, "How can man be just with God? If he washes himself in snow water and makes himself ever so clean, yet he will plunge him into the ditch, and he abhors himself in dust and ashes." Thus the testimony of Job sets aside the popular notion that man can by obedience merit the favor of God. The world preaches the doctrine of godliness by the works of the creature, and that men are justified by their good works. The Apostle Paul says, "By the works of the law no flesh can be justified in the sight of God. Therefore justification does not come in that way according to Scripture testimony. I am aware I am on a particular point of doctrine which divides the professed religious denominations of our day, and makes so unpopular the doctrine held by Old Baptists, that it is not of him that willeth, but of God that showeth mercy, and that justification is entirely in a spiritual sense. The Apostle says Jesus was justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, believed on in the world, received up into glory. Was then Jesus justified in the flesh? If so why did he suffer and die upon the cross? Certainly his life in the flesh was one of perfect obedience, and divine justice demands no more. He kept the law perfect in every point and made it honorable, yet divine justice demanded his life. Angels witnessed the temptation in the Mount, and rolled back the stone from the tomb. All nature bowed, and darkness overspread the heavens at that eventful scene when the Son of Man was crucified. Let the apostle explain it: "If the Spirit of Him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you."—Roman 8:11. "Therefore brethren we are debtors not to the flesh to live after the flesh, for if ye live after the flesh ye shall die, but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the body ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God are the sons of God."—12 and 13th verses. With the foregoing Scripture there seems to be but one way whereby man can be just with God, and that way is under the new covenant God made with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, in the 31st chapter of Jeremiah, 31st to 35th verses. We have a description of the new covenant which reads, "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of Egypt, which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith the Lord. But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord. I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God, and they shall be my people; and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother saying, know the Lord; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord. For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." Under this new covenant justification seems possible. Job, under the old covenant, could not see how man could be just with God, for the law said, pay me that thou owest. But under the new covenant which I understand to be God manifest in the flesh, or Jesus in you the hope of glory, justification seems in reach of every believer in Jesus. If it is the pleasure of God to put his law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, the work is of God and not of man, therefore the creature is subject to the power of God and is justified in Spirit because God has wrought this great work in him. The apostle declares who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth, who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea that hath risen again. Jesus condemned sin in the flesh when he arose a mighty conqueror over death, hell and the grave. Justification in its fullest sense stood before the throne of heaven manifest in the person of Jesus. Justified in Spirit he could appear before angels, and before God, having fulfilled all the requirements of divine justice that rested upon him as the head of the body, his church, and every believer on him in the world. He could justly ascend up to glory in the presence of his Father, and say, "Father here am I and the children thou hast given me." Just so is the experience of every believer in Jesus. His justification is not in the works of the creature, but in the new covenant of mercy, the work of God putting his law in his inward parts, and writing it in his heart. God accepts his own work, and divine justice approves it. Though the sinner be ever so guilty and black with crimes and disobedience in the flesh, and a subject of death under the old covenant, yet under the new covenant he is made by the power of God a subject of life and immortality, by the working of that covenant in his heart, wherein he is justified in Spirit in believing on the Son of God as his Savior and Redeemer and his hope beyond this vale of tears. This view of the subject is opposite to the general view entertained by the religious world. It cuts off all creature worth or merit, it destroys the works of man, for the new covenant says, "They shall no more teach every man his neighbor and his brother saying, know the Lord; for they shall know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them." Thus all the works of men are excluded under this covenant. They cannot stand before God justified in Spirit, for their works are not spiritual but natural, the works of the creature which God will not accept. The Apostle declares by the deeds of the law no flesh can be justified in the sight of God. Brother Gold, I have run over this subject a little at a time while at work in my office. My views may be somewhat disconnected, yet I have tried to give what I understand contained in the text, as the subject is a mystery only known by revelation: Perhaps it would be interesting to the readers of the LAND-MARK for Elders Gold or Lester to write upon the same subject, as they are gifted in the things of the kingdom, and not so mixed up with things of this world as I am.

In conclusion I will say to enquirer who wrote the letter, and who withheld his name, that if he believes the doctrine held by Old Baptists, and is an enquirer after the mysteries of godliness, and loves the people that preach and contend for the new covenant of grace, and has the Spirit of that new covenant written in his heart, the best advice I can give him is to show his faith by his works by going to that people and telling them what the Lord has done for his soul. Faith without works is dead; that is if a man says he believes and does not manifest that belief by proving it before God and man, his belief does not amount to much. Jesus has said, "He that denies me before men, him will I deny before my Father in heaven." May God of his abounding mercy reveal to the subjects of his love Jesus the way of salvation, and the justification of the sinner before God.

Affectionately yours,
JOSEPH BROTHERS.

Alexandria, Va.

A STRANGER.

I am a stranger to myself. Why I am as I am I cannot tell. I have nothing on my mind at the present that troubles me only that ever present feeling that I am a sinner, yet there is a feeling of loneliness. This feeling I cannot describe. It makes me feel to be one alone. I see others moving about and cannot discern in them any signs of this feeling. Sometimes it takes me in the midst of good company when it would seem that I ought to be enjoying myself. This makes me feel to be a stranger and among other things makes me feel to be one alone.

For sometime past I have had much trouble for certain causes, but those troubles are like many others, numbered with the things of the past, and it seems that I should be rejoicing because the Lord has remembered me and delivered me, and caused that the things which troubled me should be so agreeably settled, and that without loss to me or the churches. This does indeed comfort me much and yet there is a void feeling within. As I have been much alone to-day I have been made to search my own heart and life and I can see no good in either. All is sin and sinful. Now

I am made to think why am I given the privilege to live or why does our Lord let me live seeing I am of no profit? One said in my presence, "We should work for the better looking forward to our reward." I was made to feel that if the Lord ever took me to heaven in eternal glory that it would not be a reward for what I have done, am doing or can ever do. I feel that His mercies in the past are so many and so wonderful that it will take all this life and eternity to praise Him, and yet I shall not be able to reward Him, therefore what I receive of the Lord I do not receive as a reward only as a reward to our blessed Lord for what he has done. This sinful heart of mine deserves a reward, but it is eternal death. I trust that I know this by experience. Now if I hope it must be in God's eternal mercy. No doubt my labors are as heavy as the majority of our ministers, and yet our Lord does not owe me anything. I have often felt the power of the language of Paul, "I am debtor both to Greek and Barbarian etc." "Therefore I am ready to preach the gospel etc." By paying a debt no man brings another under any obligation nor in debt to. Him, but has only done what true honesty required of him. So if by divine grace we have been called to the work of the ministry and our God has freely delivered unto us a word for any people we are debtors until we shall have delivered that word. This is why God's ministers are burdened at times and become brethren with Jeremiah, "The word of the Lord was a burning fire shut up in my bones and I was weary with forbearing and could not stay."

There is a necessity in this. This is the kind of gospel that Paul was not ashamed of. When we have preached the word thus shut up within us we do not feel that God owes us anything neither do His people owe us anything, for the word we have preached belongs to them through Christ and we have no right to charge others for their property.

God's ministers are a set of strangers on the earth. They are ignorant for they know not how to preach, they are weak and have to go as the Lord carries them. Another thing is very strange. When they get there they do not know what they are going to preach. They have been impressed and yet nothing in particular has been told them to say. As Moses was dependent for words to speak before Pharaoh, so are God's servants dependent for words to speak unto His people. Ministers are as ignorant as other men and know not what the children of God need just at that time, therefore they cannot fix up their sermons ahead. God knows what his children need just at this time and He also knows just how to give it to them. If this were left to us the food would be fixed up wrong and would not do good. Our God does not always give us just what we want for He knows what we need and gives us that even though it appears to be very much against us. I know that things have been given to me that I could never have made up my mind to have accepted, but the first I knew it was there and was mine. Sometimes I have tried to throw away such blessings but have never been able to do, and afterwards I have become so attached to them that they were worth more than all the world to me. When such impressions have come on me and I have felt that they were for the brethren I had such a feeling of unrest that I had to seek peace by delivering the message. These messages do not always set well at first with the brethren for it may be different from an opinion of theirs but that does not lessen the ministerial obligation. It may even bring to him bitter persecutions and he may have to suffer the cold shoulder of his brethren, but yet he is under obligations to his divine Master and must serve Him. Here is where we often learn to endure hardness as good soldiers and learn the burden of the word of the Lord. If one spends his life preaching and meets with no offence he may readily conclude that he is not preaching the cross and his preaching is of no effect, not Christ like. The minister should be diligent even if all men hate him for Christ's sake. It appears that Paul felt this when he felt that he had become the enemy of his brethren because he told them the truth.

If we be the servants of God we love our brethren even though they reject us, and therefore instead of wishing to cast them out and kill them we feel to pray for them even though they do despitely use us.

I have often thought of the plain demonstration of our Lord to His disciples when they were so much interested about their own greatness. He took a little child and set him in the midst of them and said, "Except ye be converted and become as this little child ye cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven." These twelve were the chosen witnesses and yet they needed to be converted. They had big ideas of their Master's Kingdom and each one wished to be nearest Him, but they knew not what must take place to bring them there. That was the strange part: Their ideas at that time were somewhat like the common idea of the religious world. But the Lord teaches them a lesson they had never learned before. Be a little child. Little children fall out sometimes, but they soon are as friendly as ever and forget that there was ever any trouble. Big children are not that way. They hold malice and get to hating one another. God's children are much in the flesh when they are thus and need conversion. Then it is best to be as little children and forgive all offences. A sister had once been hurt by some members of the church, and I asked her one day how she felt towards them and she said, "I don't remember it against them now." I thought of the covenant of mercy, "I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins will I remember no more." This was indeed true forgiveness. This morning as I sat and thought of the exceeding sinfulness of my sin I was made to feel and yet do feel to forgive in this same manner all sins that have been committed against me, for so do I trust that my Master has done to me, and my sins against Him are much greater than all the world can ever commit against me.

May the Lord bless us who are strangers in this world and make us little children in His Kingdom is my prayer in the name of Christ. Yours in a good hope through grace.

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I have just returned from the Union Meeting at Indian Creek. We had able preaching both days, but my cold heart did not enjoy the rich food as I have enjoyed such before.

The command is, "Awake, Oh thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light," but it seems that I have no power to awake myself when I sleep; hence I conclude that the call must come from Him whose all-seeing eye never sleeps, before

I can awake from this lethargy into which I have fallen.

Last Sunday was our own union meeting, at (Flat Wood), and both days as we gathered around the table to commemorate the death and sufferings of our dear Lord and Master, I felt that I was too vile and impure to sit with the other members. I had no desire though, to be anywhere else but at their feet. I think I could not have gone out and engaged with the world in making a display of anything worldly. I could not enjoy the companionship of the many friends I had on the meeting ground, for my mind would have been on my own vile and sinful condition. It is painful to me to see brethren and sisters sit out in the yard during service. I wish the Primitive Baptists could be a shining light in this dark and benighted world. If we put the candle under the bushel what benefit is it? Those in the house cannot see the light, much less those without. There are many children who are out of the church, wandering and groping, trying to find the right way. If the members of the church are not letting their light shine, who knows that they are the church? Let your light so shine before men that others seeing your good works and be constrained to glorify God.

When I commenced writing I had not intended drifting on the subject of duty, for I feel the need of being taught and my great inability to teach others. I thought I would only tell you of some of the pleasant meetings we have been having. Elders Hurst and Wilson, of Virginia, were with us a few weeks ago. We enjoyed their companionship and their preaching very much, and hope they will come again.

Brother Gold, can you tell us how sister Ruth Taylor is. We want to hear from her. We miss her precious letter through the LANDMARK. In hope, a little sister,

S. E. BROYLES.

Wikel, W. Va.

Remarks :

Sister Ruth Taylor is much improved in health. When she sees this I hope she will answer, if able, so we may all read from her very gifted pen. P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—As I am alone this evening I have concluded to spend a portion of the time in writing to you. It has been said of all poverty that of the mind is the most deplorable. I realize that I am dependent upon an all-wise and all-powerful God for even a fruitful mind. I have been thinking of some of the vanities of human life. In youth we look forward, and the future appears calm and tranquil, but as we grow older life changes its appearance, and to all it is full of work and anxieties and painful scenes. Faith alone can see the star which is to guide us to a better land. If we have been termed pilgrims and life a journey then we may add that the christian pilgrimage far surpasses all other.

We read that God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in Spirit and in truth. We, ignorant of ourselves, may ask in prayer for what would be to our injury which God denies us for our own good.

It has been said that christianity itself was a religion of sorrow. It was born in sorrow, in sorrow it was tried, and by sorrow it was made perfect, its Author was a "Man of sorrow and acquainted with grief." We should not be dismayed at the trials of life, for out of much tribulation are we to enter the kingdom, and we should remember that "God works all things after the counsel of his own will."

In the light of eternity does it make any difference whether our life was passed in the comforts of wealth or in struggling for the necessities of life? We are all equal in that. That is the common lot of us all, and often in reflective moments we ponder the question of immortality, but if enabled to see clearly under the guiding light of christianity death has no terrors to the christian. I have heard some express a desire to depart. Who would live always, away from his God, away from yon heaven, that dear, blest abode.

Brother Gold, please give your views on these words: "The testimony of Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy."

I noticed several lists of appointments in the LANDMARK for preachers in North Carolina, and looked in vain to see if some of them were coming to Virginia. How glad I would be if some of them would come to see us. I hope to meet you again at our next association at Stonewall, Providence permitting.

Yours in hope of future rest,

ANNIE ROBERTSON.

Mt. Cross, Va.

A TEMPESTUOUS STORM.

ELDERS GOLD LESTER, DEAR BROTHERS AND TO THE HOUSEHOLD OF FAITH:—I feel that I want to tell you what I have been made to pass through of late, if the Lord will enable me to do so. Oh, I feel that I have passed through the worst scenes of my life. Oh the waves and billows that did roll over me. I felt that I would sink underneath, but I know underneath are His everlasting arms, if not I would fall and faint by the way. The chastening rod has been laid on me heavy to bring me nearer to my God, yes nearer to an all-wise, eternal God who doeth all things well, and none can stay His hand. Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, Oh ye my friends, for the hand of the Lord hath touched me. None but those who have been through the fiery furnace can know and realize the intense sufferings. How the fiery darts did pierce my very soul. Did not our Savior fast forty days and forty nights? I feel that I have been fasting with Him. He had strength to say get behind me Satan, and all was well. How furious are His temptations. He showed me many things. I felt that I had no strength and gave up all for loss, felt that I was without God and without hope in the world. I did not feel worthy of a name among God's dear people. I felt that I was deceived and had deceived them. I could say with Paul, Oh wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I felt too wretched to die, or too wretched to live. My sins rose before me as mountains, and were shown to me as scarlet. I feel that my faith has been tried as Job's was. These words came to me, purge you with hyssop to make you whiter than snow, cleanse you to bring you forth as gold, bright angel as the morning light. Brother Gold, that night we stayed at Elder Roberson's and brother Lester preached in Robersonville not a wink did I sleep, pleading to the Lord nearly all night long for mercy for fear I would do something to mar my brethren or sisters' feelings. I know what a state I was in, but if I erred I ask forgiveness, for surely I was not myself. For two long weeks no rest could I find day nor night. Some of my friends around pronounced me insane. Indeed I was in one sense. I felt that I could witness with Job. I felt that all earthly kindred had forsaken me, and had one of his miserable comforters to contend with. About twelve months ago I was impressed to pray around the fireside. My impressions grew stronger and stronger. I tried to ask the Lord if it was from the right spirit to make it plain to me. These words came to me. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, and that I would be blest. I then tried to ask Him to help me to discharge my duty by opening the way, and I sincerely believe He did, for I felt that I was guided by the Holy Spirit. These words were presented to me. The Spirit maketh intercessions for the prayer, and pray without ceasing. The chapter that my eyes fell on was Job humbly Himself before God, the fortieth chapter, and was given light in reading it. I felt that I was very near my Savior and right before Him to do what He would have me to do. My head seemed to be bowed down just before prayer, and on raising it I viewed myself with my Savior. Right then and there I was made to rejoice and glory in my afflictions. The night that my convictions came back I felt that I was very near death's dark door. These words came to me, Think it not strange of these things, they are to try you. I will repeat some Scripture and comforting words the Lord gave me to comfort me; Killed all the day long as sheep for the slaughter; How can we that are dead to sin live any longer therein; We are more than conquerors through him that loved us; Death swallowed up in victory. When these words came to me what a different feeling I had in my breast. I cannot express it, and "Oh ye of little faith, why doubtest thou?" So I have all powers and none can pluck them out of my hand. Cast down but not forsaken. But I was so surrounded by temptations I could grasp none of those precious promises, and now I am groping my way in the dark, and can comprehend no light. How little do we know what is laid up in store for us. Oh that I was as in days past when the candle of the Lord shined upon me. I do so much need his presence to guide my roving feet. Oh if I knew where I might find him I would come even to his seat.

The Hymn that came to me was, Come thou fount of every blessing. I felt that I could sing this verse and realize its meaning, "Jesus sought me when a stranger, Wandering from the fold of God, He to rescue me from danger, Interposed His precious blood." How slothful I am in learning wisdom's ways, but this lesson was so strange and hard for me to understand. I guess I have said enough, but the half has not been told. Do not my correspondents all wonder at my long silence, but I hope to be able to correspond with each one separately soon. I will be glad to hear from them. I humbly ask the prayers of all in my behalf. I remain as ever your little sister in trouble, trials and tribulations, but hoping for a better resurrection.

MAGGIE A. STATON.

Remarks :

(Rom. 8:36.)

By the Scripture that rests in ones mind as a measuring reed each child of God is located : by the reproof that pierces him for disobedience are the joints and marrow severed so there is no standing. If one is brought to the banqueting house then his mouth is filled with the best wine that goeth down sweetly causing the lips of them that sleep to speak: if he puts his light under a bushel, or hides his talent in the earth, then he is cast into outer darkness. In the case of our dear sister there is an illustration of suffering with Christ that is a sure mark of God's people. Jesus was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and he opened not his mouth : "So the people of God are as sheep, not goats or swine—that innocently and meekly suffer and endure. Killed all the day long, or all through this mortal life, they suffer with Christ, follow him, are crucified with him. If we suffer with him we shall also be glorified together or with him. Heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ if we suffer with him. Then how blessed it is to suffer with Christ and fill up the measure of the suffering of Christ in our mortal flesh. We that believe are always delivered unto death that the life of Christ might also be made manifest in our mortal flesh. Dying, but behold we live, more than conquerors are we through him that loved us.

But our sister felt no comfort while such a Scripture, "Killed all the day, as sheep for the slaughter," was dwelling in her heart. Of course she must feel as one killed or there would have been no power of that Scripture to her. To drink the spirit of a Scripture one must feel what that Scripture expresses. If the words, "pray without ceasing" were on one's mind, and there was no prayer in the heart where would be the power of that Scripture? If the phrase, "Bless the Lord O my soul," should be in my heart without any desire to bless the Lord also in my heart where would be the power of that Scripture? So that the Scriptures locate and measure the children of God, and as prophecies show where we are, and what we are. If we never have any Scriptures in our hearts what proof have we that we are God's people? Some people seem to think that no one but a preacher ever has a Scripture on his mind, and that if a Scripture is given to one that is a sure sign he is a preacher—not so. Paul says to those not preachers, "Let the word of God dwell in you richly in all wisdom."—Col. 3: 16. P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER P. D. GOLD, IN CHRIST I HOPE:—I embrace the present opportunity of writing to you. I am now about 49 years old, was raised by Methodist parents, and my surroundings were about all Methodist, and I had been taught in my young days that this Old Primitive Baptist doctrine was very dangerous, and that it was only poor, weak-minded and ignorant people that believed in such stuff. But how different when I got among them and heard them preach. I came to this country in the year of 1866 to live, and when I went to hear the Baptists found some of the finest speakers that I had ever heard, but that hateful doctrine that they preached I could not understand and I fought it, and said all manner of hard things against it, pointed the finger of scorn, trampled upon their feelings in many ways, and as Saul was on his way to Damascus to persecute the saints, and was turned right about, so I went about ten years ago to an Association, at old North Fork, and there heard brother L. J. Taylor preach, and there I was convinced that my way of thinking about the matter was wrong. From that time I began to think about my real condition in life. For some two years or more I was in trouble about my own future welfare. I went to hear the Baptists preach, but could not understand it. I tried to read the Bible, but all seemed to be against me. I would often go off into some place where I thought no one could see or hear me, and there would get down upon my knees and try to beg God to forgive my many sins, but all seemed to be in vain. There seemed to be a heavy burden in my breast that seemed to weigh me down until I could hardly stand it. I tho't that I wanted to be a christian, but I would go off with the world and engage in the many dissipations of life, to get rid of those feelings. I soon decided in my mind that I had heart disease, and that I should not live long. It seemed to grow worse, and nothing that I could do or say seemed to bring any relief to me. I often felt that I wanted to be alone and try to pray, but did not wish for any one to see or hear me. For two years I was in this condition, believing as I did that I had some breast complaint, and very soon I would have to part with my family and friends and be lost forever. About that time I was taken down on a bed of affliction. It seemed to me that I could see I was fast going. Brother Gold, I saw that I was a lost and ruined sinner without hope or mercy, and that I had tried all of my strength. I had prayed every prayer that I knew, and could find no relief, and after I had been on the bed for some four weeks, I could not sleep nor eat. I saw plainly as I thought that I could not live but a few more days. One evening when my family and visiting friends were all out of the room, I got off my bed down on the floor in the lowest humble manner that I knew how, and all that I could say was, "Lord be merciful to me a poor sinner, save, or I perish, and while there in that condition I felt relieved of that burden that had been weighing so heavily in my breast. I was then made to rejoice for his having done so much for me, and these old despised Baptists that I had often hurt the feelings of came before my mind, and then I wanted to take them by the hand, get down on my knees at their feet and ask them to forgive me for all that I had said about them. Since that time about eight years I have lived out of what I believed to be my duty, in not having taken up my cross and gone to the church and being baptized, until Saturday before the fifth Sunday in April 1894 I went to North Fork, and there met a large crowd, and our beloved Paster W. S. Minter, and after he had preached a very able sermon and opened the door of the church for the reception of members, and I with three others went forward and told them what we hoped the Lord had done for us. We were received and next day were baptized, by brother W. S. Minter, and then our beloved brother preached one of the best sermons of his life. His text was, For the promise is unto you and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. Brother Gold, I stayed away just as long I could. I feel to have suffered and was whipt with many stripes for a neglect of my duties.

What has become of brother I. J. Taylor? We think that when a farmer goes out and sows his seed that he should go again to see after the harvest. Yours in hope,

W. S. JOHNSON.

EXPERIENCE.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:— I have been thinking for a long time I would write out my little experience, but feeling so unworthy have neglected it until now; but if the Lord will guide my feeble pen, and give me language to express my feelings I will make the attempt. I was born in Martin Co. N. C. My parents were Kenneth and Margaret Hyman, I being the youngest of four children. We moved in Halifax Co. N. C. when I was about three years old. When at the age of seven or eight years I became troubled about my future happiness, felt like I wanted to go to heaven when I died, and would get off alone and get on my knees and beg the Lord to have mercy on me. As I grew older my troubles would return again. I did not know what was the matter with me, thought I was too young to get religion, wanted to enjoy the world a while longer, thinking when I got older I would lead a better life. I was married to M. L. Bell at an early age. He being a very kind, industrious husband, thought it my duty to do all I could to help him, as we wanted to accumulate something for ourselves and family. I became careless about attending church, did not have but very little interest about it. Sometimes I would think it was my duty to go and it did seem like something would tell me I did not have time. Some time after that I became troubled again, my husband got in debt; land and stock and every thing was taken from us and we were left dependent with seven girls and two sons, the youngest son being deformed. Brother Gold, I never can tell you my troubles. If any poor soul ever tried to pray I did. Many sleepless nights did I spend trying to beg the Lord for mercy, felt like I was without God and without hope. I had depended on self and now had lost all of this world's goods, and the Lord had forsaken me. Sometimes I would think it was no use for me to try to pray again, felt like it was a sin for me to take his precious name in my sinful lips, but could not help it. Very unexpectedly it pleased the Lord as I humbly hope to comfort my troubled soul. I retired one night not expecting anything, but trouble, and it seems I was carried to a large grove, and there was a large congregation of people there, and they were singing and praying to comfort me, but it all did not seem to do me any good. My husband was standing a little distance from me. I went to him and told him I was going home. He told me to go on and he would come. I told my children to go with me and as we started I thought death struck me and I thought I was dying as fast as I could. As I was bringing my last breath a bright light shone around me. I thought what could it mean. It did not seem like I had been asleep. I thought it was all too good for me, but was made to rejoice from these words. In this world you shall have tribulations, but in me peace, and such a sweet love I felt in my bosom I never felt before. I told the children the next morning I felt like the Lord would take care of us. I also felt like I had a home in heaven, a house not made with hands. This seemed to affect them very much, especially Lucy, next to the oldest daughter, as the tears were streaming down her cheeks. This good and happy time lasted for several days, and when I would think of my past trouble I would feel such a change I could not help slapping my hands and praising the Lord. I then felt like I wanted to join the church, but was afraid I was deceived and would deceive those good people whom I loved so well; consequently I kept putting it off, thinking sometimes I never would join rather than deceive them. Another deep trouble fell on me so there was no peace day nor night, crying and grieving all the while. Sometimes I could think it was for my disobedience. If any of my family got sick I felt like the Lord was going to take them from me because I did not comply with my duty. I tried to pray to the Lord, if it was my duty to go to church, to make it plain to me in some way. As I was passing from one room to the other one evening these words came to me "The Spirit and the Bride say come." I got the bible and thought I would see if I could find it, thought if I could find it I could tell what it meant, but could not find it, and thought surely it was not intended for me, and was in deep trouble again; but could not help from begging the Lord to show what it meant. I got up one morning feeling better than usual, got my book and the first words I saw was the verse, "The Spirit and the Bride say come, and let him that heareth say come, and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will let him take the water of life freely." I closed my book and said it is enough, and felt the trouble going off of me, and it seemed like the Saviour was at my right side so near me I could almost touch the hem of his garment, and commenced singing.

"How sweet the name of Jesus sounds, etc."

For indeed and truth I felt like my spirit had been wounded, and my breast troubled. I sang it until I shed sweet tears of joy, and I could again rejoice. I then promised the Lord I would go to the church the first opportunity, putting it off until the third Saturday in August 1893, I went to Kehukee and one lady went up and joined. I wanted to go but could not make up my mind until Sunday morning when the invitation was given at the water I went up and told them a part of my feelings and was received. A young lady joined also, and all three of us were baptized by our beloved pastor Elder A. J. Moore. It was a happy time with me, felt like I had got home and all was well, for I had done my duty. I never regretted it, and often think why did I stay away so long. If any one should receive any comfort from reading these lines give God all the praise, for I don't feel worthy of the least of God's blessings. Brother Gold, I have written this to relieve my mind, do with this as you think best; if you see fit to publish it do so, if not cast it aside. Your unworthy sister.

LIZZIE BELL.

EDITORIAL.

Brother J. H. M. Cliett, of Ga., requests my view of the qualifications of deacons.

1st. What is the use of Deacons? The demand for Deacons arose soon after the setting up of the church on the day of pentecost. Let it be observed that all the church of Christ needs was called for while the Apostles lived as men. Occasions arose of purpose that called for all that was needed to perfect the saints in the order of the church.

From the first special care was observed in supplying the needs of the poor. In the daily distribution of food, while all things were held in common, complaint was made of the neglect of some—that partiality was shown to the Hebrew against the Greek. The Apostles said, It is not proper that we should neglect preaching to attend to this matter. Therefore choose you out from among yourselves seven men whom we may set over this business; but as for us we will wait on our ministering in the word continually.

Then the object or use of Deacons is clearly defined, namely to attend to and manage the secular affairs of the church, or the matter of serving tables.

Some people seem to think there is no need of food, money, clothing, etc., in the church of God. But that is a mistake born of covetousness or stinginess. There are things that church members as sons and daughters of Adam need. They need food, raiment and shelter. Preachers need things to eat and wear just as other people need them—their families need them just as the families of other people need them. The poor of the church need food and raiment, shelter, etc., as other people need them. Now it is not proper for preachers to quit the word of God and serve such tables, or attend to these natural wants or demands. Therefore Deacons were chosen for this business.

2nd. They were to be chosen by the church out of their own number of such men—not women—as were of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, and to be appointed by the Apostles over this business.

Paul to Timothy sets forth more fully the qualifications of such men. Likewise must the deacons (or like the bishops) be grave, or serious and truthful—sober—not greedy of filth lucre—holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience. Their wives also must be grave, sober, faithful in all things—the husband of one wife. Their wives must have the qualities here described. Is it necessary for a deacon to be married? It says, Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, so it says a bishop must be the husband of one wife. But Paul himself was not married. The meaning is he must not have a plurality or wives, so a deacon must not have a plurality of wives. So that the prohibition of more wives than one is the matter considered.

If a deacon or preacher is married it must be to only one wife. So that wife must be grave, truthful, faithful. A man that would marry an unwise, unfaithful woman is unfit for a deacon. A woman could be unfaithful and be a church member—and she might be faithful and not be a church member. The important thing is to be faithful. My observation is that unfaithfulness is oftener found in the deacons than in their wives. If a deacon thinks his duty consists only in serving at communion he has not been faithful. He has important duties to discharge. The qualifications of a deacon show that his duties are serious. Next to a pastor of a church his work is most important, yet their work is different. The deacons attend to the temporal needs of the brethren that should be looked after, such as the poor of the church or serving tables. Good deacons look after the helpless, destitute members, and after the needs of the pastor of the church; and see that strife, troubles and confusion are kept out of the church so that all are in peace and able to eat or are well.

So they attend to the finances of the church or the business matters. The pastor should not be cumbered with such things. He is to feed the flock with the sincere milk of the word, or to preach the word, and not to serve tables.

P. D. G.

ALMOST PERSUADED

Among the many clauses and phrases of Scripture which are distorted from their true position, and given erroneous application in sermon and in song, by the popular denominations of the day, the term "almost persuaded" is one of the most prominent in position, and powerful in its application, in disseminating false doctrine, and entangling the unwary victim in the meshes of deceptions and unbelief. The declarations of truth, when allowed to occupy their true position and maintain their true bearings, are productive of much assurance and comfort to the subject of gospel address, but when wrested from their legitimate position and given contrary bearings they become productive of a corresponding degree of assurance and comfort to the world to whom they are chiefly spoken. The assurance and comfort of the word of truth, truthfully and faithfully presented, grow out of the character and virtue of that which is presented in it. The word of truth bears true testimony to the Truth. Christ is the Truth, therefore the word or letter of the truth testifies of him. It declares salvation to be replete and complete in Christ—that his work is a perfect work—that the subject of salvation is "Sanctified by God the Father, preserved in Jesus Christ and Called," and that this calling is "A holy calling." "Not according to the works of the creature, but according to the purpose of the Creator and grace, which was given him in Christ Jesus before the world began." 2 Tim 1:9. The truth after this fashion can but bring comfort to the child of God; and nothing but the truth can do any one any good.

Why not take the letter as it is and truly report the work of God; "For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth;" and surely the letter truly testifies of the word, and the word testifies of God. "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the hosts of them by the breath of his mouth."

But the word of inspiration does not bring comfort to him in whose heart there is no place for it. Therefore in order to please him the wits of men go to work and devise means whereby he shall be comforted.

Mahomet, Joseph Smith and others took the more consistent course and made their Scripture out and out of new material. While many others have in various ways revised and remodeled the Scriptures of God by his Apostles and Prophets, and present their production to the people as the letter of the way of life and salvation.

Not only did the founders of the different popular denominations largely depart from the letter and Spirit of the way in their original promulgations, but the adherents to their respective doctrines have been gradually drifting away from then until now. So that, should those progenitors be permitted to appear upon the earth again they would have to be introduced to the doctrine, faith and practice of their own children. Martin Luther would find his ministers adorned with the robes of Catholicism. John Calvin would find that his ministers had repudiated the most fundamental principle of his doctrine. John Wesley would find his followers altogether too methodical and Episcopal. Andrew Fuller would find his children about where Wesley left his, holding only to the form of baptism as the distinguishing feature. Alexander Campbell would find his progeny believing much in general and but little in particular, and the Lord would find his people about like the seven churches of Asia, in some sections greatly neglecting this or that which he has plainly taught them, and others again trying to get at and striving about this or that which he has not commanded nor revealed. However the Primitive Baptists, or more properly the Baptists, considering the fact that they are cumbered with the flesh, and know nothing really and truly except as taught of the Lord, are getting along very well, being in all fundamental and essential respects—touching eternal salvation—just about where they were eighteen hundred years ago. Should their position hold as good in the future as in the past, and I am confident it will, they will be in the end of the world where they are now, ready and waiting for mortality to be swallowed up of life.

Let us now consider carefully and faithfully the meaning of the term "Almost persuaded" as taken from Acts 26:28, and see if we cannot come to the law and to the testimony of the subject matter contained in and intended to be conveyed by King Agrippa when he said unto Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian."

In order to ascertain what character of subjects is susceptible of such persuasion, we have but to ascertain, if we can, the character of Agrippa. Sinners in their sinful state or condition, because of that disobedience by which many were made sinners, are said to be dead in trespasses and sin. One in this condition is so swallowed up in sin that he is as unable to extricate himself therefrom, or as unsusceptible of persuasion as Lazarus was to come forth from the grave, or of being persuaded to either come forth or stay there. Jesus says to such characters: "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." That is they had no will, no desire, no disposition to come. They did not will to come unto him, which conclusively sustains the belief that they could not come, and if they could not come unto him fully it is reasonable to conclude that they could not come in part, therefore they could neither be fully nor almost persuaded to come. If one is persuaded at all, he is fully persuaded, therefore if he is not fully persuaded he is not persuaded at all in the sense of the subject under consideration. "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian," or Thou almost persuadest me. The king was either persuaded or he was not; which? He was not. If Paul had persuaded him he would have been a christian. One could no more be partly persuaded to be a christian than he could be a part of a christian. The one who is least in the Kingdom of God is no less in the kingdom than the one who is the greatest. That is he is not partly in the kingdom and partly out of it, and because of being partly out of it he is the least in it. A sheep may be so poor, and sick and lame as to be unable to keep up with the flock, but it is none the less a sheep on that account. There are degrees as to how nearly one comes to following Christ perfectly, but there can be none as to the fact of his following him. We either follow him or we do not. We are either christians or we are not. There are degrees as to how nearly one comes to being persuaded or to getting consent of his mind, to follow Christ, or to be a christian, but there are none as to the fact of his being persuaded, or having consent of his mind thus to do or be.

There is a difference, as indicated by the language of Paul, between being almost, and altogether. Such as he was, or a Christian. He says: "I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds." If the term, "Almost thou persuadest me," indicated a progression towards being altogether persuaded, or implied that the king was partly persuaded, Paul could no doubt have said something like this, I would that thou wert not only almost but altogether, but he says: "Both almost, and altogether." This shows that it is good to be almost, as well as to be altogether, but that it is better to be altogether such as Paul—a christian. I am always pleased to know that one is a child of God, but am better pleased to know that he is a christian.

The king was not almost persuaded to accept eternal life, or eternal salvation, or to turn in with the overtures of mercy, or to believe to the saving of the soul, or something of that nature, as is presented and urged by those who contend for an "offered salvation" upon the "terms of the gospel," but, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian." To be saved with an everlasting salvation in and by Jesus Christ is one thing, and to have this blessed truth revealed unto us by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who has abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel is another thing, and for those, who are saved eternally in Christ Jesus, and manifestly in themselves, to deny themselves and take up their cross and follow him is yet another thing. It is in this last respect that we are to properly consider this question.

No man can become a christian who does not first believe in Jesus Christ, and no one can believe in him who does not first believe in God, and no one can believe in him who has not first been made partaker of divine nature, and no one can partake of it but by the Holy Ghost.

Was King Agrippa in possession of divine nature? He must have been from the fact that he believed in God. Did he believe in God? He believed the prophets, and as God spoke by them he therefore must have believed in him. Did he believe the prophets? Paul says he did, and as Paul spoke by the Holy Ghost, he must have spoken the truth, therefore the king believed the prophets.

"For the king knoweth of these things, before whom I also speak and also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner. King Agrippa believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest. Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian."—Acts 26: 26-28.

It is clear to my mind that we are to understand by this and other circumstances that one's being a child of God, and a believer in God, does not necessarily, in a Scripture sense, constitute him a christian. To be really and truly a christian he must believe in Christ, and in believing in him must be a follower of him. The disciples were called christians. This title was first given to them at Antioch. A disciple is a follower of Christ. For one to be a christian he must be a disciple, and to be a disciple he must follow Christ, and to thus follow Christ, he must have a will to do so, and then he must deny himself and take up his cross and follow him. One must be born again, or from above, before he can see the kingdom. He must be born of water and of the Spirit before he can enter the kingdom. This birth does not constitute the entering into the kingdom but is an essential preparatory thereto. Being manifested therefore as a child of God does not make a christian, but is an indispensable work preparatory to his becoming one.

No doubt many of the people of God are ready to testify that time and again they had impressions to go to the church, and at times thought they had the consent of their minds to go but did not. Sometimes under preaching they were almost persuaded to go, were almost ready to go, and finally they did come to a full conclusion, full consent of mind, altogether ready, persuaded, and then they went to the church. I have no doubt but that there are many to-day in that condition. Says one: I could hardly keep away; I think I will go next meeting; I want to be with the people of God, but I am so unworthy, so unfit; I cannot stay away from them, I cannot go, I must go, I must not go; O that I could go. Such characters can truly say at times, like King Agrippa: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian."

I would suggest to all such that you examine carefully the reasons why you have not full consent of mind to go to the church, why you are not persuaded to be like the people you love, and see if you cannot discover what the real obstacle is. And if you find the Lord to be at fault in the matter I want you to be honest and faithful to tell me so; and if you find yourself to be at fault I want you to be equally honest and faithful to tell me. If I do not hear from you I shall feel justifiable in concluding that you have found yourself to be altogether at fault. Agrippa found no fault in Paul, and I do not believe you will find any in him, nor in Him whom he preached.

You will no doubt find something that you must first do, which you are not ready and willing to do. There is a sacrifice which you will have to make, which you are not ready, and really do not want to do as you should. You want to be a christian, but you do not want to be what a christian is. You would not mind following Christ if you did not have to go the way he went. You really prefer the pomp and splendor of the world to the meekness and humility of Christ. You are not ready to exchange the pleasures of the world for the afflictions of the people of God. You do not fully regard the reproaches of Christ as being greater riches than the treasures of Egypt.

Think of what king Agrippa would have had to have sacrificed to have been a christian, and see if you are not looking at what you would lose, you think, and what you would be thought of, and what would be said of you by the world instead of whether the Lord would say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things," and give me the result of your investigations. P. G. L.

EXAMINE WHO?

In the solemn matter of the communion of the body and blood of Jesus sometimes the question arises, Whom shall I search or examine? Shall I eat and drink or commune with such an one? Let me examine him and see how wrong he is. Well, am I examining the right one? What is the Scriptural rule, "But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread and drink of that cup."—1st Cor. 11:28. As long as I am examining some one else I am not prepared to eat. But when I come home to examine myself then I am prepared to eat. What is it to examine ones own self? Well, an examination is a close search into the matter to be sought into or hunted out. When you examine or make diligent search into a matter your fear or hope is aroused to test the matter severely, to know whether your fear is well-grounded or your hope is well-founded.

The time comes for you to be gathered with the saints in this solemn feast, and you are to join with them in setting forth and commemorating the most notable and important event that has ever transpired on this earth—the crucifixion of the Son of Man—the slaying of the Lord our passover for us.

You feel what a vile sinner I am, how utterly unworthy of such love and mercy. Who am I that I should be thus remembered by the Lord.

For I was under the power and dominion of sin, the slavery of death. Jesus the lamb of God was sacrificed for me. This is all my hope and it is precious. Let me eat to him and drink to him. Let me remember him and show forth his death. Let me discern his body and his blood. He is all my hope. One thus judging and feeling discerns the Lord's body. So in this manner let him eat. P. D. G.

The brethren and friends at Washington, N. C., need a meeting house. There is a church there, and a lot has been given them, and a meeting house has been commenced. But they need about two hundred dollars to enable them to finish it.

Will not our brethren and friends abroad help them some? They have done about all they can themselves. Any contributions sent to them will be thankfully received.

The committee having this matter in hand are Elder L. E. Everett, and brethren J. T. Lupton, and M. H. Singleton, Washington, N. C. If you will send to brother M. H. Singleton, who lives near the place, and who has the building specially in charge, it will be properly applied, or you can send to any of the committee. P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Please publish the following in the LAMP MARK. We the Primitive Baptists at Maple Hill, Pender county N. C., feel it our duty to publish Elder B. H. Wooten to the Baptists at large. As he is excluded from us we no longer endorse him as a preacher. Done by order of Conference on Saturday before the first Sunday in April 1894.

Elder Isaac Jones, Mod.
T. B. Rochelle, Clerk.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—You will please send brother Lester word through the LANDMARK, to attend the Union meeting at Whitethorn, Pittsylvania Co., Va., the 5th Saturday and Sunday in July. We will be glad to see as many of the ministers and other brethren as can come. Your sister, MRS W M F. JEFFERSON.
Galveston, Va.

ORDINATION.

Brother P. R. Barber of Rehoboth church, in Johnson county N. C., was ordained to the Gospel Ministry on 4th Sunday in May 1894. The Presbytery was composed of Elders Moore, Stephenson, J. A. T. Jones, and W. J. Stephenson.

REQUEST.

Brother M. M. Brown of Savannah, Ga., requests the prayers of the brethren in behalf of his wife who is very sick, and for himself also.

WHITAKER'S ACADEMY.

The 32d session of this excellent school, Elder A. J. Moore, principal, opens the 3rd Monday in July 1894.

UNION MEETING.

The next Staunton River Union meeting will be held with the church at Whitethorn, Va., 1½ miles from Whittle's Station, Pittsylvania Co., Va., on Saturday and 5th Sunday in July. In behalf of the church I extend a cordial invitation to brethren generally, especially to preachers.
G. H. THOMAS.

OBITUARIES.

MARTHA SELMA WARREN.

Perhaps some of the readers of ZION'S LANDMARK can sympathize with me in the loss of my little sister, Martha Selma Warren, whose death occurred at our home near Falkland, Pitt Co., N. C., on the 10th day of March, 1894. She was born in Pitt Co., N. C. on the 19th day of Nov. 1881, and was therefore 12 years 3 months and 21 days old.

She was the youngest child of John R. and Alavana Warren, both of whom are members of the Primitive Baptist church. Pattie, as we all called her, attended school on Monday, March 5th, and when she reached home she complained of being tired. She failed to eat any supper, but that was nothing very unusual for her, she learned her lessons for Tuesday and retired about 10 o'clock. When I retired to my room about a half an hour later, she said her head hurt her. She didn't rest any at all that night. The next day she appeared to remain about the same, only at times we would think she was better.

Wednesday morning she was worse. A physician was called in, who pronounced her illness Meningitis. Tuesday morning she told me that she would never be able to attend school any more. Wednesday night she called Mother, Father and myself to her bed-side and told us that she was dying, and would never get up from there any more. Thursday morning she appeared much better, but she said to me "I feel better sometimes, and I know you all think I am better, but I shall never get well again, so I want you to take care of my pets." I promised her I would. Friday morning she said to me, "Lula, I have come to it, the Lord wants me over there, I wonder what He wants with me? But He wants me, so help me across." She put her little arms around my neck, and said, "Lula, I want to ask you to do one more thing for me, it is the last request I shall ever make of you, I am going to die and I want you to sit by me when I die." I did as she bade me.

It was not only the last request, but it was the last word she said to me. She called Mother twice after then. She never spoke after ten minutes to two o'clock that evening. Although all means of restoration which the most affectionate care and the best medical advice could suggest, were resorted to, she gradually declined and breathed her last in calm submission to the will of God Saturday morning, twenty five minutes past five o'clock. She was buried at home on the following day. Since her death we see so many things that she did and said, that it seems as if she was warned of her death, a week or more before it occurred. She was obedient, and had a kind and gentle disposition. For the last few weeks that she went to school, she carried a Testament, and would read it at recess. She often called on the Lord while she was sick, and he took her to rest out of this world of misery and sin. While we miss her, and our hearts are sad to think we shall see her no more on earth, we can but believe that our loss is her eternal gain. Her departure leaves a Mother, Father, three brothers, two sisters, and many little friends to mourn their loss. We too will soon be summoned, so let us ask the Lord to resign us to His will, and prepare us to meet the dear little one in the happy Land, where parting shall be no more. Dear friends, pray for us in our afflictions.

Dear little Pattie, thou art gone,
And we are left to mourn,
But soon we, too, shall follow on,
With hope, to meet thee here home.

Where Jesus reigns forever more,
And Angels there abide,
O, may we safely reach that shore,
With Pattie by our side.

Then we can join that favored throng,
And never know more pain,
Then we can sing that heavenly song,
Pattie we've met again.

When we've been there ten thousand years,
To do our Master's will,
And have no sins, nor doubts, nor fears,
And Pattie with us still.

Now we are bound to kiss the rod,
And say Thy will be done,
While Pattie's sitting with her God,
We have our race to run.

Still every effort did we use,
To save her from her grave,
But Pattie's death brings to my view,
That only God can save.

LULA D. WARREN.

JOSIAH COLEMAN.

BROTHER GOLD—I have been requested by the widow of Brother Josiah Coleman to write an obituary notice of his death. I must say that it makes me feel very solemn indeed on all such occasions, more particularly when my nearest and dearest friends, also my kindred in the flesh and I hope brother in Christ, is the subject. Myself and brother Coleman have been very closely identified together all our lives. I was born the 21st of June 1832, and brother Coleman was born the 11th day of August 1832. We grew up together, we shared each others joys in childhood, did the same when we were grown men, and shared each others joys and comforts in what we both believed to be the church of Christ. I was baptized by Elder P. D. Gold as a member of Wilson church 25th day of Dec. 1871, brother Coleman was baptized as member of Contentnea church 23 day of Sept. 1873, by Elder Thomas Wells, the last member Elder Wells ever baptized at Contentnea. Brother Coleman remained what I would term a faithful member of Contentnea church until April 19th, 1890, then he and his wife took a letter of dismission to join the church at Healthy Plains. He remained a faithful member there until January 3rd 1894 when he was taken speechless in the morning, and died in the evening of same day. Not a Baptist any where in my knowledge ever had ought to say against dear brother Coleman. He was very firm in what he believed to be the truth.

Brother Coleman was married to Sallie Haynes in the year 1857, and I think from my own knowledge no man and wife lived happier together than they did. There were seven children born unto that marriage five girls and two boys, two daughters preceded their father to the grave. Brother Coleman was a good provider for his family and very persevering. He raised his children to work. He lost his left hand in the late war, but that did not stop him from work. He could do more work with one hand than any man I ever saw. Now I want to say to his sorrowing widow that I know she has lost a good husband, but try to be content with the will of God, and at the dispensation of providence. She will not have long to wait before she can go to meet him in a brighter and better world than this, where there is pleasure for ever more. I want also to say to his children, go according to the pattern shown you by your father, be kind to your mother, be honest and truthful, and thus fulfill the law of your father's God: and may heaven's mercies attend all your ways, and save you all in the end is my prayer for the Redeemer's sake. Brother Gold, you will see that I have something to say about myself in this very imperfect notice. I wish I could always keep self in the back ground lowly and unknown, prized and loved of the Lord alone. You will see how my life and brother Coleman's were wrapped in one bundle of love. Now let me ask you to pray for me that I may hold out to the end.

THEO. BARNES.

JACKSON CHANCY.

You by request will please publish in ZION'S LANDMARK, the death of our kind old friend Mr. Jackson Chaney, who died at his home near Laurel Grove in this Co. He was born July 16th 1817, and departed this life Feb. 15th 1894. He never joined any church or organization of men, told me he was not fit to be a member of the church, and had no use for institutions of men; also he told me he had a hope for a good many years. All who knew him could but admire him as a good man. He was so quiet, you remember brother Gold, you asked him once if he ever got mad. He was a good neighbor and kind father. He left eight children, seven daughters and one son to mourn his loss, also a goodly number of grand children; but their loss is his eternal gain I believe.

Fear not children, he is at home
Where you shortly hope to go,
When you reach that happy shore
All your sorrows then will be over.
Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep
From which none ever wake to weep.

Yours in hope, THOS. N. WALTON.

WALTER LEON EDMONSON.

MR. GOLD:—Please publish the death of our little darling, which was the eldest son of Willie P. and Naomi C. Edmonson. He was born May 23rd, 1892, died May 21st 1894. Little Walter was a sweet and affectionate child, and we feel his loss very great, but hope it is his eternal gain in heaven. He was sick but a short while and had all attention paid him that seemed necessary, but the Lord saw fit to take him away from this sinful world. We hope he is resting in the arms of his dear Savior to-night. He bore his sufferings very easily, and would always take his medicine whenever he was asked. The doctor staid with him an hour before he died and seemed to do everything that he could, but he was out of reach of human aid.

He was buried Tuesday evening in the family grave-yard.

DAISY MAYO.

LOUIS SAMMONS.

Louis Sammons was born Jan. 9th 1846 and died Dec. 15th, 1893, making his stay on earth, 47 years and six days. He left an aged mother, two sisters (who are members of the Primitive Baptist church at Wards Will,) and five children, the oldest a daughter, 19 years of age, to care for the younger ones. Their mother died nine months previous.

He seemed to be in declining health for several months before he was confined to his bed and room. He took his bed the 2nd day of December, and suffered untold pain and trouble until the chain was severed, which said thy pains, troubles and toils of this life have ended. He left evidence of a better hereafter. After suffering so much he seemed too weak to talk but as he seemed to realize his sinking condition, he was heard by his sister making an effort to sing a hymn, but was too weak for it to be understood what one he was trying to sing, and apparently tried to make signs of wishing to say a few more words.

He was a good neighbor, kind husband and father, and was ever ready to answer to the calls of the distressed in his race. He never connected himself with any church, but attended the Primitive Baptist when it was possible.

"An honest man, the noblest work of God" should be his epitaph, for if there ever was one he was.

So thus he is mised from a world of care.

To join the loved ones gone before;
Which we hope have a glorious home to share,

On that bright and beautiful shore.

A LITTLE COUSIN.

Wards Will N. C.

DEMPSEY F. BILLUPS.

Please publish the death of our dear brother Dempsey F. Billups, who died May 25th 1894. Aged 20 years, 7 months, 2 days. He was living in Richmond, Va., at the time of his death, and was sick only 8 days. His death was unexpected to us. We received a telegram stating that he was very ill two days before he died. Mama was with him. He leaves two sisters and mother to mourn our loss, but we hope it is his eternal gain.

H. L. TREYATION,

Rocky Mount N. C.

DEACON JESSE THOMAS.

E. W. AYERS.

On the 20th day of February 1824 passed away as we believe from earth to heaven deacon Jesse Thomas in the 77th year of his age. Brother Thomas was born and reared on Mattamuskeet Lake, Hyde Co., N. C. and with the exception of a few years that he was in the war between the States lived in the county of his nativity all his life. He was born June 8th 1817. Brother Thomas was twice married, by his first wife were born to him 2 daughters, by his last wife none. He united with the church (Primitive Baptist) at South Mattamuskeet and was baptized the first Sunday in January 1841 by Elder G. W. Carawan.

Several years ago the church chose him for one of her deacons; the duties of said office he performed to the satisfaction of the brethren the remainder of his life. For a number of years past he and his last wife have lived at and farmed for Mr. J. B. Baum on North side the Lake, who is a good kind hearted gentleman, with whom they have lived very friendly, and have farmed successfully. For about a year or more past the dear brother was taken with a disease in his feet and legs which disabled him to labor, and among the many doctors he applied to for relief they could do him no good.

I often thought when I was with him of Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, who was lame in both of his feet. After trying every remedy he could hear of, to no avail, he lingered out his time in great suffering till death relieved him. He seemed to die in faith trusting alone in the unmerited grace of God for his salvation. Brother Thomas has lived a worthy member of the Primitive Baptist church for fifty years, and has been gathered to his fathers as a ripe shock of corn or wheat, taken home to rest with his glorified Redeemer in Heaven above where all is joy, peace and happiness forever. And now may the God of all Grace remember in mercy his sorrowing and afflicted widow (Sister Thomas) and give her sustaining grace, that she may be able to bear her sorrows, and may she with all the redeemed family of God be kept by the mighty power of his grace, through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time, and thou Lord shalt have all the glory.

Swan Quarter, N. C.

L. S. ROSS.

Died at his residence in Washington on my December 18, 1893. He was born July 27, 1817. He married Mary Wallace, the daughter of Elder Johnathan Wallace, November 16, 1841. She bore him seven children, four sons and three daughters. After her death he married Anna Hassell, April 13 1876. By his last wife he had no children. Brother Ayers joined the church at Morattock, on the 15th day of April 1848; he was ordained a deacon in the church in February, 1869, and lived to enjoy the full confidence of the brethren until the day of his death. He was one of the leading members of Morattock church 45 years. He generally attended the Kehukee association. I have spent some of the pleasantest moments of my life in company with him. He often accompanied me to my appointments when visiting other churches. He told me a short while before his death that if the Primitive Baptist was not the church of Christ he was deceived in the whole matter, and had no fellowship for anything else. He said he was not afraid to die; he knew in whom he had trusted for salvation. He died strong in the faith, giving glory to God. He requested the writer of this notice to preach his funeral. By request his body was carried to the church and I tried to comfort the bereaved. May God bless his wife and children and enable them to live to the honor and glory of God, is my prayer for Christ's sake.

Done by order of conference on Saturday before the third Sunday in February, 1894.

N. H. HARRISON.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

J. E. ADAMS.

- Nense, N. C. Sat. and 3d Sun. in June
- Durham Monday night and Tuesday
- Burlington, Tuesday night & Wednesday
- Pleasant Hill Sat. & 4th Sunday
- Brother J. S. Norris will meet him at Statesville on Thursday. Brother W. R. Coffey will arrange appointments for him on week after 4th Sunday in Silver Creek Association and please meet him at Lenoir on Monday evening.
- Hollow Spring 1st Sunday in July
- Fair View Tuesday
- Cross Roads Wednesday
- Harder Shunates Thursday
- State Road Sat. & 2d Sunday
- Rock Springs Monday
- Mulberry Tuesday
- Fish River Wednesday
- Flat Top Thursday
- Fisher's Gap Friday
- Round Peak Saturday

Zion's Hill	3d Sunday
Chestnut Grove	Monday
Flower Gap	Tuesday
Stewart's Creek	Wednesday
Union	Thursday
Hogan's Creek	Friday
Cedar Hill	Saturday
Volunteer	4th Sunday
Rock House	Monday
Piney Grove	Tuesday
Snow Creek	Wednesday

Elder F. J. Stone will please arrange appointments for him from thence to Country Line Association at McRay's, Alamance co., N. C. Conveyance needed.

A. N. HALL.

Lawrence's	1st Sunday in July
Kelutkee	Monday
Mt. Zion	Wednesday
Cross Roads	Thursday
Concho	Friday
Hamilton	2d Sunday
Spring Green	Tuesday
Little Creek	Wednesday
Tarboro	Thursday

He will need conveyance.

C. D. FRAY AND R. W. DIX.

Mountain M. H. Va.	Friday before 1st Sun. in July
Strawberry	Saturday
Fairfield	1st Sunday
Galilee	Monday
Union	Tuesday
Ephesus	Wednesday
Fairview	Thursday
Quaker	Friday
Morgan's	Saturday
Diamond Hill	2d Sunday
Linnville	Monday
Cross Roads	Tuesday
Bethel	Wednesday
Little Creeks	Thursday
Chestnut	Friday
Canton Creek	Saturday
Town Creek	3d Sunday
River View	Monday
Wood Creek	Tuesday
Camp Branch	Wednesday
Leatherwood	Thursday
North Fork	Friday

RUFUS HUTCHINS

Green Hill (Va.)	Sat. and 2 Sun. in July
Dan River	Monday
Concord	Tuesday
Some brother please arrange for Wednesday.
Fellowship	Thursday
Harmony	Friday
Mt. Zion	Saturday
Elder Matt. Jennings please arrange for 3d Sunday.
Mt. Lebanon	Monday
Crooked Creek	Tuesday
Good Hope	Wednesday
Lambourg	Thursday
Flowers Gap	Friday
Stuart's Creek (N. C.)	Saturday
Toms Creek	4th Sunday

W. J. STEPHENSON.

Neuse	Sat. and 3d Sun. in July
Salem	Monday
Creeches	Tuesday
Beulah	Wednesday
Memorial	Thursday
Aycocks	Friday
Wilson	Sat. and 4th Sun.
Union	Monday
Pleasant Hill	Tuesday
Falls	Wednesday
Mill Branch	Thursday

Thence to Black Creek Union.

E. C. SMITH.

Pleasantville	June 28
Shiloh	29
Matrimony	30
Buffalow	1st Sunday in July
Pleasant Grove	Monday
Russell's Creek	Tuesday
Snow Creek	Wednesday
State Line	Thursday
Bell Spur	Friday
Concord	Saturday
Conpers Grove	2d Sunday
Little Flock	Monday
Laurel Fork	Tuesday
Fellowship	Wednesday
Harmony	Thursday
Mt. Lebanon	Friday
Good Hope	Saturday
Crooked Creek	3d Sunday
Meadow Creek	Monday
Crab Creek	Tuesday
Fishers Gap	Wednesday
Franklin	Thursday
Round Peak	Friday
Zions Hill	Saturday
Chestnut Grove	4th Sunday
Flower Gap	Monday
Stuart's Creek	Tuesday
Dover	Wednesday
Union	Thursday
Cedar Hill	Friday
Volunteer	Saturday
Rock House	5th Sunday
Flat Shoal	Monday
Clear Spring	Tuesday
Saints Delight	Wednesday, Aug 1st

He will need conveyance.

I. P. BEAN.

Mountain Creek	Sat. before 2d Sun. in July
Sunday funeral of Mr. Morris' wife and child
Howards Chapel	Monday
Jones Hill	Tuesday
Jerusalem	Wednesday
Lawyers Spring	Thursday
Liberty	Friday
High Hill	Sat. and 3d Sun.
Mr. Coleman Stewart please arrange an appointment for Monday.
Watson	Tuesday
Crooked Creek	Wednesday
Meadow Creek	Thursday
Liberty Hill	Friday
Bear Creek	Sat. and 4th Sun.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches & Florence Railroad
Cond. schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

 DATED May 15, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		Not Daily	No. 41 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon.....	11 54	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.....	1 02	10 40
Ar Tarboro.....	2 40
Lv Tarboro.....	12 45
Lv Rocky Mt.....	6 02	10 20	6 00
Lv Wilson.....	2 05	11 01
Lv Selma.....	4 55
Lv Fayetteville.....	4 15	12 51
Ar Florence.....	7 45	3 00
	No. 47, Daily.			A. M.
Lv Wilson.....	2 15	8 35
Lv Goldsboro.....	3 05	9 25
Lv Magnolia.....	4 10	7 40
Ar Wilmington.....	5 10	10 00
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED May 15, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 13, Daily.	No. 40 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence.....	7 39	7 25
Lv Fayetteville.....	10 45	9 30
Lv Selma.....	12 45
Ar Wilson.....	1 10	11 27
	No. 45 Daily.			A. M.
Lv Wilmington.....	9 50	7 00
Lv Magnolia.....	10 40	5 11
Lv Goldsboro.....	12 50	9 40
Ar Weldon.....	1 45	10 47
	No. 25 Daily.			No. 13 Daily.
Lv Wilson.....	P. M. 1 10	P. M. 11 27	P. M. 10 32
Ar Rocky Mt.....	2 11	12 05	11 15
Ar Tarboro.....	2 47
Lv Tarboro.....	12 45
Lv Rocky Mt.....	2 11	12 05
Ar Weldon.....	3 19	12 55	6 01
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 45 p. m., Greenville 6 17 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., returning leaves Kinston, 7 40 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 40 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrive Parme 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 6 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parme

6 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m., Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R., daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 1 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 40 p. m., returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 20 a. m., Sunday 9 20 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 22 a. m., and 11 55 p. m.

Train on Milledan, C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 05 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m., returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m., returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrives at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latts Branch Florence R. R. leave Latts 6 30 p. m., arrive Duxbur 7 47 p. m., returning leave Duxbur 6 30 a. m., arrive Latts 5 0 a. m., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 11 00 a. m., returning leaves Clinton at 1 00 p. m., connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25
Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Wilmington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fitty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connerville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. Reed, General Agent, Connerville, Ind., Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Eringer, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sex-on, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and, for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

WILSON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FOR YOUNG LADIES—NON-SECTARIAN

The Spring term begins Monday, Jan. 22, 1894.

A most thorough and comprehensive preparatory course of study, with a Full Collegiate course equal to that of any Female College in the South.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR THE STUDY OF MUSIC AND ART.

Standard of Scholarship unusually high. Healthful Location. Buildings and Grounds large and pleasantly situated. Moderate charges. Catalogue and Circulars on application.

SILAS E. WARREN, Principal.

Wilson, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YAI KIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule.—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

N. Bound		MAIN LINE.		S. Bound
No 1				No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 27 a m
3 15 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 43 a m
1 47 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 43 a m
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m
12 52 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	3 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	3 45 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Cove.....Ar	Lv.....N. & W. Cove.....Ar	Lv.....N. & W. Cove.....Ar	4 20 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Cove.....Lv	Ar.....N. & W. Cove.....Lv	Ar.....N. & W. Cove.....Lv	4 33 p m
11 10 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5 01 p m
9 48 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6 25 p m
No 3
8 00 p m	Ar.....Bristolville.....Lv	Ar.....Bristolville.....Lv	Ar.....Bristolville.....Lv	No 4
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Ar	Lv.....Maxton.....Ar	Lv.....Maxton.....Ar	6 25 a m
6 08 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	7 27 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	8 12 a m
4 40 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15
MIXED
Daily Ex
Sunday
5 15 p m	Ar.....Rainscot.....Lv	Ar.....Rainscot.....Lv	Ar.....Rainscot.....Lv	6 50 a m
3 35 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8 20 a m
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 25 a m
No. 16
MIXED
Daily Ex
Sunday
4 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Ar	11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1, connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and in 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mang'r.

W. EKYLE,

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' BOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold.

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

JULY 1, 1894.

NO. 16.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

J. K. O. G. L. E. S. T. E. R.
I. B. C. A.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Brother Stephen Yates, of Blooming Grove, Texas, requests me to write for the LANDMARK on Rom. 10:14. "How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?" The words "A preacher" are the principle part of his request. Paul starts out with this chapter to show his love for his nation. They hated Paul because of his doctrine, but he loved them and prayed for their salvation. He shows the reward of obedience to the law in verse 5. "For Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, that the man which doeth those things shall live by them." This is as far as any salvation goes by the law. He taught in one place if a man be circumcised he is a debtor to do the whole law. Obedience to the law made no man free, though one obey in every jot and tittle to-day he is just as much a servant to-morrow and is forever under obligations. Therefore the law does not make him free. This will not do for salvation, the child of God wants freedom; this is what he hungers for and what he must have. This the law could not give even though one live blameless as touching its righteousness. This will not do for a poor hungry, thirsty, starving soul; he must have freedom. The law condemns him and he must be set free from this condemnation, must be justified. This can be done only by the righteousness of faith. Verse 8, "But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that is, the word of faith which we preach." 9th, "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead thou shalt be saved." 10th, "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." One may be a child of God and yet be bound by the law. Such were the Gallatians at the time Paul wrote to them. The law binds all who live by it. There is a freedom in the gospel. It sets free every one who lives in obedience to it. Then here is a vast difference; one binds and the other sets at liberty. This last is the desire of a christian heart. One cannot be a christian unless he has been born again. Being born again he is a living child of God and born in the gospel kingdom, subject to all its teachings. Here he has his taith enlivened into eyes, ears, nose, mouth and feeling. He hears differently, sees differently, smells differently, tastes differently and feels differently from what he did before. Old things have passed away and new things appear to him now. All his faculties are so awakened that the same preachers preaching appears very different to him. Where he once could see nothing but a conglomeration of foolishness he now sees and feels life and peace. This is quite a change, and it appears so plainly to him that he sometimes supposes the preacher must have changed.

Here is a needy one; he must have something. He is now a living soul, in a gospel sense, and needs that kind of food to satisfy his gospel appetite. God has ordained two ways of communicating this food to the hungry soul: 1st. As the dew distills on the earth, and 2nd. As the rain descends from the clouds.—Deut. 32:2. How many times in our loneliness and distresses has our God spoken to us when there was no living soul near, and no audible sound was heard but a still, small voice speaking within, stilling the raging tempest and giving us sweet peace. The dew has been distilled and we have drunk and are satisfied. This voice of God never fails to accomplish his rich purpose, and the poor soul to whom he thus speaks realizes that he has eaten a rich feast from heaven.

But God has another way of comforting his people just as he has another way of watering the tender plants of the earth. He gathers the clouds, without the agency or help of man, and fills them with rain. We don't know how he does this, but we know that he does it. He sends those clouds whithersoever he will and just where he will; on the just and unjust alike he pours out this rain and waters the earth. Many thick and heavy clouds rain but little, while much smaller ones rain freely. These are strange things to us, yet they are true.

Now here is the gospel in this: God calls his ministers. It may be one of the most unlikely beings in the world, one that no one would ever suppose could possibly preach Jesus to the edification of his people. He fills him with his grace and sends him forth with his message. He goes and delivers it as God has commanded him, and is a wonder to the world. He is this preacher spoken of in the text. The 15th verse puts them in the plural, showing that all God's ministers must be prepared of him. There are some of the Lord's servants in the ministry who have a fair share of this world's wisdom, both naturally and literally, but they are just as dependent on the Lord to fill them with the gospel as the most ignorant. Natural sense nor education have ever made a gospel preacher. A preacher thus made is only a cloud carried about without water, carried by every wind of doctrine, or whithersoever the most popular current may drift him; as a dead fish he goes with the tide and all the rest follow him.

I am satisfied that this popular element sometimes drifts some of the Lord's little one's along with it. Many of us have tender feelings for those who differ with us religiously, and get so tender sometimes that we really don't want our brethren to preach and write the truth for fear it will hurt somebody's feelings. Now such are the ones who are in bondage and need the preaching of the gospel that they may have their eyes open to the truth and be made free in the liberty of Christ. As long as we have any faith whatever in any of the institutions of man we do not fully believe in our Lord Jesus, and there is a liberty in our salvation that we have never realized. Some of our ministers are unfaithful in these things, and for fear they will injure somebody's feelings, or disturb the peace of some seditious brother, they will pass along and never rebuke these false ways. Let a faithful minister come along and say that Baptists should not support, nor in any-wise uphold Sunday Schools and other religious institutions, and they will begin to turn and twist and say he says too much about such things. Brethren are now like some were in the days of Paul, they would destroy the offence of the gospel. Now my brethren this is one of the purposes of the gospel to search out every sin that dwells in our hearts and so expose it to us that we may see its blackness and shun it, and thus be saved from it. Another purpose of the gospel is to search out those of the Lord's little ones who are mixed up in Babylon, and so expose their sins as to make them ashamed of them, and to so point to Christ as the only source of deliverance that that repenting child may be drawn to him for life and peace.

I truly believe that of all the sins that our brethren are guilty of in this our day, there are none that loom up before God more than their association with false religion. I believe this to be the main reason why we are so cold to-day. In the days of old it was death to an Israelite to engage with any other nation in their worship, or even to say, "Let us do so." But now it is esteemed a light thing for brethren to so engage as to go to their assemblies and even sing with them and bow down to their prayers, send their children to their Sunday Schools and even go with them to see it well done. If this is not going directly away from the true faith, then I confess to be blind, yet if one is faithful enough to speak against these things he not only brings on himself the derision of the world but many of his brethren also. Brethren, those engaged in those things cannot call on the Lord in the sense of true faith for they do not hear Him, nor believe in Him. This is one of the causes why the minister is sent out to preach that such shall hear.

Now as to the sending. Who sends the ministers here spoken of? Who sent Paul? Who sent the twelve and the seventy? Literary schools of learning? Schools of theology, or theological teachers? Conferences or conventions? No. Who sent them? "Behold, I send you as sheep among wolves," says Christ. What! a sheep among wolves? Did he not know the wolves would devour them? No. All power is given unto me both in Heaven and in the earth. "Go ye therefore." The wolves may grit their teeth and thirst for the blood of those faithful servants of God who withhold not, but shoot arrows at Babylon, and shoot not a few, but God has locked their mouths for the present. God sends His ministers and gives them messages and protects them in delivering them. If I am employed as a shepherd, and a certain number of sheep are under my care and I see a lamb going into the mouth of a swine and make no effort to deliver that lamb, what will the master of the sheep say when he comes to take count of his sheep? If God has placed me on the walls of Zion and commanded me watch for the enemy and I see the enemy and cry not, of whose hands does he require their blood? The scripture says of the watchman's hands. Thank the Lord brethren that he has made me that faithful that condemnation does not rest on me as yet.

These Armenian gods that profess to teach morality, the Bible religion and lead people to Christ, are just as sure to lead the children of Old School Baptists away from them as they are allowed to indulge in them. I once heard a girl tell her father, who was talking to her about going to Sunday School and at the same time rebuking me for being so "hard down" on them. "I don't care what you say, I am going to them, I love to go and I am going." This is the way they teach children to obey their parents. Read Paul's instructions in Eph. 6. Are you called of God to preach the gospel? Then you are one of those who should be faithful in the house of God and regardless of the popular opinion warn God's children against every false way, that their feet may be saved from the bewitching snares of this evil world. "Show the strait and narrow way and at the same time show every by-path into which they may be led out of the way of truth and be deceived by the woman who says stolen waters and bread eaten in secret are sweet." Prov. 9.

May God strengthen us to faithfulness in preaching and diligence in giving more earnest heed to those things which He has spoken is my pray for Christ sake. I do not know that brother Yates will get out of this what he was after but I have written as I have felt impressed and I leave the result with the Lord.

Affectionately

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

DEAR BROTHERS GOLD AND LESTER:—It has been on my mind to try to pen down what I feel and hope how the Lord has led me from nature to grace, and as I have met with a good friend and brother, I will try to dictate the best I can for him to pen down. I feel my poor tongue cannot express, nor pen portray all I wish or want to say.

My father's family consists of eight children, five boys and three girls, and our parents were more anxious to learn us how to work, for that seemed all they cared for in my youthful days. Though they have both passed away, and I am happy to state they joined the church at Conoho, and had a good hope through grace of a better world than this. I had serious thoughts about my condition all through my youthful days. But the first shock I had was about taking some snuff out of a lady's box that came over to see mother. As they walked in the garden I thought I would put some of her snuff in my box. But before I put any in mine, I was checked by some power, and made to feel it was wrong. After that my troubles began to grow and got so bad I asked my parents and the whole family to pray for me. They did not seem to pay much attention to me, so I told them if I had a chance to ride I would go and see Elder Purvis. I thought surely he would pray for me, and give me some comfort. But I met with no opportunity to go, so I went to see sister Philpot, and told her some of my troubles, and to my surprise she could tell me more than I could her, and you cannot imagine what a consolation it was to find that she could tell me the same things that I had felt. When I returned home my troubles seemed to grow worse and worse. One evening my mother told me to go to the woods after some wood; when I got to the woods I saw an old house and went in the house and sat down, and became so I could not move hand nor foot, neither could I speak. When I got so I could speak I said in a voice, God be merciful unto me a poor sinner. I arose from there and went to the house. I do not know whether I cooked my supper or not, but know I went to bed, and was in so much trouble I could not sleep any that night, and just rolled and mourned with my poor aching heart all through the night. I arose very early next morning and cooked breakfast. Then I went to make up the beds and brush up the rooms, and before I got the beds made up that heavy burden that gave me so much trouble and had been pressing me down so long fell off. Yes, dear saints, I can say I felt it as plain as I ever felt anything, and I felt light as a feather, and felt good, yes I felt like I loved the Lord and everything in this world. This was just before the third Saturday in July, 1875. I went to Conoho and wanted to tell these dear people what I had felt, but felt to unworthy: so on my way home a voice seemed to speak in me and say, there is a duty for me to do; and it followed me until Saturday, before the third Sunday in August '75. On that day I went before the dear saints at that place and tried to relate what you have read above, and to my surprise was received and baptised next day by Elder J. W. Purvis. I feel like I never shall forget that day. It was a day of rejoicing with me, and felt like I wanted every person to help me to praise the good Lord. Brethren Purvis, Staton and Cherry went home with us that day, and I did so much enjoy it. I felt like I would never see any more trouble on this earth, but would rejoice all the time in praising the Lord. Brother Cherry told me I had on my silver slippers, and they would soon begin to wear out, and I found his words were true, for I got in deep trouble before the next week was out, because I felt like I was no christian, and was deceived, and worse than all had deceived the dear saints whom I loved so well. I felt like the Lord sent old satan to torment me for deceiving his dear people. No tongue can ever express the trouble I went through with before I got any relief. Many of my friends said I was going crazy, and I truly thought I was. One day while I was in so much trouble my mother sent me after some potatoes. I was so frightened I could not go alone, so I took the Bible with me, and when I got in the place where the potatoes were I let the Bible open and my eyes saw some of the words of David where it said, Praise ye the Lord. Every verse I read said, "Praise ye the Lord. I am sorry I cannot recollect what the chapter was, I was so carried away with the words I did not notice the chapter. I went back to the house trying to praise the Lord, singing the words of 597th hymn in Lloyd's selection which read thus,

"A few more days on earth to spend,
And all my cares and trials shall end, &c."

I have been low down in spiritual things since at times, but not so deep as I was on the above occasion. I went on a visit among the dear saints for about a week, and oh what a refreshing time I had. Though I felt to be the least among them, yet was made to rejoice in the same good doctrine of salvation by grace and grace alone. Oh how I do enjoy God's dear ministers that declare the whole counsel of God, and I always tried to fill my seat when able. And now the good Lord has seen fit to afflict me so I have not been able to attend my meetings since the last third Sunday in June. For some cause, best known to the Lord he has taken away my eyesight. Last July after much suffering with a pain in my head that nothing but morphine seemed to afford any relief. Oh dear saints, how hard it is to be deprived of our natural eye sight. No one but those that have been thus afflicted can so well sympathize with me. I hope I thank the Lord it is no worse. I can hear and talk yet, and I would be pleased for any of the dear saints to come to see me, for I am sad and lonely and need to be cheered by their visits. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord." May the good Lord impress some of the dear saints to come to see me, also to pray for poor unworthy me, that I may be clothed with faith and grace to humbly submit to whatever the good Lord afflicts me with, for I have long realized that whatever he does is right. "Praise ye the Lord."

Do with this as you think best and pray for this poor afflicted sinner,

CHARITY E. MIZELL,

Faloyra, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I will now try in my weak way to write a short letter to you. I have for some time felt impressed to write to you, but I have never felt that I could write anything that would be any comfort or consolation to you or any one else; but be it as it may, my weakness and ignorance do not stop the desire to write. I have had a name among the Primitive Baptists ever since I was about 17 years old, and I very often fear that the name is all. I fear I have not got the nature of them. I have been with them about four years, and I cannot see as I am any service to the cause; but the brethren have as yet spared me to stay with them. When I first saw the church of the living God, as I hope I have, I saw her in her pure state, and I wanted to live with her; but did not feel at all fit to unite with the people of God; yet I feel that they were the only people in this unfriendly world that I wanted to live with, and when I united with them it was to find a home and a resting place, and it has ever since been a place of rest for me at times. At first I felt that I never should see any more trouble, but how little I knew of the ups and downs of the christian. If I know anything about it how often I have felt that I was deceived in the whole matter, and had deceived the church. Then I am made to turn and look back to many times the Lord has delivered me out of the snares of the devil, and I can't doubt those evidences; but they seem very dim sometimes. I know one thing, if I am saved it is by the power and mercy of an allwise God. Then it is by the grace of God I am what I am. My dear brother, I have felt impressed for some cause to write to you, and write my experience as it is called, but I find I cannot do that, for every day of my life is an experience to me; but I am writing now to try to get relief and ease of mind. I find that there is not much rest for me. I never felt that I could be of any use to the people of God. I very often feel that the church would be better off without me; but they are the people I want to live and die with. Dear brother, I would to God that I could attend my meetings and be silent and find rest, but no, I cannot, there is a restless, uneasy feeling within my breast for the welfare of Zion. I am laboring under a burden the most of my time, and I don't know what to do. I feel it is enough for me to do to be silent; but no, that does not bring rest, and of all men I am sure I feel as unfit to try to speak in the name of the Lord. I have felt that I had rather die than try to preach, for that is what I feel I must do. I have cried unto the Lord to let me die rather than to preach, but I am yet spared for some purpose which is unknown to me. I am sure I do not want the praise of men bad enough to cause me to get up and expose my ignorance, in public. My dear brother, I am trying to relieve my mind, but I don't see as I can ever be any comfort or consolation to the people of God. I am nothing but a poor sinful ignorant man, and without the Lord of Israel keeps me I shall go astray. I do not want to deceive anybody, or be deceived myself. I want the brethren to act faithfully with me, and if they find I am mistaken tell me so; or to act faithful becomes the children of God. I will close for this time. Dear brother Gold try what I have written by the standard of truth and see whether it is true or not, for I very often fear that there is no reality in anything that I do, and I know and can say of a truth that unless I am led by the Spirit of an allwise God that I shall never be any comfort or consolation to any one. Sometimes I feel that I want to spend all the rest of my life in praising and serving our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; then at other times I would almost shun the company of Primitive Baptists if I could. Brother Gold I have withheld sending you this sorry letter until now when it seems like I must send it, and if you find any thing in it of any comfort or consolation, may God's great and holy name have all the honor and praise. I will close. May the God of Israel be with you all through the journey of life is my prayer.

Your Brother I hope,

E. W. BRYAN.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR SIR:— You will please, having a generous christian heart, consider this, which only comes seeking information respecting the plan of salvation, as preached by you and believed by those of the christian church which you represent.

We read similar or like Bibles. We claim faith in the same Christ. We are striving to reach the same Heaven, and yet we differ as to the plan of which we are saved, if I understand your theory. You claim if I understand you, that those who are successful in getting to Heaven, were predestined from the beginning, and that those who are damned were likewise, from the beginning predestined to that sad end, and that no intervention could have or will change this because it has been so fixed from the beginning by God Himself.

Possibly you and those who think as you are right, and will be saved eternally by this faith, but certainly it is not the plain and simple teachings of my Bible which I suppose is just like yours, or at least reads like yours.

My Bible teaches that Jesus Christ died to save all mankind, not one left out; but on condition. Heaven then can only be gained on condition. We stand to-day as guilty as we were before Jesus died. The difference is only this, when man transgressed the law of God and would have received immediate banishment from the presence and favor of God. Christ Jesus died in man's stead, giving man a chance. Thus He, Jesus Christ, became man's bondsman, so the only possible plan for man is to repent and believe in Christ Jesus. Said He, after he had died and risen from the dead, "Repent and believe and thou shalt be saved."

You may find such teaching as you and those who believe as you believe in your Bible, but certainly it is not the teaching of my Bible which I suppose reads just like yours. You hold up Christ with strength to certain ones, though you know not who, and we to all, if they will accept Him, and to none, if none will accept Him. This is what my Bible teaches.

I notice many things said in the LANDMARK of dreams. For dreams read Jeremiah.

Very respectfully yours in Christ,
R. B. HARGROVE.

• Remarks.

The above is a sample of Armenianism undressed and naked. All Armenians teach this way. They misrepresent us by charging that we teach that predestination is the cause of the damnation of those that are lost. We teach no such thing. The word Predestination is never used in Scripture except in reference to the salvation of God's chosen people, and it is used with reference to any one that is saved: "For, whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born, among many brethren." Rom. 8:29.

Do you think people love predestination who attack it and those that believe as this man does?

He sets forth and defends the system of creature works. He charges us with holding to dreams and would cast shame upon us.

Let the writer of the above attend to the work he glories in so much. He will have enough to do if he does this. As for us we hope to trust in the Lord our salvation. We state that salvation is free to every one that feels the need of the help of the Lord.

P. D. G.

—•—
"Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked; from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity."— Psalm 64: 2.

WORK OUT YOUR OWN SALVATION

MY DEAR BRETHREN GOLD AND LESTER:—If the brethren editors will permit me I feel inclined to submit a few thoughts on the above subject. The 12th and 13th verses of 2d chapter of Paul's letter to the Phillippians reads thus: "Wherefore, my beloved, as you have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure." I do not understand that the salvation here referred to had any reference to a deliverance from sin and eternal death, but did have reference to a deliverance from the many evils that the people of God are subject to here in time. We find that the people here addressed Paul calls beloved, and the whole tenor of his letter to them shows conclusively that they were brethren in the Lord. So then it is God's people that he works in, and it is they whose duty it is to work out what he has worked in them, since they are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works. For a long time I had a desire to know the truth; and I have hoped and still hope that in the fall of 1887 the Lord revealed to me the way of salvation; and it was so different from what I had expected. For to that time I had been trying for fourteen years to be a christian, and to keep the law. I felt much in earnest about it, and worked hard to that end. But I worked up all my material, and wore out all my tools, and was still without God and without hope in the world; and often I said in my heart, Oh Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean, and in this trying hour I hope the Lord appeared to me as my Savior; and for the first time in my life I saw that righteousness did not come by the law, neither had Christ died in vain. Christ Jesus the Lord was my Savior. I really felt like he was close by me, and that he loved me.

I viewed him as the Savior indeed of all his people. Only a few days before I wondered if there was any one so far from God as I. But now I wondered if any one had such a Savior as I. My soul was all wonder and love. I could not help talking about it to those I believed to be christians, and when I found that their experience was mine I felt like I wanted to live and die with them, (Primitive Baptists) for they are the only organized body of believers that believe and preach what I hope the Lord has revealed to me. What a glorious mystery, the Lord, my Savior, my Deliverer. I felt like I wanted to love him all the time. I wondered if this is the way the Lord had led his people all the way, so I began to read the Bible, and I found the Lord had been specially good to Israel. Isaac, a representative of all God's people, when condemned to die, was delivered. Jacob, being another representative, and the lot of God's inheritance, was found in a desert land, and waste howling wilderness. Lazarus in the grave, representing, in my mind, all of God's people in the grave of carnality, unable to accept offered terms, or to close in with life, had the life-giving word spoken to him; and surely in the same way the Lord had delivered me, and I found that the truth that had been revealed in me had been fully set forth by the prophets, declaring that salvation was of the Lord; that he should see of the travail of his soul and should be satisfied; that the righteousness of his people was of him; that this people should be gathered one by one; and that the God of heaven should set up a kingdom that should stand forever; and hundreds of other scriptures fully setting forth Christ as the Savior of his people; showing fully that the iniquities of his people were laid upon him; and that he was delivered for our offences, and rose for our justification. The angel told Joseph He shall save his people, he told Mary that he should reign over the House of Jacob forever. Christ said of his sheep, I give unto them eternal life. He further said he came to do the will of the Father, and his will was that of all that he had given him he should lose none; and the last words he said (it is finished). But oh, my Dear Prethren, how many professed christians in this our day say that he died with a lie in his mouth when they say it is not finished. But he is still offering salvation, wooing and beseeching men and women to be saved. The Apostles now seeing the glory of his Kingdom, and the power of his death and resurrection, began to say, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins, and that by him all that believe are justified from all things from which they could not be justified by the law of Moses, declaring that the gifts and callings of God are without repentence, blessing the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with all spiritual blessings in Christ, according as he has chosen us in him before the foundation of the world. So we see the Prophets prophesied of him as the one that should redeem and save Israel. Christ declared himself as the only Saviour, and the Apostles declare him to be to his people wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption, declaring that we have redemption through his blood, and that he has obtained eternal redemption for us; and when you meet a Bible christian to-day he will tell you his only hope is that Christ bore his sins. So surely Paul did not mean to tell those brethren at Phillippi to work out their eternal salvation as a Theological preacher quoted it to me on one occasion. But I understand that he meant what he said, for them to work out their own salvation or as Jude calls it the common salvation, or it might be called time salvation. I believe that salvation in the Bible term refers to God's people. But I have thought that there is a natural salvation that might be worked out by natural men and women. Here is a young man that may have been well raised, when he is 16 or 18 years old he goes out at night, his mother asks where have you been John, he refuses to tell, but says no where much. It is not very wrong to refuse a direct answer, but he is the least bit ashamed to tell, and the next we know he is drinking too much, and in other vices also; he becomes degraded more and more, and after a while, if he sees a lady or high toned gentleman coming, he will cross the street, his mother is in trouble, and finally he fills a drunkard's grave, and there has been no deliverance or salvation in the life of that man. But here is another who may have been raised poor, he tells the truth, lives honest, takes the advice of his parents, keeps good company, properly applies himself to his work and books, every body speaks well of him, and in the end we may find him in the President's chair. This man has spent a life of deliverance and salvation, and he has worked it out too. So in the life of a christian, They have realized that grace and truth come by Jesus Christ, and that the price of their eternal redemption was paid more than 1800 years ago, and we know that he continues to lead and instruct us, and where we fail to obey and get in trouble no christian will accuse the Lord. We know it is our own disobedience. The Lord told John to say to one of the churches, "Behold I stand at the door and knock, if any man will hear my voice and open to me I will come in and sup with him and he with me." I hope I know what it is to sup with the Lord, and I feel sure that I know what it is to disobey and have the frown of my Saviour. I have often told my brethren that I may make a pretty good outside show, but that I am guilty of secret sins and also of presumptuous sins, and many other kinds perhaps, but I see in brethren often things that I do not think have any tendency to work out their own salvation. Many times some of our brethren and sisters will fail without a good cause to attend to their regular church meeting. This is a small thing, but there is no salvation in it. I have tried it. We fall short as often perhaps by the sin of omission as we do by the sin of commission. We should try to be prompt in all our dealings with each other and our fellow man, as well as in serving the Lord. One thing I have often thought about is this, I sometimes see a notice from Brother Gold in the LANDMARK that subscribers are behind, and that he is very much in need of money. I know that it is sometimes the case that one cannot pay, but no doubt 9 out of 10 of it is negligence. One has as much right to be negligent as another. Suppose we all fail to pay for a year or two. We know the paper would have to stop. Surely none of us want that. We are not working out our salvation in this negligent way. I have written plain on this point, but I believe we ought to have our pure minds stirred up to these things. I see sometimes some of our brethren go into occupations that give much trouble to the brotherhood. This in my opinion is wrong, and is not working out our salvation. Most of our brethren oppose secret organizations, and so do I. Never have I belonged to any order but the Primitive Baptist church, and never expect to; but from what information I have of the Masonic order it is the best worldly institution of the kind, but none of us tolerate that, but you will find one now and then supporting lightning rod agents, insurance agents, farmers' alliance, or something of the kind. This is wrong. If we could only leave off all these things and trust in the Lord we shall be as Mt. Zion which can never be removed; and in this way we would work out our own salvation.

Yours in hope,

W. J. STEPHENSON.

Polenta, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEARLY BELOVED AND PRECIOUS BROTHER:— Though I who feel my weakness and imperfections so great, feel unworthy to address one so highly esteemed and so gifted in things pertaining to the goodness and mercies of God as you are. It has been on my mind for the last few months to write you a few lines, and I shall not feel clear until I do write. I often fear that I am not actuated by the true spirit in writing, but my mind is so drawn out to the loved ones at times, that it would be a burden to me to refrain from writing and the sweet words of comfort I receive from them. Oh how could I do without them. I don't feel worthy of any of the precious letters that I receive from the dear children of God, though I receive them as great blessings from my Heavenly Father through them, and oh how cheering are their precious words of love to me in my lonely hours of meditation. O brother Gold, how little and how unworthy I feel of a name among such a dear people. I feel if I am one with them, surely I am the least one of all the family; yet I feel to say with Ruth, "Entreat me not to leave thee," for where else could I go. I cannot enjoy myself anywhere else. I want to live where they live, die where they die, be buried where they are buried, and their God to be my God: I want to be made able to trust him whose promise is "I will provide" through all my remaining days. When I meet with trials and disappointments, oh that I could remember and not be forgetful of the kind and tender mercies of him who is a husband indeed to the widow, a father to the fatherless, and a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. But oh I am so full of imperfection that often makes me doubt. I cannot live like I feel like christians ought to live. O is there any one like me that has such exercises of mind as I do, any that are of such a doubtful mind, that sometimes feel that they are even forgotten by the dear family of God? Do you brother Gold, who are so strong ever have such feelings as these? If you don't I hope you can bear with my weakness, and forgive me for troubling you with this imperfect letter, for I felt that I must write and tell you of my imperfections. I never want to write anything to dishonor the cause of Christ. If I should ever write anything again (though I don't know as I shall ever write any more) that is not in accordance with the Spirit of divine truth, I want you to throw it by unnoticed, and all will be well with me, and I will not think hard of you in the least. I desire to be ever ready to confess my faults. I think it is right to confess our faults to one another. If you have a mind brother Gold, and your time is not so much taken up that you cannot, I would be glad for you to write, and when you write if you know, tell me whether the following words are scripture or not: "Do not evil unto thy mother thinking to honor thyself." I have not any knowledge of ever seeing them in print, but don't you think I would do well to heed the command in a two-fold sense?

Our Association is appointed to be held with the church at Lawyer Spring next fall, don't you think you will have a mind to come? I feel like I would enjoy your company. It is a great pleasure to us, it is to me indeed, when any of those that publish peace, that bring glad tidings, that say unto Zion thy God reigneth, are pleased to lodge with us; though we feel unworthy, and feel as I exclaimed one night in my sleep, O I never can do enough for them.

Pray for me that I may never be a dishonor to the cause of Christ, and may the God of peace remain with you and yours.

Your little unworthy sister in a precious hope in Christ.

LOUISA A. EDWARDS.
Polkton, Anson Co. N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR SIR:— Primitive Baptists in this section deny that the written word of God is the Gospel. Please give your views through the LANDMARK in regard to it. Yours truly,

HENRY MORRIS.
(Answered in Editorial columns.)

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV I.....No. 15.

WILSON, N. C., JULY 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

WHO IS THE MOTHER?

"Then the King answered and said give her the living child, and in no wise deny it: She is the mother thereof." 1st Kings 3: 27.

This is a noted case testing and showing the wisdom of Solomon. The Lord gave him wisdom, and when an occasion arose his wisdom shone forth to the glory of God in awarding a righteous judgment between two contending women. Two women came before him, each claiming a living child, and neither one owning a child that its mother had overlaid in her sleep and it died. The mother of the dead child placed it with the mother of the living child, and put the living child in her own bosom and claimed it. The contention was brought before the King who proved who the true mother was by commanding a division of the living child, and giving each of them one half thereof. This the false claimant agreed to readily. But the true mother loved her own child and objected saying, let her take it.

She so loved her own child that she sought its good and preferred its going into the hand of the false claimant alive rather than be divided and slain.

This proves that where true love is one will suffer loss himself rather than damage others.

Take the case of church matters, and let us consider that. A question springs up that when agitated and pressed causes strife among brethren, but if let alone and not pressed by any one they will all move along in peace. But there is some man that has an itching to be a reformer or to be great and get fame, or he loves contention, and this one pushes that matter until he gets some one or more dissatisfied, and a division is forced, and two parties are formed.

Now what is gained by this fuss? Nothing but shame and distress. No one is benefitted. If that member that occasioned this fuss and distress had loved the church as the true mother loves her child he never would have caused such distress, but he would have suffered wrong and kept his mouth shut.

You may usually determine who causes strife and trouble in a church. The one guilty is generally possessed of an oppressive spirit. He knows he is right, and he is firm and faithful, and will not yield—he is not afraid of any body, but is sound and solid and contending for principle, and he is going to endure if no one else does, and says that he rather live with one or two that are faithful than to continue in what he condemns. He insists that it is better to divide and be right if there are only a few. He will divide the living child to carry out his point, and turn out good members in order to have his own way, and call that faithfulness. Is there any love of the living child in this? No. If such an one loved Jesus he would counsel peace and forbearance, and suffer wrong rather than do wrong. He that truly loves the church of Christ will bear anything before he will divide the church, or do anything to occasion the cutting off or death of a single member.

Usually there is some wrong or neglect, slackness or unfaithfulness in some way in one that brings on such strife. Had this woman been as careful of her child as she ought she would not overlaid it in sleep and killed it. A member gets heady or high-minded about something, and wants too much attention shown him, or exalts himself in some way, or gets up something new, and this brings about opposition from others, and thus the strife starts.

Instead of being quiet and counseling others to do likewise, he begins to press matters.

But love or charity suffers long and is kind. Charity thinketh no evil. It hides the multitude of faults in our brethren, but this false principle or act exposes them and causes many to sin still more; for as they become embittered toward each other the corrupt principles of the flesh get the mastery, and the brethren will think wrong, talk wrong, and act wrong, so that much shame follows and great distress. The cause is badly hurt, the enemies triumph, and the brethren lose the savor of their name, and are shorn of their strength. God is not in fusses and quarrels. Mark them that cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned and avoid them. The doctrine we have learned or been taught of God is to love one another. We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren. When brethren love one another they dwell in peace, and do to others or desire to do what they would that men should do to them, and seek peace, pray for it, and do nothing to fret and wrong each other; and will take much or suffer much from the brethren before they think evil of them. Charity suffereth long and is kind.

Do you ever think how much a kind mother will take from a child—and how she would lay down her own life for her child before she would consent to its being divided? Yea how she would allow a false claimant to take it alive before she would consent to its death.

What think you of a Baptist who will bring about a confusion and then get up a party and divide the church? He is not like the true mother. A true Baptist, even if he is shamefully treated and cut off wrongfully from the church, would counsel the church to cleave together and never divide, and would rather suffer alone and bear the wrong put on him than to cause a division by getting others to go with him and cause distress to a church.

P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN THE LORD:—I write to know where the Baptists get the rule for the church to decide public transgression at the discretion of the church. I don't know that all have such a rule. And I would like to know what it takes to make a public transgression. What I wish to know is whether we have any authority in the Bible for dealing with members only in accordance with the 18th chapter of Matthew. Some churches have a rule in substance about as follows. All private offences shall be dealt with according to the 18th chapter of Matthew and other Scriptures relative thereto, and of public transgressions according to the discretion of the church. But as we differ in what it takes to make a public transgression I would like to hear from you on all the foregoing questions. I remain your brother in hope of eternal life. HENRY T. NAVE.
Lacomb, Linn Co., Oregon.

Remarks.

One brother may sin against another. Peter said Lord, "How oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Till seven times? I say not until seven times but until seventy times seven. Matt. 18: 21, 22. I refer to this to show that one brother may sin against another brother.

The word trespass, or the word fault is more frequently used in Scripture to set forth wrong conduct of one brother against another, while the words sin, transgression and iniquity are more frequently used to show that certain offences are more directly against God.

In cases where your brother has hurt or wounded your feelings by improper conduct in any way it is called usually a fault or trespass—not a transgression. Now you know your own feelings towards your brother. Has he so trespassed that you cannot bear it, or carry it in your feelings? Why if so, go and tell him of his fault or trespass between you and him alone. Do not tell any one else of it, but go and tell him alone—do not go in anger or wrath. But suppose it is a public matter, or suppose it is known generally? What then? Well, if your feelings are hurt why not tell him of it? Is it not right and proper still that you go to him alone and tell him of your distress—that your feelings are hurt—not that you are mad, but that you are distressed.

If it is a matter between you and him alone, and no one beside you distressed because of the trespass, it when you go to him alone and state your grief to him, he repents and gives you satisfaction, the trouble is ended.

But suppose one called a brother is a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such an one we are not to eat, or no such are to be retained in church fellowship. You know what such characters are. A fornicator, one who has another woman beside his own wife in an improper use; a covetous man is one that never helps in the matter of paying church expenses, or is not disposed to help, does not want to do so, but wants other people's goods or property, will get it wrongfully if he can: an idolater is one that worships or serves any other god except the true God of Israel: a railer is one that condemns the doctrine of Christ, or speaks with malice against it: a drunkard is one who drinks intoxicating liquors so that he gets out of his proper mind, or commits deeds a sober man would not commit: an extortioner is one who over—charges for his money or services and proves that the love of money, which is the root of all evil, controls him. Such a man will oppress the poor. Now suppose a man called a brother (though he is not in Spirit a brother,) yet he is a church member, should manifest himself to be any one of the characters described above, can the church keep him in her fellowship? Certainly not. She is to withdraw from him, and not even to eat or keep company with him. Such conduct is sin against God, and can we forgive it? No. It does not matter what promises such an one may make, if he continues in these things, or any of them, you cannot hold him in your fellowship. If he has repented and God has forgiven him, and you feel satisfied of that then you can receive him as one the Lord has forgiven.

I do not believe a child of God will persist in any one of these sins. He may be overtaken in such things, but if he is one of God's people he cannot live or continue therein. When, therefore, any one called a brother is found guilty of such things, and it appears that such is his habit and character, withdraw from him at once, and keep no more company with him as a child of God.

"Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt have lost its savor it is fit for nothing but to be trodden under foot of men." If you retain such in your membership you will also soon lose your good savor, and be fit only for the dung-hill.

We do not need any other rule than the one Jesus gives in Matt. 18, and also in his teachings that we should have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness. The entirely safe rule of Baptists to follow is to confess their own faults one to another, and pray one for another. The habit of some is to talk of the faults of other Baptists, and while thus doing never to pray for such. The best time for me to pray for one is while I am remembering my own faults and confessing them.

P. D. G.

ANSWER TO MR. MORRISS.

The written word of God or the Bible is either the gospel, or it is not the gospel.

All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine etc, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. No one would perhaps claim that the written word of God is more than the Scriptures. Yet the Scriptures do not make the man of God, but only furnish him unto all good works.

It is one thing to make a man of God, and another to furnish or supply him unto good works.

The Scriptures preached the gospel to Abraham, Gal. 3: 8. But Abraham lived before the written word of God appeared, or before what we call the Bible was written; therefore the written word cannot be the gospel.

The gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. The gospel, or power of God to salvation to the believer, is one thing, and the written word is another. The Word of God and that which is written in the Bible are different in the sense that one testifies of the other, one is the substance or power, and the other the record of that power. Jesus said, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they that testify of me." The Scriptures testify of Christ, or bear witness of him. But they are not Christ. If I give a note of $100 that note is not the $100, but it testifies that I owe that amount. A deed to a tract of land is not the land itself, but it is the necessary record or witness of the ownership of the land. A sign-board stating that it is ten miles to Washington City is no part of Washington City, but it is a witness of the distance to the city.

Jesus is the Word of God that was made flesh. He that has Jesus has eternal life. But a man might fill his pockets with bibles and memorize every word of it and that would not give him eternal life. We should not under-rate the scriptures because they are not the power of God or the gospel. They are a great and wonderful blessing from the Lord, and should be prized and studied. We should give good heed thereto, because they are of the Lord, or the witness and testifier of his power.

P. D. G.

¹²The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law.—1st. Cor. 15:56.

The strength of some poisonous insects is in their sting—the deadly bite of any serpent would be harmless if it were made incapable of biting. Extract the sting of the hurtful insect and it is harmless. After extracting the sting of a bee it may still live, and look to be as capable of inflicting pain as ever. The little child that has been stung by it would be full of fear of another stinging too; but its power to hurt is all gone, though the child is ignorant thereof.

We often hear the child of God exclaim, "I am afraid of the sting of death." He has been stung and knows the pain. What is that sting? It is sin. No one knows as a christian does what sin is, and how painful is its sting. It always kills. There is no power in man, nor of him, to prevent his being stung, nor to arrest the effect of the sting; nor is there any other sting so painful. What gives such power to this sting of death which is sin? It is the law; for the strength of sin is the law. Sin has no power where there is no law; for without the law sin was dead. Before the law or commandment entered my conscience I was alive in my own righteousness, and had felt no plague or sting of sin, and no death. But when the commandment came sin revived and I died. The motions of sins which received their strength from the law wrought in me all manner of evil desire. Not that the law is sin, or unto evil, or warrants it at all; for it condemns it, because the law is good; but sin, that it might appear by the law to be exceeding sinful, slays me by the law which is good. Sin is the enemy of a just law. Where that law is not sin is dead or powerless, for that which is dead has no strength—as death is the opposite of life or strength, and whatever is dead has no motion or action at all. But the entrance of the law, or the giving of the law, develops the power of sin. It occasions the revival or raising up—the appearance of sin, and sin works death always. When the law enters sin appears as its enemy and slays me by the law which is good. Where there is no law sin is not imputed. In our experience we are taught this. We were righteous in our own eyes and felt a sufficiency within our reach to amend our life, and were at ease until the commandment came which we thought was unto life, but found it to be unto death. For now sin abounded, and there was no power to do good, and sin reigned unto death. Here is the sting of sin. What was my deliverance? I thank God through Jesus Christ my Lord; for Jesus was made of a woman, made under the law, and fulfilled the law, and was made sin for me. He satisfied the law and died for me. He tasted death for every one of his kindred or brethren, and is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. He made an end of sin. So that sin being ended there is nothing for the law to operate with or upon, and hence the law is dead, or that is dead wherein we were held. We are dead to the law by the body of Christ. Suppose you turn a fire loose amidst very combustible fuel. How fiercely the fire rages. The strength of the fire is shown in the combustible matter it burns. You could not know the strength of the fire if there were no fuel, nor could you know the combustible nature of the fuel if there were no fire. One is known by the other. Taking away one renders powerless the other. The law is a fiery law. It was revealed on Mt. Sinai in devouring fire. The wicked are as stubble fit only for burning, a fuel of fire. Christ is a whole burnt offering, most holy, and makes an end of sin, and the law's work is hence finished, and in him God is seen in the body of heaven in his clearness, with no sign of fire. We are dead to the law by the body of Christ, and by his resurrection are risen with him and live unto God by the faith of him.

But as little children having been stung and fearing the enemy that stung them, dread its presence, and not being always assured that it has no power, are subject to distress on its sight or appearance, so the children of God being partakers of flesh and blood, and in this body of death having the sentence of death in themselves, are subject to bondage all their lifetime through fear of death dreading its sting, and after feeling the motions of sin which are by the law, and fearing they may not be God's people, they are much cast down and in deep bondage all their lifetime. If we could always live by faith, and could be settled and established in the great prophecy that death shall be swallowed up, then we could rejoice. Just so far as we believe do we receive of the power of this great victory that death is swallowed up. That which is swallowed up is hid and gone—destroyed. It is only in the resurrection that this song is sung, "O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?" When the child of God comes to die death shall be hid, and he shall never see it. Jesus is the plague and destruction of death.

P. D. G.

Friend G. W. Davis requests my view of Rev. 11. concerning the two witnesses.

In this chapter John is given a reed like unto a rod to measure the temple of God, and the altar, and those that worship therein. This denotes that great persecution is coming upon the true worshippers, and therefore they shall be measured and identified beforehand. The Lord marks his people and saves them before destruction arrives. He puts them in the Ark before the flood comes. He covers them in houses stained with blood of the passover lamb on the doors before the death angel passes over. Before the destruction of Jerusalem all his people flee to the mountains and escape. So here he measures them before the plague reaches the earth. He gives power unto his two witnesses denoted by two olive trees and two candlesticks standing before the God of the whole earth. The olive tree yielded oil for the lights, and the candlesticks held the lights. The law and the gospel are the two witnesses. By the law is the knowledge of sin. By the gospel is the knowledge of its removal. Both witnesses are true, and both needed—the law to condemn—the gospel to bring light to view in justification, so that we can see light in him who dwells in light. By the Old and New Testament scriptures are set forth the principles of both law and gospel, or that which condemns and that which justifies.

But mankind should wax worse and worse, and should trample them under their feet, and count them as dead, so that the light of truth should appear to be eclipsed, and should be greatly elated, and send presents of gladness and joy to each other.

The enemies of God desire the overthrow of the sovereignty of God, and to be allowed to have their own way. After these witnesses, who have power to shut Heaven so as to withhold rain—and over waters to turn them to blood—or that have power to curse the earth, and send war on it, shall have finished their testimony, the beast that cometh out of the bottomless pit, or false religion under the guise of a ferocious beast, shall make war on these witnesses, or upon the Scriptures, and those that love them, or upon the church of Christ, and shall prevail and overcome them and slay their bodies in the streets of Sodom and Egypt, or in the place of oppression, Egypt and Jerusalem, where the prophets and apostles perished and where Jesus was crucified and slain.

But God shall revive and raise up these witnesses and truth shall appear in great brightness, and the enemies of God shall be slain. Great judgments shall befall the enemies of God. Let therefore those who have the witness of God in their hearts not be dismayed. Every one written in the book shall be saved. Their record is on high.

P. D. G.

THE PILGRIM'S BANNER.

This is the name of new Primitive Baptist paper published semi-monthly at Valdosta Ga., by Elders A. V. Simms and Lee Hancks.

It is a neat, good paper of our order.

P. D. G.

Mr. J. M. Vaughn, of Round Peak, N. C., has agreed to solicit for ZION'S LANDMARK, and is authorized to receive and receipt money for same.

As Elders Isaac Jones, J. A. Burch and J. E. Adams travel considerably, they are also authorized to receive subscriptions for ZION'S LANDMARK. All other brethren and friends that desire to help us in this way are requested to do so.

P. D. G.

The Contentnea Union is appointed to be held with the church at Old Town Creek, Sat. and 5th Sunday in July.

UNION MEETINGS.

The Skewarkey Union is appointed to be held with the church at Falls of Tar River Friday, Saturday and 5th Sunday in July.

The Black Creek Union is appointed to be held with the church at Cross Roads, Johnston county N. C., on Sat and 5th Sunday in July.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Please give notice that the Toisnot Union will meet, the Lord willing, with the church at Toisnot in the town of Elm City on Saturday before the 5th Sunday in July next, where we hope all brethren will feel free to go, both ministers and laymen.

Yours unworthily,
A. J. MOORE.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Will you please insert in LANDMARK that the next session of the Smithfield Union will be held with the church at Bethany Meeting House, Johnston county N. C., on Saturday and 5th Sunday in July 1894. Brethren generally and especially ministering brethren are invited to attend.

G. S. WILSON, Clerk.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—You will please publish in LANDMARK that the 6th session of the Eno Primitive Baptist Association will be held with the church at Eno 3 miles from Durham, N. C. beginning on the 1st Saturday in August 1894, and lasting three days. A cordial invitation is extended to all who have a mind to attend and they will be met at Durham and conveyed to meeting on Friday p. m. and Saturday a. m., August 3rd and 4th, reduced rates on all railroads will be asked for.

Very truly,
G. C. FARTHING, Clerk.

ASSOCIATIONAL.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Please publish in LANDMARK that the Abbott's Creek Union Association will be held with the church at Pine Meeting House, Davidson county, N. C., eight miles west of Linwood, eleven miles north of Salisbury, N. C., to commence on Saturday before the 4th Lord's day in August 1894. Those coming by railroad will be met with conveyance on Friday before at Linwood at 10 o'clock a. m. North bound train due about 8:30 a. m. South bound train due about 9:30 a. m. We invite brethren and friends to visit us, especially ministering brethren.

J. L. SNIDER, Clerk.

The Country Line Association will be held with the church at McCray, Alamance county, N. C., commencing Saturday before the third Sunday in August, 1894, and continues three days. The brethren and especially ministers are invited to attend. Those coming from the east by rail should get off at Haw River Friday evening, and those coming from the west should get off at Burlington Friday morning, where they will be met and taken care of. Those intending to get off at Haw River should write R. G. Aldridge at Haw River, N. C. Those at Burlington should write brother J. Brooks at Iola, N. C. This done by order of the church in conference.

J. D. DRAUGHN, Mod.

J. BROOKS, Clerk.

The Staunton River Old School Baptist Association will be held, the Lord willing, with the church at Stonewall, Appomattox county, Va., beginning on Friday before 2nd Sunday in August, 1894, and continue three days. We desire as many of the ministering brethren will meet with us as can. All brethren wishing to attend are cordially invited. They will be met at Concord depot, ten miles southeast of Lynchburg, Va., and conveyed to places of entertainment. It will be well for all those coming by railroad to write to P. B. Stone, Albert Stone, or John Scruggs what day they wish to be met. Address them at Karl, Appomattox county, Va.

J. H. STONE.

Every word that I have written I know to be the truth. My heart's desire and prayer to God is that he will keep, guide and direct the bereaved family that she left, and bring the last one of them to the knowledge of the truth, if it can be His will. Her oldest son told me that he saw her spirit walking by the side of our Lord Jesus on the brightest road that he ever saw. This was a great consolation to the unworthy writer of this notice.

E. S. PHELPS.

Greenville, N. C.

SAMUEL GARRELL.

The subject of this notice was born June 19th 1817 and died Oct. 25th 1893. He was first married to Susan Simmons daughter of John and Nancy Simmons. The result of this marriage was ten children, one died in infancy and three daughters have preceeded him to the grave. After the death of his first wife he married Elizabeth Harrelson daughter of Benjamin Harrelson of Columbus Co., N. C. on the 7th day of April 1875 who he left to mourn his loss of a dear companion. Brother Garrel joined the church before the Mission Baptist was heard of in this section, after they came in and took charge of the churches in this county he having no where else to go remained among them until after the Mill Branch Primitive Baptist church was constituted when he joined there and remained a consistent member until his death, never failing to be at church on day appointed for worship unless providentially hindered. He faithfully filled all stations which he occupied in this life. As a husband he was all that a good wife desired, as a father he was kind and affectionate, he was held in high esteem by his neighbors and acquaintances and by the brethren at Mill Branch as an exemplary christian. His suffering in his last sickness was not severe he said from the first that it was something to take him away from this world, about whom he would talk with as much cheerfulness as on ordinary subjects when in health. He appeared ready and willing to obey the summons of the Master for which event he waited with patience, manifesting his faith in Christ to the last. Thus another precious jewel has been taken from our midst; his dear companion, children, the church and many dear friends mourn their loss but not as those without hope of meeting again in the resurrection morn where

OBITUARIES.

MRS. TARLA V. WILLIAMS.

Dear Brother Gold, I send to you for publication the death of our beloved sister Tarla V. Williams, the wife of brother John R. Williams. She was born January 6th 1853, died April 15th 1894. She obtained a hope in Christ in August 1887, and united with the church at Red Banks the second Sunday in May 1893, where she remained a consistent member until her death. Her husband was taken sick with Pneumonia, and was down for some time. She waited on him and nursed him until he got up so he could walk about the house with his stick, then she was taken down with the same disease, and lived only six days. She leaves a father and mother, brother and sisters besides a dear husband and eight children, and many friends to mourn the loss of her. She was a bright Baptist, and a good feeling-hearted neighbor. I do believe according to the evidence she had that she is resting in peace to-day waiting the resurrection of the dead, and then she shall see Him as He is and be like Him. The unworthy writer of this notice was standing by her bedside when she breathed her last, and when I went to close her eyes this thought came to me, "you must write her obituary." I have waited ever since to see if I could get clear of it, but I cannot, so I make the feeble attempt, for it is the first time I ever wrote for publication in my life, and it may be the last. She united with the Freewill Baptists and remained with them nine years lacking a few days. I heard her tell Elder Manning a Freewill preacher that he baptised her in her sins, and it was his fault. There could be much more said, but I do not see any use of it.

we will meet that throng of heaven born millions and join them in singing praises to the name of Jesus, precious name which will radiate our souls through endless ages. May God in much mercy and grace prepare us for that day.

M. M. HARRISON.

NELLIE BURNETT.

The darling daughter of Christophe O. Burnett and Ida F. Burnett died at her home in Pittsylvania Co., Va., on the 17th day of Dec., 1899. She was born June 13, 1882, making her stay here on earth 17 years 6 months and 4 days. She was a kind and affectionate little girl, and was loved by all that knew her. She had ways more like a grown girl than any child I ever saw, and was an exception for this day and time; yet the good Lord saw fit to take her Home to Himself where she will have no more sickness, sorrow, pain nor death.

She had fever with profuse bleeding at the nose. She bore her sickness with much patience and was never heard to murmur. The unworthy writer visited her twice during sickness, and it seems to me that she knew her condition, but she did not seem to be alarmed at all when she would see so much blood. I was told by one of her cousins that the day before she died she sang "My native land I love thee; Can I leave you, can I leave you, can I bid you all farewell?" &c.

Dear father and mother, we know it is hard to part with our dear little ones, but God in His wisdom knows what is best for us all. If we could only be reconciled to the dispensation of his holy will, but we do feel to sympathize with you in your sad affliction and bereavement. She leaves a father and mother, and two little sisters and many kindred and friends to mourn their loss, but we hope that their loss is her eternal gain.

Now may the saving power of God direct and keep them in the path of duty, and may their afflictions and their bereavements work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory in my prayer for Christ's sake.

R. A. COS.

MRS. L. J. MOORE.

On the 16th day of March 1894 at her residence in Falkland township, Pitt county, N. C., Mrs. L. J. Moore died in the 70th year of her life. She was teared and married in Edgecombe county. Her husband bought land in Pitt in 1857, and in 1861 he enlisted in the war, leaving his wife and four children, the two oldest being girls aged 12 and 14 and the boys 2 and 8 years old. The land was encumbered with a right good sum, and her husband died in 1864, placing her in a very awkward position, and in the presence of strangers, but despite the circumstances, she soon paid the debt off her land, and gave her children an ordinary business education. She was considered one of the best farmers of her section regardless of her sex. She was charitable and generous, and loved by all who knew her. Her good council and kind words were always summoned to the bed-side of the sick, and the community greatly lament her loss. No one can truthfully say she ever did them a wrong intentionally.

She was a member of the Primitive Baptist church, and was much devoted to it. A few days before she died was her quarterly meeting, and she said she wondered if any one would report that she was sick. She had been suffering with LaGrippe for 2 or 3 months and was confined to her bed one week after it terminated in Pneumonia and for that time her sufferings were severe. But her suffering is no more. She has died to die no more. Blessed are they who die in the Lord, for they shall inherit the Kingdom of Heaven.

M. Z. MOORE.

E. W. AYERS

Died at his residence in Washington county December 18, 1893. He was born July 27, 1817. He married Mary Wallace, the daughter of Elder Johnathan Wallace, November 16, 1843. She bore him seven children, four sons and three daughters. After her death he married Anna Hassell, April 13, 1876. By his last wife he had no children. Brother Ayers joined the church at Morattock, on the 15th day of April, 1848; he was ordained a deacon in the church in February, 1860, and lived to enjoy the full confidence of the brethren until the day of his death. He was one of the leading members of Morattock church 45 years. He generally attended the Kehukee association. I have spent some of the pleasantest moments of my life in company with him. He often accompanied me to my appointments when visiting other churches. He told me a short while before his death that if the Primitive Baptist was not the church of Christ he was deceived in the whole matter, and had no fellowship for anything else. He said he was not afraid to die; he knew in whom he had trusted for salvation. He died strong in the faith, giving glory to God. He requested the writer of this notice to preach his funeral. By request his body was carried to the church and I tried to comfort the bereaved. May God bless his wife and children and enable them to live to the honor and glory of God, is my prayer for Christ's sake.

Done by order of conference on Saturday before the third Sunday in February, 1894.

N. H. HARRISON.

CHARLIE L. FOX.

Little Charlie Fox fell asleep in the arms of his Redeemer on the morning of August the 22nd 2893, making his stay on earth 15 months and 19 days. He was the infant son of George, and Cleopetra, Fox. This dear little child was afflicted from its birth and its parents were more attached to it because of its afflictions. He was attended by two of the best physicians in this section, and all the attention by mother, father, and friends, but all was in vain. The Lord saw best to take him from this world of trouble and sin to dwell among His angels. It is now freed from its sufferings, and is basking in the smiles of Him who has said "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not."

Weep not fond parents for your child. You have another tie to bind you to the goodly land.

May heaven sustain you in this sad bereavement and may you be enabled to say the Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. It is hard to part with loved ones, yet the Lord's will be done in all things. We hope to meet them in the happy land of Canaan where there will be no sad farewell tears shed.

I feel that I can sympathize with them in all of their sad bereavements feeling the loss of a brother and sister my self, and I hope to feel that they are resting that sweet rest that remains to the people of God. So hope they have entered that happy land where there will be no more separation no more sorrow sickness nor death; for God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. May our Heavenly Father reconcile both father and mother to the good of his will and prepare them both to meet their son on that happy shore, where parting will be no more is my wish for Christ's sake.

PROFESS C. CLAYTON.

MARY C. COX.

The subject of this obituary, Mary C. Cox, wife of R. A. Cox, died at her home in Pittsylvania county, Va., the 19th of May, 1893. She was the daughter of brother J. H. Abbott. She was born Oct. 15th, 1865. She was married December 31st, 1882. She was a good and true wife. Our life was spent happily together. But she was only lent to me for a short while, and was taken by Him who gave her to enjoy his presence forever. So often have I heard her give praise to God for his goodness and mercy to her, as vile a sinner as she felt to be. In the year 1885 she received a hope in Christ. She felt so unworthy she did not go to the church until affliction fell heavily on her. On Saturday before the 3rd Sunday in June, 1890, she went before the church at Whitehorn, and told her feelings to the church, and was received and baptized the next day by Elder G. W. Hundly, whom she dearly loved. She was a true Baptist, loving the cause of Jesus and enjoying the company of the brethren. She was glad when meeting time came to be with them.

In July, 1892, she took a letter of dismission and joined the church at Banister, where she lived in fellowship until her death. Her fatal disease was consumption. She bore her sickness with great patience. She desired the will of the Lord to be done. She hoped I would keep the little children together and bring them up myself, and do the best I could with them—that the Lord would provide—that she did not dread death. She was confined to her bed for nine weeks. She was attended by three good doctors—but all was in vain to stay the hand of death. Her time to leave this world of sorrow and join the heavenly host had come.

Dear brethren, I believe that she had the brightest vision of heaven and her blessed Saviour of any person I ever saw. About two weeks before she died she said she had been to heaven, and saw her Saviour and the angels, and heard them singing, "Oh! how happy are they who their Saviour obey." It was the happiest place ever seen. She asked all present to help her sing and clapped her hands and sang it through. I believe she was the happiest person I ever saw, and she was so weak before that she could scarcely talk. This happy frame lasted from Wednesday night until Friday morning. She would talk to all that came to see her and asked them to meet her in heaven. She would say, don't you see Jesus. He is here and is so precious. She was full of love and joy.

She would urge men to love their wives and children and do right. She had many friends, and much kindness shown her and many tears were shed around her bed.

She called Dr. Ferguson, her physician, and asked him if he had ever prayed. She told him he never had. She said, I have been to heaven and saw your wife but I did not see you, and you will not live one week. He died in less than one week.

How sad to lose a darling wife, yet how blessed is she.

R. A. COX.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

J. E. ADAMS.

Zion's Hill.....	3d Sunday in July
Chestnut Grove.....	Monday
Flower Gap.....	Tuesday
Stewart's Creek.....	Wednesday
Union.....	Thursday
Hoggs' Creek.....	Friday
Cedar Hill.....	Saturday
Volunteer.....	4th Sunday
Rock House.....	Monday
Piney Grove.....	Tuesday
Snow Creek.....	Wednesday

Elder F. J. Stone will please arrange appointments for him from thence to Country Line Association at McFay's, Alamance co., S. C. Conveyance needed.

W. J. STEPHENSON.

Neuse.....	Sat. and 3rd Sun. in July
Salem.....	Monday
Creeches.....	Tuesday
Beulah.....	Wednesday
Memorial.....	Thursday
Aycocks.....	Friday
Wilson.....	Sat. and 4th Sun.
Union.....	Monday
Pleasant Hill.....	Tuesday
Falls.....	Wednesday
Mill Branch.....	Thursday

Thence to Black Creek Union.

E. C. SMITH.

Croked Creek.....	3rd Sunday in July
Meadow Creek.....	Monday
Crab Creek.....	Tuesday
Fishers Gap.....	Wednesday
Franklin.....	Thursday
Round Peak.....	Friday
Zions Hill.....	Saturday
Chestnut Grove.....	4th Sunday
Flower Gap.....	Monday
Stuarts Creek.....	Tuesday
Dover.....	Wednesday
Union.....	Thursday
Cedar Hill.....	Friday
Volunteer.....	Saturday
Rock House.....	5th Sunday
Flat Shoal.....	Monday
Clear Spring.....	Tuesday
Saints Delight.....	Wednesday, Aug. 1st

He will need conveyance.

GARDNER BRYAN.

South West.....	July 8
Bay.....	9
Yopps.....	10
Wards Will.....	11
Stump Sound.....	12
Middle sound.....	13
Wilmington.....	14
Mill Branch.....	17
Pireway.....	18
Bethel.....	19

Brother Bell's.....	20
Pleasant Hill.....	21
Pee Dee.....	22
Sanford (at night).....	24
Simpson's Creek.....	25
Brother Spivey's.....	27

J. A. BURCH.

Philadelphia. (Caldwell co., N. C.).....	June 25
Mulberry school House.....	28
The Globe.....	29
Baptist Valley.....	30
Beaver Creek.....	July 1
Roane's Creek.....	2
Senter.....	3
Cranberry.....	4
South Fork.....	5
Piney Creek.....	6
Elk Creek.....	7
Tolliver School House.....	8
Sparta.....	9
Antioch.....	10
Union.....	11
Little River.....	12
Zion.....	13
Crab Creek.....	14
Meadow Creek.....	15
Grooked Creek.....	16
Good Hope.....	17
Chestnut Grove.....	18

Brother Osborn Hawks please arrange appointments in Fish River Association bounds so he can be at Stewart's Creek 5th Sunday in July.

J. S. NORRIS.

Y. J. CHANDLER.

Brother Wm. Warren's.....	Sat. before 5th Sunday in July, 4 o'clock p. m.
Ebenezer.....	5th Sunday
Wheeler's.....	Monday
Prospect Hill.....	Tuesday
Lynch's Creek.....	Wednesday

S. HASSELL.

Durham.....	Thursday and Tuesday night
August 9	August 9
Roxboro.....	Friday
Shiloh.....	2d Sat. and Sunday in August
Storie's Creek.....	Monday
Sunny Side.....	Tuesday
Ebenezer.....	Wednesday
Wheeler's.....	Thursday
Prospect Hill.....	Friday
Country Line Association.....	3d Saturday,
.....	Sunday and Monday in August
Gilliams.....	Tuesday
Pleasant Grove.....	Wednesday
Reidsville.....	Thursday

Thence to Abbott's Creek Association. Elder A. N. Hall expects to be with him on part of the appointments. They will need conveyance.

P. D. GOLD.

Cane Creek, Va.....	Thursday after 5th Sunday
.....	In July
Malmason.....	Friday
Banister.....	Saturday
Galliee.....	1st Sunday in August
Old Union.....	Monday
Whitethorn.....	Tuesday
Weatherford.....	Wednesday
Seneca.....	Thursday

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED	No. 25 Daily		No. 41 Daily		No. 42 Daily
May 13, 1894.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Weldon	11 52	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv. Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv. Wilson	2 05	11 04
Lv. Selma	2 58
Lv. Fayetteville	4 35	12 51
Ar. Florence	7 25	3 00
	No. 47 Daily
Lv. Wilson	2 18	A. M.
Lv. Goldsboro	3 05	6 35
Lv. Magnolia	4 10	7 49
Ar Wilmington	5 20	9 20
	P. M.		10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED	No. 26 Daily		No. 36 Daily		No. 40 Daily
May 13, 1894.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Florence	7 30	7 45
Lv. Fayetteville	10 25	9 30
Lv. Selma	12 58
Ar. Wilson	1 00	11 27
	No. 38 Daily
Lv. Wilmington	9 00	P. M.
Lv. Magnolia	10 40	7 00
Lv. Goldsboro	12 00	8 33
Ar. Wilson	12 45	9 07
	No. 35 Daily		No. 32 Daily
Lv. Wilson	1 10	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 13	11 27	10 32
			12 05	11 14
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv. Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	3 13	12 06
Ar Weldon	3 50	12 55
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers
holding Pullman accommodations.
Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves
Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 17 p. m., Kinston 7 35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00
a. m. Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington
at 2 a. m. Arrives Pamlico 5 40 a. m.; Tarboro

50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Pamlico
7 30 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with train on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle &
Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m.,
Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m.,
5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 5 30 a. m. Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives
Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland, N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro,
N. C. daily, except Sunday, 6 55 a. m., arriving
Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves
Smithfield, N. C., 5 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N.
C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount
at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring
Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope
5 00 a. m., Nashville 5 25 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 15 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave
Latta 6 30 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 7 47 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5 20 a.
m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 11 00 a. m. Returning leaves Clinton at 1 00 p. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon
for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond
and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and
Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk &
Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points
North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.
J. B. KENLY, Genl. Manager.
T. M. EKERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by
mail, $1.00.
Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover,
single copy, by mail, $1.25
Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen
rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or
Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money
Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th,
1893, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Wilmington and Reidsville
Oct. 23d, and conveyed by rail, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes
me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED

At this office. Send for samples &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13960/t5t5252z / Public Domain

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connerville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connerville, Ind., Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. Gold.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SON,
30 1/2 Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.

They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.

P. D. Gold.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No 1			No. 2
7:55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv		7:00 a m
4:45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9:10 a m
4:30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv		10:20 a m
3:10 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv		11:45 a m
1:20 p m	Lv.....China.....Lv		1:45 a m
12:50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		2:15 p m
11:54 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		2:55 p m
11:05 p m	Lv.....Stokely.....Lv		1:25 p m
11:45 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Cove.....W. Cove, Ar		4:20 p m
11:25 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Cove.....W. Cove, Lv		4:35 p m
11:05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hill.....Lv		5:01 p m
9:45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		6:05 p m
No 3
5:00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv		6:45 a m
6:47 a m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv		7:17 a m
6:08 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv		8:17 a m
5:13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv		9:43 a m
4:50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9:55 a m
No 15
Mixed
Daily Ex
Sunday
3:15 p m	Ar.....Rainsort.....Lv		5:50 a m
3:55 p m	Lv.....Chimney.....Lv		5:40 a m
3:50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		9:55 a m
No 16
Mixed
Daily ex
Sunday
2:35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv		9:40 a m
1:05 p m	Lv.....Stokely.....Lv		11:00 a m
12:30 p m	Lv.....Maiden.....Ar		11:50 a m

Train No. 3 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and leave for home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. EKYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1882. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at,
Elm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEADY, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold.

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

JULY 15, 1894.

NO. 17.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

76 341
Kardner, Ill.
1894

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

EXPERIENCE.

EDITORS ZION'S LANDMARK, DEAR BRETHREN:—I have had impressions for some time to write you something of what I hope the Lord has done for my poor soul. When I was about fifteen or sixteen years of age my mother professed a hope in Christ, and joined the Primitive Baptist church. And she seemed to be greatly concerned about her husband and children. I remember one day going to the spring and hearing her voice. I looked through a little skirt of woods and saw her on her knees in prayer for her husband and children, and O my soul, how it shocked me, though I tried not to think much about it. I thought I was too young to study about religion, I thought I could get it when I wanted it. I went on in this way until about the 22nd year of my age, which I think was the year 1844, when I became so troubled about my condition I thought I was bound to die and go to torment, I was such a miserable sinner. So I went to work to try to bring myself into favor with God. I tried to leave off my out-breaking practices, and begged the Lord to have mercy on me, and spare my life, and I would do better. But O my soul, the more I tried the worse I seemed to get. I was led on in this way for some time, still trying to pray although it seemed like every word fell to the ground. I would read the bible sometimes to see if I could find any promise to such a wretch as I felt myself to be. But I could find none that I could claim, for I was such a sinner I could claim none of the promises. I felt to be a sinner by nature and had made myself doubly so by practice and had thought I could quit my out-breaking practices. But I found that I failed even in this. I went on in this condition until the year 1846, when my burden of guilt got so heavy I thought I must die, and be lost forever. It seemed I wanted to dream something about my condition, and went to bed one night studying about it, and when I fell asleep I dreamed I saw my grave and I looked into it. It was walled up like a spring and water running through it. I studied a great deal to try and find out what this meant, but could not. I would think I would ask mother what it meant. But my heart would fail me. I continued in this way for sometime still trying to pray as best I could that the Lord would have mercy upon my poor soul. When it seemed like something said to me, "you have committed the unpardonable sin. There was a time when you might have been saved if you had kept your first promise. But now it is too late. You need not try any longer." I would go to meeting and hear some telling their travails from nature to grace. They would tell my feelings better than I could myself. But when they would come to their delivery from sin they would leave me out altogether. I seemed to be out of sight. About this time my father professed a hope and joined the Primitive Baptist church. And it did seem to me there was a chance for everybody to be saved but me, and no chance whatever for poor me that I could see. I was in deep distress, and was engaged to be married to my present husband. I thought if I married I could live a moral life and quit dancing and playing, and singing carnal songs which I once had great delight in. The day for our marriage came which was the 22d of December, 1846. We were married by Elder Joshua Adams, whom I esteemed as a gracious, good man. It was the custom then to close the marriage ceremony with prayer. It appeared to me that I could hardly keep from falling at his feet and asking him to pray for me, but I did not, as I did not want any one to know how badly I felt. I kept my troubles to myself as best I could. The next day we went to my husband's father's. Here the young people were having their pleasure in playing and singing carnal songs. They soon commenced urging me to take part with them. I told them I did not want to play at all. They said if I would only lead in one tune they would let me alone. When I started around trying my best to sing, it appeared to me that I saw the awful pit of destruction open before me as plain as I ever saw anything with my natural eyes. And O my soul, one step further and I would be swallowed up, both soul and body. Now, dear brethren and sisters, I had been greatly afraid of dying and being eternally lost, and I now saw plainly that both soul and body would go for my sins. So I left the band and sat down with my head upon my hands. I thought I would give anything to be away from the crowd so that I could pour out my cries to God for pardon. My burden of guilt and sin was apparently more than I could bear. This was the 23d day of December, 1846, my feelings I am not able to describe, but still trying to keep my troubles hid. But oh, how bad I felt. It passed on until Saturday, the 26th, when we went to Union church and when we got there dear old Elder Adams was preaching, and O my soul, how condemned I felt under his preaching. Elder Adams went to my father's for the night; my husband and I also went, and although I was so well acquainted with Elder Adams and thought so much of him, I felt afraid to be in his company for fear he would say something to me about religion. I felt condemned to be in the company of such a good man. My father asked him to preach there that night. The neighbors came in and he preached for them. I sat down, thinking I could conceal my tears and hide my troubles. But O my soul, horror seized upon me, and I found I had no strength; it seemed that my sin and guilt were more than I could bear. O the darkness I felt. My hands commenced drawing and my tongue cleaved to the roof of my mouth and I cried, Mr. Adams I want you to pray for me, and he said, "I have prayed for you." I said, please pray for me individually for my case is worse than any body else. I thought it might be that the Lord would hear him, if he would not hear me. But dear brethren and sisters, here was a time that I cannot tell anything about. My pen must be still and my tongue silent. I know not how long it was. But all of a sudden my tongue was loosed, my burden was gone and I was upon my feet praising the Lord for his goodness and mercy bestowed upon such a poor worm of the dust as I. I felt so happy I thought I never should see any more trouble. Everything and everybody looked so beautiful and lovely. I felt that I could pray for enemies if any. But soon, very soon, the tempter came and told me I was deceived—that it was all imagination of my own. I trusted to get my burden back again, but my mind would run back to the time when I felt so light and happy; then I could say, "bless the Lord, O my soul for his mercy endureth forever." Now dear brethren, be not deceived. I have told you the truth if I ever believed it was in my youth. O if I could but know your feelings, whether from what I have written you think I have found Jesus to be precious it would be comforting to me in my old age. I felt that I wanted to be with God's people and be baptized and walk in his foot-steps. So I went before the church at Old Union Meeting House, Patrick county, Va., on the 4th Saturday in January and told a part of what I have here written; was received and was baptized on the Sunday following by dear old Elder Adams, who was the pastor of the church as long as he lived. Now dear brethren and sisters, I hope if you can feel it in your hearts to do so that you will pray for me that I may hold out faithful to the end, for we read in the Good Book that they that endure unto the end the same shall be saved. I have many trials and sore afflictions in this life, and often feel to say, O that it was with me as in days of old when the glorious light of Jesus was flowing in my soul. But now it seems that while others run rejoicing and seem to lose no time, I am so weak and sinful I often stumble and fear I shall be left behind. My love to the household of faith. O to grace how great a debtor. Daily I am constrained to be, Let thy goodness like a fetter, Bind my wandering heart to thee. Your little sister in hope.

TEMPLE FERGUSON.

Terrys Fork, Va.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—By request of dear old sister Ferguson I send you her experience as written by herself, while in much affliction. I have known her for forty years or more and look upon her as an ornament to the church, full of faith and good works. Hope you will give it a place in the LANDMARK if you can endorse it. Very truly yours to serve,

J. C. HALL.

Remark:

Yes, Brother Hall, I fellowship such dear people, if I know what fellowship in the truth is.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—For some time I have felt I wanted to write you, but could not gather up and feel that I was fit or worthy to present this corrupt frame before you who stand as a mouth for God to declare his everlasting Gospel; but believing I shall never be any better in this life, if I write at all it will have to be done soon, so if the Lord will, I will make the attempt. Feeble and frail as I am I desire to put in my little mite of thought and feeling as I journey through this wilderness. I am well aware I cannot interest and feed the christian as I desire, or as I once felt. I am now too old to connect my scattering thoughts, and corruption has grown and got such a deep hold on the inner part it is out of my power to separate the precious from the vile. One thing I desire is, if it is the will of the Lord, that he would enable me to go back to the starting point of my conviction, if I ever was truly convicted at all, and carry me all along through my feelings, acts, trials, doubts and fears, and the heavy weight or burden of sin, while I longed and prayed and wept to be delivered from it, and while I hope I was made to rejoice with joy unspeakable. I now would rejoice to go over it all once more to see if I am deceived in what I profess to be, and that I might know what is my duty, that I might not bide my talent, if I have ever had one, that I might be more watchful and prayerful. It was then a new road to me, and the finger boards were not up at the forks of the road, as they are now. After all, I am here to-day the object of God's mercy, to be disposed of as seemeth good in his sight. Is there not a blessing for me too? Will the christian pray for me in my behalf that I may be stript of all my old filthy garments, and that I may appear before Jesus my priest with a spotless robe clean and white, with palms of victory in my hands, and his name have all the praise world without end. Lest I worry you I will submit my scattering thoughts for your consideration. In love farewell.

A. REED.

Winston, N. C.

ELDER P. G. LESTER, DEAR, KIND FRIEND:—Since reading your article in the LANDMARK, headed with "Almost persuaded," I feel heavily impressed to write you a few lines, but my weakness rises before me so heavily that I can't feel the courage that I would like to have. It seems like that is my greatest trouble. I often wonder why it is that you and others can tell me what I am better than I can tell myself.

There is but one thing that keeps me from discharging what rises before me as my duty, and that is I feel so unworthy, so prone to sin, so full of doubts and fears. Of course the fault all lies at my door. Elder Gold, I would like to know your opinion of dreams. If it is not intruding on your well-filled time I would like to tell you of a dream that I had last night. I dreamed that I was taken to a place where there was a large vault, and in that vault some men had Christ and two other men, one on each side of Christ, and I saw them nail them to the cross, and heard the dying groans of Christ as plainly as I ever heard anything, and I thought the mother of Jesus was there, and a good many others, and among them were my father and mother, and I thought I was so distressed that I tried to get out of hearing of the dying and groans of Jesus, but I could not. Then I thought I saw Christ rise from the dead, and he sat in the midst of the crowd and talked, and asked all around to give him water, and I thought he took me by the hand and told me I was too warm to ever get cold, and asked me to give him water, and then he disappeared. It seems I could not rest until I could tell that dream to some one. I went to bed feeling very bad, but I arose this morning feeling well and light-hearted, and I could not help singing, "When shall I see Jesus and reign with him above."

E. M. SAUNDERS

City Point, Fla.

To My Friend.

You, it seems to me, should own what the Lord has done for you. Your dream shows you that you are interested in his death and resurrection. You have seen both. You believe he is the Son of God.

You love him and his people. You feel your own vileness, and that without Jesus you can do nothing. You are not satisfied outside of the church. You have no rest. What more do you need to go to the church with: You even dream of the Lord, and that he appears to the brethren and you are among them, and he asks water of you. How could you give him water to drink? By being baptized. You serve him by following him in his ordinances and keeping his commandments. As you thus give him drink your own soul will feast. You and he are so bound up together that as you neglect his service you are the one that suffers; but as you follow him you are the one that drinks and feasts.

P. D. G.

The following letter received from Elder Durand states that Elder Wm. J. Purrington, of Hopewell, N. J., perhaps the ablest preacher of the Primitive order in our day, is rapidly passing away. He is to me a very lovely brother. How good to feel that every thing pertaining to one's life is ordered of the Lord. If anything affecting my life is not ordered or controlled by the Lord then that far some power uncontrolled by the Lord rules me. There is great peace in feeling that the Lord rules, and that every trouble I feel is appointed for me, as well as my joys. Shall we receive good at the hand of the Lord and shall we not receive evil?

Yes, we shall miss such a brother as Wm. J. Purrington.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I was with Elder Purrington Saturday night, and left him Sunday morning. He is evidently near the end. To a sister who came in from Princeton he said, "You find me near the grave." He said, "I have not one pain too many nor one too few; but it is hard to bear." Again, "He performeth the thing that is appointed for me; and many such things are with him." He has become helpless, but his mind is clear and accurate, and he is very patient and never complains, which has always been the case with him when sick. I am looking to hear of his departure any moment. He will be greatly missed. Sister Purrington is able to be with him, and says it is a great comfort to care for him. But she is nearly worn out. He is 71. We all send love to you and yours. Your brother,

SILAS H. DURAND.

Southampton, Pa.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I received your welcome letter sometime back, in reply to one I had written you. I was glad to get a letter from your own hand, and appreciate your taking time to notice me, who am so unworthy of the least of earthly blessings, and especially of the love of God, yet my dear brother he still continues to show me (I do believe) that he loves me. "Oh! for such love, let rocks and hills their lasting silence break," etc. Sometimes I hesitate to tell of the Lord's wonderful dealings with me a poor sinner, but when I am weighted down with trouble on account of it, I feel I must tell it, let everybody think of me as they will. I commit myself to God, as unto a faithful Creator. I had impressions to have prayer in my family and I hope I'm not deceived. I feel I must be obedient to the command, and it I grow slack, I am full of trouble. I have gone through with this duty even when down confined to my bed, and such grace and strength were given from a faithful Creator, and now I feel that he has sent the angel of mercy over my house and I feel that he sent the angel to me as he put the bow in the cloud for Noah that he would look upon it and remember those whom he had made faithful by his own Almighty power. It is the sweetest thing for me to think about, at home or abroad, I am assured that the angel of mercy is guarding my house, and I can see his mercy in everything, and can see also, if justice was meted out to me, I could not stand, no not a minute. I read your editorial on dress, manners, etc., and I heartily agree with you. They are my sentiments. Here is a letter from brother Moses Nye, of Newark Ohio, if you see fit you can publish. It has been and is quite a comfort to me. I am always glad when it comes and many times sorry it has so few pages. May God bless you with a long life, of strength, bravery and courage to press forward in this noble cause, is the prayer of one who loves you for Jesus' sake I hope.

Affectionately,

BETTIE Z. WHITLEY.

Hobgood, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—How hard it seems to me for one to have to lay down everything to write to dear ones in Jesus, when they feel so unworthy and incompetent every way as I do this morning. Surely, surely, it comes to me, is this required at my hands? Yes! oftentimes do I feel, can one so vile as I am be a christian, when I feel I stand I am a reproach to the cause, and I had rather die and be laid in my grave than to bring reproach on the precious name I have professed. Pray for me, that I may be found walking in the way of Him whom my soul loveth. When you were around here on your last tour I noticed that you spoke twice, not the same day, of our dear Lord giving gifts to men, even to the rebellious, and it took much hold on me, I can't keep it out of my mind, and I wanted to say something about it, because I do feel if I am a child at all, I am a rebellious one, and I can't help myself, and how it grieves me. Sometimes I feel that my duties are made so plain to me I cannot doubt, then the flesh begins to work, and Satan too, and I don't do the things which I believe to be my duty, then I receive the chastening rod. Yes, I have to have a severe whipping, and then I am bound to go around with an aching heart, taking the rebukes, reproofs and scorns of the world, as well as my kindred in Jesus, and thinking and believing also my heavenly Father who has been so kind to me and so indulgent, had to become displeased on account of my unbelief, and chasten me to make me know that it was and is his will that I shall do what he requires of me. Yes, I am rebellious, saying some one else can do these things better than I, and that why not let such and such an one do it. Oh! it is a wonder to me sometimes that he lets me live, "Prone to wander Lord I feel it," but dear brother when I think of the heavenly Father who watches and takes care over me, I feel "What wondrous love is this." On Sunday morning of the "Union" which was held at Great Swamp I waked, with these words (My soul singing them) "With salvation's walls, surrounded, Thou Mayst smile at all thy foes." Oh, could I but tell even what I feel, but no, my feeble pen can never describe the language of my soul. I did enjoy hearing you and brother Stubbs preach, and how anxious I was to have gone to every appointment in my reach; but what my God appoints is best. I do feel that he reigns in the hearts of those who do truly feel that their desire is to serve him. While the world, the flesh and Satan do beset the christian, yet when he stands still, he is bound to believe all was and is conquered, and shall at length a conqueror be over all that may oppose. Here are two letters from Brother Nye. If you think they will be of any profit to the household of faith publish them. I have his consent to do so, if not will you kindly return them to me. Yours in hope, BETTIE Z. WHITLEY,

 Holgood, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Will you please answer a few questions for me through the LANDMARK in reference to consistency in the church, or in other words discipline, or rather deceitfulness. As preachers are first in word, first in battle, first in wrongs, first to go astray, do more harm than any others, if they are not right, we will try them first.

If a man is not fit to preach at or about home, ought the brethren abroad to encourage him by paying his fare on trains and putting him up to preach? If he will not preach without they pay him ought they to pay him to preach? If he will not notice a poor member in the presence of the rich ought the poor to notice him at all? If he will not serve a church that will allow a member to buy and sell intoxicating liquors ought he to buy and sell them? If he believes and says that they were never of any use to any one at any time, ought he to drink a gill or two at a time? If he don't want people to talk during preaching ought he to talk to preachers or young ladies, or any one else, except in cases of necessity during preaching? If every other preacher preaches too long, and detains the people but him, ought not the church to think he has preached enough and stop him? If he preaches one thing to-day and practices another to-morrow, do you want to hear him preach the third day? If he goes around to other men's appointments and is in such a hurry or so anxious to preach he will not wait for the preacher, but says it is time and I will preach, or if he waits till they get there he is so impatient he pulls their coat tails or opens his watch often and holds it to them to let them know they are consuming his time, ought not the brethren to pull his coat off? If nobody preaches to suit him, can he preach to suit anybody else? If the church would be more faithful in ordaining, or rather in considering men's qualifications, and not ordain men simply because they or their friends or kinsmen want them to be, would the church have to be worried with their egotism? But the church says, If we don't put him up to preach he will feel himself slighted. Ought not a man to feel slighted if he is not in the right place and the church don't want him there either? Is such faithfulness in the church? If the church would be more faithful in this then the church could rely on what their preachers said in private conversation and in business transactions; also when they get in the stand to preach they should receive it gladly and not be wanting to be or go out of the house. If a man does not preach, though he be set apart to that work, is there any evidence he is called to preach? If the church ties the preacher's hands, or muzzles him so as to hinder him, though they say they want him to serve them, who is to blame? If the church gives one man from a distance more to preach one sermon than they give their pastor for twelve months' service, does that look like they love or like their pastor? If a church contributes as much again to visiting preachers as they do to their pastor, and don't give him enough to hide his nakedness and keep him warm, do they love him? If the church is able to send their children off to Graded schools and pay their board and tuition, then buy them pianos or organs, then buy them fine horses and fine buggies and fine clothing, then allow them to idle away their time, are they not able to attend to their poor preacher and other poor members better, if they were not deceitful or covetous? Are we privileged to stay at home until we have nothing else to do, then go preach; or is the church at liberty to gratify all of their fleshly lusts, and those of their children and neighbors, and then if they have anything left contribute to their poor preacher, when he perhaps feels ashamed to go up and shake hands with them on Sunday at meeting, they are so gorgeously arrayed, and he so badly clad himself? If he goes with them home to dine he is cramped, his garb so rusty, and theirs so costly, has he not reason to wonder, Do these people love me as they pretend, or is it deception? The preacher thinks, Well, they say they like me, and want to help me, but does this prove it?

If preachers could live off of the wind,

The rest of the church off of the sunshine,
Then they, perhaps, would agreeable be.

And one another's faults would not see.

If any one thinks I have trimmed too close,

You trim some too, and we'll be no worse

If any one says I am out of the way,
You get right and I will obey.

If any says, I know my business best,
Manage it better is my request.

Brother Gold, I hope what I have written is for the good of the cause, the glory of God, and to ease my mind. Lest I weary you, good-bye.

THOS. N. WALTON.

Whitwell, Va

Remarks :

1st question.

"If a man is not fit to preach at or about home, ought the brethren abroad to encourage him by paying his fare on train, etc.?"

We would hate to think a church would ordain a man to preach that that same church would not hear preach. If a man has to go away from home to find a Baptist willing to hear him had he not better flee to that city or place? To impose a preacher on a community we would not have ourselves certainly merits severe censure, and shows much want of faithfulness and love. It is so very important for preachers of the gospel to be just as the requisitions set forth in the word of God.

He must be blameless, with only one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behavior, given to hospitality, apt to teach, not given to wine, no striker (imitator), not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient; not a brawler, not covetous. He must rule his own house well. Not a novice—inexperienced—lest he be puffed up by the praises of men and fall into the trap of pride—big head—set by the devil. He must also have a good report of people outside of the church. Now the above qualifications must, without a single exception, be possessed by every preacher of the gospel before he can be a gospel preacher.

There is a fault committed in ordaining men to preach where churches that ordain them are not willing to hear them. If churches would ordain only those preachers that they are willing to help by giving them a regular hearing, and also ministering to them of their substance, or worldly goods, or if churches would help their own pastors more, then there would be no surplus preachers ordained that no one wants to hear, or that have to go away from home to get a congregation to hear them. Is it true that any church ordains a man as a preacher that she would not be willing to have as her pastor if she have none? Alas, for the people that would do such a thing. If a man will not preach without being paid let him go. He is no gospel preacher. A man that travels and preaches because he receives more money in that way is preaching for money. A church that will not help her pastor is also guilty of covetousness—as guilty as the preacher that preaches for money. If you have so many preachers you cannot help them have fewer preachers. If Baptists felt that they must provide for or help all the men they ordain as preachers then they would be more careful about whom they ordain.

A true gospel preacher will preach the gospel if the brethren do not help him at all with money; but that ought to cause the brethren to help such the more freely. A true preacher will notice a poor member of the church as well as he will a rich one.

2d. If he will not serve a church that will allow a member to sell intoxicating liquors, &c., .

No. A preacher or pastor of a church should be a pattern to the flock in good things, and shun the appearance of evil himself. A pastor should be sober—not given to wine. A well man does not need such things. Timothy had an infirmity (not a weakness for wine or strong drink,) but some bodily trouble that water would aggravate, but that a little wine would help.

Of course a pastor should encourage his members to avoid drunkenness. One of the best ways of avoiding drunkenness is not to deal in liquors, such as buying and selling them. Think of the misery and distress, the crime and cost caused by liquors in this world, and do what you can to prevent it.

One of the best ways to keep people from talking during preaching is not to talk to any one yourself during preaching, unless you are preaching yourself, and then preach so well, if you can, that people will not want to talk themselves, but will desire to hear you; and when you fail to interest them quit at once.

3d. "If every other preacher preaches too long and detains the people but him, ought not the church to think he has preached enough and stop him?" &c.

Brother Walton is presenting the case of a preacher that no one would want to hear that loves the truth. We cannot see how any one can be so anxious to preach himself as not to want to hear any one else, or that thinks every other preacher preaches too long but himself, or that wants to pull others down, &c. Preaching the gospel is a very serious matter, and every one called of God to preach it is weighted with his own insufficiency and would help rather than hinder other preachers.

What think you of a preacher that goes to another man's appointment, and on being asked to preach goes forward very readily without any hesitation and occupies the time, when the people have not come to hear him; and if he had an appointment of his own but few would come to hear him? He is more anxious to preach than any one is to hear him. It ought to be this way, that the people are more anxious to hear a man than he is to be heard. It does not seem right to me to go to another man's appointment and occupy his time. If the people have come out to hear him let them hear him. If the Lord has called one to preach he need not be so anxious. If he has a gift it will make room for him.

A church is much to blame that tolerates such a preacher, and should keep him at home, and not allow him to go off until he learns to behave better.

Perhaps he ought not to be allowed to tarry at Jerusalem; but be required to go down to Jericho until his beard grows, or he shows some other signs of being a man.

Does a church have no more fear of God than to seek to please man rather than God? A preacher who has the right feelings loves his brethren and does not want to burden them. What think you of a preacher that says he is the least of all the preachers, and that he dreads so much to preach he cannot sleep, and that he would rather die than preach, but gets mad if they do not call on him to preach, and that is so anxious to try it he does not want to hear any other preacher? If one set apart to preach does not preach a mistake is made. If one does not preach God has not called him to that work. While the act of preaching itself is an indispen- sible evidence of a call to preach, still one must have all the qualifi- cations named in Paul to Timothy, or he should not be ordained. His conduct must be such that men will believe what he says outside of the pulpit, and then what he says with- in will have its weight too.

4th. "If the church gives one man at a distance more to preach one sermon than they give their pastor for twelve months service does that look like they love their pastor, and they do not give him enough to hide his nakedness." &c. No, they do not love their pastor. A church should highly esteem such as have the rule over them, and labor in word and doctrine, Heb. 13: 7, and 16, 17. Such as have the rule are pastors of churches. To communicate means to give to them of such worldly substance as the Lord has blessed you with; See 1st Cor. 9: 9—14.

If a church does not think enough of her pastor to minister unto him of her carnal substance, she does not love him as she ought. If you hear a man preach time after time and never feel a desire to give him anything his preaching has not fed you and you do not love him.

If our pastors would spend less time exposing other denominations and give more time to telling their own members of their duty to each other we would have better times.

A church does not love its pastor if she sees him or his children in rags while they themselves are well-dressed. There should be equality.

P. D. G.

DEAR BRETHREN IN CHRIST:—I have just received the two numbers of the LANDMARK of May 1st and 15th. They are laden with many good things from afar, and the great mystery of godliness is so set forth in the great work of the Almighty in his dealings with his people, that I read the two numbers from lid to lid, and ate of the manna and drank of the wine. Then the thought comes, I am not worthy of such blessings, and coming in from my work at an unusual hour I thought I would read a few words in the bible. I commenced and read the third chapter of Luke, and in that chapter I was confirmed in my views of Seth as the church. I believe that Cain was a natural man without God and without hope in the world, and Abel a type of Christ and Seth of the church, and the descendents of Seth were the sons of God that looked upon the daughters of men, the Canaanites, and they were fair to look upon, and they took to themselves wives as many as they would. To be brief I will say that God saw the wickedness of the people, and said he would destroy them off the face of the earth. Now Noah was commanded to build the Ark which he did as a type of Christ on earth setting up the gospel kingdom. The flood came. The crucifixion and burial of Christ, the waters assuaged, and they were established on dry land again. Then they were established on the earth again, which represents the resurrection and ascension, and the establishing of the true gospel church, and beasts represent the world that the child of grace has to live with in this life.

Now I think that what was applicable to nations and tribes under the law is applicable to churches, associations and even to individuals under grace, and that we have the daughters of men here to-day, and they are fair to look upon. It is not worth while to call names, only to say, the religious institutions of the day entrap many of God's dear children that are caught in their gins and snares, and carried away into Babylon as the Israelites did after the destruction of Jerusalem. They married among the Moabites and the Amorites, and raised up children that did not speak the Jewish language, nor the language of the Moabites, but spoke between the nations. The time shall come when they cannot stand sounder doctrine. I think these are the people that are spoken of here.

In my great joy I continued to read to the 8th verse of the 5th chapter of Luke, when I read that I gave away and burst into tears. I then realized my position, that my net was broken, and my ship was loaded down to sinking with the good fish. Then it was that I could exclaim with the old prophet, "Depart from me for I am a sinful man O Lord. Brother Gold, your editorial regarding Samson was one of the greatest comforts to me that I ever had. I believe with all my heart that it came from God, for no natural man could have sought out such things. Also brother Lester's reply to the enquirer. I have wished many, many times that I could use such comforting language to the enquirer, the seekers of the Lord. Remember me brethren when at a throne of grace. Your brother in hope of eternal life.

A. R. STORY.

Eastis, Fla.,

ELDER GOLD, MY DEAR BROTHER:
—Publish this letter for the benefit of some of God's ministers and members of the Primitive Baptist church.

I will give any one of God's ministers 5 acres of good orange grove land, if he will come and build and live on it. The country is healthy, well watered and timbered. We have a good school and preaching twice a month. I preach here every first Sunday, or try, the Methodists every third Sunday. I will also help any of the brethren that will come here and settle. I own land here that is good for gardening, and our climate is as good as could be asked for. Of course we are not entirely free from fault. We have a few frosts through the winter—hardly ever more than 3 or 4 frosts during the winter. We have as good hammock land here as a man could ask for. I have made sugar cane here on the hammock land that yielded one gallon of juice to the stalk of cane. I read in the papers of strikes in different sections of the country, when if the people would come to Florida, take hold and go to work they could live easily and live well. I am surprised when I read letters from brethren and friends in different sections of the country, asking if wood or fuel is scarce in this country. We have all the timber here we want just for the cutting of it, and our fire-wood and fuel is free, the cities and towns excepted. Now brethren, I will give you a description of myself. I am 5½ feet high, a yard wide and nearly a yard thick, weigh 207 lbs, died in the wool Old Primitive Baptist. Here is my pass-word, regeneration, born of the Spirit, and heir of the Father, and joint-heir with our Elder brother Jesus Christ. Bless his holy name.

Elder Gold, I want to thank you for your kindness in sending hymn books. Brother, I can say we have a good country, we are lacking rail-roads and steamboat transportation which is our great draw-back. This section is a new country thinly populated.

Can't you come here next winter and stay with me? Elder U. M. Bennett of Volusia county, Fla., told me you had been down to see them, and spent sometime among the brethren of the Indian River Primitive Baptist Association. I want this letter to satisfy all enquiring brethren and friends. This is a good stock country.

JOEL W. SWAIN.

Fort Duval, Fla.,

BROTHER GOLD:—I feel like I want to write you some of my opinion about church and pastor of the church. I think when a church selects a pastor, if guided by the wisdom of God, she has chosen the one prepared and qualified by the Lord to know more of her need in all her conditions than anyone else, being the Shepherd of the flock, and being supplied with needed food and nourishment by the High Shepherd to whom the flock belongs. He is the one the flock looks for, and as it were bleats and craves for, anxiously waiting to see the morning come for him to appear and supply their needs, give them the spiritual food that the Lord has supplied him with. I for one, (for I am writing my feelings) am disappointed when I have waited a month (only twelve times in a long year) to see my pastor come to give us our portion of the Heavenly manna, but when he appears as we hope with a full basket willing to do his Father's bidding, and instead, or for lack of an opportunity he does not give it to me. Now, brother Gold, when a pastor goes to his church and there are distant preachers there I feel it all right and proper for the brethren to be satisfied for them to occupy the time, but if there be preachers of our neighborhood whom we can hear oftener, and perhaps two or three times as often as we do our pastor, I do not feel satisfied when he has to go away without occupying the time he needs to deliver the message to us which is on his mind. If he has nothing on his mind, and he feels that the Lord has not given him a message for the brethren, it is right for him to insist on others to speak; but I think he ought to be impressed by the brethren that they want to hear him and for that end they have chosen him.

Remarks.

I have sometimes thought the best way for a church to shelve a preacher, so that she will not hear him often, would be to call him as pastor, especially if neighboring preachers visit as they often do, and he feels it his duty as a matter of kindness to ask them to preach, and they do so. Let me state the matter as it appears right to me as follows: If a brother has an appointment to preach the people go there then to hear him. He therefore should preach first. If after he preaches the people desire to hear others then they can preach, one or more, as the case may seem good. When a church calls a pastor it is a declaration that that church wants to hear him preach. The regular meeting time therefore is his appointment. If the brethren desire to hear other visiting preachers from the neighborhood, or elsewhere, then all right. I should hate very much to go to a church where another is pastor and I occupy his time to the mortification of the church.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Having to write I want to tell you and the dear readers of the LANDMARK what a precious and lovely meeting we have just had at Conoho. One dear sister came home and was received and baptized on Sunday. Her experience was indeed edifying to the saints, and on Sunday after communion we all joined in washing each other's feet. Such meetings are like an oasis in the desert of this world, where the weary pilgrim reposes for a while and partakes of the cooling waters it affords and invigorates him for the further prosecution of his journey. Oh that the dear people of God everywhere would dwell together in love and peace. How good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell in unity. Surely there is nothing like it in all the earth. One sister said, I feel like I do not want to go home, we have had such a feast. If it were not for such seasons of joy and peace which I sometimes have, and a felt presence of the Lord I feel like I should faint by the way.

Yours in love,

M. T. LAWRENCE.

Whereas complaint has been made to the Primitive Baptist church at Philadelphia, Caldwell Co., N. C., by some of the members of the Primitive Baptists, with some of the good citizens of the aforesaid county, we, the church at Philadelphia announce to the church at Spoon Creek, Patrick co., Va., that brother John Trent received a letter of dismissal from us and claimed to have laid his letter in at Spoon Creek church. We report to Spoon Creek through ZION'S LANDMARK that his walk has become very disorderly. It is a general report and a known fact to some of the brethren that he drank spirituous liquors to excess, and used unbecoming language, also borrowing money of some of the brethren and not remitting, also leaving his securities to pay his promissory notes and he has now fled to parts unknown to us. We, the church at Philadelphia, withdraw fellowship from him as the Scriptures teach us to withdraw from every brother that walks disorderly. We warn Primitive Baptists everywhere against him as an impostor. We do this for the love we have for the Primitive cause and our brethren. This done on Saturday before the first Sunday in July 1894, in church conference and signed,

J. E. ADAMS, Mod.

J. W. Keaton, Clerk.

Hartland, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV.....No. 17.

WILSON, N. C., JULY 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I want to ask your views on some Scriptures, which I hope you will be pleased to give through the LANDMARK. The Scripture that reads, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." Does it mean for it to be preached to every creature of Adam's race, or does it mean only to be preached to the regenerated world. I believe that the preaching of the gospel has its moralizing influence over the world, and it seems to me where it says, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved brings in the speciality.

Some of our people think that those that are damned for not believing are the children of God, and are only damped here in this world. Also I would ask you to give your views on who it is that sins against the Holy Ghost, for which there is no forgiveness. Yours truly,

W. H. MULLIS.

Reedy Springs, Ga.

Remarks.

We esteem it our privilege to set forth what is most assuredly believed by us, namely that the command which Jesus gave to his Apostles was fulfilled by them, and that they went everywhere, or in all the world, and did preach the gospel to every creature. See Rom. 10:18 and Col. 1:6 and 1:23. It had been in the days of prophecy, and in the personal ministrations of Christ while in the flesh confined to the Jews: but after the resurrection of Christ he declared to his Disciples that all power both in heaven and in earth was given into his hand, and he commanded his Disciples to go into all the world, or to every nation, as well as the Jews, and preach the gospel to every creature. Certain signs were to follow those that believed them: See Mark 16:17:18, "And these signs shall follow them that believe." In the name of Jesus they shall cast out devils: they shall speak with new tongues. They shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them. They shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover. Now if the operators or servants of the modern Mission scheme are authorized of God to do the work they are performing under the above command those that believe would have these same signs. Surely if they are obeying that Scripture they will have the seal of God given to them, and their converts will perform these works or have these signs. But do they have them? No, not one of them. Now we have proved from Scripture that the Apostles did themselves obey that command, and that none of those claiming this power now are entitled to it.

God has a people among all nations, and hence he sends his angels or ministers to gather them out of the world. Those that believe make it manifest to others thus that they are saved, and they themselves also receive the benefits thereof. They that believe not thus make it manifest that they are not God's people, and therefore shall be damned.

We see noted examples recorded in the Acts of the Apostles setting forth the way the Lord brings the knowledge of salvation to his chosen people.

1st. On the day of Pentecost men are gathered who were before devout men. The Holy Ghost—not preaching—quickens them. When quickened they cry out in their distress. Peter preaches to them, Repent ye, etc. They are subjects of salvation ready to hear.

2nd. Cornelius is a devout man praying and giving alms, but he does not understand how he can be saved. Peter is sent to preach to him, and he is to hear words from Peter whereby he shall be saved.

3rd. So the Eunuch is a troubled man—a convicted, distressed man. Phillip is sent to preach to him.

4th. After Paul is quickened and in deep trouble Ananias is sent to him with good tidings.

5th. When the Apostles preached as many as were ordained to eternal life believed."—Acts 13 : 48. "Paul abode long at Corinth because God had much people there."—Acts 18 : 10, 11.

Two things here are noticeable. One is the subject of grace is made willing to hear. Then a preacher is sent to preach to him. How shall they preach except they be sent? So we hold that until now the preacher is sent of God, and the poor in spirit have the gospel preached to them. Faith cometh by hearing and hearing cometh by the word of God.

In the letter or sound the word goes to Adam's race at large. Their sound (the letter) went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world. Rom. 10 : 18. So now we preach in the letter or sound to every one that is present at the preaching. But in spirit and power it goes only to those prepared to hear, or to the poor.

What is the sin against the Holy Ghost for which there is no forgiveness? If one is never born of the Spirit, or Holy Ghost there is no knowledge of salvation in him, and no salvation for him. He is in every preacher of the gospel, and in every believer, and is the final and sure revealer of salvation. Therefore sin against him cannot be forgiven, for there is nothing above Him in the matter of forgiveness or salvation. If one sin against the Son of man that is forgiven by the revelation made by the Holy Ghost of the efficacy of the blood of Jesus to cleanse from sin. But if one sin against the Holy Ghost there is none to forgive and there is no forgiveness.

The Jews said Christ cast out devils through the prince of devils. This was blasphemy against the Holy Ghost for which there was no forgiveness. No soul that fears God and worships him could be guilty of this sin against the Holy Ghost.

P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR SIR:— I have read and re-read your answer to "Mr. Morriss," page 375 in the 1st of July issue of the LANDMARK, and was the more deeply interested because I had heard it affirmed that Old Baptists denied that the Word of God—the Scriptures, as we have it—is the gospel of Christ. But to a plain reader your kind answer is not altogether clear-cut and ringing, so that my mind is not clear as to your view of the sufficiency or insufficiency of the Scriptures to make one wise unto salvation. Please sir, do me the kindness to state plainly the Old Baptist views respecting the inspiration of the Scriptures. Do Old Baptists believe the Word of God to be a sufficient rule of faith and practice? Do they hold that the Word of God—the Scriptures as we have them—are able to make one wise unto salvation? Do they believe that there is any other gospel than that which Paul preached, and which is revealed to us in the Old and New Testament Scriptures?

A plain answer to these plain questions will be gratefully received by a diligent reader of the LANDMARK. Yours respectfully,

J. E. DESHAZO.

Danville, Va.

Remarks:

I wish to reply to my friend as plainly as I can and as faithfully. Look at 2nd Timothy 3:15-17: "And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration," &c.

You see there is great use of Scripture. It is able to make a child of God wise unto salvation. How? Through faith which is in what? In the Scriptures? No, but in Christ Jesus. The Scriptures do not testify of themselves; but they bear witness or testify of another, even of Jesus. They do not say eternal life is in themselves, but that it is in Christ Jesus. Faith must be in Jesus, the God of the Scriptures. Christ, and not the Scriptures, is both the author and finisher of our faith. "Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."—Heb. 12:2. We must trust in him who is the author and finisher of faith, and the author of the Scripture. For Christ is God. In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and that word was made flesh. That word is not the Scripture. The Scriptures were not made flesh.

"We preach not the Scriptures, but, we preach Christ crucified."—1 Cor. 1:23, 24. He is the power of God, and the wisdom of God. But the Scriptures testify of Christ. If we preach Christ, we preach just what the Scriptures testify of and bear witness to. If what I preach is not according to the Scriptures then I am not preaching the truth. The Scriptures always tell the truth. If I preach not according to what they say I am a liar. They are holy and inspired of God, and no man since the Apostles' day has ever been empowered or inspired to write Scripture. They are full, and thoroughly furnish the man of God (not a natural man) unto all good works. It is no where said the Scriptures make a man of God, but they thoroughly furnish the man of God unto all good works.

The word of God does not return to him void. It is quick and powerful. The words of Jesus are Spirit and life. He raised Lazarus from the dead by that word, or by his own power. A man might repeat the very words Jesus used in calling Lazarus from the dead, and he might call a dead man a thousand times, yet it would have no effect whatever in raising the dead man. Why? Because they would not be the words of Jesus, as Jesus spoke them, but they are the words of a man in the sense they have no more power than the man has who speaks them. The power is in Jesus and of him.

People misunderstand us in many things. When God gives them understanding then they understand the Scriptures, and know that the Scriptures are able to make us wise unto Salvation through faith, but that faith is not in the Scriptures, but in Christ Jesus the God that gave the Scriptures. The Old Baptists adhere to the Scriptures more than any other denominations. They think more of them than any other denomination, because they worship and serve the God who gave the Scriptures.

"We have also a more sure word of prophecy," etc. 2nd. Peter 1 : 19-21. That more sure word is the Scripture.

Nothing is surer than the Scriptures. We do well to take heed unto them as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in our hearts. But they are not the day nor the day-star. That is Jesus. We wait for him, and while waiting we do well to give good heed to what the Scriptures teach. For they always testify the truth.

The gospel is the power of God unto Salvation to every one that believes. Rom. 1 : 16. See Rom. 1 : 1-3. Here Paul tells us he was separated unto the gospel of God, which he had promised afore by his prophets in the Holy Scriptures concerning his Son Jesus Christ. The prophets wrote of what was promised before concerning Jesus Christ. Now we need all this. We cannot preach the gospel of Christ without the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven—nor understand the Scriptures unless we have the Spirit of God. This word comes in demonstration of the Spirit and of power—not merely must the Spirit accompany the word of the gospel, but it must come in power and in the Holy Ghost.—1st. Thess. 1 : 5.

We do not believe there is any other true gospel except the gospel which Paul preached. But we do not believe it was revealed to Paul nor to any other man by the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament. Paul had read the Scriptures many times before the Lord appeared to him. He says the gospel was received by him, not by the Scriptures, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ: Gal. 1:12. When Jesus was revealed to Paul then the gospel was revealed to him, because it is all in and of him. The Spirit of God takes the things of Christ and shows them unto us. God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit.

1st Cor. 2:10. The Scriptures prove what I am stating. They are a witness, but a witness to a deed, or fact, or transaction is not that deed, or fact, transaction. But in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established.

By the word of God the worlds were framed: Heb. 11:3. God spake and it was done. That is the word which by the gospel is preached unto us: 1st. Peter 1:25. We are born again by this word. Then this is God's power. The Holy Ghost sends this word into our hearts. It is quick and powerful, sharper than a two edged sword, etc. The written Scriptures are as a frame for this word. The word is the apples of gold—the Scriptures as the pictures of silver; or the Scriptures are as the honey comb, and the word God, or the power that moved holy men to write them, is as the honey in the comb.

When our understanding is enlightened by the Spirit of God, or the Scriptures opened and expounded to us, then the word is found and we eat it. How good it is and how powerful. How precious is the word of God.

P. D. G.

NOTHING IN SECRET.

— And Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing.— John 18:20.

The Primitive Baptists are noted for several things peculiar. One of them is their refusal to receive or retain in their numbers or fellowship those that are members of secret societies. We hold that if any doctrine is good it ought to be proclaimed publicly, but if it is not good it should not be proclaimed at all, either secretly or in public. He that doeth truth cometh to the light that it may be manifest that his deeds are wrought in God. He that doeth evil hateth the light. Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil.

The common plea which men offer in defense of secret societies, that it is for their protection against outsiders, would not be needful where there is nothing done or spoken injurious to the public.

Many societies are apparently without charge of damaging the public. Such societies do not have any mischievous aim. But in all ages in times of danger, or when opportunities offer, wicked men have been found ready to band them, selves together, but to do what? To accomplish unjustifiable ends, or use means that are improper.

Secret societies tend to divide people into factions and array them one against another, and thus produce discord in the country. Recently we behold the abuse of some of these secret societies, such as they that strike for higher wages, or make demands on others unacceptable, and refuse to fulfill their own contracts, and go still further and attempt to obstruct all effort of others to do what they refuse to do themselves. For instance railroad employes combine to suddenly stop all their labor, and thus cause a stand-still to so important a matter as general transportation of people from place to place, the transmission of mails, and the delivery of freight. They also attempt to prevent all others from doing the work they refused to do. This paralyzes business. The present condition of labor strikes could not be caused without secret organizations. There are many oath-bound secret societies teaching in secret and holding meetings in secret to foster among themselves principles and objects inimical to the interests of other men and the public. When it suits these societies or their leaders, or even a part of them, they act together in array against some other person or body of persons, or some other society or corporation. The present labor unions or societies are making what they call strikes against railroads, and the amount of this is to make them against the public. For people travel at a distance almost exclusively by railroads, and all freights from a distance are hauled by railroads, and mails are generally delivered in the same way. Hence an attack on them causing a stoppage of their business affects every man, woman and child in the country more or less, the poor quite as much as the rich. The disastrous effects of such conduct cannot well be measured.

Old Baptists are opposed to combinations and secret societies among both rich and poor. We do not endorse the war between capital and labor, nor approve of either side of the fight. It is all wrong. The rich need the poor, and the poor need the rich. If there were no rich there would be no poor. The inequality is the advantage to both. To be neither is better.

One of the great curses of this age is the love of money and its consequences, seen in rich men oppressing the poor, and trusting in uncertain riches; and the poor not content with their lot, but seeking unlawfully to force the rich to a division of their property. In the days of the Apostles those that had wealth voluntarily and freely gave it into a common stock. The poor did not then demand it.

We desire to be arrayed against no man—to hold no man or class of men as our enemies—but to regard all men as creatures of God, and hold good will to all, to defraud none, nor wrong any. We teach openly and publicly, and are not ashamed of what we teach. Jesus never taught in secret, but always taught publicly in the synagogue and temple where the Jews continually resorted.

Any Baptist who joins any secret society—to visit this and plans to carry out measures against the good of any other party, is departing from the principles taught in the Bible.

There is a blessed secret of the Lord with them that fear him which they often try to tell, but feel that they never have told, nor never can tell as they would wish.

But we are to be no strikers. What think you of a preacher who is a striker? Paul says he is to be no striker. Whatever that word means in the Bible, whether fighting with carnal weapons—or aiming at a thing and missing it—or borrowing or imitating it is all wrong.

We say it is wrong for rich men to combine to oppress the poor, and wrong for poor men to combine against the rich. We are to trust God in all things, and do right to all men in all things. P. D. G.

BROTHER GOLD:—If not intruding on your time too much, please answer the following questions.

1st. Will the Scriptures sustain Baptists in holding prayer meetings, provided they keep separate and apart from all other denominations in conducting these meetings?

2d. Did the Baptists hold such meetings years before the split, before Arminianism made its appearance in their camps and caused so much trouble.

3d. Do any Baptists hold anywhere in your knowing at this time prayer meetings? Brother Gold, it has been on my mind at times for a good while to ask you this question for information. Yours in hope.

H. W. CHANEY.

Answer.

Yes: The Scriptures warrant prayer meetings of the right kind. See Acts 3: 1: "Now Peter and John went up into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the 9th hour." The hour of prayer is the time devoted to prayer, and hence called that hour. See Acts 16: 13: "And on the Sabbath we went out of the city by a river-side, where prayer was wont to be made" &c.—This shows there was a custom to have meetings for prayer—where prayer was wont to be made showing it was a constant or regular matter.

The question with us is, not what other denominations do, or do not do, but the question is, what ought we to do. If we shun any thing others do—just because they do so, and so, then we must stop eating, wearing clothes, sleeping, walking, &c. &c. We should seek to do what is right and in the right time and place.

2nd. The Baptist, before the division held such meetings, and it seems to me proper for them to do so again.

3rd. I know of Primitive Baptists in this country that have prayer meetings, though there are not many churches within my knowledge that do so. Baptists have become too slack about many things. They are not careful enough about bringing up their children. They are not doing their duty towards helping their pastors. They think too much about making money. They do not keep out of all mud-holes, such as dram-shops, as they ought. They are so afraid that they will be like Arminians that they fail to do things they ought to do. They have got to hair-splitting too much, and that gets the bristles up. I mean not the bristles of a sheep—for it has none—but of a hog.

They are too much concerned about out-side matters—such as how shall I dress, or what shall I wear, or this one dresses too fine—or that one not fine enough, while they are not careful to walk in white and keep themselves unspotted from the world.

As for Arminianism that is much older in its principles than James Arminius. It is as old as human nature, and is an outgrowth and result of man's fallen nature that crops out and shows itself from his infancy. Every man by nature is an Arminian. The best way to shun Arminianism is not to do nothing, but seek to do what God commands as he commands it. Men ought always to pray—pray without ceasing—that is it should not be neglected—but faithfully observed. If Baptists would meet oftener to confess their faults one to another, then each could oftener say, come see and hear what the Lord has done for me.

P. D. G.

Elder E. C. Smith is an authorized agent to receive subscriptions for the LANDMARK.

Attention is called to brother J. W. Gilliam's School as being a good one and worthy of patronage.

The Silver Creek Primitive Baptist Association will convene with the church at Zion, Watauga Co., N. C., six miles West of Valle Cnces commencing on Friday before the 2nd Sunday in Sept 1894. Primitive Baptists generally are invited, and especially ministers, as we have a desire to meet our brethren on such occasions.

J. W. KEATON.

It is requested that clerks of Union meetings send in notices of their next session immediately after the holding of each session in order that our preachers traveling may make their appointments to meet them.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Will you please ask through your next LANDMARK Eld. Purifoy to write me. I don't know where he is. I want to send him a letter. Thought this a good way to find him.

Respectfully,

R. L. DODSON.

Ringgold, Pitt Co., Va.

The next session of the Eastern Union is appointed to convene with the Primitive Baptist church at Bethlehem, Tyrrel county N. C., commencing Friday before the 5th Sunday in July 1894. Elder David Carter was chosen to preach the introductory, Elder D. W. Topping his alternate.

W. K. BRINN,

Clerk.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Please publish in the LANDMARK that the next session of the Cool Spring Primitive Baptist Association is appointed to be held with Cool Spring Church, Greenville Co. S. C., commencing on Friday before the 2nd Sunday in Oct. 1894. Those coming by R. R. will come via Athens on the C. K. W. R. R., or will be met at Greenville. Hope the dear brethren and especially ministers can feel to visit us. Conveyance will be provided for all coming on the cars if they will please write me.

Cool Spring church is about seventeen miles from Greenville, near Marydell P. O., S. C.

W. S. COX.

Marydell, S. C.

OBITUARIES.

CAROLINE T. HALL.

On the 22d day of April, 1828, the home of Asa and Frankie Brooks was transformed from a state of suspense and anxiety into joy and thankfulness at the announcement of, unto us a girl is born, whose name shall be called Caroline, which being interpreted means noble-spirited; and her character and habits as they yielded to the impressions of time, and the force of her surroundings, truly testify to the correctness of the name, for surely she proved to be a noble spirited girl, wife, mother and grandmother. After seventeen years of single bliss, she married Elder A. N. Hall, to whom she bore two children, Joseph and Chestina. She survived one, Joseph, and lived to see a grandchild from Chestina risen into manhood, who happens to be your unfortunate writer, and to whom is dedicated the duty of chronicling the sad intelligence of her death, which occurred on the 3d of December, 1893, age 65 years, 7 months and 11 days.

In consideration of the esteem in which I held the memory of my grandmother, and the appreciation of her exemplary life and character, I have yielded to what I believed to be my duty, despite that innate feeling of totality to truly discharge so important a task. I would also add that the manifest desire of her countless friends to see her obituary has formed no little consideration in calling forth this notice.

Grandma Hall, as I used to call her, was born of Primitive Baptist parentage, who gave her the advantage of a moderate education for her tender years. At the youthful age of 17 she married a Primitive Baptist preacher, Elder A. N. Hall. They lived happily together for nearly half a century; during which time it may be truthfully said they bore each other's sorrows and shared each other's joys. "While yet a girl—even before marriage—grandma seemed to have been concerned about religion, which intensified and heightened as she grew older, until some time in 1865 God saw fit to lead her out of darkness into light, established her goings, and put a new song into her mouth—even praises unto God. Soon afterward she united with the Primitive Baptist church, and from that day until her death she lived the life of a devout christian. The daily walk and orderly conversation all bear record of her sincerity, devotion, and consecration to the cause which she had espoused.

Ever guarded in her remarks, and considerate in her request, preferring to suffer wrong herself rather than wrong others, I am sure her acquaintances in the household of faith will testify that she was a mother in Isreal.

As a child, she was obedient, respectful and confiding; as a wife, affectionate and mild—yet strong and encouraging; as a mother, she was patient and sympathetic—yet firm and resolute; as a grandmother, she was indulgent and forgiving; as neighbor, she was kind and accommodating, and as a friend, she was generous, charitable and true.

I know it is said that we are given too much to eulogy and praise of our departed friends and relations—yet I ask, what is more deserving of our eulogy, or worthy of our praise than the memory of a good pious woman naturally, refined and christianized by the power and grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ?

Such was the every day demeanor and christian-like bearing of Grandma, though the mental servants would say "Surely she is a good woman. Slow to anger, and still slower to offend. Ready to forgive, and still readier to ask forgiveness. Quick to accommodate, and still quicker to befriend. Thus lived and died our true wife, devoted mother, and beloved grandmother.

If there is any one thing in general to which special attention should be called as characterizing her life, it is the ready, willing, and tireless manner in which she assisted her husband in discharging his pastoral work. Ever prompt in arranging his wardrobe preparatory to his frequent tours. It seemed to be the greatest pleasure of her life to administer to his every want, and anxious to do those things she fancied would contribute to his happiness. Always by his side to speak words of encouragement to his sometimes drooping spirits, to administer and exhort him to the prompt discharge of the work of his Holy Calling.

Grandma lived to raise two children and see them married with families. Her days were also sufficient to sorrow thereof to watch over the death bed of her only son and witness his interment into the cold grave. He left a widow and seven children, with whom she spent her last days. From this sorrow she never recovered, and even that was intensified about a year later, by the death of a granddaughter, (my only sister) Hallie, a beautiful girl of 18. That the cold and silent hand of death had withheld its touch from her family for 40 years, she felt thankful; but now that it had once, twice, invaded her happy home, she knew full well that according to nature, the pale horse would soon again resume his march, and pause at her door alike to deliver that fearful summons. Hence her daily intercourse became more and more circumscribed. Her smiles less and less frequent. Her conversation yea, yea and nay, nay.

She might be often heard to express the opinion that she would not live long. That her course was nearly run. Realizing, as but few do, the vanity and uncertainty of this life, and the fixed reality of the life to come; she was zealous in admonishing her household to live honest, sober and upright before men, and to look to God for salvation; the Author and finisher of her faith.

About six weeks before her death she visited my mother in Roxboro, N. C., when in a few days she was taken sick of typhoid fever, which was destined to break down the barrier of her soul between Heaven and earth.

At the beginning of her sickness she spoke of it as the last struggle in the flesh. Towards the close she repeatedly tried to tell us something, but could not,—finally saying, "I can't tell it but I will be happy."

So on the morning of the 3rd of December she breathed out her last.

From her bereaved husband and sorrowing daughter and grand-children she is forever gone. That face that once illumined their hopes is forever hid. But in its stead is left a still richer heritage—an outworn memory and a bright evidence of a peaceful acceptance with God.

A. L. BROOKS.

Good reports are coming in from various sections of Baptisms. We love to hear of such good things as peace in churches, and that the Lord is adding thereto. For he adds such as shall be saved.

P. D. G.

APPOINTMENTS

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

W. J. STEPHENSON.

Neuse Sat. and 3rd Sun. in July
Salem Monday
Creches Tuesday
Beulah Wednesday
Memorial Thursday
Aycocks Friday
Wilson Sat. and 4th Sun.
Union Monday
Pleasant Hill Tuesday
Robbins' School House Wednesday
Mill Branch Thursday
Thence to Skewarkey Union.

S. HASSELL.

Durham Thursday and Thursday night
August 9
Roxboro Friday
Shiloh 2d Sat. and Sunday in August
Storie's Creek Monday
Sunny Side Tuesday
Ebenezer Wednesday
Wheeler's Thursday
Prospect Hill Friday
Country Line Association 3d Saturday.
..... Sunday and Monday in August
Gilliams Tuesday
Pleasant Grove Wednesday
Reidsville Thursday
Thence to Abbott's Creek Association. Elder A. N. Hall expects to be with him on part of the appointments. They will need conveyance.

W. B. WILLIAMS.

Sandy Grove Sat. and 4th Sunday in July Healthy Plains Monday
Upper Black Creek Tuesday
Memorial Wednesday
Chapel Thursday
Thence to Black Creek Union.
Old Union Monday
Bethel Tuesday
Smithfield Wednesday
Little Creek Thursday
Thence to Eno Association.
He will need conveyance.

A. V. SIMMS.

Savannah, Ga. Wednesday night after
1st Sunday in August
Statesboro Thursday night
Bethlehem Friday
Upper Mill Creek Saturday
Upper Lotts Creek 2nd Sunday
Rosemary Monday
Hill Tuesday
Lake Wednesday
Cedar Creek Thursday
Little Flock Friday
Bay Branch Saturday
Lovers Chapel 3rd Sunday
Bears Creek Monday
Bethel Tuesday

Belknap.....Wednesday
 New Delaiches.....Thursday
 Upper Black Creek.....Friday
 Fellowship.....Sat and 4th Sunday
 Lanes.....Monday
 He will need conveyance.

T. C. HART.

Old Town Creek.....Sat and 5th Sun. in July
 Sparta.....Monday
 Little Creek.....Tuesday
 Tarboro.....Wednesday
 Williams.....Thursday
 Falls.....Friday
 Union.....Saturday
 Wilson.....1st Sunday in August
 White Oak.....Tuesday
 Meadow.....Wednesday
 He will need conveyance.

J. T. ROWE & P. D. GOLD.

Lick Fork.....Tues. after 2nd Sun. in August
 Wolf Island.....Wednesday
 Reidsville.....Wednesday night Thursday and Thursday night
 Thence to Country Line Association.

J. T. ROWE.

Lynch Creek.....Tuesday after 3rd Sunday in August
 Arbor.....Wednesday
 Gilliams.....Thursday
 Thence to Abbotts Creek Association.
 He will need conveyance.

H. F. PEEDIN.

Little Creek.....Monday after 5th Sunday in July
 Rehoboth.....Tuesday
 Middle Creek.....Wednesday
 Willow Spring.....Thursday
 Oak Grove.....Friday
 Durham.....Friday night
 Thence to Eno Association.

Dutchville.....Tuesday after Shoo Fly.....Wednesday
 Camp Creek.....Thursday
 Snel.....Friday
 Flat River.....Sat. and 2nd Sunday
 Wheelers.....Monday
 Prospect Hill.....Tuesday
 Lynchs Creek.....Wednesday
 Arbor.....Thursday
 Gilliams.....Friday
 Thence to Country Line Association.
 He will need conveyance.

GEO. ROBBINS & W. A. HILLIARD (col)

Nester Lowry Wiggs (Williamston, N. C.)
 5th Sunday in July
 Londons Chapel (near Wilson) Monday 3 p. m.
 Barnes.....Tuesday
 Jonas Williams M. H.....Wednesday
 Darhams.....Thursday night
 Durham Association (col) Sat. 1st Sunday in August and Monday
 They will need conveyance.

ISAAC JONES.

Durham.....Sat. and 4th Sunday in July.
 Brother J. A. Youngs.....Monday

Willow Spring.....Tuesday
 Fellowship.....Wednesday
 Rehoboth.....Thursday
 Little Creek.....Friday
 Smithfield.....Friday night
 Smithfield Union at Bethany Saturday and 5th Sunday.
 Old Union.....Monday
 Cross Reeds.....Tuesday
 Chapel.....Wednesday

J. T. ROWE.

Eno Association.
 Roxboro.....Tuesday
 Stone's Creek.....Wednesday
 Roxboro.....Wednesday night
 Thence to Stanton River Association.

J. E. ADAMS.

Buffalo.....July 27
 Spoon Creek Va.....28
 Center.....29
 River View.....30
 Reid Creek.....31
 Camp Branch.....August 1
 Leatherwood.....2
 Axton.....3
 Goodwill.....4
 Ridgeway.....5
 Matrimony, N. C.....6
 Shiloh.....7
 Pleasantville.....8
 Wolf Island.....9
 Lick Fork.....10
 Rock Academy.....11
 Pleasant Grove.....12
 Gilliams.....13
 Arbor.....14
 Prospect Hill.....15
 Lynchs Creek.....16
 He will need conveyance.

M. F. STUBBS.

Eno Association.....1st Sunday in August
 Roxboro.....Tuesday
 Shiloh.....Wednesday
 Stories Creek.....Thursday
 sunny Side.....Friday
 Wheelers.....Sat. and 2nd Sunday
 Prospect Hill.....Tuesday
 Arbor.....Wednesday
 Lynchs Creek.....Thursday
 Thence to Country Line Association.
 Lick Fork.....Tuesday
 Wolf Island.....Wednesday
 Reidsville.....Thursday
 Thence to Abbotts Creek Association.
 His wife will accompany him. They will need conveyance.

RUFUS HUTCHINS.

Matrimony.....Friday before 2d Sun. in Aug.
 Shiloh.....Saturday
 Pleasantville.....Sunday
 Wolf Island.....Monday
 Lick Fork.....Tuesday
 Pleasant Grove.....Wednesday
 Arbor.....Thursday
 Thence to Country Line Association. He
 will need conveyance.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R. and Branches, & Florence Railroad Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 5, 1904.	No. 25, Daily.	No. 41, Daily.	No. 41, Daily.	No. 41, Daily.
Lv Weldon	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	11 54	9 27
	1 04	10 20
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv Wilson	2 05	11 01
Lv Selma	2 58
Lv Fayetteville	4 35	12 57
Ar. Florence	7 25	3 00
	No. 47, Daily.
Lv. Wilson	2 15		A. M.
Lv Goldsboro	3 05		6 35
Lv Magnolia	4 15		7 45
Ar Wilmington	5 40		9 20
	P. M.		12 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 5, 1904.	No. 28, Daily.	No. 10, Daily.	No. 4, Daily.
Lv Florence	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Fayetteville	7 30	7 25
Lv Selma	10 25	9 30
Ar. Wilmington	12 05	11 52
	No. 45, Daily.
Lv Wilmington	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Magnolia	9 00	7 00
Lv Goldsboro	10 40	8 33
Ar Wilson	11 55	9 40
	12 40	10 27
	No. 28, Daily.	No. 10, Daily.
Lv Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 10	11 27	10 32
	3 13	12 05	11 18
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 13	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 10	12 05
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.

1Daily except Monday. 2Daily except Sunday.
 *These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.
 Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 5 12 p. m., Kinston, 7 15 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.
 Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrives Pamlico 8 40 a. m., Tarboro 9 20, returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Pamlico

7 30 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.
 Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 8 00 p. m., Sunday 8 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 6 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 6 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.
 Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 45 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 6 30 a. m.
 Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 1 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.
 Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 50 p. m., arrive Dunbar 8 00 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m., arrive Latta 8 00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.
 Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 30 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.
 Train No. 28 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Ray Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt.
J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
 Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
 Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
 Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
 Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
 Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25
 Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
 No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.
 Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.
 In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order
 Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address
 J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
 Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th, 1893, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable. The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
 Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 23d, and conveyed by rail, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
 Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
 At this office. Send for samples, &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
 https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13966/t5t5252z / Public Domain

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a Great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

D. R. H. H. GREEN & SON,
30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.

They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.
P. D. GOLD.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No. 1			No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv		7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar		9 10 a m
4 35 p m	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv		10 37 a m
3 12 p m	Lv.....Sandford.....Ar		11 48 a m
1 47 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		1 43 a m
12 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		2 15 p m
12 54 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv		2 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		3 45 p m
11 43 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pct.—W. Cove.....Ar		4 30 p m
11 35 p m	At.....N. & W. Pct.—W. Cove.....Lv		4 33 p m
11 00 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv		5 00 p m
9 54 a m	At.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		6 24 p m
No. 3
5 00 p m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv		6 25 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Marion.....Lv		7 15 a m
6 05 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv		8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv		9 12 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar		9 35 a m
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday
5 35 p m	At.....Ramsour.....Lv		6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		8 40 a m
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		9 24 a m
No. 15 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday
2 35 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv		9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Maiden.....Ar		11 50 a m
No. 19 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday
	At.....Ramsour.....Lv		6 50 a m
	Lv.....Climax.....Lv		8 40 a m
	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar		9 24 a m
No. 16 MIXED Daily Ex Sunday
	At.....Greensboro.....Lv		9 40 a m
	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv		11 00 a m
	Lv.....Maiden.....Ar		11 50 a m

Train No. 2 connects at Sandford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sandford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Marion, Bennettsville and all points south of Sandford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY,

Gen'l Mang'r.

W. E. KYLE.

Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at
Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold.

WILSON, N. C.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

WILSON, North

P. D. GOLD,

P. G. LESTER, Associate

Zion's Landmark, Print, W.

st fruits and them are his at
 — AT coming. "All the Father giv unto me shall come to me. He that cometh unto me I will not cast out." "I that unity are one," is his that spiritual.
 Law can be have that spiritual.
 nited with immortal life which a Jesus secured in them.
 inspired Apostle says, "If ye e risen with Christ seek things which are above,
 Christ sitteth on the right of God. Set your affection gs above, not on things on
 h. For ye are dead and is hid with Christ in n Christ who is our life en shall ye also apm in glory." Col.
 same Apostle says,
 you a mystery, we p, but we shall all in a moment, in the
 of an eye, at the last trumpet shall sound, shall be raised incor-
 and we shall be changed.
 n-
 and thus mortal must

Generated through HathiTrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
<https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13960/t5t7525z> / Public Domain

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

Office of Zion's Landmark.

per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers each will receive the LANDMARK free for time all be at the same Post Office, and names can be clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule er changed he should state plainly both the when one wishes his paper stopped, let him send and also state his postoffice.

per paid up if possible, and when he renews give in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should names.

received please inform me of it. When you can, Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing name.

ends are requested to act as agents.

should be written plainly.

letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts,

P. D. COLE, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

THE JUDGMENT.

BRETHREN GOLD AND LESTER:—
The great and final judgment about which we hear so much in these latter days is the subject which commands the attention of the saints in every land and clime. With your permission I will try by the use of my pen to talk for a while to you and your readers on that profoundly interesting subject. In doing so I know of no other point at which to begin than that which is recorded in the 3rd chapter of Matthew beginning at the 13th verse: "Then cometh Jesus from Gallilee to Jordan to be baptised of John." It will be remembered that the name Jordan means judgment and his baptism presents in emblem the full and complete consummation of the execution of which was completed when he went down into the tomb and rose again a mighty conqueror over death, hell and the grave. The prophet says: "The soul that sinneth shall die." Ezekiel 18:20. And it was said to Adam, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Gen. 2:17. Death was the penalty of the divine law and its execution was the final judgment of God against sin who is of purer eyes than to behold evil and cannot look on iniquity." Hab. 1:13. The Apostle says, "Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men for that all have sinned." Rom. 5:12. Then the judgment of God is passed upon all men for all have sinned. They have all come short of the glory of God. God is immutable, therefore all must die. "As in Adam all die," is the language of inspiration. Even so in Christ shall all be made alive, but every one in his own order. Christ the first fruits and them that are his at his coming. "All the Father giveth unto me shall come to me, whom he him that cometh unto me I will not lose from no wise cast out." "That unity Father are one," is his that spiritual. But how can the immortal life which polluted with immortal life which is of pure Jesus secured in them. and crucified Apostle says, "If ye and crucified risen with Christ seek is a things which are above, prophet Christ sitteth on the right he fore of God. Set your affection by our things above, not on things on earth. For ye are dead and and life is hid with Christ in did. When Christ who is our life of G. When Christ who is our life apoun appear, then shall ye also apoun with him in glory." Col. was br. The same Apostle says, chastise. The same Apostle says, him and how you a mystery, we healed. All sleep, but we shall all gone astray in a moment, in the one to his of an eye, at the last hath laid on trumpet shall sound, us all. He shall be raised incor- and from and we shall be changed. declare his gen- and thus mortal must forever perfected by that one great offering. In confirmation of this great and profoundly interesting truth the inspired apostle said, "For as much then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same, that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death that is the devil, and deliver them who through fear of death were all their life time subject to bondage." Heb. 2:14-15. He delivered those children from going down to the pit wherein is no water, because by that great offering he destroyed him that had the power of death. Then surely the judgment against them was forever removed when he said, "It is finished and gave up the ghost. The law had no more claims against them when he filled it in all of its jots and tittles. The prison house of the law was torn down and forever removed when he arose from the tomb a mighty conqueror, and proclaimed to an astonished world, "Mine own arm hath brought salvation unto me." If his burial and glorious resurrection from the tomb, symbolized it his baptism, is to be accepted as evidence of the fulfilment of the law by him, then that law had no more claims on his redeemed, his chosen people, for they were one with him, chosen in him before the foundation of the world. They were judged by the law, and he, in the close and indissoluble unity with them as their head, met all its demands and filled all its requirements. It was in that unity that he proclaimed, "Mine own arm hath brought salvation unto me." They were in that unity with him when he came forth from the tomb, and the Holy Spirit revealed this great truth to the prophet when he said, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise, awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, thy dew shall be as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." Isai. 26:19. The Spirit by the prophet says, "Come and let us return unto the Lord, for he hath torn us and he will heal us, he hath smitten and he will bind us up, and we shall live in his sight." After two days he will revive us: on the third day he shall raise us up, and we shall live in his sight: Hosea 6:1-2. The prophet in vision beheld the resurrection of the great Redeemer and the unity of his people with him in his resurrection. He says, In that third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight. In that unity they were judged in him, and when he arose on the third day the judgment against them because of sin was forever removed, for they shall live in his sight. They were dead under the law of sin and death, but when he fulfilled the law, and arose from the tomb, because of that unity with him they have that spiritual, eternal and immortal life which dwells in Jesus secured in them. An inspired Apostle says, "If ye then be risen with Christ seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. 3:1-4. The same Apostle says, behold I show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump, for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and thus mortal must put on immortality." 1st Cor. 15:51-53. Our Lord said to the weeping sisters of Lazarus, "I am the resurrection and the life." When he arose from the tomb he possessed eternal and immortal life. He said to John, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore, Amen." Rev. 1-18. All his saints shall be like him, and see him as he is, is a great and glorious truth which gives joy and rejoicing to the saints as they stand on the verge of the tomb. Then evidently all his redeemed will be raised incorruptible and immortal, and be caught up to meet their glorious Lord in the air. They in their unity with him have stood before the throne of God and have been judged in him, and he has met in his own glorious person all the demands of the law that were against them. Therefore they are brought off conquerors and more than conquerors through him that has loved them and given himself for them. Then so far as his redeemed are concerned, they being judged in Jesus Christ and he having made full satisfaction to the law for them, no further judgment can or will take place, and they on the great morning of the resurrection will rise incorruptible and immortal, and will dwell with him throughout a never ending eternity, and to his name be all the glory. And may it be the blessed and happy lot of the editors and readers of the LANDMARK, and this poor old and afflicted one, to meet on that blessed shore where pain, sorrow, disease and death are feared and felt no more, is my most sincere prayer.

H. Cox,

Ghent, Ky.

DEAR BROTHER IN CHRISTIAN LOVE:—It is with pleasure I send myself to answer your kind, comforting letter received a few days ago. If I had followed the dictates of my feelings I would have answered immediately after reading, and told you how like balm it was to my troubled soul. It seemed that day that I felt forsaken by earthly friends, and far worse, felt that my Savior hid his smiling face. I was quite sick, and like the poor, sinful, disobedient child (if child I be), I found myself murmuring, comparing my chequered, unhappy, afflicted condition with those around me professing godliness. Pharisee like I tried to commend myself to my Maker by reminding him (as it were) of their walk and mine. They do things I would not do, and leave undone what I would do, but with all this proud boasting of the sinful flesh I viewed myself worse than nothing, and felt if one sin of many were remembered by a just and sin hating God where, Oh where would I be, but thank God that day, as in many others, I was humbled and made willing, yea anxious to cry, Lord have mercy and forgive my ingratitude, my sinfulness. And lo, when I came as a little helpless child, pleading for mercy, the dark clouds rolled away, and I would feel I had a "house not made with hands eternal in the Heavens," and the anointing I had received was from the heaven (created of God), not from the vial (man-work). Right here, my brother, I will tell you of thoughts that will, unbidden, arise in my mind while listening to preachers of other denominations, besides ours, when they speak of the great work God has assigned them in this life to awaken dead sinners to a willingness to receive the gospel, and accept of the chance given them to live forever or be eternally lost. I think how and by whom were you anointed for the ministry? Methinks you will say, judge not, and "what God has cleansed call thou not common or unclean," yet we are told to "judge a tree by the fruit." They tell you in their experience (if they have one) that their work was all vain and nothing but the mercy and grace of God saved them. Yet they teach the way is open to all of Adam's race if they will humble themselves and accept Christ. Then he is ready with the blessing, he (God) is anxious to bestow. They seem to know nothing about the new covenant, and lose sight of much Scripture that proves beyond a doubt that preaching is for the live man or woman. They believe "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness, but unto us which are saved, it is the power of God." Also the 11th and 12th verses, 4th chapter of Eph., and many others, until we think of the command given to Peter, to feed my sheep and lambs, not goats, as I tell them that preach for doctrine the commandments of men." If Christ died for all of Adam's race, why did he pray for only a part. "I pray for them, I pray not for the world, but for them that thou hast given me out of the world. Thine they were and thou gavest them to me." I see and feel, my brother, that they can not bear strong doctrine, nor can they receive what is such a sweet comfort to me. They are workers for the Lord. The preacher must be paid, for he cannot devote his time and study to the ministry without pay. I insult them by saying I had rather pay an old man who makes his living hauling wood, to bring me a load of wood Sunday morning, than to pay a man who says he can not and will not preach without pay. Do not think I oppose paying our preachers in caring for them and their families, for God knows my heart. If I could I would assist them all, and would to-day gladly defray the expenses of God's ministers that I could hear the glad tidings. Paul said, "woe is me if I preach not the gospel," but they say, woe is me if I am not paid to preach. My neighbors are much interested about the welfare of my youngest children, and when they meet them out, give them lectures about not attending Sunday School, and think I am neglecting a great duty in not sending my children where they would be taught religion. But, ah, brother Broders, I was taught in such schools, and under such influences was made to believe myself a converted soul, until God in mercy taught me a different lesson, and one that I shall never forget, and at the age of fourteen, while resting securely in my self-righteous robe I was awakened to see my great sinfulness and the sandy foundation I had built upon. Then, my brother, I could no longer pray the Pharisee's prayer, but in utter helplessness like the Publican, pray "Lord be merciful to me a sinner." You, my brother, and every child of God, well remember that awful waking, that bitter sorrow, that helpless cry, be merciful, Oh God. And to-day, although years have passed, I tremble to think of those days of anguish, and still I cry, Oh Father be merciful. Then I viewed him as a just yet merciful God, to-day I view him as a loving Father that can be touched with my infirmities, and I cry, Oh Father, have mercy on your erring child. Then, as now, his ears were open to my feeble cry, and the mourner was comforted, the captive released and the prisoner set free. Again, my brother, you can go with me along this house of joyful trust when it seemed that all was joy, all was love. As I have said, my parents were strict Methodists, and as a dutiful child should, I wrote and told them of the happy change, and the knowledge of Jesus not from the teaching of man, but I could feel there was a Saviour. They opposed, and forbid immersion. I never was satisfied with the sprinkling I had received while a babe, and resolved when ever I could feel no longer bound to obey to be immersed. I remained out of the church for several years, but finally joined the Missionary Baptists, thinking them to be Baptists indeed. I lived with them for seventeen years, although I could not fully endorse their doctrine. Still I tried to live in discharge of my duty as far as sinful flesh could, beset with many cares. My mother-in-law was a Baptist in truth, and often admonished her children to beware of false doctrines. It was at her house I was permitted to hear the gospel preached, but my eyes were holden, my ears stopped for a while, and their preaching was vain, but thank God he still watched over me, and when it pleased him "called me out of Babylon." And I do believe from my heart that God sent his servant into our midst that we might see and hear, the day I first saw how far I was from following in the footsteps of my Saviour I shall never forget. I tried in my way to shut out the sound of the minister's voice, tried to say I would not believe such unjust doctrine, but no, I could not. His text first condemned me, Pro. 30:11-16. Every word seemed like a death knell, and Oh, the bitter tears. I tried to stay but could not. I wanted to go, yet longed to stay. After concluding the brother invited those that felt he had preached the truth and could endorse it to give him their hand. Now came in temptations, I will not give him my hand, for I do not believe the doctrine of election, and why should I endorse with my hand what my heart refuses? But like a voice spoken I heard, "then why this restless feeling, why this close attention, why these bitter tears! and without any power to refuse I gave him my hand, and never for five long years could I feel content again. I lost interest in the church to which I belonged and felt a wanderer from home. I resolved if God would direct me I would read God's revealed will with care, and I tried to pray for an understanding heart. I sought opportunities to hear the Baptists preach, and their preaching was to me a sweet, sound, a solace to my troubled heart. I had frequent chances to join this church, but held aloof and every time was made to weep. Dear brother P. often admonished me to discharge my duty and come home to my Father's children, but I wanted to be perfectly satisfied, and felt that I had imbibed so much false doctrine I was unfit to be with the humble poor. But one night, a night never to be forgotten, it seemed there was no rest for me either of body or mind. I felt convinced that there was but one doctrine the Bible fully sustained and that was election, but this sinful heart hunted out (as it were), every excuse to hold me back. But near morning, after passing a night of anguish of soul, a perfect willingness came over me to give up children, church, friends and all to call on Jesus. I could but exclaim if I am saved it will be mercy, if lost 'tis just. And now, dear brother, words fail to express the perfect love and joy that filled my soul. Tears of sorrow changed to tears of joy, and I felt I must shout aloud the praise of my Redeemer. Still as now doubts arose, and I prayed for better evidence so plain that I could see with my natural eyes, and lo, right before me I saw a plain open path leading direct to a church door that I had never seen or heard described but 'twas there, and one month from that time I started to a Baptist Church to be baptized (having joined at my mother-in-law's.) We did not know the road, and had to inquire several times, thinking we must be lost, but about a half mile from the church I found my path. Yes, there it was so plain I told my company we would soon be there. They, of course, doubted, but we followed the path and it led right to the church door. Again I say, my brother, God willed for me to be a Primitive Baptist, and every day my faith is stronger; but I must close this long, scattering letter, and hope it will not weary you to read it. I leave it with you, and if you find this an experience of grace I am thankful, for this with another evidence, "love the brethren," is all I have. Before I bid you farewell I beg you will soon answer, for letters from my christian friends is one of the few pleasures I have in this life, and now into the hands of our Father I trust you, and hope you will remember me in prayer. Your little sister in hope,

VIOLA HARLAN.

Warren, Tex.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I mail you the above letter received from a dear sister in Texas, a reader of the LANDMARK, which if it does not crowd out better matter, I would like for you to publish. Her letter is the experience of one that has been tried in the furnace of affliction, and is interesting to me, and I thought would be interesting to others. The sister's life, according to the statement made in former letters, has not been one of flowery beds of peace, she being the only old Baptist in the town in which she lives, and surrounded by all the various religious denominations of the day, subjected to the temptations of worldly influence, and the temptations natural to one away from old Baptists, and the doctrine of election, predestination etc., which she holds as her faith in the salvation of sinners. She says she was raised in the city of Richmond, Va., brought up a petted child under the tuition of popular religious influence and taught to shun the Old Baptists and their hard doctrine, that she married against the will of her friends, and moved to Texas. When the Lord showed her that salvation is by grace, and not by the works of the creature, her life brings to my mind the words of Jesus, "Except you eat the flesh, and drink the blood of the Son of Man, you have no life in you." How often the poor, weary saint here on earth, when surrounded by the attractions of this world and the influences of the flesh, lose sight of the words of Jesus. What was the life of Jesus wrapped in the mantle of flesh and blood? A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. Trials and tribulations awaited him on every hand. He was despised by rulers and the religious scribes and Pharisees, and hated by his own people according to the flesh. The only friends he had were the few followers that followed him through his ministry here on earth. Just so are the followers of Jesus to-day. He told them that in this world they should have tribulation, and how true they find the words of Jesus. Some times like David they look at the prosperity of the wicked and seem envious, but when they look beyond they see their latter end, and can adopt the language of one of old, That it is better to suffer afflictions with the people of God, than to dwell in the pleasures of sin for a season. This seems to be our sister's lot in this world, and we all rejoice with her in tribulation. With love to the brethren,

Affectionately yours,
JOSEPH BROTHERS.

Alexandria, Va.

THE LORD'S SUPPER — THE PASSOVER.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN:—I desire to give my views through the LANDMARK in reply to brother Hardy's comment on did a devil ever partake of the Body of Christ? Brother Hardy says that our Master washed Judas' feet, but did not partake of the Lord's Supper. Now I know brother Hardy is my Superior in knowledge, but my brother we learn that Judas left before supper was ended, for he left immediately after he received the sop. Now I desire to say right here that no where in the Scripture do we learn of but one supper? What was the passover but a representation of the shed blood of our Savior, but it was not understood until after the Savior explained it: See Luke 22:20. He then told his Disciples what it meant, but it does not say that they partook of it again. Judas was not there when Christ comforted the Disciples. If Judas did partake of that supper (which I think he did,) he took it as do many at the present day, not discerning the Lord's body. Supper was ended and Judas then gone. (See John 13:2.) Jesus then washed their feet, and then gave the new commandment to love one another. My brethren, I have thought on these things, and am led to believe that the passover was the Lord's supper, and was only explained to the Disciples after they had taken it, and Judas had left to do his work in betraying him into the hands of his enemies. We must admit that the passover, which was a type of the shed blood of Christ to save his people, though the passover was instituted hundreds of years before our Savior's advent, yet it took blood on the door (the entering into Christ's kingdom) to save or stay the hand of the death angel. Jesus' mission on earth was to do the work the Father gave him to do, and to fulfill the demands of the law to every jot and tittle. Now brother Hardy, I think Judas was blind to the true meaning of that supper. Now read John 13:18. There you will see the word hath is in the past tense. So he was gone or had lifted up his heel against him when he was talking then to the rest of the disciples. No, I don't think a devil ever realized in the true sense the shed blood of our Savior, but I do believe Judas partook of that supper, but I don't think he was added to that new command, for Christ's word was always obeyed when he gave a command, for not one instance in all his travels that a subject ever refused to obey him while here; even the ass in his unruly nature walked calmly along when the Master rode it. Even so did he ride over all his enemies in spiritual things, and has shown us in his poverty how poor we are to perform righteous acts to save ourselves. Oh what a passover we have! I do not think Jesus ever humbled himself to wash a devil's feet, but if they eat of that supper they eat and drink damnation to themselves. It must have been damnation to Judas that he could go and hang himself.

Brethren, while writing this I desire to digress from the subject, concerning the raising of Lazarus, and the reason Jesus waited until the fourth day. We learn one day is as a thousand years with the Lord. Jesus lived on this earth in the 4000th year. So if his power was able to reach back four days, and raise Lazarus, it shows us his power is able to reach back and raise Abel. Then he lay in the earth until the third day, so this would be late on the second day or thousand years, and early the third he arose. So, my brethren, I think after one hundred and six years pass time will be changed to eternity. Of course this is only the opinion of the poor writer. Now, brother Gold, this may be out of order with you, but it has been on my mind ever since I read brother Hardy's piece on the above mentioned subject, and I desire to say one word to brother Hardy. I do love to read your contributions. They are always interesting, and believing you to be one of the Lord's shepherds, therefore you will not fall out with me for what I have said. So we always give Jesus the praise and be ever humble at his feet. I will close. Remember me in much tribulation and trial, for I am surrounded by enemies and self-righteousness on every side.

S. COUNCIL THOMPSON.

Ellistown, Miss.

ELDER J. A. ASHBURN, DEAR BROTHER:—I send you the picture I promised you. The picture is the shadow of one—image—that has given much distress and felt much at times. If he has ever been of true comfort to God's little ones to be sure that is amazing grace and all the glory is the Lord's.

We are all well. Hoping you also are, I remain yours in love I hope. Affectionately,

P. D. GOLD.

Wilson, N. C., May 18, 1893

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN HOPE:—I send a circular letter you can publish if you wish. I send you a letter you wrote me a long while ago. I have read it many times, and carried it many miles. It has given me so much comfort that I desire you to publish it, hoping it will comfort them also. Yours in hope.

JESSE A. ASHBURN.

Pilot Mountain N. C.

TO THE CHILDREN OF THE MOST HIGH GOD.

DEAR BRETHREN IN HOPE OF ETERNAL LIFE:—At our last general assembly of the first born, or last Association I remember you appointed me to prepare a circular letter to be annexed to our minutes. I feel that a much better choice could have been made, yet as the mind of the Lord is with his people, their choice is his choice, hence in fear of him I yield to the task.

I feel inclined to write on the subject of Christian fellowship, and as a starting point will quote 1st John 1:7: "But if we walk in the light as he is in the light we have fellowship one with another," &c. The first thing necessary for walking in the light is to have light, or be in the light. How shall we obtain this light, and what is the light? I will quote John 1:6-7: "There was a man sent from God whose name was John, the same came for a witness to bear witness of the light," &c. John was not the light, but a witness of the light. Jesus was and is the light. John 1:11-13. John testifies of the light, saying, "He came unto his own (kindred in the flesh) and his own received him not, but as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the Sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born not of blood, nor of the will of man, but of God." We see that only those born of God (or of the Spirit) receive the true light. Nicodemus was a ruler among the Jews, (kin folks in the flesh to Jesus) and yet he knew not these things. Jesus told him he could not see the kingdom of God without being born again. Without the true light we cannot see the kingdom of Heaven.

We cannot love what we cannot see. We, in nature's night, (like Bartimeus) are blind having not the light, but love the darkness because the deeds are evil: but with him that is born of God "The darkness is past and the true light now shineth." He can see the kingdom of heaven and the heirs of the kingdom, because he has the light and they are in the light. The anointing he has received teaches him. He needeth not that any man teach him to see the kingdom or the heirs of the kingdom, or the gifts of the church. Why? Because the Spirit teaches him. "His Spirit beareth witness with our spirit." When one is born of the Spirit he can see the church and loves the church, also he desires to be attached to the church, then the Spirit beareth witness, and we love each other. If we have not this witness we have no fellowship. If we cry peace, peace, where there is no peace, or fellowship where there is no fellowship, we lie, and God will punish us. We are not walking in the light. We in this way deceive and are often being deceived. This is the starting point of trouble in Zion. Eve, being deceived, sinned. Adam, being persuaded, sinned, thus trouble began, Satan in the garden destroying true obedience to God, sowing seeds of discord, scattering hatred, jealousy, strife, seditions, emulation, heresy, lying, murder, &c. When we receive one of Satan's children into the church we have part or all these things to contend with. If any person, rich or poor, bond or free, black or white, high or low, offers to join the church it is our duty to have no respect of persons, but if their testimony beareth witness with ours and we feel our hearts burn with love for them we should receive them; if not we should not. Sometimes we feel cold and lifeless. When one comes for membership, he talks and gets through, we are yet cold, he fails to warm us, our hearts do not burn with love for him. We say in our minds, he is a gentleman, or a clever fellow, or, I never heard much or any harm about him, or, he is honest, or kind, or something else. We have no christian fellowship for him, but receive him as a member. We are not walking in the light, but keeping back that internal or eternal light, and acting from outward or fleshly appearance or emotions, and instead of building fellowship we are destroying it. We are not working out our salvation with fear and trembling, but piercing ourselves with many sorrows. Again, when received we find a brother impressed, or in trouble; he says he feels some impression, he don't know what is the matter. We begin to interrogate him and find he wants to preach, and to prove he can preach he sets in to whip out the Arminians, and show the faults, slips, and misquotations of all the preaching brethren. We don't exactly feel satisfied that God has called him to "Feed the sheep," or take the oversight of the flock, but we set him apart for the work of the ministry. We are not walking in the light, or working out the salvation God has worked within us. These things have I mentioned, and if space would permit, many more I might mention, such as the paying of honest debts, visiting the sick, keeping out of secret organizations, attending church meetings, &c., together with being gentle, easily entreated, meek, quiet, courteous, loving, forgiving, not sowing to the flesh, but to the Spirit, and as much as within us lies living peaceably with all men. While these things will not save us eternally, they will save us from the untoward and wicked which is the sword of the Lord, and also add to our enjoyment in the fellowship of the brethren. The Saviour, in speaking of our duties toward God, says, "If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them." Why are we happy? Because we have fellowship with God, his Son Jesus Christ, and all the brethren. We all love those who perform their duty, who let their light shine, or abide in the light and love hides the multitude of faults. There is no pen or tongue that can describe the joy of true Christian fellowship, that oneness with God, with his son Jesus, with all the brethren, that flow of love, forgiveness, union, hearts melting or blending together in a holy kiss, that hope of eternal happiness, no more to be parted by war, famine, pestilence, sickness or death, no more to be tempted by Satan, or allured into sin by the things of the world, no more to be separated by confusion in Zion. Dear brethren, my heart swells with emotions too big for utterance when I can realize that I have fellowship with the sons of the living God. May the grace of our Lord Jesus be with you all, is my earnest desire for Jesus' sake.

JESSE A. ASHBURN.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN:—If you will bear with me a little I will try, if the Lord will, to write a few lines concerning the travail of my soul as I hope from nature's darkness unto the glorious light and liberty of the most high God. I was born at Mountain Valley, Henry county, Va., August 22d, 1866, was reared on the farm, and at the age of 22 my father put me in the mercantile business, and at the age of 23 was married to Rany L. Eanes, my second cousin, and in the year 1892 I became in much trouble about my condition. My mother was a Primitive Baptist, and I thought they preached the hardest doctrine I ever heard. I thought I could get religion at will and pleasure, and I tried, and the more I tried it seemed the worse I got. I wanted to read the Bible, and did read it day and night. The more I read the more I wanted to read, but thought I could see nothing that would reach my case. Many times I have left the store and gone to a thicket close by and fell on my knees and prayed for mercy, and have left my good wife and little child and gone out in darkness to beg God for mercy, and to deliver me out of so much trouble, and my trouble seemed more than I could bear. Oh miserable wretch that I was. None but those who have traveled the same road know how to sympathize with me. Some time in July, 1892, the burden seemed very heavy, and I went out as usual to the forest, time and again, where no one could see me, and prayed that I might be showed in a dream which of the many denominations was right, and that I would go to any that was presented to me. I first dreamed of three Primitive Baptist preachers, Nathan Bell, B. L. Stultz and Z. T. Turner, and other members of the Primitive Baptist Church at North Fork. I wrote brother Stultz word to come and see me. I wanted to talk to him, and he soon came, and I thought he could relieve me of my trouble, but when he asked me what I wanted I could hardly tell him. I told him I had got in much trouble and could not tell how. He asked me if I had a bible. I told him yes, and he told me to read it and pray to the Lord to direct me. He told me he was glad to see me in that condition. He said it was not in the power of man to give me peace, that God would do that. He also told me that if it was my desire to come to the old Primitive Baptists to come at their next meeting and talk if I wished. He also told me if I wanted to join a popular denomination I would not join the Primitive Baptists, that their doctrine was very unpopular. I told him if I was led that way I would be sure to offer to them; so he told me good-bye and went away. After he was gone my troubles seemed to press harder on me, and I went out and prayed as I never had before, and prayed for more light. This was about the 3rd of September, and I dreamed that I was at North Fork and joined the church, was received, and when I awoke next morning I was relieved, my burden was gone, and I could praise the Lord as I never could before, and was willing and ready to go down in the watery grave and be buried. I was turned right about, loved the Old Primitive Baptists, and wanted to see them. I then hated things I had once loved, and loved things I had once hated; and on the 9th of September I went to North Fork, and sat on the same bench that I dreamed I did, and after preaching the door of the church was opened, and I told a part of what I have written and was received and baptized the next day by Elder B. L. Stultz, Brother W. S. Minter, our beloved pastor, was called to Franklin county to assist in ordaining a preacher I think. At our next meeting I was elected clerk of the church, which I have held and filled to the satisfaction of the church, so far as I know, and at our last meeting I and brother John were elected deacons. I feel unworthy of the place. This pen can never write, and my tongue can never tell the love I have for them. I feel sometimes that I am not fit to be with them.

Brother Gold, I love to read the LANDMARK, and wish more of the Old Primitive Baptists would read it than do. I love to live with the Old Baptists, and believe they preach the true doctrine. Yours in hope of eternal life,

R. P. WOODALL.

Mountain Valley, Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Please publish the following in the LANDMARK: The Primitive Baptist church at Clear Spring, having granted a church arm to the brethren and sisters of said church around and near Mitchell's School House, now called Wilson, on the North side of Dan river, in Stokes county, N. C., for their convenience, and for those that wish to join the church, did on Saturday before the third Sunday in April last, the proposition being made to have the church arm organized into a regular church, it being accepted by every Baptist member present, and a request made to Clear Spring church to grant letters of dismission to the members composing the arm, and to make choice of three Elders to act as a Presbytery to attend said organization, which request was granted and the following Elders being chosen for that purpose: Alex. Moran, of Toms Creek church, Gabriel Boles, of Flat Shoals church, and Peter Hutcherson, of Pleasant Grove church, who met according to arrangements on Saturday before the third Sunday in June last, and after divine service by Elder W. H. Atkinson, the church arm was called together by Elder A. Moran, the pastor of Clear Spring church. The Elders being present, the Presbytery was organized by choosing A. Moran, Moderator, and Deacon G. T. Dunlap, Clerk, then called Elder W. H. Atkinson and Deacons G. T. Dunlap and J. W. Morefield to sit with us. Then proceeded by calling on the members of the church arm if they still wished to be organized and constituted into a regular Baptist church, which was answered in the affirmative. The Presbytery being satisfied upon the examination of their faith, proceeded to read the church covenant which was assigned by seven members, others to come in by letters from another church. Then the right hand was given to the members and the church declared to be a regular organized and constituted church to do business according to the Primitive Baptist rules as laid down in the New Testament.

The above named church at Wilson, in Stokes Co., N. C., wish the ministering brethren to visit and preach for them. Yours in hope,

PETER HUTCHERSON.

Dillard, Stokes Co., N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—Two traveling preachers go home and tarry all night with a member of the church. Next morning the two preachers find their pockets have been robbed, no one having access to their room but the man of the house and his family. The two elders tell this brother they have been robbed. He makes no effort to get their money, nor pays them back. Ought the church to hold him in fellowship?

2d. A church member visits blockade stills, grog shops, gets drunk and has to be hauled home. His wife is seen carrying him home. He is heard hallowing, whooping, his wife in tears, and through mud and water tries to get him home. He has been seen on the market drunk, and had to be hauled home. Is not the conduct of such men a disgrace to the cause of Christ. Brethren have seen and know those things to be true. Why such men, are held in the church is strange to me. What ought to be done with a church holding such members? Yours in hope. H. S. B.

Remarks :

First Case.

Unless there is some ground of suspicion that the brother or some of his family took the money from the preachers why should they be suspected? Merely because I stop a night with a man, if I have something stolen while there shall I suspect that he or some of his family have taken it? A thief may have crept into the house during the night and taken it without any knowledge of the family?

The owner of the house should make reasonable search or effort to see if he can discover the thief. It seems that his desire to do right would prompt him to do this. But it would not be my desire for him to refund me the money lost unless there is some evidence that he or some of his family took it.

Some of us go without purse or scrip sometimes. When Peter said silver and gold have I none he was where many do not like to be, yet it was a good staff for Peter.

Second case.

Such a man as is described is a disgrace to a neighborhood, then how much more to a church? What a wonder a church could hold him in fellowship? What is the fellowship of a church worth that would hold such a man in her embrace, she knowing all about it? Suppose the church has communed with him, and winked at his conduct? Is it not better to do right late than never? Repent now and withdraw fellowship from him and let him go. Do not defile yourselves by retaining him and endorsing his conduct. P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Please publish in the LANDMARK that the next session of the Cool Spring Primitive Baptist Association is appointed to be held with Cool Spring Church, Greenville Co. S. C., commencing on Friday before the 2nd Sunday in Oct. 1894. Those coming by R. R. will come via Athens on the C. K. W. R. R., or will be met at Greenville. Hope the dear brethren and especially ministers can feel to visit us. Conveyance will be provided for all coming on the cars if they will please write me.

Cool Spring church is about seventeen miles from Greenville, near Marydell P. O., S. C.

W. S. Cox.

Marydell, S. C.

The Silver Creek Primitive Baptist Association will convene with the church at Zion, Watauga Co., N. C., six miles West of Valle Cruces commencing on Friday before the 2nd Sunday in Sept 1894. Primitive Baptists generally are invited, and especially ministers, as we have a desire to meet our brethren on such occasions.

J. W. KEATON.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 16.

WILSON, N. C., AUG. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

LIVING BREAD.

Brother J. P. Chapman, of Arkansas, requests my view of John 6: 51.

"I am the living bread which came down from heaven," etc.

If any man would offer for sale in any market of the world some food or bread which, if a man eat he should never die, but live forever, what effort, what competition there would be among mankind to obtain that bread. The bids would be as great as one could pay, and many would overbid their ability to pay. There has never been such contention and strife as there would be to obtain this bread, provided people could be assured that those that eat it would never die, but live forever. Because great as are the anxieties and burdens, cares and sorrows of this mortal life, all that a man hath (said the devil, and that is about as near the truth as perhaps he ever comes) will he give for his life. This is no doubt true, especially of those that are without hope toward God. But Jesus teaches the truth always, and he says he is the true bread of life. Not as the manna the Jews did eat in the wilderness, which was wonderful, but those that ate that died; but Jesus is the true bread, the bread of life. Yet how little men seek this bread, though it is without money and without price. People show their folly by seeking that which is not food—by spending their money for that which is not bread, and that satisfieth not.

People show the character of their taste by what they love or seek. Food has much to do with ones health or life. As soon as man ate what God said he should not eat thereof he dies. Since then he feeds on ashes and the east wind. Nor is there any food or life in either. But the meat that perisheth not, or the true bread that comes from heaven is Jesus Christ. He gives his flesh that one may eat it and not die. He gives his flesh for the life of the world. How blessed is that flesh then. Though it is in the likeness of sinful flesh yet it is without sin. So holy is that flesh that it is the bread which the Father gives—the true bread that cometh down from heaven.

Natural bread or food is one thing indispensable to the support of life. Men could not live without food. Besides it ministers more comfort to them than anything else. Then bread or natural food, the staff of life, is a type of the true bread that comes from heaven. As our benefit from bread is found in eating it, and unless we eat it there is no profit in it to us, so we must eat the bread of life that we die not. As in the worship under the law the worshipper should eat of the sacrifices offered, and become thus a partaker of the altar, and its strength was received by him; so does the true worshipper of God eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Son of God and live thereby. When one made an offering under the law it must be without blemish, and his eating of it proved the sincerity of his offering; so as one eats the flesh of Jesus, or feeds on his doctrine, it is the proof of his love therefor and fellowship therein.

The holiest and best of all gifts of God to man is Jesus. When he is crucified here is the feast of fat things, of wine on the lees well refined. All things are thus ready. This is the wedding feast or the marriage supper of the Lamb. Men show their healthfulness by their fondness for food, and their ability to eat it. The sick cannot eat heartily or with relish. The dead eat not at all. Therefore if one hungers after Jesus, and eats the bread of heaven with delight, this is good proof that his soul is in health and prospering. So that one of the best proofs that a man is a child of God is that he comes to the King's table and eats of this fatted calf that is slain, or feeds upon Christ crucified with delight. "He brought me to his banqueting house, and his banner over me was love, and his food was sweet to my taste." One thus eats bread before

God and lives, and eating of the flesh of Jesus the Lamb of God he has the life of that lamb, and shall never die, he has eternal life and shall live forever. There is so much of good in good eating, but death in the pot where Jesus is not.

P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Will you please give your views on the following questions through the LANDMARK.

First, is it common, or have you heard of Primitive Baptists having dancing parties in their houses?

Second, Is it allowed by Primitive Baptists to permit their members to dance, and keep them in church, and never bring them before conference for such conduct?

Third, Does a true Baptist really want to dance?

Fourth, Is it right for a preacher to never ask a blessing at his table?

I hope to hear from you soon. .

Answer 1. It is not common for Primitive Baptists to have dancing parties in their houses. Seldom have I ever heard of such a thing as a Primitive Baptist even allowing his child or children to ever attend a dance away from his house, much less at home. One or two instances have come within my observation of Primitive Baptists allowing their children to attend dances, but they have lost their fellowship among our brethren, and dwindled away, and become indifferent to their duties, or been cast out into outer darkness where there is weeping and gnashing of of teeth.

I do not think a genuine Primitive Baptist has any desire to attend any dance such as people of the world have. Baptists sometimes become happy and dance before the Lord, and rejoice in his presence, and have feasts of fat things, but it is such meat as the world knows not of. Let the world have its own. Do not seek to take any part of it.

How far should Baptists allow their children to go into those things which they themselves cannot fellowship? One says, my child wants to go with the world and enjoy itself while young. It wants to have a good time. How much vileness and danger lurks under that phrase, "Have a good time."

If one is right his good time is in doing his duty. What sort of a man or woman will your child be if you allow it to gratify all its whims while young? Will it be any account? It will probably not be worth raising, and be a reproach to you when grown. One trouble with us now is that parents allow their children to rule them. This is an evil day, perilous times, when children are heady—think they are smart—impudent, not respectful to their parents, nor to a aged people—too smart to be modest or agreeable. It is a cursed generation. The fault lies very much in the parents in not teaching their children obedience, and not taking them to their own preaching.

My father was a farmer, and not a lazy one either. He brought me up to farm labor. In the summer busy months—all though were busy months to him—he would say to us boys on Saturday morning of his regular monthly meeting, come boys, take out your horses and get ready to go to preaching. We went with him on Saturday as well as Sunday, and we went in the house and we remained in there during preaching and during conference. Where is the Baptist that requires that of his children now? No wonder so few of our children go with us. We are at fault in this matter. God will not bless us in such disobedience. Them that honor God he will honor. Those that deny him he will deny. I beseech you, brethren to consider this matter. Parents are to teach their children what is right and wrong so far as they can, and what they consider wrong they are to forbid their children doing.

If you want to go to a feast where they are not worshipping an idol, and where they behave themselves go, and take your children, or allow them to go; but what you believe is false and wrong restrain your children from engaging in.

We think a Primitive Baptist member that goes to dances should be turned out of jail and be allowed to go free, and then the church will not have to bear the scandal. Whatever people love they see no wrong in. A man who is under the power of the love of money sees no wrong in that, and you cannot convince him there is any wrong in it. But the man who is born of God loves the things above, and his affection should be set on them, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God.

It is the custom of preachers generally, so far as I know, to ask blessing or give thanks to God at meat. We feel that any Baptist, whether preacher or not, should feel a desire to acknowledge God, and when we eat or drink it should be unto the Lord, or we should render thanks unto his blessed name for health, food, raiment, etc.

Sometimes I go to the house of a Baptist that does not have prayer in his family at night. It is right and proper for Baptists to have worship in their families. It certainly is pleasant to me to visit families that manifest a desire to worship God, and call on him for his mercies.

We find that Christ and the apostles gave thanks to God for food. When Jesus fed the multitude with the loaves and fishes he looked up to heaven and blessed and brake the loaves. He was known as Jesus to his disciples, just after the resurrection, in breaking bread.—Luke 24 : 30-31. The custom of Paul was to give thanks when he ate.—Acts 27 : 35. Let us do likewise. P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD :—Will you please give your views on the passage of Scripture found in the 2d chapter 36th verse of St. Luke concerning the prophetess Anna and the woman being silent in church. Please give your views through the LANDMARK. I do feel sometime a great desire to write for our good paper, but I often feel so sin-burdened and so undone, that I am made to think of a verse in one of our hymns,

When sorrows encompass me 'round,
And endless distresses I see,
Astonished I cry, can a mortal be found,
Surrounded with troubles like me.

So it appears to me I cannot write this time. There is something that is such a burden to me that I am almost bowed down always. It seems to me I cannot so much as raise my eyes to Heaven, but I am bound to cry, "Lord, have mercy on me a sinner." Brother Gold, please remember me in your prayers, and I ask the interest in the prayers of every reader of the paper, for I feel that the least will have to bear with me. From an unworthy sister.

Remarks:

Anna had lived a virgin until she married. Then she lived with her husband seven years, and he died. After that she lived a widow about four score and four years. That is she was a widow of about eighty-four years. So she was more than a hundred years old. She was a prophetess, and a very faithful and devoted servant of God, abiding in the temple and serving God continually. How beautiful such a life. Instead of gadding about and seeking to marry, as so many men and women do, she gave herself to the word of God and prayer as a widow indeed.

She was a prophetess, and as all who have the spirit of prophecy she spake of the coming of Jesus.

At the time they brought Jesus into the temple to present him to the Lord, Simeon led by the Spirit came then and took the child Jesus in his arms and blessed him. It was at that time that Anna spake of Jesus to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

It is so blessed to look for redemption in Israel. To such the gospel is preached. Anna bears witness of Jesus.

Now our sister desires to know how this is in harmony with what Paul writes when he says, "But I suffer not a woman to teach," See 1 Tim. 2: 9—15. The matter here set forth is that Christ is the head, and the church is subject to him in all things and must not usurp authority, but must be modest and clothed with the spirit of meekness Eph. 5: 24. This matter is set forth in the figure of the husband and wife. The wife is to adorn herself in modest apparel—not in costly array of a harlot—such as braided hair, gold, pearls, or costly array. But the ornament is that of good works. They are to be silent. They are not to teach nor to usurp authority; but be silent. Now what does this mean? It means that the church is to be submissive to Christ in all things—and the woman is to be submissive to her own husband and not to usurp authority. A woman can speak, or converse, tell her feelings &c., in a church. But she is to be meek and submissive. Anna was meek and submissive when she was speaking of Christ in the temple. But it must be in the temple or in the proper bounds and limits, even the limit of love and purity and submission to the will of God, not in any usurpation of authority. While there is no instance in the New Testament of any woman being called to preach as an apostle, or as Timothy, or any other gospel preacher; and they are not to lead, nor rule, nor usurp, or take authority; but are to always have on the ornament of submission in good works, or are to remain in the temple: yet we do see many examples of holy women, or good women, speaking of the Lord's wonderful goodness, and ministering unto God's people, following Jesus, bearing tidings. They are more faithful than men—last at the cross—first at the sepulchre—faithful, loving and self-sacrificing. They are more apt to go to meeting than men, are truer often, more given to good works, more of them members. If our sister, or any other sister feels a desire to write for the LANDMARK let them do so. Their communications are just as welcome as are those of the brethren.

P. D. G.

The Licking Association of Old School Baptists will meet, the Lord willing, with the church at Elk Lick, near Sadieville, Scott county, Ky., on Friday before the fourth Saturday in August and continue three days, the 24th, 25th and 26th. Our brethren and friends are cordially invited to meet with us. Those coming by way of Cincinnati will take the Cincinnati Southern Thursday evening at 4:05 or Friday morning at 7:30 for Sadieville. Those coming by way of Lexington will take Cincinnati Southern Thursday evening at 2:40 or Friday morning at 7:30 for Sadieville. Those coming by Louisville will change cars Thursday evening at Frankfort for Georgetown. At Georgetown take Cincinnati Southern for Sadieville. Trains leave Frankfort Thursday evening at 1 and 4:20 p. m., and Friday morning at 7 o'clock. Reduced rates will be arranged from points named.

J. P. FIELD, Clerk.

The Smith's River Association meets with the church at Green Hill, five miles north of Stuart, Patrick county, Va., on Saturday before the first Sunday in September next, and not on Saturday before the third Sunday as the minutes are made to say.

The New River Association meets with the church at Little Flock, Floyd county, Va., 15 miles southwest of Floyd, Va., on Friday before the second Sunday in September next. All lovers of truth are invited to attend these associations.

P. G. L.

New Discovery for Dropsy. Removes from one to three gallons of water in a day, followed by the most rapid and wonderful recovery even in the worst cases of Dropsy of the Heart in its last stages, and when given up by the doctors to die.

THE POOR TREATED FREE.

Write me giving name, age, symptoms, P. O. address, and a statement of how much property you own, both real and personal, attested by your postmaster, or some member of the Primitive Baptist Church. Address C. W. ANDERSON, Dutton, Madison county, Ark.

Brother Anderson requests me to publish the above. He is a minister of our order in good repute, so far as I know. If you need his medicine you can give him a trial.

P. D. G.

We are prepared to print minutes of Associations in any style desired.

P. D. GOLD.

OBITUARIES.

MARTHA ELLEN ANDERSON.

We feel it is well to write a few lines in remembrance of that sweet one whom God saw fit to take from us at 8 o'clock Saturday morning May 19th 1894. Martha Ellen Anderson is no more. This dear sister has crossed over the cold waves of Jordan, and we feel is to-day basking in the ocean of God's eternal love. Her life was one of affliction, born in a period of war and blood, shed March 4th, 1862 she led a life of sorrow and tears. When only a child she lost a loving mother's sweet smile, kind words and tender care, and thrown upon the unsympathetic protection of a step-mother or the cold charities of the world.

She was a good girl, a pious woman, a kind companion and mother, a generous friend, a loving sister and well reported of by all who knew her. Her christian experience was rich, her evidence strong, her hope bright. She first joined the Methodist church and remained a member for several years, became dissatisfied and felt unhappy with them, was turned about, led in a way she knew not, taught of God, purged of dead works, established in the doctrine of grace, and drawn by the cords of love. Saturday before the first Sunday in Feby. 1892 she related to Hopeland church what she felt the Lord has done for her, was received, baptized the following day by Elder A. J. Moore. Until the day of her death sister Anderson was a consistent member of the Primitive Baptist church, felt the love of, and loved Jesus as she had never done before. Always of delicate health she suffered much, yet bore her afflictions with christian fortitude. For three weeks before her death she was confined to her bed with consumption, seemed perfectly resigned to the will of God, talked freely of dying and expressed a desire to go, yet was concerned about the welfare of her little children. She leaves a husband, two children and many friends to mourn her death. May God reconcile these sorrow stricken hearts to His will and prepare them to meet her on that happy shore where parting is not known.

R. H. P.

HENRY SHELTON.

How pleasant it is to think of a loved one whose career through life has been spent from childhood to old age in useful employment; one who has lived out his three score years and ten; the days allotted to man, in serving his day and generation; and permitted to spend his last days in the bosom of his family surrounded by half dozen or more living children, and four or five times as many grand-children which have grown up amidst the most genial influences, and go down the step of life to his last resting place, having full assurance, that he is honored and loved by all his kindred and neighbors; and in full fellowship and sympathy with all of the members and pastor of his church; peacefully leaving these pleasant surroundings, to enter into that eternal rest that remains to the people of God. Cheered by the hope of a happy reunion of loved ones. Some who have preceded him, and others who will soon follow, into that world where life is perfect, and joy completed. Such was the case with our much beloved old brother Henry Shelton of Pittsylvania county Va., who took his final departure June 13th 1894. He died as he had lived for 74 years, in peace with all mankind. Blessed hope; at peace with God through the righteousness of our Lord Jesus Christ. He was married to Mary Ann Corbin in 1847. He was a remarkably healthy man through life. And through their industry and frugality they have brought up a large family. He served three years in the Confederate war; it was there he obtained a good hope through grace, and was baptized by the writer about fifteen years ago, into the fellowship of Malmaison church. He will be greatly missed both in his church and neighborhood, but our loss we believe to be his eternal gain. May his surviving widow and children be enabled to live as he did, and die as he has, with the blessed hope of an immortality beyond the grave.

The large concourse of people who attended his funeral services, and burial, was conclusive evidence that he was a man greatly appreciated.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." My heart's desire is that his noble boys may be enabled to follow their father's foot-steps, and that their end may be as peaceful as his, having the full assurance "as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

J. M. HARRIS.

AGES, JOE EASON.

On 8th of June, 1894, near Pine Level, Johnston Co., Mrs. Eason, who was 22 years old, died with typhoid fever; she was confined to her bed eight days, was a member of the Free will Baptist church. Whereas it pleased our heavenly Father to take her from us, and from this world of sin and sorrow, I hope she is gone to meet loved ones that have gone before, where pain and parting comes no more. By death she leaves a husband and one child, and others to mourn; may God comfort them.

Thou art gone, dear Maime,
Gone from a world of trouble.
Let us be weaned from all below,
Let hope our grief expel,
While death invites our soul to go,
Where our best Kindred dwell.

M

LITTLE CLAUDIE.

I wish to publish in the LANDMARK the death of our sweet little brother, Claudie, he was born Dec. 14th 1888, died Nov. 7 1892. His stay on earth was 3 years, 11 months and 23 days. I don't think my pen can hardly express my feelings this evening over the sad bereavement. He was one of the sweetest children I ever saw, in every respect, and was one of the sweetest children that God ever gave to papa and mama. How good I loved him I never can tell.

He died with the typhoid fever and convulsions of the brain. He lay hovering between life and death for two weeks.

He said, mama, if I die what will you do? She said, I will cry myself to death. He said, no, you must not, you must not cry yourself to death.

Oh! it was so hard to see him die, but the appointed time had come, and none could stay the cold hand of death. Oh! I can't say I wish him back amid the cares and troubles of this unfriendly world. Why should we mourn when we know he is with God, who doeth all things well? I do believe little Claudie is now in heaven, for Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Ah! that we all may be prepared to meet him in heaven is the prayer of his sinful sister.

A precious one from us is gone,
The voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

FLORENCE E. UNDERWOOD,

Narrott, Va.

THOMAS MADISON SMOTHERS.

Thomas Madison Smothers was born May the first 1838, and departed this life May the 4th 1894, making his stay on earth 56 years and 3 days. He was married to sister Emma C. Garrett October 22nd, 1868, and by this union eight children were born, five sons and three daughters—all are living.

The subject of this notice was of such a disposition, all of his acquaintances were made to feel they were with a friend when in his company. He had many friends and but few enemies if any. In his neighborhood he was called Matt. H. was a loving husband, a tender father, and a good neighbor, ever ready to visit the sick, and one of the best nurses in sickness I ever saw.

He never made any profession of religion, but had no confidence in any creed save the Primitive Baptist. He loved to be with them and hear them talk, and loved to go with his wife to meeting whenever he could. He was always ready to give old Baptist preachers a helping hand in conveying them to their appointments, and his house was ever open for the Baptists. He was sick sixteen days. His doctor said his disease was pneumonia, which seemed to be conquered in about ten days after he was taken, and he appeared to be improving very fast, and all thought he would be well and out in a few days. On Friday evening about nine o'clock he was as well seemingly as he had been, and sat up fifteen or twenty minutes, then lay down, and by the time he lay down death struck him, and in about one hour he breathed his last. So sudden a death gave his wife and children a shock seldom witnessed. He was buried on Sunday following the regular monthly meeting day at Pleasantville, and the funeral was preached by brother James A. Barch. The preacher became very much affected which brought to mind the Scripture where Jesus raised dead Lazarus. "Jesus groaned in Spirit and wept, and the Jews said, behold, how he loved him." Then he took his text in 1st Cor. 15:55, "O death where is thy sting. O grave where is thy victory." Dear Sister Smothers grieve not for Matt, though he was so kind to you, for the Lord has done right, and I hope the Lord will enable you to be resigned to his righteous will, and to be able to say from a true sense of feeling "the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

T. R. WILLIAMS.

JOEL SIMMONS.

Mr. Joel Simmons was born March 10th, 1848; was the son of Mr. Ephriam and Mrs. Bohannon Simmons. On February 26th, 1871 he was married to Miss Martha Simmons. His occupation was that of farming. Cultivating tobacco was his greatest employ. Until about four years ago he seemed to enjoy his occupation very much, and was very successful, at which time he seemed to be entirely changed, took very little delight in anything but attending church and reading his Bible. About 3 years ago he joined the church at Pine Grove where he retained his membership until his death. His walk was that of a loving, dutiful member. He soon began to manifest a calling to the ministry, often prayed fervently for the building up of Zion. Many of us seemed to almost idolize him. We loved him so well, but alas, we could not keep him, he was mortal and born to die. About 3 weeks before his death he was attacked by bloody flux. A physician was sent for, but to no avail. We visited him in his sickness, and he told us he was willing to go. Day by day he grew worse and worse until Thursday, May 31st, when the final summons came. He suffered much during his sickness, and often he would speak of dying without seeming to doubt his resting place being near at hand. He left a wife, 8 children and many friends to mourn his loss. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family, knowing they have great reasons to mourn. Yet in our grief we have great reasons to rejoice, as we fully believe that he has left a world of trouble and gone to one of joy, where he will be infinitely happy forever and ever. Done by order of the church at Pine Grove.

J. A. ASHBURN, Mod.

JAMES MADE, Clk.

JOSEPH PEYTON PHILEGAR.

Joseph Peyton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Philegar was born June 22d, 1877. At the early age of sixteen years and five days the angel of death hovered o'er his bedside and snapped the delicate thread of life asunder. He left his home June 28th, 1863, 1 o'clock p. m., accompanied by his junior brother to gather cherries for a near neighbor. While picking the fruit, a branch of the tree on which he was standing broke, and he fell upon the ground. On arising it was discovered that his right arm was broken and his left shoulder dislocated; but he was not thought to be seriously injured. He went home where a physician was summoned. Kind friends gathered around him, but none could see his sufferings as did his loving father and mother, who eagerly watched every movement and supplied every need. He was unable to talk much but kept his eyes fixed on them all night long and until the evening of the 27th, when the Great Physician came with healing in his wings and relieved him of all earthly pain. The family was a bright, happy one and filled with love and mirth. Their affectionate mother watched over the children with tender care—the last one to see them leave home, the first one to see them return. The deceased was good, obedient, of a kind disposition, and in truth possessed every good quality a parent could wish a son. He was particularly fond of his mother and she reciprocated his love. She would seek his company when he was near the house, and always felt like she could never grow tired of his sweet presence. He was very ingenious, and whenever we look about the home something meets the eye to remind us of the lost one. Not only his immediate family but his neighbors and all who knew him have lost an honest, truthful and faithful friend, and feel in sympathy with the bereaved family.

'Tis sad to part with Peyton, dear,
So young, so good and true;
No more to see him here on earth,
Nor hear his voice, so pure.

His death is sad, yet think of this.

Thy angel boy was lent, not given,
And that it was our Saviour's voice
Who called him home to heaven.

SEEK SHELOP.

ELITHA LAMM.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—I seat myself to write a few lines about my dear beloved sister's death, as it was her desire for it to be done. She told me how much pleasure it gave her to read of the death of the dearly beloved people of God, and to think of the happy home they enjoy after they are done with this troublesome world. She could shed tears over their joy, and hope she could meet them when her time came. I feel to-day that she is enjoying rest which she craved so hard. I think she was the best woman that I ever saw. For she never got tired of talking about the good Lord and his people. And how she loved them and felt that they did not love her. She joined the church when she was fourteen years old, and was a faithful member until she died, and always filled her seat when her chance would afford, and would feel sad when she could not go, and would tell me she did not feel right when she did not go to her meetings. I shall never be able to tell her suffering in this world, for she always was a sufferer from a child, and her last suffering is more than my tongue can tell. She never was heard murmuring at it, and bore it all like Job, and her family was taken off her mind, and she did not seem to care for anything in this world, and never asked about her home affairs, and did not care for them. She never asked about her two little boys, which had been her heart's delight. I have heard her say that she hoped when her time came to die, that was the way she wanted to be. She was warned of her death a long time before she died, and told me she should not live long, and did not care, if it was not for her children. For there was no pleasure in this world.

She had a dream that she was going to die, and the thought of leaving her children troubled her mind, and a voice spoke to her and said, "the same God takes care of them that takes care of them when you are with them, and said, I will afflict my people until I make them willing in the day of my power." She told me a few nights before she died that she was bound to die, and said she had lived the best she could, and the best was bad, and said she hoped her children would do the same, and closed her eyes to sleep, and never seemed to care for this world any more, nor any of her friends that stood around her bedside, and her eyes were turned towards heaven, and a sweet smile on her face that I shall never forget, and looked like she wanted to go, but could not say a word for us to understand, and was trying to talk all the time, but not with us for she did not care for this world. For she was looking at that home where she craved so long to see. I have dreamed about her several times since she died, and she always looked happy, and had no care for this world, and the last time I dreamed about her I was in great trouble, and I felt like I could not go to her. She held out her arms for me, and I went to her, and she threw her arms around my neck, and told me, she wished I was ready to go home with her, and get out of trouble. We wept together, and I told her I had a heap to tell her. But could not tell her then. She told me to tell her now for she would have to go home soon, and I know she was the prettiest woman I ever saw in this world. She looked like an angel from heaven. And that gave me hope that I will meet her again when my time comes to die. She was the wife of James Henry Lamm, and daughter of Peninah Smith, has two children living, and was a kind wife, and a kind mother, and was kind to all her neighbors. Her door was always open for the needy, and all that knew her loved her, especially the Christian-hearted for they could not help it. For she had a good walk, and a godly conversation.

REBECCA LAMM.

MRS. NANCY GILLIKIN.

Mrs. Gillikin was the daughter of Silas Lupton and Theresa his wife. She was born on Goose Creek Island, Pamlico county, N. C., on May 6, 1837. When she was seven years old her parents moved to Hog Island, Carteret county, and were members of the Primitive Baptist church at Cedar Island.

On August 19th, 1853 she was married to Mr. Elijah P. Gillikin on North River, Carteret county. The fruits of this marriage were six children, three boys and three girls, one of the boys died at three months old, the rest all living and married except one son.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gillikin has always been a welcome home to old Baptists. They were both strong in that faith. Mrs. Gillikin was a very motherly woman to all around her, always kind and gentle in her manners and conversation and untiring in her efforts to make every one feel pleasant in her gentle house.

She had a hope in our Lord for several years but for some cause unknown to the writer she never united with the church, but she gave every other evidence that the Lord had been merciful to her soul, and transported her to his presence, ever to bask in the love that is eternal, and to sing his praise forever.

A FRIEND.

APPOINTMENTS

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

S. HASSELL.

Durham Thursday and Thursday night
 August 9
 Roxboro Friday
 Shiloh 2d Sat and Sunday in August
 Storie's Creek Monday
 Sunny Side Tuesday
 Ebenezer Wednesday
 Wheeler's Thursday
 Prospect Hill Friday
 Country Line Association 3d Saturday,
 Sunday and Monday in August
 Gilliams Tuesday
 Pleasant Grove Wednesday
 Reidsville Thursday
 Thence to Abbott's Creek Association, Elder
 A. N. Hall expects to be with him on part of the appointments. They will need conveyance.

A. V. SIMMS.

Savannah, Ga. Wednesday night after
 1st Sunday in August
 Statesboro Thursday night
 Bethlehem Friday
 Upper Mill Creek Saturday
 Upper Lots Creek 2nd Sunday
 Rosemary Monday
 Hill Tuesday
 Lake Wednesday
 Cedar Creek Thursday
 Little Flock Friday
 Bay Branch Saturday
 Lovers Chapel 3rd Sunday
 Beards Creek Monday
 Bethel Tuesday
 Belknap Wednesday
 New Deloaches Thursday
 Upper Black Creek Friday
 Fellowship Sat and 4th Sunday
 Lanes Monday
 He will need conveyance.

J. E. ADAMS.

Camp Branch August 1
 Leatherwood 2
 Axton 3
 Goodwill 4
 Ridgeway 5
 Matrimony, N. C. 6
 Shiloh 7
 Pleasantville 8
 Wolf Island 9
 Lick Fork 10
 Rock Academy 11
 Pleasant Grove 12
 Gilliams 13
 Arbor 14
 Prospect Hill 15
 Lynchs Creek 16
 He will need conveyance.

M. F. STUBBS.

Eno Association 1st Sunday in August
 Roxboro Tuesday
 Shiloh Wednesday
 Storie's Creek Thursday
 Sunny Side Friday
 Wheelers Sat and 2nd Sunday
 Prospect Hill Tuesday
 Arbor Wednesday
 Lynchs Creek Thursday
 Thence to Country Line Association.
 Lick Fork Tuesday
 Wolf Island Wednesday
 Reidsville Thursday
 Thence to Abbott's Creek Association.
 His wife will accompany him. They will need conveyance.

RUFUS HUTCHINS.

Matrimony Friday before 2d Sun. in Aug.
 Shiloh Saturday
 Pleasantville Sunday
 Wolf Island Monday
 Lick Fork Tuesday
 Pleasant Grove Wednesday
 Arbor Thursday
 Thence to Country Line Association. He
 will need conveyance.

J. H. PURIFOY.

Bethany Tuesday July 31
 Lawyers Springs Wednesday Aug. 1
 Liberty 2
 High Hill 4 and 5
 Crooked Creek 6
 Watson 7
 Jerusalem 8
 Jones Hill 9
 Meadow Creek 11 and 12
 Bear Creek 13
 Liberty Hill 14
 Freedom 15
 Mountain Creek 16

From Mountain Creek Elder Purifoy will visit the churches of Abbott's Creek Association if the brethren there will arrange appointments for him. His wife is with him and they are dependent on the brethren for conveyance.

ISAAC JONES.

Arbor Tuesday after 3d Sun. in August
 Lynch's Creek Wednesday
 Wheeler's Thursday
 Mt. Lebanon Friday
 Durham Sat and 3d Sunday

THE N. C. COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS offers three Technical Courses in Agriculture, Science, Mechanical and Civil Engineering, and with each a good Academic Education.
 Each course is broad and thorough, and the institution is now equipped for excellent work. Expenses very moderate. Session opens September 6th. For catalogues address Alexander Q. Holliday, President,
 Raleigh, N. C.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 5, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Weldon	11 54	9 27
Ar. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20
Ar. Tarboro	2 40
Lv. Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv. Wilson	2 08	11 04
Lv. Selma	3 05
Lv. Fayetteville	4 35	12 51
Ar. Florence	7 25	3 00
	No. 25 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.
Lv. Wilson	2 08	A. M.
Lv. Goldsboro	3 05	6 31
Lv. Magnolia	4 15	8 29
Ar. Wilmington	5 50	8 20
	P. M.		10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 5, 1894.	No. 25 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Florence	7 30	2 45
Lv. Fayetteville	10 25	9 30
Lv. Selma	11 05
Ar. Wilson	1 00	11 27
	No. 25 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.
Lv. Wilmington	9 00	P. M.
Lv. Magnolia	10 40	7 00
Lv. Goldsboro	11 55	8 33
Ar. Wilson	12 40	9 40
	No. 25 Daily.		No. 40 Daily.
Lv. Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar. Rocky Mt.	8 13	11 27	10 31
	12 05	11 14
Ar. Tarboro	2 40
Lv. Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20
Ar. Weldon	1 50	12 05
	M. A.	M. A.	P. M.

Trains on Sunday, 2 Daily except Sunday.
Trains on Monday only first-class passengers have accommodations.
Trains on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves
Weldon 9 40 p. m., Halifax 2 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 32 p. m., Kinston 7 35 p. m. Returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a.
m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00
a. m., Weldon 11 30 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington
7 00 a. m. Arrives Pamlico 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro

30; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Pamlico
7 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland
Neck Branch.
Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle &
Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m.,
Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 6 20 p. m.,
5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 11 30 a. m., arrives
Tarboro 12 25 a. m. and 11 15 p. m.
Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro,
N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 25 a. m., arriving
Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves
Smithfield, N. C., 5 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N.
C., 9 30 a. m.
Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount
11 40 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring
Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope
3 00 a. m., Nashville 5 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave
Latta 6 40 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 5 00 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 20 a.
m. Daily except Sunday.
Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m. Returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw
with main line trains.
Train No. 25 makes close connection at Weldon
for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond
and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and
Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk &
Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points
North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.
General Sup't
J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EKERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Micro binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Micro binding, gilt edge and gilt cover,
single copy, by mail, $1.25
Per dozen, 6/ mail, $12.00
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen
rates.
Books sent to any part of the United States or
Territories, postage prepaid.
In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order
Send money in Registered Letter, or Money
Orders, or by Express. Address
J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH GEXES.

The 17th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 24th,
1893, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.
The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
Pupils will be met at Wilmington and Reidsville
Oct. 23d, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes
me one week previous.
Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morehead City, Albemarle Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING PROMPTLY EXECUTED
At the office of the printer for samples, &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13960/t5t5252z / Public Domain

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same price.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

D. K. H. H. GREEN & SON,

30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.

They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.

P. D. GOLD.

Refugee.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	6 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	6 07 a m
3 12 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
1 27 p m	Lv.....Clarks.....Lv	1 43 a m
12 52 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m
12 54 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	2 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3 15 p m
11 42 p m	Lv.....N.W. Pct—W. Cove.....Ar	4 30 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N & W. Pct—W. Cove.....Lv	4 33 p m
10 50 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5 01 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6 25 p m
No 3		No 4
8 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6 45 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maximo.....Lv	7 37 a m
6 05 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 12 a m
4 30 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday.		Sunday
5 35 p m	Ar.....Ramsour.....Lv	6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Clarks.....Lv	8 40 a m
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 12 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily ex.
Sunday		Sunday
2 15 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	9 50 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 00 a m

Train No 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Moore, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours to Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send me by order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at Elm St., Wilsn Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size PORTRAITS solicited. Price, 50 cents in advance. Send good photo. Address, MRS. MARY G. WILSON, through Artist, Care of Elder P. D. Gold, WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1894.

NO. 20.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been received please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOID, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

THE BODY OF CHRIST.

The figure of a body is much used by the Apostle Paul in presenting the close relationship and union of the members of the church with Christ and with each other; in showing the great importance of that unity in divine life as it is experienced by the saint, and seen in the order of the church; and in enforcing his exhortations concerning the mutual obligations of the saints, and their value and help to each other as "members one of another." Now are ye the body of Christ and members in particular." 1 Cor. 12:27. "For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office, so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another." Rom. 12:4, 5. "For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ." 1 Cor. 12:12. Thus in many places, and in a variety of ways, the Apostle employs this figure in his teaching, and in setting in order in the church the commands and ordinances of Christ. Let us contemplate some things thus clearly set forth.

It is the life of Christ by which the members of the church are constituted members of his body, or (speaking more correctly, perhaps), manifested as such. I do not think we would be warranted in speaking of any particular part of the man as being the member of the body of Christ, exclusive of some other part, but the whole man, the one who has been made alive unto God, who has now both an inner man and an outer man. This man, born once of the flesh, is a natural man, of the earth, earthy; born again, or of the Spirit, he now is, in that new life of Jesus, a spiritual man. He is complex, having in one person two distinct natures, one of the flesh and one of the spirit. These two natures, the result of two distinct births, are antagonistic to each other, but cannot be separated from each other till the work of death is completed, nor till then can the christian be considered except as possessing both flesh and spirit. The life can only be manifested through the body, the spirit through the flesh. If the eye, the tongue, the hands and feet do not show that one has the life of Christ, how shall it possibly be made known?

"Brethren, now are we the sons of God? The Apostle is writing to men and women, who are yet in the flesh, but who by virtue of the divine life which has been manifested in them by a heavenly birth, are also in Christ. In the flesh they are vile, liable to sin. In Christ they are holy, righteous, sinless. The change which this new life causes in them the world cannot see, and so does not know them as sons of God. Yet it is they, these poor sinners who have been given a "hope of righteousness by faith," who are now sons of God, and who are looking for a change which they cannot now understand, but which they rejoice to know will make them to be just like Jesus, whom they shall then see as he now sees them.

These who are now sons of God, and who are members of the body of Christ by virtue of that life of his which is in them, have a vile and sinful nature to contend with. They cannot trust in themselves. In them, that is, in their flesh, dwells no good thing. When they would do good, evil is present with them, and they cannot do the things that they would. All this causes them to need the exhortations, admonitions, cautions and reproof which are given them so carefully and lovingly by the inspired Apostles.

One of these members of the body of Christ may suffer through the effects of evil doing; and the Apostle enforces his warnings and admonitions against an erroneous walk on the part of any one, by calling attention to the well known fact that "if one member suffer all the members suffer with it." And how clearly the true walk and conversation which the Spirit of Christ will inspire is made to appear in contemplating this figure. Who ever saw two members of the body of a man in conflict with each other? But we do see such conflicts, sometimes very bitter and fierce, between those who have given good evidence of being members of the body of Christ. What is the inference? It is that the life and Spirit of Christ is not there moving them, but their own lusts which was against the soul."

How often might the question be asked with profit, "Am I feeling and acting toward my brother as one hand would feel and act toward the other?" How tenderly and lovingly one member of our body ministers to any other when sore, or soiled, or at fault. How carefully the eye uses all its wonderful functions for the welfare of all the other members, and the ear not only gathers sounds of melody to delight the soul, but is on the alert for sounds that indicate danger, and never fails to communicate the necessary warning to all the body. The hand, while reason holds her throne, is never found putting a stumbling block in the way of the feet, but rather, is carefully removing such as are discovered, and seeking to follow the directions of the eye and ear in rendering the way more safe and pleasant for the feet.

Within the body there is mutual teaching and ministering among the members; but teaching cannot come to any member from without. Who would undertake to teach skill to the fingers, or show the feet how to dance, or instruct the ear to hear with delicate discrimination? All such instruction must come from the life within. One who would teach the hand of another how to use the artist's pencil or the surgeon's knife with skill, must apply his work of instruction to the mind, and not directly to the hand. The hands, the eyes, the feet obey the mind, receiving their instruction by secret avenues which the mind only can employ. So in the body of Christ the teaching is all from within, and all the gifts for the work of the ministry, for the perfecting of the saints, for the edifying of the body of Christ, are compared to "joints and bands," by which nourishment is ministered to the natural body.

Yet the natural man undertakes to teach religion with all that pertains to it, to the individual, as though I should take the right hand of a man who is perfectly ignorant of the principles of music, and presume to teach that hand the skillful use of the harp or organ. The skill must first be in the mind, in the soul, in the life within, and then in the mysterious ways that no man can ever understand it will be communicated to the fingers. And then the ear, the eye, the feet, and the hands will mutually help, and teach and perfect each other.

So in the body of Christ, it is the life first, given by the Lord, of his own will, and then in and through that life come all the teaching, all the help, all the communication of heavenly comfort, peace and joy. By the Lord's appointed gifts, which are in and of the body, and moved by the same one holy life, all the teaching, and all the reproofs of instruction, and all the admonitions, and all the ministrations of comfort, are given that are necessary to keep our mortal bodies in subjection, and to keep our souls in peace. And by the work of that ministry all the saints, "grow up into him in all things, which is the Head, even Christ, from whom the whole body, fitly joined together and compared by that, while every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body lends the edifying of itself in love." Eph. 4:12-16; Col. 2:19.

SILAS H. DURAND.

Southampton, Pa., July 26th, 1894.

THE GOSPEL OF WHICH PAUL WAS NOT ASHAMED.

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."—Rom 1:16.

The first preacher in the gospel dispensation was John Baptist, the forerunner of Christ, the morning star who gave testimony to the Son of righteousness that should soon rise. He was the first Old School or Primitive Baptist preacher of this gospel day. In the Jewish or law elements we see many bright shining fixed stars that did not fall at the destruction of Jerusalem. These are those Old Testament saints, "Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens." Heb. 11:33, 34. "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise." Heb. 11:39. Those were lights in the Jewish element that were lighted by the grace of God, and by faith they are shining forth to us, giving glory unto God of whom they received their light. They, like Abel, yet speak, though they be dead. These bear witness to the true gospel light hundreds of years before He came in this world in a body of flesh. Just before the sun is to rise in the fulness of His strength, the day star, John Baptist, approaches the horizon and speaks forth that which those fixed stars had before testified. In his preaching he never refers to his preaching as having any power, neither to baptism wherewith he baptized, or anything that he did, but pointed to Jesus and said, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." A remark here: What did John mean here? Did he mean to convey the idea that Christ should take all sin out of the world? Then John did not speak the truth, for sin is not taken away, the world is yet full of wickedness. But how shall we understand him? Christians, only look to your experience and you have the solution. When Christ came to you what was it that he broke up that caused you to be in so much trouble? Was it not the sin of the world, the fallow ground of the heart? And when he spake peace to you was it not that he took away the sin of the world in that sense that he forgave it in His mercy? The scars of those old sins remain, that is the remembrance that you have been guilty of them, but you now are able through Christ to look upon them as dead men drowned in the sea. Thus the sin of the world is taken away from all God's children.

John Baptist shows very plainly here what the gospel is: "The Lamb of God." Now he is the first Primitive Baptist preacher, and we shall do well if we always follow his example. He did not preach in such a way as to make people love him and rejoice in his preaching, only a certain class, those who brought forth fruits meet for repentance. We notice in this connection that John was guilty of doing what the Arminian world condemns us for: he did not hesitate to condemn false religion, but said to those who professed it, "Oh, generation of vipers," &c. He was quite abusive to other denominations, wasn't he? spoke very rashly to them. He is quite a good example if we follow him.

The next preacher I wish to notice is our Lord Jesus himself. It was said of him, "He shall save his people from their sins." Notice the text, "The gospel is the power of God unto salvation." See how he is here identified with the gospel. He says, "I am the way, the truth and the life." It is very evident that these are the powers of salvation. Then if we are to depend on the word of our Lord we must conclude that he is the gospel. The gospel is salvation, or the power of God unto salvation. This evidently cannot be the letter of the scriptures which we read, for we are taught that the letter killeth. Again our Lord said to the Pharisees, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they that do testify of me." The same as to say, "I am the eternal life, and the Scriptures are my testimony." Therefore our Lord has not taught us that the Scriptures are the gospel. He will have his children trust in him and not in the Bible. I once heard of a sister who at one time was in much darkness, and she took her Bible to read, and as she read the light of the spirit was poured in on what she read so that she found Christ in it all and her soul was overjoyed. She thought she had a refuge from trouble for all future time, and to be sure of her place she put a string in her Bible at that place. A few days after she was again in the same distress and she went to her refuge, but when she got there it was no refuge. She thought that her string had been moved. The whole of it was she was looking to the wrong place for comfort. Christ was indeed her refuge but she had supplied the Bible. Christ was the gospel to her. I heard of another case. A good sister had heard a certain very interesting preacher several times and had never failed to receive a crumb. She got in deep trouble and could see no way out. She saw some appointments for the preacher above referred to, but they were some distance off, but her darkness was so great and her desire to be delivered so strong she went to hear that brother preach, and to her great surprise she got not a crumb. She had to return home mourning, but it was afterwards shown her that it was Jesus and not the minister that must give her deliverance. Thus it was proven to her that Jesus was the gospel in her case. Now what can these two sisters say of this gospel? Why they are compelled to say, "I am not ashamed of it." And why? Because it is the power of God in their own individual salvation. All christians find the same in their salvation, not only in their first deliverance but all through our life, in all our troubles, in every distress, Christ is our sure refuge, our deliverer, our gospel.

This is why Paul was not ashamed of it. As he journeyed to Damascus to persecute the Primitive Baptist that he might find there, he got into trouble such as he had never met with before in all his life. A light shined around about him above the brightness of the sun at noon day, and he could not see by reason of the brightness of that light, and a voice said, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

Let me drop another remark here. How many times do people speak words against the Old Baptists, and pray for their extermination from the earth, little knowing that every word of it is against our Lord, for he is our Daysman, and stands between us and all danger, so that instead of anything striking us it strikes him. Here is the salvation of God's people, for they are not able to bear anything, but Jesus, our Head, bears it all for us.

This was strange news to Saul and stirred him up differently from anything he was looking for, and he found himself to be in great trouble from that time.

Soon afterwards, however, this same Jesus whom he had been so diligent in persecuting, revealed himself to him in such a way that he was compelled to go and preach him. No wonder he was not ashamed of that which was so plainly manifest in his deliverance. Again as he went forth preaching he did not find himself free from necessity. On one occasion we hear him say, "In me, that is in my flesh, there is no good thing." If he could find no good thing surely he found some evil thing and he needed to be delivered from that thing. Who was to do it? He preached that Jesus was able to save to the uttermost them that come unto God by him. Now how did he know this? For he must preach that he did know. To know it he must experience it. Then the point is this, Paul was not ashamed of that gospel that was manifested as the power of God in his salvation from the first of his conviction until the time of his free deliverance with the crown of glory in the presence of Jesus forevermore. So it is with all the children of God as they journey through the wilderness and have the protecting hand of God revealed in them. But we preach the gospel. Yes, we do when we preach Christ and him crucified. That is all that Paul would know among the churches and all that any true gospel minister will ever know. Our preaching is fully proven by the Bible and yet we do not preach the Bible. The Bible is as our preaching, a witness or testimony of Christ, but it is not Christ. You-aug-ghel-ee-on, the Greek word from which the word gospel was translated, means, "a good message." Here we have it in the sense of our preaching. The gospel has never been a good message to the world. When our Lord preached it there were some who said it is a hard saying and who can hear it. I suppose it was not very good to them. On the day of Pentecost when all the disciples preached with power and praised God, some went off and said, "These men are full of new wine." I wasn't good to them. They charged Peter and John to speak no more in this name. Why? Because it was not good to them. Paul preached at Athens and some cried out, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Why? Because what Paul preached was not good to them. Why was it that the apostles and the prophets before them and millions of the saints since their day have been put to death because of their preaching and faith? Simply because it was not good news to their persecutors. Why is it to-day that the doctrine of every true Primitive Baptist preacher is rejected, just because it is not good news to the world.

But there has never been a time since the preaching of John Baptist but what there was somebody to whom this gospel was a message of peace. In his day they were those who brought forth fruits meet for repentance. A little further along when our Lord was preaching they were the common people, the publicans and sinners, the afflicted with every disease known to men. In Paul's day they were those whose hearts the Lord had gone in before and shown them their blindness, and Paul preached that their eyes might be opened.

It was so with the preaching of all the apostles. Now why was their preaching rejected by some and received as good news by others? Was it not because some did not have their eyes open to see Jesus in their preaching and others did? If this is so the Apostles were not responsible for it. Even so in our day every true gospel preacher has and will have enemies. If ye will live godly in Christ Jesus ye shall suffer persecution.

"Blessed are ye when men shall persecute you and revile you and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you. But woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you for so did they of the false prophets." Such are some of the words of Christ to his little ones. Some weeks ago a Methodist preacher wrote to me and promised to appear with me at the judgment bar and accuse me for the injury that I had been to the people in the section where he is "preaching" this year. He little knew that I had been standing at the judgment bar for thirty-three years, and that it is through the perfect condemnation of his Arminian theory that I learned, right at the judgment bar, to preach what he is pleased to call "the dogma" of predestination and election.

When Peter preached this gospel it was to feed the sheep and lambs of God. To-day it is for the same and no other purpose. No true gospel preacher goes out preaching the gospel for any other purpose than the glory of God and the comfort of his people. This gospel is unchangeable, has no invitations in it but many commands, is as sure to accomplish that unto which God has sent it as any other word which he speaks, never makes a failure in any particular, and in spite of all its opponents it will endure unto the end. Those who prophesy and pray for its extermination are prophesying for their own destruction, for those who preach and believe this gospel are the salt of the earth, and as soon as the salt is taken away the whole fabric will fall to pieces in eternal decay. Affectionately,

Newport, N. C.

L. H. HARDY.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—The Lord has appeared kinder and more tender to me in my afflictions this time than ever before. If I am kept humble, and have the Spirit's witness that I am born of God, and have an interest in, and enjoy the blessings of the gospel, and feel that the Lord smiles upon me, I shall be content. What great changes we pass through in our pilgrimage—of darkness or light, in eating the bread of afflictions, or in the palace dining at the King's table. God remains the same gracious, kind, compassionate Saviour. It is blessed to think that we are loved of our God, and will be saved with an everlasting salvation. How glad I would be to see you, you may judge by my writing so often. David said, "The way of the Lord is in the sea, and his path in the great waters." I think I have been permitted to see a little of this way enough to fill my soul with wonder, love and praise. He turneth the wilderness into a standing water, and dry ground into water springs, and there he maketh the hungry to dwell. The Spirit searcheth all things, yea the deep things of God; and when that blessed spirit takes of the things of Jesus and shows them to us, how our hearts burn with love, and how blessed we feel! How we dishonor that Spirit when we seek to learn of the precious things of Jesus any other way than by and through him. Jesus promised to send the Holy Ghost that should teach us all things; and we need not that any man teach us, as the same anointing teaches us all things and is truth, and we know no other teaching will do us any good. We may get views from our brethren but they are not clear and soul-satisfying, and don't remain unless sealed with the Spirit. I want to tell you how some things appear to me. In the fall of Adam he and his posterity were taken captive by the strong man armed, and he keeps his goods in peace, and when we are born from above, or Christ is in us the hope of glory, he is the stronger man that binds the strong man, and the captive is freed from sin and death in the sense that it no more has dominion over him, and the man that is freed and made alive in Christ. In our captivity we only had a standing in Adam. Now we are freed we have a standing in Christ, and we, the Adam man, the chosen vessels of mercy, the ones that were predestinated to be conformed to the image of Jesus, are now sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise unto the day of redemption, and when the impress of that seal is made on the heart of the Adam man, as when we are stamped with the Holy Spirit, it is an earnest of our future inheritance, a pledge or token that we will be saved in heaven, and we that were predestinated to the adoption of children are in the resurrection received in the family of God with all the privileges and blessings of the true-born heir. When Adam was created there was no strong or stronger man with or in him, no old or new man. When he disobeyed the old man of sin, the strong man entered. In the new birth the new man or stronger entered, and they both dwell in the Adam man now, and the man that died in Adam is made alive to his condition in Christ, and groans on account of the old man, and rejoices on account of the man, or principle of holiness received in the new birth, and that that is born from above is our faith, and as it came from God it must be his production. When divine life was implanted in us we could not take hold of the promise, nor claim Jesus as our Saviour until faith was born, then we, or our faith did for us, claim the God of heaven and earth, the Holy One of Israel as our Father and Redeemer; and it seems to me that this faith John saw coming down from God out of heaven and entering the hearts of the chosen vessels of mercy, sealing them as heirs of heaven, and these are what constitute the Bride, the Lamb's wife, and to her was granted that she should be clothed in fine linen, clean and white, which is the righteousness of the saints. Now brother Gold, if I had ten thousand hearts they would all be broken, melted and humbled at the sight or glimpse of this glorious robe wrought out for us by our dear Redeemer. I feel like I would fall down at his feet if I could, and love, praise and adore him with my latest breath. No wonder that we that have had a taste of his forgiving love and divine compassion should love him in the furnace, at the whipping-post and in our deepest trials and afflictions. The great wonder to me now is that we should ever for one moment forget him in his great and tender mercies, and cease to thank and praise him with a single breath; but oh what blind, forgetful, weak and ignorant creatures we are. I don't feel well enough to go to Tarboro now, but may by Friday, though I don't think I will. Sister Sally comes to see me often, and we have a good time. She says she must go home soon. I think she has the most beautiful trust I have ever seen in any one. If I can't go to Tarboro I think I will have to go to Wilson if I ever get able. I want to see you so much. Give my love to sister Gold. Truly yours in love and fellowship,

ARAMINTA PITTMAN.

P. S.—If what I have been trying to tell you appears to you differently please tell me where or what the difference is. I think I will understand you. I am not sure that I have any true light on these things, but I can't keep them off my mind, try as hard as I can.

Scotland Neck, N. C.

Remark:

The above precious letter I came across to-day. It was written by one now in the glory of the land of Beulah. Sister Pittman was one of the most loving and candid Baptists I have ever known. Her mind ran much on predestination, the new birth, and those precious things that no one except a child of God loves.

This letter is so precious to me I desire to publish it for the household. She is gone home, but we still love the doctrine and hope to go at the appointed time.

The sister she alludes to is sister Sally Roberson. They were very dear friends and companions.

The church she alludes to is the church at Tarboro, where she was baptized by Elders B. C. Leachman, though her membership was not there when she wrote.

Sister Pittman suffered much before she died, but her love grew stronger as her suffering increased. How we love the memory of such dear saints,
P. D. G.

CONTENTNEA UNION.

Twenty-three years ago to-day, July 29th, 1894, the Contentnea Union (then call Toisnot in honor of the church that it was held with) was organized in the town of Wilson, N. C. In looking over the record my mind was taken back and made to reflect upon how God's works are carried on without human aid, and the good changes that have taken place since that time. If man had the power to aid or to prevent God's way and plan, surely many of those dear old soldiers who were then at that interesting meeting would be here now in these low grounds of sorrow, but they have fought that good fight, and won the battle and victory was given them, and they have gone home to that heavenly union above where parting is no more.

We see on the record the names of such dear old tried soldiers as Elder Jesse Baker, (who was accused of preaching infant hellism) who preached the first or introductory sermon from John 1 : 14 ; then at the close of his sermon Elder John H. Daniel explained the object of the meeting and gave a brief account of other Unions. That faithful old servant, Elder B. P. Pitt was chosen moderator and Jas. S. Woodard clerk. The Constitution was then read and adopted. The following churches took part in the meeting : Toisnot, by about one hundred members ; Union, by David Moore, John Moore, and Jesse Moore ; Lower Town Creek, by Elder B. P. Pitt and R. R. Dupree, John Duggin, Samuel Proctor, Isaac C. Moore, and Wm. Varnel ; Pleasant Hill, by H. B. Proctor and J. H. Griffin ; White Oak, by Elders Jesse Baker, William Barnes, Calvin Woodard and N. G. Womble ; Tyson's, by L. P. Beardsley and Howell Joyner. Elders R. D. Hart and Russel Tucker preached on Sunday to a large congregation, and at the close of Elder Tucker's sermon some two hundred brethren and sisters commemorated the Lord's supper. I have no doubt that that was a good meeting, one that the Lord received all the honor. Those dear old saints met with a purer motive to preach the gospel and to hear it preached, but those dear old followers (many of them) of Christ have gone home to that union above and the younger ones now coming on say they are unscriptural, that they had no bible authority for them ; but it seems to me that they had the same bible, the same God, and the same Lord Jesus Christ then as now, and if they had no scripture for them I have not found any to condemn them, for Christ commanded his followers not to forget the assembling of themselves together, and as to the name the meeting or assembly is called by is of very small consequence, if the meeting is in the name of the Lord in trust and deed. And we read, "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another," and how can they speak unless assembled or gathered together? "And the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name." Now how should I know who assembled, who preached, and who thought upon his name if a book had not been written of them? I think brethren do wrong in parleying over so many little notions and things that our fathers did. They did not profess to be perfect, neither are we better than they were. We would do well to show that we are trying to be worthy successors by following in their foot-prints, for if we had to undergo the trials they did, we, I fear, would fall far short of what they were.

Have you been able to find any scripture to condemn Union and Association meetings? Some say there is none to sustain them, but being none to condemn them, and as they are the plaintiff the burden rests upon them to produce it. I have not written this for publication? You were an eye witness and a partaker in the meeting and know what is written is correct.

L. J. H. MEWBORN.

Remarks:

I was not present at the above named meeting, but I am satisfied it is correctly reported by brother Mewborn.

Why do you suppose some people object to such meetings? There have always been objectors to the Lord's works. Moses and Aaron had their opposers. Joshua had his Achan, Samuel his Saul. So David and the prophets, Jesus and the apostles, and ever since it is true that the church has those in her midst that object. That need not keep us from our duty and labors, nor will it deprive those who are faithful of their joys.

Yes, many, many changes have passed over us since then. The best ones are gone. I have never felt more like I was talking with a man in heaven than when conversing with Elder Bennett Pitt in his final sickness. P. D. G.

ELDER J. D. ARMSTRONG, DEAR BROTHER:—I am sorry you lost sleep concerning the incarnation of the blessed Saviour. There is no need of losing sleep if we consider Him altogether heavenly and us altogether earthly. You must admit that which was heavenly entered into the Virgin Mary's womb, and was of itself made flesh there. Did Christ have life by virtue of Mary's life, or did he have life of the Father, which is eternal life? Did he not have this eternal life when he entered into the womb by the overshadowing of the Holy Ghost? Did not Mary and all the rest of us have life by virtue of that eternal life he took with him in his conception in the womb, and is this not the life he laid down on the cross? The God Head dwelt in him bodily, and when he was crucified the God Head departed from his body for three days, and then came back to his body in the resurrection, and the God Head is still in and with that glorious body today. He says in Revelation, "I am he that liveth, and was dead. Behold I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and death." Brother, you need not have lost sleep; for if Christ has all this power it is because the God Head dwells continually with him and in him, and dwelt with him and in him at the time of his conception in the womb of the Virgin Mary, and I dare any set of preachers to dispute it. Do you not know when Jesus was expiring on the cross he cries out to his Father and says, "Eloi, Lami, Sabachani." My God why hast thou forsaken me. That glorious body could not die till the God Head departed from it, and when the God Head came back that body revived again in the resurrection. He said he had power to lay down his life and power to take it again. If his life had been life from the Virgin Mary's life he never could have revived again. Nobody will debate this thing with me. None of your preaching brethren will discuss this matter with me by letter or otherwise. This shows that the Scriptures are altogether on my side. If you saw an error so plainly you ought to show it to me, and show me that it was the fleshly son of Mary that died on the cross. If you can show it I would be glad to see the error. I send you a stamp for reply. Yours in hope of eternal life,

J. C. SHELTON.

Brooksville, Ala.

BELLOVED EDITORS OF ZION'S

LANDMARK :—Some time ago I received a letter and pamphlet from Elder J. C. Shelton, treating partly on the subject of the lineage of Christ Jesus, and asserting that he was of God alone and not of the lineage of Adam, and in his letter he asked me to give him my views on the subject. After reading the pamphlet I wrote to him that I fully concurred with him in his views. After mailing my letter I began to experience unrest and great uneasiness of mind. At first I did not know what it meant, and then the thought came in my mind that my view expressed to him were erroneous, and not only contrary to the Bible, but a flat denial of the truth revealed therein. My mind was so uneasy I could not sleep at night. I saw plainly I was wrong, and I decided to write to him and confess the error of my view to him, and I did so, and after doing so quiet, ease and rest were restored to me, and in reply received the foregoing letter, which you will please publish with my reply. Brethren, it looks like from his letter he defies the armies of the living God. While I shrink back from writing for public view and criticism, and have often said I never would again, but is there not a cause? Trusting the Lord will supply all my deficiencies I undertake it. The first mention of Christ after the line of Adam is (Gen. 3:15) as the seed of the woman, and after the power of God to bruise the head of satan, or destroy his kingdom in the hearts of those given to Christ to redeem, "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and thou shalt call his name Immanuel."—Isa. 7:14. After the line of Adam the woman conceives, but after the power of God she still is a pure virgin, which could not possibly be true after the line of Adam. Now to conceive is to bear a part of the thing conceived. The mere injection of the seed of God into the womb of the virgin would not be conception. After the line of Adam the virgin bears a son in appearance like all the sons of Adam, but after the power and gift of God she bears Immanuel, which by interpretation means God with us. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."—Isa. 9:6. Here he is manifested after the line of Adam, in his being a child and a son born of a woman, but after the power and gift of God in the government of the minds, thoughts, life and righteousness of his people, the Counselor of his people, who always tells them the truth about everything. These things were not fulfilled when spoken by the prophet, though he spoke as if they were, because they were by the promise of the Almighty God, about 750 years before they were fulfilled. But in the fullness of time God sent the angel Gabriel to Mary, the virgin named by prophesy, to tell her that she was the virgin, and that the fullness of time had come for her to fulfill the prophesy; Luke 1:26, 27. After the power of her faith of the Son of God, though not yet born, she believed the messenger of God, but after the line of Adam she could not see or understand how it could be so, seeing she had never known a man, which was the natural and only way of conception, according to the line of Adam: "And behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus."—Luke 1:31. The point in question is whether the man Christ Jesus had any of the nature of Adam, as received from Mary, a descendant from Adam, a creature of the hand of God by the word of his power. Let us enter in the analysis of the point in question, praying God for a sufficiency of wisdom to rightly guide our mind and pen. The first point that claims our attention is Mary's conception, which has been already partly treated on. All people with any intelligence understand something of the nature and results of natural conception, as is commonly and daily manifested among us. Now if the word of God only that was made flesh and dwelt among us had been put in Mary's womb and receiving nothing from its mother Mary it would have produced none of the natural results that followed. One being born, the preparation of the milk in the breast of Mary for the nourishment of the child, which occurred as the natural result of the Adamic nature in Mary. Second, her days being fulfilled after the order of her Adamic nature, she was delivered of the child Christ Jesus, and did for him after the order of nature by loving him as her child, and nursing him as her child at her breast, and when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called Jesus. Now all these things took place, except the name of the child, after the order of the Adamic nature in Mary. None of these things could have followed the mere injection of the word of God in Mary's womb any more than if the seed had been without vitality, and in that case it would have been only reception of the seed and not conception. Conception does not only mean reception of the seed, but it means contributing by the woman who conceives to the one conceived—a diffusion of all her nature in all of the parts of the thing conceived by her, her very nature reproducing itself in the thing conceived, showing itself in features of face, thought, taste, shape, complexion, walk, tone of speech, character of life, its life being sustained by the same principle as the one who conceived, and the only reason that the exact counterpart of the woman does not appear in the thing conceived by her is that the very nature of Him that begot this Son, which was in direct opposition to the nature of Mary, was diffused in every part of the thing conceived by Mary, which had a counteracting influence in the thing conceived by Mary, and tended to prevent the exact reproduction of Mary, but a production both of the nature of him that begot him, and the nature of her that conceived him. Therefore he is called the last man Adam; the Lord from heaven, and he also calls himself the Son of Man. He now speaks after the order of Adam. After the nature of God he says he is the Son of God. Does he tell the truth in both denominating himself the Son of Man and the Son of God? I say yes. Do both appear? Yes. After the order of Adam he is clothed in apparel like other men, after the order of God as is manifested in the resurrection he needs no clothing, which are left in the nature of the grave cloths or linen, and no mention is made of them to his brethren while they are examining him for identity. After the order of Adam he thirsted and hungered for natural food and drink, but after the order of God his Father he had meat to eat that the people knew not of. After the order or nature of Adam he (Christ) was subject to the temptations of Satan, as manifested in the forty days' temptation in the wilderness, just like all the children of Adam, but after the order or nature of God he resisted all of them, "For verily he took not on himself the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham."—Heb. 2:16 and 2:14, "For as much then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood he likewise took part of the same." What children? The angels of heaven? No, the children Adam, who were by nature children of wrath as others; but who were given to him (Christ) according as he (God) hath chosen us in him (Christ) before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love."—Eph. 1:4. The children being partakers of flesh and blood he likewise took part of the same. Where did he take it from? His Father which is God, or from his mother Mary, which is of Adam? I say he took it from Mary and not from God. What did he take from Mary? A body of flesh and blood, subject to the temptations of Satan, subject to be kept in existence during its natural life by common food and drink, subject to be seen by the natural eyes of natural people, who had an opportunity to see him, as he was prepared before the face of all men; subject to be put to death as other men, subject to the pain of death as other men, subject to the powers that be; all this he received from Mary, only taking part. What of the children did he not take? He did not take their sinful nature. He took the nature of the substance of the children of Adam, or the nature of Adam before his transgression. Being the son of man he took part with him, being the Son of God he took his (God's) nature, and that nature manifested itself in his miraculous birth, being born of a virgin and her virginity being preserved till after she had borne Christ, and satisfying Joseph that his promised bride and wife was still a virgin, though at the same time being great with child and causing him to refrain himself from Mary till after the birth of Christ and the purification of Mary, and in Christ having a full understanding of letters, though never having been taught them, and in his being able to live forty days and forty nights in the wilderness without food, giving life to the dead, sight to the blind, and mind to him who had no mind. As the Son of Man "he lifted up his eyes and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me," John 11:41; as the Son of God, "And I know that thou hearest me always, but because of the people that stand by I said it that they may believe that thou hast sent me."—John 11:42.

As the Son of Man he prayed that the cup of sorrow might pass from him, but as the Son of God he said, "Nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt;" as the Son of Man, "He saith unto them, my soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death, tarry ye here and watch with me."—Matt. 26:38; but as the Son of God, "He rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race."—Psalm 19:3. "He is the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despised the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."—Heb. 12:2. There could possibly have been no way for Christ to have been the seed of Abraham but by the fleshly nature of Abraham. He could not have been the Son of David but by the fleshly nature of David. Who is the best authority on the matter, the prophet David, the Apostle Peter, Jesus Christ, who frequently called himself the Son of Man, the Holy Bible, which is the revealed word of God, or ELDER J. C. SHELTON? Let us hear the prophets Nathan and David (2nd Sam. 7:12, 13.) The prophet Nathan to the prophet David, "And when thy days be fulfilled and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever." This is a throne and a kingdom that is established forever, and the same seed of David's bowels is also and in like manner established on said throne forever, which cannot mean Solomon and his throne for they are neither existing, and they were only figures of the true. Now to see whether the seed of David's bowels named by the prophet referred to Solomon or Christ, let us hear the Apostle Peter (Acts 2: 29, 30), "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both a dead and buried, and his sepulcher is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." Men and brethren, this is enough for any who have eyes to see, a heart to understand and ears to hear, to sufficiently comprehend the great mystery, and reach the inevitable conclusion that Christ Jesus was like his brethren, who were born of Adam, sin excepted. We all must acknowledge that Peter gave the right description of Christ, who spoke as the Holy Spirit gave him utterance. He says that Christ was raised up to sit on the throne of David, also of the fruit of the loins of David, which means nothing else but that Christ took David's fleshly nature and not the sinful nature of David, but the nature of David. He also had the great God Head dwelling in him bodily, which means fully, immeasurably, sufficiently and desirably, which means in all its fullness, all that could be desired.

Peter says that Christ was a man approved of God. (See Acts 2: 22.) I believe Peter knew what he was talking about, and he here speaks of Christ as the son of man, or in body of humanity received from his mother. Let us hear what the Apostle Paul says about the point in question: "Concerning his (God's) Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, which was made of the seed of David according to the flesh." Rom. 1: 3. Now if he was made of the seed of David according to the flesh, could this possibly be true, and Christ have none of the nature of David in him? I say not. What causes him to differ from David? One is that God and not a natural man was his Father, but a natural and fleshly woman was his mother, who furnished him with all of his fleshly nature, and God his Father furnished him with all of his spiritual nature, and both natures were in perfect accord with each other, "and declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness by the resurrection from the dead." Rom. 1: 4. Did Paul understand his own speech? I say he did. He says that he (Christ) was made (born) of the seed of David according to the flesh. Now who shall be authority on this point? Elder Shelton, who says that Christ was not born or conceived of flesh according to the line of Adam, but was the seed of God, (which is acknowledged) and had no human nature in him, or the apostle Paul, who says he had both natures in him, being born of the seed of David or flesh, and declared to be the Son of God or with the nature of God in the Spirit of holiness by the resurrection from the dead. I say I shall accept Paul as authority on the point in question. "In the beginning was the word (Christ) and the word (Christ) was with God, and the word (Christ) was made flesh and dwelt (lived) among us, full of grace and truth:" St. John 1:1 and 14. "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard (Christ manifested in the flesh), which we have seen with our eyes (Christ in the nature of human flesh), which we have looked upon (Christ in the flesh), and our hands have handled (Christ in human nature), of the word of life. For the life was manifested (Christ made of the seed of David), and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us," (Christ raised up of the fruit of the loins of David, according to the flesh). John 1:1-2. Does John understand the subject? I think so. Does Elder Shelton? I think not. I shall take John as authority and not Elder Shelton, whose views are fully and clearly proven to be erroneous from the Scriptures cited. Let us hear John further on the point in question. (John 4:1-3.) "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits (by the revealed word of God) whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus is come in the flesh is of God; and this is the spirit of anti-Christ, whereof ye have heard that it should come, and even now already it is in the world," (also in Elder Shelton.) Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God is that Elder Shelton and his followers might be converted, &c., saved from the error of their way, for I bear him record that he has a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge of God, but the wisdom from below which is no better than the wisdom that the modern religionist is filled with to-day, who confesses that Christ is part of a Saviour. Now the Elder is very loud about the "Glorious incarnation" of the Son of God, and then denies that Christ came in the flesh, or in other words, that Christ had any human nature in him. This is like the half confession on the part of the world that Christ is a Saviour and is no better. The devil himself confessed that Christ was the Son of God in loud and unmistakable terms: Matt. 8:29, Luke 8:28, but he did not confess that he (Christ) was the son of man, for it was in this nature that Christ was manifested to destroy the works of the devil, and no wonder he (the devil) could not confess him in the flesh: Heb. 2:14, and what better has Elder Shelton done than the devil in his loud glorification of the Son of God, and at the same time denying his human nature? Are the Scriptures true when they contain all this proof that Christ Jesus was full of the nature of humanity, sin excepted, and at the same time full of Divine nature, the mother supplying the human, and God the Father the divine. He being the Son of man and we being the sons of man, he is our brother. He being the Son of God and we being born of the Spirit of God, and he being the first fruits of them that slept, he becomes our elder brother in the resurrection. Let us hear the Scriptures, 2 Tim. 3:16-17: All is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. I have labored to show Elder Shelton his error, and trust he will see it.

J. D. ARMSTRONG.

Rocky Mt., N. C. (Gospel Messenger copy.)

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor.

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 19.

WILSON, N. C., SEPT. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

MARRIAGE OF KING'S SON, &c.

Friend J. M. Vaughn requests my view of the marriage of the king's son. Questions:

"Were those first bidden the elect of God? If so why did they render so many excuses? Why did not all the guests have on the wedding garment?" See Matt. 22:1-14.

Jesus spake the truth to people's faces. While he did not flatter, he did not speak to one man about another man, but he spoke directly to each man: for he knew the entire case of each man, and what his standing was, wherein he was wrong, and what he needed. He spake also for all time and for eternity, foreseeing and comprehending the end as well as the beginning with everything involved.

He was addressing Jews and therefore his speech foretold their case. He was himself according to the flesh a Jew, and he came to them (his own). He was not sent but unto Jews in the literal sense, but he was sent spiritually to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and he was sent to none others thus: or he came to seek and save that which was lost, lost sheep wherever they might be scattered.

While on earth, therefore, his speech was to the Jews. He embodies and represents their case in a parable, setting forth the nature of the kingdom of heaven. A certain king made a marriage for his son. This king sets forth the God of heaven, and his Son represents Jesus Christ. The God of heaven makes the marriage. In our day a man chooses his own bride himself. The father does not choose for the son, but the son chooses his own wife or bride, and the father gives him a supper, or makes a wedding feast. But in the kingdom of heaven it is different, for the Father chooses the bride for his Son, and also makes a feast. "A certain king made a marriage for his son." According to this election of grace the Father gives the people to Jesus. Christ said, all that the Father giveth me shall come to me, and no man can come to me except the Father which sent me draw him, and I will raise him up at the last day. Abraham chose a wife for Isaac who is a figure of Christ. Were not the Jews the elect of God? Not as a nation. They are not all Israel which are of Israel, but in Isaac shall thy seed be called. So we see that when Christ came but few of the Jews called upon him. Many were called but few were chosen. There was a general call at the marriage, for the Lord God sent his servants, prophets, and his son himself declaring all things are ready, the fatlings are killed, the wine is mingled, the tables set. The apostles preached thus a finished redemption. But how were all these servants received? With one consent the Jews as a nation made light of it. Some had one excuse, and some another—one to his farm and another to his merchandise. Others slew his servants. Yea they slew his Son also.

He sent his armies and slew those murderers, and burned up their city. The Jewish nation was destroyed as a nation or kingdom, and Jerusalem was burned up.

The Jews as a people were not the chosen of God. There is no national or natural holiness. God's dealings with the Jews for so many centuries is clear proof that it is not in man to cleanse his ways, or improve his standing, or to save himself. The law made nothing perfect. Its province was not to justify the ungodly by works, and faith cometh not by the works of the law; but the strength of sin is the law.

Upon the rejection of the gospel by the Jews the apostles turned to the Gentiles, or went out into the highways and bid all that they found there to come in; and they gathered both good and bad so that the wedding was furnished with guests. Here many are called by the servants, but few are chosen. For when the king went in to see the guests he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment, and said to him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having on a wedding garment? None but the king could furnish a wedding garment. He always supplied this garment to every one he chose as a guest. The doctrine is that while many are called in the general outward proclamation of the servants that all things are now ready, yet that but few are chosen, and that God makes the choice of his people, and calls whom he will, and blessed are all that he calls to the marriage supper of the Lamb. God puts the garment or robe of salvation on his chosen.

When asked by the king how he came to the feast not having on a wedding garment he was speechless. If he had done no wrong his mouth would not have been shut. He was without excuse. He knew he was a trespasser and therefore he could make no reply.

The first ones bidden were not the elect of God. In the days of divine power the elect of God are a willing people, and they all come with gladness to the feast, for they hunger and thirst after righteousness.

How came in a guest without the wedding garment? He did not tell how it was. He was speechless. Those that appear without that garment are speechless. They cannot tell anything the Lord has ever done for them. They have no experience of grace. They know nothing about the wedding garment of the imputed righteousness of Christ. They are speechless. They are not at home at this feast. They are cast out into outer darkness, where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Salvation is of the Lord.

P. D. G.

NOTICE.

In a late issue of the LANDMARK there appeared a statement of the church called Philadelphia, in Lenoir co., N. C., concerning brother John Trent. The impression made on my mind from that letter, and another accompanying it, was that he held his letter of dismission from Philadelphia church in his pocket, instead of depositing it at Spoon Creek church, which would hold Philadelphia responsible for his conduct. But since the publication of that notice I learn that he had placed his letter in Spoon Creek church, where he first united with the Baptists. This being so Philadelphia church, on learning after his dismission from them—a distance of perhaps 100 miles from Spoon Creek—should have informed Spoon Creek of his improper conduct, after getting a letter of dismission, and let Spoon Creek take care of her own member. One church cannot deal with a member of another church further than to reject such member by not receiving him into her house if thought proper to do so. It is no pleasure to me to publish the improper conduct of brethren. It is far more preferable to commend them when worthy. The mother of this brother is a most worthy member at Spoon Creek.

It is of great importance for our preachers to maintain pure characters. They should have a good character at home. Churches should see that their preachers who travel abroad are of excellent standing at home.

If a brother cannot pay his debts he should see his creditors and get indulgence, if they will grant it. If not, surrender his property into their hands to pay his debts as far as it will go. He should be sober and otherwise act prudently and honestly. No more important matter concerns us than the good conduct of our brethren. If it is not good it proves that the doctrine of Jesus is not held by them, for all born of him are careful to maintain good works. Good fruit is the best product of a good tree. The good fruit of a christian is the only proof one can have to show he is taught of God.

I hope the church at Philadelphia will confer with the church at Spoon Creek and set that matter right. I desire to do no wrong to any man, and where any is done to confess and correct it. P. D. G.

CONTENTION.

There are some things we should earnestly contend for—but to contend earnestly is not to contend angrily or bitterly. One could not earnestly contend for that which he has not tasted the grace of.

Some expressions made by some brethren are at times misinterpreted or misunderstood. For instance one says the Scriptures are not the gospel. If this expression should cause the hearer to conclude that the speaker places too low a value on the Scriptures it might cause harm. Our expressions often need an explanation. While they are intended to condemn an error they may not fully convey our meaning.

No discussion we have should authorize another to think that we regard the Scriptures as the mere writings of men. All Scripture is profitable because holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. Jesus came to fulfill the Scripture, not a word of which can be broken. Therefore we should be careful not to lessen the importance of the word of God in the eyes of men.

Jesus said, Search the Scriptures, because they testify of Christ. He that hath Christ hath eternal life. Therefore as the Scriptures bear witness of Christ we should search them as testifying of Christ Jesus. We prove matters of the highest importance by the Scriptures, because they testify of such matters. While one could not sow wheat on his deed or title to land, yet that title is of untold value in asserting and establishing the title to that land, if the title is questioned, or if one should trespass on the land. To the law and to the testimony. Any and all doctrines not supported by the Scriptures are false. The Scriptures prove only one doctrine to be true, and hence condemn all others.

A man's word is rated according to his character. A liar's word is no stronger than the liar. The words of the wise are as nails in a sure place. God is truth, therefore his word is truth. His word shall accomplish all that he purposes it should. By the letter is meant the law that kills, because man has transgressed it. By the gospel is meant the power of God unto salvation to the believer, because in the gospel is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith—from the faith of Christ in God to that faith as given to the child of God that is a partaker of Christ's obedience, and it is manifested in good works unto which he is created in Christ Jesus. The letter or law is that system wherein the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness of men who do the things the law forbids, and omit the things it commands, and by it therefore is the knowledge of sin, and it is the ministration of death. Through the gospel life and immortality are—not created—but brought to light, or manifested in the revelation of Christ, who is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth; hence a believer is separated unto the gospel of God which he had promised afore by his holy prophets in the Scripture, concerning his Son Jesus Christ, so that he that hath Jesus has what the Scriptures bear witness to, and it is made effectual according to that power that works in the believer. Then how precious are the Scriptures. I am sure when brethren understand each other they will find agreement and harmony. Only let us be cautious to take the whole counsel of God.

To one without faith the Scriptures have no value. To an unbeliever there is no gospel or power of God unto salvation. But the man of God needs all the Scripture, and he is not ashamed of the gospel because it is the power of God unto salvation. It is the gospel of Jesus Christ. Of course Christ is greater than the gospel, because it is his gospel. Mark 1: 1. It (the gospel) is glory to God in the highest, peace on earth and good will to all to whom the child Jesus is born and to whom this son is given, or in whom a Saviour is born and in whom he shines.

But if man sends a bible to another, or hands it to another man, does that send the gospel or the power of God to that man? No. I could not speak the words even of another man as he speaks them, or with just the same power—unless he authorized me to do so. Surely I could not cry with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth, as Jesus did, and cause him to rise from the dead. When the Lord sends one to preach the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, or when we preach Christ the power and wisdom of God it is to them that are saved. P. D. G.

ASSOCIATIONAL.

The Little River Association is appointed to be held with the church at Little Creek, Johnston county, N. C., and to commence on Friday before the 5th Sunday in Sept. Those coming by rail on the N. C. R. R. will be met at Clayton on Thursday. Those coming on Coast Line will be met at Smithfield on Thursday. A general invitation is extended.

J. M. PARRISH, Clerk.
P. R. BARBOUR, Mod.

The next session of the Kehukee Association is appointed to be held with the church at Old Sparta, Edgecombe co., N. C., and to commence on Saturday before the 1st Sunday in October. Visitors by rail will be met on Friday at Co-noeta, near Tarboro, N. C.

The 63d Annual or Fall session of the Bear Creek Primitive Baptist Association is appointed to be held with the Lawyer's Spring church right near the little town of Peachland, a railroad station on the Carolina Central R. R., commencing on Saturday before the first Sunday in October 1894, and continuing three days. A cordial invitation is extended. Those coming by rail from East or West will be met at Peachland. If any come from S. C. or Western N. C. they will come by way of Charlotte. All coming by rail write the undersigned and conveyance will be provided. Fraternal yours,

J. W. JONES, Cl'k.
White's Store, N. C.

UNION MEETINGS.

The Toisnot Union is appointed to be held at Castalia, commencing Saturday before 5th Sunday in September. A. J. MOORE.

The Black Creek Union is appointed to be held with the church of Toisnot (in town of Wilson, N. C.) and to commence on Saturday before the 5th Sunday in Sept.

Elder R. C. Leachman baptized sister Pittman. See mistake on page 463.

"A sound heart is the life of the flesh: but envy the rottenness of the bones."

"He that oppresseth the poor reproacheth his Maker: but he that honoureth Him hath mercy on the poor."—Proverbs 17: 30, 31.

OBITUARIES.

JULIA Y. MUNDEN.

Sister Julia Y. Munden was born Sept. 19th 1815, was received into the Black River church and baptized the 3rd Sunday in May 1843, was a faithful and consistent member, had the confidence and love of the brethren all through life.

SETH WOODALL.

WILLIAM M. DAUGHTRIDGE.

Brother Daughtridge was born in Nash county, N. C., on January 6th, 1828. He had no opportunity for an education, therefore he neither learned to read nor write. At an early age his father hired him to a farmer as a field laborer, in which capacity he proved faithful, both to his father and employer, and after performing his day's work would work for himself at night, and in that way commenced to make for himself some money and reputation, neither of which he ever allowed to decrease, but steadily laid up more and more so long as he lived, and by his untiring perseverance, economy and self-sacrifice he accumulated a large estate of both. He was married twice. First to a Miss Proctor, and second to Miss Delia Williford, a sister of the writer. By his first wife he leaves one child, by his second he leaves nine children. Brother Daughtridge joined the Primitive Baptist church at the February meeting at the Falls of Tar River, 1874, and as he was faithful in natural matters so he was in spiritual. He always filled his seat in his church when not providentially hindered. Though he was slow to speak in conference, we all felt such confidence in his judgment, that we were always glad to see him rise from his seat to give his views. He was stricken with paralysis on the 10th day of February last, and his mind was impaired by the stroke so that it was not fully clear any more, though some of the time he talked rationally. He bore his sickness patiently, never murmured, nor complained. He sent for me on Thursday night before he died on Sunday, to pray with him. I spoke of my weakness. He said to me in reply, "The Lord be with you." On the 18th day of February he fell asleep in Jesus to rest forever with the faithful who have gone before. His stay on earth was 66 years, 1 month and 12 days. He leaves an affectionate wife and ten children, several grand-children, and other relations, and many friends to mourn their loss; but let us be comforted among our troubles feeling surely that our loss is his gain. He looked happy after death, not a mark of trouble could be seen upon his face; but it showed that with him all is well, all is well. May our heavenly Father enable us to bear our troubles with christian fortitude, feeling that the storm of life will soon be over, and we too shall reach that happy shore to be forever blessed. I write the above by request of sister Daughtridge.

Your unworthy brother,

M. B. WILLIFORD.

MAUDE J. VELVERTON.

Maude fell asleep in the arms of Jesus June 19th 1894, at 5 o'clock, P. M. She was born March 11, 1881, making her stay on earth 13 years, 3 months and 8 days, was well grown to her age; kind and affectionate and loved by all who knew her. Yet the good Lord saw best to take her from this world of trouble and sin to dwell among his angels. She is now basking in the smiles of Him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." Her funeral services were conducted by Mr. R. C. Beaman. Died of malarial fever after an illness of only two weeks. She was a member of the Methodist church. She bore her sickness with much patience and was never heard to murmur, but frequently spoke of the kindness shown her by relatives and friends. It seems that she knew her condition but was not alarmed at all. She asked a short time before she died for some one to sing for her, "It is well with my soul." She called her mother, a few hours before she died, to her bed side and told her she was going to die, and asked her not to grieve for she would soon be happy, said she had been praying to the Lord to fit and prepare father, mother, sisters and brothers to meet her in heaven. Weep not, fond parents, for your child, you have another tie to bind you to the goodly land. May heaven sustain you in this sad bereavement, and may you be enabled to say, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord." It is hard to part with loved ones, but the Lord's will be done in all things. I feel I can sympathize with them in their sad bereavement, feeling the loss of three children myself. I hope to feel that she is resting that sweet rest that remains for the people of God. May our Heavenly Father reconcile both father and mother to the good of his will, and prepare them to meet their child on that happy shore where no more parting tears will be shed, is the wish of a friend. S. M. S.

ELDER WILLIAM J. PURINGTON.

In the death of Elder William J. Purington the church has sustained the loss of one of the ablest ministers of the New Testament of this day and generation, and perhaps any other generation since the days of inspiration. He was wonderfully gifted of God, and was one of the few who seemed to be evidently set for the defense of the gospel. His life and character were in striking accord with the doctrine he held, loved and preached. His labors in the ministry fully sustained the confession which he made unto salvation and unto his call to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ. He was bold in the faith, able and fearless in proclaiming the sincere convictions of an honest heart, and entertained no manner of compromise for what he esteemed as the fundamental principles of truth. His bearing was grave, his manner was fatherly, his presence was commanding, and yet endearing, his conversation was instructive in doctrine, in discipline, in love and in good works, and his counsels were pointed, timely and wholesome. He possessed the sternness and inflexibility of man, the gentleness and tenderness of woman, and the meekness, humbleness and simplicity of a little child. He was a fit companion to all the children of God who were privileged to come into his presence, in whatever respect they may have felt the need of such, under the exercises of faith. To be with him was, for me, to be benefitted. While I realized the superiority of his gifts yet I felt free and easy in his presence. Having been favored with his acquaintance and fellowship, and having had from his lips words of instruction, cheer and comfort, I felt to make this brief expression, in my feeble manner, of the impressions which I fondly cherish, made upon my mind during the pleasant and precious hours spent in the company of this dear brother who fought a good fight, finished his course, kept the faith, and who is now no doubt at the right hand of God, wearing that crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, had laid up for him, and not for him only, but for all them also who love His appearing.

May the grace of God rest upon his dear companion and the church at Hopewell, and His name be ever blessed.

P. G. L.

JOHNNIE HARRIS EVERETT.

ELDER GOLD, DEAR BROTHER.—Will you please publish in the LANDMARK the death of my little babe, Johnnie Harris Everett, son of Lewis E. Everett and Emily his wife, was born March 10th, 1894, and died with lock jaw March 19th, 1894. He looked fine and promising, and we were loth to part with him, but God in his great wisdom and mercy doeth all things well, and why should I murmur. But when the rod of chastening is laid upon us, this corruptible flesh will murmur. The ties of nature are strong, and it was a hard struggle for me to say, "Thy will, oh Lord, be done," but I was made to say it, also to feel rejoiced when it had breathed its last, its sufferings were so great, and no medical aid could relieve it for a moment, but I trust it has gone where it will be forever at rest. I know it is free from the cares and trials of this sinful world. May God in his infinite goodness and mercy, deal tenderly with all mothers who have such to bear.

So fades the lovely, blooming flower;
Faint, smiling solace of an hour;
So soon our transient comforts fly,
And pleasure only blooms to die.

MOTHER.

CHARLES HENRY SHERROD.

Death! The mighty sickle who is sent to mow the golden grain at harvest time has again visited our home and cut down as its victim our darling brotner, June 12, 1894, aged 52 years, 1 month, and two days. He was the son of Mr. H. L. Sherrod. He was sick about three weeks with typhoid fever, and suffered a great deal before he was released by death. Could the skill of his physician or hearts overflowing with grief have saved him he would not have died, and we would not have to weep for a loving brother.

Darling Bonnie. O! how sweet his kind voice was to me. He was so tired and restless for a few days when he first came home, but he soon became quiet and always took his medicine so well, and I looked so bright when he would wake, as if he would soon be well, but God knew best when to take him. He died as one resting in sleep. He was to his parents a dutiful child, a kind and loving brother. Though he is gone and can never be called back again, I hope he is better off. He leaves a good and kind father and ma, three sisters, three brothers, and a number of kindred and friends to mourn their loss. May we all be prepared by the grace of God to meet him in the kingdom of God.

Dearest Bunnie, thou hast left us;
Here thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God that hath bereft us;
He will all our sorrows heal.

Written by

Hamilton, N. C.

SISSIE.

STEPHEN PAGE.

The subject of this sketch died on March 26th, 1893, aged 90. He was a good citizen and neighbor, and although he had never connected himself with any church he was a firm believer in the faith of the Primitive Baptists, and it seemed that age had not dulled his faculties, not quenched his desire to find the right way, and when on his death bed prayed fervently for forgiveness, and his last words were, "You must help me pray." His house was always open to the ministers who pass that way, and he always enjoyed attending the associations and meetings as long as he was able. He had been taking the LANDMARK about 25 years. He leaves three children, one son and two daughters, and twelve grandchildren.

The aged and the young must go,
We bid them all good bye;
We should not grieve, for this we know,
We'll meet them by and by.

N. M. PLEASANT.

Yanceyville, N. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

JAS. A. BURCH.

Shiloh	September 3
Stoneville	At night
Matrimony	4
Ridgeway	5
River View	3 o'clock—6
Town Creek	7
Reed Creek	8 & 9
Camp Branch	10
Leatherwood	11
Axton	12
Cascade	13
Dan River	14

He will need conveyance.

J. D. DRAUGHN.

Lower Cannoche Asso. (Ga.)
Raind's Creek	Monday after
Bellknop	Tuesday
Savannah	Tuesday night

ISAAC JONES.

Little River Association.
Cross Roads	Monday
Memorial	Tuesday
Aycock's	Wednesday
Wilson	Thursday
Upper Town Creek	Friday
Thence to Kehukee Association.
Cross Roads	Tuesday
Fiat Swamp	Wednesday
Briery Swamp	Thursday
Great Swamp	Friday
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
Galloway	Tuesday after
Blount's Creek	Wednesday
Sandy Grove	Thursday
Bethel	Friday

He will need conveyance.

L. H. HARDY.

LaGrange	October 2
Mewborns	3
Meadow	4
Anty's Creek	5
Thence to Kehukee Asso.
Tarboro	9
Little Creek	10
Great Swamp	11
Red Banks	12
Thence to Contentnea Asso.

He will need conveyance.

J. A. BURCH.

Willow Spring	Wednesday before 5th Sunday in September.
Middle Creek	Thursday
Thence to Little River Association.
Cross Roads	Monday
Memorial	Tuesday
Aycock's	Wednesday
Wilson	Thursday
Upper Town Creek	Friday
Thence to Kehukee Asso.
Old Town Creek	Tuesday
Little Creek	Wednesday
Great Swamp	Thursday
Red Banks	Friday
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
Galloways	Tuesday after
Blount's Creek	Wednesday
Sandy Grove	Thursday
Bethel	Friday
Thence to White Oak Asso.
LaGrange	Tuesday after
Mewborns	Wednesday
Nahunta	Thursday
Thence to Black Creek Asso.

He will need conveyance.

W. B. STRICKLAND & JOSEPH STATON
Pleasant Hill	3d Sunday in Sept.
Wilson	Monday
Lower Black Creek	Tuesday
Upper Black Creek	Wednesday

Bethany	Thursday
Thence to the Seven Mile Asso.
New Hope.....	Monday after 4th Sunday
Hannah's Creek.....	Tuesday
Rehoboth	Wednesday
Clement.....	Thursday
Thence to the Little River Association.
Smithfield.....	Sunday night
Union.....	Monday after 5th Sunday
Cross Roads.....	Tuesday
Memorial.....	Wednesday
Nahanta.....	Thursday
White Oak.....	Friday

W. C. JONES.

Oak Grove	September 26
Middle Creek	27
Thence to Little River Asso.
Neuse	October 1
Cedar Grove	2
Dutchville	3
Camp Creek.....	4
Tar River.....	5
Surl.....	6 & 7
Roxboro.....	8
Shiloh.....	9
Storie's Creek	10
Flat River.....	11
Bullock's Academy.....	12
Mt. Lebanon.....	13
Eno.....	14
Durham.....	at night
Whitfield's School House.....	15
Ray's School House.....	16
Some one will please meet him at Apex, Sept. 26. He will need conveyance.

J. S. DAMERON.

Gilliams.....	Monday after 4th Sun. in Sept.
McRay's.....	Tuesday
Harmony.....	Wednesday
Whitfield's School House.....	Thursday
Durham.....	Friday
Eno.....	Saturday
Dutchville.....	5th Sunday
Cedar Grove.....	Monday
Neuse.....	Tuesday
Salem.....	Wednesday
Upper Black Creek.....	Thursday
Wilson.....	Friday
Thence to Kehukee Asso.
Lawrences.....	Tuesday
Conoho.....	Wednesday
Hamilton.....	At night
Flat Swamp.....	Thursday
Great Swamp.....	Friday
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
Tarboro.....	Tuesday
Falls.....	Wednesday
Nashville.....	At night
Castalia.....	Thursday
Hickory Rock.....	Friday
Travel Saturday
Shoo-Flv.....	3rd Sunday
Camp Creek.....	Monday
Tar River.....	Tuesday
Flat River.....	Wednesday
Roxtoro.....	Thursday

Shiloh.....	Friday
Storie's Creek.....	Saturday
Wheeler's.....	4th Sunday
Prospect Hill.....	Monday
Lynch's Creek.....	Tuesday
Arbor.....	Wednesday
Pleasant Grove.....	Thursday

G. B. POWELL.

Oak Grove.....	Sat. and 2d Sunday in Sept.
Willow Spring.....	Monday
Old Neil's Creek.....	Tuesday
Sandy Grove.....	Wednesday
Bethel.....	Thursday
New Hope.....	Friday
Black River.....	Saturday and 3d Sunday
Mingo.....	Monday
Barbery's Chapel.....	Tuesday
Hickory Grove.....	Wednesday
Hannah's Creek.....	Thursday
Thence to.....	Seven Mile Asso.
Fellowship.....	Monday
Rehoboth.....	Tuesday
Clement.....	Wednesday
Smithfield.....	Thursday
Thence to Little River Association.
He will need conveyance.

J. E. ADAMS.

Bethany, Anson co., N. C.....	Tuesday and Wednesday after 5th Sunday in September.
Fyson's School House.....	Thursday
Thence to Bear Creek Association at Lawyer's Spring.
High Hill.....	Tuesday after Thence to Cool Spring Association at Cool Spring Church, S. C.
Mill Church, Anderson co., S. C.....	3d Sat. & Sunday
Gill's Creek, near Columbia, S. C.....	Tuesday and Wednesday
Sumpser, S. C.....	Thursday night after.
Mt. Pleasant, S. C.....	4th Sat. & Sun.
Feathers Bay.....	Tuesday after Brother Bufkin will please meet me at Fair Bluff on Monday.
Sanford.....	Tuesday night after
Simpson's Creek.....	Wednesday
Then to Mill Branch Association.

I. H. PURIFOY.

Sardis.....	Saturday before 1st Sunday in Sept
Pleasantville.....	Sunday
Wolf Island.....	Monday
Reidsville.....	Tuesday
Dan River.....	Wednesday
Lick Fork.....	Thursday
Pleasant Grove.....	Friday
Gilliams.....	Saturday
Bush Arbor.....	2d Sunday
Lynch's Creek.....	Monday
Prospect Hill.....	Tuesday
Wheeler's.....	Wednesday
Flat River.....	Thursday
Storie's Creek.....	Friday
Roxboro.....	Saturday and 3d Sunday
Surl.....	Monday
Shiloh.....	Tuesday
Thence to.....	Danville, Va
His wife accompanies him. Please meet and convey them.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 8, 1894.	No. 31 Daily		No. 41, Daily.	No. 41, Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 54	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 40
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv Tarboro	12 45
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv Wilson	2 08	11 01
Lv. Selma	2 45
Lv Fayetteville	4 35	12 51
Ar. Florence	7 45	3 00
	No. 47, Daily.
			A. M.
Lv. Wilson	2 18		6 35
Lv Goldsboro	3 05		7 29
Lv Magnolia	4 10		8 49
Ar Wilmington	5 50		10 00
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 8, 1894.	No. 35 Daily.		No. 34, Daily.	No. 40 Daily.
	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 39	7 45
Lv Fayetteville	10 42	9 30
Lv. Selma	12 48
Ar. Wilson	1 50	11 27
	No. 46, Daily.
	A. M.		P. M.
Lv Wilmington	9 00		7 00
Lv Magnolia	10 40		8 53
Lv Goldsboro	11 55		9 40
Ar Wilson	12 40		10 27
	No. 38 Daily.		No. 39 Daily
	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Lv Rocky Mt.	1 10	11 27	10 22
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 13	12 05	11 15
Ar Tarboro	2 45
Lv Tarboro	12 45
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 13	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 19	12 55
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.

†Daily except Monday. ††Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.
Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 53 p. m., Greenville 6 17 p. m., Kingston, 7 45 p. m. Returning leaves Kingston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m. Weldon 12 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Farmville 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro

8 50, returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Farmville 7 10 p. m. arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.
Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via A'hemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 30 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m. Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 24 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.
Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 45 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.
Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 50 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 8 00 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.
Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 10 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.
Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE.

General Supt

J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.

T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.
Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25
Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.
Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.
In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order
Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address
J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 18th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 16th, 1894, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable. The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 15, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad grates, provided each one writes me one week previous.
Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13966/t5t5252z / Public Domain

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Flitty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sux-on, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SON,

30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.
They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.

P. D. GOLD.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound		MAIN LINE.		N. Bound
No 1				No 2
7 55 p.m.	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv			7 00 a.m.
4 45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			10 10 a.m.
4 30 p.m.	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv			10 27 a.m.
3 18 p.m.	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv			11 43 a.m.
1 27 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv			1 43 a.m.
12 50 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			2 45 p.m.
12 54 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			3 55 p.m.
12 05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			3 45 p.m.
11 42 p.m.	Lv.....N.W. Pct.—W. Cove, Ar			4 30 p.m.
11 35 p.m.	Ar.....N & W. Pct.—W. Cove, Lv			4 33 p.m.
11 00 p.m.	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv			5 01 p.m.
9 45 a.m.	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar			6 25 p.m.
No 3				No 4
5 00 p.m.	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv			6 25 a.m.
6 47 p.m.	Lv.....Moxie.....Lv			7 27 a.m.
6 08 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv			8 27 a.m.
5 13 p.m.	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv			9 12 a.m.
4 50 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar			9 35 a.m.
No. 15				No 16
MIXED				MIXED
Daily Ex				Daily Ex
Sunday				Sunday
5 45 p.m.	Ar.....Ramsour.....Lv			6 50 a.m.
1 55 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv			5 40 a.m.
1 00 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar			6 25 a.m.
No. 15				No 16
MIXED				MIXED
Daily Ex				Daily Ex
Sunday				Sunday
2 35 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv			6 40 a.m.
1 05 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv			11 00 a.m.
12 30 p.m.	Lv.....Maidson.....Ar			11 50 a.m.

Train No 1 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1855. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at,
Eltm City, Wilson Co., N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold.

WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1894.

NO. 21.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N. C.

KaderJillev
100 94

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I send you the following poetry composed by Miss Addie Hatcher, which I hope to see in ZION'S LANDMARK. I have had some pleasant conversation with this lady and feel that she should have gone home to her friends long ago and told them what great things the Lord hath done for her. I hope that I had a true christian regard for her the first time I ever saw her, and since I have read these lines I feel that my affection is drawn out to her more than ever. I do hope this little one, and all others of like precious faith, may come flocking home to the mount of God, and follow him in the sacred ordinance of baptism and find that rest, peace, comfort and joy that God has promised to them that love, serve and obey him.

Affectionately yours,
E. C. SMITH.

A BIRTHDAY GREETING.

Good morning dear grand-mother,
How are you to-day?
I am delighted to see you enjoying
Your seventy-fifth birth day.
The twenty-eighth of July,
Eighteen hundred and ninety three,
We celebrate thy birth day,
In love and joy for thee.
Your children dear have gathered here,
To enjoy a feast with you:
While your grand children highly prize
Your Anniversary too
Three sons yet survive you,
Three loving daughters dear;
And of your grand-children thirty,
All of them are here.
They view your face worn with care.
It has once been bright and gay,

When you were young as we are now:
But age has crept on day by day.
Upheld by a kind Providence,
As the days pass swiftly away.
And you are blessed to enjoy
Your seventy-fifth birth day.
The days are long and sunny
As they were in days of yore;
When the flowers sweet bloomed at your feet,
To never bloom any more.
Many changes have been since then,
Since you were a maiden fair and gay
Your body old and feeble grown,
Your hair faded and gray.
All your brothers have marched away,
Their bodies to the dust returned:
All your sisters sleep beneath the clay,
Except only one.
Your parents sleep peacefully
In the still and narrow bed,
While your companion dear,
Is numbered with the dead.
He is gone to meet one dear little son,
That years ago was called away.
Their race is ended, the victory won,
They have paid the debt we all must pay,
Sad is your loss, but great their gain;
Mourn not in your afflicted state:
You have been blessed by that tender hand
That does not forsake the desolate.
Your troubles and trials will all end,
No more sighs to heave your breast:
For there is a world of perfect bliss,
Where the weary pilgrims rest.
A land where joy never fades away,
Bright shining as the sun,
The sweetest songs of melody;
Are heard from the angels' tongues.
There mortals shall dwell in immortality,
And crowns of glory wear;
And sing the song of triumph
As they enter there.
Though you often mourn and sigh,
Feel lonely and desolate;
The Lord of Heaven is ever nigh;
He hears all your complaint.
'Tis He that waters every flower,
To beggars lends a listening ear.
He saves them with his power.
There is no disturbance there.
That glorious feast will not end,
Like the one we have to-day,
For Jesus is the sinner's friend,
And his love fades not away.

So may we remember your christian walk,
 Follow in the paths you have trod,
 And when we bid this world adieu,
 May we all find a home with God.
 Your devoted grand-daughter,

ADDIE HATCHER

SOWING—REAPING.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith."—Galatians 6: 7-10.

Some time ago I passed through a season of great darkness, during which time my mind was harassed by inward trials and temptations, and so great was the unrest of my mind and soul for several days that it seemed unbearable. But at length the sweet messenger of rest came to my weary, heavy laden soul accompanied by a part of the above Scripture. Since that time my mind has been led to it often, and it yet has a peculiar sweetness to me that I cannot fully express, but I wish to mention some of the exercises of my mind at the time of which I write. Quite a while previous to the deliverance of which I spoke I had been unusually worldly minded, sinking deeper and deeper in the slough of carnal interest, till at length my mind became so over-charged with worldly cares, that everything of a spiritual nature seemed to be crowded out. In this sad condition I found myself, or rather I was found. I was weighed in the balances and found wanting. It was now a dangerous looking place, and I longed so much to get away but could not. I was so tired and sick of these vain and perishing things that I strove with all my power to drive them from my mind, but all my efforts were vain. They were my constant companions night and day. There was a piece of work that I felt must be done by myself, by a certain time. I thought perhaps if I could accomplish this my mind would be relieved, as there wasn't anything else of this nature especially required of me at present. But I soon began to realize that I could not even do that, for I was so badly disabled physically, and continued to get weaker, till all physical power as well as spiritual seemed exhausted. My frail bark was tossed on the tempestuous sea by the contrary wind. The proud and angry looking billows were rolling mountain high, and seemed almost ready to engulf its trembling victim. Hence of bare necessity I was compelled to cry, Lord save, I perish. Like Daniel of old, there remained no more strength in me, and many were the bitter tears that I shed, while in broken sighs and unuttered groans I made known my complaint unto Him who is "an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest," the blessed and only Potentate, King of kings and Lord of lords. Yea, "in my distress I cried unto the Lord and he heard me," and in answer to the intense pleading of my heart came the positive declaration of sacred truth, "He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Surely no precious promise could have been made sweeter to me than this. Immediately I realized that I had been reaping the fruit of the seed sown, had been sowing to the flesh, therefore of the flesh reaped corruption, and God in faithfulness had visited my transgression with the rod, for he doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, but "as many as I love, I rebuke and chasten," saith the Lord. With the Psalmist I could say in deed and in truth, "Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law." Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby." I believe I ate of that fruit and was strengthened both spiritually and physically, so much so that I was enabled to complete the work before me with much ease, while my mind was peacefully meditating on the manifest love and mercy of an all-powerful, unchangeable God. A great change had suddenly come over me. The day-star had risen in my heart, dispelling the dark and lowering clouds of error which had so imprisoned my soul and made me cry with one of old "Bring thou my soul out of prison that I may praise thy name." I have since had similar deliverances and exercises of mind, but not in so deep and trying a manner, feel that it has indeed been a useful lesson by which I had been enabled to profit, a lesson that I now feel I will ever remember. God's people have ever found in all ages of the past, and will continue to find in the future, that when drawn away from the true and living God, by the gods of this world, they have no peace of mind: barrenness of soul and anguish of spirit is their portion. No one can hope to reap wheat from the seed of thistle, but every one is sure to reach that which he hath sown. He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption. Corruption we know is very offensive, especially when there is a great quantity of it, and while it is true that we sometimes have to handle it, we know that is very disagreeable and unpleasant to do so. There is nothing pure in it that we should desire it, yet how often are we found sowing to that which can only produce it. The Psalmist said, "In the day of my trouble I sought the Lord; my sore ran in the night and ceased not; my soul refused to be comforted." It was transgression that made this grievous sore and caused him to so earnestly question, "Is his mercy clean gone forever? Hath God forgotten to be gracious? Hath he in anger shut up his mercies? Bodily exercise profiteth little, but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." Therefore "let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Not that one obedience or two excuses a christian for life, as some seem to imagine. But in order to reap the good of the land they must not be weary in well-doing, but be willing and obedient servants. But "woe to them that are at ease in Zion; a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep, so shall thy poverty come." A child of God need not expect to find, while on his pilgrim journey, a place so smooth and quiet that he may set down and do nothing, while his brethren fight all the battles by the way. But if he would be a good soldier of Jesus Christ he must endure hardness, and in order that he may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil it is necessary that he put on the whole armor of God. "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." A wickedness which appears in the form of religion is very dangerous, being dressed in a robe that has so many alluring charms, it is sure to deceive the hearts of the simple, and make merchandise of them. Yet it is that which is highly esteemed among men, but is an abomination in the sight of God. Hence believers in Jesus are commanded to let them alone, they be blind leaders of the blind. And that child of God who is yoked with such partaking of their idolatrous worship, has not on the whole armor of God, but his spiritual strength is diminished, thereby giving place to the devil. And how unwise and unscriptural, too, for parents who have learned of Jesus, to suffer their children taught by blind leaders, who stuff their young and untrained minds so full of pharisaical principle which so embitters them against the truth that when they are grown up they do not even respect the profession of their parents. This must be hurtful indeed to christian parents, but parents who suffer their children to be thus deluded cannot hope for better. "They have sown the wind and they shall reap the whirlwind." Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it. Not that parents are able to make christians of their children, but in obedience God's people are always blest of Him, and when they strive to bring up their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" as commanded of Him, he often makes their children a blessing to them in their declining years. Children that love their parents have great confidence in them and will give ear to their instruction, being assured that they will not at any time give them advice that will prove detrimental to their natural welfare, much less to their soul's eternal salvation. Then is it not the duty of every christian parent to strive to impress upon the mind of their children the way that sinners are saved, and the only way. And while they may never be brought to a perfect knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus, yet under such training may we not hope that they will respect the truth and thus be enabled to keep out of the net of those to whom Jesus says, "Who compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him two fold more a child of hell than yourselves." They make him two-fold more a child of hell than themselves in a sense, that he is deluded by men who love the uppermost seats in the synagogues and greetings in the market, while they lade him with burdens grievous to be borne, and themselves touch not the burden with one of their fingers. He thus becomes a servant of men instead of his Creator, and is tormented by the weighty burdens that his merciless masters put upon him. Then, dear christian parent, how can you, if you love your child who is ignorant of the dangers that attend such delusion, suffer it taught by such base deceivers. Sometimes Baptists try to excuse themselves in this way, "If we do not attend their meetings and send our children to their Sunday schools they will call us selfish." It does not matter what they call us, we are not condemned by their judgment, but if our heart condemns us, God is greater than our heart. And if we walk uprightly, we may expect to suffer persecution, &c., be called by many hard names. For "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." God's people should not be a selfish people but they should be a separate people. For "What concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?" "Therefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. "For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children in the light." Professors who are careless and unconcerned about their religious duties, and who are often engaging in that which is unbecoming to persons professing godliness, do not prove by their walk that they have been called out of darkness, but such a course does weaken, if it does not wholly break confidence in the reality of their christian profession. I believe that christians desire the friendship of all people, but when persons refuse to be their friends because they will not follow their pernicious ways, they are not taught in Scripture to seek their friendship in this way, but are commanded to turn away from such, and walk circumspectly, not as fools but as wise. Dear old brother and Elder J. Osborn says, "I appreciate Christians according to their gospel worth." And since this rule is in harmony with Scripture teaching, I feel that it is worthy of emulation, that it is not a song for christians to love and appreciate the company of those who so unmistakably bear in their body the marks of the Lord Jesus, more than they do those that are so cold and indifferent that the marks can hardly be seen. Paul to the Corinthians says, "We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us." We know that an earthen vessel could not be of use to any one were it never filled, therefore it would be unwise to thank the vessel for what may be put therein. But since God is pleased to fill it with many precious things for the good of his people, it becomes their servant, and is of great use unto them, and when they are enabled to realize its great value to themselves, they have much concern about the vessel, as well as what it contains, knowing that it is only earthen and very easily broken, therefore they use it with great care and tenderness, always striving to put it in a safe place, lest it be broken, and its usefulness destroyed. A brother once said to me, "O you should not make so much of your ministers; it will puff them up and their usefulness will be destroyed thereby, you should not count them worthy of more honor than the weaker members." I then felt that this was a mistaken idea, and I cannot feel otherwise yet, since Scripture contradicts such an argument. Paul to Timothy says, "Let the elders that rule well (not all elders, but those that rule well) be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in the word and doctrine." "And we beseech you to know them which labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you: And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake," says the Apostle. Then we cannot harm them by manifesting our sincere love and interest in them as ministers of Jesus. And I am persuaded that the faithful preacher of righteousness when enabled to understand that his brethren love and appreciate him for Jesus sake, is humbled thereby, and instead of destroying his usefulness, he is polished with meekness and his usefulness is increased. Ministers of the gospel have much to bear that weaker members know little of; their burdens are heavy and doubtless often grievous to be borne. Their countenance, which often expresses such deep and earnest anxiety of soul and depression of spirit, tells this story without hearing it from their lips. Those who are sorely persecuted and pressed down with weighty burdens, need more sympathy and encouragement than those who are not thus afflicted. "Bear ye one another's burdens," says Jesus, by the mouth of his servant, "and so fulfill the law of Christ." The united strength of the church in behalf of her pastor makes his burdens much lighter, and their negligence toward him makes them more weighty. The beloved Apostle tenderly exhorts his brethren to duty in plain and simple language: "My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but indeed and in truth. By this shall men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." We may secretly love an object, but others cannot judge us by such a love as this. But if God's people would be known as his followers their love must be made manifest one to another. The woman that anointed the feet of Jesus with precious ointment, washing them with her tears and wiping them with the hairs of her head, manifested her love for him by doing that which was in her heart to do. Paul loved his brethren and made his love for them manifest by serving them faithfully, warning them night and day with tears. They truly loved him and manifested their love for him in divers manners. Once upon a time when he was about to take leave of a company of his brethren, he kneeled down and prayed with them all. And they all wept sore and fell on his neck and kissed him. Again when he was about to leave them he shows that he was pained by their tears by saying, "What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart?" And since we are commanded by the word of God to love one another and to make that love manifest, it is possible that God's people are so restricted that a warm, zealous minister of the gospel dare not manifest his christian love for the people of God without placing himself in danger of being evil spoken of by some with whom we have taken sweet counsel, yea those whom we love in the Lord. Not that a christian loves such a spirit as this in self or in any other, for be assured that such a spirit cometh not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. But those who are thus deluded by the flesh Jude says, "save with fear, pulling them out of the fire: hating the garment spotted by the flesh." But if there be one among you who is called a brother, such as Paul describes in 2nd Timothy 3, from such an one turn away. And if there be one who is called a sister, so silly as is here described, put her from you also, and there will be no cause for such evil suspicious fears. For they arise from that principle which Solomon describes as being cruel as the grave, the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame. How cruel indeed is the grave, it shows mercy to none, but imprisons all which we put within its gloomy walls of darkness. One thus imprisoned is powerless, even if it be a living person. There is no way of escape save by Him who is above. It is even so with a child of God when such a spirit is prevailing in his heart, he is powerless, being dragged into gross darkness by his evil passion, and as coals of fire which had a most vehement flame, consume that which is perishable. Even so doth such a passion consume and burn up his peace of mind and soul, rendering its victim so miserable and wretched that it loses all pity for even the dearest idol of his heart, while unjust accusations rapidly flow from the corrupt fountain. But even though Satan be allowed to thus imprison a child of God, there is yet one way of escape. Jesus the only refuge, stands above the prison, ever able and willing to break the strongest bars, when his penitent ones call upon him in spirit and in truth. It is unfaithfulness in that child of God who sees his brother in error, and fails to strive to convert him from the error of his way. And though to do so may cost him many tears, feeling his own weakness in attempting to correct one whom he feels is his superior in the knowledge of God and godliness, yet we should always remember that we are all fallible creatures, the very strongest liable to err, and feeling our weakness and unworthiness does not relieve us of our obligations to God and our brethren. "As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men," but in a special manner watch over each other for good. Honor all men, love the brotherhood. Peace be to the brethren and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. In great weakness, I am I hope, your little sister.

SADIE D. LIVERMAN.

Columbia, S. C.

MARY PARKER.

The readers of the LANDMARK have known little of the wonderful history of this dear sister. For fifteen years she has been confined to the house, unable to walk, or stand, or lie down, until within a few weeks. Some time in May she became much worse. After some paroxysms of excessive pain she was able to lie down. Sister Rounsavell, of Warwick, N. Y., who had visited her twice before, went out there (to New Holland, Ohio) and stayed with her seven weeks. During that time she so attended to the ulcerous sores that they were all healed. She also undertook the apparently impossible task of discontinuing the use of morphine. The doctors had begun the use of that more than twenty years ago, and it had been continued from that time. It was supposed she would die from pain were it not for that. Sister Rounsavell, with a determination and courage that appears sublime, began that work of stopping the use of that drug, and persisted in her efforts; although physicians and all others assured her it would be impossible, and the afflicted sister herself made every possible resistance. But it was done; and now she does not even desire it. But the most wonderful of all is that she is now at the University Hospital in Philadelphia. A very serious internal tumor has developed, beside one on her limb. It seemed necessary that she should be at a hospital, and there was no prospect of help in Columbus. The physicians there recommended Philadelphia, which I had suggested, though hardly thinking it possible she could make the journey. But the dear sister who was with her had faith and courage equal to the occasion, and they arrived in Philadelphia at 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning, July 11th, after a journey of six hundred miles. I and some friends, one of them Dr. B. F. Coulter, of Philadelphia, met her, and she was taken to the hospital. She suffers but little pain now, and is very comfortable. The brethren and sisters visit her, and she enjoys their visits much. The visiting hours are from 3 to 4 o'clock p. m. on week days. A partial examination has been made. It is likely an operation will probably be performed after a while for each tumor, and it is hoped the result will be good. There is also some hope that she may be able to stand, and perhaps to walk. She seems to feel very thankful to the dear Lord for letting her come where she can receive such care, and the attention of skilful surgeons; but especially, where she can see the dear kindred in Christ.

The present expense at the hospital is seven dollars a week. It will probably be more after a while. I signed the paper for her admission. Those who wish to help in bearing these expenses can send their liberality to me at Southampton, Bucks county, Pa. I would like that any who may send me money on account of having read this would mention that fact.

Brother B. F. Coulter, M. D., of 1910 North 22d street, Philadelphia, sees her often. Any one who should be in Philadelphia and wants to know particularly about her can call on him. Those who have read his letters in the Signs of the Times will love to see him. I hope the readers of the LANDMARK may read some from him in that paper, among its other very good and comforting communications and editorials.

SILAS H. DURAND.

Brother Gold, please mention sister Mary Parker's book in connection with this letter. One dollar sent me. It is not called for much now.

Remarks :

Any one desiring to purchase her book, price $1, or to aid her in any way please send to Elder S. H. Durand, Southampton, Pa.

P. D. G.

ELDERS GOLD AND LESTER, DEAR BRETHREN :—I have had a mind to write a few lines of what I believe to be the dealings of the Lord with me, yet I feel so unworthy I do not feel that I can speak a word of comfort to the least of the saints, for I feel myself to be the least in my Father's house. And some times my great imperfections make me fear that I am not one at all. I come so short of living as I believe christians should live, it makes me to say, oh is there any one like me. I am going in my 24th year of life. Thirteen years I enjoyed myself, not thinking I had ever committed a sin, when for some cause I viewed myself a great sinner. I tried to pray but could not: I tried to reform my life and failed. I went on two years or more until the burden became so heavy I felt that I was one alone. My best friends were no longer friends. I thought I had some kind of a disease, and would soon die. I did not want to go to that awful and eternal destruction, which I thought was my portion. I would often go to some lonely place to beg the good Lord for mercy. I did not want any one to know that when I died that I was forever lost for my sins. One night when it seemed that I was fast sinking, I know not whether in sleep or not, I saw something like a little child dressed in white standing over me. I knew not what it meant. Neither do I know now or when that burden was removed, though I felt relieved the next day. I wanted to tell some one my feelings and what I had seen, when something would seem to say, it is no use, for it was all imagination; yet I did not feel as I did before. Being misled by false teachers I joined the Missionaries, and tried to be as faithful as I could, not feeling fit to be in any church, but desiring to obey my Saviour. Instead of giving glory and honor to the Lord, to whom it is due, I worshiped the beast. I soon had a dream which I was much troubled about at times, yet I knew not the meaning. I dreamed of being in a house high up from the ground. The way I went up was very narrow. When going up I saw a little band of the prettiest people I had ever seen. I thought they were dressed in white all just alike, and were singing. It was the most beautiful music I had ever heard. One said, "we're praising God." I know not whether I had the white robe on or not. I was not sitting with them but standing gazing on, rejoicing to see the little band. I staid with the Missionaries 8 years, yet did not believe all their preaching. Neither did they act or show the love for each other as I thought christians should. I can never tell half the trouble I went through. I would often have doubts and fears that I had never been led by the Spirit. Yet I could not throw away that little hope and get back the burden I once had, which I often tried to do. My hope was very small, yet I had never seen anything so large in this world that I would have exchanged it for if I could have done so, for what would it profit any one to gain the whole world and lose their own soul. Yet there is nothing that I have ever done or can ever do to save myself, for if I had to save myself I would be forever lost, for when I would do good sin is present. Then if I am saved it is a sinner saved by grace and grace alone. I had said, surely the Primitive Baptist is the true church, for I believed all others were wrong. I enjoyed the blessed privilege of hearing dear brother G. Bryan preach one night at brother S. Edwards' in January, 1893. I shall never be able to tell my feelings while he was preaching. And for several days afterward it seemed that he was preaching right to me all the time, and could tell my feelings better than I could myself; and I have never been troubled since about the true church. I believed every word he preached to be the truth. Also he and dear brother Adams both preached the 3rd day following at Lawyer Spring. I went. It was a feast to me to hear them preach, declaring the whole counsel of God — bringing glad tidings and good news from a far country; and meeting the little band praising God, and dressed in the white robe of righteousness, all alike, that I believe I saw in the dream. It seemed that I was not worthy (feeling so vile and sinful) to even see or hear as good people as I believed they were, but oh, how I wanted to be one among the little band, but could not. I rejoiced to see and hear them, but felt too unworthy to be where they were. I did not believe they would receive such an experience as mine. I also heard several other dear brethren preach. Every time I would think I would offer myself to the church for her to decide my case, which I thought perhaps would be non-fellowship; and could not have thought hard if they had, for I did not want to harm the church by any means. I did not want to deceive the people, neither be deceived myself. I had some dreams that were a consolation to me, such as, walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, and others I will not tell now. Brother Gold, it seemed like I stayed away just as long as I could. I had nowhere else to go. I went forward on Saturday before the 1st Sunday in January, '94, and told a few words of what I have written, and was received and baptized next day by brother J. F. Mills. O how glad I was to meet brother Mills on the bank of the liquid grave, to be buried with my Saviour beneath its yielding wave. That was a happy day with me, and also that night I was made to rejoice, and for a space of time could not move. For two days I did not think I would ever see any more trouble. What a sad mistake! It is a warfare now and has been all along. I feel that I have been of no use to the church; yet it seems that this life would not be worth living if I could not have a home with the people I love so dear. I want to live, die, and be buried with them. Brother Gold, I have written this only to relieve my mind. If the Lord had not a purpose in it I have done wrong. I see so many mistakes—so much imperfection in this I thought I would not send it. If you think it worth notice you can publish it, if not please lay it aside, and pray that I may be faithful. Yours in hope,

M. E. STEGALL.

Polkton, Anson Co., N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—The above is a sketch of the experience of a dear sister whom we have great evidence to believe has been made free from the law of sin and death, by the law of life in Christ; and yet she is in bondage, in a world of trouble all the time, only when the dear, kind and heavenly Father is pleased to give her renewed evidence of his love and mercy. Then she is enabled to rejoice in the joys of the salvation of the Lord. The Lord is a great deliverer, one who has and does, and in whom we trust will still deliver, and they that trust in him shall be as Mt. Zion, which cannot be removed. All things work together for good to them that love the Lord, to them who are the called according to his purpose. To Elder J. H. Puritoy, dear brother, when you preached at Jerusalem Wednesday before the 2nd Sunday in August, in conclusion you expressed a desire that the works of the Lord might be revived at that place, and that you would be glad to hear of it after you were gone. If you never met them again that you would be rejoiced to know that it was so. At their regular meeting Saturday and 2nd Sunday in August I was present, and while the church was in conference on Saturday, Mr. Thomas Brewer's wife, a lady whom you stayed with, came forward and related what she hoped to be the dealings of the Lord with her and was received. On Sunday a Mr. Mill's wife came forward and was received. Surely I felt that it was a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and that it was good to be there. If it is the will of the Lord to send you to this country again, I feel that I would be glad to meet you. Would love to hear from you. With unfeigned love to your wife (whom I met gladly), I remain your most unworthy little sister in hope, LOUISA A. EDWARDS.

DEAR MR. GOLD:—How unworthy one feels to write when their sins seem to be in front, and they can find nothing good in themselves. I have long desired to confess my feelings, and write a part of my former life, but have felt so sin-stained I would lay my pen aside, thinking perhaps it was wrong. When very young I joined the Free Will Baptist church. I didn't know what they believed. I only knew I wanted to be a christian—that was my desire from a child. I read the Bible every day, when able, and would try to pray to my Heavenly Father to direct me in the right way. I never heard a Primitive Baptist preach until about three years ago. I had been to their places of worship, but had never heard one preach. I had heard so many hard things about them I didn't care to hear them preach. I remember so well the first sermon I heard, how condemned I felt, but there was some comfort for me, if I did feel heavy hearted. I believed I loved the same Jesus that he preached. I became so dissatisfied I did not know what to do, and thought I had done wrong by not going to the church I had joined, but I had no desire to hear what I could not believe. Oh! Mr. Gold, how I longed for that comfort which Jesus can only give; how I longed to be like the Old Baptists that I had thought to be the most ignorant people in the world. I shall never forget the day when I believe Jesus relieved my burdened heart. I was bending over my dear little babe, whom I thought would soon be taken away from me for my disobedience, trying to pray to my heavenly Father to forgive my many sins and spare my child, if it was his holy will, when my feelings seemed to change all at once. How much relieved I felt I can never tell. I felt that faith had overbalanced my grief, and hope had filled my heart. How sweet the name of Jesus was and is to me. I have never doubted my Saviour since, but so often doubt myself. I have a desire to be with the people I love, but feel so unworthy. Mr. Gold, please remember me in your prayers. Your unworthy servant, MAMIE C. HOLLAND.

Falkland, N. C.

Remarks.

It would be a matter of comfort to you and others too, of the same precious faith, if you were added to the visible church in a gospel confession of what Jesus has done for you, and be baptized in his name, putting on Christ by a godly profession before witnesses. The answer of a good conscience is received in the obedience of faith. Acknowledge Jesus in all your way and he shall direct your steps.

P. D. G.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—You will find inclosed money order in part payment for the LANDMARK. Afflictions and other troubles in my family have been the main cause why I got so far behind. The LANDMARK comes regularly, and O, how bad I would feel to read it and know that I had not paid up. I could not sleep at night. I often doubt and tear whether I am a child of God, I am such a great sinner, and wonder how God's mercy reaches me, one who has trampled his mercies under my unhallowed feet; but while I doubt myself I never doubt Jesus. Yours in bonds of love, ELIZABETH CASEY.

Remarks.

How humble is this dear sister. There is such a difference between people—some so careful and tender, faithful and meek, while others become so careless and indifferent about their conduct.

P. D. G.

DEAR BROTHER AND SISTER FARMER:—I have failed to answer your last and very welcome letter up to this writing for the reason that I felt and knew that I had nothing to write that could possibly interest you. While I have written frequently for the "Signs" yet I know that the great and ever profound subjects upon which I have attempted to write have been so feebly discussed and presented that none of God's dear people could be in the least interested or instructed by what I have written. For that reason I often think I ought to cease to write, but the profoundly interesting truths presented in the sacred volume often so impress my mind that I greatly desire to talk to the dear saints about them. But after

I have written I am made to realize that they know greatly more upon and about those great subjects than I do. Therefore it is vanity in me to attempt to stir up their pure minds by calling up before them those great and wonderful truths. This thought often forcibly impresses itself upon my mind. That it perhaps is all vanity on my part when I attempt to call their attention to that subject which is infinitely higher and above all other subjects that have ever engrossed the attention of mortals. Were it not for the great subjects of the religion of our dear Redeemer this world would be a barren waste. But our glorious Lord hath said to his saints, "And a high way shall be there and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it, but it shall be for those, the wayfaring men, though fools shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor ravenous beast shall go up thereon. It shall not be found there, but the redeemed shall walk there." How often dear brother and sister I am made greatly to fear that I am one of those ravenous beasts that shall not go up thereon. Near sixty-three years since I made a public profession of the religion of our glorious Lord, but through all those years the vanities of earth have greatly engrossed my time and attention, and the vanities of earth have led me into the paths of folly. You know something of my public life, and can attest to the truths I have written. No lion shall be there nor ravenous beast shall be there. This is a fit and apt description of poor sin corrupted man.

That highway and that way presents our glorious Lord in his divinity and his humanity. This is a mystery that the beings of earth cannot fathom. Even an inspired apostle was made to say, "Great is the mystery of godliness." God was manifest in the flesh, but that mystery will be removed and made to shine out in all its glorious beauty and grandeur to the admiring gaze of all the saints when they are disrobed of mortality. Then they will see him as he is, and with their sainted voices attuned to the melodies of the skies, will with heavenly joy and delight speak forth in songs of praise and adoration the wonders that shine forth in his ever glorious character. Then the sweet chorus of redeeming love will heighten their joys with sweet remembrance that at his right hand there are joys evermore. O what vanity surround us all while here below. Vanity of vanities saith the preacher, all is vanity." Poor sin corrupted man, the creature of an hour, enslaved by passion and corrupted by power in his vanity, concludes that he by his wisdom and good works can attain an exalted place in that way of holiness, not knowing it is alone for those, the wayfaring man. For those who have no abiding city here below, but like Abraham seek a city which hath foundations whose Maker and builder is God. But how often they, like this poor ignorant one, mourn because of their ignorance of that shining way, and seek and pray to know more and more of the superlative glories that shine all along that Heavenly way.

But that way was fixed in infinite wisdom, and is that rock on which the church is built and being built, and is as enduring as eternity. All the clamor of poor apostate man can never add to its number or take from that number that was chosen in Christ Jesus before the world began. Although a vain world may regard those who are going up in that great high way as fools, yet the wisdom of this world is but folly when compared to the wisdom of those who know Jesus, whom to know is life eternal. Men of earth who are boasting of their mighty works point the finger of scorn and contempt at what they deem a feeble few who give God all the glory for the great plan of salvation and its glorious consummation. But in their folly they have failed to learn that only eight souls were saved in the ark who were a type of the elect of God, for they were saved from the foaming billows of that great flood which was a type of sin and the wrath of God against sin. They fail to know that Elijah, the prophet, said unto the people, I, even I, only remain a prophet of the Lord. But Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty, but their great number coupled with their zeal and loud prayers to their gods failed to bring down fire to consume their offering, while Elisha, the chosen servant of the Lord prays to his God and fire came down and consumed his offering, and licked up the water that was in the trenches. They seem to fail to know that our Lord whose only twelve apostles out of the vast multitude that then peopled the earth to go forth and preach his everlasting gospel, and he sent them out as sheep among wolves, I imagine that many of the modern revivalist often come to the conclusion that our Lord acted strangely in failing to hold great protracted meetings according to the modern plan, and by the power and influence of those meetings build up a big church and thereby overcome the Scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees and idolators. But the world by wisdom knoweth not God, and the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. The schools taught by men have never imparted a single spiritual truth to the redeemed and regenerated sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty, for he of God is made unto them wisdom, and they are not made experimentally the children of God by might or by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts. They are the wayfaring men, and they have as they journey towards the tomb the glorious gospel on which to feed, and they are clad with the garments of salvation, and when enjoying the rich feast of redeeming love presented to them in the glorious gospel, they rejoice in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh and in an ecstasy of delight they can appropriately say: "Happy art thou O Israel, a people saved by the Lord." To that people "the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, a good understanding have all they that do his commandments, his praise endureth forever."

To his great and all exalted name their chief desire is to give all the glory.

Affectionately yours,

H. Cox.

Ghent, Ky.,

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—Notice is hereby given that the Primitive Baptist church at Neuse, in Wake county, N. C., have by unanimous consent changed the time for holding their regular monthly meetings from the third to the second Sunday and Saturday before in each month Neuse meeting house being what is known as a free meeting house in which other denominations of the Protestant order have the right to worship and to organize, not conflicting with the Primitive Baptists. Therefore it is necessary to state that this change was made, and ratified by this church in conference on Saturday before the 3rd Sunday in August, 1891, in presence of and by the assent of the Trustees for said meeting house property.

JOHN R. ROBERTS, Mod.

JAMES A. TEMPLE, Clerk.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV.1.....No. 20.

WILSON, N. C., SEPT. 15, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

JONAH—REPENTANCE.

Brother M. M. Morris requests my view of Jonah 3: 9, 10:

"Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger that we perish not?"

"And God saw their works that they turned from their evil way: and God repented of the evil that he said he would do unto them: and he did it not."

The 9th verse contains words uttered by the king of Nineveh. The 10th verse contains the declaration of what God saw, namely that the Ninevites turned from their evil way, and God repented of the evil he had said he would do unto them, and he did it not. The difficulty with some appears to be in reconciling certain statements so as to be in harmony with God who is unchangeable, and who declares the end from the beginning. God said, Yet 40 days and Nineveh shall be overthrown, yet when he saw the works of the Ninevites, that they turned from their evil way, he repented of the evil he said he would do unto them, and he did it not. Now many hold that men's ways influence or change the mind and will of the Lord, or that there are conditions in salvation, and the neglect of the performance of these brings destruction, but their performance secures salvation. How is this matter? Jonah said in 4th chapter, 2d verse: "For I knew that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil." Is not that the character of God? When he sent Jonah to preach to the Ninevites, that fact itself is proof that he would show them mercy. He gave them space to repent which was proven in warning them. If he had not purposed mercy to them he would not have given them warning through Jonah. The repentance of the Ninevites was in turning away from their violent or evil works, and repenting before God, being humbled to an acknowledgement of their sin, and calling or crying mightily unto the Lord. God granted them repentance.

God saw (that is he accepted) their works they did in turning from their evil, and God repented of the evil, or turned from punishing them by overthrowing them, as he had said he would do unto them, and he did it not. In the legal dispensation God sends a warning of death to his people. It comes in power, and they are humbled to crying mightily to God, and turning away from their wicked works. Thus a change is wrought in them. Then he pardons them, and reveals the gospel unto them, or another dispensation of mercy and salvation. Hence the evil is removed—or an end is made of sin and destruction is hid. Jesus who is made sin for us is revealed as the bearer of our sin. He is exalted a prince and a Saviour, and hence repentance and the forgiveness of sins are preached in his name.

Jonah is a figure of Christ, as he was three days and three nights in the whale—the master of the deep, and type of death. When God raised Jonah out of the deep he went and preached the power of God in the resurrection or deliverance and raising Jonah from the belly of hell. Under the power of that preaching the Ninevites were granted repentance. Hence here is the change of administration of the Lord God shadowing forth the gospel.

There was no change in the purpose of God. But the Lord wrought a change in the Ninevites, and then when this change was manifested God showed his mercy openly, so that he repented of the evil he said he would do, and did it not. "Thou turnest man to destruction, and then sayest, return ye children of men."—Psalm 90:3. When we are condemned justly in our conscience, and the word of God comes in power "the soul that sins it shall die," and we are cast down to destruction, and are humbled and cry unto God; he delivers us out of all our trouble, or turns from his anger. There is no change or repentance in God as men repent. In God when men are blessed with a godly sorrow they loath their wicked works and repent of them, or turn away from them. God cannot do wrong, and hence cannot repent in that sense. But the cause of all true repentance in man is that Jesus was put to grief for our sins, and hence he is exalted a prince and Saviour to grant repentance unto Israel. When this is preached to men and they repent, God beholds, sees, or is pleased with their repentance, and turns away his fierce anger from us, or takes away the hand-writing of destruction from the wall that caused our distress. This is God's way of dealing with his people, not a change in his will caused by man's repentance, but the manifestation of his grace in causing that repentance and the removal of punishment due to man's sins, because God has found a ransom. When therefore we see man abased and turning towards God we feel that this is proof that there is mercy for that man.

How much above man God is! Jonah wanted Nineveh destroyed, and felt disgraced because his word had not been fulfilled as it appeared. It seemed to Jonah that he had been proven to be a false preacher. Nineveh was not overthrown as he had preached it would be. Now he wants to die. He watches to see results. He still attempts to justify himself in fleeing to Tarshish, because he said he knew God was merciful and would not destroy that city.

God answers him very mercifully. He raises up a gourd as a shadow over his head to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah was exceeding glad. God also prepared a worm to smite the gourd so it withered.

God also prepared a vehement east wind to beat on Jonah's head so he fainted and wished to die. Jonah said he did well to be angry unto death. But how merciful God is. Where was that false charity when Jonah was sorry that Nineveh was not destroyed? Look at his self-pity. How sorry he is for the gourd that withered on which he had bestowed no labor. Yet because it sheltered him he is mad because it withered. Should not God then have mercy on that great city?

Look at the use God makes of everything. He raises a gourd—he prepares a worm—he raises an east wind to beat furiously on Jonah's head. He teaches Jonah to profit. He works all things according to the counsel of his own will. He is of one mind and changes not; yet he works in different, yet not conflicting dispositions to accomplish his will.

The nature of man—even though he is a prophet and preacher—is shown in Jonah. We have this treasure in earthen vessels that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of us. P. D. G.

MELCHISEDEC.

Brother A. B. Shelton, of Texas, requests my view of Melchisedec.

"Now consider how great this man was." Heb. 7:4

There is no natural son of Adam that has received such notice as Melchisedec. Consider his character and history as the Holy Ghost has given it. First, consider his name and office. He was king of righteousness and king of peace by interpretation. This cannot be said of any natural man. King of righteousness is much more than to be a righteous king. King of peace is much more than to be a peaceable king. Priest of the Most High God, able to bless so great a man as Abraham was in the day of his triumphal return from the slaughter of kings, showing his great superiority over the priesthood of Aaron and the law that was given by Moses. His priesthood was one altogether of blessing, and it was after the order of endless life. No death appears in it, but it abides—continually rising, reigning above all bounds of sins, death, age, clime, nation, region, land or country. He himself is without father, mother or descent, beginning or ending, and thus ever liveth. How great and wonderful a man. This is the most perfect similitude of Christ as our eternal high priest.

Jesus as the eternal Son of God and the beginning of the creation of God, or the one created in the beginning, of course existed before he was manifest in the flesh. He is the Word that was made flesh and dwelt among us. He was before John, yet John was born of woman first. His body was in the likeness of sinful flesh, yet it was not sinful. Now Christ appeared in the Old Testament days or under the former dispensations under various types and emblems. Joshua saw him as captain of the host of the Lord, and fell before him in worship. The king Nebuchadnezzar saw him in a burning fiery furnace. Abraham saw him as king of righteousness and therefore king of peace, and Abraham was glad. Then this man Melchisedec is the Christ of the Old Testament appearing as reigning forever and ever, as priest after having offered for sins and hence ever living, without beginning or end, full of blessings of life forevermore.

How aptly this emblemizes Jesus our High Priest full of life and blessings, peace and love, righteousness and faith, salvation and joy, no death, no curse, forever and ever.

P. D. G.

BORN OF WATER AND OF THE SPIRIT.

"Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."—Jno. 3:5.

Elder Peter Corn requests me to give my understanding of the above scripture.

I will say in the outset that the text presents to our minds one of the most prominent features of the mystery of Godliness. "God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit." As it was in the manifestation of God in the flesh which was Jesus, who is also called Christ, so also is it in the manifestation of the children of God, the younger brethren, of whom he said, he was not ashamed to call them brethren. "Every Spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God." The children of God are manifested in the flesh as of the Spirit, and the vessels of mercy are designated by the treasure that is in them. The Spirit of the Son of God being sent into their hearts whereby they are revealed, and are sanctified unto it and it unto them, or they are set apart as belonging to Christ, and his Spirit is declared to belong to them. "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his," and "but we have the mind of Christ," and "God hath sent forth the Spirit His Son into your hearts." We should never lose sight of the fact that the work of salvation is a spiritual one, and must be understood in the light of the Spirit and not in that of the flesh, and that the children of God are spiritual both before and after their manifestation, and therefore their manifestation must be spiritual. The child of God being spiritual, and being spiritually manifested, must necessarily so partake of the Spirit, as to be as a production, itself spirit. The production in the new birth is Spirit, and the development is a vessel of mercy, therefore Jesus says, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is Spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again."

There are at least three prominent features of this subject presented in this immediate connection—the necessity for that which constitutes it and the manner of the new birth, and in that of the necessity for it there are two features, the latter of which presents the manner of it principally, which is the part that is directly under consideration at this time. "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." This is the first point of necessity, which brings forth the one thus born in such a manner and to such an extent as to enable him, or so as to place him in such a state or condition as that he can see the kingdom, but does not bring him into it nor does it enable him to so enter it as not to need another operation or development by which he shall be qualified and enabled to enter into the kingdom. This last operation implies a leading about and instructing in such a manner as to produce a growth in stature, in grace and in the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the one thus exercised is brought to full age, stature and understanding, and is thus qualified to enter into the kingdom and fully participate in and enjoy the functions of a citizen of the commonwealth of Zion. Being thus qualified he may, and it is his privilege and duty to become a member of the church or kingdom in its visible character, and to receive the ordinances thereof as a sign to himself and to the church that he is of that citizenship which is in Heaven, he having been born from above or from Heaven. It seems to me that one is born again or from above, and sees the kingdom of God, and knows it to be such, and yet does not know that he is a citizen of that kingdom, but he greatly desires to be, and to that end prays to God for mercy in the forgiveness of his sins, and is led by the Spirit in this exercise until he is fully taught the way of life and salvation, which constitutes the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, or the birth of water and of the Spirit, and being thus born, having revealed in him the renewing of the Holy Ghost, whereby he is renewed in the Spirit of his mind, he is brought into the possession and realization of a good and precious hope, and rejoices with joy unspeakable and full of glory. He does not now see the kingdom of God any more than at first, but believes to the saving of the soul, and enters into rest in a full assurance of a blessed state of immortality beyond, and after the dissolution of the earthly house of this tabernacle.

As intimated above, I regard this birth of water and the Spirit to mean the same as is meant by the Apostle when he speaks of the washing of regeneration, &c. He is setting forth to the believing child of God how or through what process he is manifestly saved, which is not by the regeneration or re-creation as developed in and by the resurrection of Christ, but by the washing, the cleansing efficacy of the work of regeneration by Christ, the effects of which are developed by this birth. The mystical character of that feature of this birth indicated by the expression, "Except a man be born again," is so closely allied to and connected with Christ in the great work of redemption, called the regeneration that it is shrouded in mystery to such an extent that it seems far more to be believed than comprehended, in fact this whole subject comes nothing short of a profound mystery, however that which applies more directly to the experience of the child of God seems to bring him nearer the light than those principles more fundamental. I doubt whether a child of God can give anything like a definite idea when he was born again, but his experience in the way of life furnishes him a general idea at least, as to when he was born of water and of the Spirit. One does not know when he was born of the flesh, and how can he know when he was born of the Spirit?

As water implies the idea of washing, cleansing, it is to my mind evident the same thought is reflected in regard to this birth as is embraced in other instances where washing is mentioned.

Isaiah refers to this work when he says, "When the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof by the Spirit of judgment and of burning, then he that is left in Zion and remaineth in Jerusalem shall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem."—Isaiah 4:3, 4. And by Paul when he says, "But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified."—1st. Cor. 6:11. And again, "Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word."—Eph. 5:25, 26.

This cleansing by washing is a matter of knowledge by faith in the Spirit, and not in the flesh, so as to rid the child of God of an ever present consciousness of sin and pollution in himself, that is in his flesh, but continually teaches him that he is vile and imperfect in the flesh, and holy and perfect in Christ Jesus.

Some good brethren strangely confound this birth with water baptism, and to maintain consistency would have to connect it also with that of the Holy Ghost, which would render that of the latter dependent upon that of the former, and thereby agree with the theory of Alexander Campbell, but they do not believe with him however they might appear to set forth his doctrine. Why not obviate this apparent difficulty by looking more carefully at the question that we may see, if we can, whether we have the matter revealed to us or whether we have simply adopted the opinion of some old father who himself never had given him the clear meaning of the text? Baptism is used to represent a burial and not a birth. Burial means to conceal, to put away out of sight—that which is dead, while birth means to make manifest or bring to view that which is alive. Buried with Christ by baptism into death that like as Christ was raised up by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. Our walk is not like as to His burial, but like as to his raising up. As he was raised up by the glory of the Father, even so by the glory of the Father should we walk. Some good brethren take the birth of water to refer to the natural birth, but that is spoken of as of the flesh and not as of water, besides we are not warranted in placing a natural thing as a condition to be performed before a spiritual thing can be done. Furthermore such a thing would prevent the salvation of all who die before being born of the flesh, or who though having lived yet die and are never thus born. We believe the necessity of the new birth applies as much to infants as it does to adults. I would again say that this expression "born of water and of the Spirit," means, it seems to me, the same as is meant in Titus 3:5, by the expression, "washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." Notice, we are not saved, as meant here, by the regeneration, but by the washing of it—by the cleansing effects of it through the operation of the Spirits by faith. Many of our brethren unthoughtedly so confound the term "regenerated," and "born again," that they use them interchangeably and thus destroy the true and relative meaning of each to the other. The regeneration of the people of God implies the same, to my mind, that re-creation does, or as created in Christ Jesus, and was accomplished by the life of Christ, consummated by his death and resurrection, and is developed by the Spirit, the work of which development is that which is called the new birth in all of its features. The great work of redemption in all of its fundamental character was wrought by and completed in Christ in and by his life, death resurrection and ascension, and through his intercession at the right hand of his Father, and according to the operation of the Spirit of holiness the efficacy of this great work is being revealed in the vessels of mercy, whereby they are taught the blessed truth that salvation is of and complete in Christ, and by virtue of Christ in them the hope of glory they are given exceeding great and precious promises of a better estate, even life forever more. The Spirit of the Son of God being sent into their hearts they receive the life of Christ in it by faith, and by faith are they enabled to see the kingdom, and are exercised by it through the leadings of the Spirit until they are fully taught the way of the regeneration and finally brought into the fellowship of Christ and his manifest children whereupon they become to love the brethren and desire to be with them. They have a mind to tell them what they have seen and heard—what the Lord has done for them, which relation is the declared evidence that they have been born of water and of the Spirit, and are qualified to enter the fellowship of the church and participate in its ordinances.

We often see those whom we believe to be "under conviction" as it is some times termed, but they have no hope, and though we have fellowship for them in the evidence of life, yet we can not baptize them. They are born again and see the kingdom—that salvation is of God, but they have not yet been taught that it is for them. When this is revealed they are born of water and of the Spirit, have a hope, and we are ready to baptize them, even as they are ready to be baptized. I have written briefly, yet I hope sufficiently for brethren Corn to get my limited understanding of this great mystery, and it so, the Lord have the praise.

P. G. L.

ASSOCIATIONAL

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Please state that the White Oak Primitive Baptist Association will be held, the Lord willing, at Newport, Carteret county, N. C., on Saturday, 3rd Sunday and Monday in October, 1894. Those coming from the South will change cars at Newberne on Friday evening for Newport. Those coming from the West will come on the A. & N. C. R. R. on same day. We hope to see a goodly number of our brethren, sisters and friends here at that time.

I. JONES, Mod.

L. H. Hardy, Clerk.
Newport, N. C. Sept. 3d.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—Please publish in LANDMARK that the Mayo Primitive Baptist Association will be held with the church at Sardis, commencing Friday before the third Sunday in October, 1894. Brethren coming from the North on the N. & W. R. R., will be met and cared for at Madison on Thursday evening. Sardis is near five miles south of Madison. Those coming from the East or South will be met Friday at 11 o'clock at Ellisboro depot on the Madison Branch R. R. one mile and a half from Sardis. Brethren and friends are cordially invited. Among whom we hope to see is Elder Gold.

W. A. GOCKLEY, Clerk.
August 31st, '94.

The first session of the Landmark Association, colored, will convene on Friday before the 2nd Sunday in October, and hold three days at Johnston's Station, on the A. & R. R. R., in Martin County, N. C. A general invitation is extended. We would be glad if a goodly number of our white brethren would visit us and instruct us how to carry on our business.

G. W. ROBBINS, Mod.

W. W. Lanier, Clerk.

UNION MEETING.

The next session of the Eastern Union will convene with the South Mattamuskeet Church at Mason Point meeting house, commencing Friday before the 5th Sunday in September, 1894. All brethren and friends are invited to attend. Elder D. W. Topping is chosen to preach the introductory, Elder J. T. Ambrossig, his alternate.

Yeatsville, N. C., Sept. 3d.

CORRECTION.

Philadelphia church is in Caldwell County, N. C., near the town of Lenoir. This is a correction of error in last issue.

The word "not" was accidentally omitted in Elder Armstrong's article in Sept. 1st number. The quotation is from John 4:3, 38th line, page 470, and reads, "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus is come in the flesh, is of God." It should be "is not of God."

NOTICE.

Every one visiting the Landmark Colored Association, will call for reduced fare between Wilson and Weldon over all branches. Tickets will be on sale October 11. Round trip tickets good till 15.

OBITUARIES.

JAMES R. PARKER.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Please publish the obituary of Elder James R. Parker, who departed this life July 20th, 1894. Elder Parker was born January 7th, 1805. He was twice married. He was married the first time March 22d, 1827, to Charity E. Stevens, by whom he had twelve children, ten sons and two daughters, six of whom are now living. He was married the second time May 18th, 1865, to Edith Herring, with whom he lived peaceably and lovingly till he was taken away. He united with the Primitive Baptist Church at Friendship Meeting House, in Wayne county, about sixty years ago. He served the church as deacon for some years, after which he was ordained to the work of the gospel ministry, which office he filled in faithfulness so long as his mind and strength would permit. During the latter part of Elder Parker's life he became unable to travel among the churches to a great extent, and seldom tried to preach at his own church, but the doctrine of salvation by the grace of God was the theme of his soul. He was indeed, as saith the Scriptures, sober, just and temperate. He was a devoted husband, a kind and affectionate father and a good neighbor, but he has served his generation and now sleeps with the fathers, awaiting the resurrection of the dead, when he, together with all the redeemed of the Lord, shall awake with Christ's likeness and be satisfied. Elder Parker's stay on earth was 89 years, 6 months and 13 days. He leaves behind him to mourn his departure an aged widow, who was to him indeed an affectionate and devoted wife, his six surviving children, besides other relatives and many friends, upon whom we crave the continued blessings of our heavenly father.

J. R. ROBERTS.

P. S.—We are unable to state the date in which Elder Parker united with the church, or how long he served as deacon, or the date in which he was ordained to the work of the ministry, as the original record of these things has been misplaced or destroyed.

J. R. R.

Goldsboro, N. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

ISAAC JONES.

Little River Association.
Cross Roads.....	Monday
Memorial.....	Tuesday
Aycock's.....	Wednesday
Wilson.....	Thursday
Upper Town Creek.....	Friday
Thence to Kehukee Association.
Cross Roads.....	Tuesday
Flat Swamp.....	Wednesday
Briery Swamp.....	Thursday
Great Swamp.....	Friday
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
Galloway.....	Tuesday after
Blount's Creek.....	Wednesday
Sandy Grove.....	Thursday
Bethel.....	Friday
He will need conveyance.

L. H. HARDY.

LaGrange.....	October 2
Mewborns.....	3
Meadow.....	4
Autry's Creek.....	5
Thence to Kehukee Asso.
Tarbora.....	9
Little Creek.....	10
Great Swamp.....	11
Red Banks.....	12
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
He will need conveyance.

J. A. BURCH.

Willow Spring.....	Wednesday before 5th sunday in September.
Middle Creek.....	Thursday
Thence to Little River Association.
Cross Roads.....	Monday
Memorial.....	Tuesday
Aycock's.....	Wednesday
Wilson.....	Thursday
Upper Town Creek.....	Friday
Thence to Kehukee Asso.
Old Town Creek.....	Tuesday
Little Creek.....	Wednesday
Great Swamp.....	Thursday
Red Banks.....	Friday
Thence to Contentnea Asso.
Galloways.....	Tuesday after
Blount's Creek.....	Wednesday
Sandy Grove.....	Thursday
Bethel.....	Friday
Thence to White Oak Asso.
LaGrange.....	Tuesday after
Mewborns.....	Wednesday
Nahunta.....	Thursday
Thence to Black Creek Asso.
He will need conveyance.
Elder Harris will accompany me as far as the Kehukee Association.

W. B. STRICKLAND & JOSEPH STATON

New Hope, Monday after 4th Sunday in Sept.
 Hannah's Creek..... Tuesday
 Rehoboth..... Wednesday
 Clement..... Thursday
 Thence to the Little River Association.
 Smithfield..... Sunday night
 Union..... Monday after 5th Sunday
 Cross Roads..... Tuesday
 Memorial..... Wednesday
 Nahunta..... Thursday
 White Oak..... Friday

W. C. JONES.

Oak Grove..... September 26
 Middle Creek..... 27
 Thence to Little River Asso.
 Neuse..... October 1
 Cedar Grove..... 2
 Dutchville..... 3
 Camp Creek..... 4
 Tar River..... 5
 Surf..... 6 & 7
 Roxboro..... 8
 Shiloh..... 9
 Storie's Creek..... 10
 Flat River..... 11
 Bullock's Academy..... 12
 Mt. Lebanon..... 13
 Eno..... 14
 Durham..... at night
 Whitfield's School House..... 15
 Ray's School House..... 16
 Some one will please meet him at Apex,
 Sept. 26. He will need conveyance.

J. S. DAMERON.

Gilliams..... Monday after 4th Sun. in Sept.
 McRay's..... Tuesday
 Harmony..... Wednesday
 Whitfield's School House..... Thursday
 Durham..... Friday
 Eno..... Saturday
 Dutchville..... 5th Sunday
 Cedar Grove..... Monday
 Neuse..... Tuesday
 Salem..... Wednesday
 Upper Black Creek..... Thursday
 Wilson..... Friday
 Thence to Kehukee Asso.
 Lawrence's..... Tuesday
 Conoh..... Wednesday
 Hamilton..... At night
 Flat Swamp..... Thursday
 Great Swamp..... Friday
 Thence to Contentnea Asso.
 Tarboro..... Tuesday
 Falls..... Wednesday
 Nashville..... At night
 Castalia..... Thursday
 Hickory Rock..... Friday
 Travel Saturday
 Shoo-Fiv..... 3rd Sunday
 Camp Creek..... Monday
 Tar River..... Tuesday
 Flat River..... Wednesday
 Roxboro..... Thursday
 Shiloh..... Friday
 Storie's Creek..... Saturday
 Wheelers..... 4th Sunday
 Prospect Hill..... Monday

Lynch's Creek..... Tuesday
 Arbor..... Wednesday
 Pleasant Grove..... Thursday

J. E. ADAMS.

Bethany, Anson co., N. C..... Tuesday and Wednesday after 5th Sunday in September.
 Fyson's School House..... Thursday
 Thence to Bear Creek Association at Lawyer's Spring.
 High Hill..... Tuesday after Thence to Cool Spring Association at Cool
 Spring Church, S. C.
 Mill Church, Anderson co., S. C..... 3d Sat.
 Gill's Creek, near Columbia, S. C..... Tues'day and Wednesday
 Sumpter, S. C..... Thursday night after.
 Mt. Pleasant, S. C..... 4th Sat. & Sun.
 Feathery Bay..... Tuesday after Brother Bufkin will please meet me at Fair
 Bluff on Monday.
 Sanford..... Tuesday night after
 Simpson's Creek..... Wednesday
 Then to Mill Branch Association.

J. H. PURIFOY.

Roxboro..... Saturday and 3d Sunday in Sept.
 Surf..... Monday
 Shiloh..... Tuesday
 Danville..... Wednesday Sept. 19th
 Cane Creek..... Thursday, Sept. 20th
 Mill..... Friday, Sept. 21st
 Malmalson..... Saturday, Sept. 22d
 Banister..... Sunday, Sept. 23d
 White Thorn..... Monday, Sept. 24th
 Weatherford..... Tuesday, Sept. 25th
 Union..... Wednesday, Sept. 26th
 Galilee..... Thursday, Sept. 27th
 Strawberry..... Friday, Sept. 28th
 Mt. Arrarat, Saturday and Sunday Sept. 29-30

His wife accompanies him. Please meet and convey them.

THOMAS BELL.

Simpson Creek..... October 4th
 Mt. Pleasant..... October 6th and 7th
 Mill Creek..... October 9th and 10th Thence to Cool Springs.
 Columbia..... October 16th

ELDER F. A. CHICK.

Wilson..... Tuesday night
 Wilson..... Wednesday, Sept. 28th
 Goldsboro..... Thursday, Sept. 27th
 Thence to Little River Association.
 Beulah..... Oct. 2nd
 Scotts..... Wednesday Oct. 3rd
 J. F. Farmers' residence..... Wednesday night
 Wilson..... Thursday night
 Moores..... Friday
 Thence to the Kehukee Association.
 Tarboro..... Tuesday after
 Old Town Creek..... Wednesday
 Little Creek..... Thursday
 Great Swamp..... Friday
 Thence to the Contentnea Association.
 He will need conveyance.

R. HUTCHINS

Wolf Island.....Mon. after 3d Sun. in Oct
 Pleasant Grove.....Tuesday
 Arbor.....Wednesday
 Lynch's Creek.....Thursday
 Wheeler's.....Friday
 Durham.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Whitfield's School House, Sunday at 4 o'clock
 Oak Grove.....Monday
 Willow Spring.....Tuesday
 Sandy Grove.....Wednesday
 Bethel.....Thursday
 New Hope.....Friday
 Black River.....Saturday
 Bethsaida.....1st Sun. in Nov.
 Hannah's Creek.....Monday
 Hickory Grove.....Tuesday
 Seven Mile.....Wednesday

He will go from there to Clinton, and Thursday travels from there to Duplin Roads,
 Brother Cavemaugh's.....Friday
 Cypre's Creek.....Sat. and 2d Sun.
 Old Maple Hill.....Monday
 Bay.....Tuesday
 Stump Sound.....Wednesday
 Yopps.....Thursday
 Rest.....Friday
 Ward's Will.....Sat. and 3d Sun.
 North East.....Monday
 Fouth West.....Tuesday
 Black Swamp.....Wednesday
 Sand Hill.....Thursday
 Muddy Creek.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Goldsborough at 12 o'clock.....Monday
 Chapel.....Tuesday
 Cross Roads.....Wednesday
 Union.....Thursday
 Pine Level.....Friday
 Smithfield.....1st Sat. and Sun. in Dec.
 Clements.....Monday
 Rehoboth.....Tuesday
 Fellowship.....Wednesday
 Middle Creek.....Thursday
 Neuse.....Friday
 Cedar Grove.....Saturday
 Dutchville.....2d Sunday
 Camp Creek.....Monday
 Tar River.....Tuesday
 Surls.....Wednesday
 Flat River.....Thursday
 Stories Creek.....Friday
 Roxboro.....Sat. and 3d Sun.
 Ebenezer.....Monday
 Prospect Hill.....Tuesday
 Country Line.....Wednesday
 Lick Fork.....Thursday
 Dan River.....Friday
 Good Will.....Saturday
 Ridgeway.....4th Sunday

Will some brother carry him from Wheelers to the depot.

ISAAC JONES.

ELLIS FAUCETTE AND WESLEY HEN-DERSON, COL'D.

Jonah Williams Meeting House, Tuesday after 1st Sunday in October,
 Londons (near Wilson).....Wednesday
 Thence to Landmark Association.

Will brother Williams or some one meet them at Goldsboro on Monday after 1st Sunday in October.

GEORGE W. GORE, OF S. C.

Little River Association.
 Beulah.....Monday after Healthy Plains.....Tuesday
 Wilson.....Wednesday
 Pleasant Hill.....Thursday
 Lower Town Creek.....Friday
 Thence to Keltukee Association,
 Cross Roads.....Tuesday
 Flat Swamp.....Wednesday
 Briery Swamp.....Thursday
 Great Swamp.....Friday
 Thence to Contentnea Association,
 Galloway.....Tuesday after
 Blounts Creek.....Wednesday
 Sand Hill.....Thursday
 Bethel.....Friday
 Thence to White Oak Association,
 Hadnot's Creek.....Tuesday after
 North East.....Wednesday
 Ward's Will.....Thursday
 Yopps.....Friday
 Stump Sound.....Saturday and Sunday
 Bay Mead School House.....Monday
 Wilmington.....Tuesday
 Bro. B. H. Herrison expects to accompany Elder Gore.

They will need conveyances

JESSE BROWN.

Cool Spring Association, at Cool Spring on the 12th, 13th, and 14th of October, 1894.

Mill Creek.....Tuesday, 16th
 Gill's Creek.....Thursday, 18th
 Mt. Pleasant, Saturday, 3d Sunday, 20th, 21st
 Simpson's Creek.....Tuesday, 23d

Will some one meet me at the nearest depot.

Pee Dee.....Thursday, 25th
 Pleasant Hill.....Sat. and Sun. 27th and 28th
 Bethel.....Tuesday, 30th
 Pireway.....Wednesday, 31st
 Mill Branch.....Thursday, Nov. 1st
 Wilmington.....Friday night, 2nd
 Stump Sound.....Sat. and Sun. 3d, 4th
 Bay Meeting House.....Monday, 5th
 Southwest.....Tuesday, 6th
 Muddy Creek.....Wednesday, 7th
 Hornet.....Saturday, 10th

Will some one meet me in Clinton on Friday evening, the 9th.

Seven Mile.....Sunday, 11th
 Reedy Prong.....Monday, 12th
 Barb's Chapel.....Tuesday, 13th
 Mingo.....Wednesday, 14th
 Black River.....Thursday, 15th
 Bethany.....Friday, 16th
 Smithfield.....Saturday, 17th
 Little Creek.....Sunday, 18th
 Clement.....Monday, 19th
 Rehoboth.....Tuesday, 20th
 Fellowship.....Wednesday, 21st
 Middle Creek.....Thursday, 22d
 Raleigh.....Friday, 23d
 Oak Grove.....Sat. and Sun. 24th, and 25th
 Durham.....Monday, 26th
 Randleman, Randolph Co., Tues. night, 27th
 Central Falls.....Wed. night, 28th

He will need conveyance.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 8 1894.	No. 23 Daily		No. 41 Daily	No. 46 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 54	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20
Ar Tarboro	2 40
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv Wilson	2 05	11 01
Lv Selma	2 53
Lv Fayetteville	4 35	12 57
Ar Florence	7 25	3 00
	No. 47 Daily
Lv Wilson	2 18	9 35
Lv Goldsboro	3 05	7 27
Lv Magnolia	4 16	7 29
Ar Wilmington	5 50	10 00
	A. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 8, 1894.	No. 25 Daily		No. 36 Daily	No. 39 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 33
Lv Fayetteville	10 45	6 30
Lv Selma	12 05
Ar Wilson	1 00	12 27
	No. 48 Daily
Lv Wilmington	9 00	7 00
Lv Magnolia	10 40	8 31
Lv Goldsboro	11 55	9 40
Ar Wilson	12 40	10 27
	No. 49 Daily
Lv Wilson	1 10	12 27	10 32
Ar Rocky Mt.	2 15	12 05	11 15
Ar Tarboro	2 47
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt.	2 11	12 05
Ar Weldon	3 10	12 05
	P. M.		A. M.

1 Daily except Monday. 2 Daily except Sunday.

*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 2 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 5 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinston, 2 20 a. m., Greenville 3 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 20 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington Branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Perdue 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro

8 30; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Perdue 7 00 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 30 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 25 p. m.

Train on Midland & C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 55 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 00 a. m., Nashville 8 15 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 40 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 8 00 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 00 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 10 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 28 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth at Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. N. F. DIVINE,

General Sup't
J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts. Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00. Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25 Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.
In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order
Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address
J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilmington, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 18th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 16th, 1894, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.
The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 15, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED.
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13960/t5t75252z / Public Domain

A N. EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGO, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B., and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexton, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Claxton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

Get an agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SON,

30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.
They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.
P. D. GOLD.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
8 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	8 20 a m
8 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 27 a m
3 12 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
1 47 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 43 a m
12 59 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	2 15 p m
12 52 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	8 55 p m
12 00 p m	Lv.....Stokely.....Lv	3 45 p m
11 42 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pot. - W. Cove. Ar	4 20 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pot. - W. Cove. Lv	4 33 p m
11 00 p m	Lv.....Furq. Hill.....Lv	5 04 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	5 47 p m
No 3		No 4.
5 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	6 25 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Macon.....Lv	7 37 a m
6 05 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	8 17 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	9 18 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No. 16
Mixed		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday.		Sunday
8 55 p m	Ar.....Rainscut.....Lv	6 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8 40 a m
3 00 p m	Lv.....Green Park.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No. 16
Mixed		Mixed
Daily Ex		Daily ex
Sunday		Sunday
2 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	7 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokely.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' BOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1858. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at Elm City, Wilson Co, N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold, WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

OCTOBER 1, 1894.

NO. 22

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina

P. D. GOLD, Editor

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print. Wilson, N. C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love.

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been received please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY MADE SURE.

In Deuteronomy 23 : 2, 3 we have the following :

"A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord : even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the Lord."

"An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord : even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the Lord forever."

Here are things which were impossible under the old covenant, and all the priests of Israel could not change it. It is a law made by the great Lawgiver and by him delivered unto the children of Israel through Moses, his servant. There never was a power in Israel that could repeal any part of that law nor add anything to it. It was given by the Legislator of the kingdom of glory. We notice that in all the government of Israel there never sat a legislature, congress, parliament nor law-making power of any other name, and the kings had no authority to decree or legislate. All they had any authority to do was to execute the law that God gave to Moses on the mount. Here we see that there was no process of law by which the above prohibiting acts could be made void. Therefore a bastard was banished from the congregation of the Lord until his tenth generation. It appears (according to Arminianism) that a good long line of innocent people were punished for a single sin which took place before the first one was born. Was God unjust in this? He made the law. Moses is not responsible for it, only he must deliver it just as it is handed to him from the mouth of God.

There are men now who teach the law for righteousness, or they claim to teach it, who are bastards and cut off by the law. The above commandments were as good and as strong as any point in the law, and were just as lasting. If the ten commandments govern the church to-day then this bastard commandment is yet of full force. If it is necessary that one should keep those ten commandments in order to be saved it is also necessary that a child should so manage as to not be born a bastard, not only that he himself should be saved, but for the sake of his children, even ten generations off, that they also may be brought in the means of salvation. Who will say that a bastard child is in any wise responsible for being born out of wedlock, and yet by the law of Israel he is cut off from the congregation of the Lord for something he could in no wise hinder. You people (especially Primitive Baptists) who want to make excuses for God and try to excuse him or bring him within the limits of legal punishment by your own judgments, how is this? How shall I understand it?

Who was to blame for Ishmael's birth? Surely not the boy, yet it was the boy who was banished from Abraham's estate and not allowed to be an heir; no, not enough soil to set his feet on. He was part Abrahamic and part Egyptian, but every part a slave, though his father was free because his mother was a bondwoman. He was a bastard, and could not at that time enter into the congregation of the Lord. Ishmael is that same little mulatto boy yet, and he hates the promised child yet. He loves his mother's tongue, but wants his father's inheritance, but Isaac got it and he holds it. He was the promised seed, the lawful heir that was born of the free, virtuous woman, though she was somewhat hasty at times, and her haste brought trouble on her house, and raised up an enemy to her lawful seed.

I have often thought if the Old School Baptists did not sometimes get in a hurry and herself commit adultery and bring forth a child that never could speak the pure language of Canaan, why are there so many Baptist "churches" in the world today, and why is it that they speak the mother tongue only in a very little part? Something like this, "And their children spake half in the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak in the Jews' language, but according to the language of each people."—Nehemiah 13:24. We notice that this class could speak half Ashdod, but could not speak the Jews' language at all only as it was according to the language of both people. Just the way. Every time the Old Baptists have tried to soften down and leave off to defend the truth and contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints some one or other of the Baptist denominations have been born and we have had to do like Sarah, declare that this new child shall not be heir with us or the promised seed, and thus exclude them from our fellowship. At such times they have set up housekeeping for themselves and legalized in themselves to commit adultery with the Arminian world, thus to continue to produce multitudes of bastards like themselves and to thus identify themselves, both by conduct and language, with the daughters of the whore of Babylon. Oh how necessary for the church to be virtuous! Our wise Brother could see these things and therefore said, "Who can find a virtuous woman? Her price is far above rubies." Shall these bastards enter into the congregation of the Lord? Will their tenth generation ever come when every son of them is a bastard? Yet they may enter. How, as partaking and believing this bastard doctrine? No, he, so far as I know, may be one of God's chosen few, and if so the gracious Lord will teach him the falsehood of that doctrine by which he was begotten into that feigned faith and turn him from it unto the true faith and he will be a legitimate child, born of God and of the Holy City, the New Jerusalem that came down from God out of heaven. Is this possible? No, it is sure as the covenant with David, and as the redemption by our Lord Jesus Christ. There are no bastards in that holy city; they cannot enter there. One may be a bastard in nature, but he cannot be in grace. The holy city is not a harlot and never partakes of Arminianism. We are weak and parley with the flesh. Sometimes brethren and sisters turn out to Sunday Schools and their picnics and other meetings of the same stripe, and you can hear them say, "Well, my children are young folks and they want to go to be in company, and if they don't go they won't be thought anything of," etc.

Thus we commit adultery with the world. Don't want to do that? Oh, no, of course not, but you are doing it just the same. Where is that old patriotic christian spirit that adorned our fathers and enabled them to stand the test of the fire, the lion's den, the rock, the flaying knife and every other piece of persecuting machinery that could be invented by men and devils before they would commit adultery with idolatry all the days that was offered to them in the name of religion, the religion of Jesus Christ. Brethren while I feel compelled to fight this popular-seeking spirit I have children who have minds just like yours and who try me on these things, and I have to confess that I am not always faithful in deed, but I am in advice; yet I should see this advice carried out.

I did not intend to say so much on this one point for I especially meant to talk something of Moab and must try to do so for therein is the way made sure.

Moab was a bastard, a son of Lot, by his daughter. This excluded him from the congregation of the Lord unto his tenth generation. Then when Israel was going from Egypt to Canaan Moab would not let them pass through his coast and besides he laid snares for Israel to commit adultery with his lewd daughters, and hence the time was so extended beyond the limits of his bastardy that it cut him off forever from the congregation of the Lord. This was the power of a carnal commandment or a commandment to govern national Israel in all their generations. But do we ever see a Moabite enter into the holy congregation? Yes. Ruth, the Moabitess, enters in. How? By the carnal commandment? No, that was it that cut her off. She could not enter that way. She must be perfectly healthy and sound; that is, she must be born according to the law and be a law-abiding woman, or she could not enter in by the law. She enters in very differently. She marries into this congregation; one who is in the congregation goes out and carries her in; his love reaches out to her, and she loves him. His name is Mahlon (sickness), therefore she enters in by affliction. Thus she is entirely weaned (through the love of her husband) from the sinful ways of bastard Moab, her natural father. She becomes wedded to poor afflicted Naomi through the same affliction, and not only to Naomi but to her religion as well. No persuasion will entice her to turn back. The life of a widow, poverty and everything discouraging stares her in the face, her mother-in-law persuades her, but no, "thy people, thy country, thy God are mine," and there is no separation this side of death. What love is this? There is no legal commandment there. Keeping of the law will never so unite two as these were united. Love, never-dying love, is the connecting link. There is nothing possible about this but sure. Impossible by nature and according to all law given to men, but made sure through the pure law of love.

We are all bastards as sinners. Our mother violated the holy commandment and became a sinner, thus she committed adultery with the devil (not carnally, as with man, but in spirit as believing him instead of God) thus bringing all her posterity under bondage to sin and death, and according to all justice forever cutting them out from the holy presence of God, and making it utterly impossible for man ever to approach unto the salvation of God. As an evidence of this we see God fix the cherubim and the flaming sword which turns every way to keep the way of the tree of life lest man should take, eat and live forever. Thus man is forever shut out and the law seals him on the outside so that even a Saul of Tarsus with all his righteousness can never enter there. How sure has God sealed this way up to man, and how sure man has turned his back on the tree of life. It is just as impossible for us to return to that tree as it was for Satan to become an angel of righteousness in the kingdom of glory.

But how glorious! Jesus loves this wicked, adulterous person, who, by law, is excluded forever from the congregation of the saints. He loves her. His love reaches out unto, into her, and brings her in full of love to him. He was much afflicted, and she is much afflicted too. They are united in every way, only he is not a sinner, but was made sin for her that she should be made the righteousness of God in him, thus they are united in sin and in righteousness and both afflicted. When Ruth reaches the good land it is the beginning of harvest, the land that was a place of famine a few years ago has bloomed and yielded fruit, she could not come in a better time. She is poor; but the land is rich. Her husband (sickness) is dead; she left him in her own native land and came away poor. She has, through her acquaintance and love and marriage to this husband (sickness) acquired an estate in this rich land, and she has a near kindred here. She does not know this; it is not this that has induced her to leave Moab, but love is the cause. Boaz meets her and acknowledges her relation. "Daughter" is the word of comfort that he speaks. What could make her feel more at home than to be thus recognized by the master of the field in which she has come to glean. Being humble, she is encouraged and strengthened and finally she marries this rich man with all his fullness, and is just as rich as he is. What a glorious change to her.

However poor we are and however afflicted we may be our Jesus is rich. He was afflicted and we learn him through affliction. He appears to us in love and mercy and joy. Fullness and a happy union with Christ takes the place of all our affliction and poverty. This Christ has done everything for us that was required in the law. The law now has no demands on us. We could not enter that way, but now he comes and reveals to us his life, sufferings, death, resurrection and ascension all for us, the law gives way and his righteousness covers us and we are hid; nothing can be seen but his righteousness. One stands above us and cries out, "Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin; blessed is the man whose iniquity is covered." Welcome voice this that reaches down into our hearts and makes us leap for joy, as did John Baptist in the womb of his mother at the salutation of Mary. What is this that has taken place with us! It is the voice of my beloved speaking unto me saying, "I am thine and thou art mine." Oh how glorious is this news! Taken out of the dirt and filth of adulterous, bastard Moab and so purged and cleansed in the blood of our blessed Jesus as now to be made fit to dwell with him. It is not to our choice now what we will do, for Jesus our Redeemer comes and takes possession of his property, and there is no one to object since he has removed every former owner and intruder, cancelled all spurious titles, and now possesses his child without opposition. We are now as rich as he, for all that he has is ours.

That which was morally impossible has been fully accomplished in Christ Jesus our Lord, and we have entered into the congregation of the Lord to go out no more forever.

Yours in this blessed hope,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

TOTAL DEPRAVITY.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST:—I feel impressed to offer to the kind consideration of the readers of the LANDMARK and the Primitive Baptists everywhere, a few thoughts on "Total Depravity." The truth of this subject is much scorned at to-day by the religious (Arminian) world. Jesus' name is the most popular name used among the "Arminian world," yet they hate his doctrine. They hate the doctrine that He and his disciples taught. They hate yes to-day the same doctrine that Jesus and the Apostles and God's people in all ages of the world have taught.

Let us examine and see what doctrines and practices distinguished Christ's church all along the line! Let us see if we as "Primitive Baptists" stand in line with the Apostles and Prophets adhering to the same doctrine and practice and with the true church all along the line! We must keep in line with the Apostles and Prophets. We should not remove the ancient landmarks which our fathers have set.

We love to hear God's servants teach and preach "Total Depravity," eternal, personal and unconditional election, final preservation and kindred points of doctrine. Lest I digress from the subject under consideration I will endeavor in my weakness to offer a few thoughts. In order to investigate a subject of this kind we must leave off carnal reason. For the world by wisdom (carnal) knows not God. The question, is man (whole human family in a state of nature) totally depraved? "God said, let us make man in our image, after our likeness. So God made man, male and female created he them:" Gen. 1:26-27. We learn from the same book that God gave to man a law. We see man transgressed God's law, and in this he became a sinner. Sin is the transgression of the law. The head became depraved or corrupted. Adam our federal head became corrupted or depraved. Well then if our first parents became corrupted or depraved their posterity is depraved also. One scripture says, "That beasts and creeping things bring after their kind." The same book says, "That the herb brings seed after its kind. It then follows as a result that if the fountain head is corrupt the stream is corrupt also. We see in a natural stream of water that it will not rise above its head. We think we have proven that our head (Adam) became corrupted or depraved. Then God drove them from the garden and placed a cherubim and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. We see in the last paragraph of the 3rd chapter of Gen., that cherubim and a flaming sword were placed there to keep the way of the tree of life, lest he put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life and eat and live forever. There had been no conception as we have any account of before the transgression.

But after the transgression or our first parents became corrupted, or totally depraved, Eve conceived and brought forth children. If the fountain be corrupt the whole stream of posterity is corrupt also. Hear what David says, "Behold I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." Psalm 5: 1-5. David says again, "The wicked are estranged from their mother's womb, they go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies." Psalm 58: 3. The above language embraces the whole human family in a state of nature, or in an unregenerated state. The Apostle Paul says, "There is none understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, there is none that doeth good, no not one." Says one: can't they do some good if they will? Paul says again, "Their throat is an open sepulcher, whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness, with their tongues they have used deceit, the poison of asps is under their lips. Their feet are swift to shed blood, and the way of peace they have not known. There is no fear of God before their eyes." One scripture says, "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean," Not one. The good book says again, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for (because) they are foolishness to him, neither can he know them for they are spiritually discerned." Paul says again, "That the carnal mind is enmity against God, not subject to his law, neither indeed can be."

One of the prophets says, that the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked, and who can know it. Man in a state of nature is totally depraved. Let us sum it all up in a nut-shell and ascertain to a certainty, "The Total Depravity" of man in a state of nature. His carnal mind is enmity against God, not subject to his law, neither indeed can be. His mouth is full of cursing. His tongue has used deceit. The poison of asps is under his lips. His throat is an open sepulcher. His heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked, and who can know it. His feet are swift to shed blood. He has not known the way of peace. There is no fear of God before his eyes. One scripture says there is no soundness in man. He is so contaminated with sin that he is full of wounds and bruises and putrifying sores from the sole of the foot even unto the head. Yea there is no soundness in him. Then surely man in a state of nature is totally depraved.

There are a great many going about using, in substance, the language of the serpent, man is not as dead as you might suppose. The serpent said to mother Eve, "Ye shall not surely die."

They are going about saying that we are instrumental in God's hands to regenerate dead sinners. Some say that they are not dead, but only took the wrong road at the forks of accountability. David says I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me. David was no worse than all the human family is by nature. Surely these itching-ear teachers cannot see that the fountain is corrupt. David's nature was as much depraved at the time of conception before his natural birth as it ever was. Well, says one, if man is as dead as you Old Baptists say he is, why don't you quit preaching? Quit doing anything good, for God will save his people any way, God don't save his people anyway. Paul says, by grace are ye saved through faith and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God, not of works lest any man should boast. Well, says one, don't the sinner have to repent and believe in order to gain eternal life? The scriptures teach that eternal life must be given to the dead sinner, and thus repentance and faith are the fruits of the Spirit.

Says one, is not eternal life on conditions to be performed by the creature? The Bible teaches that eternal life is unconditional on the part of the creature.

Lest I worry you all with this poor scribble I will close by asking an interest in the prayers of all who may read this. Yours in hope, Rhodellia, Tenn.

A. G. HILL.

(Signs and Primitive Baptist please copy.)

EXPERIENCE.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—AS I have long been an admirer of the dear old ZION'S LANDMARK, and have been reading it ever since my childhood, I feel like I want to write you a short sketch of my experience of grace, if it be one, trusting the good Lord will be my helper. I so often find myself in darkness, doubts and fears, that I do not feel worthy to live with the dear people of God.

I do not know when I first became troubled about my condition. I felt to be cast away from a child and never did feel to be as good as other people. About the age of sixteen I became much distressed, and tried to quit sinning, but the more I tried the worse I got. I have been under so much condemnation for the past two years, that I was afraid that I was doomed to die without God, and without hope in the world. But on the 2nd day of August 1894, I gave up every thing in this world, and I hope that the Lord has shone around me, and I believe he shone in my heart, and the joy that has filled my poor heart at times I cannot express. I have felt it my duty to be baptised before I was, but I knew not where the people of God were; but I have begun to read the Bible, and I find it to correspond with my experience. After being baptised I felt that I had obeyed the Lord's command. But I have not been led by the Spirit as I should have; I have walked after the flesh, and have suffered greatly, for the ways thereof are death. I have done many things I ought not to have done, and left undone many things I ought to have done. I sometimes feel to be in the light, and when I am I can exclaim like David, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Then I grope in darkness, and it seems to me that I have never been in the light. My days are filled with joys and sorrow, and I am a man acquainted with sorrow.

Now Brother Gold I have told you my true condition as near as I can, and will say to those who feel and believe that they have a hope in Christ to take courage and go in the full discharge of their duty. Oh, how ashamed I have been for not telling the church more about myself, and how astonishing it has been, at their receiving me on such a little; but I have one bright evidence, and that is, if there is any thing on earth I do love, it is the dear christians; I love their fellowship and their company, but do not feel worthy of it; and I know if I am a christian at all I am less than the least.

Hoping that you and the many readers of the LANDMARK will pray for me that I may be ready when death's cold hand is laid upon me, and fear no evil, and be accepted in a fairer world on high, I am the least of all if one at all,

LATTUS C. TRULL.

Wesson, Arkansas.

ELDER P. D. GOLD DEARLY BELOVED BROTHER IN THE LORD:— I come again to put in my little mite, feeling, as I hope and trust that when we all, who have put on Jesus Christ (as we believe) have done, what we conceive to be our duty, that the whole lump will be leavened. Last Saturday and Sunday was the time of our regular meeting and the first Saturday and Sunday in August was also the time of our quarterly meeting. Saturday morning my precious baby boy was sick with a high fever, but when the time came for me to go, to be there in time for preaching, I left him in the hands of the Lord. That which I consider the Lord's hands are those we have confidence in, those we have tried and found faithful. Yes, I left him in the hands of faithful nurses, my dear sister Fannie Thigpen and my husband, and went to meeting. To be sure I was troubled, but my Lord and master was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. I was so glad I went, a bad rainy day it was, but our dearly beloved pastor Elder W. B. Strickland had come from his home after being sick a part of the week, through the bad weather, to feed the little flock, over which God had given him charge, and if he is faithful should we not be? I went with a loaded heart and heavy head, but before he was through delivering his message my head was lifted up and my heart made to rejoice. I wept tears of thanksgiving, and felt to thank the Lord that I was there. I came home, and found my dear and faithful nurses watching over my dear babe, who seemed to be almost in the jaws of death, but not as bad as he had been, they told me. I fell on my knees and prayed God to spare him, if it was his will. He began slowly to improve. We sat up with him all night and ministered to him, and thank God when the morning light came he was better, though of course weak and pale. It was still raining, but when time came for me to go I left him and went on to meeting. I got a whole loaf; we communed, and all went on their way rejoicing. My baby still continued to improve and is able this morning to be down on the floor playing around, which is Monday after our meeting on Saturday and Sunday.

If you think this is worth inserting in your valuable paper, for such it seems to me to be, do so and may the Lord add his blessing is my prayer for Jesus' sake.

Yours in trials but in hope through Jesus,

BETTIE WHITLEY.

Hobgood, N. C.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I enclose with this a letter I received from brother H. Cox some weeks since. I would like to see it in the LANDMARK if you feel to publish it. Brother Cox is more than 80 years old, and I think has been a worthy member of the Old School Baptist church for more than 60 years. He is Moderator of our Licking Association in Ken., and needs not to be introduced to Baptists as he has been a contributor to our periodicals for many years.

Yours in hope,

B. FARMER.

Farmdale, N. C.

[This should have followed brother Cox's article in last issue, as it is the one brother Farmer refers to. By an oversight it was left out.—Ed.]

"He that keepeth his mouth keepeth his life: but he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction."—Proverbs 13: 3.

SCRAPS PICKED UP BY THE WAY AND PRESERVED.

Did any one ever fast forty days and forty nights except Christ? It has been said that Elijah did, but according to the reading he did not fast at all. The angel gave him meat because his journey was too great for him and then he gave him meat again and Elijah went in the strength of that meat forty days and forty nights. There was no fasting in that journey for the strength of that meat continued with him. But our Lord fasted. He neither ate nor drank, for either of these is a breaking of the fast. Anything put in the mouth breaks our fast. The Lord kept the only forty days fast ever kept on this earth.

I also was thinking of the different classes of people who talk about predestination and I can see them in this light:

1st. The children of God who are properly indoctrinated. Predestination is to them food from Heaven, good succulent grass to the sheep, the sincere milk of the word, and they eat and drink and rejoice in God's unlimited mercy and goodness to them through His own predestinated purpose and His sure ruling and subduing all things, ordaining them to work for their good and for His praise and to His glory. Brethren, is not this the glorious doctrine? There are no failures here but a certain, sure salvation, the sure mercies of David that are also sure to all the seed. Brethren, I shall look no farther, this is good enough for me.

Then there is a second class who talk predestination. Let me tell of a circumstance that will illustrate my idea of this class:

There was once an old sister who lived here in Carteret county; she believed in predestination as I do, but her husband was dissipated and sometimes he would go home drunk, this old sister would rebuke him for his dissipation and he would always answer her with, "Predestinated, Predestinated." What class does he represent? Was he not a snake who only loved the hay to hide in and not to eat, but to bite the sheep when they came to eat. There are many of this class of people who only talk predestination in order to try to shield themselves and to some it makes the all glorious doctrine look ridiculous. No person can love sin and predestination at the same time and the stronger one loves predestination the stronger they hate sin and the further from it they live. Any one who would say, "Well I couldn't help it, it was predestinated" hates God and His doctrine. The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom and the fear of God is to depart from evil, therefore who ever loves God and His doctrine will do all they can to honor Him and will show their faith in His doctrine by their works. They love one another and thereby prove that they are born of God.

By predestination we are shown who are and who are not the faithful in Christ Jesus our Lord, for the faithful love it and try to live it, while the unbelieving try to condemn it.

There is yet another class who try to stand between the little lambs, unestablished children, and the living faith in this good doctrine and abuse the doctrine and talk lovingly to the little ones to lead them astray from the truth of God. This class our Lord rebuked and told them, "Ye will not enter yourselves nor let those enter who are entering." Do you know any of this class who love to get a number of weak christians together and ridicule this true doctrine and try to turn them away from the faith? As I said they lived in the day when our Lord was on the earth, there was one with the deputy in Paul's day and tried to turn him from the faith and we find them to-day at the same business. They talk with those who truly believe the truth just enough to get a little of the truth mixed up in their minds and say they understand it and then go off and ridicule it. They know just as near what the truth is as a dog knows the difference in good succulent hay and any other grass that is not fit for food. Sheep know the good grass from the bad but a dog don't eat good grass unless he wants to vomit. What is good food to God's children makes dogs sick and they despise it.

I have thought some of why is it that sheep sometimes eat dirt, and I can come to no other conclusion than that their shepherds do not give them salt enough. Now why is it that some christians eat rotten stuff called doctrine? Is it not because their pastors do not give them good solid food? Sheep will eat good grass if they are not starved to eat the bad. They will eat old stubble if they are positively compelled to do so.

Give christians good solid truth and you will find them turning the back to all false doctrines and every false way, but one may be starved to pick about among the Arminian stuff of this evil day to get a little crumb.

Affectionately,

L. H. HARDY.

Newport, N. C.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—The prophet Daniel foretold a time when many should run to and fro, and knowledge should be increased. It seems to me like the fulfillment of that prophecy now. But it does not follow because men run to and fro that they will all, or anywhere near all, attain to the knowledge of the truth. I am reminded to write you some reflections on the subject of prayer, as it seems to me to be a very important subject, and one in regard to which errors abound, and which has not received the attention that its importance demands. We are not left without full instructions in the word, and moreover we are apprised that we are not heard because of our much praying. Our Heavenly Father knows what we need. We are asked to pray with and for each other. Supposing this to be right, have we not directions and instructions with regard to it that we need not err in the matter?

The word is applied in the gospel to character, not to persons as such. And gospel preachers so apply the word, always carefully pointing out the character to whom the promise is made. They have no right to apply it otherwise. Have we any more right or warrant to be personal or to bespeak blessings for certain persons in prayer than we have in preaching? Can we ask in faith for certain blessings upon designated persons for which we have no warrant in the premises. It is my conviction that the purpose going beforehand covers the whole ground, and that there never will need to be any enlargement of the purpose. Moreover it is all promised. Not only all that ever will be performed, but all that will ever be required. So, whatever is right to pray for, God has promised to perform. If we ask beyond this we cannot ask in faith, and we shall ask and receive not.

I remember once being present in what was called a prayer meeting, and some one referred to the saying that if two of them should agree as touching anything that they should ask it should be done. Then they said they would agree to ask that every one in the house might be converted before he went out of it. Such presumption, under the pretense of praying, leads us to doubt whether they had the spirit of prayer at all. The Divine Majesty must not be mocked. The longest and most comprehensive prayer anywhere recorded in Scripture is that of Solomon at the dedication of the temple. It seems like being not only inspired, but intended as a kind of model and guide for all time to come. Solomon prays for quite a number of classes of persons, but only for those bearing certain marks or characteristics. These marks are required in each and every case, and outside or beyond those marks or characteristics he does not pray for anybody. The first of these marks is worthy of special notice. It is when they pray for themselves. He does not ask the Lord to hear him or answer his prayer, "but hear thou them, and when thou hearest in heaven forgive." The other mark or sign is, when they should pray toward this house, or in this house, that he had built. I will not now discuss the subject of the typical character of Solomon, or of the temple that he built, but will look somewhat at what the temple was literally. It seems to me desirable that we should find out why acceptable prayer must be either in or towards the temple that was then built. In the first place I will say that the sacredness of the place did not consist in or depend upon what the temple in and of itself was, but in what it contained, otherwise there would have been no temple nor any use for one. It was a dwelling place for the ark; and all the sacredness appertained to the ark, rather than to the place of its abode.

The first thought with king David, the projector of the temple was, that while himself dwelt in a house of cedar, "The ark of the covenant of the Lord remaineth under curtains." This ark contained the holy law as well as the mercy seat; and the ministry of mercy triumphing over the wrath and curse that was in the law, and several other things constituting together the "Testimony of Israel." By the law is the knowledge of sin, and all idea of mercy results from the knowledge of sin. Prayer, if it was sincere, must be inspired by the spirit of that law that condemns sin as well as that revelation of mercy that opens a door of hope to the sinner. It was no matter how far away they might be, captives in an enemy's land, if their thought in supplication was "towards the land that thou gavest to their fathers, and towards the city which thou hast chosen, and towards the house which I have built for thy name." "Then hear thou from the heavens their prayer and their supplications, and maintain their cause," &c. Then, "what prayer or what supplication sacred shall be made of any man, or of all thy people Israel, when every one shall have his own sore and his own grief, and shall spread forth his hands in this house: then hear thou from heaven, thy dwelling place, and forgive, and render unto every man according unto all his ways, whose heart thou knowest." There is little room or need for comment here. This prayer of Solomon was certainly in faith. It certainly was inspired. And is it not in all respects consistent with Divine character? Does not the answer to prayer always come to where the spirit of prayer is, and where one is brought to know his own sore and the plague of his own heart? Will any blessing to any one be an answer to prayer unless the prayer is there first?

I have extended my quotations somewhat in order to make entirely clear the ground upon which prayer is acceptable. It would be vain that we should pray for spiritual blessings to those who were entirely destitute of spiritual needs. On the other hand we could scarcely conceive of a case of sorrow or distress that is not here plainly pointed out, and the temple or house of God pointed out as the treasury from whence relief and salvation would come. There is nothing discouraging in this view of the divine arrangement. His will is always right, and if we ask in accordance with it we shall be heard. Prayer never was designed as a scheme by which men should re-arrange and control Divine Providence or supersede by their wisdom and combined efforts, the wisdom and counsel of God. Prayer is supposed by the Arminian world to be a kind of lever by which to move the Almighty; and instead of the spirit of supplication we see the spirit of arrogance and dictation. They never get discouraged. Although they have been praying against Providence for centuries, and the wheels of divine government have moved uninterruptedly on, yet not at all disheartened; at the first opportunity they all go to praying again as zealously as did the prophets of Baal in Elijah's day. They will accomplish just about as much as Baal's worshippers did. I have sometimes been reported as saying that there was no need of praying, and denying that it was the duty and privilege of the Lord's people to pray. In answer to this all I will say now will be to refer to the prophet Ezekiel where he gives us a long chapter filled with the richest and most comprehensive blessings embracing both spiritual and temporal things, and then closes the chapter with this, "Yet for this will I be inquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them." In the fellowship of the gospel,

E. RITTENHOUSE.

BROTHER GOLD:—I have thought of writing for a long time to give a sketch of my little experience and hope to the dear brethren abroad that they may know how I am and where I came from and where I went. I joined the Primitive Baptist church Sept. 1892, and was baptised by Elder Burch into the fellowship of Pine church. The kind brotherly welcome extended to me by the church was more than I felt worthy of, and oft'times wonder why it was. But when I realize the fact that by the Spirit of the Lord I was brought to the church then it is no wonder that I was received by the same Spirit that guided the minds of the brethren. I believe I was brought to see myself a sinner lost, and a deep sense of the weight of guilt and just condemnation that rested on my soul. Under this weight of conviction I tried to work out my own salvation. The more I tried the more I failed, until brought by the Spirit of the Lord I hope to ground my puny arm of rebellion and receive his love and mercy free and unmerited on my part. For I believe that God for Christ's sake forgave my sins. At this time I was brought under Missionary influence and had full access to their books of Arminian works which led me to believe that their organization was the church of the Apostolic order, and joined them, and was soon harnessed up for work. I thought it right and joined the Sunday night school in which I remained for a long time a student. Then my harness had some new buckles and shoulder straps added for me to carry a little more works of soul-saving and human redemption. I worked from their written trash until I oftentimes say I came to the end of the works, and being convinced by the Spirit of the Lord that it was all vanity and vexation of spirit, brought my lolly to an end. By a divine revelation of the Lord's will revealed to me then I believe I was brought by the Spirit of the Lord to the church of God for which I feel grateful to Almighty God for the multitude of his tender mercies bestowed on me. Brethren, my hope is so faint and so often in doubt if a saint surely the least of all. I believe if I am saved it is by full electing grace given to us by the fore-ordination of God in the gift of his son before the world began, and elected by his wisdom and purpose of grace, and not of works, lest any of us should boast.

Your brother in bonds of christian love.

WILLIAM D. GREEN.

THE NEUSE CHURCH MEETING TIME.

A notice appeared in the last issue of the LANDMARK concerning this that should not have been published. I was absent and it was done without my knowledge or approbation.

The church at Neuse belonging to the Little River Association has the old regular time, the 3rd Sunday for worship.

The other party are to be commended for choosing another day without contention. We advise these brethren to use the forbearance towards each other that the letter and spirit of feet-washing sets forth.

P. D. G.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor
P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXVII.....No. 21.

WILSON, N. C., OCT. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

WHY SO BAPTIZED ?

Brother A. C. Morris, of Virginia, requests my view of 1st Cor. 15:29:

"Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptized for the dead?"

This writing of Paul is addressed to the brethren in refutation of the lie that denies the resurrection of the dead. "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?" Do those that have Christ preached among them ever contend there is no resurrection? How could they if they believe that Jesus is the Christ? Without a crucified and risen Christ what is he worth to us? If he died and rose for me, does not that secure my resurrection? If he is not risen then I am yet in my sins. If I am in my sins then Christ is not risen. It could not be that Christ is risen if I am yet in my sins. If his work of saving his people is not complete then he is not risen. There could not be a more fatal heresy scarcely than to hold that there is no resurrection. It is a denial of Christ. For if there is no resurrection then is not Christ risen, and if he is not risen I am yet in my sins, and my faith is vain and my preaching also is vain, and I am a false witness. If in this life only we have hope, (and our hope is chained down to and ends with this life if there is no resurrection), then we are of all men most miserable. Why says Paul are we in jeopardy every hour if there is no resurrection? Why does he endure so much distress and labor so for another life after this if there is no other life after this?

Christ is risen and is the first (sanctifying) fruits of all the field which the Lord hath blessed. As he is holy shall they be. He is all the complete power of their resurrection—so that if he is not risen they can never rise, and if they do not rise then he is not risen. Together they are, and must be head and body. If the body will not live then the head is dead. The life of the head must raise the body. One cannot be without the other. If one died for all, or for our sins, then are all dead; if the one that died for all is not risen, then are the all yet in their sins. If the all rise not then the one that died for them is not risen. The gospel is, that Christ died for our sins and rose again, therefore are those saved that believe this, or it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. If Christ be not risen then are we in our sins, our preaching is vain, and our faith is vain. We are the greatest fools in the world, and of all men the most miserable.

If Christ be not risen why are they (any) baptized for the dead? If there is no resurrection of the dead why is there any baptism at all, or any act, or ordinance setting forth death and resurrection? Why not just sprinkle as Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Catholics, &c., do? To be baptized for the dead or as dead setting forth death, has no doctrine or comfort, hope or expectation in it, if there is no resurrection. Paul asks this question, if the dead rise not why then are they baptized for the dead? If I do not believe there is any resurrection, or if I believe the dead rise not, what faith, meaning or sense, hope or joy is there in my being baptized as one dead? When I am baptized I declare I am dead to everything but Christ, and if he too is dead, and has not risen, what reason is there to me to be baptized as a dead man, or for the dead, since there is no hope for them, and that is the last of them, and therefore of me too.

Why is it we stand in jeopardy every hour if there is no resurrection? Better let us eat and drink to-day, for to-morrow we die, and that is the end of us if Christ is not risen.

Until a man is dead he is not fit to be buried or baptized for the dead, or as a dead man.

It is the body that is baptized (not the head sprinkled.) Some will say, with what body do the dead come forth, or how are the dead raised up? The man that is dead to the law by the body of Christ, that is baptized, is the man that declares the resurrection. When one feels his vileness as dead and is thus prepared to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, he rises out of the (literally) watery grave with a new, liberated feeling, and goes on his way rejoicing. This is typical of the resurrection. He has the answer of a good conscience toward God by the resurrection from the dead. He is come out of the wilderness of death into the fruitful, goodly land of Canaan, out of a barren desert into a fruitful field.

What is more glorious or important than this resurrection? That since by man came death, so by man—Jesus—came the resurrection, and that as we are by nature of Adam the first, so by grace we are of Adam the second, the quickening Spirit, the Lord from heaven; and as we have borne the image of the earthy we shall also bear the image of the heavenly; and that he shall change our vile body and fashion it like unto his glorious body; for this mortal must put on immortality; and in this glorious manner we shall ever be with the Lord.

P. D. G.

Mr. R. W. Jones requests my view of Life Insurance.

It is my impression that the bible warrants all that is proper, and condemns all else. The principles approved in that book, and the examples adduced to illustrate them are our authority for supporting or opposing any measure.

It is urged by men who advocate Life Insurance that a man should provide for his own household, and that he that will not do this has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel. We admit that this is true. But now is a man to provide for his family. Some men do so by gambling, some by speculating, some by defrauding others. Now does the bible favor such methods? The bible does lay down such methods as are proper. What are they? Proper labor—that is laboring in some business that is useful, such as farmer, teacher, or merchant, a banker, a mechanic, clerk etc. All such occupations as are useful are named, or enough is set forth in the scriptures to justify their use.

When the scriptures name such and such methods of traveling, for instance as walking, riding, or going on wheels, one could not be condemned for riding on a train or travelling by water. There is a volubility in the scripture that sketches to embrace in its principles and examples every known variety of case prudent to be resorted to.

It is not in my judgment a matter of wisdom to insure ones' life for it is in the Lord that we live, move and have our being. To pay out so heavily of money to a company of men with the prospect of doing so as long as one lives, and after death a certain amount to be paid to some one surviving is wholly unknown to the bible. The bible method is for parents to lay up or provide for their children by saving in property the fruit of their labor beyond a living.

A few Primitive Baptists in our country insure their lives. It is not however a recommendation of either their godliness or their financial success. It is purely a worldly, love-of-money matter that the church bears with.

P. D. G.

WE KNOW NOT.

We know nothing of the future. That humbles a child of God, and it should do so. Providence has mercifully hid the knowledge of the future from mortal gaze. If the wicked could know that they would live to old age, how it would embolden them in wickedness. They are inclined to flatter themselves that they will live long any way. The painful remembrance of the fact that man is not his own keeper sometimes drops heavily as a pall upon his feelings.

The child of God having the sentence of death in himself, and therefore being much in bondage on account of it, is looking for it to come, and lives longer than he expects.

The fact that we know nothing of the future is most conducive to the life of faith or dependence on God, and admonishes us to trust not at all to appearances or to things that do appear, but to trust alone in God in whose hands are all our times. Some people appear to wish to exclude God's providence from any agency or hand in shaping ones course; but it would be a matter of supreme joy to me to be assured that no event befalls me only that which my Father has predestinated and provided for me.

It is better for me not to know beforehand in order that I may trust in him who giveth us richly to enjoy all things. P. D. G.

"For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them."—2nd Peter 2: 21.

All the teaching of the Scripture warns the people of God to endurance in the truth. The caution to remember Lot's wife stands as an uncrumbled monument pointing to danger in disobedience. Both the good and bad examples of God's people encourage to faithfulness or warn of danger.

How could it be better for one never to have known the way of righteousness, than after having known it to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto him? Would it not be better for one never to have the Sheriff of a county, than, after being elected, he is a serious defaulter and loses his office and sustains much loss besides?

The confession of the name of Jesus is so great and his service so glorious that to reproach that worthy name is of all sins the worst. Salt that has lost its savor is fit for nothing but to be trodden under the foot of men. It is more degraded than ordinary dirt. The higher one is if he falls the deeper and the further does he fall, and the greater is his suffering. We expect nothing of men that promise nothing.

Can one be lost eternally who turns away from the holy commandment delivered him? Or is this character here described a child of God, or could a child of God ever do so wrong as to be in a worse condition than never to have been a child of God? We do not understand this case to raise the question whether such a one is a child of God or not, because we are the children of God before Jesus died for us. He died for us that he might gather the children of God together, for they are scattered by nature every where. Because the children are partakers of flesh and blood he took part of the same. It is not that flesh and blood partake of the nature of the Son of God, but that the children of God are partakers of flesh and blood. Then the deliverance of the holy commandment to a man does not make him a child of God, but imposes trusts and obligations on him which cause much increase of peace and joy, if they are really observed; but the neglect of such brings much distress and confusion. If one should, after escaping the corruption in the world through lust, return to his former lusts as the dog returning to his vomit, or the sow to her wallowing in the mire what better off is that one than he was before he made a profession? None; but worse off. He has lost the respect of the people whose approbation he had received; he has shown much want of sincerity in his own conduct; he has felt pangs of guilt he was free from before. He has given others trouble that he would not have done but by such conduct.

But it happened unto them &c. The word happened is not the same as the word predestinated. The word PREDESTINATED is always used with direct reference to the eternal salvation of the people of God. The word happened is not so used, but rather refers to developments in time concerning the conduct and affairs of men—as time and chance happen to all men. The word predestination refers to what the Lord purposes. The word happened rather to what man does. The question of uncertainty is not involved, but the certainty that it has happened unto these characters according to the true proverb, &c.

P. D. G.

REQUEST.

We do not advertise in ZION'S LANDMARK, but give the full paper in reading matter.

The price of the paper in pamphlet form, $1.50 per annum, but little over pays the cost of its publication, as it is much more expensive to us in that form than in newspaper style.

We have had poor collections this year, and have been waiting on many of the subscribers. Now we request you as soon as possible to send us in your subscriptions, as we are in need of the money.

Please lay aside that amount as you sell cotton, tobacco, or other products, and send it on and oblige us very much.

P. D. G.

L. H. HARDY, CLERK WHITE OAK ASSOCIATION. DEAR SIR:—Your letter of 11th inst., addressed to our General Manager, has been referred to me for reply.

We will make round trip rate, Wilmington to Newbern and return, on account of the Association of your churches, of $4.25, from Scott's Hill $3.75, Folkstone $2.75, Verona, $2.25, Jacksonville $2, Maysville $1.10, Pollocksville 70c; tickets to be on sale from October 19th, and 20., good to return on 23rd., inclusive. In case there are many going from White Oak, the rates from that point will be $1.50.

Trusting this will be satisfactory,
I am
Yours, very truly,
J. W. MARTENS,
Traffic Manager.

NOTICE.

The Church at Cool Spring, Greenville County, S. C., have set apart for ordination to the Gospel Ministry brother J. A. Hughay. Will some travelling preacher or preachers attend the next session of that Association and aid in that matter?
THOMAS BELL.

The Black Creek Association is appointed to be held with the church at Memorial on Friday, Sat. and 4th Sunday in October. Visitors by rail will be met at Fremont on Thursday.

P. D. G.

Visitors going on A. & N. C. R. R. to White Oak Association at Newport, will call for reduced fare at various depots on said road.

OBITUARIES.

CLARENCE MONEY.

At his home near Finchville, Shelby Co. Ky., Mr. Clarence Money quietly and peacefully breathed his last at noon, Sept. 6, 1894, aged 24 years, 11 months and 29 days. Clarence had been a sufferer for nearly two years, but took typhoid fever about three weeks before he died, during which time he suffered intensely, yet was not known to murmur. Such becoming patience is not often seen. While he lay asleep in Jesus, though dead to us, one could not behold the pleasant smile which o'erspread his face, so calm and undisturbed, without feeling to say "All is well." Language is not sufficient to make known his merit and worth, but all who knew him will readily say, he was one of the most estimable and exemplary of young men. He never professed a hope publicly, but had that faith that penetrates the dark clouds of a sin-sick soul and causes rejoicing in Christ Jesus, having no confidence in the flesh. It was my privilege and pleasure to be with him for several days last May, and his theme was often upon the foreknowledge and predestination of God. On one occasion, just after hearing an able and comforting discourse delivered by Elder P. G. Lester, his soul seemed to be filled with praise and thanks to Him who brings us out of darkness into light; and had enabled him to enjoy the glorious gospel that had been preached to us in its great and precious fullness, and an understanding of the divine truth as recorded in the sacred Word. He said it was so preposterous in man to say that he could help the Lord in obtaining man's salvation, when all things had been made before man's existence, and that the salvation of saints, the most important of all things, had been perfected by Christ our Saviour. Mary were the expressions that bear testimony. He had that faith which is a fruit of the Spirit that directs one to look away from earth to Him who is the Resurrection and the Life. I will say to the sorely grieved father, mother, sister and brothers to mourn not, for we feel to know that Clarence is now crowned with glory and honor, and that God in His wisdom has recalled the boon His love had given. All earthly attention was given. He was indeed tended with care. A most comforting sermon was preached at the funeral by Elder P. W. Sawin, after which the remains were interred in Grove Hill cemetery at Shelbyville. A large concourse of friends bespoke the high esteem in which he was held.

May God in his infinite mercy comfort the bereaved family, is the prayer of

A FRIEND.

SEVENA BAUCOM.

Sister Baucum was born in Stanly county, N. C., May 17th, 1830, but moved to Union county, N. C., where she died. She married W. R. Baucum and bore eleven children—six sons. She died May 22d, 1893. She and I were members of the same church. She was a woman of sterling character, an excellent neighbor. She received a good hope through grace and joined the Primitive Baptists at old Watson. She was a bright star in the church. She loved her children much, and I cannot express the great loss felt by her death. I believe God had put his laws in her mind, and written them in her heart. She manifested this in her sweet life. Oh the worth of a mother who can tell.

ASHLEY BAUCOM.

MRS. NETTIE SAUNDERS.

She was sick only a short while, she bore her affliction with christian fortitude, never murmuring nor complaining. She leaves a husband, a devoted son and a dear little babe, besides other relatives and a host of friends to mourn her loss which we hope is her eternal gain. She was good and kind, always meeting her friends with a loving smile. She was a firm believer in salvation by grace and grace alone, and we feel satisfied that she was one of the elect ones of the redeemed. What a blessed thought to believe that our departed ones are gone to that blissful home where moths do not corrupt nor thieves break through and steal.

A FRIEND.

FANNIE DOWNING.

By request I send you the obituary of our dear sister Fannie Downing. She was the daughter of Aaron and Harriet Mitchell and was born in Martin Co., June 24, 1845, and was married to Mr. J. H. Downing Feb. 6th 1868, and died March 3rd, 1894. She was a very dear and consistent member of the church at Conoho, and I feel that I never shall forget the day she offered to the church. I thought she bore in her countenance that meek and humble expression that we see manifested in the life of our blessed Redeemer and all her life long she lived in that same meek and loving way. I saw her several times while lingering on the brink of life with consumption. I have never seen any one more resigned, patient and willing to go. She said the Lord had made her willing to leave husband and children and all. In her case was clearly manifested the power of God in completely conquering death and disarming it of its sting. How precious and wonderful such a death. She seemed to have some prayer and petition for every one she met and of whom she spoke, and thus the spirit of the glorious religion that she had lived in the enjoyment of pervaded her last moments. "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace and good will to men." May the Lord comfort and save her husband and children and bless her dear sister who was faithful until death, and throw around her brother the arm of his mercy, and give to us all the precious grace of reconciliation to his heavenly will.

Yours affectionately,

M. T. LAWRENCE.

Hamilton, N. C.

SALLIE ANN BRADY.

The subject of this sketch, Mrs. Sallie Ann Brady, was born September 21st, 1833, and died May 10th, 1894. She was a daughter of Willis and Sarah Fleming, both of whom were associated with and well known by the Primitive Baptists in their day. She was married Sept. 4th, 1855, to Josephus Brady, of Pitt county, N. C., who, on 20th December, 1862, died, leaving her a widow with two girl children. Soon afterwards she returned to her old home in Edgecombe county, where she lived with her widowed mother until the latter's death, soon after which she moved to Old Sparta, N. C. Here she lived, with the exception of two short intervals, until her death. All through her life she was respected and esteemed by those who knew her. Having obtained a hope that the good Lord had in store for her everlasting life, this was made known to the church at Old Town Creek Sept. 25th, 1872, and she was received into full fellowship, where she remained a consistent member as long as she lived. Her mind seemed to dwell almost wholly upon the Lord and his mercies to undeserving man, and she read her Bible continually. In pondering over her general make-up, I can see what she tried so much to be, and what she was; and though "only a small creature" as she considered herself, I am persuaded that she was one of a christian character and example. This can't imply anything small or insignificant, and oh that such examples were more prevalent among us. It seems to me that they are of the greatest importance in checking wandering man in his downward tendency. So often we are reminded, when almost in the act of going astray of some one prompted by His spirit to walk in the paths of righteousness, and think to ourselves that he or she would not have done thus. Many, many times have I gone astray, but I believe the blessed Lord has used these precious examples as a means of guidance for me, and as a result, a longing for right and truth. For more than twenty years she has been an invalid, during which time she has borne patiently much bodily pain and suffering. Both of her children also are afflicted, consequently she has had cause for much sadness in her latter days; but all along with patient prayer she has looked to her Lord for relief, and I believe she has found that relief which Jesus gives to his own. Sympathetic feelings entertained by myself and wife for her in her sadness caused us to encourage her (in 1893) to come to Virginia, where she could be with us, but the absence from her brethren and friends of her native section was too much for her, so she returned home after a stay here of six or eight months. Her physical condition debarred her in attending church frequently, but when she could do so it was quite a pleasure to her. Preaching was indeed consoling to her, and the promoting of the Primitive Baptist cause was, as far as she could, ever one of her greatest pleasures. She so often spoke of her own weakness and the strong arm of the Lord that the steadfastness and all-sufficiency of her faith in him was fully apparent. She enjoyed so much to hear the writer and others sing the song, "The Half Has Never Yet Been Told."

She said it was not the music so much, but it was the words that interested her. Surely we cannot doubt as to her salvation when we feel that she did from the heart enjoy and appreciate the sentiments as expressed in this song. During her long years of affliction those of her friends and neighbors who could, have extended many favors and endeavored to encourage her with many acts of kindness. Such will ever have a bright place in the memory of those of us who were near and dear to her, and who were necessarily absent from her. I feel that I should make special mention of the kindness done her by Mr. and Mrs. Exum L. Moore and family, with whom she spent several months of her life, May her children feel that the sadness of this world is only for a season, and look to Him who doeth all things well, is the prayer of her son-in-law.

WM. R. MOORE.

Richmond, Va.

W. V. PITTMAN.

Mr. W. V. Pittman was born June 16th, 1860, and died of malarial fever, at his home in Rowland, N. C., July 12th 1894. He leaves a kind and an affectionate father and mother, a true and devoted wife, three little children, one sister and three brothers, together with a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. Truly, a worthy man has passed away, and his name will be held in loving remembrance by many a soul while memory lasts. He was a kind and obedient son, and affectionate brother, and a true and loving husband, and will be missed most by those who loved him best. In early youth he professed faith in Christ and united himself with the M. E. Church South, and from that time forth was a true and consistent member, loving his church and the people of God, and always seeming anxious to do a good deed to promote the happiness of others, and to faithfully discharge the duties that devolved upon him. During his whole life, and up to the time of his death, he was true to his fellowman and in his own home, in the hope of a blissful immortality. His death has made a vacancy in many hearts that can never, no never be filled, for his true and manly bearing, his honesty and uprightness in all his dealings, his kindly appearance and gentle disposition, won for him the love and admiration of all who knew him. How sad to part with one whose life was so pure and helpful to all with whom he was associated. But to the sorrow stricken family circle we would say that they sorrow not as those who have no hope, for we can but feel that our loss is his gain. So let us praise the Father that we have that hope that tells that though he cannot come to us we can go to him. May the grace that sustained him in death give the needed strength to the sorrowing parents, and help them to bear and become reconciled to this sad affliction, and may God in his infinite mercy bless the wife that has been so sadly bereft of a good husband, and help her to trust in him who has promised to be a husband to the widow. Oh, may the three little children be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. They will miss much in having no earthly father, but God has promised to be a Father to the fatherless and he will supply all their needs.

By A COUSIN.

MRS. MARY HAYS.

On the 10th of May, 1893, the Angel of Death stole quietly into the home of our brother N. T. Hays, in Wilson Co. N. C., and bore the spirit of his beloved wife to her long home. Sister Hays was the daughter of William and Exiline Lucas, and was born August 20th, 1833, making her stay on earth 59 years, 8 months and 20 days. In June 1853 she was married to N. T. Hays, with whom she lived happily until the Lord saw fit to take her to her final rest. Sister Hays united with the Primitive Baptist church at Black Creek, Wilson, Co. N. C., and was baptized by Elder W. W. Barnes. She was the mother of 12 children, 8 of whom (all grown,) together with her aged husband and 29 grand-children besides many other relatives and friends are left to mourn their loss. She lived to see three of her children unite with the church she loved, and worship the God she so often spoke of in sweet and comforting words. On the 10th of May, 1893, she retired, feeling as well as she had done in a long time, and when her husband waked the next a. m., he found her lying on her side with one hand under her head, peacefully sleeping with a smile of joy on her countenance. "Asleep in Jesus." Sister Hays was always at church meeting whenever able to be carried, ready to speak of the goodness of the God whom she loved to serve and tell of his tender mercies. She loved to have the brethren visit her, and never seemed happier than when with them. A kind loving wife, a gentle mother, and a true friend is gone. In her death we have sustained a great loss. Folded are the busy hands, silent are the lips that made joy in the household. But God knoweth best. He has taken but his own to dwell with him in a fairer, brighter home. We hope the lonely husband and children may be enabled to look to God for comfort. He can heal our sorrows, and tell of a joyful re union in Heaven.

Safe in the hands, whom seas obey
 When swelling surges rise,
 He turns the darkest night to day
 And brightens lowering skies.
 Then upward look however distressing
 Jesus will guide th' home,
 To that eternal park of rest,
 Where sorrow shall never come.

A. J. M.

HELEN BASS.

Died at the residence of her father, near Roddens Store, Mrs. Bulah Bass, wife of Mr. Joseph Bass. She was a noted character from childhood to her death. She was not quite twenty-three years old. From a small child she was noted for her generous nature. She was a loving daughter, a true, devoted wife, and of affection towards her tender offspring. Her disease was inflammatory rheumatism and other troubles combined, and at last was taken with St. Vitus' Dance. She was strangely afflicted. It seemed that every member of her body was in motion before she died, but she was rational all the time. She died Feb. 28. She left many precious words with her relatives and friends that I hope will last us all along life's uneven journey; for I think of what she said now. "That there is nothing but trials and troubles here below." On my way to see her I felt like praying that the Lord might remove every trouble that would bring reproach upon his cause, and give us all strength and patience to sit at Jesus' feet and learn wisdom and knowledge from him. When I arrived there, and saw the body tossing back and forth, I was seized with unutterable groaning, and said in my heart, Lord help our infirmities, make haste Lord to deliver and enable us to see that in this tempest-tossed troubled sea, still 'tis God's hand that leadeth us. I said to her, child, put your trust in the Lord. He is able to deliver you out of all your troubles. She put her arms around my neck and said she had prayed and done all she could, and now she wanted us to pray for her, and reached out and laid her arms around her mother's neck, and said, "Mama, I want you to pray for me." Her mother said to her, I have prayed for you before this and I pray for you still. Her mother said to her, do not cry my child, mother loves you too good to see you cry. She said she loved her father, mother and Joe her husband and her babe. I said the scripture says a mother would sooner forget her suckling child than the Lord would forget one of his little ones; and said your affliction may be a blessing to us all, that the Lord worked in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. She seemed to be revived, and asked for something to eat. The next day the weather was very cold and snowing, and the wind drifting the snow, and I was not well, I could not go to see her, But as Paul said by the church at Corinth although I was not with that family that day I had them in my heart. I felt like mourning and praying for myself and them all day long, and not only for us, but all this neighborhood. O, I thought, if we were christians, and could be agreed would this not be a Heavenly land. My husband and others, including the family, were present when Mrs. Bass called them all to her bed and told them she wanted to tell them her dream. She dreamed of being in bed with her husband and little baby, and her husband rose up and looked at her and her little babe, and she asked him what he was looking at. He said he was looking at her and the baby, and she asked him why? He said ah, there will be much sorrow in your breast, and she said this is the meaning of that dream. All that came in the room if they did not shed tears she could see tears in their eyes. She said Joe I love you, and I want you to keep out of wild company, and not use vain words, and reached out and drew Joe's sisters to her bosom, and told them she wanted them all to refrain from keeping wild company that would lead them astray, and spoke thus to his brothers. She said it troubled her because her name had not been recorded on the church book, but said she hoped she would go to Heaven when she died. She wished her mother to take and teach her child from infancy and bring it up in the way it should go. Before she died she asked her friends to sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow", &c. She told them she wanted what she had said published, so her Papa could remember it. I will close.

Yours in hope,

NANNIE E. DODD.

J. L. G. HARRELL.

By request, you will please insert the obituary of brother J. L. G. Harrell, who was born November 22nd, 1820, and died Jan. 28th, 1894. He was afflicted with a pain in his head ever since he was twelve years old, which he received from a fall from a stage while carrying brick to build a chimney. He never got well of it, for he complained and suffered more than words could express, and the only relief was from opiates which he spent most of his earthly possessions to obtain. He was a very humble brother, and always seemed to rejoice in the love of Jesus. He joined the church at Conoho, Saturday before the third Sunday in Feb. 1854, and was baptized next day by Elder W. A. Ross, Elder Blount Cooper being sick. I am informed that he was the first one that Elder Ross baptized, and all said it was well done. He was taken with that dreadful disease (pneumonia) and only lived one week. He bore his afflictions with much patience, and left good news behind to comfort all his dear ones that he is gone to a better world than this. For his only theme on Friday before he died on Monday was Jesus and his love. He gave his son John some advice about bringing up his children; said he was willing to die and that death was not as bad as he thought it was. He could not sing any tone, but hummed the words of "Amazing Grace." Oh what a consolation it should be to all his relatives, friends and loved ones to realize the grace of God in that hour of death. For grace first contrived the way to save rebellious man.

Your weak brother,

J. O. SALSBURY.

Hinton, N. C.

J. SAMUEL BENNETT.

The subject of this notice was a constant sufferer for three years with a cancerous tumor on his back, that prevented him from lying down for twelve months. But notwithstanding that, not one word of complaint ever escaped his lips; always saying it was all right, and was constantly comforting his sorrowing wife and relatives; was strong in that faith which works by love and purifies the heart. He feared death less I think than any one I was ever with or knew; his hope was strong that his sufferings would end with this life. He had more sympathizers during his suffering than any one I ever knew; for he was dearly beloved by all who knew him, and deservedly so, for he took more pleasure in serving others, and administering to their comfort, than he did his own; waiting upon the sick and relieving the distressed than any man I ever knew. He was not only kind-hearted but had attained to that which was truly motherly. He was born in Pittsylvania Co. Va., Oct. 21, 1844, and died March 27, 1894. Leaving a wife as devoted as could be, six children and three sisters which he cared for as tenderly as if they had been his own daughters. He was not a member of any church, but was a strong believer in the Primitive Baptists and we will miss him as much as if he had been a member. May the God of all grace be with the sorrowing ones to bind up the broken-hearted, and sanctify this dispensation of their providence to their good and to his own glory, is the desire of the unworthy writer.

J. M. HARRIS.

CLARENCE MILLER.

My darling little nephew, Clarence Miller, was born October 3rd, 1892, and died June 7th, 1894.

I feel that this little child has been borne by white-robed angels from this sinful world to that happy estate where Jesus dwells—where there are no more sorrows.

It is hard for us to part with one so sweet. It is hard for his parents to look around at the vacant seat—cradle—or other place, and see their child no more forever.

The little one was the idol of my heart. He was never well. I have lived with him 14 months, I rocked him many times with cheeks scorched with fever. It is hard for me to realize that he is gone.

But how much better off is the child than any one of us.

EUGENIA THOMPSON.

LEVANDER EDWIN JONES.

My nephew Levander Edwin Jones, only son of Mr. John and Mrs. N. Jane Jones, was born in Anson county, N. C., April 20th, 1876, at the time of his death aged 17 years and 2 months, which occurred the 21st of June, 1893. He was struck by lightning and instantly killed while in an open field sowing oats. His father and sister were a few steps from him, and they were unharmed. A small cloud came over, lightened and thundered twice only, and rained a little. It is very shocking for one to be taken away so suddenly in health, but we must try to be resigned to the Lord's will. He leaves father, mother, and four sisters to mourn their great loss, but hope it is his eternal gain.

His Aunt,

JANE P. JONES.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

JESSE BROWN.

Cool Spring Association, at Cool Spring on the 12th, 13th, and 14th of October, 1894.

Mill Creek.....Tuesday, 16th
 Gill's Creek.....Thursday, 18th
 Mt. Pleasant, Saturday, 3d Sunday, 20th, 21st
 Simpson's Creek.....Tuesday, 23d
 Will some one meet me at the nearest depot.

Free Dee.....Thursday, 25th
 Pleasant Hill.....Sat. and Sun. 27th and 28th
 Bethel.....Tuesday, 30th
 Preway.....Wednesday, 31st
 Mill Branch.....Thursday, Nov. 1st
 Wilmington.....Friday night, 2nd
 Stump Sound.....Sat. and Sun. 3d, 4th
 Day Meeting House.....Monday, 5th
 Southwest.....Tuesday, 6th
 Muddy Creek.....Wednesday, 7th
 Hornet.....Saturday, 10th
 Will some one meet me in Clinton on Friday evening, the 9th.

Seven Mile.....Sunday, 11th
 Reedy Prong.....Monday, 12th
 Barbys Chapel.....Tuesday, 13th
 Mingo.....Wednesday, 14th
 Black River.....Thursday, 15th
 Beahny.....Friday, 16th
 Smithfield.....Saturday, 17th
 Little Creek.....Sunday, 18th
 Clement.....Monday, 19th
 Rehoboth.....Tuesday, 20th
 Fellowship.....Wednesday, 21st
 Middle Creek.....Thursday, 22d
 Raleigh.....Friday, 23d
 Oak Grove.....Sat. and Sun. 24th, and 25th
 Durham.....Monday, 26th
 Randleman, Randolph Co., Tues. night, 27th
 Central Falls.....Wed. night, 28th
 He will need conveyance.

R. HUTCHINS.

Wolf Island.....Mon. after 3d Sun. in Oct.
 Pleasant Grove.....Tuesday
 Arbor.....Wednesday
 Lynch's Creek.....Thursday
 Wheeler's.....Friday
 Durham.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Whitfield's School House, Sunday at 4 o'clock
 Oak Grove.....Monday
 Willow Spring.....Tuesday
 Sandy Grove.....Wednesday
 Bethel.....Thursday
 New Hope.....Friday
 Black River.....Saturday
 Bethsaida.....1st Sun. in Nov.
 Hannah's Creek.....Monday
 Hickory Grove.....Tuesday
 Seven Mile.....Wednesday
 He will go from there to Clinton, and Thursday travels from there to Duplin Roads.
 Brother Cavanaugh's.....Friday
 Cypress Creek.....Sat. and 2d Sun.

Old Maple Hill.....Monday
 Bay.....Tuesday
 Stump Sound.....Wednesday
 Yopps.....Thursday
 Rest.....Friday
 Ward's Will.....Sat. and 3d Sun.
 North East.....Monday
 South West.....Tuesday
 Black Swamp.....Wednesday
 Sand Hill.....Thursday
 Muddy Creek.....Sat. and 4th Sun.
 Goldsborough at 12 o'clock.....Monday
 Chapel.....Tuesday
 Cross Roads.....Wednesday
 Union.....Thursday
 Pine Level.....Friday
 Smithfield.....1st Sat. and Sun. in Dec.
 Clements.....Monday
 Rehoboth.....Tuesday
 Fellowship.....Wednesday
 Middle Creek.....Thursday
 Neuse.....Friday
 Cedar Grove.....Saturday
 Dutchville.....2d Sunday
 Camp Creek.....Monday
 Tar River.....Tuesday
 Sorls.....Wednesday
 Flat River.....Thursday
 Stories Creek.....Friday
 Roxboro.....Sat. and 3d Sun.
 Ebeneze.....Monday
 Prospect Hill.....Tuesday
 Country Line.....Wednesday
 Lick Fork.....Thursday
 Dan River.....Friday
 Good Will.....Saturday
 Ridgeway.....4th Sunday
 Will some brother carry him from Wheelers to the depot. ISAAC JONES.

E. E. LUNDAY.

Fellowship Va.....October 10
 Laurel Fork.....11
 Concord.....12
 Dan River.....13
 Green Hill.....14
 Five Forks.....15
 Russell Creek.....16
 Pleasant Grove.....17
 Buffalo.....18

Thence to Mayo Association.
 Wilson (Stokes Co. N. C.) Monday after Mayo Association.

Snow Creek.....Tuesday
 Rock House.....Wednesday
 Cedar Hill.....Thursday
 Thence to Fisher River Association.

J. M. HARRIS.

White Oak, Tuesday after 1st Sunday in Oct.
 Moore's.....Wednesday
 Meadow Creek.....Thursday
 Antry's Creek.....Friday
 Thence to Contentnea Association.
 Cross Roads.....Tuesday
 Kinston.....Wednesday
 Morehead.....Thursday
 Thence to White Oak Association.
 La Grange.....Tuesday after 2d Sunday
 Mewborts.....Wednesday
 Nahenta.....Thursday
 Thence to Black Creek Association.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 8 1904.	No. 43 Daily		No. 41 Daily	No. 41 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon	11 52	9 47
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 26
Ar Tarboro	3 40
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 26	6 00
Lv Selma	2 05	11 01
Lv Fayetteville	3 15
Ar Florence	2 25	3 00
	No. 47 Daily
Lv Wilson	2 15	6 15
Lv Goldsboro	3 05	7 25
Lv Magnolia	4 16	8 20
Ar Wilmington	5 26	10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 8 1904.	No. 42 Daily		No. 42 Daily	No. 40 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence	7 30	7 45
Lv Fayetteville	10 22	9 20
Lv Selma	12 05
Ar Wilson	1 00	11 27
	No. 48 Daily
Lv Wilmington	9 00	7 00
Lv Magnolia	10 40	8 33
Lv Goldsboro	12 55	9 40
Ar Wilson	12 40	10 27
	No. 48 Daily	No. 42 Daily
Lv Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.	1 10	11 27	10 39
	2 13	12 05	11 15
Ar Tarboro	3 47
Lv Tarboro	12 25
Lv Rocky Mt.	3 13	12 04
Ar Weldon	3 10	12 05

*Daily except Monday. †Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.
Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 4 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., returning leaves Kinston, 7 40 a. m., Greenville 8 24 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 40 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m. Arrives Pamlico 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro

8 40; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Pamlico 7 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 5 00 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 9 20 p. m., 5 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 42 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 25 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope 5 00 a. m., Nashville 5 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 50 p. m.; arrive Danbar 8 00 p. m. Returning leave Danbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 5 20 a. m. Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 10 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE,

General Supt.
J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.

Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.

Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25

Per dozen, by mail, $12.00

No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Orders, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 18th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 16th, 1904, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.

The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 15, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,

J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.

Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a Great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. Reed, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B.'s, and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Maron, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud; Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

☞ I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SON,

30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.
They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.
P. D. GOLD.

CHAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	Ar.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	10 10 a m
4 30 p m	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	10 27 a m
4 14 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11 45 a m
4 07 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1 13 p m
14 50 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	4 15 p m
14 52 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	4 55 p m
12 05 p m	Lv.....Norfolk.....Lv	5 47 p m
11 42 p m	Lv.....N.W. Jct.—W. Cove.....Ar	4 00 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N.W. Jct.—W. Cove.....Lv	4 15 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Ar	2 0 p m
9 45 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6 25 p m
No 3		No 4
5 00 p m	Ar.....Bennettville.....Lv	6 45 a m
6 47 p m	Lv.....Marion.....Lv	7 37 a m
6 58 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	5 17 a m
6 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	6 24 a m
4 50 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 35 a m
No. 15		No 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
5 15 p m	Ar.....Rainsville.....Lv	5 50 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	5 40 a m
3 00 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	6 24 a m
No. 16		No 16
MIXED		MIXED
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
4 35 p m	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	6 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stations.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 40 p m	Lv.....Stations.....Ar	11 50 a m

Train No 3 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Athens, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Marion, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11:00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1855. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at, Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold, WILSON, N. C.

VOL. 27.

OCTOBER 15, 1894.

NO. 23.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina.

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffice. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

BY REQUEST.

Because many requests have been made to me to reproduce the correspondence between Dr. Hooper and myself concerning my withdrawal from the Missionary Baptists, and union with the Primitive Baptists, I republish his first letter to me and my answer to him.

This is all of that discussion I have. If any one has the remaining part of the correspondence I should like much to obtain it.

Dr. Hooper was a fine scholar and an elegant gentleman. He has long since departed from these scenes of strife.

P. D. G.

TO ELDER P. D. GOLD.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—Your defection from us and your going over to the party of those styling themselves "the old side, or Primitive" Baptists, has, as you may well suppose, excited the surprise and displeasure of your former brethren; and, as it is an implied censure of them and their cause and even a public declaration that they were so much in the wrong that you could not with good conscience remain among them, it seems to justify them in asking your reason for taking this step. No one questions your right to follow your best judgment and the dictates of your conscience, in changing your church relations. But as you must be aware that all such changes wound the feelings of many, imply something very wrong in the party abandoned, and serve to increase the lamentable divisions of the church which bring so much discredit, I had almost said disgrace, on the sacred cause of our common Master, we are entitled to believe that some serious apparent objection, at least, lies against the churches distinguished by the name of "Missionary Baptists"—a distinction unfortunately rendered necessary by the withdrawal of our former brethren from us and which attaches to them the opposite, and we should think the unwelcome appellation of "Anti-missionaries." I believe we "the Missionaries" wish to do right and if by mistake or infirmity we go astray, the well-meant, tender and candid rebuke of a brother will be meekly and thankfully received. Our preaching, so far as I know, is such as would be sanctioned by Andrew Fuller whose works have been a standard authority for Baptists, both in England and this country, ever since they appeared. They recognize and set forth prominently God's electing love, effectual calling and preservation of his saints unto final salvation—the sinner's guilt and helplessness and his entire dependence upon God "both to will and to do of his good pleasure." But they hold and prove it by scriptural example, that all this is perfectly consistent with the most urgent appeals to sinners to repent, believe, and obey at the peril of their souls, and that these are the appointed means of rousing them to flee from the wrath to come. On those who profess to be christians they inculcate the duty of showing their faith by their works, of being abundant in good works, of devoting health, strength, zeal, property, to the cause of Christ. They teach that the love begotten in the soul by redeeming love ought and will impel to a life of active usefulness and to zealous exertions to extend the knowledge of that love to the ends of the earth. Every true church must therefore be a missionary church and the very doctrines which we preach and the practice resulting therefrom are what set in motion the christian world towards the end of the last-century, and gave the Baptists the honor of being pioneers in the great work of evangelizing the world, a work which has since been going on with accelerated speed, owned and blessed of God by the conversion of multitudes of the poor heathens, who were once just such monsters of violence and pollution as Paul describes the Romans and Corinthians to have been, but have now like them, "been washed and sanctified and justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of God." If any of our number do not preach and love this doctrine, it is not because they belong to a society which does not inculcate it, but in opposition to all the efforts and teachings of our pulpits, and books and periodical press.

When will the people, with whom you have chosen to affiliate yourself, produce any like fruits? Has not their opposition to us produced a reaction in the contrary direction, and made them adverse to all progress in knowledge? Do they not repudiate all helps to the interpretation of the scriptures, and take for granted that the meaning adopted by every preacher that can read the English Bible is the teaching of the Holy Spirit? And does not every one that listens to their preaching hear the wildest and most groundless fancies of the human brain delivered from the pulpit as the truth of God, and the food appointed by Christ for the nurture of his sheep? Can it delight you to see the mass of the people delivered over to the tuition and custody of such shepherds? Forgive me, if I have, in any particular, spoken too harshly. We regret to lose such a man as you, and to have you added to a body who make it a part of the regular ministrations of the pulpit to deery us as enemies to the truth and recreants to the good old Baptist doctrine.—In one sense we may conceive hope from the proselytism of intelligent men. They will serve as a leaven which will gradually leaven the whole lump, and the whole body will gradually drop their errors and again amalgamate with us. We do not deny that there are among the "anti-missionaries" many truly pious people and that many of their preachers hold and preach true, saving doctrine; but we claim that the very same wholesome and saving truth is heard from our pulpits, while we charge upon these, our separating brethren, the error of departing from Scriptural precept and example by preaching the doctrines of predestination and election in such an unguarded manner and disproportionate quantity as to lead to the practical effects of fatalism; the sinner being lulled in contented slumber until his time shall come, and the convert discouraged, after his conversion, from actively exerting himself in doing good, on the plea that he is thereby trying to work out a righteousness of his own. Thus all active exertion is branded with the reproach of helping God to achieve his purpose by our puny hands. Yet God does not scorn our fellowship in his work.—Are we not called "workers together with him?" The truth is, God carries on all his operations for the setting up of his kingdom on earth through the agency of human hearts and hands. He who used the winds to waft Paul to Macedonia and Troas, uses Titus and Timothy's hands and feet to visit and serve the churches which he nursed. He who wants his imprisoned ministers to have comforts in their bonds, makes use of Epaphroditus to carry those comforts from Philippi and Thessalonica, at the hazard of his life. This consistency of human effort with divine preordination is so obvious, that we wonder how our brethren styling themselves "Old School" can fail to see it and act upon it as we do. But may be our opponents will say: We don't object to your working, but you don't work in the right way.—Very well. Now my dear brother, come forward and tell us how we ought to work, "show us a more excellent way," and we will all heartily thank you, if you can suggest some better way of working; for we are always trying to find out the best way.

If I have in any respect misrepresented the doctrines or the practical results of the preaching of your new associates I shall be very glad to be corrected, and will take back most willingly any wrong statement of which you may convince me, if your intercourse with this class of christians be sufficient to authorize your denial of this commonly received opinion of their instructions and their church proceedings. I make no other apology for being the one who takes the liberty of asking for this explanation from you, except my age as seeming to warrant me in watching with a kind of fatherly interest over the lives and labors of our rising ministry.

W. M. HOOPER.

TO DR. HOOPER.

MY DEAR SIR:—A communication addressed to me appears in the Biblical Recorder of April 27th 1870, calling on me for a statement of the reasons for my leaving the Missionary Baptist denomination and uniting with the Old School Baptists. It was not my intention to offer any defense of my conduct, as it is unpleasant to be thrust before the world, either in abusing those one has left, or in defending his new associates as if he felt himself to be their champion. But since yourself and many others of your denomination are held in much esteem, and your request is accompanied with a promise of a candid consideration of my reasons, it is not easy to decline giving some of them. I write to needlessly offend no one, neither arrogating any superiority nor charging any person with insincerity.

I can bear my former brethren testimony to their zeal and earnestness in propagating what seems to them to be truth, and would not, if not so directly called upon, any further wound their feelings by any public expression of my own views which are so opposite. It shall be my endeavor to give what seems to me to be Bible teaching, brought to my view in experience, and let all who are disposed to consider my views try them by the word of God; for they are worthless if not sustained thereby. According to Bible authority, spiritual truth can be discerned and received in the love of it only by those that are spiritual, so that he who relies on that standard never satisfies those opposing.

I was, perhaps, as much opposed to "this sect everywhere spoken against" as any one of your number, and verily thought such a course was doing God service. I embraced the Andrew-Fuller system, and was under teachers of theology—was sincere in thinking salvation was offered and only offered to all men—that it depended on the creature's own will whether he accepted it or not—that Sunday school teaching was a wonderful help in the Lord's work—that missionary boards were a happy organization for spreading the gospel—that theological teaching was a wise provision for training a man to preach—that money would hasten the conversion of the world, if we only had it; glorifying in this age of wisdom in devising and developing many fruitful measures for accelerating the progress of truth, and regarding the man blind and bigoted who would not come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

During this period of several years, some of my actions were bad enough to stagger me. Trouble like dark billows would at times roll over me, succeeded by short relief. My zeal, however continued unabated; but the tasks began to increase.

Suddenly corruptions arose everywhere within me with a fierceness uncontrollable, and sin raged like a devouring fire. The law confronted me with a killing sentence, and death. I thought was on me. Hell was the only place that could fitly receive me, and it was so just in God in sending me there that my soul must approve the righteous sentence. While sinking down Jesus was manifested in the heavens in a glorious appearance, and these words sounded out, "If God give you Christ, how shall he not with him also freely give you all things." Since then Christ is my only hope, and all human righteousness appears as filthy rags from which I wish to be delivered. A painful sense of sin forbids confidence in the flesh, and I am entirely dependent for faith on its author and finisher.

Upon this new, and I hope heavenly teaching, which was about five years ago, followed fresh troubles, but of a different sort. A general dissatisfaction with the principles and practices of the denomination I had until then gloried in began to arise.

Salvation must be either by works or of grace, and not by blending them; but your people, it seemed were trying to blend the two systems. That it is by grace both the Bible and my own experience taught: "By grace ye are saved through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God, not of works lest any man should boast;" "If it is of grace, it is no more of works," &c. It was presented to me in some such manner as this, that in the new covenant of grace Jesus, the second Adam stood for his seed, as the first Adam stood in nature for his, and that they must all be in him, as the first Adam's seed were all in him, and that Jesus made all that were in him righteous in his obedience, as Adam made all that were in him unrighteous in his disobedience; and though the law is given that the offense might abound, this affects not the covenant, for where sin abounded, grace did much more abound—that the names of his children were all written in the Lamb's book of life, from the foundation of the world—that they were the Father's who gave them to Jesus, and made him who knew no sin to be sin for them, and that he in holy obedience fulfilled the law for them, and gave his life in all prevailing righteousness for their ransom. It was necessary for Christ to die, as he was surety for a people actually under sentence of death. When he, the Shepherd is taken to pay their debt, God turns his hand on the little ones to shelter them and they escape. Jesus is crucified and the church receives forgiveness and the blotting out of sin; Jesus rises from the dead and the church is justified: "He was delivered for our offences, and raised again for our justification." To make manifest unto them their salvation, Jesus is exalted a prince and Saviour, to give repentance and remission of sins unto Israel: God carries out his own counsel according to the purpose of foreordination: "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son: whom he did predestinate them he also called, and whom he called them he also justified, and whom he justified them he also glorified."

Will any but these be saved, and will not all of these be saved? was a leading question in my mind. Will any sheep for whom Christ laid down his life be lost; will the lawful captive be delivered? Shall Jesus see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied? Shall God, who commends his love to us while we were yet sinners, by giving his Son for us, in whom we are reconciled through his death, fail to draw any to Christ, since none would come without the drawing of him whose love is everlasting? Is what Jesus said true, "Glorify thy Son, that thy Son may also glorify thee, as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him?" I am free to say, that all blessings which man enjoys come to him through Christ; but here the question is, as to his chosen people to whom he gives eternal life. The Saviour prays that he may be glorified in their salvation, but if one were lost how would the completeness of his atonement be glorified in that? Will all that the Father gave to Christ come to him? "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me." Will any others? "No man can come to me, except the Father that sent me, draw him." "But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep." Human nature, which cannot help to bring the sinner to Christ, cannot prevent it in the day when "shall come" makes him willing. Such questions were sweetly answered in scriptural assurances, powerfully enforced—that God, who declares the end from the beginning, and whose faithfulness will not fail, will not suffer any sheep to be lost, any wheat to be left in the chaff, nor any child to be forgotten: "Here am I and the children that God hath given me;" it also convinced me that no goats would appear in heaven with the sheep, no chaff with the wheat, no bastards with the children.

Mankind are ready to question God's right to discriminate among a mass where all are equally guilty. They say is he not unjust in choosing some of Adam's broken creation to eternal life, and leaving the rest where a holy law assigns them? Accordingly most denominations attempt to apologize for it, by accounting for it, either on ground of foreseen or afterseen good works, thus giving the creature an important part to perform, and ground for boasting. But God has not chosen them for, or according to, their works of righteousness, but according to his mercy: "He will have mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth." He is not the author of sin, nor does he tempt any man to sin, nor can he be tempted with evil. He made man upright, but Adam the vessel, was marred and fell by his disobedience procured by an enemy; and hath not God power of this same broken lump, to make one vessel unto honor, and another unto dishonor, when justice said all should be made to dishonor? None but God could have such power to save. He fits the vessel of mercy to glory aforehand, and on these he will have mercy: he bears long with the vessels of wrath, fitted, suited only to destruction and the very blessings he sends on them they pervert to their own hardening, and judgments harden them. He makes their condition no worse. What keeps them from coming to Christ? They love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil. It is not predestination that keeps men from Christ, but it brings them to him. Men manifest their love of sin by choosing it invariably and constantly when they are left to follow their own wills. Man can no more plead his inability to come to Christ, as if election caused that inability, than he can plead his love of sin as the reason for not coming, since it is his love of sin, and not election, that keeps him away, and by so much as he is unable to come, by so much does his sin appear. What electing love decrees is, to give some eternal life, and make them willing to be saved in Jesus. The saint feels that so dead in sin was he that if the Lord had waited for him to begin this work, he had been left as Sodom, and if his salvation had depended on his performance of the less than least possible condition, he would be forever lost, or if daily grace should be withheld on account of daily unworthiness, his hope would perish. The wonder with him is, why God should ever have chosen him, and not why he should have left him out. He never can see any good thing in himself as a reason why he should be saved. The sweet mystery is wrapped up in the folds of grace, and the righteousness of such a choice is unfolded alone in the blood of Jesus.—The apostle's reason suits me: "that we should be the praise of the glory of his grace."

I have, at some length, expressed my views as to the nature, extent and power of the atonement, knowing that your denomination seem to regard it as universal, and hold to a very general, uncertain, and indefinite application of it, reconcilable with man's natural power of accepting or rejecting it, according to the motives that may be brought to bear on that natural power and will.

But the redeemed by nature are children of wrath even as others, being by nature dead in trespasses and in sins. Now an important question, as it seemed to me, was, by what power can these dead sinners be quickened and made sensible of their lost condition? and, who shall reveal the arm of the Lord unto them? If they are dead in sins they cannot bring themselves to life, and it is equally certain they cannot be brought into life by man. The scriptures say it must be of God. They must not only be born of water, which alludes to the washing of regeneration, that is effected by the shedding of the blood of Jesus; that is, they must not only be redeemed, but they must be born of the Spirit, or born of God—that one cannot see the kingdom of God until he has a spiritual birth. What power produces this birth? "The Spirit quickeneth whom he will; 'The Spirit giveth life.'" Then the Holy Ghost is the only, and always effectual agent in the heavenly birth. The ever blessed Trinity are equally engaged in salvation; God the Father gives the people to Jesus, and lays their sins on him, and no less a personage than God the Son can make the atonement, and he is put to death in the flesh to make an end of sin. It requires God the Holy Spirit to quicken the dead sinners and reveal Christ unto them. "No man can say that Jesus Christ is Lord but by the Holy Ghost."

What shows the sinner that he is lost; not human teaching, for that but sets him to building up himself by setting him to work in the fleshly nature. What makes the sinner sensible of his poverty, but the Holy Spirit quickening him to see the spiritual holy nature and demands of the law of God, and then this same Spirit takes the things of Jesus and shows them to the sinner, and seals him an heir of salvation.

A question that was long in my mind was this: What is the design of preaching? and to-whom does the gospel come in demonstration of the Spirit and of power? "How can they hear without a preacher?" "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." It was through preaching that the knowledge of salvation was communicated, as the Lord gave to every man. The apostles were commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, and he that believed, &c., shall be saved. Let it be observed, that faith is indispensable, and so also repentance, and that faith is no less than the gift of God. Faith is just as much of grace as any part of salvation. "It is of faith that it might be by grace," &c. Faith is a fruit of the Spirit. "We through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness which is by faith."—Faith sees God's way of saving sinners and rests the soul in an imputed righteousness. Faith cometh by hearing, but how would it come to a human heart if it were the work of a creature? How does hearing come? "By the word of God."—The birth of the incorruptible seed by the word of God develops hearing. The soul then can hear, and to such faith comes. How can they hear without a preacher? The apostles and others called of God, were sent forth, and they preach—not a round of human works, but Christ, which is the gospel of God's wisdom and power unto salvation. Some believed with the heart unto righteousness. Who did believe? "As many as were ordained to eternal life believed." God ordained them to salvation from the beginning, and ordained the means for it. God hath from the beginning, chosen you to salvation, through sanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth." By faith the knowledge of salvation is received. Nothing but faith can apprehend that eternal spiritual righteousness that justifies a sinner and God gives that faith.

The apostles are ministers by whom the saved believed, even as the Lord gave to every man. Then the true preacher has his gift. How can they preach except they be sent? The Lord of the harvest sends these laborers into his harvest, and they reap wheat. It pleased God, by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe.—Then we are told that they cannot preach unless they be sent, and one cannot believe unless it be given him from above. Then, where is the proof that one ever believed unless it was of the Lord, or that one ever preached the gospel unless it was of the Lord? The Holy Ghost endows men to preach, and every gift is to profit. Even the apostles were to tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high before they went to preaching. Who sent Paul to preach to heathen?—"And the Holy Ghost said, separate me Paul and Barnabas, for the work whereunto I have called them."—Paul was directed by the Spirit where to go, because the Lord had people at such places, and he was restrained from going to certain places.

Preaching, then seems to be the appointed means—not of making sheep, but of feeding them after gathering them into the fold, and for this high purpose certain ones are called and endowed by the Holy Spirit that guides them and is their mouth and wisdom, and seals the heirs salvation; and who is sufficient for these things, if his sufficiency be not of God? Who makes him an able minister of the New Testament? The treasure is in earthen vessels, but the excellency of the power is of God. No wonder the frail earthen vessel trembles when burdened with such a treasure. But the feet of such are beautiful as they publish peace to poor famishing souls. The blessing is to the hungry; the poor have the gospel preached to them. The wisdom and power of God in a finished salvation are proclaimed, and while the words are powerful and searching, and expose the hidden darkness of the heart, bringing every secret thing to light, as a wonderful interpreter, telling the poor soul all he ever did, faith sweetly unfolds the glory of Christ and his righteousness to every one that believeth, and then how sweet the message to Zion's convert, "thy God reigneth."

The gospel is a savor of life unto life in them that are saved; but how different to them that perish. These will boast of free agency and despise the gospel. The carnal mind is enmity against God, and cannot be subject to his law. Now if you can tell me what can give such scoffers a new heart, that could desire Christ, unless you tell me that God does it, perhaps you can declare a new thing under the sun. One thing seems clear to me; that the human will never wants Christ and never comes to him.

But how can one preach except he is sent? Some of your people say that boards send them, and that they cannot go without money secured after your way of obtaining it, which was enough of itself to cause my soul to distrust boards. Does not the Lord of the harvest send forth his laborers? He sent the apostles, who went into all the world and preached the gospel to every creature. Who prepares them to preach? God teaches all his preachers, as well as his people, and the preaching and interpretation are the same. They are all thrown under one schoolmaster, the law; a flesh-killing teacher he is, too; and there they are hedged in, until Christ is revealed, then they are no longer under tutors, but Jesus teaches them.

But say you, cannot the schools aid in training and fitting one to preach, cannot colleges which men have originated and built up, aid the Holy Spirit in preparing men to preach? Paul says he was not taught the gospel by man, nor did he receive it of man, but by revelation, nor did he confer with flesh and blood; but straightway after baptism preached Christ that he is the Lord. How any man who knows anything of the divine fitness necessary to prepare one to preach the gospel, and the utter insufficiency of human schools to aid at all, can yet, in the face of Paul's plain declaration, that he was not taught by man, but by revelation, insist that he went into Arabia to a school for that purpose, was such a stumbling-block to me that I could have no fellowship with those that avowed it. But one says, were not the disciples with Jesus three years before they began to preach? Yes, and if they are not with him all their lives, what is their preaching worth? Are the schools in the place of Jesus, or is he to be found by going to them? and is that the way to get with Christ.

But say you, were there not schools of the prophets? Well, it seems to me that the prophets can give as sensible an account of their call as any can give for them. Do any of them ever tell us that they were called out of any school, or ever called to go to any such place? They spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. But who were the sons of the prophets? I suppose their children. They tell us of false prophets fed at Jezebel's table, and these perhaps were taught by man or some lying spirit.

But you say, will not human learning aid man in preaching the gospel—will not it give him words and power over men's minds, and enable them to present the gospel in a more attractive form? I am free to admit the value of human learning in man's earthly affairs, and heartily commend its acquisition in that sense. But what does inspiration say about spiritual things, and how they are spoken? "Which things also we speak, not in words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual." Not many wise men are called, but God calls the ignorant and foolish to confound the wise. Witness Peter and John. While Peter was an unlearned man, he preached the gospel to men, speaking about sixteen different tongues, and each one in his own tongue heard the wonderful works of God. You say those days had miracles. But can man, of himself, any more preach the gospel now than he could then? A man that has never been taught that he is a poor, blind, helpless sinner, knows nothing about it.

When man thinks by human learning he can find out God or serve him, he is puffed up. When the Lord calls a learned man (though he does not call many,) that man glories in becoming a fool that he may win Christ. Let every man abide in his calling. If the ignorant man is called, let him know that out of the mouths of babes God's praise is perfected; if one is called being learned, let him know that the foolishness of God is wiser than the wisdom of men, but let him use his knowledge as occasion serves. The faithful study of the Scriptures, in humble dependence on the anointing which is from above, thoroughly furnishes the man of God unto every good work.

But do we not need men of human learning to preach to intelligent christians? Human learning makes no part of the new man, and the saint who has human learning is just as weak and dependent on

God for his crumb as any other, and all are fed with the same kind of food. But, say you, after one is certainly called to preach, cannot the schools polish him and give him more influence over men, and enable him to better command their respect, by keeping pace with human learning? Tell me, from scripture, where one ever tried it, or where it was ever authorized? How much can frail man add to God's gift? How much pride do you think is necessary to influence man to presume on such a task? Do not the scriptures pointedly forbid the employment of wordly weapons in building up Christ's kingdom, and are not all appeals to the base passions of human nature contrary to heavenly teaching? Is the minister of Christ to suit his message to proud man's tastes? "We speak wisdom to them that are perfect, but not the wisdom of this world." If a natural man cannot discern the things of the Spirit because they are foolishness unto him, does it follow that a spiritual one will be edified by wordly wisdom, the very food that most delights man's pride?

It seems to me that the scriptures make some allusions to such schools though in the way of alarm? "But the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but will after their own lusts heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears." Much as the Bible is talked of, its doctrine is not endured, but the progressive age calls for theological schools that shall enlighten men to preach doctrines suitable to men's lusts. Men who have devoted so much time and labor in the preparation for the ministry are worthy of positions of influence and profit. The teachers come from these schools dosed with a sort of preparation from dead men's brains that will make them sick enough if God should teach them where there dependence lies—How do these schools heap up teachers? They afford opportunities for obtaining an education, open the way to positions of honor and reward, so that there is but little trouble attending the road; and, if money enough could be commanded, it would be difficult to tell how many would be heaped up; but they shall have itching ears and shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. The doctrines and fables of men are accepted. Andrew Fuller becomes a wonderful standard. Not content to walk in the way of revelation, and live in dependence on God, for their message, their success, and their bread, they must follow the cunningly devised fables of men. The fables are powerless unless cunningly devised; the wolf of course coming in the sheep-skin, the messengers of Satan transformed into angels of light. Does not Mr. Fuller teach salvation by grace? so do all other denominations in their way, no doubt all thinking they are right. But how are they detected? If they are not of the truth they will cross the right way somewhere. Andrew Fuller takes repentance and faith out of the covenant of grace, and puts them under law, in the sense that he makes them man's duty, and not gifts of grace. If salvation comes on account of man's performance of his duty, it is of works in some sense. He brings in the modern Missionary enterprise, a system somewhat like the Popish measures for propagating their creed, but unknown to the Bible and to Baptists, and is a disturber of gospel peace and order among the churches. By reading his works one can see from his own statements that his views were strange, and new to Baptists, and it may be inferred from the opposition to him. Those who condemned his plans, and desired to follow the apostles' ways, abiding in their doctrine, as Baptists had done up to that time, were such as you now call anti-missionary Baptists; while those that followed Mr. Fuller are the modern Missionary Baptists, claiming him as their standard, though it is doubtful if his followers have not departed further from the truth than he did, as he refused flattering titles, which they accept for modesty's sake without much urging, and do not preach salvation as nearly by grace as he did, so they are waxing worse and worse. The system of doctrines which he brought in required and contained in its fruitful womb all the offspring of modern missionism. Since the whole world is now to be evangelized under his theory, many teachers are needed, and since man has so much to do, and can do it so well, he must prepare these teachers—and so theological schools are brought forth. Inasmuch as money is so good just here, in equipping them, and upholding the enterprise; a wise system of begging to obtain it is devised, in the name of religion. As the world is to be converted to our measures and religion, where can we so well begin as with the youth, while their minds are tender and their conversion easier, and Sunday schools rise up as a wonderful means for this work—the nursery and right arm of the church.—Human knowledge becomes the hand-maid of religion and how sweetly they walk together. Some man must hold the hand of the Missionary while he goes down in the wells, and he must see how his bread comes before he goes, and your churches combine in forming such tremendous agencies of power as your conventions, while all glory in the fruits of your wise system. That your denomination generally endorse your system is manifest, and what little I write may only have the effect of influencing them to fall down before their idols, and shout in louder strains, "great is Diana of the Ephesians."

In this system, salvation is somewhat dependent on what man does of himself, it is not a gift, unless he does something to obtain it, and he may forfeit it by his misdoing. Much power is claimed by your boards, even that of sending out, directing and sustaining your Missionaries, and controlling their work; much power is claimed by your teachers, too, in converting men, reminding one of the characteristics of the man of sin, who exalts himself above all that is called God, sitting in the temple of God, and showing that he is God. In popedom the power of pardoning sin (God's prerogative) is boldly assumed as the mystery of iniquity. In Protestant denominations this power is covertly claimed in sprinkling children—a practice condemned by your people, yet it seems to me you are allied to the man of sin in various ways. You hold your traditions of men; you put yourselves in the place of the Holy Spirit, when you teach and better prepare men to preach, directing them where and how to go; when you teach your missionaries to place their dependence for support on yourselves it looks like taking it away from its proper place; and what less when you teach that if money enough be contributed you can evangelize the world? For your frequent use of the anxious seat, no apology is made that does not suppose some power in the preacher, time, place, or occasion to aid in conversion. Your preaching too savors of the idea that it is the means of procuring the new birth. If you say these are important means, and we judge them to be righteous because of their good fruits, I should take issue with you generally. Why did not the apostles, who are the twelve judges in the church proclaiming the law that is final, authorize them? See what fearful penalties they foretell for those who either add to or take from the law that governs in Zion. Are not their terrible cautions against the love of money and making gain of godliness, enough to cause one to beware of covetousness? See, too, how pride is condemned, pride of intellect, whose great boast and most effective weapon is human learning that puffeth up. God's ministers are sent to preach the gospel, and woe is to them if they go not, money having nothing to do with their going. The preacher like Paul, the true Missionary, labors night and day working with his own hands for the support of himself, and those with him, coveting no man's money or apparel, rather than be burdensome to the churches: for Paul tells the preachers of the Ephesian church he had set them such an example for that intent. The true preacher being delivered from the snare of covetousness, seeks first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, resting the matter of his support with him who feeds the sparrows and clothes the lilies, feeling that he, as well as any other man, should labor with his own hands for his bread, if Providence orders it so: while true churches are likewise delivered from the snare of covetousness, and need not be begged for a gift, but of a ready mind minister of their temporal things to those that minister to them in spiritual things. The preacher is content to let the matter of giving rest in the free cheerful contributions of christians, and feed the flock of God which he has purchased with his own blood, taking the oversight thereof, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; while the churches as freely give, not only to him, but to any in need, and know the blessing of the cheerful giver.

But now attend one of your meetings, such as an association or convention. What a gathering place for agents, appointed to raise money, artful men trying to make such good impressions that one will be glad to give them, and what consummate skill do they use in begging for each other; telling the pastors the more the people give the agents the more will they give to them. The arrangements of the meeting are wisely adapted to raise money, the speeches ring of it, the pet measures are discussed when the largest crowds assemble, and such appeals as that the heathen are perishing because the people will not give them money enough to send the gospel to them are urgently made. When fever heat is attained, and the coveted moment for casting in the money-drag comes, such excitement prevails that an observer might well conclude that money is indeed an object with them. Those who refuse to give them are of a bad spirit, those who have nothing to give feel that they are held at a low valuation, while those who give much are heralded abroad as worthy; for the standard of piety consists in part in this sort of charity falsely so-called.

You speak of the fruits of your system. I have often heard of the speed you were making; your seers have often promised us the golden harvest of the universal reign of religion and peace, if the money could but be raised. Well, you have raised enormous sums of money, you have compassed land and sea, the kings of the earth have given you access to their countries, and you have said the fields were ripe. For about a hundred years you have experimented. Now, ignorant people that cannot see afar off, must look around their own homes, and in their own country to see the fruits of your system. What then are some of the fruits at the fountain in our own midst? In the name of religion your northern brethren, leaders in the missionary movement, have waged a ruinous war on us all, our once good government is gone, our once happy people down trodden, vice prevails, and the very fountains of government seem to be poisoned. I know no such fruits as these among the people I am with.

You think we are opposed to the preaching of the gospel, because we earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, withdraw from those who cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine of Christ, and sharply rebuke these errors. But we rejoice in the preaching of the gospel in all lands. We think that preaching the gospel is the appointed means, not of making God's children, but of calling them out of the world, and feeding them, and that the government of this family rests upon the shoulder of the wonderful Counselor, of the increase of whose kingdom there shall be no end—that he holds the preachers or angels in his right hand and walks among the candlesticks, and that he as much directs and protects his people as he ever did, chastening them for their wanderings and bringing them back.—It is as much their duty to obey their King on the holy hill of Zion, and keep themselves from idols as it ever was. The Lord gives his people a new heart, and works in them both to will and to do of his good pleasure, making them willing in the day of his power, and hence they are careful to maintain good works. They are dead to the love of sin, they see nothing pleasing in the world, and the world sees nothing pleasing in them; each being dead to the other. The urgent appeals of scripture are addressed to the Lord's, people, to save themselves from the untoward generation, and every evil way, while the threatenings on the ungodly are prophetic of their final doom. It is of the utmost importance to every one, to examine himself and see whether he has a hope of a well grounded nature, to watch, and fight the good fight of faith.

We think the gospel is preached to every creature, but do not understand that the world is ever to be converted—that wonders after the beast.

You stated that we are workers together with God. Do you mean that there is an equality or partnership? No more than there is between the ploughman and the plough. The Lord, it seems, calls, sends forth, goes with, and works in his people by his Spirit and directs them where to go, and when, as he did of old, and no man, nor set of men, can take his place, nor take the work of preparing, directing, and upholding his laborers out of his hand, or put it in their own.

You lament my association with a people who do not rely on human helps in interpreting the Bible. Well, if one has the anointing that teacheth him all things, why should he rely on man? If he can go to the clear fountain, why drink in the muddy branch? You are mortified to see the people delivered over to the custody of men who attempt to preach without reading any but the English Bible. If they are called they can preach.

whether they can read the English or Hebrew Bible, and if they cannot read either. Without God sends one can he preach? Is not the gift which the Spirit bestows the indispensable qualification for preaching, and if one has that can he not preach? As far as I am able to judge, if at all, the Old School Baptist preachers study the Bible more, and understand the gospel better, than any other class of preachers.

You ask me to come forward and show you a more excellent way, if yours is not right, for you must labor in some way. I have no way of my own to show you. Paul says charity is the more excellent way—the love of God in Jesus, who is the way, the truth, and the life. If one come bringing not this gospel, neither receive him into your house, nor bid him God speed. Let each one walk worthy of the high vocation wherewith he is called, in all meekness and long suffering, forgiveness and brotherly love. As for labor, there is plenty of that in the good old way, but it is neither easy nor fashionable. One should always abound in the work of the Lord, seeing his labor is not in vain, and he can have as much hard service with an old enemy, the flesh, which is never ashamed of worrying him, but which he is daily to deny, as any poor saint can desire. There are always hungry sheep to be fed, but the Lord saves us from the impossible task of teaching one another to know the Lord in the new covenant: "For they shall not teach every man his neighbor, saying, know the Lord, for all shall know me from the least unto the greatest." One can find the heathen here all around him: but what good will preaching to dead men do, unless the Lord goes with him? But does the Lord go with him unless he sends him, and he goes in his name, and how can he go in the Lord's name and in the name of some other? The Lord alone leads Jacob, and no strange god is found with him.

The Lord has long ago redeemed his sheep, paid the price down, not a corruptible one either, such as silver and gold—but his precious blood and he will not leave a hoof behind. He just as much brings the last stone as the first in this building, and not by human might, but by his Spirit, nor will he be debtor to man. No hurried zeal of Jehu hastens him—no wanderings of Jonah hinder him. He who is God, seeing the end from the beginning, will do all his pleasure, casting down every high thing that exalts itself, and raising the beggar from the dunghill to the throne; his righteousness will be brought to the noonday light in taking vengeance on man's inventions, and his grace be glorious in saving those that wait on him, such as hope in his mercy, and call on his name. Oh! who will not fear before God, for marvelous are his works, and just and true are his ways, who is king of saints.

I have in this way been trying to answer your inquiry, by giving you the impressions that were made on my mind, endeavoring to condense the account as much as possible, to express my views. A few years ago these views took such possession of my mind that I could not preach any other doctrine. But, many of the people I was with objected; some saying there was a disproportionate quantity of election; others said, let us have more works—and, if this is true, God is unjust; while others said it was a dangerous doctrine and I had better go to the "hard-shells." There was confusion—like the number of the "Recorder" in which your inquiry appears, wherein one lauds Andrew Fuller as the standard, while another charges him with defection from the truth. Your Northern Baptists were your enemies, and you opposed to them in the sense that there was poor fellowship. There was, it seemed to me, striving for honor among you, there was an improper resort to the world for its good will, and many evils I felt to be inconsistent with Christ's church I could not endorse your pet measures, and your denomination did not love the doctrine that was dear to me. Honesty required me to leave. I would not advise any man to leave you who believes you are right.

While you had disorder, it seemed to me that the Lord's church was one, abiding steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine, and walking blameless in the ordinances of the Lord's house, not resorting to the artifices of men, the fascinations of wealth, the power of learning, nor any device to swell their numbers; but dwelling to themselves, separate from the nations, and were content to heartily receive in their fellowship all poor sinners which the Lord sent them. The Old School Baptists seemed to be that people, and I loved them. There were many people among you I loved as christians, and I hated to wound the feelings of any by leaving them: but the Bible said pointedly to me—"Come out of Babylon!" "Be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean and I will receive you." Whom should I obey, God or man? No one knows the grief I felt for years. I thought of going to an unknown country and there offering myself to them, to avoid the thing of which you are complaining. But at length an open door is given me, and I am made willing in the face of all the reproach to go where I have found gospel peace, rest, and fellowship worth more than all the world. Whenever any of your people become dissatisfied with the burdens and confusion of your denomination, and wish to unite with a people that love the doctrine of grace in word and deed, feeling that nothing else can save them, and spurning everything else as wicked, desiring baptism at the hands of those who have kept the ordinances as the apostles delivered them, let them come out and take Christ's yoke and they will find rest to their souls. It is not my desire to needlessly offend any, and if this should be of any true service, I am willing to suffer the reproach that will follow upon its publication.

Respectfully yours to serve,
P. D. GOLD.

NOTICE TO DEAR BRETHREN ABROAD.

To the dear Brethren of Sister Associations with whom we correspond, either directly or indirectly: We inform you through our minutes and ZION'S LANDMARK that there is a faction gone off from the Little River Primitive Baptist Association, lead by one J. B. Parker and others, and claiming (as we understand) the name of said Association. They have been excluded from our fellowship, and we are not responsible in any way for their transactions, either in a private or public way. The Little River Association is standing upon the original grounds on which she was constituted upwards of sixty years ago, both in doctrine, ordinances and practice, and are in full fellowship with all Primitive Baptist Associations of this and the other states of this Union, as our minutes will show, and are received by them.

Done by the unanimous voice of the Association in its last setting together at Little Creek Church, Johnston county N. C. Sept. 28th 29th and 30th 1894-

Elder J. T. COATS Mod.

Eld. J. A. T. Jones Clerk.

Eld. W. J. Stephenson Ass't Clerk.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—We often hear of angel visitants, but I feel that I have visited an angel wearied with the cares of life. I went out to see sister Caroline House, widow of our late beloved pastor, Elder David House, who served us so faithfully and lovingly for many years. Sister Caroline is indeed a lovely saint, though feeble in health and bent with years, she is also weighed down with sorrow for the loss of her devoted companion; yet she seems so thankful, so full of praise to her heavenly Father. In her little home, nestled among the roses, she is quietly spending her declining years. The little birds sing around her door unmolested, the air is fragrant with the sweet odors from the blossoming trees, and she, amid her afflictions, rejoices in her blessings. Her conversation was of Divine and Heavenly things, her loving words were as manna to my hungry soul. I felt that Jesus must be there and that we had a spiritual feast. Before leaving she handed me a paper yellow with age, written when she was a young soldier in the christian warfare. I read it and begged her to let me send it to you for the LANDMARK. I told her it was so comforting to me that other young members might enjoy it and be encouraged. She said, "Oh, if I knew that it would comfort one little trembling one gladly would I let it go." She asked me to copy it, as it was written during the war when paper was so scarce that she was obliged to write it fine and close. I have have copied it, brother Gold, and feel that the experiences of the old saints tried and true are calculated to establish the young ones full of doubt and fears. Often the way seems long and I find myself trying to beg my Father to lead me on, for if He leadeth me I will have no fear. I believe He has promised never to leave nor forsake me, yet I cannot trust Him as I ought, nor praise Him as I should. I feel that you and sister Caroline live so near to Him; while I am afar off. Pray for me and mine.

Yours with love,

MRS. D. G. GILLESPIE.

EXPERIENCE.

It is, I believe the 12th year since I trust the Lord pardoned my sins. He found me in a horrible pit, and took my feet out of the mire and clay and placed them upon the rock of ages.

"What peaceful hours I then enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still."

When quite young I had serious thoughts and believed that there was a reality in religion, but thought it was not becoming to youth. I did not see a beauty in the religion of Jesus as I now do. I sometime look at my youthful friends and try to ask the Lord to show them what they are by nature and what they must be by grace ever to enjoy the peaceful presence of our God.

My God! What silken cords are thine!
How soft and yet how strong?
While love and truth and power combine,
To draw our souls along.

"The guilt of twice ten thousand sins our moment takes away,
And grace when first the work begins secures the crowning day."

I thought when I grew older I would seek it earnestly and it could be obtained, I was so ignorant as to believe that prayer consisted in a form of words, and I had my prayer book and said my prayers, and sometimes would forget to say them until some trial, then I would say them often and promise that I would do better, for I thought I had to do good to make the Lord love me. I have since learned that the preparation of the heart and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord. I had some severe trials which brought me low. My worldly prospects were blighted. I concluded I was the most unfortunate creature in the world. I then thought if I were prepared to die I would rather die than live, for I had a proud heart and thought a great deal about what the world would say and think of me and mourned more about that than for my sins. For as yet I had not seen the worst of my condition and was not reconciled to the cross providences I was experiencing. My tongue cannot express how sad and dejected I felt for years without God and without hope in the world. But my blessed Jesus knows all, and in his own time I trust he showed me the worst of my case. One day I went to Cross Roads and Elder B. Cooper preached. While he preached I heard him attentively. He preached to the christians and talked like he knew they would be saved and did not say anything to the sinners. About the time he got through I felt provoked and said to an old acquaintance of mine, I don't see the use of his preaching, for he has not said one word to sinners and I think they are the ones to preach to. I thought he preached a hard doctrine and my nature was opposed to it. Before I left the ground my mind was exercised in this way: The character of the man and of those that professed; and perhaps I might be wrong, and that "there was a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death." I was so unhappy that I could not enjoy anything. I resolved to go home and read my Bible more carefully and ask the Lord to show me the right way whether it seemed right to me or not, for I felt the weight of my sins so heavy that I could not help reading, though it condemned me. I would continue to read, cry and beg God to be merciful to me a sinner. I thought I was the most ignorant creature that ever lived and sin was the cause of all. My mind wandered. I could not have a good thought and felt that it was a wonder that I was permitted to live. My prayers did not reach higher than my head and sometimes I felt so guilty I could not utter a word. I read that God could not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance. I wanted christians to pray for me, for I believed the prayers of the righteous availeth much. I became anxious to hear Elder B. Cooper preach. I went, and he looked different to what he ever looked before. In a few moments he commenced to sing and the words were so true I have not forgotten them yet. It was Lloyd's Selection of Hymns 17th number. When he took his text and repeated it I was trembling. It made such an impression that I have not forgotten it yet. By faith, when Moses was come to years he refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter choosing rather to suffer afflictions among the people of God than to dwell in the pleasures of sin for a season, esteeming the reproach of Christ richer than all the treasures of Egypt. I felt that day while going on as if I had neither a friend on earth or in heaven. I had never told my exercises to any one, but all the time tried to conceal it. When I would steal my Bible out to read if any one came near I would conceal it, for I did not wish them to see me read in that good book. Brother Cooper on that day told all my thoughts from the time I had first heard him to the present, and just at the close of his sermon he said he believed there were some under the sound of his voice that were experiencing what he said, and if so beloved, Heaven will ere long be your home. Oh! how I loved him, for I felt he lived nearest like I thought a preacher ought to live of any body I knew. I spent the next week with an acquaintance. She was constantly asking me what was the matter with me? I could not tell her I was sin-sick. One day while sitting at the table she asked me to tell her what I felt like I could eat for she was afraid I would be sick. I could not answer one word, for my eyes were full to overflowing and I thought she was so kind and that everything she had was too good for me, and if she knew me as I knew myself she would not be so kind. She has since told me she thought she knew what was the matter with me. She asked me if ever I had read any of "Osborn's Writings." I told her I had read a book called "Gospel Fragments," to an old lady several years ago that could not see how to read. She asked me how I liked it. I told her it was a dry work to me then. She told me to read it again, she thought I would like it now. She also loaned me a book called "A Glimpse at The Building of Mercy." I was so interested in the books that I slept but little until I had read them. This passage was constantly on my mind, "that God would send you strong delusions that you might believe a lie, because you received not the love of the truth." I was so troubled I thought I was not long for this world and what I had experienced was just to show me the beauties of salvation, and how I had neglected so great a salvation and the day of grace had passed. While reading "A Glimpse at the Building of Mercy" the inner and outer court worshipper were described and what sort of people were given up to believe a lie. It was past twelve o'clock when my mind was relieved and I received so much comfort. I have never forgotten that work; although the man is dead, his writings still preach and comfort poor sinners all led by the same spirit.

They all drink in one spirit which makes them all see

They are one in Christ Jesus wherever they be,

The Jew and the Gentile, the bond and free,

One day my burden was so heavy I thought I could not live under its pressure, and sat down on the door-steps to see the sun set. I dreaded night and was afraid I should not live to see the light of another day. My tongue cannot express my agony that evening. I never had frightful dreams nor horror of eternal burning as I have heard some tell, but to be banished from God's peaceful presence was suffering in deed and in truth. Often I entered my room and tried to pray. I fell upon my knees but I thought I was such a great distance from God by reason of sin that God would not hear me, but the words of the poet came to my mind:

"I can but perish if I go,
I am resolved to try;
For if I stay away I know
I must forever die."

While on my knees this Scripture came to me, "Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no Physician?" There my burden left me. I felt calm, and in a few moments

I was asleep and it was a sweet sleep. The next morning when I awoke the sun was shining. It looked prettier than I had ever seen it. My eyes were filled with tears of love and gratitude, for I loved everything, everybody. I commenced to praise the Lord. Before I left my room for breakfast something seemed to say to me, "Why are you so full of rejoicing? Do you think your sins are forgiven? If they had been you would have heard a voice and you would have told your friends and not gone to sleep. I concluded I should have a brighter manifestation but could not help praising the Lord. Finally I wanted my burden back again that I might know plainer how it left, as it seemed more like a dream, for I did not want to be deceived about such an important matter. I begged the Lord to give my burden back and concluded I was in a worse situation than before. Different passages of scripture would comfort me for a short time. About a fortnight after my burden left me I picked up an old hymn book and my eyes fell on these words, and as I read every verse I claimed it to be mine, and it carried my mind back to my delivery. Then my tongue was loosed and I told some of my friends.

"Away my doubts, begone my fears,
The wonder of the Lord appears.
The wonders that my Saviour wrought,
Oh! how delightful is the thought.
The wonders of redeeming love,
When first my heart was drawn above.
When first I saw my Saviour's face,
And triumphed in his pardoning grace," &c
CAROLINE HOUSE.

WITHDRAWN.

Elder J. M. Harris is unable to fill his appointments in consequence of sickness.

P. D. G.

REQUEST.

We do not advertise in ZION'S LANDMARK, but give the full paper in reading matter.

The price of the paper in pamphlet form, $1.50 per annum, but little over pays the cost of its publication, as it is much more expensive to us in that form than in newspaper style.

We have had poor collections this year, and have been waiting on many of the subscribers. Now we request you as soon as possible to send us in your subscriptions, as we are in need of the money.

Please lay aside that amount as you sell cotton, tobacco, or other products, and send it on and oblige us very much.

P. D. G.

NOTICE.

We, The Indian Creek Church of Christ and Primitive order of Baptists, now in session, believe it our duty to notify the brethren at large through ZION'S LANDMARK, that Henry A. Harvey, on the night of the fourteenth of September 1894, left his wife and children and ran away with another man's wife, with a paper from our church giving him liberty to preach.

We take this method of warning others of him. Done by order of the church.

W. L. SIMMONS, MOD.

A. P. MILLER, CLERK.
Greenville, W. Va.

Elder J. T. Edgerton extends a cordial welcome to all who have a mind to visit the Black Creek Association. Call for reduced rates on rail road.

Elder J. C. William's Post-Office is Monroe, N. C.

ASSOCIATIONAL.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Please publish in the LANDMARK that the next session of the Mill Branch Association is appointed to be held with the Mill Branch church, commencing Friday before the first Sunday in November 1894. Those coming by the way of Wilmington will be met at Whiteville on Thursday at 5 o'clock p. m. Those coming from South will change cars at Chadbourne and will be met at Clarendon on the W. C. & A. R. R. at 10 o'clock a. m., Thursday. Brethren and especially ministers, are invited to attend.

THOS. BELL Mod.
M. M. Harrelson Clerk.

The Toisnot Association is expected to meet with the church at Moores, Wilson Co., N. C. on Saturday before the 3rd Sunday in October. Visitors will be met on Friday at Wilson, N. C., and Elm City N. C. We hope for a large gathering of brethren and friends.

A. J. MOORE Mod.
L. Holden Clerk.

UNION MEETING.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—Will you please say in the LANDMARK that the next Contentnea Union is appointed to be held with the church (Bear CeeK) at La Grange on Saturday before the 5th Sunday in December next, when we hope to meet many of the dear children of God. La Grange is the second station from Goldsboro on the A. & N. C. Rail Road.

Elder W. J. Stephenson will accompany Elder Hutchins from Cypress Creek to Smithfield on his appointments, if the Lord will.

NOTICE.

Have you a Cancer, a Wart, or a Tumor which you would like to have cured? Then call on or address L. H. Hardy, Newport, N. C.

I have treated between sixty and seventy cases in the last nine years without a single failure or the loss of a case.

Feeling to rejoice that there is relief for the afflicted I am very Respectfully,

L. H. HARDY.

OBITUARIES.

JOHN H. DAMERON.

Our second son, John H. Dameron was born in Caswell Co., N. C., May 7th, 1867 and died at our residence in Rockingham Co., N. C., Aug. 2nd, 1894.

He was attacked with typhoid fever in Kentucky about the last of June and left there for home about the 9th of July and arrived here on the 11th.

As he had to die, I am glad he was granted strength to reach home and die under his paternal roof, rather than among strangers. No doubt the long and tiresome trip added much to the severity of the disease, but we have the consciousness of knowing that after getting here he lacked for nothing that we could do for his comfort and relief.

When death comes medical skill and untiring attention of loving friends are of no avail. God calls and man must obey. In our bereavement we have the consoling thought that he is saved, for he left strong evidences to that effect. Last March a year ago, in Atlanta I interrogated him on the subject of his hope and though he did not then answer me definitely he said enough to satisfy me that he was born again. While with him in Georgia I could but note the fact that he selected as his special associates, such aged and substantial men as Elders Respass, Bussey, Hess and Brother. H. H. Green.

On the first day of August, when he was fully aware that he was dying he said to me, "Papa, I think I had a hope when you asked me about it at Mr. Harrelson's in Georgia, but I was not established in it. The morning I left here last March,

I went off to pray in secret and I thought the Lord gave me a promise of a bright beyond." He also said: "Mother, I did want to raise my hands this morning in praise to the Lord, but I was too weak to do it. I hope you all will do it for me. Can you all realize that I am so soon to leave you?" He remarked: "God has called for me and I must go. I want His will to be done."

Though he could scarcely be heard to speak during the early part of the day, about three o'clock the following conversation commenced and for more than two hours, in a voice sufficiently audible to be heard over the house and yard, he admonished brothers, sisters, neighbors and friends who were present, on the subject of religion.

He requested to be buried at Lick Fork and then said: "To-morrow or next day you will bury me." He told my oldest son to settle up his business and gave him a minute detail of transactions and even mentioned the name of a company in New York with whom he was negotiating for the sale of a motive power which he had patented. These details may not be interesting to many of the readers of the LANDMARK, but merely mention them to show how clear his mind remained to the last moment. The accuracy with which he quoted the Scriptures seemed almost like a miracle. During my whole ministry I do not think I have ever preached a better sermon than he did while dying. He was well grounded in the doctrine of salvation by grace and was not ashamed to defend it anywhere. He said to me: "Papa I know that the doctrine which you preach is true." At the close of the conversation alluded to he said: "I reckon I am through" and then talked very little till next morning.

In 1893 he was very anxious for me, on my return from Tennessee to stop off at Milligan and preach at the school at which he had been educated. It was indeed gratifying to me to see that my son though young, was not ashamed of my doctrine and was willing for me to preach it in the presence of the Professors and pupils of said school. Should means and opportunity be afforded me, I still feel inclined to go there and preach, because he seemed to be so earnest in his request for me to do so. About nine o'clock a. m. he revived again and talked at intervals as long as he had strength to articulate anything. He said: "Papa, I want you to pray for me. In reply told him that I had been praying for him for many years and especially since he had been sick, but after thinking for a few moments I concluded that perhaps he wanted me to pray publicly for him and I said, "Son, when do you want me to pray for you?" and he then said "right now." I knelt by his bed and we tried to ask God to bless him and us. When I closed my prayer he said "Amen."

During that morning he said "My hope is so bright—so bright." He gradually grew weaker and fell asleep in Jesus about one o'clock p. m. It would not perhaps be becoming in me to speak of his moral standing. I will leave that for his neighbors and others to say. I will, for the consideration of the youth of our country, simply mention one incident which occurred while he was sick. The doctor in urging him to use more stimulant than he was using, said to him—"John you ought to take at least one half of a pint of spirits every twenty-four hours." He looked up at the doctor and said, "I have not drunk that much in five years." It was gratifying to us to find that our son, though having traveled in various states, had lived so free from dissipation. May the Lord be praised for his reigning grace. We always try to live at peace with our neighbors, but until this affliction came upon us we were not aware of how good they were. Though they were prohibited from going into the sick room, yet they came daily and tendered their services in helping us as far as they could. God bless them for their kindness. The custom of heaping eulogy upon the dead has recently been carried to such an idolatrous extreme, that I have almost felt a delicacy in relating the real facts in this case, yet I ventured to give a synopsis of what was said and done. I know God is too wise to err and too pure to sin and I want to humbly submit to his dealings with us, yet I cannot restrain the falling tear while writing this last tribute to our dear departed boy. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord." Yours in tribulation.

JAMES S. DAMERON.

ELDER LEVI ROBERTSON.

By request of the church at Smithwick's Creek, we will attempt to write a brief sketch of the life of our worthy brother and beloved pastor, Elder Levi Rogerson. He was born in Martin County N. C., A. D. 1819 (according to the best authority.) He was the son of John and Dicie Rogerson. He grew up to manhood without any advantages of the world. According to his own statement he attended school but three days and only learned the letters of the alphabet. He was very wild in his moral character, caring but little for either heaven or hell. But the Lord as we believe in his divine mercy and good-will toward sinners saw fit to send afflictions upon him, which were so severe that his eyes were blinded, that he could not see the light of the sun by day nor the light of fire by night. However from these afflictions he was released, and sight and health were restored by the All-powerful God. From this terrible experience he thought, suppose I had died what would have been my destiny. I will reform or repent my course of life, this blinding disease may again come in such form and with such severity as to cause death. Forming such a resolution he begins the work and continues it until he in his view could see but one thing that hindered his being as good as any man that ever stood on two legs.

While in this elevated opinion he visited a Methodist friend and hearing him talk of his religion and its condition and agreeing so well with his understanding of Christ and his mission that he said he would have joined the Methodist church if it had not been too inconvenient. But after this another disease came upon him and entered into his heart, breaking the mighty seal of self conceit, and surely he said he thought this would immediately kill him. He then examined his condition to see where he would stand if brought before the judgment, and his eyes were opened to see not only the onething needful, but all things he ever did arose like mountains before him, even his own prayers condemned him.

While trying to pray it was forcibly impressed upon his mind "See what your prayers have done for you." And he resolved to pray no more. About this time the strong arm in which he had been trusting was severed from his body. He had no resolution to do any work, to him death appeared near at hand and he without the mantle of God or the hope of glory. While in this lowly condition his wife said to him "please cut me some broom straw as you are doing nothing." He said "I took the reap hook and went to the place, on arriving, before beginning the work it appeared best that I again try to pray before dying, and kneeling down near the path, the thought, suppose someone were to come along, they would ask what are you doing here. Rising up I took the hook and cut three bunches of straw, and to my surprise and understanding came a voice saying, "I have called thee three times?" Looking about to ascertain from whence came the sound could see no one. But at that time saw the plan of salvation, according to my view at the time it appeared as a narrow furrow made by a plow and if a believer did not do his duty he did not come to it and if he did too much he went over it." At this time the dreadful disease was cured and he was well and full of joy and praise, his whole heart was drawn out in thanksgiving, and being filled with the love of God he could say in the language of David "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and his wonderful works to the children of men."

Brother Rogerson joined the church at Smithwick's Creek Saturday before the 4th Sunday in January 1853 and was baptized the following day by Elder Wm. Whitaker.

His call to the ministry, when the impression was placed in his mind to speak for the cause of Christ, his education was so limited if a word had more than three letters he could not read it. In his call we often heard him say that a passage of scripture came to his mind and with that, other passages would connect and it was so impressed upon him day after day until his desire was to tell it to the brethren that they might rejoice as he did. One of his favorite texts and one which seemed to give him great comfort was, "Awake thou that sleepest arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee light." This was impressed upon him while at work in the woods; he sat down and a long train of thoughts visited his mind concerning the infinite power and boundless mercy of God. Prayer meetings were at this time held in the neighborhood of Smithwick's Creek.

Brother Rogerson attended these meetings and participated in their deliberations very acceptably, (this was in 1858.) In June 1860 he was liberated by his church to exercise his gifts within the circles of his own church. He was licensed to preach within the bounds of the Kehukee Association Sept. 1860.

Brother Rogerson was ordained to administer all the ordinances of the church of Christ in March 1864 by Elders C. B. Hassell and Wm. B. Perry.

His preaching was a demonstration of the Spirit and power and to the satisfaction of the brethren wherever he went. He was with brother Peel chosen to the pastoral care of the church at Smithwick's Creek December 1874. The church at Bear Grass also chose him as their pastor in the same month and year, which positions he acceptably filled until the time of his death, which occurred at his home July 3rd, 1894 after a protracted illness. Elder Rogerson was twice married. About the year 1847 he married Mary A. Revels who bore unto him nine children four of which survive him, two sons and two daughters. His second marriage was to Patsy Corey in 1870. She bore unto him 5 children, four of which, two sons and two daughters, are now living; also the bereaved widow is left to mourn the earthly loss.

Elder Rogerson was a hard working man, always living by the sweat of his brow. He was very kind and neighborly and leaves many friends to mourn his loss. His funeral was largely attended and services were held by brother John N. Rogerson who talked from 2d Timothy 4th chapter, 7th and 8th verses.

Brother Rogerson's career on earth was long and mingled with many sorrows and sore oppressions. But we feel that he has gone.

Beyond these chilling winds and gloomy skies.

Beyond death's cloudy portals
To a land where beauty never dies,
Where love becomes immortal."

HENRY PEEL,
WM. H. DANIEL.

MISS CYNTHIA R. SEMONES.

Sister Cynthia R. Semones was born in Floyd County, Virginia March 13th, 1822. She remained out of the church several years after receiving a hope, fearing that she was not fit to live with the people of God, besides she seemed not to have strength to go before the church, and no other opportunity was afforded her until in Sept. 1892, Elders John C. Hall, Amos Dickerson and myself spent a night at her house, at which time she related to us her reasons of a hope, and we, together with other brethren present proposed to receive her there and then into the fellowship of the church if she so desired. She seemed desirous to do right if she could be assured as to what her duty was. I, with the others, felt to assure her that it was her privilege to belong to the church, and that it would be our pleasure to receive her, whereupon this scripture came into her mind, "If you will not hear him, you would not hear though one rose from the dead," and she readily desired us to act upon her case, which we did and received her, and a younger sister who like her had been trying for years to obtain fitness, assurance and strength to come before the church. Some weeks afterwards I had the pleasure of baptizing them. I am of the opinion that we should be careful to look after all such timid ones as these, and when necessary come to where they are, rather than try to rigidly maintain an unscriptural rule of requiring all to come to where the church meets, and at such stated times as she may designate. The Apostles received and baptized at any time and in any place where baptism could be performed.

After she was baptized she seemed to enjoy much peace of mind, and though much afflicted she bore her sufferings with great patience.

In July 1893, she was taken with a severe attack of cholera morbus, and her life was thought by all to be nearing the end. She said nothing as to whether she thought she would live or die, but often asked the Lord to show her the way or her condition, and after she had partially recovered she said the answer would come, "be still and know that I am God." Therefore she was still and said nothing, knowing that her life was in His hands who is good and merciful. She gradually declined but was able to walk about until the 10th day of July 1894, and died the 11th.

She had some beautiful manifestations of the loving kindness of the Lord. In June last, she had a vision which gave her much happiness, which was visible upon her countenance, and she came to where her sisters were, thinking she could tell them the vision, but it went from her and in tears she told them it was gone, but it was still to her a more sure evidence than the Apostles and Prophets. She loved to speak of this and other seasons of joy, and no doubt was fully established in the triumphs of faith.

She loved to read the LANDMARK and looked anxiously for its coming. She was the friend of all, and held the friendship of her acquaintances, all of whom freely testify of her virtues and christian graces.

No doubt her sleeping is that of the just, and her waking is with infinite joy and gladness.

P. G. L.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

JESSE BROWN.

Mill Branch Thursday, Nov. 1st
Wilmington Friday night, 2nd
Stump Sound Sat. and Sun. 3d, 4th
Bay Meeting House Monday, 5th
Southwest Tuesday, 6th
Muddy Creek Wednesday, 7th
Hornet Saturday, 10th
Will some one meet me in Clinton on Friday evening, the 9th.

Seven Mile Sunday, 11th
Reedy Prong Monday, 12th
Barby's Chapel Tuesday, 13th
Mingo Wednesday, 14th
Black River Thursday, 15th
Bethany Friday, 16th
Smithfield Saturday, 17th
Little Creek Sunday, 18th
Clement Monday, 19th
Rehoboth Tuesday, 20th
Fellowship Wednesday, 21st
Middle Creek Thursday, 22d
Raleigh Friday, 23d
Oak Grove Sat. and Sun. 24th, and 25th
Durham Monday, 26th
Randleman, Randolph Co. Tues. night, 27th
Central Falls Wed. night, 28th
He will need conveyance.

R. HUTCHINS.

Ward's Will Sat. and 3d Sun. in Nov.
North East Monday
Fourth West Tuesday
Black Swamp Wednesday
Sand Hill Thursday
Muddy Creek Sat. and 4th Sun.
Goldsbrough at 12 o'clock Monday
Chapel Tuesday
Cross Roads Wednesday
Union Thursday
Pine Level Friday
Smithfield 1st Sat. and Sun. in Dec.
Clements Monday
Rehoboth Tuesday
Fellowship Wednesday
Middle Creek Thursday
Neuse Friday
Cedar Grove Saturday
Dutchville 2d Sunday
Camp Creek Monday
Tar River Tuesday
Sails Wednesday
Flat River Thursday

Stories Creek Friday
Roxboro Sat. and 3d Sun.
Ehenezer Monday
Prospect Hill Tuesday
Country Line Wednesday
Lick Fork Thursday
Dan River Friday
Good Will Saturday
Ridgewa 4th Sunday
Will some brother carry him from Wheelers to the depot.
ISAAC JONES.

J. N. ROGERSON.

White Plains Saturday and 1st Sunday in November.
North Creek Monday
Beulah Wednesday
Rose Bay Thursday
Tinie Oak Friday
Nason's Point Saturday
North Lake Sunday
Juniper Bay Monday
Swan's Quarter Tuesday
Shalop's Creek Wednesday
Head Pingo River Thursday
Moratock Friday
He will need conveyance.

J. A. BURCH.

Reidsville Friday before 1st Sunday in Nov.
Brother R. L. Corams at night
Pleasantville Saturday and 1st Sunday School House near brother Wm. Fewman's Sunday night.
Sardis Monday
Hillsdale Tuesday
Oak Ridge College at night
Saints Delight Wednesday
Centerville Thursday
Mt. Vernon Friday
Pine Saturday and 2nd Sunday
Flat Creek Monday
Mountain Creek Tuesday
Bear Creek Wednesday
Liberty Hill Thursday
Meadow Creek Friday
Crooked Creek Saturday and 3rd Sunday
Watson's Monday
Jerusalem Tuesday
Lawyer's Spring Wednesday
High Hill Thursday
Pleasant Hill. (Jredet Co.) Sat. and 4th Sunday.
Conveyance needed.

J. R. WILLIAMS.

Beulah Nov. 1
Creeches 2
Salem 3
Little Creek 4
Rehoboth 5
Fellowship 6
Sandy Grove 7
Hannah's Creek 8
Barby's Chapel 9
Reedy Prong 10
Hickory Grove 11
Oak Forest 12
Clement 13
Smithfield 14
Union 15
Bethany 16
Cross Roads 17

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 8 1894.	No. 33 Daily		No. 40 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Weldon.....	11 52	9 27
Ar Rocky Mt.....	1 02	10 36
Ar Tarboro.....	2 40
Lv Tarboro.....	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.....	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv. Wilson.....	2 05	11 01
Lv. Selma.....	2 55	12 51
Lv Fayetteville.....	4 35	1 51
Ar. Florence.....	7 45	3 00
	No. 47 Daily
Lv. Wilson.....	2 18		A. M.
Lv Goldsboro.....	3 05		5 35
Lv Magnolia.....	4 15		7 20
Ar Wilmington.....	5 20		8 20
	P. M.		10 00

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 8, 1894.	No. 36 Daily		No. 35 Daily		No. 40 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
Lv Florence.....	7 30	7 45
Lv Fayetteville.....	10 21	9 30
Lv Selma.....	12 05
Ar. Wilson.....	1 00	11 27
	No. 41 Daily
Lv. Wilmington.....	9 00				P. M.
Lv Magnolia.....	10 40				7 00
Lv Goldsboro.....	11 55				8 35
Ar. Wilson.....	12 40				9 40
	No. 38 Daily		No. 39 Daily
Lv. Wilson.....	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar Rocky Mt.....	1 10	11 27	10 30	11 15
	2 15	12 05
Ar Tarboro.....	2 40
Lv Tarboro.....	12 45
Lv Rocky Mt.....	2 15	12 05
Ar Weldon.....	3 10	12 58
	P. M.		A. M.		P. M.

Daily except Monday. Daily except Sunday.
These trains carry only first-class passengers
having Pullman accommodations.
Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves
Weldon 1 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 6 37 p. m., Kin-sion, 7 35 p. m., Returning leaves Kinsion, 7 30 a.
m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00
a. m., Weldon 11 48 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington
7 00 a. m. Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m., Tarboro

8 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele
7 10 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m., Daily except Sunday. Connects with trains on Scotland
Neck Branch.
Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle &
Raiford R. R., daily, except Sunday, 3 00 p. m.,
Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 3 00 p. m., 4 30 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives
Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 a. m.
Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro,
N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 55 a. m., arriving
Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m. Returning, leaves
Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N.
C., 9 30 a. m.
Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount
at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring
Hope 5 30 p. m. Returning leaves Spring Hope
8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave
Latta 6 40 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 5 00 p. m. Returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 20 a.
m., Daily except Sunday.
Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 4 10 p. m., Returning leaves Clinton at 7 30 a. m. Connecting at Warsaw
with main line trains.
Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon
for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth a direct line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk &
Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points
North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

JNO. F. DIVINE,
General Mgr.
T. M. EBERSON, Traffic Manager

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:
Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail, 60c.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by
mail, $1.00.
Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover,
single copy, by mail, $1.25.
Per dozen, by mail, $12.50.
No less than half dozen will be sold at discount
rates.
Books sent to any part of the United States or
Territories, postage prepaid.
In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.
Send money in Registered Letter, or Money
Orders, or by Express. Address
J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 18th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 16th,
1894, and continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable.
The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.
Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville,
Oct. 15, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes
me one week previous.
Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.
Morton's Store, Alliance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples &c.

Generated through Hathitrust on 2026-03-25 02:50 GMT
https://hdl.handle.net/2027/dul1.ark:/13966/t5t5252z / Public Domain

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Fifty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D. to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. B. Co., Connorsville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connorsville, Ind., Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lundy, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oliphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Includes the College, the University, the Law School, the Medical School and the Summer School for Teachers. College tuition, $60 a year; board $7 to $13 a month. Session begins September 6. Address

PRESIDENT WINSTON,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

D. R. H. H. GREEN & SON,
30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.

They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Brother Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.

P. D. GOLD.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Dec. 3, 1893.

All trains daily except Sunday.

N. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No. 1		No. 2
7 55 p m	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7 00 a m
4 45 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	6 10 a m
4 30 p m	At.....Fayetteville.....Lv	6 00 a m
3 12 p m	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	4 45 a m
1 27 p m	Lv.....Chimex.....Lv	1 43 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	4 15 p m
11 54 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	4 05 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	1 35 p m
11 44 p m	Lv.....N. & W. Pt.—W. Cove, Ar	4 40 p m
11 35 p m	Ar.....N. & W. Pt.—W. Cove, Lv	4 31 p m
11 05 p m	Lv.....Rural Hill.....Ar	7 01 p m
9 47 a m	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6 25 p m
No. 3
8 00 p m	At.....Bennettsville.....Lv	No. 4
6 47 p m	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	6 45 a m
6 08 p m	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	7 27 a m
5 13 p m	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	8 17 a m
4 40 p m	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar	9 18 a m
No. 15			No. 16
MEXXO			MEXXO
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
5 35 p m	At.....Rainscut.....Lv	6 40 a m
3 55 p m	Lv.....Chimex.....Lv	8 40 a m
3 40 p m	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9 25 a m
No. 13			No. 14
MEXXO			MEXXO
Daily Ex		Daily Ex
Sunday		Sunday
4 35 p m	At.....Greensboro.....Lv	9 40 a m
1 05 p m	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11 00 a m
12 30 p m	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11 30 a m

Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Raleigh, Norfolk and all points North and East, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 4 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem, and at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line for Monroe, Charlotte, Adams, Atlanta and all points South and South-west.

Passengers from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Maxton, Bennettsville and all points south of Sanford will arrive at Raleigh at 11.00 A. M. and have 5 hours in Raleigh and reach home same day.

Ample time is given passengers for breakfast and supper at Fayetteville and dinner at Walnut Cove.

J. W. FRY, Gen'l Mgr'y, W. E. KYLE, Gen'l Pass Agt.

WILLIAMS' HOG CHOLERA CURE.

This remedy was discovered by him in 1888. It has never been known to fail in effecting a cure when directions have been followed.

This medicine is put up in Tin Boxes—price 50 cents per Box sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid by him, on the receipt of 50 cents per Box with directions for using it.

Please send money order for the medicine, as this is much safer than the money.

For sale by W. B. Williams, Proprietor at,
Elm City, Wilson Co. N. C.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

Mrs. MARY G. WINSTEAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

Camp Duke
17

VOL. 27.

NOVEMBER 1, 1894.

NO. 24.

Zion's Landmark.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY

— AT —

WILSON, North Carolina.

P. D. GOLD, Editor.

P. G. LESTER, Associate Editor.

Zion's Landmark Print, Wilson, N.C.

Kadostiller
1894

The Purpose of Zion's Landmark.

"Ask for the old paths where is the good way."

By the help of the Lord this paper will contend for the ancient Landmark, guided by its stakes of Truth, and strengthened by its cords of Love

It hopes to reject all traditions and institutions of men, and regard only the Bible as the standard of truth.

It urges the people to search the Scriptures, and obey Jesus the king in the holy hill of Zion, keeping themselves unspotted from the world.

It aims to contend for the mystery of the faith in God and the Father, Jesus the Mediator, and the Holy Spirit the blessed Comforter.

All lovers of Gospel truth are invited to write for it—if so impressed.

May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to all lovers of truth.

The Subscription Price of Zion's Landmark.

For single subscribers $1.50 per year. The getter up of Club of eight subscribers, or a larger number, $1.50, each will receive the LANDMARK free for time club is made.

The subscribers in clubs need not all be at the same Post Office, and names can be sent from time to time in making up clubs: also in renewing clubs the same rule may be observed.

When a subscriber desires his paper changed he should state plainly both the old and the new postoffices. When one wishes his paper stopped, let him send what is due, if anything is due, and also state his postoffice.

Let each subscriber keep his paper paid up if possible, and when he renews give the same name it has been going in, unless he wishes it changed, then he should state both the old and the new names.

If money sent has not been receipted please inform me of it. When you can, always send money by Money Order, Postal Note, Check, or Draft, or Registered Letter or by Express.

Each subscriber can tell the time to which he has paid for the paper by noticing the date just after his name.

All brethren and friends are requested to act as agents.

All names and post offices should be written plainly.

All communications, business letters, remittances of P. O. orders, money, drafts, etc., should be sent to

P. D. GOLD, Wilson, N. C.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF JESUS.

DEAR BROTHER GOLD:—A brother whom I love asked me to write my experience for the LANDMARK, but were it not for the fact that he and his wishes are dear to me, I would not send it. For I feel that it is very little evidence that I am one of the children of God, if what I have passed through is a christian experience. I cannot tell where it first began. One of the first things I remember was my attempt to reason against predestination and to convince myself that God could not know all things. Once I started to a certain place and had gone half way when I thought God predestinated me to go to this place, (but I will turn back now to prove that God does not know all things,) for he must have thought that I was going where I started. Having turned back several steps it occurred to me in these words that I spoke to myself: "You fool you, did he not know you would turn back?" This was when I was about twelve or thirteen years old, probably not so old as that. A year or two after that when we were living at another place, I remember trying to pray for wisdom and knowledge, when I asked myself what kind of knowledge do you want? I said, knowledge from above or the highest knowledge is what I want. That is what I prayed for if it could be called prayer. My ambition to succeed at school may have given rise to it, but I remember praying that I might be taught true knowledge no matter what I might be expending.

I was not then troubled about my salvation. I was cared for by my father and an older sister with whom I lived from the time I was six years old, when my mother died. I had careful training but my father did not try to teach me religion, nor to read the bible. I wish he had, but he did not wish to influence us to his way of thinking, for he knew that "they shall all be taught of the Lord." Once only he told me he would rather I would not attend Sunday school and I think he was right, for as he did not teach me what he believed, he did not want me taught what he did not believe. When about sixteen or seventeen I was troubled about my sins. I was not allowed to mingle with bad company nor did I care for young company as much as I was not strong enough to hold my own with the boys. So I was considered a good boy, but the sin and wickedness in my heart was the trouble together with a high, mean temper that I could not control. I decided to do better and not sin, but time after time I found myself in a rage or doing something wrong. Then how helpless I felt when I found that I could not keep from sin. One day, standing by the table in my room, I thought, even if I could live without sin from now on what could I do for the past sins, "for the soul that sinneth it shall die." All at once the burden seemed so great and my case so hopeless that I caught hold of the table for support. It was a troublesome time with me I can well remember. What could I do? I could not question God's justice for I was guilty before him. Then I thought no, I will not believe any one is lost. So I bought a Bible and tried to read it. I told my sister I was a Universalist and read the text, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." There I said that proves it. But all at once when I had read the following verses the text was clear to me and I wondered why my sister had not explained it to me, although she had not joined the church as yet. Although I seemed to see the meaning of the text it did not give me any comfort, for it was not for me as I was not one of His. One night when I had gone to bed I was troubled and felt that I could not bear my trials much longer. All at once it was given me to see how short this world is, what a speck of time is between the past and future, and a thought that after all this trouble there is an eternity of bliss for me, brought me such sweet peace that I was sure I could bear any trouble in this world. This was for me and I thought it would be easy to bear trials and persecutions with this in view. But you who have traveled this road know how soon I felt the burden again. I did not tell any one of my feelings for a long time. I thought I would ask father about it all to see if I could find out what a hope it was and to see if I knew anything about the experience of a child of God. But I never did speak to him of it I regret to say.

Sometime after his death I told my step-mother, who was an Old School Baptist, and she tried to encourage me, but I felt I had done wrong in telling her. I felt a trouble about it fearing I had deceived her and myself. When Jesus had healed a leper he said, "See thou tell no man, go show thyself unto the Priest." &c.

After the priest, the head of the church, had pronounced him clean and he had offered the gift that Moses commanded he was a free man in the kingdom of Israel again and could go to his kindred and freely mingle with them. No more could his natural enemies drive him from his home, and when he came in and out of his place and prepared seat he was not violating any of the law under which he was condemned as a leper. So does the child of God feel when he shows himself to the church, the kingdom of Christ. He is pronounced clean, and no laws of that kingdom cut him off and condemn him, for he has brought proof that he has been cleansed and made whole by the blood and comforted by the word of Jesus. No one can molest him or make him afraid, and he is at liberty to go in and out of his place of worship, feeling that he is among living brethren and friends. He has done his duty, offered the gift that Moses commanded and is made to sit together with his kindred in heavenly places. He does not feel that condemnation that he felt when he violated the command "see thou tell no man." For several years I staid out of the church and instead of getting better I got worse, being led into one temptation after another until I could find no rest, and was so tired of it all and my unruly self. So on my bed where I was attending school, I thought I am so tired I will go home and join the church at Little Flock and live quietly with my people. I did go home in a short while but did not join for sometime. I forget the year that I tried to tell the church something of what is here written. You who have obeyed know how I look back to the day that I was baptized and what peace and content I then felt. In dark times now I turn back to that day and say surely it was the peace that He gives to his children. Soon again I felt that burden of sin and my weakness and many times late at night have I cried out for help and strength and prayed to be relieved of my burden. There I began to feel impressed to open meeting and talk, but a feeling of unworthiness, together with a fear that some would think I was trying to preach kept me from doing so and I said nothing about it. I did not feel that it was preaching I must do, but when I did not follow the impression I felt a burden and a sadness that I cannot express and could find no peace. Then I was ambitious and decided to go to Europe to study art, and finally did go for a year. While in Paris I felt the same longing for home and the quiet little church that I spoke of above. I did not give up but went on with my work until I had to come home. I had learned to love some of the quiet beautiful spots, one especially I loved, a quiet place among the trees near an old fountain in the Luxembourg garden. As I turned away from it the last time tears came into my eyes when I thought of leaving it all, but the text "I will lead you by still waters, he maketh them to lie down in green pastures," gave me a feeling of peace; so I came home.

The first time I remember speaking to the church was at Salt River one day when I felt to speaking a few words of comfort to the little ones, God's promises seemed so sure, and the works of grace so plain in the old brethren that I could not resist the desire to speak of them. So I did for a few minutes. I started home, a walk of about one and a half miles, thinking of the liberty of the kingdom of Christ and how far above the reach of man's grasping hand, of how quiet and trustful the old members seemed. Once when nearly home I raised my head just before crossing a little bridge and nature never seemed lovelier to me. Ah! I said, as if speaking to a friend of mine, an absent artist, Mr. N—— this world is lovely, but to-day I have a glimpse of a world far more beautiful.

From time to time I felt impressed to speak but did not and was mostly in the dark, and I wanted to go back to Europe and felt that I couldn't give it up. But one day, after a night of trouble and worry over wanting to go back to school, I was at a meeting at Salt River and tried to speak, having I trust some liberty. I went home with a sister for a first visit to her house. I turned to the right on entering her house and found a Bible and opened it. The first thing found was Ps. 34:4. Almost immediately the question came to my mind. Do you want to go back to Europe? I could then truthfully say, no, for I felt that I loved the Lord and His chosen people more than any ambition. The sweet communion of the Spirit is better than all else and makes us ready and willing to give up all for Him. But when that is withdrawn the old nature is as strong as ever, night comes upon us and we find we are helpless. Sometime later on Brother Lester came to see us and asked me to speak, but I said no we want to hear you, and went to my seat. "Go show thyself unto the Priest" came to my mind; why, I could not tell. But I could not get it out of my head. After Brother Lester sat down I tried to speak from what was on my mind but could not get much out of it and did not know then where to find the text, Matt. 8: 4, and what I have quoted was all I could recall, and so I was not satisfied and felt I had done wrong in trying to apply it. I felt that it was given me to show me my duty and that I had misapplied it to others. I did not feel right until I had to tell the church. I could not then tell all I saw in it and can't yet.

The church liberated me and I have been trying to preach. But what doubts and fears and how useless it seems sometimes for us to try to tell even a little of God's goodness to his people.

"How boundless is the ocean of love."

If I know my heart I desire, above all things, to be able to speak comfortably to them, His chosen in Christ Jesus. When I see them sitting around the altar with tears in their eyes and sorrow manifest for their sins, I wish I could say something to help them and assure them of the never failing promises of God. When his love is manifested to me I feel that I am truly blest and that truly "His grace is sufficient." Then I do not feel to wish for anything. In dark cold times I am made to cry Unclean! Unclean! Ungrateful worm of the dust. Kind friends, loving brethren, blessings of all kinds are given me and yet I am the same, sinful, unworthy man.

I may have been tedious but I have tried to give some of the thoughts that I have had to my present belief; trying also to tell you of some of the battles of an inner life. We struggle with an intelligent devil and many are the conflicts we must fight out alone (as far as our friends are concerned) on an unseen battle field. But I trust it is never out of his sight and power, and I feel sure at this present time that he is working all things together for good to them that love the Lord. The great trouble is to know "am I His or am I not?"

Pray for me, you who have felt the burden of sin and have tasted of His love. May he bless truth and pardon faults is the prayer of one of the least if one at all.

I trust I am your brother in Christ.

DUDLEY G. JOHNSON.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.

"But whoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." John 15:14. What is this well of water? And what kind of life is everlasting life? This water is Christ in us the hope of glory; and everlasting life is life that will last forever. Then, if Christ reveals himself to an alien sinner, that revelation proves everlasting life to that sinner. Then if a man has everlasting life in him, how can he die? "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word and believeth on him that sent me hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." John 5:24. Now analyze carefully the above quotation and see what it teaches. First, it teaches that a man is dead. Secondly, it teaches that he must pass from that dead state unto a living state, and then it teaches that he has everlasting life in him, and shall not come into condemnation, because he has passed from death unto life. Read 1st Peter 1: 23. "Being born again not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God which liveth and abideth forever." Does not Peter teach the same doctrine that Christ taught, that when a man is born again he is born of incorruptible seed by the word of God which liveth and abideth forever? "Whoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." Then every believer is a child of God. Now, if you are a child of God, an heir of God, and joint heir with the Lord Jesus Christ, how is it possible for you to sever that relation? You may wander off into the forbidden paths of sin and folly, you may disobey the commands of your heavenly Father, nevertheless you are still a child and will be visited with the rod of chastisement. You may even go so far into sin that it will become necessary to turn you out of the church, and deliver you over to satan for the destruction of the flesh, nevertheless the spirit shall be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. 1st Cor. 5. Read John 6: 27. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me hath everlasting life; and also John 10: 28. "And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish;" and also Rom. 6: 22. "But now being made free from sin and become servants of God, ye have your fruit unto holiness and the end everlasting life."

When were they made free from sin? When they were regenerated and born of the Spirit of God. Then after they have been regenerated and born of the Spirit, or have been made free from sin what does Christ say? "Ye have your fruit unto holiness and the end everlasting life."

Now when a man is born of God, what are the fruits of that new birth? If they are sin, there would be a possibility of his falling. But Paul says in Gal. 5: 22-23 that the fruits of the Spirit, or the new birth are, "love joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." Now if these are the fruits, or works that the new birth produces, would it be possible for a child of God to apostatize and be eternally lost. If so Paul certainly did not understand what he was teaching. John says, in the third chapter, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him; and he can not sin." Why cannot sin? "Because he is born of God." Does not this teach plainly that when a man is born of God that new child cannot sin? John goes on further and says, "We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself and that wicked one toucheth him not." Now John is very emphatic about this matter. He says "We know" that everyone that is begotten of God cannot sin, neither can that wicked one touch him. Why cannot they sin? Because God is their Father, and they are created in the likeness and image of God, and their whole desires are to love and serve him. Let us hear from Paul on this subject, Rom. 6-6. The old man is crucified with him that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin." "But now being made free from sin ye have your fruit unto holiness and the end everlasting life." How can any one man read these plain passages of Scripture, and then say that a man can be a christian to-day and to-morrow die and go to an eternal hell?

We find in 1st John 5: 11-12 this language, "And this is the record that God hath given to us eternal life." "As thou hast given him power over all flesh to give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him." Then when a sinner is quickened by the grace of God he has eternal life abiding in him, because quicken means to put life into, and Christ says it is eternal or everlasting life, and that after that life enters the sinner that he shall never perish, neither shall he ever come into condemnation, and why? because he has passed from death unto life is Paul's answer. John says, "Whoso believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God," and "Whosoever is born of God cannot sin." Does not this settle the question forever, that that which is born of God cannot sin.

Paul explains the matter thus, "For the good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not I do. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me." This shows that Paul had two natures, one born of the flesh and one born of the Spirit, the one born of the flesh always sinning; and the one born of the Spirit never sinning. Now if his carnal nature can overcome and finally destroy his spiritual nature, there is a possibility of his falling; but "Greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world," and "They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts;" and "He that hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world, and this is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith." What is it that overcometh the world, or carnal desires? Paul says it is our faith, and he also says that faith is one of the fruits of the new birth. Then if faith is one of the fruits of the new birth, and faith overcomes the world, are not they who possess this precious fruit just as safe (so far as their final salvation is concerned) as if they were housed safe in Heaven itself? From all this we conclude that that which is born of God is not carnal and destructible, but eternal, holy, and imperishable. Read 1st Cor. 1:8-9. "Who shall confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. What does confirm mean? It means to establish. Then God will establish his people unto the end, because Jesus says, I am the bread of life, he that cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." Now after a man has been born of God, if it is impossible for him to hunger or thirst after sin, how can such a one be lost? If you are a child of God your whole desires will be to love and serve your heavenly Father, and every time you disobey him he will visit you with the rod of chastisement, and make you willing to obey his command. Because he says "Ye shall be a willing people in the day of my power." He will not make you a willing people by force or compulsion contrary to your will, but he will draw you by the cords of his love. Christ further says in John 10:27-29. "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me; and I give unto them eternal life and they shall never perish." Paul confirms this same doctrine when he says, "There is therefore now no condemnation—to them who are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit: Rom. 8:1. Why, Paul is there no condemnation? "Because the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." What law did

Paul have reference to? Jesus answers the question. "I will put my laws into their minds and write them in their hearts, and I will be to them a God and they shall be to me a people."

This law is only written in the hearts of Christians and every time they violate it they must suffer the penalty of said law. Because Christ says, "whom he receiveth he chasteneth, and that he will receive no son without chastisement." Paul says, "Ye are dead and your lives are hid with Christ in God, and when Christ which is our life shall appear then shall ye also appear with him in glory." In what sense are we dead? Dead to sins and alive unto righteousness. Where is our hope? In God. Where is God? In heaven. Then if our lives are hid with Christ, and Christ is in God and in Heaven, how is it possible for us ever to be lost? Now Paul sums up the whole matter and says, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or reward? Nay, through all these things, we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. Now if the love of God shed abroad in our hearts is strong enough to overcome all these things that Paul here enumerates, what shall be able to separate us? For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Paul here enumerated everything he can possibly think of, famines, wars, pestilencies, things present and things to come, and then emphatically says there is nothing able to separate a heaven-born soul from that love his Father has for him in Christ Jesus. But one may say he can separate himself. This would not only contradict the language of Paul and Christ himself, but would also be contrary to all sound reason. Because when Paul says there is nothing present, nor anything to come, does he not mean all things? Now if a person has the love of God abiding in him, he is a child of God, in order to separate that child from the love of his Father, some temptations or outside influences would have to enter his mind and heart strong enough to sever the relation existing between him and his Father; but Paul says there is nothing present and nothing to come that shall be able to separate us from that love shed abroad in our hearts, the fruits of which are, love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, meekness, temperance. Against such there is no law.

ROTEN HURST.

Pattonsville, Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD:—By your kind permission I will pen down a few thoughts concerning the communication of Elder J. D. Armstrong and published in LANDMARK of September 1st 1894, in which he presents a letter from me to him, concerning the great and mysterious incarnation of the Son of God. First he says he agreed with me and then after losing some sleep he disagreed with me. It may be that the brother in reading my pamphlet came to conclusions too quickly and then consulted with other brethren and found that he was not on the popular theory concerning the incarnation of Christ. I read the Bible for myself and I am very slow in coming to conclusions and when I have come to conclusions concerning the faith I need not to ask others whether I am right or not, I have to find out from the Scriptures themselves whether I am right or not. Now according to the Scriptures themselves, and all the analogical lights that they reflect upon each other, we will examine some of the words and sentences published in the brother's communication in the LANDMARK. When we speak of Jesus we speak of the foundation of all foundations, the cause of all causes and effects. And one in whom the blood of the everlasting covenant stands complete in the power and wisdom and foreknowledge of God the Father and the Son. The pamphlet that I sent to Elder Armstrong tells him that a charge had been brought against me in the church for saying that there was no dust in Christ's glorious body. Will the Elder still contend that there was Adamic dust in Christ's body, and that his body had to undergo a change in the resurrection? Could the crucifixion and the sacrifice of a body that had Adamic dust in it be sufficient to redeem us from the corruption of Adamic dust? My faith cannot take hold of it in this way. The brother presents us some Scriptures to prove up this dust theory. First, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." This does not refer to the fleshly seed of a fleshly woman, for God never has, nor never will, put enmity between this fleshly woman and her seed, and the devil and his seed, for all such are led captive by the devil at his will. Then it is the spiritual woman called wisdom that shall bruise the serpent's head. The seed of the church or wisdom shall bruise the serpent's head. The fleshly mother Eve could not withstand the serpent's first attacks in her purest, best condition; then how could it be expected that any of the seed of her flesh should bruise the serpent's head. Such may be said concerning that class of Scriptures that speak of Christ being of the tribe of Judah, of the seed of the loins of David, seed of Abraham &c.,

Brother Armstrong knows, or ought to know, that Christ is not of the seminal seed spoken of as coming from the loins of David. Then such Scriptures go to show the manner of Christ's birth or manifestation in the flesh, and at the same time show the substance of the lineage of his mother. "In the beginning was the word and the word was with God and the word was God." "And the word was made flesh," &c. Now if Christ had been of the substance or entity of David's lineage, these Scriptures above mentioned would have said the word put on flesh. But the truth of the above Scriptures is, that the word itself was made flesh; and to make it plainer the same Scriptures say this flesh dwelt among us and we beheld his glory. Yes, through this flesh of the word we beheld his immortal glory, for he came to bring life and immortality to light. "He alone hath immortality." And was it God's will that this glorious immortality should shine through a clay or dust body of the Adamic lump? We see that such was the case as regards his body, for he showed this very same body to his disciples after the resurrection, or were told by Christ to handle his body and see if it was not his real body.

To prove things further, he ate fish and bread with his disciples after his resurrection. This eating of fish and bread after the resurrection of his body goes to show that if his body was immortal after his resurrection it must have been immortal in all things before, except as to the death of the cross, and this death was a covenant agreement between the Father and the Son. Such an immortal body as this could maintain and sustain the decrees of the blood of the everlasting covenant. But could an Adamic dust and time created body maintain and sustain the decrees of a covenant that was everlasting or eternal in its nature or consequences. Then brother, you see that all the scriptures and good common sense reasoning are all on my side, as I said to you in my letter. The Word or Son says, let us make man after our image and in our likeness &c. Where was Jesus, and what was Jesus at the time these words were spoken? Was he a real personality and a Heavenly Personality, and therefore having a real Heavenly and an eternal entity in and by the eternal Word or Son of God? Did the earthly Adam have a complete earthly entity. Brother, you are bound to say yes. Then he was in the likeness and image of another entity which was Heavenly. Did not this Heavenly entity have a body, a soul and Spirit in all their essentials in the power and energy of the living word that abideth forever? If not then Adam and Eve do not bear the image of their Maker. Now the Bible language keeps these two entities separate all the way through. The first Adam was of the earth earthy, the second Adam was the Lord from Heaven. If the second Adam had not always existed the earthly Adam would not have been created. I do not mean to say by this that I believe in the eternal incarnation of the Savior, but I believe that the eternal ever-living word always contained all the essentials necessary to the actual formation of that glorious body. As meal is the first element or essential of baked bread, so the word contained the meal or ingredients that came down from Heaven and were formed into the bread of life. That is by his incarnation in the womb of the Virgin Mary it was made manifest that he was the bread of eternal life. And Christ's own words in the 6th chapter of John proves what I have said here. He says to the Jews that He was that bread that came down from Heaven. He did not mean by this that He had come down in His actual body, but that He had come down in those Heavenly essentials that were needful for the incarnation of his body. This is proven in the way he speaks to his Father. He says, a body hast thou prepared me, prepared from the word which was as old as eternity itself. If Christ's body had been of the substance of Mary's body he would have said, a body hast thou created me. There is a certain learned Elder among us who says that Christ is a Created Savior and has all the infirmities and weakness of other men, and quotes the London confession of Faith to prove it. My faith cannot take hold of a created Savior for eternal life and salvation. I worship a Creator Savior and not a created Savior. There is as much difference between a created Savior and a Creator Savior as there is between Heaven and earth, time and eternity. I will kindly ask the readers of the LANDMARK to study on the difference existing between those two Saviors until I write my next pamphlet concerning this important matter. If Christ has our infirmities and weakness as a man then he needs help just like other men. If this is so brother Armstrong ought to join the Methodists and Missionaries in helping Christ save souls. If Christ was a created time being we could only receive created and time grace in him and we would have to help him create this grace and saving Faith. This is Arminian twaddle, and Elder Armstrong is welcome to all this kind of stuff. Who hath saved us and called us not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began.

Now, if he was a time creature, and offered up only a time created body on the cross how could the merits of such a body reach our cases before the world began, and how could such an offering procure our eternal redemption? It took a body that had all the eternal essentials of a Heavenly humanity in it to reach and carry us all along during eternity by the power of this eternal redemption. The scriptures show that Christ has not got our infirmities and weakness. See Heb. 7th chapter and 28th verse. For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity; but the word of the oath which was since the law maketh the Son who is consecrated forever more. See 3rd verse of same chapter. Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life etc. See 26th verse. For such a high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the Heavens. Chapter 4th, verse 15th. For we have not a high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities etc. He did not have our infirmities, but could be touched with a feeling of our infirmities. Let us examine the lineage of this high Priest, Jesus Christ. How was it that he was without Father? He was without Father as to an earthly, seminal generation. Without a mother in the same sense as the above, without descent in the same way as the above, born or made manifest of Virgin Mary, who was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners, and made higher than the Heavens. All Adam's race were sinners. Christ was separate from them in his entity or identity. These sinners had earthly entities, and Christ had a Heavenly entity or identity, and was separate from them in this sense, and could not be separate from them in any other sense. He was made higher than the Heavens in his entity, and they were of the earth earthly in their entities. And yet notwithstanding all this the brother says that Christ is of the fleshly seed of Abraham. I reckon the Elder forgot to tell us that Ishmael was the fleshly seed of Abraham and that Isaac stood at the head of all Abraham's Spiritual seed. It is in Isaac the seed of Christ shall be called and not Ishmael. It seems from the Scriptures that Sarah had got too old to conceive a Son by the ordinary laws of nature, but God gave her strength to bear Isaac. He was a son given to them when they were without strength. Isaac was born unto them above the ordinary laws of nature and is a figure of Christ who is born unto us above the laws of nature. Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given etc. Now if this Son that is given had his body, soul and Spirit from the identity or substance of the Virgin Mary he would be in our possession by the right of Adamic identity. Then he would be ours without a gift from the Father. The brother has tried hard to show that those two identities are blended or conglomerated together. But the Bible keeps them separate all the way through. This I will prove from the Scriptures. Here is my faith about these things. I believe that God visited Adam and Eve in the cool of the day in the essentials of the humanity of his dear Son and there talked to them. Now were not Adam and Eve the very image of this person that talked to them? Ezekiel calls this personage the "Son of man" ninety times but prophetically; showing the order of his birth, but not of his entity. In the essentials of his humanity he walked in the fiery furnace with the three Hebrew Children. In the same manner met Araham and received tithes of him. He was not a myth, but was really the Heavenly man of whom the earthly man is an image of and only image. I will quote some Scriptures to show that Christ never was of Adam's substance, and never will be, neither will Adam be of the substance of Christ, but will have to be brought into Christ by adoption and by adoption only. Eph. 1:5. "Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will." Now if Christ is of the Adamic lump and these predestinated children were of the same lump why is it that these children have to be adopted? Brother Armstrong will have to lose some more sleep before this doctrine of adoption is explained according to his Arminian theory. Rom. 8:23. Even we ourselves groan within ourselves waiting for the adoption, to-wit, the redemption of our body. It seems that all the predestinated and chosen children have to come into the family of Christ by adoption. It is only by the resurrection and adoption that Christ can be called our Elder brother, and not by the earthly human nature of Adam. Does the brother believe in the doctrine of substitution? The Missionaries preach the doctrine of substitution in this country. The doctrine of substitution is this, "God's Divine Son came and dwelt in Mary's Son that bleeds and dies as a substitute. My poor soul would perish on such doctrine as this. Could such mortality as this redeem mortal beings of Adams race to all eternity? Christ was always an eternal sacrifice for poor, fallen man, and was God with us manifest in the flesh, but was made manifest in his own immortal flesh of the word. It took the wounds and bruises of an immortal being to save us to an eternal, happy immortality. A mortal being suffering and dying on the cross could only redeem for time. A time creator can suffer only for a time penalty. This is my faith, and yet brother Armstrong has spoke pretty hard of this faith. But if I could be with the brother about a week and try to preach and talk with him, I think he would think and talk differently. I am now nearly seventy one years old, but I am not too old to quit loving my Primitive brethren. I can get no spiritual food only from their preaching and from their writings. I will close by saying that if any brother feels like writing to me I will gladly appreciate it and will try to return the same compliment.

J. C. SHELTON.

Remarks.

The profound mystery of the manifestation of God in the flesh—not of man in the spirit—is the subject of this discussion. Jesus did not at all cease to be God when thus manifest. The word was made flesh. It was not dust of earth that was made flesh. One trouble in contentions is that each disputant seeks to cast contempt on the views of his opponent and will not fairly allow the other to set forth what he believes. Jesus as born of woman is Emmanuel, the Son of the Highest, yet he calls himself the Son of man, and he is,

He is shown, clearly proven to be the Son of God in the resurrection from the dead, yet he is the man-child born unto us.

But a thing must be true before it is proven, or it could not be proven. I think these writers are not far apart, when they understand each other.

We cannot open the columns of the LANDMARK for mere controversy. Let this matter drop here. In the Bible we see each writer moved by the Spirit of God shows his opinion or mind, yet there is no contradiction. Each contributes or communicates according as it is given to him, and their witness all agree. We desire it so in the communications in this paper. True, there is information obtained in earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, but it is where each saint writes or speaks only that which has been delivered to him. Then those who have been taught on a matter speak in wisdom, while those who have not been taught keep silent, and all that is said is unto edification.

P. D. G.

IS CHRIST THE GOSPEL?

This is an important question which should be carefully considered by God's people, and most especially by his ministers. Would it not be well for His people, at all times, to search the Scriptures, which are able to make them wise unto salvation.

The Scriptures are not able to give them salvation, but they are able to make them wise unto salvation.

Paul's admonition to Timothy applies to God's ministers until now. It was this: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2:15.

When a question arises as to the authority for what we preach, we should not flee to what the fathers, (the old preachers) preached, but to the Scriptures. They, (the Scriptures) alone are profitable for "doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness."

The Holy Scriptures, with the people of God, should always be the end of strife; and the traditions of men, and peculiar notions of individuals, should be laid aside as only trifling toys. "Hold fast," says the Apostle, "the form of sound words."—2 Tim. 1:13.

How can we be a guide to others, when we mean one thing, and use words which mean another? Is it not necessary for the preacher to know the literal meaning of the words of Scripture, in order that he may rightly divide the word of truth? What is the word of truth? It is the gospel of salvation. "In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard

THE WORD OF TRUTH,

the gospel of your salvation; in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory."—Eph. 1:13-14. Again: "For the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in

THE WORD OF TRUTH

of the gospel, which is come unto you, as it is in all the world: bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth."—Col. 1:5,6.

By rightly dividing the word of truth, as I understand it, is meant to apply it; the word of truth, just where the Holy Ghost has applied it. I have met with preachers, who seemingly, could not see any difference, in meaning, between quicken, convert, convict and convince, and hence they believe that the preacher is an instrument in the hands of God to quicken dead sinners. The dead are quickened (made alive) by the Spirit, and quickened sinners are convicted, converted or convinced by the preaching of the gospel. The fact that sinners are interested in, or comforted by the gospel, is an evidence of life, and not the cause of it. But I am called a "Dictionary Preacher" because I contend for the literal as well as the Spiritual interpretation of the Scriptures, and oppose the spiritualizing of everything contained in them. We cannot know Christ nor the power of His resurrection by merely knowing the Scriptures in the letter; but the Holy Ghost, by whom they were written, must give unto us the spiritual interpretation. But let us turn to the question we started out to answer. The meaning of the word Christ is the Anointed, the Messiah. It would not be correct to say that the gospel is the Messiah or Savior; but Christ Jesus is that. The gospel then is not Christ. Then what is the gospel? The word gospel is from the Anglo-Saxon, godspell; god, good and spell, history or tidings; of the same meaning as the Greek word which signifies good news, applied especially to the coming of the Messiah. We cannot say correctly that Christ is good history; that Christ is good news or glad tidings; but the history of Christ, which is the gospel, is good, and the testimony of Him, to the believer, is good news and glad tidings; and to him, the believer, it is a "joyful sound." "Blessed are the people who know the joyful sound."—Ps. 89: 15.

The angel preached the gospel to the shepherds when he said, "fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord."—Luke 2: 10, 11. The Savior, who is Christ the Lord, was born, (not the gospel born) in the city of David. The testimony, and not Christ, was carried to the shepherds by the angel. The gospel is the testimony of Jesus. The testimony of a thing cannot be that thing. The testimony of Jesus is not Christ. Paul said to Timothy, "Be thou therefore not ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me, his prisoner, but be thou a partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God."—2 Tim. 1:8. In this declaration the gospel is called the testimony of our Lord, but because Paul uses the phrase, "afflictions of the gospel," some conclude or infer that the gospel must be Christ, because Christ was afflicted. But does the text prove it? I think not. Let me, by way of illustration, use the following. Be thou a partaker of the sting of the bee? Does the expression prove that the bee was stung? The bee stings, and the gospel afflicts. Paul was imprisoned and afflicted because he preached the gospel. Paul asked Timothy to suffer these things for the gospel's sake, or in other words to "endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." The gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. The word power has, perhaps, as much latitude as any other word in the English language, but is allowed by many, but a little space. In the sense that the gospel is the power of God, the word power means authority, and not a force. It comes to the believer with authority. Paul had authority for what he preached and, therefore, was not ashamed of the gospel. "But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man; for I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ."—Gal. 1:11, 12.

God has never committed to men a dispensation of his power, but Paul said, "a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me."—1 Cor. 9:17. The gospel is the power of God to the believer, to them that are called, and to them that are saved. We can not preach the gospel of Christ without the Holy Ghost sent down from above. "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit, and of power."—1 Cor. 2:4. The word's of Paul's preaching were demonstrated by the Spirit; that is, they were proved by the Spirit. The gospel is not the Spirit, but the gospel is both the word and the Spirit. So, when the word of truth is preached, and is proved by the Spirit, in the heart of the believer, the gospel has come to that individual in demonstration of the Spirit, and of power—authority.

What is the gospel preached for? "This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness." The gospel is preached when Christ is preached, and Christ is preached when the gospel is preached. "We preach not ourselves but Christ Jesus the Lord." These expressions seem to indicate that Christ and the gospel are one. Christ is preached in his wonderful character; but this characterizing of Christ is not Christ. The preaching is not Christ, but Christ is preached to be the life, the truth and the way. In preaching of the gospel, the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith, and in it, the gospel, the believer is made by this revelation, to see how it is that he is in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto him wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption. It shows unto him the evidences of life and salvation, and, by the faith which is given unto him, he embraces the promises of life as his. This enables him to sing:

"The Lord my Shepherd is,
I shall be well supplied;
Since he is mine and I am His,
What can I want beside?"

F. P. BRANSCOME.

Laurel Fork, Va.

ELDER P. D. GOLD, DEAR BROTHER:—I hope Heaven's blessings may continue with you that you may in the future as in the past be able to comfort God's little ones both by preaching and writing. I know it takes a man with humble patience to fill the place you fill. You have many things to bear the world knows nothing of, and the church cares but little about. If I know anything about a God called minister it is not as I once viewed it. I once thought it was joy, peace and happiness all the time, no doubts, no tears, but a little Heaven all the time.

I am as ever yours in hope,

J. P. BEAN.

Immer, N. C.

"Bl seed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night."—Psalm 1:1-2.

ZION'S LANDMARK.

"Remove not the ancient Landmark which thy fathers have set."

P. D. GOLD,.....Editor

P. G. LESTER,.....Associate Editor.

VOLUME XXV(I).....No. 24.

WILSON, N. C., NOV. 1, 1894.

Entered at the Post Office at Wilson, North Carolina, as second class matter.

EDITORIAL.

THE GOSPEL.

What is the gospel, and what is the limit to the power of God which is called the gospel of Christ; in what sense is it the power of God; who are saved by it, and from what are they saved; and is the Scripture of the New Testament the gospel are prominently involved in the question which is being agitated in this and other parts of the country, by our people, as to whether the New Testament Scripture is the gospel. Queries have been put and answered through our paper, but the real point at issue has not been answered from the fact that the question has not been properly put.

Brethren requesting our views or those of any one else through our papers should be very careful to properly state the question, especially if it is a controverted one, or the answer, however carefully given, may add to the perplexity of the question, and place the one answering in an erroneous position in the minds of those who are familiar with the nature of the subject, as they are liable to pass upon his views in the light of the question as it is in their minds, rather than in that reflected in the question as propounded.

When this subject first began to be agitated, I was asked to give my views of the gospel and did so in the ordinary way, but did not have before me the question as it really was. Therefore I did not touch the real point at issue. It seems to me that every Primitive Baptist in the world, who is blessed with studious and faithful ministers should be sufficiently clear upon this subject as not to allow such questions to arise, and yet it is, in my judgment, too intricate to be clearly defined.

There are some things which we know and do, and yet we can not tell how we know nor do them. God's people know they believe, and yet I have never seen one who could fully explain how he knew it, nor how he believed. I do not propose to define the questions cited above, but desire to state them the best I can, hoping that those who seem disposed to make an issue of them, may be induced to desist from such a course and devote more of their time to preaching the gospel, rather than trying to tell and wrangling over what it is.

What is the gospel? It is defined to be good news, glad tidings—the good news of the Kingdom of God and of Christ—the glad tidings of salvation in and by the Lord Jesus Christ; the history of the work of Christ in the salvation of his people; the testimony of salvation by grace in Christ, together with the causes, effects and consequences of salvation and of those things that accompany it. The gospel of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ is preached as a witness which testifies that there is such a kingdom, and that it is set up by the God of heaven and shall stand forever, and that Christ is The King, and that the subjects of this Kingdom are the brethren of The King, elect and precious, and that God is the Father of them all and is blessed forever more. It testifies of the marks of grace, the evidences of salvation, to the living manifest child of God assuring him that he is a child, an heir of God and a joint heir with Christ, and that therefore all the blessings of God in Christ are his and he is Christ's, and Christ is God's. The gospel and the gospel Scriptures stand related to Spiritual Israel just as the law and the law Scriptures stand related to national Israel. The law testifies of sin and condemnation, while the gospel testifies of righteousness and salvation. The old Scriptures testify of what was to be, while the new Scriptures testify of what has been, is now, and shall be hereafter. They had the law and the Prophets, whereas we have the gospel and the Apostles. In the sense that we are not under the law but under grace. They were not under grace but under the law, likewise in the sense that we have the gospel and not the law they had the law and not the gospel. "The law and the Prophets were until John, since which time the Kingdom of God the gospel is preached." Jesus preached and commanded his Apostles to preach that the Kingdom of Heaven or of God was at hand.

It seems to me that it would not be saying too much to say that there was no gospel prior to the coming of Christ that the gospel pertains to the day and work of Christ. Noah was a preacher of righteousness but did he preach the gospel? Is it not true that the law was given before the gospel came? Noah lived before either the law was given by Moses or that grace and truth came by Jesus Christ, therefore Noah did not preach the gospel in the sense that Paul did. The Scripture preached unto Abraham, but did it preach the gospel? And the Scripture foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying: "In thee shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Gal. 3: 8. What did the Scripture here preach? It preached the promise that in Abraham should all nations of the earth be blessed. It preached the promise in which is something yet to be, while the gospel testifies that this same promise is fulfilled in us has come to pass. The promise was made unto him and by faith he saw the day of Christ and rejoiced, but he did not receive the promise. And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. Heb. 11:39-40. This better thing for us is the fullness of this promise revealed to us in and through the gospel.

The covenant with Abraham presented to him by faith that Christ should come into the world in these last times and die that he might abolish death and destroy Him that had the power thereof, and bring life and immortality to light through the gospel, according to the covenant or promise, but not through it, nor through the law. As the gospel is that through which the blessings of the covenant with Abraham are brought to light, or to the understanding of the living, manifest children of God, by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, which could not be done till he had abolished death, I concluded that Abraham had no use for the gospel until these things were done; at which time Jesus went and preached to the Spirits which were in prison and so in like manner preached the gospel unto Abraham that he might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the Spirit.

The gospel of Christ, says Paul, is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first and also to the Greek, for therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith. I am of the opinion that the main cause of the difficulty in the minds of some of our good brethren grows out of an indiscriminate use of the phrase, 'The power of God' as referring to that by the word of which all things are and were created, and are being upheld, and which the wrought in His Son when He raised him from the dead, and by which it may be said He redeemed His people from under the curse of the law and that which Paul declares to be the gospel of Christ which is unto salvation, not of the sinner, but of the believer, not to the dead, but to to living.

Is the power of God as in Him, of Him and executed by Him anywhere called the gospel as it is as given to Christ and executed by Him? Christ says; All power in Heaven and in earth is given unto me, go ye therefore and teach all nations. Teach them what? That all power in Heaven and in earth is given unto Jesus, and that the living subjects who are to be taught this wonderfully blessed truth should observe all things whatsoever he commands through and by his Apostles as under grace, and not what God had commanded Israel through and by the Prophets as under the law. This power as given to Jesus is called the gospel which he, as by another writer, commands his Apostles to preach in all the world to every creature.

We notice that the power of God which is called the gospel is unto salvation and is to the believer. Was that power which was wrought of God upon Israel under the law unto salvation, or was it not unto condemnation? The power of God as reflected in the law wrought a ministration of condemnation, while as reflected in the gospel it works the ministration of righteousness.

It is true all power is of God, but all power is not the gospel, nor is the same power at all times called the gospel. The powers that be are ordained of God and are therefore as much the power of God as is the gospel, but they are not the gospel. The power of God which is unto salvation to the believer is the only power which according to the Scripture can be properly termed the gospel.

In what sense is the gospel the power of God? Jesus says no man taketh my life from me; I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it again: this commandment have I received of my Father. No man taketh this honor unto himself save he that is called of God as was Aaron. That is no man but Jesus who was verily fore-ordained before the foundation of the world, a Prince and a Saviour, could have laid down his life so as to take it again and save any one thereby. He only had the right, the authority, the power thus to do. His Father gave him power, authority—over all flesh that he should give eternal life to as many as the Father had given him. In his ministry he spake as one having authority, power, even as the word of a King hath power. He was given power over sin, death, hell and the devil so that with the authority or power of Heaven he made an end of sin, abolished death, destroyed Him that had the power of death—that is the devil—delivered them who through fear of death were all their life time subject to bondage—led captivity captive and gave gifts unto men. And having been given all power, absolute authority—in Heaven and in earth, he commanded his chosen gifts to men to tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power, authority, from on high, until the fullness of the blessed gospel, in the Holy Ghost, should be poured out upon them, then they were to go and preach Christ crucified, the way, the truth and the life; the name which in authority—power and glory, was set above every name, the only name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. The gospel in its fundamental character consists in the inherent right of God the Father as vested in His Son Jesus Christ to fore-know, predestinate, call, justify and glorify His people without the necessity of giving a reason why. The existence, life, death, resurrection, ascension intercession and revelation of Jesus Christ in the great work of redemption and salvation are by virtue to the power of God which is called the gospel. By virtue of this power the Holy Ghost was shed forth upon the Apostles bringing to their knowledge the divine character of Christ, the extent and efficacy of His great work, and and all things whatsoever he had said unto them. In this wonderful appearing of the Son of God, the gospel, as under consideration at this time, was revealed, which is the gospel as preached and believed, and which the Apostle Paul declares to be the power of God unto salvation to the believer. This feature of the gospel, as compared with that which is called the everlasting gospel, or with the power of God in the work of redemption as referred to above, is defined by the Apostle Paul as being a dispensation of the gospel, which we sometimes term the preached gospel.

To preach the gospel is to preach that which is revealed in and to the people of God, which is Christ in them the hope of glory: and that which is given by inspiration of God which is the Scripture that is called the new testament both as written in the heart and mind of the children of God and as printed in a book called the Scriptures.

God sends forth the Spirit of his Son into the hearts of his chosen ones, and reveals in them the Christ, the way, the truth and the life and causes them to believe according to the workings of his mighty power which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead, whereby they are brought experimentally into the elements and power of the Kingdom of God, and become subjects of gospel address, to be instructed in the things which accompany salvation, and saved by the gospel, even as the Lord is pleased by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. The true believer questions his right or privilege to be identified with the people of God and to participate in the ordinances of the church, notwithstanding he is strongly impressed, and greatly desires to be with them and to live as they do. He questions his belief, his love, and general fitness, and at times feels almost as though he would give up the entire matter as a delusion, and his case as hopeless, but hears the gospel preached and is again assured of the genuineness of his confession and of his right to the tree of life, and of his authority for entering through the gates into the city, and is thus saved from yielding to doubts and giving up in despair. Again, he is tempted to turn in at some other gate and follow with others who seem to be moving on with authority, but he again hears the preached gospel or reads the Scriptures, and is again assured as to the right way, and is again saved from temptation, error and delusion.

The gospel is God's ordained way of saving his believing children from false and hateful ways, and of establishing them more and more in the belief of the truth as it is in Jesus and as it is revealed in them. It stirs up their pure minds by way of remembrance, bringing before them in review, as it were, the leadings of the Spirit which brought them into the possession of a comfortable hope, reflects the power of the doctrine and commands of Christ and the ordinances of his house, and thus feeds them with the sincere milk of the word and with strong meat, causing them to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Christ, and to be diligent in every good word and work.

In what sense, if any, are the Scriptures of the new testament the gospel? In this point arises the main feature of the question at issue. In the same sense that the gospel is a witness the new testament is the gospel. A witness is one who testifies to the truth of that which is. The Old Scriptures testify of Jesus as the coming Saviour, while the New Scriptures testify that he has come and actually saved his people from their sins. The gospel power, authority, reflected in the Scriptures pertains mainly to the doctrine, ordinances, discipline and order of the church, and to the instruction of the man of God in righteousness that he may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. The Scriptures are our authority for what we believe, the doctrine we preach, the ordinances and good works we maintain, and without them we would have no authority whatever for any of these things beyond a simple personal claim that this or that is right. Why do we not endorse Arminians in all their societies, helps, auxiliaries and endeavors? Simply because we do not find any authority in the Scriptures for them, therefore there is no gospel in them, nor for them. For the same reason we do not endorse their doctrine, discipline and ordinances. We say they do not preach the gospel. How do we know they do not? Because they do not preach what Paul Preached. How do we know what he preached? The Scriptures tell us what he preached. Do the Scriptures tell us what he preached, or are the Scriptures themselves what he preached? They do not contain all the words he spoke, but they do contain all the doctrine he preached. As the Apostles spoke and wrote by the power and dictation of the Spirit, in what respect could there possibly be any material difference between that which was spoken and that which was written? That which was written is to us the more important from the fact it is all we have. We know nothing of what Paul preached at Rome except by that which he wrote to the church at Rome and elsewhere. I believe the Scriptures are of a spiritual character and are thus revealed, and yet we can accept nothing as a revelation from God which cannot be sustained by the written Scriptures. The preached gospel is in perfect harmony with the Scriptures and being thus sustained coupled with the revelation of the same truth in us comes with invincible power and assurance, whereas without a thus saith the Lord we do not know anything about the truth of what is preached, notwithstanding it may be in harmony with what we believe to be a revelation of truth.

Though the Apostles, as men, are dead, yet as Apostles they ever live in the hearts of the children of God, and are preaching in the Scriptures the same living truth whose sayings are complete and sealed.

P. G. L.

(To be continued.)

END OF VOLUME 27.

This issue closes the present volume of ZION'S LANDMARK.

One of the marked features and conditions of the year now closing is the disquiet and unrest of many people of this and other nations in consequence of the "Hard Times" upon many of us. The remedies proposed are about as numerous as the causes assigned for the disease. The bitterness of many is another illustration of the fury of the rage of people oppressed by poverty.

The remedy will come slowly—never to many who are hopelessly involved in debt. But there is much need of forbearance of the rich toward the poor, and need of contentment and good will on the part of the poor. We never reach the best ends and results by madness or prejudice. We should seek peace and pursue it. Farmers should first of all produce their bread and meat at home, and buy only such things as they need.

The matter of great importance is, what is our standing spiritually, "Watchman, what of the night?"

There is generally a pretty good state of affairs visible among the churches. There has been some increase reported in the churches, and generally they are at peace.

Our people appear to feel as usual their vileness and absolute dependence on the Lord for all blessing. The doctrine of grace is as precious to us as ever.

Many have departed the past year and gone, we hope, where the inhabitant shall no more say, "I am sick." We who are remaining are not conscious of any cessation of the troubles, but we are still in their midst, and can hope in God and alone in him for deliverance. P. D. G.

BITTERNESS.

We regret very much to see the bitterness there is in politics. Each man should be interested in a good government. Each man should vote to govern himself as well as others. Each should allow every other one to vote the way he honestly thinks is right. None should listen to or believe lies and slanders. If there were no hungry office-seekers how much better it would be for our people. Consider what a man's motives are when he is seeking to stir up bitterness and hate in the country.

How much better to speak in behalf of one (Jesus) who never blunders, never wrongs one, never has done wrong, but hath done all things well. How much better to serve one (Jesus) whose law is perfect, and therefore never can be changed, and no new law is ever needed. How much better to trust and serve Him whose kingdom is from everlasting, and who is able to enrich and save forever all that trust him.

Then there is no hate, nor bitterness in his realm, but all is peace. Let us, brethren, love one another. This you do only as you love Jesus and serve him in his kingdom. He is our law giver, our judge, our king who will save us. P. D. G.

OBITUARIES.

DICKINSON COLEMAN MINTER.

The death angel has again entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Minter of Peatross, Henry Co. Va. and clasped in its embrace their darling little boy Dickinson Coleman. He was born May 7th, '92 and went to Heaven June 10th, 1894. Dick was an interesting little boy. He had won his way deep down into many hearts. This is the fourth child these fond parents have been called upon to give up in less than five years. May the God of all comfort administer grace and consolation to the stricken ones.

AUNTIE.

MRS. JOWEL W. SWAIN.

BRO. GOLD:—I send you the obituary notice of my loving wife who departed this life the 4th day of October 1894. Heart failure was the cause. She was 64 years of age the 9th day of last July. She was the oldest daughter of John and Cassa Smith, of Clinch Co. Ga. She was the mother of 7 children, a loving and dutiful wife, and a faithful member of the Primitive Baptist church, a loving mother and a good neighbor. She was a member 35 years. We hope our loss is her gain.

JOEL W. SWAIN.

APPOINTMENTS.

Appointments made for brethren are expected to be filled unless withdrawn by publication or otherwise, whether the appointments continue in this paper until day of fulfillment or not.

R. HUTCHINS.

Smithfield.....1st Sat. and Sun. in Dec.
Clemens.....Monday
Rehoboth.....Tuesday
Fellowship.....Wednesday
Middle Creek.....Thursday
Neuse.....Friday
Cedar Grove.....Saturday
Dutchville.....1st Sunday
Camp Creek.....Monday
Tar River.....Tuesday
Sarks.....Wednesday
Flat River.....Thursday
Stories Creek.....Friday
Roxboro.....Sat. and 3d Sun.
Elizabeth.....Monday
Prospect Hill.....Tuesday
Country Line.....Wednesday
Lick Fork.....Thursday
Dan River.....Friday
Good Will.....Saturday
Ridgeway.....4th Sunday
* Will some brother carry him from Wheelers to the depot.

ISAAC JONES.

J. E. ADAMS.

Broadway, Moore Co., N. C., Monday night,
Tuesday and Tuesday night after 2d
Sunday in Nov.
Goldston.....Wednesday night (Mr. Barber will arrange.)
School House near sister Barber's.....Thursday
Bear Creek.....Sat and 3rd Sunday
Maple Spring.....Monday
Brother James Boroughs at night.
Mt. Tabor.....Tuesday
Sandy Creek.....Wednesday
Edgewood School House.....Thursday
Bars School House.....Friday
Big Meadow.....Sat and 4th Sunday
Burlington.....Monday night, Tuesday and Tuesday night
Rays School House.....Wednesday
Andrews School House.....Thursday
Whitfield's School House.....Friday
Durham at night.
Dutchville.....Saturday
Cedar Grove.....1st Sunday in December
Neuse.....Tuesday
Raleigh at night.
Oak Grove.....Wednesday

Willow Spring.....Thursday
Sandy Grove.....Friday
He will need conveyance.

J. D. DRAUGHN.

Smithfield.....Monday night after 3rd Sunday in November

Old Union.....Tuesday
Cross Roads.....Wednesday
Chapel.....Thursday
Goldboro.....at night
Nahunta.....Friday
Aycock's.....Saturday and 4th Sunday
Memorial.....Monday
Scotts.....Tuesday
Contentnea.....Wednesday
Tolnot (Wilson).....Thursday
Union.....Friday
Mill Branch.....Sat and 1st Sun in December
Falls.....Monday
Sappony.....Tuesday
Nashville.....Wednesday
Peach Tree.....Thursday
Sandy Plains.....Friday
Healthy Plains.....Saturday and 2nd Sunday
Upper Black Creek.....Monday
Beulah.....Tuesday
Creels.....Wednesday
Salem.....Thursday
Clayton.....Friday
He will need conveyance.

A. N. HALL.

Suit's School House.....Mon after 4th Sun in Nov
Tar River Station.....Tuesday
Franklinton.....Thursday
Hickory Fork.....Saturday
Castalia.....1st Sun in Dec
Peach Tree.....Tuesday
Nashville.....Thursday
Falls Tar River.....Sat and 2nd Sunday
Mill Branch.....Monday
He will need conveyance when not on
R. R.

INDEX TO VOL. XXVII.

A

Adams, Elder J. E. 325, 396.
Ashburn, Elder J. A. 416
Armstrong, Elder J. D. 465.

B

Barnard, E. M. 3.
Bartley, Elder D. 4, 153, 169.
Burgess, Sarah J. 7.
Burch, Elder J. A. 11.
Britt, Mrs. M. 97.
Beal, N. C. 99.
Bazemore, Elder T. J. 148.
Bryan, E. 172.
Beck, J. M. 182.
Broyles, S. E. 199, 342.
Burrows, J. H. 203, 247.
Broaders, J. 217, 337, 414.
Blackwell, E. F. 242.
Balock, W. R. 255.
Brazil, M. M. 296.
Bean, Elder I. P. 565.
Bryan, Elder G. 324.
Bell, Lizzie 347.
Bryan, E. W. 365, 442.

Branscome, Elder F. P. 563.

C

Coker, Louveina 9.
 Craft, Stephen 10.
 Chick, Elder F. A. 50, 145, 193, 265.
 Cox, H. 408, 490.
 Cox, A. P. 459.
 Casey, E. 490
 Coats, Elder J. T. 542.

D

Durand, Elder S. H. 1, 121, 175, 258, 456, 486.
 Dodd, Nannie E. 36.

E

Edwards, L. A. 370, 489.

F

Ferguson, T. 384.
 Fields, F. V. 200.

G

Gold, P. D. 13, 15, 17, 18, 42, 43, 62, 65, 67, 84, 87, 88, 90, 91, 92, 110, 116, 132, 139, 140, 158,
 159, 183, 188, 229, 236, 255, 257, 278, 279,
 317, 327, 329, 349, 355, 371, 373, 375, 376,
 377, 395, 397, 399, 401, 403, 421, 423, 424,
 443, 446, 447, 449, 449, 450, 452, 471, 473,
 473, 493, 495, 496, 516, 518, 519, 530, 571,
 572.

Gardner, Elder J. W. 82
 Griffin, Mrs. M. E. 127.
 Green, W. D. 513.
 Gillespie, Mrs. D. G. 543.

H

Hassell, M. M. 34, 196.
 Hardy, Elder L. H. 54, 81, 97, 155, 253, 289, 340, 360, 439, 458, 504, 512.
 Hines, A. H. 73.
 Harris, Elder J. M. 79
 Holmes, H. L. 101.
 Harrell, J. 125.
 Hall, Elder J. C. 432.
 Hyman, Miss B. 128.
 Headric, B. C. 176.
 Haddock, M. I. 219.
 Hardy, G. M. 268.
 Harlan, V. 275, 411.
 Hicks, E. 290, 292.
 Holt, J. 296.
 Hurst, J. C. 313.
 Hinton, E. 316.
 Hall C. T. 322.
 Hill, A. G. 508.
 Holland, M. C. 489.
 H. S. B. 420.
 Hatcher, A. 480.
 Hubbell, Elder J. D. 55.
 Hargrove, R. B. 366.
 House, C. 543.
 Hurst, J. R. 318.
 Hooper, Wm. 528.
 Hurst, Roten 555

J

James, Elder P. H. 57.
 Johnson, D. G. 59, 173, 230, 265, 552.
 James, N. M. 222.
 Johnson, F. E. 301.
 Johnson, W. S. 346.

L

Lester, P. G. 16, 29, 36, 135, 159, 185, 209, 231, 284, 301, 350, 486, 536.
 Lang, Dippie 131.
 Lord, J. F. 228.

Liverman, S. D. 244, 481.
 La France, Elder M. T. 386.

M

Mills, Elder J. F. 12.
 Martin, I. J. 77.
 Morrow, Elder J. H. 102, 123.
 Mewborn, I. J. H. 199, 463.
 McDaniel, C. S. 300.
 Mizille, C. E. 393.
 McMillan, S. 441.

N

Nye, M. 228.

O

Olell, J. R. 28.

P

Phillips, R. A. 49.
 Purifox, Elder J. H. 203.
 Powell, E. W. 297.
 Pittman, A. 462.

R

Riggs, E. V. 30.
 Rittenhouse, Elder E. 78, 128, 272, 513.
 Royal, M. J. 152.
 Ross, Elder W. A. 205.
 Reed, A. 81, 286.
 Robbins, Elder G. 205.
 Robertson Miss A. 276, 343.

S

Stewart, Mary C. 33.
 Smith Eliza C. 57.
 Smith, Elder E. C. 80, 226.
 Sikes, Elder M. 83.
 Sims, J. S. 156, 295.
 Song, S. B. 241.
 Staton, Maggie 343.
 Stevenson, Elder W. J. 367.
 Saunders, E. M. 387.
 Story, A. K. 393.
 Swain, Elder J. W. 394.
 Shelton, Elder J. C. 465, 558.
 Stegal, M. E. 487.

T

Taylor, Elder I. J. 223.
 Tillman, M. 293.
 T. 298.
 Thompson, S. C. 415.

W

Williford, M. B. 26.
 Winston, E. 251.
 Whitley Bettie Z. 27, 28, 81, 198, 389, 510.
 Webb, Elder I. 30, 151.
 Wiseman, Elder R. A. 35.
 Whatly, Elder A. B. 130.
 Weeden, J. S. 246.
 Walton, Elder T. N. 390.
 Woodall, R. P. 418.

Y

Yeatts, Richard 25, 31.

OBITUARIES.

A

Armstrong, Hattie A. 69.
 Airs, E. W. 359.
 Anderson, M. E. 427.

B

Bennett, Mrs. M. A. 287.
 Bellamy, E. 287.

Battle, J. 287.
 Burnett, N. 381.
 Bennett, Mrs. H. 47.
 Bass, J. T. 71.
 Barker, C. H. 117.
 Baker, Mrs. N. H. 143.
 Beck, W. R. 165.
 Bass, J. 215.
 Brantly, McA 190.
 Brooks, L. 333.
 Billups, D. F. 358.
 Bancroft, S. 521.
 Braddy, S. A. 523.
 Bass, B. 528.
 Bennett, J. S. 526.

C

Chany, J. 358
 Cox, Mary C 382
 Clayton, M E 63
 Cummings, J I 311
 Clark, S J 311
 Cummings L 334
 Coleman, J 351

D

Denny, Mary F 45
 Dodd, Nancy 46
 Daniel N P and M M 47
 Day, E 95
 Davis, E J 296
 Daniel, Elder G T 292
 Daughtridge, W M 476
 Dameron, J H 547

E

Edwards, Mrs E 309
 Edmonson, W L 358
 Everett, J H 477
 Eason, Mrs J 428

F

Fox, C L 382
 Fletcher, L 310
 Fry, S A 335

G

Gilbert, Elder A J 23
 Godwin, Tobe 95
 Green W E 167
 Grizzell, J 310
 Garrell, S 380
 Gillican, Mrs N 429.

H

Hays, Mrs J M 524
 Harrell, J L G 525
 Harris, Joseph 48
 Harris, J H 70
 Hardy, J T 94
 House, Elder D 166
 Hatcher, A and C 193
 Hill R B 259
 Hensly, J R 261
 Hunt, A A 333
 Haskins, P 335
 Hall, C T 405
 Hilton, V H 191

I

Ireland, Mrs N I 117

J

Jones, J E 454
 Jones, L E 526

Jenkins, Wm 291

L

Ladd, W J 117
 Long, Miss M 214
 Lamm, E 429
 Lester, J R 453

M

Mayo, Miss I 118
 Matthews, W R 332
 Moore, Mrs L J 381
 Munder, J Y 476
 Money, Clarence 529
 Miller, C 526
 Minter, C. M. 572.

O

Owen, J 263

P

Phillips, Nancy C 23
 Phelps, H A 191
 Pollard, Deacon J O 259
 Poteat, B S 309
 Piner, J W 310
 Ph'egar, J P 429
 Purington, Elder W J 477
 Parker, Elder J R 501
 Page, S 478
 Pittman, W V 524

R

Reaves, Mrs I 455
 Rogerson, Elder L 548
 Robertson, Lizzie 47
 Roberson, 119
 Royster, W T 166
 Roberts, J 290
 Rust, V R 309

S

Sammons, L 358
 Shelton, H 427
 Smother, T M 428
 Simmons, J 429
 Stadler, M 455
 Sherrod, C H 477
 Saunders, Mrs F 522
 Semones, Miss C 530
 Satterfield, G D 47
 Smith, N M 94
 Shepherd, Mrs L 214
 Satterfield G D 239
 Simpkins, M B 262
 Short, D 308
 Stokes, W D 308
 Smith, J D 332
 Swain, Mrs. J. W. 572

T

Thorne, Herbert T 22
 Thomas, Deacon J 359

W

Whitly, Johnnie E 46
 Walker, M 71
 Walker, M H 72
 Ward, M G 167
 Weaver P 215
 Whichard, L I 263
 Warren, M S 356
 Williams, Mrs T V 380

Y

Yelverton, M I 476

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.
and Branches, & Florence Railroad
Cond. Schedule.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

DATED July 5, 1894.	No. 21 Daily	No. 41 Daily	No. 41 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.
Lv. Weldon	11 52	9 37
Ar. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 40
Ar. Tarboro	2 40
Lv. Tarboro	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	1 02	10 20	6 00
Lv. Wilson	2 05	11 01
Lv. Selma	2 35
Lv. Fayetteville	4 35	14 5
Ar. Florence	7 25	3 00
	No. 47 Daily
Lv. Wilson	2 35		A. M.
Lv. Goldsboro	3 05		6 35
Lv. Magnolia	4 15		7 40
Ar. Wilmington	5 50		10 00
	P. M.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

DATED July 5, 1894.	No. 26 Daily	No. 36 Daily	No. 40 Daily
	A. M.	P. M.
Lv. Florence	7 30	7 35
Lv. Fayetteville	10 25
Lv. Selma	12 05
Ar. Wilson	1 00	11 27
	No. 48 Daily
Lv. Wilmington	9 00		P. M.
Lv. Magnolia	10 40		5 35
Lv. Goldsboro	11 35		5 45
Ar. Weldon	12 40		10 27
	No. 26 Daily	No. 36 Daily
Lv. Wilson	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Ar. Rocky Mt.	1 10	11 27	10 32
	2 03	12 05	11 15
Ar. Tarboro	3 47
	12 25
Lv. Rocky Mt.	4 13	12 05
Ar. Weldon	3 10	12 45
	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.

†Daily except Monday. ‡Daily except Sunday.
*These trains carry only first-class passengers holding Pullman accommodations.
Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Weldon 3 40 p. m., Halifax 4 00 p. m., arrives Scotland Neck at 4 55 p. m., Greenville 5 37 p. m., Kinston, 7 35 p. m., returning leaves Kinston, 7 30 a. m., Greenville 8 22 a. m., arriving Halifax at 11 00 a. m., Weldon 11 30 a. m., daily except Sunday.
Trains on Washington branch leave Washington 7 00 a. m., Arrives Parmele 8 40 a. m.; Tarboro 8 50; returning leaves Tarboro 4 40 p. m., Parmele

7 30 p. m., arrives at Washington 7 35 p. m. Daily except Sunday, connects with trains on Scotland Neck Branch.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle & Raleigh R. R. daily, except Sunday, 30 p. m., Sunday 3 00 p. m., arrives Plymouth 30 p. m., 4 20 p. m. Returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 6 00 a. m., Sunday 9 30 a. m., arrives Tarboro 10 25 a. m. and 11 45 p. m.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro, N. C., daily, except Sunday, 6 05 a. m., arriving Smithfield, N. C., 7 30 a. m., returning, leaves Smithfield, N. C., 8 00 a. m., arrive Goldsboro, N. C., 9 30 a. m.

Train on Nashville Branch leaves Rocky Mount at 4 30 p. m., arrives Nashville 5 05 p. m., Spring Hope 5 30 p. m., returning leaves Spring Hope 8 00 a. m., Nashville 8 35 a. m., arrive at Rocky Mount 9 05 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Latta Branch Florence R. R. leave Latta 6 40 p. m.; arrive Dunbar 8 00 p. m., returning leave Dunbar 6 30 a. m.; arrive Latta 8 25 a. m., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Clinton branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton, daily, except Sunday, at 1 30 p. m., returning leaves Clinton at 7 40 a. m., Connecting at Warsaw with main line trains.

Train No. 75 makes close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All rail via Richmond and daily except Sunday, via Portsmouth and Bay Line. Also at Rocky Mount with Norfolk & Carolina R. R. for Norfolk daily, and all points North via Norfolk, daily except Sunday.

J. O. F. DIVINE,

General Mgr.
J. R. KENLY, Gen'l Manager.
T. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

LLOYD'S PRIMITIVE BAPTIST HYMN BOOKS.

The book will hereafter be sold at the following greatly reduced prices:

Plain sheep binding, single copy, by mail 60cts.
Per dozen, by mail, $6.00.
Morocco binding, plain edge, single copy, by mail, $1.00.

Per dozen, by mail, $9.00.
Morocco binding, gilt edge and gilt cover, single copy, by mail, $1.25
Per dozen, by mail, $12.00
No less than half dozen will be sold at dozen rates.

Books sent to any part of the United States or Territories, postage prepaid.

In all cases, at these prices cash must accompany the order.

Send money in Registered Letter, or Money Order, or by Express. Address

J. A. CLARK, local and general agent,
Wilson, N. C.

GILLIAM'S ACADEMY FOR BOTH SEXES.

The 18th Session will open Tuesday, Oct. 16th, 1894, and Continue 20 weeks. Rates reasonable. The buildings for young men as boarders are neat and well furnished. Young ladies will find pleasant rooms in the dwelling.

Pupils will be met at Burlington and Reidsville Oct. 15, and conveyed gratis, and at close of term to railroad gratis, provided each one writes me one week previous.

Address,
J. W. GILLIAM, Prin.,
Morton's Store, Alamance Co., N. C.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED
At this office. Send for samples, &c.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.

After years of study and research to get a remedy to destroy the germs of disease, and to build up the broken down Nervous System—to give new life and vigor, so you will feel that life is worth living for. This medicine is a gentle Cathartic; also, a great Nerve Tonic, which builds up the nerve tissues and destroys that tired, languid feeling. It works through the Blood, Nerves, Liver and Kidneys, which are the main springs of the whole body. This remedy is the great

4 B. B. B. B. MEDICINE.

It is Nature's Remedy, to work in harmony with Nature and build up the organs of the human body.

4 B. B. B. B. is tasteless. Flitty capsules in each box. Twenty-five to fifty days' treatment in a box. Medicine delivered C. O. D., to any part of the United States, or by mail. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Agents wanted in every town, county, and Territory in the United States. Call on or address, H. C. BRAGG, or 4 B. B. B. Co., Connersville, Ind. Eld. Chas. M. REED, General Agent, Connersville, Ind. Corner of 5th and central Ave., Bank Block.

The following is a list of persons of the Primitive Baptist Church who have either used or sold 4 B. B. B. and can cheerfully recommend them to their brethren and mankind in general, and to these we refer you: Eld. J. E. Goodson, Jr., Macon, Mo.; Eld. E. Stephens, Erlanger, Ky.; Eld. Jas. J. Gilbert, Winchester, Ky.; Eld. Daniel Hess, Lebanon, O.; Eld. Corwin Reed, Franklin, O.; Eld. E. W. Thomas, Danville, Ind.; Eld. Harvey Wright, Sexon, Rush county, Ind.; Eld. Archie Brown, Rushville, Ind.; Eld. Wm. Lunde, Cabell, Carroll county, Va.; Eld. P. L. Thomas, Clayton, Ala.; Eld. Jacob Cloud, Nevada, Mo.; Eld. J. T. Oilphant, Fort Branch, Ind.; and for further reference we call attention to our circulars, which are sent free on application.

Those receiving circulars, will confer a favor on the afflicted by distributing them among brethren and friends.

I am agent for this medicine at Wilson, N. C., at same prices.

P. D. GOLD.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SON,
30½ Marietta St. Atlanta, Ga.

They treat Dropsy with much success, and furnish ten days treatment free of charge. Broth or Green has been of great service to many sufferers with dropsy. Write to him if you wish his services.

P. D. GOLD.

ORDERS for life size CRAYON PORTRAITS solicited. Price, $12.50, including nice frame. Send good photos. For further particulars, address

MRS. MARY G. WINSTAD, Artist,
Care of Elder P. D. Gold,

WILSON, N. C.

CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY R. R. COMPANY.

Cond. Schedule—In effect Sept. 30, 1894.
All trains daily except Sunday.

S. Bound	MAIN LINE.	N. Bound
No 1		No. 2
7:55 p.m.	At.....Wilmington.....Lv	7:06 a.m.
4:45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Lv	9:00 a.m.
4:54 p.m.	Ar.....Fayetteville.....Lv	9:27 a.m.
4:38 p.m.	Ar.....Fayetteville Junction.....Lv	9:30 a.m.
3:17 p.m.	Lv.....Sanford.....Lv	11:45 a.m.
1:39 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	1:45 a.m.
1:02 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....A	2:45 p.m.
12:57 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	3:30 p.m.
12:09 p.m.	Lv.....Stokesdale.....Lv	3:45 p.m.
11:43 a.m.	Lv.....N. & W. Cove.....Lv	4:30 p.m.
11:35 a.m.	Ar.....N. & W. Cove.....Lv	4:33 p.m.
11:09 a.m.	Lv.....Rural Hall.....Lv	5:01 p.m.
9:45 a.m.	Lv.....Mt. Airy.....Ar	6:25 p.m.
		No. 4
		7:45 a.m.
7:45 p.m.	Ar.....Bennettsville.....Lv	5:20 a.m.
6:30 p.m.	Lv.....Maxton.....Lv	9:00 a.m.
5:45 p.m.	Lv.....Red Springs.....Lv	9:45 a.m.
5:05 p.m.	Lv.....Hope Mills.....Lv	10:55 a.m.
4:45 p.m.	Lv.....Fayetteville.....Ar
		No. 15
		Mixed
		Daily Ex
		Sunday
5:35 p.m.	Ar.....Rancho.....Lv	6:50 a.m.
3:55 p.m.	Lv.....Climax.....Lv	8:40 a.m.
3:10 p.m.	Lv.....Greensboro.....Ar	9:35 a.m.
		No. 16
		Mixed
		Daily Ex
		Sunday
7:35 p.m.	Ar.....Greensboro.....Lv	9:40 a.m.
7:45 p.m.	Ar.....Stokesdale.....Lv	11:00 a.m.
12:30 p.m.	Lv.....Madison.....Ar	11:50 a.m.

Trains Nos 2 and 4 connect at Fayetteville Junction with Atlantic Coast Line for all points North and East. Train No. 2 connects at Sanford with Seaboard Air Line North and South bound, and at Greensboro with the Richmond & Danville R. R., North and South bound, and at Walnut Cove with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Winston-Salem.

Train No. 26 connects at Madison with the Norfolk & Western R. R. for Roanoke and all points North and West. Train No. 1 connects at Walnut Cove with Norfolk & Western R. R. for Roanoke and all points North and West, and at Greensboro with the Richmond & Danville R. R., North and South bound, and at Sanford with the Seaboard Air Line for all points North and South, and at Fayetteville Junction with the Atlantic Coast Line for Charleston, Jacksonville, and all Florida points.

Train No. 3 connects at Maxton with the Seaboard Air Line for Charlotte, Atlanta and all points South.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen'l Mang'r, Gen'l Pass Agt.

CANCER CURE.

My cure has proven remarkably successful in the treatment of cancers, as many will attest who have tried it. I am confident it will cure you if you are so afflicted.

L. H. HARDY.

"MEDITATIONS ON PORTIONS OF THE WORD."

[By Silas H. Durand.]

400 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1.00. WILL be sent (postage paid) to any address on receipt of price.

Address to Elder Silas H. Durand, Southampton, Bucks Co., Pa., or to Editor of ZION'S LANDMARK.